VOLUME TWO

FULTON, KENTUCKY, FRIDAY, APRIL 6, 1934.

NUMBER TEN.

$420,000 Will Be Spent Here

Although the economic depression just past, reduced operations of the Illinois Central System in Fulton, as it did along every section of their railroad lines, a survey recently requested by the Fulton County News shows that this company will spend nearly a half million dollars in Fulton during 1934. Curialments in industrial and agricultural production and distribution throughout the nation, reduced the revenue of the railroads, forcing limited operations and stopping temporarily the usual improvement program. But now the railroads are coming into their own again, with "a sharp increase in freight and passenger travel in recent months. And as the railroad business improves so should the employment situation improve in the Fulton area.

"The Illinois Central System will spend at least $420,000 in Fulton during the present year for labor, materials, supplies and taxes," according Agent C. R. Collins. "The railroad is now carrying 282 employees on its Fulton payroll, and is distributing pay checks in the community totaling $32,000 a month or $384,000 a year."

"The importance of this payroll to Fulton is better appreciated when it is pointed out that the average factory payroll in the Fulton area is in the neighborhood of $22,000 a year. Therefore, the Illinois Central payroll in Fulton means as much to the community as the payrolls of twelve manufacturing establishments.

"Moreover, the Illinois Central System is important as a buyer of local products. Its expenditures in Fulton for ice, water, telephone service, electric current and other items total around $23,000 a year.

"In addition to the large expenditures which I have enumerated the Illinois Central System's tax bill in Fulton and Fulton County now amounts to around $42,200 a year. About $6,000 of this sum goes to support the public schools.

"The average cost of public school education in Kentucky amounts to about $39 per pupil enrolled. On this basis, the Illinois Central's school tax is sufficient to defray the cost of educating 169 boys and girls in Fulton county."

CITY COUNCIL TAKES ACTION ON LIQUOR SALE

In regular monthly session at the City Hall Monday night, with all members of the council and the city attorney, Steve Wiley, present, the city officials took action on the sale of liquor in Fulton. An ordinance, which was adopted as a revenue measure, was read before the body by the city attorney. This ordinance fixed a license of $50 a year for selling liquor in packages, and $50 a year for sale in hotels, restaurants, etc., by the drink, making a total license fee of $100 to operate in the city of Fulton.

C. G. Fields applied for the office of city tax assessor, but because he is now residing with his son in South Fulton, action was deferred in this matter.

Repair of the Walnut-st railroad crossing near the Usona was discussed, with the question arising whether the Illinois Central System included this crossing in repairs now being made in the city.

IMPROVEMENTS HERE CAUSE TRAFFIC TROUBLE

Motorists passing through Fulton are beginning to wonder if Fulton is being rebuilt, since recent improvements started downtown that have resulted in slight traffic congestion. Construction of the new concrete bridge across the creek at the corner of Lake-Carr and State Line streets, and repairing of the railroad crossing at Walnut and Lake-st intersection, necessitate two short detours inside the city. Local people are not bothered so much, but tourists are often confused.

These improvements when complete will be real assets to the city.

Interest Grows In Mule Day

From month to month, as every second Monday rolls around for the monthly Mule Day in Fulton, in interest in this day is growing. The second Monday in March, the jockey yard, back of Lake-st, was overflowing with farmers and traders from practically every community within a radius of 25 miles of Fulton. Although the day is known as Mule Day because of the number of mules bought, sold and traded, but it is more than that. For it is recognized throughout this section as a day to come to Fulton "with your trading clothes on" regardless of what you have to swap.

Mule Day comes this month on Monday, April 9th, and an even larger crowd is expected than during the March event. Thousands of farmers visit Fulton every second Monday, and merchants of the city are solidly back of the mule days.

When you come to Fulton next Monday, come prepared to do your swapping at the Jockey Yard, and if there is anything you need in the way of merchandise for the home or farm, a visit to Fulton stores will simplify your shopping problems.

VOTING OUTLAWED.

The wide public discussion of the recent action of the Kentucky Legislature, taking the primary election from the people, leads us to wonder if voting isn't being restricted and outlawed—the voice of the people being muzzled.

A western state has recently published a book of its election laws and regulations. It takes 295 pages of fine print, which few ever read.

There are so many laws and regulations governing registration and voting, that half of the citizens do not know whether they are entitled to go to the polls or not, or whether they can vote after they get there. As a result, fewer and fewer people take part in elections.

In many precincts almost no one votes but the election officers, the judges and the clerks; and the cost of elections has run up as high as a dollar per ballot cast and counted. Some of the Eastern states have even more voluminous laws and regulations.

Manhood and womanhood suffrage has become a thing of the past, it seems, and legislatures are trying to hold fewer elections, and hold all general and local elections on the same day. Multiplicity of lawmaking and regulations tends to break down popular government.

The action taking the compulsory primary election from the people is a serious offense against the general welfare of all the people. Is the voice of the people fading into the dim past, is politics replacing sincere statesmanship, and politicians in control of the reins and running things their own way?

Taking the rights of the people away from them has been the cause of uprisings and revolutions in every corner of the globe. It is dangerous policy to force the people out of the elections, and selfish politicians will learn this when they bring down the walls about their own ears.

WHAT PRICE RELIEF?

(From the Hickman Courier)

Relief for the unemployed and destitute is at a standstill this week in most Kentucky counties. Unless Governor Laffoon immediately calls a special session of the legislature to raise the 25 percent of relief money the federal government has demanded the past 18 months, or the federal government has a change of heart and decides to continue footing the entire bill for relief work, Kentucky's unemployed face a grave situation.

It is evident that the federal government is entirely justified in demanding that Kentucky do its part. During the past 18 months the federal government has poured $21,000,000 into Kentucky to relieve the unemployed and destitute, while Kentucky has spent about $640,000 for the same purpose. It is true that some cities and counties have also contributed, but most of the cities and counties in Kentucky are now unable to contribute.

Early last fall a special session was called to raise funds for the relief work, upon the insistent demand of the federal government. Politics wrecked that session. They fooled around and finally passed some beer and whiskey taxes. Congressman John Young Brown charged in a recent address that the special session was purposely prolonged so that the distillers could get their whiskey out of Kentucky warehouses; so the taxes produced little revenue. Mr. Brown said the distillers got fooled, as they took the whiskey of Pennsylvania, and had a higher tax slapped on it there, for relief purposes, but that does not help the needy of Kentucky.

The regular session of the legislature which closed recently knew that they would close down if the state did not do something. Governor Laffoon knew it. Yet no real effort was made to arrange any revenue for relief purposes. Is it possible that the Governor and his administration the leaders of the legislature and those who pull the strings from behind the scenes, were more interested in playing petty peanut politics than they were in the well being of 90,000 Kentucky families? From past performances the Courier is reluctantly forced to answer in the affirmative.

It looks very much like the politicians were preparing the stage to cram the sales tax down the throats of the people of Kentucky, whether they want it or not. A sales tax collected through the merchants would provide a lot more jobs for politicians. It would give them a lot more money to spend and a lot more patronage to dispense. What do cheap politicians care for the good of the people when they see a chance to build up their machine? There are other ways to raise this money. Why did not the legislature let the taxes from the open sale of whiskey and other intoxicants, legalized on the ground they were for "medicinal" purposes, go to the relief fund instead of to the general fund? That would have raised quite a little money.

We think it is time the people of Kentucky woke up. We think it would be an excellent idea to circulate petitions in every county in the state, getting a million signers, if possible, demanding that the Governor call a special session of the legislature at once and demanding that the legislature raise revenue for relief purposes at once without enacting the sales tax. The sales tax is not necessary, no matter what the politicians say. If the administration and its legislature had followed the advice of Griffin-hagan and Associates, the disinterested experts who were hired to survey and audit the state government, there would be enough savings to provide for relief with very little additional revenue. But no, they had to play politics with that also, and keep the taxpayers saddled with an expensive, wasteful and out of date spoils system of political government.

Don't forget that while Kentucky's per capita tax is low, we have the highest per capita overhead. That means simply the most soft political jobs and the most waste in high places. Every effort has been made to fool the people of the state. The legislature enacted a bill cutting the state tax on real estate from 30 cents on the hundred to five cents. The original bill cut the tax only on farm and homesteads, which provided needed relief for the farmers and home owners, BUT the bill that was passed and signed by the Governor cut the tax on ALL real estate, including railroads, factories, mines, business property, oil wells, etc., AND the biggest loser was the common school fund. Politics at the expense of the children of the state!

After wasting most of its last two weeks in a foolish controversy with the acting editor of the Courier-Journal over who wrote a certain letter that appeared in that paper, the legislature patted itself on the back before it adjourned and blamed the Governor or lack of accomplishment. Did the pot call the kettle black? We do not know. It is true that the legislature enacted some constructive legislation, such as the county reform measures, the school code, loan shark bill and others, but they also turned down the compulsory primary bill, enacted the "ripper" administration reorganization bill, etc. At any rate the government of Kentucky is out of step with the "New Deal" at Washington, but the people of the state are solidly behind President Roosevelt. The only practical thing the Courier can see for the people to do now is to circulate petitions in every county and force the politicians to come across with what is right and proper for our unemployed and destitute and for our schools also.

Examinations included tests of weight, eyes, vision, ears, hearing, teeth, tonsils, skin diseases and posture, as well as vaccination.

YOUR HEALTH

by C.W. CURLIN M.D.
FULTON, KENTUCKY

NECESSITY OF EXERCISE

A healthy and perfect functioning body is the greatest asset in life. It makes easier the great problems of living, and the possessor thereof can realize to the fullest the joy of living. A healthy body is not luck or accident. The body is a wonderful living machine, but must be given proper care and attention. The health of the body depends in a great measure upon three basic principals, exercise, rest and sustenance.

As the bulk of the body is composed of muscular tissue, the care of the muscular system is of paramount importance, in maintaining a healthy body. Exercise constitutes the basis principal in the proper care of the muscular system. For the muscular system to function normally it must have work or exercise.

Much of the vital phenomena of living is carried on in the muscular system. When a muscle works it contracts and expands, thereby increasing the flow of blood through the muscle, bringing in fresh nourishment and taking away the waste to be eliminated. This waste if allowed to lay in the muscle acts as a poison to the entire system.

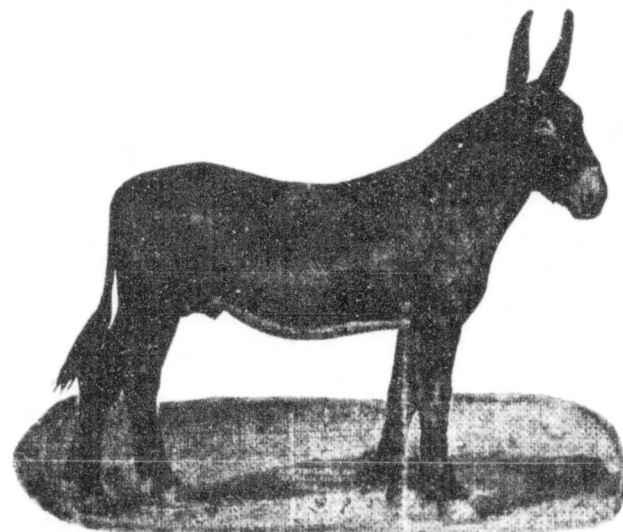

The muscular system should be worked daily, more or less depending on each individual's daily work. The laborer gets sufficient exercise in his daily work, but not so with the business man. For his body to function normally, he must take time from his business to exercise. Many business men think they cannot spare time from his business to exercise. But all of them have time to eat, and as a rule eat more than they need, and they take time to rest. Exercise is as important as maintaining a healthy body as eating.

SPRING HOUSE-CLEANING TIME

When spring comes round each year our thoughts just automatically turn to housekeeping. Not the back-breaking, nerve-racking, disposition running house-cleaning of other days but a pretty thorough cleaning for all that. An extra polish on the silver, a higher burnish on the copper and an extra gleam on the window panes.

Speaking of copper and window panes, we have to brighten both of these articles. A paste of vinegar and salt, vigorously applied, removes every vestige of the green tarnish that persists in clinging to copper. Then a brisk application of metal polish and a final rubbing with oil to stop the action of the acid on the metal makes the copper shine as brightly as the day it was made. And for an extra special gleam on the window panes try polishing them off with a chamois and then with soft paper.

But to get back to this thorough cleaning: We suggest that you take an inventory of your cleaning equipment, being sure to have plenty of large soft cloths, a wall brush, an old floor mop, soap and water. Be sure the vacuum cleaner is in good running order and that the attachment function as they should. Then begin.

Go about the thing systematically. Take it a room at a time. We always begin with the dusting of small objects which are carefully put away and then the fun begins. The next step is to dust the walls with a wall brush, beginning at the ceiling and brushing down. Then vacuum the rugs and upholstered furniture. Carefully clean the draperies with the proper attachment, fold them and store them away. Wash the woodwork with one of those cleaning compounds and a barely damp cloth, wipe it off with a cloth wrung out of clear water, and then stand back for a moment and notice the dazzling cleanness.

Next attack the floors. If they need it wash them carefully. Long-handled mops are available for this task. Then wash them with one of the quick-drying liquid waxes, being sure that the floor is completely dry before you start.

Now you are ready to turn your attention to the furniture. All furniture revives miraculously after a soap and water bath. Use warm water and a cloth that has been wrung almost dry, wipe off with a cloth wrung from clear water, dry with a lintless cloth, and then polish with your favorite furniture polish.

Next attack the windows and when they fairly sparkle hang up fresh curtains. Rearrange the furniture quickly dust the objects that you put away when you started to clean, and you are ready to leave a high of relief, pause awhile to admire your handiwork and proceed to the next room.

This all sounds pretty strenuous, but it isn't nearly so bad as it sounds, and the house looks so fresh and sparkling when you've finished that it's worth it.

THINK IT OVER

MURDER AND MURDERERS

"I just dropped in to kill a little time," is what a man said the other day as he came sauntering in the office. And he was a young man, at that. It started me to thinking of the expression, "Killing time." The very thing of which life is composed! He was sowing the seed that would produce a crop on Fool's Hill.

Young man, how many hours of the day and night do you put in "killing time"? What are you doing with the hours between actual labor and rest? Every hour on the face of the clock is but a milepost bringing you nearer your old age and perhaps dependency.

Young woman, are your hands smeared with the blood of the time you are killing?

Young man how much of the hours of the day do you put in at the end of a cigarette or at the hollow end of the billiard cue? How much of the night do you devote to zodiacal navigation to the red, white and blue chips at the gambling table?

Young woman, how much of the leather do you wear out tanning the concrete in garages gossin with Sperminol Lizzie? Just "killing time."

I meant that one must have amusement, recreation. Pity the poor stick, man or woman, who does not know the meaning of fun, who sees in the hours of the day a period in which he or she may make a penny more. There is a time to work and a time to play. Happy is he who knows how to do both—who knows the value of time, who knows the benefit of amusement.

But hear me, young man or young woman. Your system is not equipped for kissing, or for nicotine, 24 hours a day; nor equipped to spend all your hours powdering your nose. Your envelope does not grow laven-ear enough to enable you to "feed the kitty" all night or contribute to the bridge table all afternoon; you are too much of a fumbler to cope with the devotees of the fashionable taylor gambling table.

Look around you in the markets today where ability is bought and sold. See the "dead ones" who offer themselves and find no buyers. These are they who in the heyday of their youth had time to kill. Now in their age their drudging minds and bodies show a bleeding, festering wound for ever blow they struck at time in their early days.

If you are "just killing time" today, young man, young woman, remember that for every thrust you give it, you will receive in your own body and mind a deeper and more deadly one; while you are killing time you are also killing yourself. Think it over.

DOLORES DEL RIO AND KAY FRANCIS ARE GORGEOUSLY GOWNED IN "WONDER BAR"

Sartorial success, from the Hollywood actress' view, is measured by the amount of brilliance in her formal cash.

Gone are the days when a little flock of wash cotton received honorable mention from style-conscious ladies. Practiced fabrics are now seen and worn only in the daytime. Evening brings forth an array of glamorous, colorful shiny fabrics enhancing the charms of lovely creatures who wear them, especially for the screen.

Kay Francis and Dolores Del Rio, the two dark haired beauties who perform the leading feminine roles in the First National picture, "Wonder Bar" which comes to the Orpheum Theatre on April 22, 23 and 24 appear in several ravishing gowns designed by Orry Kelly.

"Wonder Bar" is the international famous musical drama with an all star cast, others being Al Jolson, Ricardo Cortez, Dick Powell, Hal LeRoy, Guy Kibbee, Hugh Herbert, Louise Fazenda, Fifi d'Orsay and Merna Kennedy.

The picture is set amid the gay revelries of a Parisian night club with spectacular musical and dance numbers created and staged by Busby Berkeley in which 300 beautiful girls take part. Music and lyrics are by Harry Warren and Al Dubin while Lloyd Bacon directed.

Constant efforts win out.

No magic is necessary. Swift & Company maintains a nation-wide, daily cash market for eggs—and for butterfat and poultry as well.

Incomes of farm houses must come from consumers, who are, frequently, hundreds of miles away. It is the task of Swift & Company to find these consumers, to learn their food wants and to carry their orders—and money—back to the producer of food stuffs.

Every day thousands of farm patrons deliver eggs to Swift & Company produce plants. These eggs are carefully packed and kept under refrigeration. The best go into Brookfield cartons.

Swift & Company salesmen—an army in themselves—are constantly seeking new outlets for the eggs brought at every Swift plant. By selling both meats, dairy and poultry products on the same call, by delivering in the same truck, distribution costs on all products are cut. The farmer, through economies in handling, transportation and sales, receives a large part of what the consumer pays. Daily price quotations at the plants represent closely what the housewife is willing to pay for eggs, less the low, but necessary, costs on the way. Swift & Company profits are small—over a period of years they have averaged a fraction of a cent a pound of all products or a dozen eggs sold.

MEASLES AND MUMPS PREVALENT IN COUNTY

According to reports from the health departments of Fulton and Obion counties, measles and mumps are prevalent through this section. Cases are reported in practically every community, with several present in Fulton.

Health authorities have released pertinent information pertaining to measles. Reports show that about 50 per cent of all cases occur in children under five years of age and that about 97 per cent of all children have had the disease by the time they reach their 15th birthday.

The first symptoms of measles are those of an ordinary cold, some fever with an increase of the eye, nose and throat secretions, and slight inflammation of air passages of the lungs. This irritation of the respiratory tract causes coughing and sneezing, which in turn thoroughly saturates the atmosphere immediately around the sick person. Even in talking and breathing, the infective agent is given off, so about all that is necessary for a susceptible person to catch measles is to walk by or stop and sneeze rather casually to one who is beginning to take the disease.

With the possible exception of influenza, there is no disease that spreads more rapidly or that is more difficult to control. As a result, adequate control measures are almost impossible. While the disease is highly infectious, meaning, of course, that it is easy to catch, control measures are almost useless because the person is infectious for three or four days before any breaking out appears.

Measles spreads in recurring epidemics, usually every three or five years, and outbreaks may be predicted with some degree of consistency well in advance of the epidemic. Measles seldom kills by itself, the high rate being caused by serious complications. The most serious and dangerous complication is some type of pneumonia, with bronchopneumonia occurring in about ten percent of all cases in children under five years of age. It is highly fatal in children two years of age and under. In this younger group death occurs in about one of every three cases having bronchopneumonia. Ear complications are found in about 12 per cent of all measles cases.

Most people look upon measles as being a mild disease, but the fact that children will in all probability have the disease at some time in their lives is no justification for unnecessary exposure to it. Every effort should be made to prevent the disease until the child is at least ten years of age or older because a ten year old child has about a ten to one better chance than the year old child has of pulling through safely.

Your Voice Can Now Span Pacific by 8700-mile Direct Circuit to Java

Two islands of the Dutch East Indies became closer neighbors to the United States last February, with the opening of a direct radio telephone circuit between San Francisco and Java. Service over the new channel is available to all Bell and Bell-connecting telephones in the United States, Canada, Cuba and Mexico. At the other end it reaches the island of Sumatra as well as that of Java.

Telephone communication with the Dutch East Indies has heretofore been maintained over a circuit employing two radio channels and land lines, by way of New York, London, and Amsterdam.

The new direct service is established through short wave radio telephone stations of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company which handle the service to Hawaii and the Philippines. The transmitting station is at Dixon, near Sacramento, and the receiving station at Point Reyes, just north of San Francisco.

The length of the new channel is 8,700 miles. It will be the longest radio channel operated by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, being more than twice as long as those between New York and London and 1,700 miles longer than the one now in use between San Francisco and Java.

APRIL 7TH PROCLAIMED
"LESPEDA DAY"Governor Calls on Farmers For
"Better Agricultural Conditions"

Governor Laffoon is proclaiming April 7th, Lespedeza Day, and is calling upon farmers of the State interested in the crop to observe the day in promotion of "Better Agricultural Conditions in Kentucky."

His proclamation follows in full: "Whereas, it has been called to my attention that the Federal government is urging our farmers to utilize all acres taken out of production through sowing them to cover crops to build up the soil, to stop erosion, and to aid flood control as well as provide more feed and food for home consumption, and,

"Whereas, Kentucky farmers produced last year approximately 12,000,000 pounds of Lespedeza seed to be utilized by themselves and other for soil improvement, pasture and hay, and,

"Whereas, all agricultural agencies in Kentucky have joined hands in an effort to expedite the marketing, exchange, and purchase of Lespedeza seed to put to use the idle acres in this State along lines that conform to the program of President Roosevelt in bringing about the national agricultural recovery;

"Therefore, I, Ruby Laffoon, Governor of Kentucky, do hereby set aside and proclaim Saturday, April 7th, 1934, as 'Lespedeza Day' in Kentucky for all farmers to gather together in their respective counties to market, exchange and purchase their seed to be sown during 1934 in order that they may assist in promoting better agricultural conditions in Kentucky."

It Makes a Difference.
An RFC For Industry!

UNTIL Industry is given a chance to get back to normalcy, the farmer the merchant, the banker in fact everybody else, will find their business below normal. Without the factory wheels turning, there can be no prosperity for anybody.

The reason is simply this: a very large percentage of American consumers are either Industrial workers or are engaged in some business closely allied with Industry. When they are without full-sized pay envelopes, as they have been since the depression, they cannot buy the farmers' produce, they cannot patronize the merchant, they cannot deposit money in banks. The railroads, insurance companies, even the public utility companies, feel the pinch.

The government has already given assistance to some of these groups of hard-hit enterprises to protect their capital and their stockholders. It has provided RFC loans for banks, agriculture and others. We believe these loans were necessary, but they were not the only ones necessary.

RFC loans for Industry would not only protect more investors, but would protect the jobs and payrolls of a vast army of workers. This, in turn, would help all the other groups that have received loans to pay off their obligations to the government.

Industry, suffering from the same shrinkages and depreciations as these other groups, is in need of RFC loans. Give it this help and the main door to re-employment will be thrown open.

Our government's object has been

KENTUCKY UTILITIES WILL INAUGURATE A "NEW DEAL"

A new Deal in the form of a drastic cut in the cost of electricity for major uses in the home is about to come to Mr. and Mrs. John Citizen and their sisters, cousins and aunts who live in some 360 communities served by Kentucky Utilities Company and associated companies in southwestern Virginia, according to a communication received this week by The Fulton County News from Bryant White, president of the Kentucky Utilities Company.

Announcing a rate scale ranging from 8 cents to 1 cent per kilowatt hour, and averaging about 2 1/2 cents for "full residential service," Mr. Bryant has opened a campaign for "complete electrification" of several thousand homes during the next two years.

"Full residential service" includes the use of an electric range, water-heater, refrigerator, lighting equipment and such ordinary household appliances as the washer, iron, vacuum sweeper and fans, by the average home. It is not intended as a luxury to be enjoyed by the wealthy Mr. White explained, but as a service economically practical for families in modest circumstances.

LOW MONTHLY COST
Company rate experts, who have worked out details of the plan, calculate the average family can enjoy all advantages of this "complete electrification," under the special rates for about $11 per month.

The "full residential service" rates and the monthly approximate cost to the customer compare favorably, Mr. White said, with the much publicized "yardstick" of electric rates proposed recently by the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Service and rates offered are possible only because the company now has a widespread electric transmission system with interconnected generating stations and an excess of production capacity over present demands, according to Mr. White.

The full residential service rates will be offered by Kentucky Utilities Company, Lexington Utilities Company, Kentucky Power & Light Company and by Old Dominion Power Company which operates in southwestern Virginia.

"We are staking a tremendous amount in revenues and money invested in equipment on the hope that this new full residential service with the market cut in rates will meet with a very great immediate response from our customers," Mr. White said.

to see that people were given jobs—and jobs were created for them at government expense. We agree with the administration on this when it becomes vitally necessary to supply people with a chance to make a living. But why not, since people must be given jobs, open the regular channels of Industrial employment and put them to work at productive labor, in jobs at which they are experienced?

Until Industry is given a chance to get back to normalcy, nothing else can get to normalcy. All of the groups that have received loans to date are dependent upon Industrial prosperity. They will use up loan after loan so long as Industry is stagnant.

Industry is a creator of wealth jobs. It makes freight for railroads to carry. It pays wages so men and women can pay their insurance premiums and have money to deposit in banks. When banks have deposits, insurance companies are paid premiums and carriers have normal freight and passenger service. They will need no loans.
