THE BENTON TRIBUNE.

VOL. IV.

BENTON, KY., THURSDAY, JANUARY 14, 1892.

NO. 11.

Uneasy lies the head that uses money-bags for pillows. Cranks are after Sage's money, Vanderhilt's brains and Childs' life. This sort of thing is getting common as the grip. Why don't the millionaires build enough asylums to hold all the lunatics?

Congressman Goodnight, of Kentucky, has introduced into congress a bill to place salt upon the free list. This will be a great blessing to the people, and should it be done the people will rise up and call him blessed. It will come as near immortalizing him as putting quinine on the free list did James McKenzie.

Neither Cleveland nor Hill should be nominated as the standard-bearer of the national democracy for the year 1892. They cannot unite the party like some new man of whom the people do not know so well. Nominate a new man in the east and a new one in the west. A ticket of this complexion will win.

There are more than 15,000 marriages in Chicago each year; but in Chicago a man marries two or three times in twelve months. It is very easy to make matrimonial statistics grow in that windy city. It has been said by a man who had six living wives, that no city could prosper and grow in population without conservative divorce laws.

The election of Hon. W. M. Moore to the speakership of the general assembly of Kentucky was a victory for the straight and untrampled democracy. He is a clean, untarnished democrat, free from the dirt of city politics, and knows nothing but to stand by his friends and use his power and influence for the good of people as an entirety. He is a better man than Harvey Meyers and is free from the power of Louisville and Covington.

S. L. Kash, a strong advocate of Peoples' party principles, especially "free coinage," some time ago saw that the prospects for favorable legislation on that subject were very slim, and at once sought out and perfected a plan, whereby he can furnish his own home with "Kash." The scheme is working nicely, and if not providentially hindered will continue from generation to generation. A specimen of the first products was placed on exhibition last week, and, like most all American white coins, it wears a beautiful female countenance.

The County Democratic Committee

The chairman of the county democratic committee should call all the members of the committee together on or about the first Monday in February to look after the interest of the party in this county, and take such steps as are necessary to bring about a more perfect organization. Now is the time to begin this work, in order to give the candidates and the people plenty of time to see and know each other before the convention or primary election.

Only two county officers will be to elect this year, the sheriff and circuit court clerk, and it is the duty of the democratic county committee to, at the proper time, call a primary election or an old time mass convention and nominate candidates and let them go before the voters of the county in time. Much more satisfaction would be given to the people if the committee will meet early and make the call and set the time late enough in the summer so as to let the candidates have plenty of time to go before the people.

There can be no party success without party organization, and it has been often and clearly demonstrated that the better the party is organized the surer will be its success. The committee should be called together in Feb. and wait until in March and ascertain from the people the time the primary election or convention should be held and then issue the call. Such a convention or primary election should be held in July or August, say the first Monday in August, as the people are used to voting on that day. That will give the candidates plenty of time to canvass the county, and familiarize themselves with the county.

We hope the committee will take the proper steps in this matter and take them in time, so as to give satisfaction to the party. We presume it is the intention of the democratic candidates for these offices to submit their chances to the action of the party, if not they will have plenty of time to fight the organization before the election in November. With the strength of the party in this county, it will be next to impossible to defeat the nominees, if the committee will only make its work regular and in order, which we believe it will do.

Pronounced Hopeless, Yet Saved

From letter written by Mrs. Aila E. Hurd, of Groton, S. D., we quote: "Was taken with a bad cold, which settled on my lungs, cough set in and finally terminated in consumption. Four doctors gave me up, saying I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Saviour, determined if I could not stay with friends on earth, I would meet my absent ones above. My husband was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds. I gave it a trial, took in all, eight bottles; it has cured me, and thank God I am now a well and hearty woman." Trial bottles free at J. R. Lemon's drugstore, regular size 50c, and $1.00.

Ready to Begin the Fight.

The democratic party is now getting ready to begin the greatest tariff fight ever made in this country since the formation of the "American System." The enemies of tariff reform have been at work for the past two years, trying to get the democratic party to consider the tariff as only of minor importance, but as the time draws near, the greater their failure. The republicans would be very glad to find the democrats weakening on the importance of a tariff reduction, but they need not expect to witness such a change during the approaching campaign, for tariff reform will be the battle-cry. The silver question has been agitated by straying democrats in some sections of the country during the past year, but that question will be named as it should be and placed where it properly belongs in the next platform of the democratic national convention. The leaders of the third party people have been anxious all the time that the democrats should step aside from the main issue and advocate a measure that would weaken it, but this will not be done. There will be four parties in the field this year, and each one will have a platform with separate and distinct principles to bring before the country, and there is no use at this late day to attempt to try to confuse the voters belonging to the democratic party. The great principles of that party are too well known and too much loved for the people to forsake them at a time when victory is almost in sight and run off after new schemes. The party was never better prepared to go before the country than now. It is now stronger and better organized in New York and Indiana than ever before. If it will place before the country a platform strongly against the tariff tax and in favor of tariff reform with a silver plank of sufficient strength to please and suit the people. The Hill idea will not suit the reform element of the country, but the people are determined to rebuke the disgraceful extravagance of the republican congress that ended its career last session.

TO DISPEL COLDS,

Headaches and Fevers, to cleanse the system effectually, yet gently, when costive or bilious, or when the blood is impure or sluggish, to permanently cure habitual constipation, to awaken the kidneys and liver to a healthy activity, without irritating or weakening them, use Syrup of Figs.

S. B. Duffey, mate of steamer Arizona, had his foot badly jammed. Thomas' Electric Oil cured it. Nothing equal to it for a quick pain reliever.

JUDGE LINDSAY.

His Appointment As Interstate Commerce Commissioner.

It Is Received With General Satisfaction at Washington

AND ALL OVER THE COUNTRY.

This was an excellent appointment and will give general satisfaction to everybody, especially to his host of friends in Kentucky. As it will be of interest to our readers, we clip the following from the Courier-Journal.

No lawyer in the state perhaps is more widely known or his abilities more generally recognized than Judge Lindsay. Born in Lockbridge county, Virginia, September 4, 1835, he stands to-day as great in the estimation of the bench and bar of Kentucky as he does in statute, which is six feet two inches, developed into 245 pounds in weight. His face, as his picture presents, is round and smooth-shaven. His eyes are brown and usually in a merry twinkle, his mouth and nose large, but proportioned to this massive face and appearance.

Though in his fifty-seventh year, he has a full suit of hair, which is not yet white, but beginning to assume the silvery tinge.

Judge Lindsay removed to Kentucky in 1854, and located in Hickman county. He studied law under Judge (afterward congressman) Ed Crossland, and began the practice in 1858. In 1861 he entered the Confederate army and engaged in numerous battles and served until the close of the war, when he returned to his home in Hickman county and resumed the practice of law. In 1867 he was elected state senator from the counties of Hickman, Fulton and graves and served three of the terms of four years, when he was elected by the people of his district to the position of Judge of the Court of Appeals. He served on the Appellate bench for the term of eight years and during this period, as customary under the law, was chief justice of the state for the last two years of his term. During his services appellate judge he wrote many opinions of great local importance and interest, and a number of which attracted attention throughout the country.

After Judge Lindsay retired from the bench, in 1878, he settled permanently in Frankfort, and entered upon the practice of law in the court of appeals and federal courts of the state, as well as in a select number of cases in the circuit or fiscal state court in this city. His practice is made up of most all the large and important cases that come up in these courts, and has been variously estimated at from $15,000 to $30,000.

When questioned as to his law earnings, the judge remarked that it was a private matter which he did not propose to make public, but he had no hesitation in saying it was much larger than the salary attached to the office of interstate commerce commissioner. Besides, nearly all the larger cases that naturally grow, but of a case filed like that in Kentucky, it is known that Judge Lindsay is retained by the Louisville and Nashville Railroad company, the greatest corporation in the state, to represent that road in the numerous cases that regularly appear on the docket of the court of appeals. He is also retained by the Mason, Hoge Construction company, of this city, another wealthy corporation interested in building railroads, and until the debt is discharged, the "virtual owners of the Kentucky Midland railroad, from the city of Paris, Ky. When the Midland road was first built, Judge Lindsay was elected president, a position he yet fills. He is also state senator now, from the counties of Franklin, Mercer and Anderson, having been nominated and elected by the people of the district in 1889, while he was on a pleasure tour with his wife in Europe. As is well known he is one of the eight World's Fair commissioners the president appointed for the country at large, and one of the five commissioners who was appointed to Europe last summer in the interest of the World's Fair. On this trip to Europe he was again accompanied by his handsome and cultured wife, whose graceful appearance with the impressive personal presence of the distinguished Judge, evoked many kindly comments from the foreign press on the representatives from this country, and were in a large measure contributive to the means of securing the necessary attention from the high officials of the large European capitals, from which the success of the mission was accomplished.

Mrs. Lindsay is a daughter of Mrs. Sallie Holmes, and niece of Capt. Tom C. Jones, once clerk of the court of appeals, but recently the United States consul to Funchol. She is greatly admired here, as is also Judge Lindsay's only child, Miss Marion Lindsay, a beautiful young lady. The Judge's home is the largest and most elegantly furnished house in the city and during the social seasons is one of the chief centers of hospitality and entertainment. Very few if any here believe that Judge Lindsay will accept the place. It is quite likely that action will be taken by the senate to-morrow in recognition of the distinguished honor paid one of its most distinguished members.

Ben D. Bell,

Druggist of Lexington, Ky., says that Dr. Hale's Household Remedies (consisting of Dr. Hale's Household Cough Cure, Dr. Hale's Household Ointment, and Dr. Hale's Household Tea) are the best sellers he has ever had in his store. This is owing to the great merit of these popular remedies. They invariably give great satisfaction, save many doctors' bills and work wonderful cures. Everybody should use them. 25 and 50c sizes at Lemon's.

OUR CHILDREN.

Yesterday they were little prattling babes, playing about their parents' knees to day they are large school boys and girls full of noise and fun studying their long lessons in reading, arithmetic, grammar, history, geography &c; tomorrow they will be young men and women, realizing the fact that they must soon leave the dear old home of pa and ma and face the stern realities of a cold selfish world. They are watched and cared for by their parents in all these different conditions but the nearer they approach their majority, the more conscious we are of the time when they will leave us and go out from the parental roof, to seek their fortunes away from home, and in distant lands. Each day pains our hearts the more when we feel that time is drifting away, farther and farther from the ones that make our hearts happy. We are so constructed by nature, that all parents have the same love for children. They only have a few years at most, to remain with us and we are not prepared to love them, as much as we would want, until the precious time has slipped away and the dear children are grown, and gone from us. Let us love our children and do the good part by them while they are with us, and teach them good and lasting lessons, so that when they are gone they will love and honor us for our kindness to them. Never mistreat the children, and nine times out of ten they will never mistreat us. Teach them good lessons, and they will make good men and women. Treat them kindly while they are with us, for it will be but a few days until we can only occasionally hear from them in other parts of the country. They are "our children and we should love them," ought to be in the bosom of every one.

The Danger of the Tariff on Eggs.

We fear nearly all of our country women, will want to vote the republican ticket this fall from the fact that since the McKinley bill went into operation they have realized, great profits from the sale on eggs. Before the tariff was put on eggs, they could be bought at from 5 to 8 cents per dozen, but now they are worth 20 cents. The tariff, on eggs is now five cents per dozen, which has prevented the importation of foreign eggs, and caused a scarcity in all the American markets, thereby increasing the prices all over the country to such an extent, that the poor cannot afford them on their tables. If you want to make a country woman happy, pay her a good price for her eggs, if you want to make her unhappy, only offer her a low price, and she will return to her home dissatisfied. Such a tariff is a blessing to the people of Marshall county, from the fact nearly everybody are egg producers, and not egg consumers.

The egg business in this county is increasing annually, and if the present high tariff continues, it will soon amount to more money than the corn, wheat, or tobacco crops. The reason such a law will weaken the democratic party, is that the great egg centers are the democratic strongholds and if our democratic sisters believe that the republican party is a friend to the great poultry interest of the country, they will at once become strong supporters of the policy of that party. The women are of such a temperament that they will change politics as soon as it is to their interest. It is claimed by the owners of the large henries, that the chickens are more industrious and seem to boast of their power to control votes, now than ever before. We heard an old lady say the other day, that every hen on her farm was opposed to democratic free trade or the subtreasury scheme, but were all the time crowing and cackling for tariff and protection to American eggs.

Hon. W. W. Ayers in the Caucus.

We are at a loss to know why the democratic caucus at Frankfort should exclude from its inside work, such men as Pettit, Burkhead and others and retain Hon. W. W. Ayers of Calloway county. They are all in the same political condition and guilty of the same political crime, and for that very reason Mr. Ayers should have been excluded from the caucus. When a man attempts to ride over the rules, usages and organization of the democratic party by running for an office against the regular nominee, then he should be relegated at once to the company of such men. Mr. Ayers should not have been allowed to have taken any part in the deliberations of the democratic caucus. He ran against the nominee of the party, and bolted its organization and tramped its old time usages and customs under his unhallowed political feet, and then had the cheek to be admitted into its caucus. He should have never asked to be admitted, not only him, but any other man who took the course he did. In the party in the caucus, out of the party out of the caucus should be the course of all political aspirants to office.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

We are authorized to announce R. L. SHEMWEEL
as a candidate for Circuit Court Clerk, of Marshall county, subject to the action of the democratic party.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 14.

Ballard county has no pauper idiots.

No more free dinners under the new constitution.

Whiteley county has 33 pauper idiots.

There are 1,353 idiots now supported by the state and counties.

Total number of pauper lunatics in the state asylums, 165.

The constitutional convention cost the tax-payers of the state $144,235.56.

The Ohio River company has offered $3,000,000 for the Newport News and Mississippi Valley road (Eastern division)

What is the difference between eating a free dinner given by public officials, just before an allowance for salary is made, and riding on a free pass?

There were issued last year in the state 15,803 marriage licenses, for which the county clerks paid into the state treasury $7,901.50.
This is the amount of business done in the marriage line during last year—1891.

Four ghost dances are now in progress among the Indians of Oklahoma territory. None of the dancers express any hostility toward the whites. In the Wichita reservation several hundred are dancing day and night.

The Garza revolt may, after all, turn out to be a serious thing for the government of Mexico. The Chetumal party, which is on Garza's side, is numerous and wealthy and it is evidently in an ugly mood to ward President Diaz now.

The Louisville Times says there can no longer be any sort of question but that on climate is changing. Are we not harvesting ice six inches thick? And has it not been years since the water fell into so profound a sleep in this latitude? Next summer manufacturers of the artificial article can take a nap.

Senator Peffer seems to be the only candidate for the presidency who fully realizes that this is presidential year. His bill for a government loan of $100,000,000 to the farmers of Indiana is calculated to knock silly the two-dollar and block-of-five fellows who have heretofore run presidential elections in that state.

Under the new constitution it takes ten or eleven days and sixteen separate and distinct processes to crystallize a legislative bill into law. But even this is an improvement on the plan where by bills have become laws without so much as the approval of both the senate and the house. There is at least one such law in the so called acts of the last legislature.

John Anderson, heretofore considered an honorable citizen of Graves county, has skipped. On New Year's day his 15-year-old daughter gave birth to a child and charged her father with the parent-age. She said that the intimacy had continued for two years, and that her 13-year-old sister had also been compelled to submit to her father. The neighbors gave Anderson 15 minutes to leave the county. He mounted his best horse and disappeared.

In Memory of Miss Lillian Wallace

Miss Lillian, daughter of Mr and Mrs F. Wallace, died at her home in Elva, Marshall county, Kentucky, Monday, Dec. 23, 1891, aged 21 years and four months.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev T. F. Harrison, of Oak Level, and all that was mortal of Lillian Wallace was laid to rest in the family burying ground near Elva.

She leaves, besides her parents, one brother and three sisters, and a wide circle of relatives and friends.

Possessing an unusually bright mind and a loving disposition, she won the esteem and admiration of all who knew her. In her everyday life she was an example eminently worthy of imitation in the honor of mother and father, a beautiful keeping of the greatest of God's commandments. Yet how sorrowful does it cause us to be, to see one just verging into the bright and beautiful morning of womanhood, to be cut down by the cold hand of death. But the loveliest flowers must fade, for flowers only bloom to die. To say she will be missed but feebly expresses our loss.

During her illness of great suffering she never murmured, being cheerful and smiling until the last moment of life. Just a few hours before her spirit took its flight she called each member of the family to her bedside and bid them a sad farewell, and asked them to meet her in Heaven.

She never united with any church, yet she left unmistakable evidence that she was at peace with her Maker.

Parents weep not for your dear loved one

The angels have borne to sweet rest Her sorrows are ended, she's gone over home,

And rests now on Jesus' dear breast We know that the Saviour your angels can see,

Dear parents, but Jesus knows best.
Your dear Lillian is now safe with the Lord.

Would you call her from Heaven's sweet rest?

Sleep on, Lillian, thy toils are over Sweet thy rest; no trouble art before.

We'll have you loved you, but God loved you more.

And has called you away, to that bright happy shore.

N. L. M.

WYNNE, ARK.

For the first time, I ask for space in your paper. I love the Tribune because it comes from my old home; though it has been many years since I saw the old home.
How swift the years pass by; a few more days and the year 1891 is gone; the year which to some has brought happiness, to others sadness, will be added those which have passed before it.

Many during the present week sit in retrospective thoughts over the events which have marked the years in their lives. To the young the years speed not fast enough; to the old they are all too short.
The young employ the closing one in ambitious planning for the next; the aged muse over the events of the past and contemplate mysteries of the future. In the lives of some the year has proved a memorable one, while in those of others it is suggestive of no special events; the hope of one has reached fruition, the aspiration of another have fallen short of success; and thus the last day of December bring alike pleasant and sad memories. Whatever the year 1891 has brought to us, there is a valuable lesson to be learned.
If any undertaking upon which we have entered has proved unsuccessful, we now on looking back over the ground see more clearly the cause of our failure.
No lesson is so forcible learned as that born of experience. A past failure of time points to a future success, if we but profit by the lesson. No year is wasted which brings us to a clear realization of our individual worth and its employment. The experiences of the old year will make our success, during the new one, more assured; for we will have learned what shoals to avoid in the sea of life. If our barque has just ground over the rock reefs, with but a slight injury, let us feel thankful that we were not entirely wrecked.

To the successful the truth has been taught that the best success is that which has been born of modesty and an humble exterior. It is a poor success that brings with it an outward self-consciousness of our talent or gifts.

The most admired and beloved men and women are those who combine prosperity with modesty and thus all the year can be faithful of good results if we but extract from our individual experiences that which will be best and most profitable for us to remember.
Then we shall be the better prepared enter upon the new year with wisdom and zeal.

A LABANDON.

Under the above title I have written many articles heretofore, presenting itself, and having certain scribbles, will endeavor in my feeble way, occasionally, to treat all alike regardless of the consequences.

Now, in the first place, I have a few words to say about our Sunday schools. I notice the children generally make up the majority of the schools, especially these cold, snowy Sunday mornings. It is a bitter shame to send the little ones out on a cold, snowy morning, like last Sunday, while the parent sits lazily over a bright fire, with nothing to do but gaze into the blazing fire-light, while the heroic little ones face the chilling blasts, in order to serve the Lord. It is nothing but right to teach the little ones to do His will but it seems a bad example to set for them for the parent to remain idly at home and send the little ones alone. Oh, ye of little faith, rise up and do your duty!

And we have a few words for another class—the grown-up children. It is noticed that very few of this class attend Sunday school and church worship. Now there is no excuse, whatever, for this class.
Oh, you may contend, but it is true. Sometimes the parent may be excused, but for this class, the grown-up children, unless on account of illness, there can be no excuse. Don't get up in time!
Oh, you sluggard! If you can't get up in time to attend Sunday school at 9 o'clock my dear friend at what hour do you expect to enter the pearly gates of Heaven?
Oh, it's too late to get out so early!
And yet the little tot of six or seven is promptly on hand at the usual hour; and it's not too cold for them. You are careless and indifferent, my friend; you are on the wrong road, and it is time to awake, or you may be eternally too late.

While on the subject of churches, etc., it will not be amiss to give the following which is from an English minister, who thus describes the church: "What is the church? It is more than a club for social chat. It is not a drill-ground for young orators; it is not a theological entertainment, with a programme packed with instructions to the minister as to what he shall preach; it is not a debating society for the discussion of the faults of deacons; it is not a repository for the storage of grievances; it is not a battlefield where every sort of contemptible grievance may be fought out; it is not a park where all the loiters of creation may gather and lounge.
It is the marshaling of the forces of the Christian life, and the hurling of them in all their serried glory, like the life guard phalanx at Waterloo, against the hypocris-ies, the corruptions, and the agonies of the world's life."

When studying a Sunday school lesson referring to the vision of Jacob, in which he saw the ladder set betwixt heaven and earth and the angels ascending and descending upon its stony rungs, one of the children asked why the angels needed a ladder when they had wings. "A proper question," remarked the teacher. "Can any member of the class answer it?" Up went a chubby hand. "Well, why?" said the teacher.

"Cause," was the reply, "them angels was a-moulting."

That is the difficulty with many Christians—they are moulting.
When a bird moults it doesn't sing. But the bird moults only for a season. Certain Christians moult from the beginning to the end of the year, and hence never sing. And as their wings are not available for flying, and as they have no ladder to mount upon, they live low down.

A pastor who has suffered from the abuse of back seats in prayer-meeting has this to say about the matter, and suggests that his words be printed in auction-bill type and hung up conspicuously in every prayer-meeting room: "The back seats are hereby reserved for those who have no interest in the prayer hour, but are cold-hearted and come from a sheer sense of duty; for those who desire to see the service disturbed by late comers, who are forced to find front seats; for those who sit as far as possible from the organ or piano, so that they can kill the singing by dragging in the time; for those who do not want the leader to "warm up" himself nor to fire anyone else, and so put rows of empty seats between him and themselves; for those who are unsociable and like to rush off the moment the hour ends, and then complain that no one ever speaks to them; for those who like to be selfish and show their contempt for others' rights by talking and laughing while the rest are praying and singing; for those who are timid soldiers and camp-followers in the army of the Lord, and who therefore love the rear rather than the front.

To be sure, there is a price which must be paid for these seats. They cost those who choose them a dull time, all spiritual pleasure, a sense of dissatisfaction with the efforts of those who try to make the meetings attractive, and at last a loss of all interest.

The back seat is near the door; remember that. Occasionally the chilly winds of worldliness blow in great draughts through the door and produce spiritual pneumonia.
A back seat church member is only one grade above the absent one—and soon becomes an absentee himself.

The Public Demands Justice.

On Christmas eve night, on one of the main streets in the town of Benton, a stranger at our doors, without cause, warning or provocation, was shot down like a dog, from which shot he died. It is true the man was a colored man, nevertheless he was human, and under the protection of our people, and yet he fell at the hands of a murderer and that too without cause. Henry McGrigor is charged with this crime, but whether guilty or not all are not ready to say, but he is charged with the crime, and if he is guilty should be punished. If he is not guilty he should be discharged and diligence manifested by the public authorities to bring the one who shot that negro to punishment.

If men are allowed to be shot down on our streets without cause or provocation and no one punished for it, then human life is worth but little in this part of Kentucky. We do not know who is to blame in this case, but we hear some criticism against the county judge for allowing McGrig-or to roam about over the county, charged with murder, and under such a small bond. The public is well aware that a man has been shot and killed and that too, without cause, and that the good of the country and society demands the ready punishment of the guilty, and it will expect the officers of the law to perform their duty towards protecting the lives of the innocent. The examining trial has not yet taken place, and we will have no more to say until it is over, then as a public journal we will say what we believe is our duty to say under the circumstances. The public is scarcely ever wrong in its judgment on matters of public safety, and it is our duty to condemn anything that tends against the public good.

Will Mr. Cox Speak Out?

We understand that the county judge and county attorney will soon summon before them Mr. E.
Cox, of Calvert City, in order to ascertain of him the name of the party or parties who held him up one night last summer, a short distance below Calvert City, and robbed him of his gold watch and some money, while on his way home from Paducah. The people are at a loss to know the reason the last grand jury did not investigate this case. All such cases should at once be attended to, and the guilty parties brought to suffer for such offenses. It is said that Mr. Cox recognized one of the parties who did the robbing, but so far we have never learned the name of the offender. If a man will hold up his neighbor and rob him of his hard-earned money, he should be arrested and held over until the next sitting of the grand jury. This will be done at once, if Mr. Cox will give the name of the party who robbed him.
It is thought a sensation will yet grow out of this little robbery.

HUMAN NATURE.

How It Manifests Itself at Summer Resorts.

It was a favorite adage of Napoleon's that "human nature is always and everywhere the same." It is certainly pretty much the same, year after year, at the different places of summer resort. There is your invalid, for example, to whom no topic is interesting that does not treat of the condition of his tongue and stomach, sitting on the sunny side of the piazza, buttoned up to his chin, in a chair that rests, like his constitution, on his hind legs. He pounces on unhappy listeners, and bores them, always and everywhere the same, with minute descriptions of his ailments. Then, there is your country clergyman, who came to the country, by his presence in the ladies' parlor, any song but "Hark from the tomb a doleful sound."

There is the bachelor, who knows the flirtation ropes; and though he has no objection to carry a young lady's shawl or parasol, also carries a rhinoceros hide over his heart, from which her little arrows glaze harmless, though ever so skillfully aimed from ribbon, slipper or curl. There is your widow—cultivated, refined, intelligent, self-respectful; yet, fettered in every word and action by the knowledge that every person in the house imagines that her earliest and latest thoughts are employed in the construction of adroit man-traps. There is grandma—dear, saintly grandma—who in her best cap and gown, sits hour after hour on the same rocking chair in the ladies' parator, watching the tide of life as it ebbs and flows past her, well pleased to be spared the petty strife for place and power, and smiling benignly on young and old, as to say: "Some day, you, like me, will be glad to rest; meantime, my dears, get all you can out of it!"

And here is our belle—blonde or brunnette, it matters not—with her wondrous changes of rainbow raiment, laughing or lively, as best suits her style, anything for admiration, with book and line skillfully concealed, but none the less effective; beautiful as a dream, and like a dream, very unsatisfactory to the wide-awake; numbering her victims by the thousand, and knowing nothing more earnest in life than a perfect toilet and an intoxicated adorer. From the tip of her wicked little slipper to her pearl of an ear, she is but a mockery and a snare.
Then there is the wife who has waited weary weeks for the arrival of her husband, and now he's coming! She is a plain little woman, judging her artistically; and yet to-night her face is quite beautiful with the illumination of love. She has a natural flower in her hair, and her little girl has on her best dress; and all the guests feel a personal interest in that stranger husband's arrival, and listen anxiously, like herself, for the coming of the train, as she paces up and down the piazza, too restless to sit still. Now, if he should not come after all! Wouldn't he deserve lynching? That is the universal verdict. But he has come! "Papal Papal—John! John!" It is dark at the station, but that kiss was heard; and all went their separate ways satisfied, now justice had been done. Human love, imperfect as it is, is a beautiful thing. Husband! wife! child! These ties, after all, are life.—N. Y. Ledger.

A SALESMAN REBUKED.

The Harmless Practical Joke Played by a Comedian.

It is related of a certain French comedian that he would rather indulge in an inoffensive practical joke than keep faith with his manager. Numerous instances of his breach of the one and adherence to the other are extant.
An incident in the latter line that he confessed to himself was that on a certain occasion he entered a prominent hardware store when nobody was in attendance but a young clerk. This division on his entrance treated him with that disdain and flippancy condescension, which, although it exists there, is perhaps less characteristic of the Parisian counter-jumper than his kind elsewhere.

The actor took in the youth's mental proportions at a glance and said:
"I would like, if you please, a nice copy of Hugo's complete works."
"We don't sell books here. This isn't a book shop. You're in a hardware store."

"Oh, well, I'm not very particular," continued the player, pretending with an excellent imitation of nature, that he was very deaf. "It doesn't matter whether bound in calf or morocco."
"But this is no book store," shrieked the attendant, getting red in the face.
"Just so, just so," went on the comedian. "Pack it up in your nicest shape.
But I would like to write my name in it."

The young man gasped and fell back against the counter. Then, with a voice that made the very nails in the floor rattle, he yelled:

"This—ain't—no—book—store!"

"Oh, very well; then I'll wait, course," and the actor quietly took a chair.

The clerk choked another effort to either burst a blood vessel or make some impression on the other's tympanum, but at that moment the proprietor entered.

"For heaven's sake, Mr. Chysel," he cried, excitedly, rushing toward him, "hurry up. There's a crazy man in here, and I can't make him understand me."

Mr. Chysel approached the comedian and inquired blandly:
"Can I do anything for you, sir?"
"Certainly you can. I want a file—a common five-inch rat-tail file, if you please. You have them?"

"Certainly."

The side look of withering scorn the proprietor gave the clerk was such that for months afterward he was so small that deaf customers were continually lifting him up and dropping him through the eyes of needles.

STRAYED OR STOLEN.

I should at all times extend to her the attention and politeness due a queen, says the Boston Courier. I should indulge her petty needs and cravings, and the larger ones to the full extent of my exchequer, and if she were given to extravagant ideas I would reason with her calmly, not swear or curse at her, but show her the limit of my resources, make a confidant and a companion of her. She should have all the luxuries of life that I enjoyed, for a woman hates a selfish man. She should have her own opinion, for surd her views are as dear to her as mine are to me. Worried by the cares of business, she should not be annoyed by them, for I would endeavor to leave my troubles on the door step.

I should bid her adieu in the morning with a kiss, and if I could not bring home a smiling face in the evening I should remain away until I could. I should not expect too much of her, but ever remember that, being a woman she has the worst of life from the cradle to the grave. I should be careful as to her tiring of me, and should not exclude her from all society, for she is like a bird, but would freely allow her the freedom she desired, relying on her honor. If she were ill, I should nurse her; were she in sorrow, I should sympathize with her and comfort her. I should have her pathway strewn with roses and her journey down the stream of life only a pleasant dream; and when the final hour came for her departure into the great beyond my hand should smooth her pillow, and as I feel this night 'twould be my wish to be her partner still.

A typical winter night was last night. The snowflakes flitted past the window panes white, silent and beautiful, covering the dim fields and nestling on the bare branches like charity in the ugly places of this world. People may laugh at the "beautiful snow" as a chestnut and sneer at your enjoyment of it, but I hold that the year brings only three things in its train of events that make the true man feel again all the vigor and buoyancy of his boyhood. That is, when he is old enough to throw up his hat in the air and yell with the joy of mere living. They are the first spring day, when the spirit of life stirs among the trees and the anemones peep out in the woods; when the crawfish haunts the brooks and the song of the bluebird is heard or at Christmas, when the glory of the Star of Bethlehem spiritualizes every gleam of light and makes the lowliest cottage beautiful with the glories of love and hope, when through the chinks of our worldliness and cynicism we allow some of the divine tenderness and truth to stray in and gild the chambers of our souls, and again, when the flakes fall heavily, clinging about us on our homeward way like little innocent children astray in the wicked world.

What visions the snowfall brings. Ah! the delights of youth. They come to us on the wings of every flake and melt away and come again continually just like the white crystals. Who would not have dropped all business this morning and gone out after the cotton-tails? Think of the long, dreamy stretch of white landscape, with here and there the sharp, black pencil lines of a fence or the gray mass of woods. The fairies of childhood are out weaving the same old wonderful stories for us that had become an echo and thin air to us in the hard, utilitarian world of these latter days. And then the trailing of Brer Rabbits over the white sheet, the finding of his footprints, the excitement of the chase, the baying of our hounds, the lovely run, and at last the sharp crack of the gun and the tumble of the cotton-tail. Ah! who can forget those enthusiasms, joys of boyhood! And who does not love the drifting flakes or bringing the memory back.

Good Looks.

Good looks are more than skin deep, depending upon a healthy condition of all the vital organs. If the liver be inactive, you have a bilious look, if your stomach be disordered you have a dyspeptic look and if your kidneys be affected you have a pinched look. Secure good health and you will have good looks. Electric Bitters is the great alternative and tonic acts directly on these vital organs. Cures pimples, blotches, boils and gives a good complexion. Sold at J. R. Lemon's drugstore, 50¢ per bottle.

Prohibition is an impossibility, even if it were wholly desirable, at the hands of the law. It has been a failure in Iowa, a farce in Kansas and a liquid joke in Maine. There is that in mankind which while it may impel him to personal prohibition, will rise against the attempt of the law to dictate to him what he may or may not do. There was no prohibition at the marriage feast of Cana, and St. Paul recognized the benefits of the moderate use of wine. The solution of the liquor question is through the medium of license and strict regulation. "It is a condition, not a theory" which confronts the people, whether reformers or non-reformers; but while that is so, the fact remains that the constant agitation of the subject is due not so much to prohibitionists as to the incessant demand of Saloon-keepers' Association for special privileges through presumed political influence. No special legislation is due to any class, and the claim that an association of any business interests is entitled to special legislation is undemocratic, and should meet the fate of every thing which is not democratic.—Newport Journal.

DR. HALE'S HOUSEHOLD TART. Is the great blood purifier and nerve tonic. A FARM FOR SALE

The farm owned by M. B. Pace, at Seale, can now be bought at very low figures. It is well improved, with a good brick dwelling house with three rooms, front and back porches, and hall; good cistern, etc. Also a framed house, with two rooms, a cistern and garden, and also a box house with a cistern about it, and stables, stock barn and a good orchard, well filled with the best variety of choice fruits, good fences, etc. This place is located in one of the best communities in the county, and any person can secure a bargain by applying early to M. B. Pace, Seale, Ky.

Harper's Weekly this refers to the two youngest members of the present Congress: "Two of the younger members of the new Congress—Representative Bailey of Texas, who is 28, and Representative Sherman of Massachusetts, who is 31—are expected to attract more than usual attention as orators. Mr. Bailey, who in fact is said to resemble Stephen A. Douglas, but whose stature is that of Clay, has made a name in the South as a persuasive speaker, while Mr. Hoar inherits the eloquence for which his family has been noted. He was the orator of his college class at Harvard, and he has a strong, sonorous and well-modulated voice. With Governor Russell and Josiah Quincy he belongs to a trio of young Massachusetts Democrats whose oratorical ability gives promise of recalling the days of Wendell Phillips and Robert Winthrop.

King of Medicines

Scrofulous Humor—A Cure "Almost Miraculous."

"When I was 14 years of age I had a severe attack of rheumatism, and after I recovered had to go on crutches. A year later, scrofula, in the form of white swellings, appeared on various parts of my body, and for 11 years I was an invalid, being confined to my bed most of the time. In that time ten or eleven sores appeared and broke, causing me great pain and suffering. I feared I never should get well. Early in 1888 I went to Chicago to visit a sister, but was confined to my bed most of the time I was there. In July I read a book, 'A Day with a Cure,' in which were statements of cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was so impressed with the success of this medicine that I decided to try it. To my great gratification the sores soon decreased, and I began to feel better and in a short time I was up and out of doors. I continued to take Hood's Sarsaparilla for about a year, when, having used six bottles, I had become so fully released from the disease that I went to work for the Flint & Walling Mfg. Co., and since then HAVE NOT LOST A SINGLE DAY ON ACCOUNT OF MY DISEASE. I believe the disease is expelled from my system, I always feel well, am in good spirits and have a good appetite. I am now 27 years of age and can walk as well as any one, except that one limb is a little shorter than the other, owing to the loss of bone, and the sores formerly on my right leg. To my friends my recovery seems almost miraculous, and I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is the king of medicines." W. L. LENT, 9 N. Railroad St., Kendallville, Ind.
