Work on I. C. Cut-Off Actually In Progress

Three Camps Have Been Established at Walker, Dublin and Baltimore Hills

Nelson & Co., Will Pay Off All Laborers at Fulton Office on Walnut Street

Work on the I. C. cut-off at this end of the line has started and the big sixty-six ton caterpillar is moving along with all ease, doing its work perfectly. Camps have been established at Walker, Dublin and Baltimore hills north of Fulton and supplies are being ordered out to the camps daily.

The preparatory work of clearing the right-of-way is keeping a good force busy and every man that wants to work is put on the job. The Nelson Company who has the work in charge at this end of the line, will pay off all help at Fulton where their offices are located, and thousands of dollars from this source will soon be circulating in business channels here. Many who work on the road will live in Fulton. Some have already moved in and others will follow.

It is a sight worth seeing to look at the big caterpillar at work and the first opportunity you have to see the work from the north of Fulton and take a look at this giant in operation.

Nelson & Co. are among the largest contractors in the country and are well equipped to complete this end of the line in a most satisfactory manner.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL TO LEASE TWO RAILROADS

A. & V. and V. S. and P. To Be Taken Over for Long Term of Years

The Illinois Central Railroad company announced on December 27 that it had entered an agreement to lease the Alabama and Vicksburg and the Vicksburg, Shreveport and Pacific railroads for a long period of years. The transaction is subject to the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The annual rental, which will be paid by the Illinois Central, will cover the six per cent dividend requirements of the Alabama and Vicksburg Railroad and the five per cent dividend requirements of the Vicksburg, Shreveport and Pacific.

Control of the two Southern roads was recently acquired by New York and New Orleans bankers from British interests and subsequently a public offering of the securities was made. Early on December 27, the Alabama and Vicksburg authorized a stock dividend of 100 per cent.

FALL ON ICE IS FATAL TO FARMER

Jesse McNeill Was One of the Leading Cultivators of Hickman Section

Jesse McNeill, prominent farmer of this section, died Monday about half an hour after he had slipped over ice-coated ground. He was on his way from his home to the home of Harvey Allen, a tenant who was to kill hogs for Mr. McNeill when he fell.

After arriving at the Allen home he said he felt very bad and soon after giving directions for the hog killing, was seen to be suffering intensely. He died in a chair at the Allen home. Mr. McNeill was a self-made man, owning three farms and having amassed a considerable fortune. He leaves a widow and five children and a brother, Dee McNeill, Hickman attorney.

About three years ago a brother, Roy McNeill, died within thirty minutes after he had been prostrated by a sunstroke.

Murder Charge Against Steele et al, Docketed

Paducah, Chief of Police to Be Tried With Vannerson and McCage, Jan. 15

ALLEGED OFFICERS SHOT DECKHAND LAST AUGUST

Paducah, Ky.—A murder charge against Chief of Police A. R. Steele, Chief Constable Patrick Vannerson, and two other officers, charged with the shooting to death of George Brittain last August, is the outstanding trial among the 112 cases written on the January criminal docket of McCracken county circuit court, which convenes Tuesday, January 6, and extends to the sixteenth.

The case is the result of an indictment returned against the three men at the last meeting of the grand jury holding them responsible for the killing of the government deckhand when the officers opened fire with their pistols as Brittain attempted to escape during a raid on the home of Pearl Brewer, on Mill street. Brittain was killed with a bullet in his back and died almost instantly. His home was in Cassville, Ky., and he was employed on the government boat Ben Franklin No. 2, which had only been in the city for a few hours.

THE NEW YEAR

Lyon's Club Banquet at Usona Tuesday Evening

The Lions Club banquet at the Usona Hotel, Tuesday evening, Dec. 30th, was one of the most enjoyable events of the holiday season. President Harry H. Murphy presiding, ably assisted by Lions Pickering and Chapman. The dining room was decorated with a beautiful scene with its handsomely gowned women and club decorations. Covers were laid for one hundred and twenty guests and the menu was all that one could wish for, faultlessly served.

During the evening a unique and pleasing program was carried out to the delight of all present.

Several contests were engaged in. Miss Mary Webb captured the prize in the crossword puzzle. Mrs. I. W. Dobbs won the prize in the balloon contest. Mr. Harry Seates captured the prize in the jumping contest, and Mrs. Seates won the prize in the clock contest.

A pleasing feature of the evening's entertainment was the musical program. Solo by Mrs. R. S. Williams; Quartette by Miss Cantrell; Whitened, Hornbeak and Benedict.

Mrs. Paul Hornbeak, accompanist. Lion Chas. Payne gave a notebook sketch and Lion C. H. Warren made a humorous talk. Lion Heber Finch, in eloquent words, officiated at the burial of John Barleycorn. (The mourners were many.)

The feature address of the evening was delivered by Lion O. J. Sowell, who reviewed the work of the Lions Club and its achievements since its organization in Fulton.

In the eyes of the city at large, the Lions club is a live organization and the earmark of its work can be seen in numerous instances throughout the city.

Mrs. C. A. Wright and Miss Mayme Chumblor delightedly entertained the members of the Neighborhood Sewing Club and their husbands with a six o'clock dinner at the home of Mrs. C. A. Wright, Wednesday evening.

The home was beautifully decorated in bells and other Christmas decorations. A six-course dinner was most graciously served to twenty-five guests. The color scheme of red and green being carried out in the decorations.

ROBBERY AT BROOKS.
BOONE POULTRY HOUSE
MONDAY NIGHT

Thieves entered the office of Brooks-Boone Company, poultry dealers, Monday night and obtained about $100.00, which was in the safe. The safe door was blown off by nitro-glycerin and the office furniture, adding machine, as well as the telephone was wrecked. A sledge hammer used by the burglars was found on the premises and may prove a valuable clue in catching the thieves.

WHAT DO YOU THINK?

When a man coughs up a stiff prayer in church on Sunday and then skins you in a shop deal on Monday, what do you think?

When a preacher tells you of the plories of religion and of the benefits of purity in your daily life, and then goes off with the biggest old church hypocrite in town, what do you think?

When you hear a fellow bragging of the great deeds he has done and you know he is lying faster than an automobile can speed, what do you think?

When a man tells you a smutty story of some good woman and you know her character is as white as his soul is black, what do you think?

When you hear a young braggart making suggestive remarks about every young girl in town except his own sister, what do you think?

When you see one man trying to undermine the legitimate business of another by making veiled allusions to possible financial disaster, what do you think?

When a man owes you a dollar and crosses the street to avoid meeting you, what do you think?

When a girl leads a man on to declaring himself and then deliberately tosses him over without compunction, what do you think?

When a man trifles with the affections of a good woman and then is not honorable enough to live up to his word, what do you think?

When a duffer borrows a five spot from you and promises to return it tomorrow, and tomorrow never comes, what do you think?

And if you should happen to do any of these things, what do you think other people would think?

ANDREWS HELPS HIS HORSE FROM RIVER

Robert Andrews, who plays Lieut. Arthur Warren in Elmer Clifton's production of "The Warrens of Virginia" for William Fox was called upon to jump his horse from the river bank into the water without waving from the saddle. Everything went fine until the opposite side of the river bank and green being reached, when the horse, tired from the swim, was unable to get its footing to climb the bank and slipped back into the river. Finally, Mr. Andrews, with a strong sense of curiosity, that the Administrator beheld the Jew as he went through his various maneuvers. As one by one the son of Israel piled up the marks, he regarded him intensely, as if unable, at times, to believe the reality transpiring before him. But now that he stood in his presence with the money!

"A GENTLEMAN OF THE EARLY DAYS"

By VICTOR CAVENDER

This Story Concerns a Certain Man in Fulton

"Request! request!" exclaimed the Administrator, rather surprised, "A passport to Bremen! Impossible! Impossible! Does not the army call come up next year?"

"The army! the army!" he returned, as he steadied himself for a discourse hardly expected of a Jew. "The army! All hail to our great army. Forever may she live. The glory that is Germany's is hers also. In her irresistible march, of progress may she ever be to her people a torchlight of the future age. The army! may she ever go conquering on."

Upon the completion of this short eulogy, the Administrator stood spellbound, having been taken completely by surprise.

"But," said he, after a moment or two of deep silence, "only the Lord knows at what instant you may be called by your country."

"Called by my country to serve in the ranks of her glorious army! It shall be a privilege, an honor, Sir, to answer that call wherever I may be."

"The expense! the expense!" the expense I am afraid that you have entirely overlooked this phase of the matter," returned the Administrator. "A passport will cost you forty marks."

"True, 'tis true, indeed," slowly answered the Jew, dropping his head on his breast as if suddenly stricken. "I am a poor, poor son of Israel. I am so poor I can hardly live. But I do believe I have the means with which to pay for a passport."

"Money! money!" cried out the officer, "I see no money!"

Now the Jew slowly and with a heavy step moved up to the table. Running his hand back into his old, tattered coat, he pulled out a long, black bag which he carefully sat down before him. Silently he began to untie it, as with the eye of an eagle he scanned the every nook and corner of the room. Having removed the heavy cord from around it, he gravely poured out on the table one thousand marks in gold. With hands, trembling, with the nerves of his face twitching constantly, and with his heart beating thumps that could be plainly heard all around the room, he began to count. One by one he numbered the precious pieces, until he had before him a sufficient amount for the purpose he had in view. Having enumerated the required number, he carefully placed the remainder back in the bag which he hastily returned to his coat. Again he picked up the glittering coins on the table, and gazed on them long and intently. When he had again faced the Administrator, he slowly remarked, in a low, quivering voice, "Sir, I hold in my hands the forty marks."

It was with a strong sense of curiosity that the Administrator beheld the Jew as he went through his various maneuvers. As one by one the son of Israel piled up the marks, he regarded him intensely, as if unable, at times, to believe the reality transpiring before him. But now that he stood in his presence with the money!

Twelve Months Ahead

A Prayer

By Rev. Alan Pressley Wilson
(Copyright 1924, WNU)

ON LORD, we beseech Thee to grant that Jesus the Christ may dwell in our hearts through faith to the end that we, being rooted and grounded in love, may be strong to apprehend with all the senses what is the breadth and length and the height and depth of the love of Christ.

Come into our hearts and lives and dominate our wills as we enter another New Year and grant that we may live all through this year in accordance with Thy divine plan for our lives.

This we ask in the Name and for the sake of our Savior, Jesus Christ.
Amen.

A NEW YEAR VICTORY

By Katherine Edelman

there was a warm glow around his heart that made him insensible for the moment to cold and chill.

Within his soul he felt the thrill of victory, a victory won over the greatest enemy the world knows. For, once more his hand had helped to avert the sword of the grim reaper—his skill and sureness of touch had brought back another soul from the brink. It had been an emergency call this time, a call that came just as the bells were tolling the birth of the New Year, with the chances 100 to 1 against winning the fight, but again science and skill had added another victory to its long list. George Hamilton would live; his family in the little cottage in Power street would have him back with them before many days and, instead of mourning and sadness, there would be joy and happiness in the little home. "Thank God that I was able to do it," Doctor Trevor whispered to the skies as he got into his little car. "It seems like an omen of good to have this happen just as the year was born."

For this time he knew that he had won a double victory. For many years he had tried hard to interest the old and wealthy Mrs. Whiteside in the building of a new hospital for Carter, to be operated along new and up-to-date lines. It was sorely needed in the town and it had been the dream of Doctor Trevor's life since he had come there. Several times he had thought that Mrs. Whiteside was on the point of consenting, but always at the last she had fallen back on the old argument that people were just as well off and got along just as well or better before all these new fangled ideas were known.

Then last night had come the call from the Hamilton home. For years the Hamilton family had been counted by Mrs. Whiteside as her own special proteges, and she had spoken her mind quite plainly to Doctor Trevor this time. "They say the case is almost hopeless—that there is no equipment in the old hospital to handle such a case and that he cannot be moved to the city. Doctor Trevor said there was a chance and you were the only one here that could take it. If you succeed, it means the new hospital within the year."

"And as Doctor Trevor drove to his home this early New Year morning, the big building, with all its modern equipment for helping humanity, almost before his already a dream building that would soon become a reality.

FIRE DESTROYS A HUNTSVILLE HOTEL

GUESTS DRIVEN INTO STREET IN NIGHT DRESS

FIVE HOUSES ARE BURNED

Fourth of a City Block in the Downtown District, Including the McGee Hotel, Piggly Wiggly Grocery and Many Others

Huntsville, Ala.—The greatest fire that has been experienced in Huntsville since the destruction of the Huntsville Hotel block years ago destroyed the McGee Hotel block consisting of the hotel proper, a property valued at about $150,000 and owned by R. E. Smith, Thos. T. Terry and A. J. Murdock, two big double dry goods stores owned by Alexander & Patterson, the Crow Pool Room, Holens Amers, tourist stand, San Brown's fruit stand, the Piggly Wiggly Store No. 3, a tinners shop, the Independent Tire Company's accessory store, the Huntsville office of the Southeastern Express Company and several businesses of minor importance.

The greatest loss was sustained by the owners of the McGee Hotel property which was valued at approximately $150,000 and the insurance against this was about $60,000; Alexander & Patterson lost about $20,000 with insurance of about $7,000; the Southeastern Express Company, $2,500, with insurance of about $500; Crow Pool Room, $7,000, insurance $2,500. The Independent Tire Company's loss was $3,000, insurance $1,500.

The guests of the hotel were aroused from their sleep at about 4 o'clock in the morning and many of them barely escaped with their lives in scanty clothing and left every thing in their rooms as they fled to the icy streets.

Firemen who reached the scene early declared that the blaze was apparently confined to the Crow Pool Room on Jefferson Street, and that it was caught then by the bitter north wind which swept it into the rear through the tin ceiling that divided it from the hotel and then into the hotel rooms above. The blaze was then uncontrolled for several hours while many thousands of dollars worth of property went up in flames. That there were no lives lost is believed to have been almost miraculous. The fire fighters were hampered by freezing water on the streets. They were assisted by equipment from Merrimack and Lincoln.

Purple Velvet Costume Trimmed With Fox Fur

This very attractive street costume of purple cut velvet, trimmed with silver fox fur features the new broken skirtline in the tunic effect. With it is worn a smart up-turned purple panne velvet hat trimmed with an ostrich plume which matches the fur in color.

Spoilage of Food Due to Lack of Proper Care

Vegetables and fruits give up their water when exposed to dry heat, and in moist heat they decay, writes Helen Harrington Downing, on "Saving at Home." Heat, food and moisture are ideal living conditions for the organisms which cause decay. Sanitary conditions and proper temperature prevent spoilage.

On the grocer's shelf certain foods spoil because the package is not airtight. The air and moisture penetrate the package and attack the contents, the food rapidly deteriorates. Fruits develop molds, cereals and flour acquire weevils, coffee and tea lose strength; sugar and salt become lumpy.

The greatest loss from spoilage in the store comes from perisage and bulk foods. The package foods, if properly sealed, only need to be stored in a moderate temperature to insure "keeping," but the bulk food is exposed to the air, damp dust, human hands, and often such pests as mice and cockroaches, as well.

In the home spoilage is due in a large measure to lack of proper care of the food products which are delivered in good condition.

Quality canned foods stored in a cool room will, of course, keep indefinitely. Always empty contents of the can as soon as you open it. Empty into glass or china dish or granite sauce pan as soon as you open it. The action of the air on food improves the flavor.

Butter, milk and salad vegetables should be put into the refrigerator immediately; exposure to heat and moisture causes rapid deterioration of such products.

Most Attractive Togs for Girls of All Ages

With her straight little frock of gay plaid, her smart little boyish coat of homespun with its hat to match and her high-rolled stockings of wool, worn with low-heeled oxford shoes with a single strap, the very young person of today is a most engaging little figure.

Simplicity is the keynote of youth and fashions, but it is astonishing how varied in style are juvenile modes and how well adapted to each type of childhood. No longer are frocks designed simply for the three-year-old or the six-year-old or the more advanced age of ten or twelve. Not only are the years of the wearer taken into consideration but every effort is made to provide models that are suited to each type.

This season one notices a revival of the eon or bolero jacket, a fashion always becoming to youth and one that gains in attractiveness in its latest interpretation. One of the prettiest frocks to exploit the bolero is made of brown and tan plaid, with a blouse of cream-color crepe de chine.

For a younger child nothing could be more charming than little smocks made of bengaline, which comes in a wide range of exquisite colors. One of the most attractive is an exquisite blue bengaline with a narrow collar of coral velvet. The raglan sleeves are short and gathered into a cuff of velvet.

Triple Strands of Pearls

No costume is complete without its string of pearls, and the fashion of wearing two and three strings of different colors and sizes is becoming more and more popular. Especially attractive are triple strings fastened with a single clasp. These consist of two strings of white pearls and one of gunmetal.

COLDEST IN 25 YEARS IN WEST

THIRTEEN BELOW IN CHICAGO IS OFFICIAL READING

SIX DIE IN WINDY CITY

Iowa Points Reports 28 Below Zero With Ice In Rivers Ten Inches Thick—Weather In The East Appears to Be Moderating

Marquette, Mich.—A temperature of 50 degrees below zero, thought to be the lowest mark reached by mercury anywhere in the upper Michigan peninsula during the present cold wave was reported from Hamaboldt, about 30 miles from here.

Chicago—The middle west, far north west and parts of California are experiencing the coldest weather in 25 years, but relief is on the way and temperatures will moderate appreciably in the next day or two. This is indicated by reports from the far west. Utah reports zero and Colorado has warmed up to an average of three above zero, except in the mountain and on the plains, where sub-zero weather still prevails.

Iowa, Nebraska, Minnesota and Wisconsin have not yet felt the rise in temperature. Iowa points report 28 below zero, with ice in the rivers 10 inches thick. The ice harvest is to commence at once and a bountiful crop is assured.

Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and adjacent territory continue cold. Central Illinois points report 18 degrees below zero. Northern Indiana has 21 below and a blizzard.

The cold crossed the Ohio River and was felt as far south as Louisiana and Northern Florida. Memphis reports six degrees above zero, which is fairly cool for the season.

Weather in the east appears to be moderating. In New York City 11 above zero was reported, but upper New York State and the New England states continue very cold.

In the western states many trains are late and country roads are impassable. Live stock is suffering because of the sleet and snow covering every form of vegetation. Considerable concern is felt for winter wheat, which is smothering under the heavy blanket of sleet and tractors are being used to break this shell.

Chicago had the coldest day in a quarter of a century with an official record of 13 below zero in the city and from 18 to 20 below in the suburbs. Relief is expected in a few days.

Six deaths and more than 200 fires with property damage exceeding a quarter of a million dollars, are attributed to the cold wave so far and there will be additional deaths and more fires. Scores of persons were picked up and treated for frozen hands, feet and ears. Many of the victims had loaded up on poison hootch and were easy victims of the piercing cold. Charitable institutions, public and private, were taxed to the limit. Pawnbrokers and beggars thronged the loop districts seeking food and money. Thieves of all degrees went about their work with great vigor, beating their victims and leaving them helpless on the icy pavements.

Dr. Bundeson, health commissioner, received 182 complaints of ily heated flats and will prosecute the landlords in every case. He issued a bulletin telling people not to worry about frost on the windows. This, he said, indicated plenty of humidity.

Transportation facilities were heavily taxed, as pedestrians did not care to take chances of falling on the icy streets or freezing hands and ears walking a few blocks. The Yellow Cab Company alone had 2,700 cabs in operation all day and all other cab concerns were using their entire equipment.

TIRANA OCCUPIED BY TROOPS.

Logu's Partisans Now in Control of Central Albania.

Belgrade.—The occupation of Tirana, Albania, by Ahmed Zogu's troops, is officially confirmed by the latest dispatches received here. Advances from Prizrend report that government forces commanded by Bayram Tsou have made some headway to the north, re-occupying the line of Kukis-Bonoloula-Bitsans.

The advance, however, is not considered likely to compromise the decisive successes of Ahmed Zogu, whose partisans control the whole of Central Albania and the principal lines of communication. Ahmed Zogu is rushing reinforcements to recover the ground lost in the northwest.

Auto Turns Over.

Lexington, N. C.—Erastus Bunting, 28, of this city, was killed when an automobile he was driving turned over on the Central highway, four miles south of Lexington.

Glider Pilot Killed.

Buenos Aires.—Otto Ballod, the Latvian aviator, was killed when the glider he was operating fell at Tandil Hills, province of Buenos Aires. Ballod was participating in the first contest for motorless planes held in Argentina.

HIS REAL PROBLEM

The father promised he would do what he could for him, but with certain limitations as to the providing of money.

"But," said he, "I hope you will understand that you will never get on in the world unless you adopt a more rigid code of morals and the purpose to keep straight."

"Rigidity sounds very well, dad," agreed the youth, "but I wish you'd make clear to me how a chap's to keep straight while he's trying to make both ends meet."

ONLY BIG MONEY TALKS

"S. you don't think money talks much?"

"No; that is, not till it gets big."

Imperfect Job

Of many a self-made man we know there can be little doubt; in some respects he'd be improved. Had he given the contract out.

They All Do

Mr. Bacon—Did you hear those mealy roosters crowing this morning early?

Mrs. Bacon—Yes, dear.

Mr. Bacon—I wonder what on earth they want to do that for?

Mrs. Bacon—Why, don't you remember, dear, you got up one morning early, and you crowed about it for a week?—The Watchword (Dayton, Ohio).

Safety First

An Englishman was teaching a Scottish business friend how to play golf. On the first tee, he poured out a copious stream of instructions and wound up with the fine old maxim:

"But remember, Sandy, whatever you do, keep your eye on the ball."

"I will that," said Sandy, who had just paid a crown for it. "I dinnat trust that caddie o' mine at all."

Fair Play

Jack—Say, Bill, we've been in hard luck, ain't we? I'll tell you what we'll do. You insure your life in my favor for $10,000 and I'll do the same for you.

Bill—Wot? wot good'll that do us?

Jack—Why, we'll just load up our guns, step off 30 paces and see who gets the money.

CONVENIENT JACKS

"When your machine broke down in the street how'd you ever manage to get it fixed?"

"Oh, there are always a lot of jacks standing around that want to help."

That's What

Life is just a-ayin'—Sweetest things to you. Don't need barge for playin'—And a Georgia fiddle, too!

Weather Wise

Widow Waffles—Yes, three times I've dreamed you and me was going 'and in 'and down the church path. I wonder wot it do mean?

Widower William (a laggard in love)—Aah now—I shoo. 'T wonder if it don't mean we be goin' to 'ave a drop o' rain.

True

"Girls, canoes, saxophones, horse-racing—a young man has many interests, so many things that have no place in the life of the middle-aged codger."

"Still, the latter is kept busy taking medicine."

His Training

The Farmer—Not a brain cell working in you! Where did you ever learn farming?

The New Hired Man—Me? Why, I've studied every old homestead and back-to-the-farm play that's been screened.

Exciting a Laugh

Persistent Woe—Whenever I propose to you you laugh.

Miss Kate—That's because I have a happy disposition. A great many girls would merely be annoyed.

"Over the Hill"

Making Success of Production of Pork Pound Every Seven Minutes Illinois Farm Record.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A point of pork every seven minutes is the record of a quarter-section corn belt hog farm on which actual figures were kept for a year by the United States Department of Agriculture in cooperation with the University of Illinois. The operations of this farm and the plans of cropping and feeding were used as the basis for an exhibit which was shown at the National Live Stock exposition, held at Chicago November 29 to December 1.

The principal crops grown on this farm were corn, oats and soy beans. Very little feed being purchased and much of the oats being marketed as grain. During the year 78,700 pounds of hogs were marketed, which was little more than a pound every seven minutes during the entire year. The outstanding reasons for the success of this farmer, who did most of the work himself, are given as follows: Convenient arrangement, enabling the owner to care for the pigs with little labor; well-balanced rations, producing gains without waste, and continuous use of fresh pasture, providing cheap feed and keeping the hogs in excellent condition.

Roughage Is Great Need of the Growing Heifer

High-priced feed such as the milkmaid herd must have is not required for the growing heifer, although she must have a liberal supply of good roughage, says G. A. Williams of Indiana, in an exchange. The heifer that will soon freshen needs a generous supply of mineral matter. Alfalfa, clover or soy bean hay supplies this need and furnishes the bulk to develop the digestive system. Silage is too watery and is also low in ash and protein for heifers. Not more than fifteen pounds a day is advisable. Some grain is needed to produce best results.

When the roughage is silage and a legume hay, ground corn or a mixture of grains, depending on the cost, may be used at the rate of two to five pounds daily. Without silage and with legume hay, reduce the grain recommended above somewhat.

With corn silage and timothy or corn fodder, make at least half the grain mixture a high protein feed, such as gluten feed, cottonseed meal, beans or oilmeal. Timothy or corn fodder are never satisfactory alone. At least half the roughage must be legume hay. The productivity and sale value of thousands of cows are greatly reduced because they were not properly fed and while they were carrying their first calves.

Authorities Plan to Take a Farm Census

Half a million farmers are to be asked to report to the United States Department of Agriculture the number of cows and heifers kept for milk this year compared with last, the number of hens and pullets of laying age, and the number of sows farrowed or bred to farrow this fall and next spring. Questionnaires will be distributed by the rural mail carriers.

This information is sought to form the basis for forecasting production and market supplies so that farmers may adjust production to demand and market their products in a more orderly fashion. Surveys of this kind were begun by the department two years ago in connection with pigs, and the success of the system has been such that the surveys have been extended to dairy cows and poultry.

Sweet Clover of Help in Building Up Soil

Sweet clover is one of the best crops to grow for the purpose of turning under to build up the soil. Not only does it add organic matter and fertility to the soil when the heavy growth is turned under, but the roots are active in storing up nitrogen in nodules when the proper inoculation is present. One of the best times to sow is in early spring, about January or February on wheat or rye fields. Another good plan, however, is to sow with oats or barley in the spring. This is suggested as the best method where the stalk field has been left over winter.

Farm Hints

The soil on a good farm should get better every year.

In cribbing immature corn, ventilation is one of the biggest problems.

The only advantage of a scrub cow is that it doesn't take so long to milk her.

According to the best figures at hand, a tool in the shed is worth two under a tree.

If the poultry is to go through the winter in good health and with high production, the house must be kept clean and sanitary.

If corn is once well cured, it will be almost certain to retain its germination. Some time after Christmas, when it is thoroughly cured, it may be shelled, graded and stored in sacks ready for planting.

Beginning next Sunday morning, at 11 o'clock the doors of the First Christian Church will be open wide to the public; one of the greatest men in the country will begin a New Year's Rally Revival, which will last for several days.

Thad S. Tinsley is a man of power, he was born in the land of Tennessee, reared in Wisconsin, educated in Indiana and married in Kentucky. He was for two years State Sunday School Evangelist for Kentucky, two years City Evangelist in Louisville, establishing four of the present active churches there. He has held more than 300 revivals, over 100 within the last five years in immediate succession. Has organized 12 congregations and got them into good properties and an on-going missionary program.

He has held pastorates in three of the good Kentucky churches, and held city pastorates at Chesnut Street, Lexington; North Side, Chicago; Norwood, Cincinnati; Clifton, Louisville; Third Church, Louisville; and Jackson, Tennessee. His ability is unsurpassed as a Christian and Evangelist.

Fulton is indeed fortunate to have such a man come and work for the upbuilding of the Master's Kingdom.

Everybody is invited to attend all the services, which will be held in the First Christian Church each evening. The building will always be warm and there will be a treat for you in every service.

This is not a fifth wheel revival, but a New Year's Rally. Can we count on you? Bring your friends and loved ones to hear one of the greatest speakers that ever appeared in Fulton. All the churches and peoples of the city will find him to be a man's man, for he is truly a teacher come from God.

Work, pray and come.

MISS HORAN SUCCEEDS MISS MILNER

Miss Helen Horan, of Oakdale, La., is now in charge of the first grade primary department of Fulton High School, having succeeded Miss Lillian Milner, who resigned to take charge of the Second grade primary department of the Shelby County School, at Whitehaven, Tenn., near Memphis.

In behalf of our city we extend the heartiest hand of welcome to Miss Horan and congratulate our school trustees on securing her services.

Miss Lillian Milner is one of Fulton county's most talented young women. For more than three years she was in charge of the first grade primary department and we cannot recommend her too highly to the good people of Whitehaven.

ANDREWS HELPS HIS HORSE FROM RIVER

Robert Andrews, who plays Liet, Arthur Warren in Elmer Clifton's production of "The Warrens of Virginia" for William Fox was called upon to jump his horse from the river bank into the water without wavering from the saddle. Everything went fine until the opposite side of the river bank was reached, when the horse, tired from the swim, was unable to get its footing to climb the bank and slipped back into the river. Finally, Mr. Andrews dropped from his saddle into the water, reached the bank and led his horse on firmer earth up the incline. "The Warrens of Virginia" opens a two days engagement at the Orpheum theatre, Jan. 5th and 6th.

EMBITTERED BY ALLIED DECISION

HERRIOT ACCUSED OF "USING FOCH'S SABER."

GOVERNMENT IS SILENT

Allied Determination to Remain on Rhine After Date Set for Evacuation Puts Crisis Up to Stresemann and Marx.

Berlin.—The decision of the council of ambassadors to postpone indefinitely the evacuation of the Cologne bridgehead unleashed a stream of bitter editorial comment in the Berlin newspapers.

The most severe criticism of the alleged surrender of M. Herriot, the French premier, to external influences, oddly enough, appears in the German liberal organizations, which since the London conference, had been inclined to view the French prime minister as the harbinger of a new era in Franco-German relations.

"Mr. Herriot, using Marshal Foch's saber, is not a very inspiring sight," remarks Theodore Wolff in a caustic editorial in the Tageblatt, in which he refers to "lame Herriot" in connection with the premier's recent disposition. Wolff charges M. Herriot with having handed the German nationalists a "bracing tonic."

The French premier failed to remain true to himself and permitted the moral ground on which he was standing to slip away, the demerit Boersen Courier says.

Vorwaerts, the radical organ, asks whether it will be a historic function of the year 1925 to undo all that has been accomplished in the nature of pacific reconstruction during 1924. It asserts that stable conditions in Germany are out of the question while her Rhineland frontiers are invaded by armed forces.

The problem, in the opinion of Georg Bernhard of the Vossische Zeitung, has an immediate bearing on the unhampered functioning of the Dawes plan, which he says presupposes complete economic independence for Germany.

The belief that Germany's foreign relations have measurably grown worse since the return of the conservative government in England is freely expressed in that section of the press which assumes that the present official orientation to Germany is distinctly hostile to Germany's economic progress and therefore would not disdain to ally itself with French imperialistic currents with the purpose of retarding such progress, even at the risk of imperiling the Dawes plan.

Neither Germania, the clerical party's organ, which is close to Chancellor Marx, nor Die Zeitung, which reflects Foreign Minister Stresemann's views, commented on the action of the council of ambassadors. This is taken as an indication that the government will await formal notification of the decision from Paris before undertaking a formal expression.

GOVERNMENT ALERT TO INCREASING MERGERS

May Start Another Trust "Busting" Campaign.

Washington.—What appears to be an era of huge industrial combinations may force the government into another trust busting campaign that harks back 20 years to the attack on the steel trust. The administration's attitude toward big business may temper the government's zeal in prosecuting under the anti-trust laws, but has not so far deferred its watchful scrutiny of the renewed tendency of industry again to merge into large combinations of capital.

Both the department of justice and the federal trade commission have kept constantly informed of recent or proposed mergers in bakery products, sugar, dyes, natural gas, grain and other products. The merger process is going on more rapidly than appears on the surface and has cropped out in only a comparatively few instances, declares one government official. Many more are expected to follow during the next few months.

Discover Means to Control Bean Weevil

Infected Seeds Must Not Be Put in Storage.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A notion long prevalent among growers of beans was that the planting of weevily seed was the cause of a weevily crop, but investigations by the bureau of entomology, United States Department of Agriculture, in California, have shown that this has no effect on the infestation of the succeeding crop. The real cause of the spread of weevils in the new crop has been shown to be the development of large numbers of the insects in seeds held over from the preceding year and held in storage in buildings near the fields of growing beans. A few beans may be the breeding ground for enormous numbers of the pests. In one case it was found that 350,000 of a certain variety of cowpea weevil developed from a bag containing 25 pounds of cowpeas.

From this it is evident that the increase of the weevils may be largely controlled by the simple expedient of destroying those in the stored beans or by disposing of the surplus beans.

This weevil work of the department has been received by growers with much approval, in one of the most important bean-growing sections they have formed a weevil committee, the purpose of which is to spread the new information and to enforce recommendations which it is thought will reduce the losses which in recent years have been increasing with the continued cultivation of these leguminous crops.

Points to Consider in

Treatment of Acid Soil

There are several factors to be considered when choosing the form of lime to use for acid soils. The cost of the calcium is the first point to be considered and then the character of the soil, the kind of crop, the rapidity of action desired, the fineness of the lime and the convenience of handling are of next importance in the order named. Ordinary ground limestone or calcium carbonate contains approximately 840 pounds of calcium per ton, slaked lime or hydrated lime contains about 1,080 pounds of calcium per ton, and quicklime or unslaked lime contains about 1,425 pounds. The cost of a pound of calcium in each form should be compared when determining the relative cost of each substance. Generally speaking, for most conditions, ordinary ground limestone is to be recommended above the other forms. Unslaked lime will slowly become slaked when exposed to the air and dampness.

Green Feed Essential for Poultry in Winter

Successful poultrymen have learned that green feed of some kind is absolutely essential for winter egg production. Most any green stuff is good, providing the right kind of storage is used to keep the vegetables crisp and sound. Cabbage, beets or mangels are all good; and besides they are easy to keep all winter in pit or cellar. I really like cabbage the best, because it is crisp, quite nutritious and the hens like it, says a writer in the Indiana Farmers' Guide. The beets or mangels should be pulled before any freezing frosts occur, and only a few should be placed before the hens at one time. Alfalfa and clover leaves are used to some extent, but feed of a more succulent nature is best for winter use.

Best Use of Potatoes in Live Stock Feeding

Potatoes may be fed in limited amounts to cattle, sheep and horses. A partial substitution for grain, but they can be fed more liberally to hogs, especially if they are boiled or steamed and mixed with meal. Heavy feeding of raw potatoes will induce scouring. At the Wisconsin experiment station it was found that for hog feeding 442 pounds of cooked potatoes equaled 150 pounds of corn. A number of other stations have tested potatoes as a feed and as an average of all these tests it can be stated that about 520 pounds of potatoes, after cooking, are equal in feeding value to 100 pounds of corn or barley. For best results, when fed to hogs, potatoes should be given at the rate of about four pounds to each pound of concentrates.

FARM NOTES

Pullets kept separate from hens will bring better results.

A broody coop where feverish hens can be confined and fed is much to be preferred to ducking them or to starvation.

Early seeding is essential for a good oat crop. Ground prepared in the fall permits early seeding next spring.

How try a scythe as an insect and dust disease exterminator? Some insects and fly larvae diseases live through the winter on weeds.

Even if you do not want to raise more hogs in 1925 than you did in 1924, remember that you can make no mistake by producing better hogs through the use of a good registered sow, liberal feeding and better general care.

Community Building

Well to Provide Now for Future of City

American cities, with their present rapid growth and the increasing demand for homes away from the crowded section, are constantly breaking over their boundary lines and overflowing into new territory. The march of an urban population into the region still under the township authority brings some large problems. Haphazard development of the outlying territories, plots laid out without reference to the way in which they conform to the city's plan of arterial streets, residence lots parceled out far from water and sewer connections, hampering of the semi-urban territory by legal restrictions as to township expenditure framed to meet the needs of a purely rural township, these are some of the growing pains of suburban territories.

The creation of metropolitan areas or districts, is the device which modern cities have evolved to aid in the adjustment of these difficulties. The National Association of Real Estate Boards will undertake a study of how far American cities have devised successful plans for the development of suburban territories through metropolitan areas and will hold a national round-table discussion of subdividers looking to the encouragement of workable plans and toward the spread of such methods of subdivision development as will make for sound and healthy city growth.

Start Drive to Clean Up City's Back Yard

"Let's clean up our back yard."

That's the cry of the industrial development committee of the Cleveland Real Estate board which is planning a campaign which has for its purpose the "sprucing up" of those sections of industrial plants visible to the casual passer-through on the railroads.

The cleanup movement offers various advantages. First, the chance to do some very effective advertising for itself by presenting a good appearance to those passing through on trains. Second, it advertises Cleveland.

In some cities where such a movement has been undertaken, attractive planting along the right-of-way has been made a part of the campaign.

The American Railway Development association has passed a resolution pledging its co-operation in the realtor movement for spruce and business-like appearance in industrial areas. Individual railroads are co-operating through their development departments.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Must Look to Future

I've always believed that city planning was unworthy of the name unless it provided for the future of the city in question and therefore really came under the heading of regional planning, writes Myron H. West, president of the American Park Builders.

The first city to take advantage of the new law regarding the sections outside municipalities was Decatur, which caused to be prepared a comprehensive city and regional plan providing for the plotting of 16,000 acres in addition to the 4,000 acres contained within the city limits. This extended area will take off an added population of 100,000.

I believe that the very foundation of city planning lies in comprehensive zoning and in street control, as made possible under the recent Illinois act.

Citizens Must Be Alert

Concern with the problem of city government is not confined to students of municipal affairs. It is shared by the people of the cities. Those who must bear the burden of city government in the payment of taxes are beginning to realize their chief hope for the future lies in more economical and efficient administration of their affairs. It would be a wholesome change if there should come the realization, too, that whatever the system of government, a persistent and alert public interest in its administration is necessary to effective results.—Exchange.

Group Aids Beauty

As a general rule, more beauty and dignity is the result of planting a group of one kind of tree instead of mixing them. I am not here speaking about forest or woodland planting, but about planting along our highways. Where the all-around landscape is not interesting, the roadside picture would be enhanced by a promiscuous planting of trees, not in a formal line, but in a scattered way, so that you meet many trunks in place for a lane of trees, shutting off the view of the adjoining country.—Exchange.

Lawn's Proper Setting

Concerning borders that add to the appearance of the lawn, Successful Farming says: "A hardy border of shrubs and perennial plants gives a beautiful setting to a well-kept lawn, and in this border flowers may be had in bloom the entire summer by a judicious selection. Hardy bulbs may be had in bloom with the very earliest shrubbery and these will be followed by the peonies, lilies, and summer flowering bulbs and perennials, while fall blooming plants carry on until frost."

Family of Six Dead.

Hobart, Okla.—With the identification of the last victim established, the death list in the Christmas Eve fire at the Babb Switch rural school, stood at 33. Twenty injured persons are still confined in two hospitals. One is expected to die, and two others are in a critical condition.

The list of identified dead, as revised, follows:

T. C. Coffey.
Mrs. T. C. Coffey.
Maudie Coffey, Audrey Coffey, Orley Coffey, Ethel Coffey.

Mrs. Florence Perry Hill, teacher at the school in charge of the entertainment.

Vesta Jacobson.
A married woman from Ft. Worth,
Texas, nee Juanita Clemons, and her infant.

At a mass meeting, called by Mayor
F. E. Gillespie, committees were named to look after every detail of the sad task and the work was going forward systematically.

It has been decided to bury all the unidentified in one large grave in the Hobart cemetery, and a crew of men broke the snow that blanketed the burial ground to throw up a long trench of gray-red earth.

Among those who have been recognized is the family of T. C. Coffey, a farmer living near the Babb's Switch school. Six bodies, the father, mother and four little forms, have been placed to themselves in a corner of the awesome room. Survivors tell a heart-rending story of how the family, standing in the center of the blazing school room, every means of escape cut off, threw their arms about one another and in a last gesture of devotion, fell together into the inferno as blazing rafters loosed from the roof struck them down. Amid the awful confusion of the scene, survivors say they were struck by the placidity with which the Coffey family met death.

There, too, in a place apart is the body of Mrs. Florence Hill, teacher at the school, who might have escaped had she not tarried in a futile effort to find some avenue of escape of the little charges that were hers. A woman from Fort Worth, formerly Juanita Clemons of the Babb's Switch district, her three-year-old daughter, Mary, and Vesta Jackson, complete the list of the identified dead.

Twenty-seven others are listed as missing, and efforts are going forward to determine whether they are among the injured who were taken after the fire to farmhouses throughout the countryside.

Washington.—Senator Oscar W. Underwood of Alabama is ill at his home

ing poisoned William Allison McCurdy, 65, her husband, Mrs. Clara S.
McCurdy, 55, mother of five children,

ed a sensation throughout Coshocton

nent.

Fulfilled Death Vow.

Madrid.—Senora Leonora Grau, one of the leading women in the town of Tereul, fulfilled her vow to kill herself if her son, fighting the Rifians in Morocco, was returned to her alive.
While the son was with his regiment Senora Grau's husband died, and she pared for the young man's life, too.
He vowed to the Virgin that if he were spared she would sacrifice herself.

New York.—Two medals have been awarded Duncan Campbell, 10-year-old schoolboy of Brooklyn, for his painting of a life-like tiger on a five-foot canvas, submitted in a contest among 100 school children. The judges said it was one of the most remarkable children found in 15 years of contests.

Wife Slayer Hanged.

victed of slaying his wife, was hanged here. He walked to the

LEE PARADES AGAIN THROUGH SAN ANTONIO

J. Barney Sherry, in Cast of "The Warrens of Virginia" Impersonates Confederate Hero

Ten thousand persons, lining the streets of San Antonio, Texas, on Armistice Day, cheered and applauded as an apparition of Gen. Robert E. Lee, in his uniform of the Confederate Army and mounted on his famous white horse, Traveler, marched majestically at the head of several thousand veterans of the World War. Flanked by General Beaumont Buck, possessor of one of the most enviable war records in the American Army, the shade of the greatest commander the Southland has ever produced, led the troops to Alamo Plaza, where he took his place with General Preston Brown and his staff, to receive the salutes of the troops.

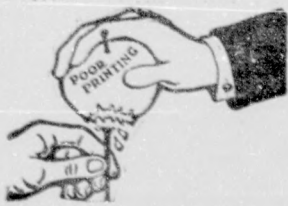

In reality, what might have been thought to be the ghost of Lee, was J. Barney Sherry, a member of the cast of "The Warrens of Virginia," which William Fox made in Texas. Sherry essays the part of the beloved Confederate commander in the screen version of Belasco's stage play. So authentic was Mr. Sherry's character that old men and women, who could remember General Lee, rubbed their eyes in amazement.

Old timers said that it was the first time within their memory that a man, without official or military rank, had reviewed troops in Texas and received their enthusiastic salute. But, as General Brown commented when he modestly relinquished his honor to the actor:

"It is you that they want to see, not me."

"The Warrens of Virginia" comes to the Orpheum theatre for two days, Jan. 5th and 6th.

Administrator now look at the Jew. Refuse him that he would, refuse him, he could not; his sense of honor impelling him to the course of duty.

"From what part of Germany do you come," asked the Administrator, rather inquiringly.

"From Berlin, sir, from Berlin," replied the Jew, "my home is here in Berlin."

"From Berlin," exclaimed the officer, as if greatly surprised, "you live here in Berlin? And you wish to leave the greatest city in the world? What can you mean, man, what can you mean?"

"It is a poor Jew's wish, sir, before he dies, to again see those in whose veins courses his own blood," meekly answered the Jew.

"Then you have relatives in Bremen," inquired the Administrator.

"Indeed, sir, indeed, sir," returned the Jew, "but they are as poor, as poor as the savannahs of Russia themselves."

A stillness of a few moments ensued now before the Administrator again spoke. During this period of quietude he not infrequently scanned the Jew closely as the son of Israel himself looked longingly on the goal of his life. Notwithstanding the fact that he was opposed to his race as a people, still, there was something about the young man that he could not but admire. His countenance GAL TWO continued STORY.

was good. His face showed marks indicative of strong determination. And his every move and action was strikingly illustrative of one who pursues his objective with a determination that knows no defeat.

"And you will return at the call of your country," sternly inquired the officer?

"Return I shall, and that at once," hastily replied the Jew.

"Then I have no alternative but to trust you," quickly replied the Administrator.

Having definitely made up his mind as to the question involved, the officer arose and walked over to the desk where he took his seat. In a few moments, the question of further formality having been waived, he again stood before the Jew with the passport in his hand.

Addressing the son of Israel for the last time, as he held out before him the much-coveted paper, the Administrator remarked, "I have taken you at your word, sir. The responsibility is yours."

Upon his acceptance of the document, the Jew again and again bowed low, in order that there might be no mistake as to the degree of his gratification.

With the passport in his possession, the Jew now quietly, yet quickly, made for the door.

But hardly had he gone a step or two when the following admonition fell upon his ears. "Remember sir, the call."

"That I shall, sir," returned the Jew, "and that to the interest of my glorious country."

Now he had reached the portal. But suddenly he turned, and again facing the Administrator, he lowered himself to the floor in one grand, oriental obeisance.

In another instance and beyond the threshold the Jew had passed, no more to be seen.

Again on the street, having attained his objective, the Jew peered closely in every direction, then, drawing his worn coat tightly about his neck, walked rapidly in the direction of his home. Occasionally, as he hastened on his way, he looked back, as if he feared the possibility of some one's following him to deprive a poor Jew of his well earned privilege. On and on and on he went; for his little hovel stood at some distance from the German metropolis. At last he reached his dwelling. Opening the door, he quickly entered, and having mounted the stairs in one or two leaps, was soon in his room.
