Word cut from Northern Presbyterian Church Marriage Service.

New Lithograph of Dr. Wriglthe Conscript of This Decision Shows Take Up.

Special Public Notice.

We regret to announce that the above word cut from the Presbyterian church marriage service has been dropped from the publication due to various circumstances. As there can be no more terrible ordeal for a couple to pass through than the sacrifice of a great precipice—their first kiss—such an occurrence in regard to the past practice of the clergy is necessary to a proper understanding of the marital ceremony. The Rev. Dr. Wrigley, in his capacity as overseer of the service, has found it necessary to make a slight alteration in the existing form, which will no doubt be acceptable to all concerned. The alteration will in no way affect the spirit of the existing form, and we are confident that this decision will be received with universal approbation.

A JUNGLE "INFAIR"

HURDLES FOR HOGGERSKIPS.

IN A COUNTRY in southern Brazil large tracts of land are occupied by what are known as "Hoggerships." The word "Hogger" is the Brazilian name for a child, and the "Hoggerships" are large tracts of land which are occupied by children, usually under the age of 12. The children are usually taught to herd hogs, and the Hoggerships are often used as a sort of play area.

A recent incident in one of these Hoggerships has been the subject of much discussion. A group of children, including one who is known as "The Old Boar," were playing a game of "Hogwash," which involves running through a series of obstacles. One of the children, known as "The Little Pigs," accidentally ran into a wire fence, which caused an injury to his leg. The other children, including "The Old Boar," immediately tried to help "The Little Pigs," but were unable to do so due to the nature of the game. The game continued, and "The Little Pigs" eventually died from his injuries.

ANIMAL PSYCHOLOGY

TROUBLES OF THE FUTURE.

The psychology of animals has been a subject of much interest in recent years. Many theories have been proposed regarding the behavior of animals, and the study of animal behavior has become an important field of research.

One of the most interesting theories is that of Dr. Charles Darwin, who proposed that animals have a natural instinct to protect their young. This theory has been supported by many experiments, and it is generally accepted that animals have a strong instinct to protect their offspring.

Another theory is that of Dr. Elizabeth Blackwell, who proposed that animals have a natural instinct to seek food. This theory has also been supported by many experiments, and it is generally accepted that animals have a strong instinct to seek food.

SWITCH GIRL TEST LOYALTY.

IT'S A GREAT COUNTRY!

In the United States, it is common for children to be tested for loyalty by their parents. This is done by having the child switch sides in a game of "Hogwash," and then seeing how well they stick to their new side. The child is usually tested in front of a group of other children, and the results are often used to determine whether the child is loyal or not.
