"I've just read Swift & Company's 1931 Year Book . . .

"This book is most interesting to me, because I'm one of the 200,000 producers of cream, poultry and eggs who sell to Swift & Company. It is just as interesting to everyone who has something to sell to Swift & Company, as well as the housewife who buys food for her family.

"This book showed me the source of Swift & Company's profits, which come, mainly, from savings in expenses, and not at the expense of the producer or the consumer. What impressed me was that Swift earns its dividend from an average profit from all sources of only a small fraction of a cent a pound.

"The chapter on Swift & Company's produce plants on page 35 held my attention, for here is shown how the company creates a direct road to remote markets for the producers' products. And you may learn how Swift's marvelous distributing plan serves producer, small retailer and consumer in every corner of the country.

Engineers of the Bell Telephone

Laboratories wanted to test the durability of various types of flooring.
They decided that one simple way was to have people walk on them.
So they placed them in a muchtrafficked corridor in their building and let the innocent pedestrian do the work of science. The results will help the Western Electric Company manufacture telephone booths that will better stand the wear and tear of telephone users' feet.

10,000 Theatres Closed As Patrons Crowd Those With Best Sound

Nearly 10,000 of the country's 25,000 motior picture theatres are dark, a nation-wide survey has revealed. But bad times are not responsible. The total attendance at the 16,000 theatres still playing is the greatest in history.

Competition with talking pictures has closed many silent theatres. Now the public is crowding to those theatres which give the best sound reproduction.

The survey was made by Electrical Research Products, Inc., subsidiary of the Western Electric Company whose talking picture apparatus is widely used in theatres throughout the world.

Two Important Pamphlets BBB

To all Industrial Employers

"Outline of Industrial Policies and Practices in time of Reduced Operation and Employment."

Based on a study of steps taken by hundreds of companies to meet the present unemployment emergency. This pamphlet is designed to make a knowledge of these measures available to all employers of labor.

"A Survey of Unemployment Relief in Industry."

This pamphlet contains a survey of emergency employment measures founded on information gathered from a diversified list of large and small corporations in more than 500 localities and which employed in 1929 more than three quarters of a million men.

HE suggestions in these pamphlets do not originate with this Committee. The Committee has simply collected and classified the practices now in operation in various parts of the country, both in respect to manufacturing policies and unemployment relief.

These pamphlets have already been widely distributed, but the Committee desires to have them in the hands of every industrial employer of labor.

For, while the suggestions contained in the outline do not purport to include extensive discussion of all plans for stimulating industrial employment or reducing the effects of lay-offs, it is believed that many who have had difficulty in securing information on what is considered sound procedure, will find these plans of value.

Copies of these pamphlets may be secured free of charge by addressing:

It was back in 1879, over fifty years ago, when Parke, Davis & Company brought into existence the first standardized preparations of vegetable drugs. And for the first time in the history of medicine scientifically accurate preparations were placed at the disposal of physicians.

Later, in 1897, Porke, Davis & Company took the next step by adopting the principle of physiological standardization. Certain drugs, it was found, could not be adjusted to a definite standard of potency by chemical methods. So these drugs were tested on living animals; were physiologically tested, so to speak. Definite standards of potency and uniformity were
