Fulton Chamber of Commerce - Live Organization

Charles K. Mathis

The Chamber of Commerce meeting held last Thursday night was a most successful one. The program included a business meeting and a going-away dance for the members.

A lively discussion of the coming new building for the Chamber was held. It was decided to await the result of the election for a new building committee before making any further plans.

The committee on finance reported the following:

1. The total amount of money collected by the committee for the new building is $500.

2. The committee has decided to seek the assistance of the local banks in the financing of the new building.

3. The committee has also decided to seek the assistance of the local merchants in the financing of the new building.

4. The committee has decided to seek the assistance of the local investors in the financing of the new building.

The committee on finance will continue to work on the project and keep the membership informed of the progress.

Railroad News

Refrigerated Lake Whiskey

Placed in Hickman Jail

W. S. Williams, Publisher

The railroad news reports that the refrigerator car containing lake whiskey has been placed in Hickman Jail.

The whiskey was found to be in a very iced condition, and the authorities are satisfied that it was not shipped for the purpose of resale.

The case is still under investigation, and the railroad company is cooperating fully with the authorities.

Dear Mr. Williams:

I thank you very much for the copies of your paper which you so freely and with such kindness sent me. I am much obliged to you for doing so, and would be glad of any more which you find it possible to send me. I am aware that in the course of my own work I am continually writing to others on the subject of my book, 'In Case of Emergency'; but I do not think I have received any copy of your paper or anything similar to it, which is why I should be glad to receive yours. It will be a great help in my work, and I shall be sure to thank you for it in my next letter.

Yours truly,

Too Much Athletics

Athlete—mores appear to be in the nature of moral matters. The ideal life of the average American youth is more or less revealed in the life of the athlete. He loves to play, he loves to win, and he loves to lose, and in all these things he is the master of his future.

The generation of athletics is desirable, up to a certain point, but the following rules must be observed: 1. The athlete must be a natural, not an artificially created one.

2. The athlete must train
his body, not his mind.

3. The athlete must be moral, not immoral.

4. The athlete must

CREDIT A NATIONAL CURSE

Every nation has its curse, most of them are of a kind, but it occurs as applied to the ordinary expedient of lending money, especially to the matter of living expenses.

If a man needs a drink and promises to pay for it in a reasonable time, the saloon owner is quite willing to sell him the liquid refreshment and accept for it his word.

The credit system is a national curse. It is a national curse.

Wherever the credit system prevails, there the number of slow pays and credit failures increase, the cost of living increases, the number of arrests for violation of the law increases.

The merchant pays for his goods, and in some cases pays cash. If he cannot, or will not, pay cash he cannot have the goods.

The merchant who extends credit does so because he wants to make a profit on the real sales of the business, and he is going to make the profit out of the retail sales of the goods he has in stock.

If a person can pay at the end of every week or thirty days' it would require but little time for the merchant to find out who the man was who would pay cash when he was paid.

If the merchant carres your account he means that he wishes to make a profit on the goods you buy, and is willing to extend you credit.

Every merchant who extends credit gains in the dead beats. He loses not only his profit but the cost of the goods.

And what then does he do? Just what you or any sensible person would do--raise the price sufficiently on his goods to protect him against the loss of the goods of the deadbeat.

The merchant who extends credit has no more right to expect a man to pay the bill when it comes due than the bank has to expect a man to pay a check that comes in.

If the merchant will not extend you credit when you have a little money in hand, then you can talk with him about the terms of sale and see if he will not sell you goods at 10 per cent less if you pay cash when you get the goods.

Every fellow who tells all he knows seldom knows much to talk about. The man who tells all he knows seldom knows much about the business he is doing.

Diplomacy might be useful provided the dummies were honestly fixed.

Never mind what the cost of the work costs you. "Old Peter" is the key that will solve the whole puzzle.

It is best to throw the mantle of charity over the misfortune of our neighbors. You may not always be right, but you only care that you are.

"First see that you are right and then go ahead," is good advice, and it is the advice that will make you successful in any line of business.

Some men who respect the law do not always observe it for the reason that they have no time to observe it.

In a thousand cases you have had your own goods, and the bank has charged you for the goods, and the bank has charged you for the goods, and the bank has charged you for the goods.

Do not let your judgment be deluded by the appearance of things. If you get a good chance to get a property at a low price, and you have the means to pay the price, then you should get the property, and you should not let any one else have the property.

When a fellow pays over $100 for goods that are worth $50, he is likely to believe that he has $100 for goods that are worth $50.

When a fellow pays over $100 for goods that are worth $50, he is likely to believe that he has $100 for goods that are worth $50.

"If you don't know how to do it you can't do it," is the cry amounted to in this case.

"Take the neighbor as you find him," says the book back, but the credit system is not a way to get the neighbor.
