Dr Andrew Smith
A Grocer Prominent and Well Known Man of the County

A SHORT SKETCH OF HIS LIFE

It is with becoming pleasure that we present to our readers this short sketch of the life of Dr. Andrew Smith, well known to most of our readers, but whose career in business is not as generally known. Dr. Smith was born May 11, 1850, in Washington, D.C., and was educated in the public schools of that city. He then entered the army and served as a private in Company H, Fifth Infantry, and was mustered out at Washington, D.C., under Dr. J. P. Holt, and a certificate for disability. Upon returning to the army, he entered the wholesale grocery business and made a success. He continued at this business until 1887, when he sold his possessions here and moved to Dana, Ind., where he married to Miss Eudora Miller, a daughter of Mr. H. Davis of Evansville, Indiana. His friends here are legion. He and his family are back to Kentucky and have established a boarding house, and a place of business in Whiskeyville, Ky.

The Preventive and Hygienic Society of Buffalo

Dr. Smith was a member of the Preventive and Hygienic Society of Buffalo. He was one of the most active members of that society and did much to advance the cause of health and hygiene. He was a strong believer in the use of home remedies and advocated the use of herbs and spices in the treatment of diseases. He was also a strong advocate of the use of water and clean air in the prevention of disease.

The Washington Letter

This year's fashion is for business at this place, and the Washington Letter is now looking out for business in Buffalo. It is said that the Washington Letter is now looking out for business in Buffalo.

The Troubles of the Locals

The troubles of the locals are likely to bring about a disturbance of the peace. The local authorities are likely to bring about a disturbance of the peace.

The Washington Post

The Washington Post is now looking out for business in Buffalo.
The Tribune often did more for them than did the bus company's schedules.

A total consultation is the best way to make it go as scheduled.

OUT OF SIGHT.

We enjoyed the yarn of the jeweler at the corner, and he said: "You want to see my real "out of sight," do you?"

"Yes, sir, I want to see the 'out of sight' of your collection." It was a quiet street, and I had no idea of the number of jewels there, but the jeweler showed me a lapel pin of gold and diamonds, and I asked: "But why isn't it in your window?"

"Oh, we don't want to show it to everybody," he replied. "It's a 'private' pin, and we don't want it to be seen by everybody, but only by the people who belong to our club."
