large piece of gingerbread from a great brown sheet that was cooling in the woodshed, and she remarked that it was very disinterested of Tommy to intercede for his cousin. As Tommy, himself, did not like gingerbread he might have a raspberry tart. Tommy got out side of the tart and then took the gingerbread to the reservation. Johnny was still sitting on the bucket and he seemed likely to remain there till the January thaw set in. His knees knocked together with the cold and he was endeavoring to arrange his torn blanket with the holes all on the lee side, so that there wouldn't be so much draught through it. When he saw the smoking piece of gingerbread tears of rapturous anticipation washed gullies in his war paint.

"Go get some warm water and pour on the bottom of this bucket," said he,
"and the great chief will come to the agency for his rations."

"It will not be necessary," said the agent. "Let the red man hunt the buffalo and coyote. The agent will take care of the rations."

Then he divided the gingerbread into two equal parts, one of which he bit with the right side of his mouth and the other with his left.

FROZEN ON THE RESERVATION.

"When does the great chief come in?"
asked Young-Man-Not-Afraid-of-Rat-Poison.

"He doesn't come in," retorted the pale face; "he stays on the reservation."

The spectacle of the vanishing gingerbread was too much for little Johnny.

He had not realized before how hungry he was; but now every time the agent took a bite the red man of the prairie felt the emptiness within him growing bigger.

When he shivered the front part of his body flapped against his spine like the fore-course of a ship in a calm roll.

It was unbearable. With a war-whoop he ran to his feet, leaving a liberal quantity of his trousers in the joy grasp of the agent, and, clapping his scalping-knife with deadly ferocity, he bounded e unsuspecting agent. The battle standard of the red man. In W. E. H. Lecky, the historian, corded in the reviews of his latest in the English press the highest among the writers who have dealt English history. In an article in Forum Mr. Lecky treats of the formative influence which helped to make him what he is. When he entered Trinity College, Dublin, he had a half for-intention of becoming a minister made some studies in theology. At time Bishop Butler's writings were favorite study in Trinity. Mr. Lec-finds now that Butler's peculiar meth-of proving the truth of revealed relig-has had a widely different effect different men. He himself is an agtic.

WILLIAM E. H. LECKY.

"I owe much to Whately," says Mr.
Lecky, "but I was studying concurren-ly with him teachers of very opposischools, among others Coleridge, Newman and Emerson in English; Pascal, Bosset, Rousseau and Voltaire in French.

Locke's writings formed part of the eclege course, and I became very familiar with them, and fully shared Hallan's special admiration for the little treatise "On the Conduct of the Understanding."

While Dugald Stewart, Mackintosh and

It was undoubtedly these studies which led to the writing of the "His-

FOR ONCE IN HIS LIFE.

The Irrepressible Baggage Smasher
Meets His Equal and is Vanquished.

While we were waiting at Trenton for the Long Branch train a lot of baggage had to be transferred, says the Detroit Free Press. The manner in which it was handled excited the indignation of a score of passengers, but no one wanted a "scene" and no protests were made until the last trunk was reached. It was an ordinary zinc trunk, well strapped and stout enough to go around the world with fair usage. The man on the truck ended it up gave it a twist and a fling, and it struck on end with a crash and burst open. The owner had been quietly surveying operations, and as the climax came he stepped forward and said:

"How much will it take to repair that trunk?"

"Damfino," was the reply, followed by a chuckle.

Then I will post you in your business," quietly remarked the passenger.

He was a solid, broad-shouldered man, and with one grab he had the baggage-man by the hip and shoulder and held him aloft, as if he had been a bundle of hay.

"What's the damage?" he asked as he prepared for a heave.

"Here—stop—hold on—don't!"

shouted the terrified destroyer of baggage.

"What's the damage to my trunk?"

"Five d-dollars, and I'll pay it."

"Oh, you will? Very well."

His victim had scarcely reached his feet when he fished up a $5 bill. His face was whiter than flour, and he trembled so that he had to sit down.

"Don't you forget that a passenger's trunk has all the rights of a passen-er," said the man as he turned away to light a cigar and walk up and FOUR MEN AND A BEAR.

BRUIN WAS SOMETHING OF A MARINE FIGHTER.

The Men Were Not Looking for a Live Bear—They Had Not Recently Lost One—But They Had a Lively Scrimmage and Won the Battle.

Several years ago I had been in the Adirondacks fishing and stopped, as usual, on my way out at Corey's, at the head of Upper Saranac Lake, says a writer in Forest and Stream. Corey came home that night from Follansbee Pond, where he had been fishing for muscalonge, and reported them very plentiful, so we decided to stay over another day and try them. We started next morning—George B. Durfee and his guide, Ed Flagg, myself and my guide, Rob W. Nichols. We crossed Indian Carry, down the Ampersand creek and out into the Raquette river for the pond. In going down the river we came to quite a wide place with a long narrow island in it. Just before reaching the island I saw something swimming in the river and asked Rob if it was a dog. He looked and said, "No, it is a bear." We were in a pretty fix, with neither gun, pistol, hatchet nor axe in our boats. "Well," said I, "let's have some fun anyhow."

So we changed places with our guides, we taking the paddles and the guides standing up in the bows of the boats, each with an oar in his hands. We paddled down one boat each side of that bear and then the fun began.

First one and then the other would bring down the butt of their oar with all their might on that bear's head till the blows resounded far and near.

Still he kept swimming, the blows kept falling and he constantly crowding toward the island.

When I found he was going to land and had reached within a dozen feet of the shore, I thought I would change the order of exercises and shoved my boat directly between him and the shore; he just raised one paw and made a strike for the boat; I only avoided the blow by swinging the bow nearer the shore. As it was, he just missed us, but scraped his claws down the side of the boat, leaving marks that always remained. Then he dived, went under the boat and came up the other side onto the island. We were out of the boat about as soon as he landed, and dragging it after us

After a Short Illness.

At his residence, near Iola sta-

Fletcher, the old and well known minister, passed away after a brief illness, having taken sick last Thursday afternoon.

Eld. Fletcher was one of the best known men in the county, or in West Kentucky. He was one of the pioneer Baptist preachers of this section, and had held the pastoral of numerous churches.

He was a man of much naturality and strong force of character. He possessed the esteem and confidence of all who knew him. Generous in temperament, ardent in and untiring in energy, he successfully pursued his high calling to death.

He was assessor of this con-incumbent. He was a royal mason and a member of the

He thought himself as fine looking as his neighbor, the horse, until he, one day, saw himself in the looking glass, when he said "What an ass am I!"

Are there not scores of people who cannot see themselves as others see them? They have had blood, pimples, blotches, eruptions, and other kindred disfigurements. All these annoying things could be entirely eradicated, and the skin restored to "lily whiteness," if that world-famed remedy, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, were given a fair trial.

It cures all humors, from the ordinary blotch, pimple or eruption to the worst scrofula, or the most inveterate blood-taint, no matter what their nature, or whether they be inherited or acquired. The "Golden Medical Discovery" is the only blood-purifier guaranteed to do just what it is recommended to, or money refunded.

A Royal Romance.

"There's a turned-down page," as some writer has said, "in every human life." Even stout, comfortable, gouty Queen Victoria in her stuffy mourning, worn so persistently all these years for her royal consort, has had her romance.
 Lord Ellenborough, whose death recently took place, was, so says an English writer, a sweetheart of the youthful Queen many years ago. The two lovers were very devoted to each other, and the Queen pleaded with her counsellors and advisors for the privilege of choosing him as her consort. But with the usual perversity of affairs of the heart matters of state made the union undesirable and reason prevailed over love. Victoria proposed, instead, to the German Prince she wedded, and Ellenborough was presented with a commission in the army, which transported him safely out of the way to India, where he distinguished himself after the manner of disappointed lovers by his reckless daring and bravery.
 There are some disadvantages in being Queen and having plenty of spending money. To be required to propose to one's future husband is something of an ordeal, and being compelled to propose to the man the nation chooses, and at the same time sign the papers which banishes the man you love by the very people over whom you are supposed to reign, must be almost as annoying as getting along in life without a crown or crest.
 But all that happened years ago, and the royal lady is a great grand-mother now, and has forgotten all about such trifles, and is as happy as a pet pussy if only her shoes are loose and easy, if the royal butler doesn't forget her dish of walnuts at dinner, and if India shawls supplies her.

"We'll play that this is the reservaspot. "Is good snowballin' here, which will be handy when I get ready to make an attack on the agency."

 "Oh, no," said Tommy. "the reservation is on the other side. This is the agency." Then he led Johnny to the north-east corner of the barn where it was colder than Siberia and made him sit down on the bottom of a bucket which was frozen into the ground. The wintry wind whistled through little Johnny's hair and he remarked: "Say, if this is going to be the reservation, there'll be an attack on the agency in about a quarter of a minute."
 "Oh, that's all right," replied Fat-Man-With-Boodie-in-His-Clothes. "it is the duty of the Government to furnish blankets for the redskin."

"So little Tommy went into the barn and got two blankets, a fine large one for himself, and a thin one, full of holes, for the poor Injun. Young-Man-Not-Afraid, &c., kicked very hard at this distribution, and he wound up with a loud war-whoop and the announcement that the attack on the agency was about to begin. But when he would have arisen to execute vengeance, he discovered that he was immovably attached to the bucket. He was frozen upon the reservation.

THE GREAT WHITE FATHER PUTS DOWN
 AN INDIAN OUTBREAK.

When little Tommy perceived this condition of affairs he at once pointed out the fact that it was all in the game.
 He believed in playing games right down to the cold facts, and he had read many cases where similar but more extensive misfortunes had happened in the boundless prairies. Then Tommy made up a large quantity of hard snowballs and played that he was a company of cavalry attacking an Indian village.
 Young-Man-Not-Afraid-of-Ret-P-You buried his tomahawk, but as he could not go to get it again and the attacking force would not come within range of his scalping-knife, he was fenseless, and astride of him, trying to saw off a handful of hair with the tin scalping-knife.

 "If Fat-Man-With-His-Mouth-Full-o-Gingerbread desires to save his hair," said the savage, "let him make restitution. Give up that gingerbread or I'll saw your head off!"

Under the circumstances Fat-Man had no choice. He gave up the gingerbread, and was afterwards tied to a hitchingpost, where an imaginary fire was built around him, and he was subjected to various tortures, some of which were not so imaginary as the fire. It was his turn to sing the death song, and he did it so lustily that Uncle Benjamin heard him and came to the rescue. The situation quickly changed in favor of the pale face. Uncle Ben took the offender back to the reservation and, having found a large thick shingle he applied it in a manner to make little Johnny regret the tenacity with which his natural protector had adhered to the bottom of the bucket.
 Meanwhile little Tommy picked up the remainder of the gingerbread and devoured it.

Uncle Benjamin played the part of the Great White Father at Washington until little Johnny wished that he was a cherub with no necessity for sitting down and nothing to do it with, if the occasion should present itself. Then Uncle Benjamin settled the Indian question by saying: "If you ever act like that again I'll whale ye within an inch o' yer life."—N. Y. World.

The prince of Wales is not the only one of his mother's children who knows how to assert himself. The Empress Frederick is ordinarily the most affable and unaffected of royalties, yet nobody understands better how to give dignified rebuke when occasion requires it.
 Some ten years ago, when, as crown princess she was spending the winter at Peigi, on the Riviera, with her three daughters, they were in the habit of making excursions almost daily, traveling by train and taking their places among the other passengers in any carriage where they found places.

On one of these occasions a Frenchman who happened to find himself in the same compartment with them, being ignorant—or affecting ignorance—of the rank of his fellow travelers, was proceeding to light a cigar in accordance with the universal custom on that line, but before doing so he turned to the princess and politely inquired:
 "Does madam object to the smell of smoke?"

"I do not know the smell, sir. Nobody has ever presumed to smoke in my presence," was the crushing reply.

Dave Potts Was Wanted.

We were sitting in a small public hall in a town in Connecticut, waiting for the lecturer to appear. There were about 300 people present, and at a moment when everybody was quiet, a man and turning to face the au-

Gingerbread desires to save his hair,"
saw your head off!"

no choice. He gave up the gingerbread,
turn to sing the death song, and he did
it so lustily that Uncle Benjamin heard
manner to make little Johnny regret the tenacity with which he had clung to the gingerbread. Uncle Ben picked up the remainder of the gingerbread and devoured it.

down and nothing to do with it, if the occasion should present itself. Then
question by saying: "If you ever act like that again I'll whale you within an inch of yer life."—N. Y. World.

one of his mother's children who knows how to assert himself. The Empress
understands better how to give dignified rebuke when occasion requires it.
She was spending the winter at Peigi, on the Riviera, with her three
making excursions almost daily, travel-
carriage where they found places.

the princess and politely inquired:
smoke?"
"I do not know the smell, sir. Nobody has ever presumed to smoke in

Dave Potts Was Wanted.
We were sitting in a small public hall
a lecturer to appear. There were

and turning to face the audience, he said in solemn tones:

of Gilroy. Of course vessels tone

THE CANDIDATE.

happened to find themselves in a commanding location, watched the process of initiating a candidate into the mysteries of the order. They could not see the whole performance, but they saw all of it is faithfully given below.
The candidate, about whose eyes a bandage had been tied, was marched around the room several times and led up in front of the official at the further end, presumably the Vice-Some-thing-or-Other, where he appeared to take an obligation of some kind. He raised his right arm, and extended it upward to his full length. He held it there so long a little. A watchful brother stepped up behind him and pushed the arm up. He held it straight up again for a little time. The poor fellow let his arm down ever so little somebody shoved it up.
At last he couldn't stand it any longer and dropped his arm to his side. His tormentors then led him to some part of the lodge room out of the range of the watchers' vision.

When next he came in sight, a few minutes later, he was attired in his shirt, drawers, and socks. All his outer garments had been removed. In this airy uniform he was led, still blindfolded, into the majestic presence of the same official him. This worthy rose up, and the two confronted each other for about ten minutes, the time being occupied, seemingly, by the delivery of a long charge or lecture. The candidate shifted up-easily from one foot to the other, as if impatient to have it over. If he had known what was coming he might not have been in such a hurry. But this part of the ceremony came to an end at last. His conductors turned him about and he seemed to fall on his knees.
The brethren gathered round him, and thickly that the watchers could not see what they were doing with him, but was certain they were not putting more clothes on him, for when he permitted to rise he was seen to be the same demit-toilet as before.
He was next conducted ar-round, a brother holding his arm. A blanket or rug had been laid on some mysterious lodge room, and as he was Strange Revolution in Women's Dress—Will American Ladies Dare Adopt It? Some predict that the great change in the fashioning of the clothes which are to be worn by women of the nineteenth century—if fashion leaders can be induced to adopt it, and appear just once in public so arrayed.

Men will hold their breath in wonder at the marvelous change it makes in lovely woman. "Few of the fair sex can help being beautiful in these glove-fitting costumes," says a writer in a recent number of The New York and Paris Young Ladies' Fashion Bazar. "This magazine is the only one in Europe or America which makes a specialty of giving those inclined to stouthness an unrivaled appearance of sculptured slenderness," said her royal highness the princess of Wales. Madame Patti has ordered from the Paris house four magnificent costumes, the designs of which appear in the April number of this Fashion Bazar—and in this magazine only.

Mrs. Harrison is greatly fascinated with the exquisite gem, costume No. 4, in the April number. It is expected she will give an exact counterpart of it, the whole front of which will be incrustated with pin head diamonds. This gown alone will be worth a king's ransom.

Mr. H. B. Swinney and Maj. T. K. Jenkins were here Saturday as witnesses in a suit against the P. T. & A.

Mr. J. H. Criswell, the agent of the Paducah handle works, was in town this week. He is getting out and shipping a great deal of spoke timber. At present he has some difficulty in getting hauling done, owing to the continued wet weather. He states that his company is still purchasing timber tracts whenever opportunity offers.

We quote the market firm and active throughout the week for all good grades of tobacco, especially with the tobacco that had been properly cured and developed. It is impossible for any one to realize from it tobacco without seeing that it is a first class article. We still insist that it is the only tobacco to be had, in this country, that is worth the price. When this is done, it is a fact that there will be a few complaints about either the quality or the price. We say to all parties engaged in handling tobacco, to use their best efforts to buy a product that will be sought by all buyers, both foreign and domestic, because every high grade of tobacco is most highly represented by the above.

by Sad Fate of Peter Beggs.

Illigence was received here to-of the brutal murder at his e, near Mark Tree, Ark., of Mr. er Beggs, a former citizen of Marshall county. The circumstan-se seem to have been atrocious.
He went out on the morning of the 8th inst., to look after his stock and that was the last ever seen of him in life. It is supposed he was assassinated while on his way home. He was shot by unknown parties and his body was riddled with buckshot. Then his head was cut from his body by the fiends who murdered him.

Lee Ramsey Meets With Bad
Accident at Glade.

One day last week, Lee Ramsey, who is employed at Cope Bros' mill at Glade, jumped on the log carriage as it ran toward the saw. In getting off the carriage he made a mis-step and fell on the saw. He received numerous severe injuries, his right hand and arm, especially, being badly cut. Dr. Johnson was called to the scene and found it necessary to amputate the arm at the wrist. The wounds were dressed aseptically and the man is doing well.

Johnny in Jail.

Because he Got a Gun and Fifteen Dollars for His Inside
Pocket.

Johnny Fields, a boy some 17, or 18 years old, was arrested last Friday night by sheriff Little, for breaking into the store of L. J. Gossett, Briensburg, several nights ago and taking therefrom a pistol, $15 in cash and other small articles.
Fields was arrested on board the north bound local, having just purchased a ticket for Paducah. The pistol and something over $11 of the money was found on his person.
He very readily confessed and was placed in jail, where he will remain until the June circuit court, having waived examination.

BRIENSBURG.

"To be or not to be" is the ques-in that seems to be agitating the inds of some of our young ladies present.

At the last moment a wedding as declared off. The minister lost fee, the young lady is still known by her old name, the gentleman is compelled to suffer single be sedness for a while, which all goes to prove the truthfulness of the adage of "many a slip twixt cup and lip."

A fellow with a compound washing decoction is here doing the town, now is the time for all of our old bachelors to subscribe.

An epidemic of weddings, it is said, will soon break out among our old maids, widowers and bachelors; so mote it be.

Several of our citizens took in the late excursion to Paducah and reported a high old time.
