FULTON, KENTUCKY, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 2, 1945.

NUMBER THREE

Bertes Pigue Gets High Scout Award

Bertes Pigue, chairman of the Dry Lake District of the Boy Scouts since its inauguration in 1936, was awarded the Silver Beaver, one of the highest ranking awards in Scouting, in recognition of the fine work he has done over a period of years, when the Four Rivers Council Appreciation Dinner was held at Paducah Thursday night of last week.

Mr. Pigue has been a loyal and faithful Scout leader in this territory for many years, and he is the first Fultonian to receive the honor of the Silver Beaver. He was selected for this distinction by the local committee, who in turn submitted his name to the national council. Mr. Pigue is vice-president of the Four Rivers Council, treasurer of the Young Men's Business Club and secretary of the Fulton Board of Education.

Fulton came off with top honors at the meeting last week, when six of eight Eagle Scouts came from this community to receive their awards. They were Hunter Whitesell, Billy Murphy, Lloyd Grymes, Read Holland, Jack Browder and John Joe Campbell. The boys pin the miniature badges upon their mothers, who in turn pinned the Eagle badges upon the sons.

These six Eagle Scouts are members of Troop 43 of which William Scott is scoutmaster. He deserves the commendation of the entire community for the splendid work these young men have accomplished.

The banquet was opened with five of the Eagle Scouts led the Call to Colors and the Pledge to the Flag. Francis J. Rigney, art editor of Boys Life, was the principal speaker for the occasion, given in honor of Scoutmasters, Cubmasters and Den Mothers. Carmen Graham, principal of Murray Training School, gave the appreciation speech.

Scout leaders and wives who attended from Fulton were: Mr. and Mrs. Harry Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. Frank McGary, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Holland, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Browder, Mr. and Mrs. Presley Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Eldridge Grymes, Mr. and Mrs. William Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Bertie Pigue, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Eller, Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Tripp, and Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Wiseman.

COUNTY HEALTH NURSE WARNS PARENTS ABOUT SCARLET FEVER DANGER

Mrs. Grace Cavender, Fulton county health nurse, this week issued a warning to parents to be alert to the illness of their children. Several cases of scarlet fever are prevalent in the county, appearing in the schools.

When children appear to be ill it will be best to keep them home from school, due to the limited medical facilities available during these times. An epidemic must not be allowed to break out.

LOCAL THEATRES GET CITATION FOR WORK IN "MARCH OF DIMES"

The Fulton and Orpheum theatres, of which Mrs. Harold Thomas is in charge, have received an appropriate citation for work done in the March of Dimes drive. These theatres have collected from liberal patrons the sum of $425.00 for benefit of the infantile paralysis campaign. The Fulton theatre collected $348, while the Orpheum collected $77.

Of the amount subscribed locally, the National Foundation will receive half, while the other half will remain in Kentucky and set aside for cases of this nature.

FARM PRODUCTION UP

Farm production increased 21 percent from 1942 to 1944.

JAP PLANES DESTROYED

During 1944, 10,000 Japanese planes were destroyed by allied forces.

Principal of Cayce School Tells Need For Youth Center

Below appears a letter from A. J. Lowe, principal of the Cayce School, in which he calls attention to the need today of good, wholesome recreation and entertainment for the young people. Everyone knows that the juvenile problem throughout the nation is one that every community is faced with in these times. The youth of the land, will be the leaders of our social, cultural and business life of tomorrow. It is imperative that church and civic leaders of today, see that they are provided with the kind of recreation that young people desire and need so much to mold them into a well-rounded personality.

The Junior Woman's Club of Fulton has been striving toward a Youth Center here for some time. This is as fine a move as can be undertaken today.

But, the youth of many rural communities located in the Fulton territory, are neglected because these various communities individually are unable to provide supervised entertainment centers. It seems that no finer project could be undertaken than to provide a real community-wide youth center in Fulton. It is a task that will tax the efforts of all our religious and civic groups, but one that will pay great dividends in the development of the lives of our young people, and laying of a firm foundation for our community.

The letter herewith sets out very clearly the situation as it exists. Mr. Lowe is a man who has had years of experience with young people, and his school work has drawn him closer to the boys and girls. Therefore, he is close to the youth problem, and speaks with wisdom that only experience can bring. It is sincerely hoped that the parents, and the community groups, will awaken to the pressing need and importance of this problem. How we respond will determine the future of our young people, who are dependent upon the adult leaders for the action taken in the matter.

Cayce, Kentucky

Mr. Paul Bushart, Editor
Fulton County News,
Fulton, Ky.

Dear Paul:
I note with much satisfaction that the members of your Junior Woman's Club are making progress in their efforts to establish a Youth Center in Fulton. They should be commended for their energy and courage in attacking this most worthy undertaking.

I am disappointed that they are not, at this time, able to extend their courtesies to the boys and girls of neighboring schools. I notice they had made a small beginning in a great work, and I am sure they hope to expand.

The way I see it, this problem of providing wholesome recreation and entertainment for our young people is the most pressing of our local problems. The solution concerns the town of Fulton and the community surrounding it. Our boys and girls go to Fulton for their shopping and pleasure. They contribute much of its business life and would appreciate the opportunity of having a greater part in its social and recreational life.

To make the proper provisions for all our young people is too great an undertaking for our small group. It is worthy of the support of every organization, civic and religious, in the entire area. Our country people will respond if they only have the opportunity, because they recognize that they are concerned.

Why can't all our groups—churches, schools, civic and professional clubs—get behind this movement and do something really constructive for our young people?

I think you as a publisher have an opportunity to present this to the public and I believe you will find our people responsive.

Fulton County Tobacco Growers Eligible For Burley Allotments

H. M. Pewitt, Chairman of the Fulton County AAA Committee, stated that all farms who have been growing tobacco of some kind during the last 5 years are eligible for some kind of a Burley tobacco allotment as a new Burley tobacco grower. This farmer however must be living on the farm and largely dependent on this farm for his livelihood, and cannot get an allotment in excess of the smaller of (a) seventy-five percent of the allotment established pursuant to section 5 for old farms which are similar with respect to land, labor or equipment available for the production of tobacco, crop rotation practices, and the soil and other physical factors affecting the production of tobacco, or (b) fifty percent of the cropland in the farm.

Mr. Pewitt further stated that any one that meets the above qualifications, desiring an allotment, must call at the County Office and file an application for an allotment prior to March 1, 1945.

Farm Bureau Calls Attention To Farm Labor Problem

Calling attention to the critical manpower shortage on farms, J. E. Stanford, executive Secretary of the Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation, this week sent a telegram to General Hershey, Selective Service Director, in which he said, "some of the (local) Boards seem to be under the impression that the Tydings Amendment has been repealed or abrogated."

Commenting on the situation, Stanford said, "Taking experienced farm boys, who are doing a real production job on the farm, into the armed forces now might well be the straw to break the camel's back." Copies of the telegrams were sent to Sen. Barkley and Chandler, and to Congressmen A. J. May and Earle Clements. The message read as follows:

"Numerous reports received by this organization indicate that many local Selective Service Boards in Kentucky are reclassifying farmers, farm operators and farm laborers and placing them in 1-A without regard to the Tydings Amendment. We have no desire for any farmer or farm laborer to be kept out of military service who does not fully qualify for deferment under the law or who is not worth more to the nation as a producer than he would be as a soldier. However, the manpower situation on the farm is already very acute due to large numbers of farm boys volunteering for service or taking jobs in war plants, therefore further depletion of the farm labor supply will seriously hamper farm production and probably result in greatly decreased yields this year."

Stanford pointed out that many farm operators required experienced help of a nature that often took years of training to obtain. An example he said it wasn't just anyone who can handle a dairy herd and get maximum production from it. "Just feeding and milking the cows isn't all there is to it," he declared. It is a fact that anyone carrying for a dairy herd must understand cows and be able to get along with them, strange as it may sound to some folks. If an experienced dairy boy is jerked into the armed forces and a green hand put in charge of the herd, in all probability the production will fall off as much as half. With the existing critical shortage of dairy production the country can ill afford to lose even a fraction of the present dairy production. To gamble with it is to invite disaster.

The amazing records of farm production during the past three years has been obtained only as a result of three years of the most favorable weather in the history of the nation. The average weather conditions are far above normal. To expect them to continue is taking a long gamble with heavy odds against us.

The only way to make up in production what is lost by unfavorable weather is to plant more acres. More acres cannot be planted with the present amount of farm labor and machinery available.

LETTERS TO SOLDIERS

Letters from the home folks to the soldiers should not contain an excess of sentiment, says a high army authority. He remarks that the letter should not contain such remarks as "I can't get along without you," or "When will you get home." Many soldiers worry about home conditions, and the letter should not set his mind going on that line.

The best letters to the service men are hopeful and cheerful. They tell funny incidents about the home town. The little doings of daily life, figuring on ration points, selling things to some customer, sound interesting when you are half across the world. They bring back the home scene, and the home picture seems nearer when its ordinary activities and interests are described.

Clippings from the home town paper go over big. Assurances of affection comfort him. The writing of frequent letters is the best proof that that feeling is as warm and vivid as ever.

SOCIAL SECURITY
"TAKE" TOO BIG

By GEORGE PECK

President Roosevelt, in signing the bill "freezing" Social Security taxes for 1945 at one per cent on both employers and employees, is reported to have done so reluctantly.

Now that Social Security statistics for 1944 are available, one wonders why the reluctance. They disclose that benefits paid out to some 1,200,000 persons during that year aggregated $2,352,096,000, while as of December 31, 1944, the reserve was in excess of six billion dollars. From these figures it can readily be deduced that at the present rate of disbursements, a reserve has been piled up sufficient to meet all demands upon the fund for two and half years, without any additional monies being paid in. And this reserve, mind you, was accumulated at a one per cent assessment on employers and employees.

Surely the Congress acted wisely in overwhelmingly declaring against the Social Security taxes being doubled this year. The present rate is furnishing an amount far in excess of what is required. In view of this, why the insistence on the part of Secretary Morgenthau, the President and others that the rate be increased?

The argument that there should be a huge reserve to take care of any possible emergency, cannot be advanced, because this supposed six billion dollar reserve is not now in the Social Security Fund, nor would any additional reserve due to increase in assessments go into that fund to stay.

Resting in the Social Security strong-box are bonds—representing money loaned to the United States Government. The fund has no alternative but to loan its surplus to Uncle Sam. It would be silly and dangerous to keep it in currency.

Thus a large part of these Social Security deductions from the pay envelopes of workers and payments from employers simply finds its way speedily into the general public till and is treated and spent as ordinary tax revenue for every other purpose but for the one for which it supposedly was collected. If this is not chicanery and fraud, what is?

However, the worst thing about this whole Social Security business is that when Uncle Sam is called upon to redeem these bonds he has put in the Social Security strong-box, he will have to resort to his one and only method of raising money, which is by taxing his nieces and nephews. This will mean that government will be collecting second time to pay a bill previously paid by the taxpayers.

It is quite evident that every penny that goes into the Social Security Fund, in excess of the pay-out therefrom, is irrevocably lost to the fund, and must be paid in a second time. The conclusion to be arrived at from this is that Congress is "freezing" the Social Security "take" at one per cent from employers and employees, went only half way—it should have reduced the rate.

It is hoped that this session of Congress will make a thorough investigation and study of the entire Social Security structure and its administration. We now pay our income taxes as we go—why not put Social Security taxes on the same basis by fixing the rate at somewhere near the "pay-out." That would be the fair and honest way to do it.

OUR OPINIONATED AGE

The Congress of the United States is debating all the problems of the present and future that relate to the war. The discussions have reached the point where "freedom of speech" is almost unrestrained. There is no reason to expect—or to wish—533 representatives in the two branches of Congress to restrain themselves from giving their opinions about these vital questions. Senator Connally suggested "muzzling" debate, Senator Vandenberg took the opposite view, and blew the lid off in a recent speech that was lauded by Democratic and Republican members of the Senate. Congress is the People's Forum—it should represent all sides of all questions.

The main immediate questions involve the differences of opinion of national leaders. One group wants to prevent discussions until after the war. Another group takes the opposite view and says that the policies of the United States should be thoroughly clarified as early as possible in order to avoid repetition of the future to insure peace, after World War I. International affairs are confusing and the greatest service that any civilian can do is to take advantage of the privilege to form individual conclusions. The only way to do that, is to read, and read, and read, and KNOW what it is all about.

ARTICLES OF FAITH

Supporting the contention that every American citizen, looking ahead to days after the war, should be ready and willing, through education, experience and work, to make a social contribution in proportion to any social reward he expects to receive, C. E. Wilson, president of General Motors, recently voiced what he termed "simple articles of faith."

He recited these at the conclusion of a brief talk to the National Association of Manufacturers. They will bear repeating. Here they are: Faith in America and America's future—a future of expanding, useful productivity and even higher standards of living.

Faith in the principle that there can be no rights without responsibilities, no privileges to enjoy without duties to perform.

Faith in work as the forerunner of reward—in incentive as the kindling spark of productive energy, in opportunity to serve a need, as the first requirements to provide a job.

Faith in the American way of doing things by which each person, each organization, each industry, each business must take its place—and be granted that place, according to ability and capacity—in one great, coordinated, inter-gear system of living, working and contributing to the national welfare.

Faith in America's progressive instinct and in the things which serve it—science, research, engineering, technical knowledge and skill.

Faith in the rights of great and small alike—and in the importance of each to free, peaceful and productive nation.

HOW ABOUT RATIONING?

The Administration in Washington constantly tightens its grip on food, fuel, manpower and all civilian necessities, systems and conditions. You might just as well make up your mind that there will be no relaxations of these policies until firing ceases on the battle-fronts.

PIG PRODUCTION DOWN

Florida produced 960,000 pigs in 1944, an 11 percent decrease from 1943 when 1,075,000 were produced.

THE AMERICAN WAY

WILL AMERICA GO LEFTIST?

By Dr. Norman Vincent Peale

Already the pattern of postwar society begins to appear, and it has disquieting factors. The liberation of formerly occupied countries is being accompanied by clear indications that Europe may go leftist.

In Italy a vast crowd of 100,000 people, bearing Communist banners, gathered in the ruins of ancient Rome. They wildly cheered the assertion, "We are now Italy's ruling class." In Greece, Left-Wing forces were put down by British intervention. The Churchill government wants orderly decision by all the Greeks, but that decision, observers believe, will support the Communists. In Belgium, great throngs marched on the Chamber of Deputies demanding the fall of the conservative government. The Allies frustrated that. England itself is said by many intelligent observers to be swinging definitely toward a much modified capitalist economy. Canada has startled the world by the advanced policy of socialization voted in two of its provinces. France has moved toward the condemnation and socialization of heavy industries, notably coal and iron.

In a world so closely inter-related, can the United States remain immune to these strong tendencies? It is obvious that while Fascism is being beaten, an aggressive Communism is arising. The latter may accomplish by ideological conquest what Fascism failed to do by force of arms.

Thoughtful men do not want the world to go Communist any more than they wanted Fascism to prevail. Both are totalitarian and anti-spiritual; incompatible with democracy; inimical to the rights of man. Both lead to the crushing of civil liberties, free speech and free press. Both would destroy labor unionism and free enterprise. Both are hostile to religion. In short, we face the dilemma of jumping from the frying pan of Fascism into the fire of Communism.

What is the solution? Fortunately, we have an historical situation sufficiently parallel to point the answer. The French Revolution violently agitated the social life of every European country. The fires of revolution, flaring high, cast their lurid glow across the Channel and English life was deeply disturbed. Edmund Burke, one of England's greatest orators, beheld France going up in flames; everything that civilization had developed over long centuries, being destroyed. He hated the Revolution and he mustered every opposition against it; he fought it with every weapon at his disposal.

But there was another Englishman, John Wesley, who had a wiser method. He was a great preacher. He went up and down England preaching with so much power that he started a revival of religion, of which the historian Green said: "More was accomplished by the preaching of Wesley than all the victories won on land or sea by the Elder Pitt."

This religious revival saved England from the violence of revolution. It changed men so that they no longer were dissipated but hard working and frugal, saving their money and putting it back into business and so becoming owners and employers. It stimulated education; it struck the shackles from men's minds and encouraged science which resulted in invention, thus starting the development of wealth in history. It taught that no re-spreading of existing wealth can equal the development of new wealth. It set in force those social ideals which are now ready for thorough application, by which all men may share more fully in this wealth. So, in the final analysis, the answer to America's present problem boils down to the simple, practical fact that more real religion is the antidote to materialistic collectivism. A genuine revival of religion faith will prevent this country going "leftist."

TIDBITS

SADDLEBAGS DOCTOR—1

Dr. Hertzler, in Horse and Buggy Doctor, has immortalized the next generation of doctors after the time of my father. Dr. Hertzler was young enough to bridge the gap from the pioneer type to the most modern physician. But Father barely graduated into the buggy, and that in summer only, not long before his death, in 1915. Up until then he rode horseback, carrying his medicines in a pair of saddlebags. Two of his numerous horses bore him more than half of his journeys in his forty-four years of practice. One was his standby for nineteen years, the other for eight or ten. Rather oddly, they were so much alike that some people thought that the same old horse had carried Father from 1870 until the end of his career. Both these horses and others that he rode resented being kept up and soon learned to slip the bridle, often leaving Father miles from home without a way back. A specially designed hitch rope solved the problem usually, but neither old horse ever gave up trying to get loose. When business was dull, the old horse would get restless in his stable and would greatly enjoy a race to the spring and back, with me prodding him and expecting every minute to break my neck. When roads were good enough, Father drove our gentle old family mare, for she was safer than the bad-boy old yellow.

Father was, like all doctors of his time, a man-of-all-work in the neighborhood. He performed simple operations, he set broken bones, he sewed up cuts from broadaxes and knives, he pulled teeth, and he acted as general veterinarian for the stock all around us. Dentistry in those days was heroic, since there were no drugs used to deaden pain. Father seated the victim in a chair, swabbed the gums with a wad of cotton dipped in pure alcohol, cautioned the patient to grip the rounds of the chair, and then started the tug of war. Sometimes it assumed just that nature, for the patient would let go his hold on the rounds of the chair and wrestle with the doctor; but always the doctor won, and the patient sheepishly looked at the late offending tooth, probably wondering how such a small thing could produce so much pain. After bleeding ceased to be a remedy for human beings, Father kept his instruments and used them on horses and mules afflicted with "blind staggers." The neighbors that that being a doctor qualified one for anything medical or surgical, on man or beast.

Financially he was below par, for he did not know how to collect money that he had so laboriously earned. There was little money, anyway particularly in his early days, what with the Civil War and its attendant financial disasters. People often thought that doctors and preachers worked only for the good that they could do and needed little money to tide them over to the hereafter, where abundant rewards would be waiting. Bills were paid in all sorts of ways. Most of the Negroes had to work out their debts; they washed clothes, helped in house-cleaning, chopped wood, worked in the fields. Once Father accepted thirty acres of fair farm land on a big debt. At another time he took in on a debt a whole set of blacksmith's tools and thus gave one of my brother's a chance to become a pretty good mechanic. A chest made of wild cherry, a rocking chair minus one rocker, wagonloads of corn or hay, a tobacco crop—these are a few of the things I can recall his receiving in lieu of money. One widow, whose husband lingered half dead for years and was a constant patient of Father's, asked that she and her daughters might quilt for us; they actually finished seven quilts, some of which became mine when I got married and set up a home of my own. I have often wondered whether Father might have done better financially if he had settled in some more promising locality.

SILO SIMPKINS SAYS

Forming war work is another way of arming for war.

With farm records, the leaks in the business will show up at the show down.

More pertinent than ever is the old proverb: "Eat it up, wear it out, make it do."

One way to make the most of labor during the busy season is to do all non-seasonable jobs possible at "slack" times.

A shortage of eggs is in prospect for next fall. To have pullets in production by then, start healthy baby chicks now.

It's time to get out the seed catalog and figure out your seed order. Also get our fertilizer, if you haven't already done so.

It costs only a few cents to rid cows of grubs and lice but the unthrifty condition resulting from failure to do so may cut milk returns by many dollars.

It's interesting to try a new varieties and novel vegetables in your garden each season, but to be assured of a full table with some to store, better stick largely to "old reliable" kinds.

The War Food Administration has issued an urgent appeal for 11 percent more spring pigs than reports indicate. About the only way to meet this goal now is to raise a larger proportion of the spring farrow through extra care and feeding.

SAFETYGRAMS

Heads up, Mr. Pedestrian. Before you step off the street curb, stop—look—listen.

The signal at the street corner may be set in your favor, but in just a second it might change. The dangerous steps for the pedestrian are the first few that he takes away from the curb.

Thousands of pedestrians walk diagonally across the street at intersections, and insist upon walking from behind parked cars in the middle of the block.

Take those few extra few minutes, walk to the intersection—stop, look, and listen before you cross—those extra minutes may mean additional years of life to you.

RECIPES FOR SUCCESS

Hard work. It is the best investment one can make.

Study. Knowledge enables anyone to work more intelligently and effectively.

Victory Homemakers

Mrs. John Dawes and Mrs. Cecil Burnette brought to the Victory Homemakers a wonderful demonstration lesson on Kitchen Short Cuts at their January meeting with Mrs. Reginald Williamson. Special emphasis was stressed on plans whereby homemakers may find a way to do more and better work with less effort and in a shorter time. Each homemaker must set up her own pattern of housekeeping, changing times means change of pattern and the pattern should fit the present basic aims.

There were eight important questions we may ask ourselves concerning what is a better and easier way to do some piece of work. The leaders gave a few helpful methods for improving our way of dusting, making biscuits, etc., whereby we can save both time and energy. Miss Hwoard, our agent, showed a very interesting miniature kitchen cabinet which was equipped with half shelves and door shelves. That would add an extra amount of storage space when applied to our own cabinets.

Mrs. Herman Roberts gave an interesting discussion on the winter care of house plants. Twelve members and seven visitors, Mesdames Carl Williamson, J. T. Powell, Eugene Bondurant, Billy Pat Sheehan, LeRoy Latta, Donald Mabry, and Raymond Brown were present. Mrs. Eugene Bondurant added her name to our membership list. In the afternoon Mrs. Ernest Carver, the recreation leader, conducted an interesting contest of which Mrs. Reginald Williamson was swinner and as her prize she received many lovely and useful gifts from all those present.

The club adjourned to have a Tea for the Farm and Home Week. Delegate, Mrs. Roy Carver at the home of Mrs. Ernest Carver on Feb. 6. The next regular monthly meeting will be with Mrs. Herman Roberts on Feb. 20 at 10:30.

MOTHER'S BIRTHDAY PRESENT

It was our birthday. Mother up there on high. When Dad came then to join you forever in the sky.

He was the only present, God could give to you. You're happy there together, I know this to be true.

I miss you, Dad, since you went away. To spend you vacation, but decided to stay.

I know Mother smiled kindly up on your lonely face. She had waited long for you to take your place.

The home is very lonely as time passes on. It's so hard to realize, you're forever gone.

We spent many hours together talking of your friends.

Those who gave you comfort up until the end. I appreciate your little thanks you gave me, my Dad.

No better words of praise could I've ever had.

For the many little things I did for you each day.

Will give me lots of comfort along life's troubled way.

I dream of you, Dad, since you left me here.

But in my heart I know there's no cause for tears.

I did my very best to love and care for you.

Believe me when I say, it was the best I could do.

I remember Mother's words before she went away.

Take care of your Dad, I'm trusting you each day.

I hope if she were watching as life's moments fairly flew.

She smiled very pleased up there in the blue.

I know you blessed and loved me every passing day.

For you never ceased to tell me with every word you'd say.

I know you'll never read this upon that Golden Shore.

Where you sit with Mother behind God's castle door.

God bless you, Dad, is my last wish for you.

You walked the Christian pathway, I know to be true.

Some day I hope to join you upon the Golden Street.

Where we will kneel together at Jesus kindly feet.

You're eyes will see again upon the Golden Stairs.

As you receive the healing of Jesus loving care.

No more will you be lonely up in that Heavenly place.

For Mother is beside you with her patient smiling face.

As you sit at the Lord's great table up there in the blue.

Pretend its a birthday party given for Mother and you.

A toast to two fine people, no better could be had.

May my life be a monument to my Mother and Dad.

Cayce Homemakers

The Cayce Homemakers met in an all day meeting at the home of Mrs. Guy Johnson with Mrs. Daisy Bondurant cohostess on January 24 with twelve members and seven visitors present.

Kitchen short-cuts was the major project lesson given by the leaders, Mrs. Lyle Shuck and Miss Alice Sowell. The lesson they gave was to help homemakers find a way to do more and better work with less effort and in a shorter time. Each homemaker must set up her own pattern of house keeping, changing times mean change of pattern. The prewar standard is out of date. Several members gave demonstrations showing different methods of work.

Mrs. J. B. McGehee gave an interesting article on house plants, care and management.

For recreation a song and game was conducted by Mrs. Dick Polsgrove.

The next meeting will be Feb. 28 with Mrs. Walter Mayes.

THE GARDEN LETS START

By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics

The 1945 garden season is in the offing, to be upon us before we know it. Those gardeners who are known for their luck in always having good gardens have already begun to plan, so that when the weather comes, they can become "activated in all fronts," as the military might say it.

It goes without saying that everybody who can should have a garden. It's patriotic, as home-grown vegetables save just that many for the armed forces and for the war material producers, who must depend on commercially raised vegetables. The job the professional vegetable men have will be no easier this year than last; in fact, quite possibly, on the contrary. That industry is definitely short-manned and may become more so.

Growing one's own vegetables is smart; it eases the budget. Or, put another way, a home gardener may earn wages quite comparable with those of an airplane riveter. Even at pre-war prices, this was true. It's also smart with respect to canned vegetables, as to prices and ration points, and perhaps as to the supply there may be next winter. It's smart, as regards quality. Casting no aspersions, shopworn vegetables may lack the savor of the garden fresh product. It's smart, all ways, to have a garden.

However the matter needs to be approached with circumspection. There should not again be the hysteria that drove Victory gardeners in 1943, and again, but less last year. Then, it was learned that the land must be fit, or capable of being made so with the right fertilizer. It was learned that pests need to be fought, and that there should be at least a lend-lease arrangement whereby proper equipment could be had.

On the other hand, it was learned, too, that with the county extension agents or here at Lexington, lies a store of information needing only to be tapped, that would make the garden a going concern. That information is still on tap, to make all 1945's gardens successful. To that end, too, this column aspires to lend all its aid, in the 29 weekly stories that are to follow.

Wright Lost 50 Lbs. Regains 40 On Retonga

Enjoys Three Big Meals And Does A Full Days Work Every Day Now, He States. Pains In Arms And Legs Also Relieved.

"Nervous indigestion pulled me down from 205 to only 155 pounds, but thanks to Retonga I now eat anything and I am back to 195 pounds," gratefully declares Mr. G.

MRS. G. L. WRIGHT

L. Wright, well known resident of Route 2, Soddy, Tenn.

"At one time I lived on a diet of one tablespoon of oatmeal and one glass of milk every two hours," continued Mr. Wright. "Sometimes I felt sore all over, and my ankles felt so sore in the mornings I could not walk for about an hour. My arms often were so painful I could hardly raise them and the slightest pressure on my legs was painful. Even a glass of sweet milk would make my stomach swell with gas. I had to use powerful purgatives, my nerves were on edge, and I could hardly walk around the house."

"Finally a friend got me to try Retonga and the relief it gave me was astonishing. I began eating solid food again, all the soreness and pain in my muscles has been relieved and so has the constipation. I sleep fine, and I do a full days work every day. Retonga is a world beater."

Retonga is intended to relieve distress due to Vitamin B-1 deficiency, constipation, insufficient flow of digestive juices in the stomach, and loss of appetite. Accept no substitute. Retonga may be obtained at DeMyer Drug Company.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

BY HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D.
Of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for February 4

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts are selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education, used by permission.

JESUS' CONCERN FOR ALL

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 9:1, 9:12, 12:12
GOLDEN TEXT—Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them: for this is the law and the prophets.—Matthew 7:12

What is a man worth? Well, say we, that depends, and then we are prone to undervalue him. Jesus had (and taught) a high regard for the inherent value of man. He saw possibilities in all men. He had a love for them. He was concerned about their welfare, and they responded by an interest in Him.

Jesus showed by His dealings with men how wrong are most of the standards and attitudes of the world. With Him there were:

I. No Social Barrier (vv. 1, 9, 10). The caste system of some lands, dividing people into social strata which separate men and hinder fellowship, does not exist in our land. Yet, in practice, we have such levels which are a formidable barrier in the thinking of many (perhaps most) people.

Jesus knew nothing of social barriers. He ignored them and went straight to the one in need. In our lesson it was a man of position and wealth who was an outcast among his people because he was a hated gatherer of taxes for Rome. Jesus saw in him a man of faith and a useful witness for Him. And He not only talked with him, but called him to be His disciple. Then He went further and, to the astonishment of His critics, went in to a great feast where many such men were gathered.

He ate with publicans and sinners, not because He approved of their manner of life, but because He wanted to change it as He changed them.

II. No Fear of Criticism (vv. 11-12). Many a kind and noble impulse has died a-borning because of the fear of criticism. "What will people say?" has kept many a Christian from speaking to some sinner about his (or her) soul.

"The world is too much with us," and we all too often guide our lives and service by the possible reaction we may receive from those around about us. We did not learn such an attitude from Jesus.

His answer to His critics made it clear that there will be no self-righteous, "good enough" people in heaven. The Lord is not even calling them, so long as they trust in their own goodness. He came to seek and to save sinners (v. 13, and Luke 19:10).

We, too, may go forward without fear of our critics. That doesn't mean that we "don't care what people think" about us. We ought to care, but if their opinion is based on unbelief and self-righteousness, it should certainly not deter us from our all-important business of soul-winning.

III. No Limitation of Time and Place (vv. 13-12). Often the help of man to those in need is circumscribed by so many regulations that those who most deserve help cannot get it. There are times and places for application forms, and tests must be completed, etc. Doubtless much of this is needed, but one wonders at times whether our charitable impulses have not disappeared under a mountain of red tape.

Be that as it may, how interesting it is to see that Jesus met the need when and where it appeared. He was already on one errand of mercy when the sick woman touched His robe. He was not too busy nor too preoccupied to stop and give her a word of help and comfort (v. 22).

Is there not a significant lesson here for us in the church? The need is reason enough for the extension of our help. The place is anywhere that men are in sadness or sorrow, and the hour is now—when they need our help.

IV. No Lack of Power (vv. 23-26). How often the human heart is prompted to help, and willing hands are ready to follow its promptings in loving action, yet we find that we cannot do anything. The need is too great for our meager resources. Our strength does not suffice. We have no money, or the situation is one beyond human help.

How wonderful it is then to remember the Lord Jesus! A touch on the hem of His garment in faith made the woman whole (v. 22). A word from Him brought the dead little girl out to face the scornful of Jesus, in the bloom of life and health.

Has He lost any of His great power? No. He is just "the same yesterday, and today, and forever" (Heb. 13:8). Why not trust Him?

Do you need help—spiritual, mental, physical? He is able. He has no prejudice regarding your social position. He will meet you right where you are, and right now. He is seeking the sick and the sinful—"the lost, the last, and the least." Look to Him by faith.

The great Physician now is near. The anointing Jesus. He speaks: "The sleeping heart is alive; O hear the voice of Jesus!"

1945 AAA PROGRAM EMPHASIZES WAR NEEDS AND CONSERVATION

Payments Again Offered For Applying Lime and Fertilizers, Seeding Cover Crops, Erosion Control, Forestry Improvement

The 1945 Agricultural Conservation Program to help farmers continue record production for the war effort and put into effect long-range conservation practices emphasizes the need for soil-building and erosion-control in 1945 and for many years to come.

Preliminary reports show that farmers carried out a record volume needed conservation practices in 1944, according to N. E. Dodd, chief of the AAA. Despite these efforts, the expansion and intensification of production required to fill war needs is sure to leave our soil worse off than when the war began if we do not take steps to restore its lost productivity, he said.

Practices involving lime, phosphate, and other fertilizers, have been given special emphasis in the 1945 program. Application of limestone and phosphate on farm land has increased seven-fold in the past seven years. Crop yields have doubled on many acres where limestone and phosphate have been applied over a period of years.

Forestry practices, temporarily dropped by the AAA last year, have been re-instated in order to encourage farmers to maintain and improve tree stands and to construct firebreaks.

Payments under the 1945 AAA program will be offered for these general types of practices: (1) Application of lime, fertilizers, and other materials to crops; (2) planting of cover crops; (3) harvesting of legume and grass seed; (4) erosion control of water conservation; (5) range and pasture improvement; (6) forestry; (7) other practices such as noxious weed control of renovation of perennial legumes and grasses.

LABOR SAVERS ARE SUGGESTED FOR FARMERS

Faced with a still further reduction in farm labor due to recent orders to selective service boards to extend no further, deferments to boys between 18 and 26 for farm work, farmers will have to make every day count, caution Extension farm management specialists.

Based on the experience of successful farmers in coping with previous labor shortages, the farm management experts make the following suggestions:

1. Use winter days to make repairs on machinery, fences, buildings, roads, drains, terraces, watering facilities, pipes, etc.
2. Check up on supplies seeds, fertilizers, lime and repair parts to be needed in spring and summer and make arrangements for securing them.
3. Cut stalks, haul lime, and do other non-seasonal jobs in order to be free for seasonal jobs in spring and summer.
4. Break land before rush season starts.
5. Apply lime and phosphate to pastures.
6. Remove stumps, rocks, sprouts, etc., from productive land.
7. Get equipment ready for early chicks, pigs, lambs.
8. Prepare hot beds, cold frames, etc., for early plants.
9. Breed milk cows for fall freshening so that more of the milking can be done next winter.
10. Study the possibility of some changes in fences, watering places, lanes, feeding places, feed storage places, etc., to save labor as well as labor saving devices such as self-locking gates, hay feeding racks, silage carts, feed carts, etc.
11. Study the various possibilities for saving labor during the coming year and make farm plans accordingly. Then work toward the plans.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Ways to stretch sugar seem to be of considerable importance to homemakers. For some it will mean cutting down on sweets, which nutritionists say are not too healthful anyway. For all it perhaps means more careful meal planning. Food specialists at the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics offer these point stretchers:

1. Use cane syrup, honey, sorghum and molasses whenever possible.
2. Use dried fruits frequently as they require little sweetening.
3. Serve cooked fruits hot to enjoy their fullest flavor and sweetness.
4. Use prepared puddings which require no further sweetening.
5. Add a pinch of salt to fruits to bring out their natural sweetness.
6. Serve cereals with honey, syrup, or dried fruits for variety.
7. Save syrup from canned fruits for pudding sauces.
8. Serve fruit cup and fruit gelatin desserts which require little or no sugar.
9. Be sure all sugar is dissolved to get its full sweetness.
10. Use recipes which call for a substitute for sugar as the one which follows:

Baked Indian Pudding

- 1 quart of milk
 - 1-2 cup yellow cornmeal
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 1-2 cup molasses, sorghum or cane syrup.
 - 1-2 to 1 teaspoon ginger
 - 1 tablespoon butter or margarine.
- Scald three cups of milk in the top of a double boiler. Combine cornmeal, molasses, salt, ginger and remaining cold milk. Stir into hot milk and cook over hot water until thick, about 15 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and add butter or margarine. Pour into a greased baking dish. Bake in a slow oven, 300 degrees, for about 2 hours, stirring once or twice. One cup of raisins or any dried fruit may be added if desired just before baking.

Menu: Spare ribs and sauerkraut, baked sweet potatoes, carrot sticks, muffins and butter, and baked Indian pudding.

THEY STARTED IT! LET'S FINISH IT!

Perpetrators of fiendish and unwarranted attack, the Japanese nation must be made to pay dearly for their brutality. They started this war—and we're going to finish it in such a way that the flag of the rising sun will never rise again in uncivilized aggression. Each one of us wants this war to be over with—but wanting isn't enough! We've got to see to it that it's over with soon, by buying An Extra $100 War Bond without delay!

In our gratefulness for the progress of the war in Europe, we must not forget the terrifically costly war waging in the Pacific. Moving supplies up there is far more difficult and expensive than it is to get them to the European theatres. That's why we must "fight" all the harder from now until our War Bond purchases have made possible clinching the final Victory and returning every live war hero home!

It is vitally important that we continue to buy War Bonds regularly—not just when we have on a special drive. For here on the home front never-ending support must be given to the boys engaged against the enemies on foreign battlefields. We owe it to them, ourselves and our country, to never let up until the final victory is won, and peace reigns again everywhere.

HARRY J. WILLIAMS GETS BRONZE STAR MEDAL

With the 133d Division of the Seventh Army in France—S. Sgt. Harry J. Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Almous Williams of Fulton, Ky., has been awarded the Bronze Star Medal for meritorious achievement against the enemy while serving with the 133d Infantry Division in France.

It was on November 12 and 13, 1944, in the vicinity of Richardville, France, that Sergeant Williams performed duties in connection with military operations for which he was cited and decorated.

"On his own initiative," the citation reads, "He went forward to reconnoiter an outpost in the town. He successfully accomplished this mission within 200 yards of the enemy. He acquired valuable overlays and maps of the enemy while on this mission. In this forward position he spotted an enemy mortar position and with skillful observation directed artillery fire against the enemy stronghold.

"Because of his devotion to duty an important enemy observation post was located later and artillery fire was directed against this position, destroying the observation post. Because of Sergeant Williams' untiring efforts in the face of enemy positions, our troops were able to advance and take their objective with a minimum number of casualties."

Sergeant Williams, who serves with F Company of the 490th Infantry Regiment, was employed by the Fisher Body Corp. of Detroit, Mich., before entering service November 24, 1942. He received basic Army training at Camp Claiborne, La., and has been overseas since October 6, 1944.

Sergeant Williams graduated from high school at Weekly, Tenn., in 1938. His wife, Mrs. Lillian O. Williams, resides at 118 Oak-st., in Fulton.

PAUL HUGHES . . . City Editor of The Louisville Times, is a newspaper veteran to whom the "Fourth Estate" is a family affair . . . his three children following in his literary footsteps. Born in Adair County, Paul is a graduate of Centre College, and of the University of Missouri's School of Journalism. Last summer he completed eight months' study of postwar problems at Harvard under a coveted Nieman Fellowship award.

Before joining us seventeen years ago, Hughes worked on two St. Louis papers, served the United Press in Chicago and New York, returned to Kentucky by way of Ashland, where he edited the Ashland Independent four years. In 1943 Paul was loaned to the U. S. Treasury Department to assist with the 3rd War Loan campaign in Washington. With all this, he has found time to teach journalism evening classes at the University of Louisville, serves on the Mayor's inter-racial commission, works consistently for consolidation of city-county governments.

The elder of Hughes' sons, formerly with Associated Press in New York, is now a T/5 with the 7th Army now in France. Another son is editor of Cento, Cento College newspaper, and his daughter is with an advertising agency in New York. The Hughes home is a 134-year-old one-time farm house, built when Louisville's population numbered 1,300. Its furnishings were collected by antique-hobbyist Mrs. Hughes.
