Minutes of the Meeting of the Board of Regents held on May 8, 1976, Approved

President's Report

Dr. Curris reported 2876 students enrolled in the summer session.

He stated that we have been notified of the death of Dr. V. D. Bohannon; prior to his death, Dr. Bohannon established a scholarship fund at Murray State for students in veterinary medicine and approximately $100,000 of his estate will be put into this scholarship fund.

The President reported that agreement has been reached between the University and Department of Finance and Administration in Frankfort regarding the University Center. The building will be approximately 135,000 square feet at an estimated cost of $7,250,000 - $7,500,000 over all. Final plans are underway for the renovation of the Waterfield Building into a library and construction will begin this fall. Three tracts of land on Payne Street have been purchased for parking and new tennis courts will be designed to replace those lost with the construction of the University Center.

He called the Board's attention to the time period for tenure decision appeals and stated that one appeal had been filed with the Committee; the Committee has met, considered and denied the appeal.

President Curris read a portion of a letter received from Alan Adams, Executive Director of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia Fraternity, stating that 80 members of Phi Mu Alpha performed a musical worship service at New Harmony, Indiana, on July 10. William Warfield was the featured soloist and Bob Baar of our Music Department conducted. Mr. Adams praised Mr. Baar's work with the musicians and further stated that Donald Travis, an undergraduate student at Murray State, has been elected to serve as the first student member of the National Executive Committee.

Dr. Curris stated there is considerable discussion throughout the Commonwealth regarding raising tuition fees, that he strongly feels it is in the best interests of the citizens of the State that Kentucky remain a low-tuition state for its students, that 60% of high school seniors nationwide go to college but only 40% of Kentucky high school seniors go on to college, that he intends to argue that we remain low in tuition. President Curris distributed copies of the Low Tuition Fact Book published by the American Association of State Colleges and Universities to the members.

President Curris stated that Dr. John Lindauer, Dean of the College of Business and Public Affairs, will be leaving Murray State University as he has been selected to serve as Chancellor of the University of Alaska at Anchorage. He stated that we are sorry to lose Dr. Lindauer but congratulate him on his new position.

Dr. Lindauer was present and thanked the Board for the opportunity to participate in what he described as one of the thoroughly dynamic regional universities in the country. He stated that Murray State has made great strides but urged that we continue to expand in quality and service.

Pre-Hearing Procedure

(5) The notice and charges shall either be (a) simultaneously mailed via registered and first class mail to the address last noted on the student's official records at the University or (b) be handed to the accused student. In the event that notice is handed to the student a return by a University official performing this function shall be made on the notice. Such service of charges shall not be regarded as defective if the student hides himself, refuses mail, or has failed to notify the University of his current address, and the hearing may proceed without hindrance or delay. Such notice and charges shall be mailed or handed to the student not less than five (5) working days prior to the hearing, unless the student agrees to waive the five (5) day notice requirement.

Hearing Procedures

(4) A student's character, reputation and prior disciplinary record shall be inadmissible as evidence to prove his guilt. However, the Board may consider a student's prior disciplinary record in determining appropriate disciplinary action after guilt has been determined.

Mr. Davis seconded and the motion carried.

the board established the Harry Lee Waterfield Governmental Studies Foundation to receive private gifts in support of governmental studies, scholarship and continuing education for local governmental officials. The institute now serves as the organizational vehicle through which the governmental studies program carries out its functions.

In addition, the Center for Innovation and Development has been established to enhance the university's effort to provide services to the public schools of West Kentucky. The ties between the university and the public schools have been strengthened through student teaching and observation experiences. During 1975, over 690 students participated in these off-campus experiences.

The university's Hancock Biological Station on Kentucky Lake is the site of much continuing student and faculty aquatic research. The station's summer program brought visiting professors from Ohio State University and the College of William and Mary in addition to Murray State faculty.

Murray State University's Special Education Building, which houses the Department of Special Education, opened for use during the summer of 1975. Located on Sixteenth Street across from the University Laboratory School, the building is designed to serve the two-fold purpose of the department—academic offerings to prepare special education personnel, and provision of direct diagnostic and remedial services for persons from the region. Facilities within the building include offices, classrooms, a lecture hall, an audio-visual center, a duplication center, a library, more than forty-five individual diagnostic and remediation rooms, and numerous special meeting areas. Construction began on the $1.6 million facility in late 1973. The Department of Special Education is composed of three major divisions: 1) the Division of Learning Disorders which prepares teachers in the areas of mental retardation, learning disabilities, and behavioral disorders; 2) the Division of Reading which prepares teachers to work with reading-disabled children as well as normal children; and 3) the Division of Speech and Hearing which prepares speech pathologists to work in public and private schools, hospitals, speech and hearing clinics, and mental health centers. All three divisions offer direct services to students and area residents.

Students began enjoying newly renovated physical education facilities in the Carr Health Building during the fall. The $830,000 project improved the expanded handball/racquetball courts; renovated gymnasiums, exercise rooms, classrooms, and offices; remodeled locker rooms; provided a sauna bath; and upgraded electrical wiring, plumbing, and fire protection to meet building code requirements.

Also completed in the fall was the Carlisle Cutchin Recreational Complex, a site formally occupied by the old Cutchin Stadium. The late Carlisle Cutchin, a pioneer in athletics at Murray State University who served as coach and athletic director more than a quarter of a century before his death in 1953, continues to be memorialized in a tree-lined patio overlooking the playing fields, where the original stadium plaque and a new photoengraved plaque showing game action in the old stadium are displayed. The new complex consists of playing areas for soccer, softball, football and jogging, and encompasses existing tennis courts. It is in constant use in warm weather (and on sunny days in cold weather) for intramural competition, physical education classes, and informal recreation. Other uses for the area, which is lighted, include band practice and camps for high school athletes, bands and cheerleaders in summer months.

One of the university's three statutory missions is public service. In order that the university's educational expertise can be brought to bear upon the problems facing our region, the Board of Regents established in 1974 the Center for Regional Services.

Last spring the Center for Regional Services was recognized by the National Association of Development Organizations (NADO) as having the nation's outstanding program for assisting local governments through its "Pilot Project for Provision of Supplemental Assistance to Local Governments," funded through the Kentucky Office for Local Government. Services offered through the project supplement the work of the Purchase, Pennyrite and Green River area development districts. Local governments contact the university through the Center for Regional Services, and the center then gathers together individuals or groups possessing the appropriate expertise to assist in solving the problem the requesting local government faces. The university has assisted communities to solve problems involving tax assessments, funds analyses, centralized purchasing, recreation planning, cost analyses, personnel administration, tourism promotion, water quality analyses, budgeting, health planning, codification of city ordinances, and many others.

The university's Speakers' Bureau, 100 speakers in twenty-nine separate categories ranging from "agriculture" to "travel" with over 300 individual topics, continued to meet a strong demand for speakers in West Kentucky. Civic, service, academic and other groups, clubs, and societies have found the bureau to be a valuable service.

Two recent developments will further enhance the university's regional services program.

In spring 1975 the Board of Regents authorized the establishment of the Harry Lee Waterfield Institute for Local Government. Two years previously Professors Roy Helton (left) and Thayle Anderson originated the Shagbark Review, which enables the university to recognize and encourage talented high school students' creative writing.

Hundreds of students in West Kentucky have benefited from Murray State's emergency medical technician's program. Classes are taught in the communities needing these services.

residence hall population, the amount of subsidization will be reduced and possibly eliminated.

While on-campus enrollment increased significantly, the most noteworthy progress came through extended programs in West Kentucky. Nearly 1,500 of the university's 8,238 students are enrolled in classes away from the main campus—in Mayfield, Benton, Cadiz, Paducah, Fulton, Princeton, Marion, Henderson, Hopkinsville, Owensboro, Louisville, Paris, Hickman, and many others. The university now maintains the largest off-campus M.B.A. (Master of Business Administration) program in the commonwealth with over 300 students enrolled in off-campus centers at Hopkinsville, Owensboro and Paducah. These students will complete the M.B.A. degree in their home communities.

The university serves 362 soldiers and civilians at Fort Campbell, Kentucky, through evening classes taught as part of the Eagle University consortium. An additional 177 soldiers are working toward a high school diploma through the Fort Campbell PREP (Pre-Release Education Program). Thirty students are pursuing an associate degree in general studies as prisoners at the Kentucky State Penitentiary. Murray State has taught 300 West Kentucky students paramedical skills in 1975 through the Emergency Medical Technicians Program.

Eighty percent of Murray's students are native Kentuckians, fifteen percent come from West Tennessee, Southeast Missouri and Southern Illinois, while the remaining five percent come from throughout the nation and twenty five foreign nations.

Using its own physical plant personnel, the university renovated the Student Health Services facility in 1975. The new quarters in Wells Hall enable the university to provide more efficient service to students.

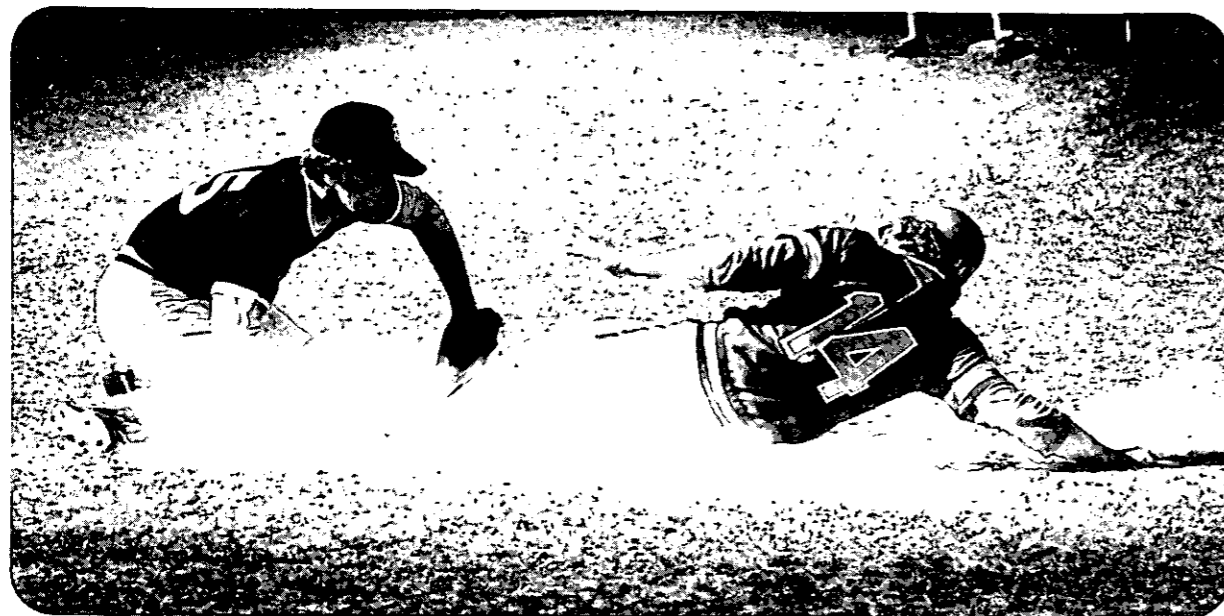

The newly renovated Carr Health Building provides greater leisure time opportunities for students and better meets the needs of the physical education program.

University during 1975. Murphy's Pond has remained in its pristine state for nearly two centuries. The earthquake that formed Reelfoot Lake in 1811 also formed Murphy's Pond, disrupting the normal drainage structure of the land and creating an enclosed natural area of woods and water, providing a habitat for all Kentucky's native wildlife, including its renowned cottonmouth population.

For this acquisition the university is grateful to the Nature Conservancy, a nonprofit organization based in Washington devoted to wilderness preservation, the U.S. Bureau of Outdoor Recreation, and the heirs of George Allen Courtney who resisted the temptation to drain and clear the land and use it for agriculture purposes.

Nineteen seventy-five also marked intensified planning for the construction of a new university center, conversion of the Waterfield Student Union Building into a centralized library facility, and the replacement of the antiquated (and polluting) steam plant with a new Central Heating and Cooling Plant.

Efforts were also begun to renovate Wrather Hall into a regional museum and Wells Hall from a dormitory to a classroom and office building.

During 1975 the Murray State baseball team became champions of the Ohio Valley Conference for the ninth time, compiling a 40-7 record and representing the conference in the 1975 National Collegiate Athletic Association regional championship tournament. The Thoroughbreds led the nation in slugging percentage.

student body

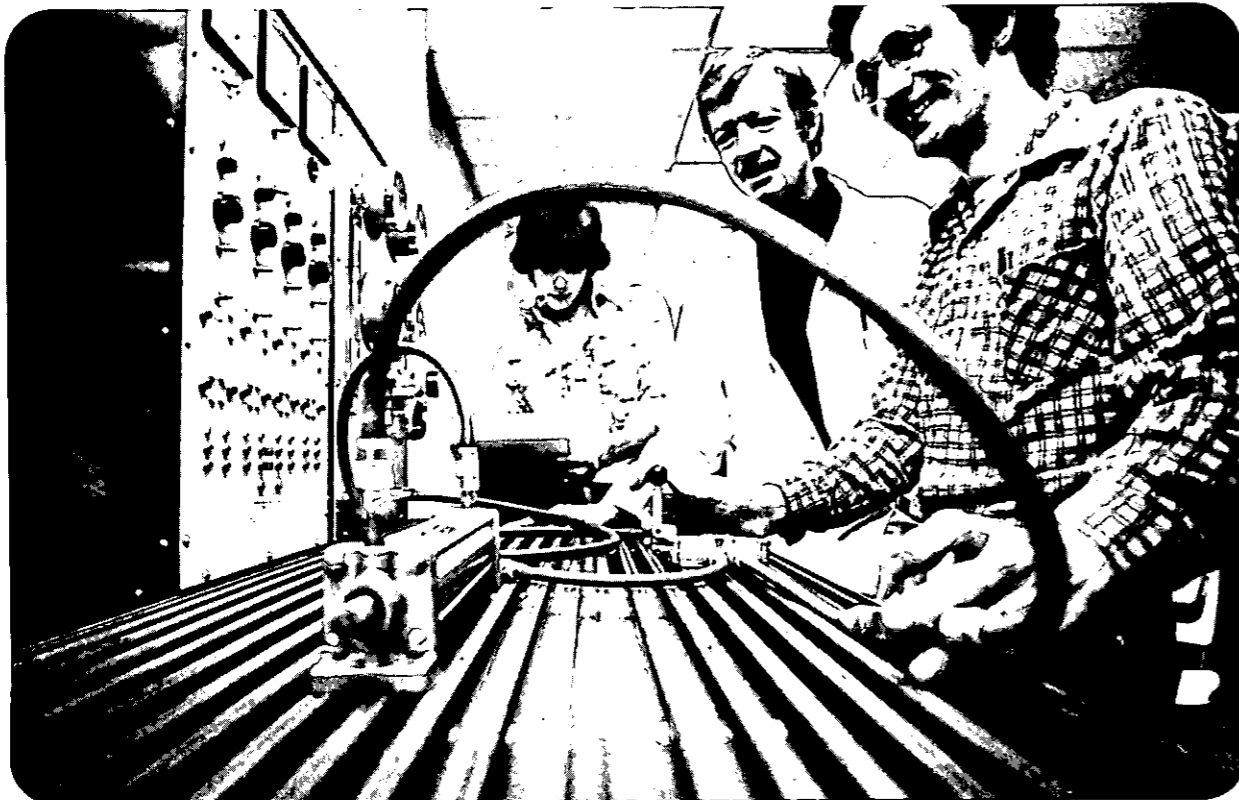

Murray State University enrolled 8,238 students for the fall, 1975 semester. This represented the largest headcount enrollment in the university's history, and at 5,850, the largest number of full-time students since 1971. Undergraduates numbered 6,554, while 1,684 were graduate students.

Especially encouraging were increases in the number of residence hall students. The university, based upon rapidly expanding enrollments prior to the end of the draft and without anticipating the imposition of quotas for out-of-state students by the Commonwealth of Kentucky, overbuilt its residence halls. For several years public funds have been subsidizing the Housing and Dining Bond System. If the university can sustain an increased

Through the years Murray State has developed close ties with Fort Campbell through its Eagle University and Pre-release Education Program.

During the new college's first year, enrollment has increased twenty percent with a spectacular seventy percent increase in new freshmen.

The university is very fortunate to receive the continuing assistance of business and industrial leaders throughout West Kentucky. The Industry and Technology Advisory Council, the Advisory Committee for Electrical Engineering Technology, and the Advisory Committee for Construction Technology (representing the Associated General Contractors of West Kentucky) all assist the College of Industry and Technology in developing its educational programs and in keeping those programs relevant to the needs of business and industry.

Professor Emeritus Clifton Sigsbee Lowry, a teaching legend on the Murray State University campus, was honored in the winter of 1975 through the establishment of the annual Clifton Sigsbee Lowry Distinguished Lecture in the Humanities. The inaugural speaker in the lecture series was Dr. Forrest C. Pogue, eminent historian and biographer of General George C. Marshall. During his forty-three years of teaching Dr. Lowry inspired several generations of Murray State students, and now his teaching career will be continually honored in the most appropriate way—that of continuing lectures by distinguished scholars visiting the campus.

Dr. Pogue himself also was honored by the university in 1975. Official biographer of General Marshall; official historian of the Supreme Headquarters, U.S. Forces European Theater of World War II; director of the George C. Marshall Foundation and Library; and director of the Dwight D. Eisenhower Institute for Historical Research in the National Museum of History and Technology, Smithsonian Institution, is Murray State's most distinguished alumnus academician. He advised and assisted the university in its pioneering efforts to record Kentucky governmental history through the first-hand recollections of those who made that history, and in recognition of his help and his eminence in the field, Murray State has established the Forrest Carlisle Pogue Oral History Institute of the College of Humanistic Studies.

Murray State again honored Jesse Stuart, Kentucky's greatest poet and author, through the college of industry and technology

Concerted efforts to strengthen academic programs were emphasized during 1975. These efforts will continue, receiving additional emphasis in the coming years.

Highlighting the past year was the establishment of the sixth college of the university, the College of Industry and Technology. A growing national need for professional technical manpower is evident in Kentucky. Manufacturing, mining, business and service concerns are experiencing manpower shortages in engineering technology and related areas. Students are responding to these shortages by enrolling in these career studies in increasing numbers.

The College of Industry and Technology has expanded its program offerings to include several new degree programs: construction technology, manufacturing technology, graphic arts technology (printing management), electrical engineering technology, civil engineering technology, occupational safety and health, drafting and design, as well as traditional programs in industrial education, military science, and vocational teacher education.

The five departments of the College of Industry and Technology are Engineering and Industrial Technology, Graphic Arts Technology, Industrial Arts Education, Vocational-Technical Education, and Military Science. Here a technology student conducts an experiment in the metallurgy laboratory.

Murray State students are working in ninety different employing units both on and off the campus. These Food Services student workers are helping the cafeteria serve the 2,000 students who eat there daily.

educational opportunity

To insure equal educational opportunity the university has expanded its workshop and scholarship programs. Nearly 1,450 students were employed on campus, both providing the university with needed services and students with the opportunity to work in order to pay their college expenses.

The Murray State Alumni Association's scholarship program has been expanded in order to aid outstanding and deserving students throughout West Kentucky. This scholarship program, funded by annual giving to the Century Club program and through the development of honorary and memorial perpetual scholarships, aided fifty-nine students in 1975.

The Presidential Scholars Program, unique to Kentucky and this region, was established to recognize outstanding academic achievement, high school leadership, and character. Annually twelve Presidential Scholars are chosen for this honors program, which entails a full, renewable scholarship. The university strives to recognize academic excellence and leadership as we have long recognized athletic performance.

establishment of the Jesse Stuart Fellowship in the College of Creative Expression in 1975. Mr. Stuart's original works, from scribbled notes to finished books, are contained in the three-room Jesse Stuart Suite of the Murray State University Library. The $3,000 fellowship is awarded on the basis of student proposals judged best designed to explore a field of knowledge compatible with the writings, the philosophy, or the areas of interest of Mr. Stuart.

Murray State University is honored to have Frank Albert Stubblefield, the distinguished former congressman from the First District of Kentucky, as a member of its Board of Regents. Last April Mr. Stubblefield formally donated his official papers to the University Library. The papers represent sixteen years of congressional service, from 1958 to 1974.

private support

Murray State University needs the financial support of alumni, friends and citizens if it is to serve well the commonwealth and especially West Kentucky.

The marginal cost of excellence is small; indeed, gifts in support of the educational programs can make the difference between a good university and an excellent one.

Private giving is the backbone of the university's scholarship program. The value of every dollar given has special importance in this inflationary-recessionary period when many fine students desperately need financial assistance to pursue their dreams of a college education.

Questions about private giving to the university can be answered by the vice president for regional services, whose office is equipped to provide information regarding tax credit, deferred giving, estate planning, and many other giving programs. Please contact: Vice President for University Services, Murray State University, Sparks Hall, Murray, Kentucky 42071.

president's message

In this report to the regents of the university and to the citizens of the commonwealth, the progress, problems, and plans of Murray State University are reviewed.

1975 was a significant year in the university's continuing efforts to fulfill a historic mission of serving the people of West Kentucky. Academic programs have been strengthened, the pursuit of scholarship has been strongly encouraged, and regional services expanded. The development of an official internal governance system and the establishment and execution of a balanced budget were especially heartening.

The slow progress in and innumerable obstacles to the establishment of a College of Veterinary Medicine for the commonwealth represent the major disappointment in 1975. Our efforts in this direction are continuing and we anticipate 1976 will be an excellent year.

We trust that the university and its leadership will continue to merit your trust and support.

Sincerely,
Constantine W. Curris

budget report

The university ended the 1974-1975 fiscal year in a firm financial position. Even though expenditures were greater than the year before, the general income, primarily from student fees and state appropriations, increased sufficiently to provide a balanced budget and a small balance to carry forward to the 1975-1976 fiscal year.

The single most significant increase in the cost of operating the university was the rapid escalation of utility costs and particularly, electricity. Energy conservation efforts were instituted in order to hold utility costs as low as possible.

Even though much progress was made, the university continued to experience problems in maintaining a competitive position in the job market for capable faculty, administrators, and support personnel.
