FEARED ENMIES.

New York, Aug. 17.—[Special Dispatches]—The General Tilden and his wife have arrived at the huge mansion on Fifth avenue, and as they passed through the gate of the estate, the windows of the mansion opened, and the women exchanged hurried greetings and invitations for the coming season. The mansion is situated on the corner of Fifth and Nineteenth streets, and is one of the most imposing houses in the city. It is a five-story building, with a tower in the center, and has been decorated with costly materials. The interior is beautifully furnished, with rich carpets and imported oriental rugs. The grounds are extensive, with a Tennis court and a bowling green. The total cost of the mansion is estimated at $500,000.
