NUMBER 41.

Diphtheria Cases Increase In Fulton

Records available to the Public Health Service from Kentucky show that there has been a steady increase in diphtheria during the past two months, one hundred and thirty-six cases were officially reported recently. Evidence at hand indicates a corresponding increase in the death rate.

Interviewing Dr. H. E. Prather, Fulton County Health Officer this week, The News learned that a total of eight cases are now in this county. Four of these are in Fulton one in Hickman and three in the rural districts. The State Board of Health of Kentucky has issued a warning to the people as follows:

"Diphtheria can be prevented by simple, painless and safe inoculation with diphtheria toxoid, which is lasting in its effect. Diphtheria is unusually prevalent now in many sections of the state; cases are increasing in number and severity from week to week. The majority of deaths from diphtheria are of little children, less than five years old. If your child is more than nine months old take him to your doctor without delay and have him immunized with diphtheria toxoid. Two reasons exist for a child even having diphtheria much less dying with it. One is ignorance; the other is indifference and delay on the part of parents."

HUNTERS HERE PREPARE FOR DUCK SEASON

Ducks and geese are in for a siege again, the season having opened on November 1. Many Fulton sportsmen began to prepare for the coming of the fleet-winged fowls late in October, erect camps along the old Mississippi and seek out good "blinds" from which to do their shooting.

Last Saturday E. C. Hardesty, Ed Hanneffin, Claude Freeman, Henry Ford and Leon Langston took an excursion over on the Mississippi on the trail of these wild denizens of the air. They took along a motor boat, launched it at Columbus and traveled down the river to Hickman. Bright and early Tuesday morning Bob White, E. C. Hardesty, Claude Freeman, Johnny Reeks and E. W. Brown and J. H. Bailey of Lexington, left with their heavy cargo of food and supplies, together with two boats for the waters of the Mississippi where they will surprise the ducks for ten days of hunting. Camp was established on No. 8 Island where comfortable outdoor living quarters were hastily thrown up. Now they await the coming of colder weather, and the ducks and geese.

Joe Browder, who is chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority in this section, gave a short talk on the subject. Mr. Sanford also gave an interesting talk. The club voted to send resolutions to our Congressmen and Senators explaining the benefits of the dam and a similar resolution to the one passed by the young men's organization of Murray, asking them to do all in their power to put over this project.

The check-up was begun about three weeks ago and finished last Saturday, with every home and place of business being visited. J. El Rankin made the last census some seven year ago.

Users of city water are urged to have leaky and faulty fixtures repaired, as this waste of water costs the city a considerable sum of money. The door to the storeroom, in which the cigarettes were kept was propped open with a carton of cigarettes. The back door was wide open, through which the cigarettes were evidently taken out and loaded into a waiting automobile, as tracks could be seen the morning following the robbery.

RELIEF PROPOSED FOR THE HOME OWNER AND FARMER

"Death and taxes are certain" was the gist of a statement made a long time ago. Everybody pays them whether he thinks he does or not, either directly or indirectly. Often you hear the expression "I don't care what they tax—it won't affect me. I don't own any property." Then again, the comment "Why should I worry about who is elected," and that individual proceeds to back up his statement by failing to appear at the polls to vote. But all this is a mistaken idea about taxes and government. They affect us all. Year after year taxes have been increasing. But the time has come to call a halt. It's time that a careful revision of our system of taxation be made. We cannot go on and on indefinitely increasing and overlapping taxes. Just drifting and trying to make both ends meet, or allow greedy politicians to maneuver things to their own liking, shifting the burden to harassed taxpayers, the people be damned! Something must be done to regulate and control taxation, or some day we'll awaken to find the very foundations of our social and economic lives rocked to the core by concussion and boomeranging results.

Every state, every county and every community has its own problems to face and work out. Kentucky, Fulton County and Fulton are not exempted. Our state department faces a grave situation in its efforts to bring relief to overburdened real estate owners. An amendment to the state constitution is now proposed to assist in this undertaking. Ralph Gilbert, who served at one time as judge for Shelby County, Ky., has the following to say in regard to the proposed amendment:

"The amount of State taxes saved will be one of its minor benefits. It must be remembered that most all local taxes, such as county and school, are based upon the same assessment as state taxes. Taxes may be as effectively raised through an increase in assessment as through an increase in rate. While the law limits the rate which may be levied for different purposes, it does not control the assessment.

"Local as well as State taxes have mounted steadily and rapidly through this latter method of raising the assessment and when the State Tax Commission has raised the assessment in order to get more money for state purposes, it has increased the taxpayers' burden several times the amount of the State tax increase, because that increase for State purposes automatically increases the taxes for local purposes. It is obvious that the taxpayer is helpless to control his local taxes as long as the State Tax Commission has the power over his assessment, and it is true that these increases in assessment have come wholly through the State Tax Commission."

Judge Gilbert pointed out that in the last 15 years taxes in his county have been doubled, despite the fact that the county has fought the raises, with increases forced upon it almost yearly by increased assessments made by the State Tax Commission. He calls attention to the fact that "equalization" is always attained through raising and never through lowering of these assessments. When local taxes are increased through the pretense of equalizing assessments for state purposes, a use is naturally found for the excess revenue.

"Real estate is peculiarly local in character and should be locally controlled and in this it essentially differs from other classes of property. When the Constitutional amendment permitting a classification of property was adopted in 1915, it was the general understanding that when intangible personal property was relieved from local taxation, real property would be relieved from state taxation. In the Legislature following that amendment the holders of intangibles being better organized and more influential, secured their relief and the holders of real estate were abandoned. One whose wealth is in stocks and bonds contributes nothing in taxes to the upkeep of his school, his city, or his county; then is it not fair that the farmer and home owner who supports all of these should be relieved of his state taxes?

Congressman John Young Brown, who has given this matter profound study, prefers this relief through an exemption rather than through a removal of state taxes from all real estate. His contention is based on the fact that many large corporations would in this way escape the real estate taxes they are now paying to the state. This loss, in the opinion of Judge Gilbert and others could be avoided by increasing the franchise of such corporations. To grant an exemption such as suggested by Congressman Brown, would require the adoption of an amendment to the Constitution which now forbids a greater exemption than $250.

Judge Gilbert says that a corporation knows no county or local lines and is properly controlled by the state and its commissions, but a farm or cottage is essentially local, without state functions as its control and assessment should be returned to local officers. "In those state where this separation has taken place and real estate left solely for local purposes, splendid results have followed. No state which has removed real estate from state taxation has returned to the old method now prevailing in Kentucky where real estate holders are taxed for all purposes while the holders of other kinds of property are only taxed for a few."

"The opposition of the University of Kentucky and other organizations should be weighed with the knowledge that this opposition is made by beneficiary parties. My interest is solely to give the home owner and farmer a square deal. Every effort in the Legislature to reduce taxes is met with vigorous opposition from those who receive these taxes. All tax money should first go into the state treasury and be paid out only upon appropriation bills in which each item is shown to be necessary."

Taxpayers, this proposed tax relief is of the utmost importance to you. Any praiseworthy effort to bring about reductions in our taxation deserves the support of the people. The backbone of our Commonwealth is made up of home-owners and farmers. Home ties are always strong factors in the development of any community. When we encourage citizens to own their own homes and farms, we building up a sounder, stronger and finer Commonwealth.

ON THE ROAD BACK

Industry and agriculture are on the road back to recovery, but unemployment hasn't been licked yet. The fight against unemployment will not be over this year or next year. The problem is too grave, too deep to solve in so short a time. But, under the stimulus of the new deal, the old economic doctrine of "let things alone they will adjust themselves" has been abandoned. The economic welfare of this great nation of our must be planned and controlled, and American industry to survive must give a larger share of the profits to the workers.

True men are going back to work. Idle factory chimneys are smoking again. Energy and hope have replaced despair. Six months ago there were 13,000,000 unemployed people; today there are 10,000,000 without jobs.

It is estimated by the Senator Wagner of New York that 25,000,000 people, or a fifth of our population, are in desperate need of assistance. But even in the height of the boom of 1929 there were more than 3,000,000 unemployed—with dependents bringing the total to more than 10,000,000 persons living in destitution and despair. No, we must not return to "the normalcy of 1929." Unemployment cannot adjust itself. Everything in human understanding, human pertinacity and human courage will be needed to solve it.

There are two primary causes of unemployment today: improved machinery and business depression. The first is known as "technological unemployment," which means that someone has perfected a machine by which one man can do the work of ten, the other nine being laid off. These machines benefit society—our big job, nationally, and in every state and community, is to find a new way to employ the men laid off.

The other unemployment problem begins when our industrial machinery and our farms turn out more goods and commodities than the people have the money to pay for. Factories lay off men, farmers become poor, and the people have still less money to spend, and business takes a general spiral downward. Such was the case in our recent depression. But by careful consideration and study of the vicious problem, the National Recovery Administration has turned the tide in the other direction. It remains now for the American people, through their chosen representatives, to whom they give their utmost cooperation, to work out a plan that will assure our people of a permanent recovery and building up of a saner, happier America.

In the meantime, we face the serious problem of clothing, sheltering and feeding the destitute this winter. Every dime, and more, of the federal appropriation for direct relief will be needed. Every state and every community will have its share in this work. Voluntary contributions of everyone able to make them will be required.

Unemployment and poverty will have to be blotted out before our nation can enjoy permanent contentment, happiness and prosperity. Senator Wagner says: "A civilized nation should be ashamed to keep the majority of its people 'just above poverty.'"

Yes, we're on the road to recovery, but there are many by-ways on which we can stray off the highway to permanent stability. President Roosevelt and corps of assistants are facing the difficulties coolly and critically. Action—careful, forceful action—is the password of the new administration, which has accomplished unbelievable results in a few short months.

WARNING

To All Motor Car Owners
Voting in Kentucky

When you go to the polls next Tuesday, November 7th, be sure to vote for those candidates for the Legislature who can be relied on to support and protect the interests of all Kentucky motorists at the next session of the Legislature which meets in January.

Various special interests, seeking to avoid their proper share of the tax burden, are already demanding a diversion of nearly $3,000,000 of the state road fund for purposes other than highway construction and repair.

This fund comes almost entirely from the pockets of motor vehicle owners (in the form of gas taxes and licenses) and it has already been reduced more than 20 per cent by the depression.

If the state road fund is further slashed by "raids" of the special interests, highway construction with state money will stop and thousands of men will be immediately thrown out of work. This must not be allowed to occur!

For nearly twenty years now Kentucky motorists have been overburdened with excessive license fees and gas taxes and harsh regulations. And because we have been unorganized — although numerically very strong — our interests have been ignored until this year.

Unless we get busy—every motor vehicle owner and operator—right now and demand a New Deal and a Fair Deal from our representatives, we shall be more imposed upon than ever before during the coming year.

Fellow motorists, take up your share of the fight at once by asking your representatives in the Legislature to subscribe to the following fair and moderate program and to work for it in the 1934 session:

1. Substantially reduce motor vehicle license fees.
2. Reduce excessive direct and indirect taxes that unduly increase the cost of fuel, supplies, ownership and operation of motor vehicles.
3. Oppose diversion of gasoline tax funds and license fees for any purpose other than the building, maintenance and proper marking of public highways.
4. Advocate reasonable operating regulations and properly engineered road construction to insure safety in the use of public highways.
5. Oppose unreasonable restrictions on the use of motor vehicles.

Most members of the Legislature—both Senators and Representatives—are sincerely eager to carry out the will of their constituents in law-making that is just. Therefore, it is up to all of us motor vehicle owners to make our wants known to legislators and legislative candidates. TAKE WARNING. ACT NOW!

THEATRE REVIEWS

"FOOTLIGHT PARADE" PRODUCERS RATED AS ZIEGFELDS OF SCREEN

With the advent of the new musical cycle on the screen, Warner Bros., the foremost producers of such shows of which "Footlight Parade," which opens at the Warner Orpheum theatre on Sunday, is an outstanding example, may well be termed the Ziegfelds of the motion picture world. Certainly no other producer has been able to turn out any musical picture that can compare with "42nd Street," or "Gold Diggers of 1933."

Twelve of Hollywood's brilliant stars head the tremendous cast of noted players who appear in the mammoth spectacle "Footlight Parade," showing Sunday, Monday and Tuesday here. Warner Bros. alone seem to have the knack of turning out tremendous screen musical hits with great numbers of beautiful girls, unique and mammoth ensembles, and unusually catchy songs plus strong story backgrounds. The three musicals so far produced have surpassed the most magnificent and spectacular settings ever seen in Ziegfeld Follies.

Friday this week Maurice Chevalier, with his devil-may-care air will give lesson on "The Way to Love" with lovable Ann Dvorak playing the role opposite him. A picture with a fine romantic touch to stir the hearts of lovers everywhere.

Saturday, "A Parisian Romance" and a Ken Maynard Western will provide a double feature consisting of a varied program of entertainment.

Next Wednesday, Nov. 8th Joel McCrea, Ginger Rogers, Marian Nixon will perform in a "Chance at Heaven," a sparkling bit of entertainment.

Then next Thursday and Friday Jean Harlow and Lee Tracy will be at the local theater in "Bombshell."

DR. PRATHER MAKES HEALTH REPORT

The following brief report of the Fulton County Health Department for the months of July, August and September, was made by Dr. H. E. Prather, County Health Officer:

Up in Wilmington, Ohio, a local firm received an order for a 1933 model Luggy, complete with rubber tires, nonsplatter dashboard and all the "new" equipment. When the vehicle appeared in the firm's store window it caused a near sensation. It was the first buggy sold there since 1923. A farmer bought it, paying $155 just $17 less than the cost of a buggy back in the good old days.

Out in Oakland, Calif., glandular specialists, spurred by a girl's fearful pleas to save her from "becoming a man" applied an adrenal diet to arrest the startling transformation of a once attractive young woman into a person with decidedly masculine characteristics and tendencies. Her once wavy golden hair became brown and coarse during the strange change. She also developed mustache and sideburn, which made shaving necessary almost daily. And rounded feminine contours were altered into the broad shoulders, the rigid muscles of an athlete; her hands were changed from soft flesh of femininity into masculine hardness. Frequently, she said, she found herself doing things a man would do under certain circumstances. A disturbance of the delicate balance between the thyroid and adrenal glands is the alleged cause of the transformation.

Edwina Booth, who was stricken with a mysterious jungle fever after filming "Trader Horn" in Africa has filed suit for $1,000,000 against a Hollywood producing concern, alleging impaired health. She was in bed for more than a year as a result of the tropical malady. But the movie-loving public must be entertained regardless of the chances taken in filming a "thriller."

Secretary Wallace vows he'll protect his corn-hog program, and has threatened a showdown with the meat packing industry if the prices of hogs are reduced when the processing taxes to finance his hog production control program becomes effective this month. His hog corn plan contemplates a flow of $350,000,000 in benefits to producers during the next 16 months with reduction of corn production by 20 percent and hog output by 25 percent, his dual goal.

The international battle for gold is on. London struck the first big by raising its bid from the equivalent of $30.61 to $31.14 an ounce last week. Washington went London one better. It is hardly likely that there will be any tremendous shifting of national gold stocks in the near future. The U. S. with $4,300,000,000 in gold, has more than any other country on the face of the earth, and more than enough to back up its currency. The British Empire, however, produces about three-fourths of the world's total annual gold production.

An article appearing in The Journal of American Medical Association reports the successful removal of an entire lung from a patient by Dr. Everts A. Graham. It was the first time the whole lung has been removed at one stage. Medical and surgical science improves.

Jap recruits are told to enlist for death. Volunteers will be asked to act as "human torpedoes" in naval engagements. This decision to form a death brigade came after Japanese naval engineers had perfected a new type of torpedo, fitted with a steering gear, and having room for a steersman. Maybe that's one way of reducing the already overpopulated Japan.

The federal relief administration has definitely decided upon the establishment of 300 transient camps, where needy transients will be sheltered during the winter at public expense. The depression has created a great army of transients. It has made tramps out of a great many who were once industrious citizens. It is better to control them this way than by herding them into jails and penal road camps.

a great master mind, men will run amuck. I care not what you may call this thought, you may call it religion, maybe it is; but I lay no claim to it being such, as it is generally called. But this I do know—every time you pull down a church, you must build a prison, an almshouse or erect a scaffold.

"A leader of men." A God-given attribute. To be able to lead men aright, to lead them to victory; to how few of us is the gift delivered! "For if the blind lead the blind, shall they not both fall in the ditch?" Yet there is another side to it. No matter how competent your leader is, he is of no use to you if you do not follow him. Unless you acknowledge him as leader and follow where he leads, his leadership will be of no value to you.

But he not "a poor stick" if he seeks a leader and follows him, if that leader be a "leader of men" in the sense Abraham Lincoln was a leader, and we unto him who refuses to acknowledge the leadership of a master mind, and refuses to be led by that influence. Think it over.

Think It Over

BY THE MEDITATOR

LEADERS OF MEN

"He was a leader of men." "He is a poor stick of a man who cannot, or will not, move of his own volition, but must wait for the word of a leader."

Here is a thought. The first quotation is from an address on Lincoln day, and was said of the great leader. The other quotation is from an address delivered to a body of students by a very able speaker. It is with the last quotation I would deal with.

In all men there is and ever has been a desire, an instinctive willingness to be led. That same instinct and desire is found in every class of God's creatures. In the ants and apes, in the wolves and in the cattle, in the bees and the bugs, it is Nature's plan. Without a leader man endures hardships, works in a purposeless manner and suffers wrongs, but give him a leader and he at once becomes a different being. He is virile, vindictive, masterful and a winner. In every man has lifted his hands toward heaven with the cry, "lead us or we perish."

Man has always been afraid to face life alone. Alone he regards the responsibilities and dangers as being too great to be borne. He seeks a leader, and it is this fear, fear of life, that causes man to turn to religion, to cast his eyes heavenward seeking a greater leader than man, for he reasons that he needs, at times and longs for a leader in the following whom he can feel more secure, safer, if his leader be an all-powerful God instead of mere man.

In all religions the worship is regarded as a means of pleasing, of winning favor, of the being worshipped. True the primary purpose of religion is morality, but a belief in the leadership of a Supreme Being is the chief aid of morality.

It is not true, as the second quotation above indicates, that the man who follows a leader is a gump, incapable of caring for himself. All men feel the need of a leader and without one, man is helpless to find his way through this world and without a belief in the leadership of

MOTORISTS URGED TO FIGHT 'RAID' ON STATE ROAD FUND

It would be very unfortunate for the cause of good roads in Kentucky if any part of the highway construction and maintenance fund is used for any other purpose than road building and repair work which now provides so many people with jobs, according to Garrett Withers of Dixon, member of the State Highway Commission.

"Kentucky still needs many more miles of good hard surface roads to get the country people in various sections 'out of the mud' and in better communication with the towns. Consequently the state highway system is being extended every year in order to meet this need," Mr. Withers declared in a recent meeting of the Kentucky Highway Users' League.

If any part of the state road fund is diverted for other purposes the constitutionality of the act providing for the use of revenues derived from motor vehicle license fees for state highway building and maintenance may be contested in the courts, in Mr. Withers' opinion. If that occurs, a large proportion of the state road fund would be tied up indefinitely, consequently halting the road program.

"Practically all the money going into road building and maintenance is paid out for labor. Diversion of the road fund would throw hundreds possibly thousands, of additional men out of work on the roads and put them and their wives and children on charity rolls.

"Today the State Highway Department is the best organized public agency in Kentucky to give widespread employment to labor. Any further reduction of its funds would not only interfere seriously with completion of the greatly needed highway system, it would also swell the ranks of jobless men and gravely complicate the state's relief program."

Every motorist in Kentucky is urged by the Kentucky Highway Users' League to vote in the November 7 election for legislative candidates who can be depended on to oppose vigorously the proposed "raid on the state road fund" during the coming meeting of the Legislature.

A Message To The Voters Who Go To Poles Nov. 7

The General Election for Senators and Representatives in the various counties in Kentucky will be held on November 7th. It is important that all merchants, their employees and families vote in this election for such candidates as have expressed themselves unalterably and unequivocally opposed to a sales tax as a means of raising revenue in Kentucky. The retail merchants of Kentucky should disregard party alliance in voting for the various candidates for Representative and Senator, states the Kentucky Retail Merchants association. This is not a political organization in any sense of the word. It was organized for the purpose of protecting the interests of the retail merchants of the State as well as the taxpayers of the State.

At the November 7th Election there will be submitted an amendment to the State Constitution empowering the Legislature to remove all taxes from real estate and tangible property. The present tax on real estate is 30 cents on the hundred or $3 on $1000 of assessed valuation. The Governor of the State has publicly announced that if this constitutional amendment is carried he will consider it a mandate from the people for the Legislature to remove all State taxes from real estate and tangible property and pass a sales tax for the purpose of raising the required revenue for the State. This Association is not advocating the passage of this amendment, neither is it opposing it; but we do believe that the taxpayers of the State should know what they are voting for when they cast their votes. If this amendment is passed, the large corporation, including the railroads, utilities and others, will escape taxation on their real estate and tangible property and will pay practically nothing from their incomes under a sales tax, as they do not buy at retail. Large individual holders of real estate will escape the State tax upon their property and only 5 to 10 per cent of their income will be taxed under a sales tax, while the man of moderate means, the tenant, and the laborer will be taxed upon his entire earnings, as he will spend all he makes at retail in order to live.

Voters should be fully advised of just what this amendment means. For instance: A man owning a home assessed at $2000 will pay $6 in State taxes. If that man makes $100 a month or $1200 a year and spends what he makes for the necessities of life, under a sales tax of 2 per cent his tax would be $24. He will save $6 on the tax on his home, and it will cost him $24 taxes on the necessities of life, or an additional tax of $18, which is an increase in taxes of 300 per cent.

It is our opinion that a homestead exemption of $5000 on real estate would exempt the man of small means and the ones least able to pay taxes on his property, while the large holders of real estate and the corporation would be required to pay their just taxes on the property they own in this state.

The August 5th Primary demonstrated conclusively that the voters in Kentucky are not in favor of a sales tax on the necessities of life, including food and raiment. Go to the polls on November 7th and vote for the candidate who will represent your ideas of taxation. If a sales tax is once fastened upon the taxpayers of the State, even though it is passed as an emergency measure, it will never be removed and will continue to grow as the years pass, as has the gasoline tax, and become such a burden that it will eventually stifle the retail trade of Kentucky.

"HANK, THE HIRED MAN."

Something was said recently about the worthlessness of the wife's affections that could be "alienated" by another man. But they are on a par with the affections of a husband who can be "lured away" by a vampire woman.

Work is the greatest blessing life holds. Pension off an old man and he soon dies.

A love letter is always silly, more or less, but if you are not one of the lovers, it's none of your business.

Usually a "sense of humor" is nothing more than the ability to enjoy the other fellow's flat tire.

Out of every $10,000 of revenue in 1932, taxes took $850 from the Illinois Central System, $110 from one barge line on the Mississippi River, $30 from another, 64 cents from another.

In sharing and lightening the common tax burden, the railroad thus is nearly eight times as valuable as one rival carrier, nearly thirty times as valuable as another, more than one thousand times as valuable as another.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

EIGHTY-TWO YEARS

C. R. Collins* says:

In the year of 1932 the Illinois Central System paid $607,540.70 taxes in the State of Kentucky. Hence, 7,665 children were given school advantages from this tax and this is being done each year. There is also 665 miles of highway being maintained by these taxes paid by the Illinois Central System.

Is there another transportation system, or combined number of them, doing this much for you and your children?

Which wilt you prefer, the more efficient and the one which helps you and your children?
