Rationing Goes Off Gasoline And Foods

Meats, Butter and Everything Else Will Be Point Free When Stocks Increase

OPA ended rationing Wednesday on gasoline, canned fruits and vegetables, fuel oil and oil stoves, and promised the earliest possible removal of every other item on the ration list.

Price controls have been lifted on luxury furs, jewelry, low-cost toys, cigarette lighters, pipes, some photographic apparatus some sports equipment and clothes pins.

Rationing of meats, fats and oils, butter, sugar, shoes, tires and other commodities will increase indefinitely until military cutbacks and increased production can balance supply and demand.

War Plant Layoffs Increase In Nation

Unemployment will hit hardest at aircraft, ordnance and shipbuilding centers, according to the War Manpower Commission, which stated that 6,200,000 people may be looking for jobs by mid-December. This number will perhaps reach 8,900,000 by next spring.

All but 30 or 40 of the War Production Board controls over industry will be lifted by this week end.

Release of a huge industrial building program is designed to absorb manpower and materials freed by military cutbacks. Ceilings will be removed on production of automobiles and other consumer durable goods. The important industries may now move forward with all-out production programs.

Armed Forces Plan Quick Cut Back

Demobilization plans designed to release 7,500,000 men from the Army, Navy and Marine Corps within the next 12 to 18 months were announced this week.

Army enlisted men may be released within 90 days after they ask for release if they are 35 years old. The service's point discharge system remains unchanged.

HISTORY OF THE WAR IN REVIEW

Beginning this week, there will appear each week in The News a series of articles pertaining to the history of World War II.

In the pre-war world there was an unequal distribution of the world's resources. For example, the Far East has seven times as many people as North America, but less food and only one-fifth as much oil. World trade tends to reduce inequalities of resources among the nations of the world. Free exchange of goods gives the peoples of all countries greater opportunity to secure the necessities of life, to raise living standards.

There are several strategic points such as the Panama Canal and Suez where the flow of trade may be stopped. Control over any one of these points means, therefore, the power to deny to other nations free access to world trade. As long as control rests with a nation wishing to encourage rather than hamper trade, there is little danger that such power will be misused. In wartime these strategic points take on added importance, because the nation controlling them can send its own troops and supplies through them while denying the enemy passage.

Spurred on by nationalistic ambition and jealousy of British and American trade dominance, Nazi Germany formulated bold plans to seize control over three of the strategic bottlenecks as a first step in a bid for world domination. Her leaders realized that she was within striking distance of these points by land and air. Ever since Hitler had come to power in 1933 he had been rearming Germany. Already in 1936 he felt strong enough to move troops into the demilitarized Rhineland.

On the other side of the world Japan stretched her tentacles towards Singapore, another bottleneck of world trade. Germany formally laid the basis for aggression in a pact with Italy and Japan in 1936-37 pledging consultation and collaboration. She had extended her influences in Spain by successful intervention in the Civil War there. But Germany could not strike fear without first securing her back by destroying the power of nearby nations. The first step in her program, therefore, was the bloodless conquest of Austria (1938) and Czechoslovakia (1938-39). The latter move brought Hitler to the southern boundaries of Poland.

Hitler then denounced his ten-year non-aggression pact with Poland. On August 23, 1939, he made a new one with the Soviet Union, thereby removing the danger that he would have to fight on two major fronts should France and England come to Poland's aid. On September 1, 1939, he struck. Axis fashion without a declaration of war.

Poland could not withstand simultaneous attacks from three sides by Germany's new and well equipped army. Her own army was concentrated at the center; but the German forces were spread out on the flank to encircle the Poles. By the end of the first week the inferior Polish Air Force had been destroyed, the Polish Army was practically cut off from retreat, and the German panzer (armored) units were racing toward Warsaw. Britain and France who had declared that a state of war existed between themselves and Germany, were in no position to send help to their distant ally.

With absolute control of the air, Germany launched a second encircling movement from the East Prussian flank. Though isolated Polish contingents resisted for a time, the destruction of the Polish Armies was inevitable. The tremendous striking power of the Nazi Air Force and mechanized units had been clearly demonstrated. Their success was due largely to blitzkrieg tactics—swift, coordinated offensive operations of highly mobile land and air units. Foreseeing the imminent collapse of Polish authority, the Soviet Union sent the Red Army in to occupy Eastern Poland, thereby creating a buffer area between Russia proper and the Nazis. In four weeks Poland ceased to exist.

The son of Mrs. Tezzie Mahan of 214 Carr St., Fulton, he was a railroad worker before entering the Army.

which followed the conquest of Poland, Europe was anxiously wondering against whom the Nazis were going to strike next. The poisonous strategy of "divide and conquer" was applied unrelentingly by Nazi agents in neighboring countries. Every insidious means was taken to create suspicion and dissension and thus to weaken the resistance of surrounding nations.

Fifth column activities engineered by Germany paved the way for military operations by eating away moral fibre and paralyzing the will to resist.

Operations on the Western Front during these six months were largely confined to patrol activities. Many were fooled into believing that this was a "phony" war, while actually Germany was gathering her forces for an all-out offensive.

Then on April 9, 1940, Germany assailed two peaceful and democratic nations: Denmark and Norway. This event brought to light the effective weakening of Norway by German "tourists." Because of fifth-column activity and the unpreparedness of the loyal majority, the success of the coordinated land, sea and air attacks was assured. Norwegian mobilization was paralyzed when the Germans landed at the same time in Denmark and all along the Norwegian Coast.

British attempts to interrupt German movements were prevented by overwhelming air superiority based on control of all airfields. This was one of the first demonstrations of the superiority of land-based aviation over a carrier-based air force. By their move into Norway, the Nazis secured a winter route for the shipment of Swedish iron ore and more bases for ships and planes with which to attack British and Allied shipping.

The King of Norway escaped and a Norwegian government in exile was set up in London. Denmark submitted to Nazi rule without major resistance until August, 1943. (Continued Next Week)

WORLD-WIDE WAR ENDS AT LONG LAST

News was flashed at 6 p. m. Tuesday that history's most destructive conflict has come to an end, except for the formalities. President Truman made the official announcement from Washington. Although arrangements still had to be completed from the signing of formal surrender terms, the Allied armed forces were ordered to suspend offensive action.

General Douglas MacArthur has been appointed Supreme Allied commander to receive the surrender.

A message was received by the United States Government Tuesday afternoon from the Japanese Government in reply to the message forwarded to that government by the Secretary of State on August 11.

In announcing the surrender of Japan, President Truman said: "This is a great day. This is the day we have been looking for since Dec. 7, 1941. This is the day for the police government ceases in the world. This is the day for the democracies. This is the day when we can start on our real task of implementation of free government in the world."

"We are faced with the greatest task we ever have been faced with. The emergency is as great as it was on Dec. 7, 1941. It is going to take the help of all of us to do it. I know we are going to do it."

For millions of Americans, for hundreds of millions of Allied people, his surrender announcement signified victory, peace and the eventual return of loved ones from war. To millions who sleep beneath stark white crosses, it meant their sacrifices had not been in vain. For Japan, as for already vanquished Germany, it meant the end of savage conquest and aggression, dismemberment of an empire won by blood-spilling, disarmament and occupation.

Those were the terms of the Allied declaration of Potsdam, decreeing unconditional surrender, to which Japan acceded.

Once the Japanese sphere had stretched from Attu to Timor and Java and India. Once Japan kept half a billion people enslaved under iron rule, and threatened to enfold another half billion.

Now she is defeated—without invasion—but at a terrific cost.

Now for the United States, the war was more than a million casualties, price of victory in World War II an expenditure of some $300,000,000,000.

Twelve children are in this family, five of them are in the armed forces, with the youngest 18 years old.

Sgt. Treamon Roberts, 25, is stationed at Camp Lee, Va. His wife, Mrs. Blondell McDavid Roberts and small son, reside at McComb, Miss.

Pvt. Reed Roberts, 24, is with an ordnance unit somewhere in the Pacific.

Cpl. Vernon Roberts, 22, is with a repair unit at Manila, Philippines Islands.

Staff Sgt. Paul Roberts, Jr., 20, a tankman, is somewhere in Southern Germany.

Pvt. Howard N. Roberts, 18, Infantry scout, is now in Czechoslovakia.

Howard was wounded during the latter part of the campaign in Germany. He holds the Combat Infantryman's badge and the Purple Heart.

Paul and Vernon have been in service for three years; Fred also two years, and Treamon a year.

Mrs. Robbie Perry and Mrs. Rose Allen, two sisters, and William Roberts, live in Memphis. Jeanette, Thelma, and Lillian, three young sisters, and J. C. Roberts, a younger brother, live with their parents at Dukedom.

DO WE WANT THIS?

An attempt is being made in Malheur county this week end to arouse the people to favor the creation of a Columbia Valley Authority. This "authority," if its proponents can swing it, will be operated somewhat in the manner of the existing Tennessee Valley Authority.

Before we go all out in support of a little empire of bureaucrats in this neck of the woods, suppose we check up a little on what the TVA is doing. Here is an incomplete list of what TVA is doing:

1. Operating libraries.
2. Operating tree nurseries.
3. Manufacturing fertilizers, ammonia, phosphorus, laminated wood etc., etc.
4. Directing operations on large area of farm land.
5. Promoting food processing and marketing associations.
6. Processing fish.
7. Constructing and operating river terminals.
8. Operating flood control facilities.
9. Operating malaria control program.
10. Operating farm lands.
11. Lumbering.
12. Operating recreational facilities, including tourist cabins.
13. Readjusting families.
14. Renting houses.
15. Producing and selling electric power.
16. Regulating electric rates of resale customers.
17. Loaning money.
18. Quarrying limestone.
19. Doing engineering work outside TVA area.
20. Experimenting with socialized medicine.
21. Engaging in freight rate hearings.
22. Carrying on wide variety of research, part of which is outside the TVA area.
23. Operating grocery stores and service stations.
24. Operating schools.
25. Operating domestic water supply systems.
26. Operating drugstore.
27. Directing forestry, commercial, agricultural, and health activities.
28. Doing construction no large scale.
29. Doing construction on large ties.
30. Directing plan for industrial and business development of the area.

When it was created in 1933, TVA was authorized to do only a few simple things: to take charge of Muscle Shoals, to develop flood control, to control navigation, and to work for the proper development of marginal lands. The act stated (more or less parenthetically) that in case the project developed more electric power than it needed it was authorized to sell it.

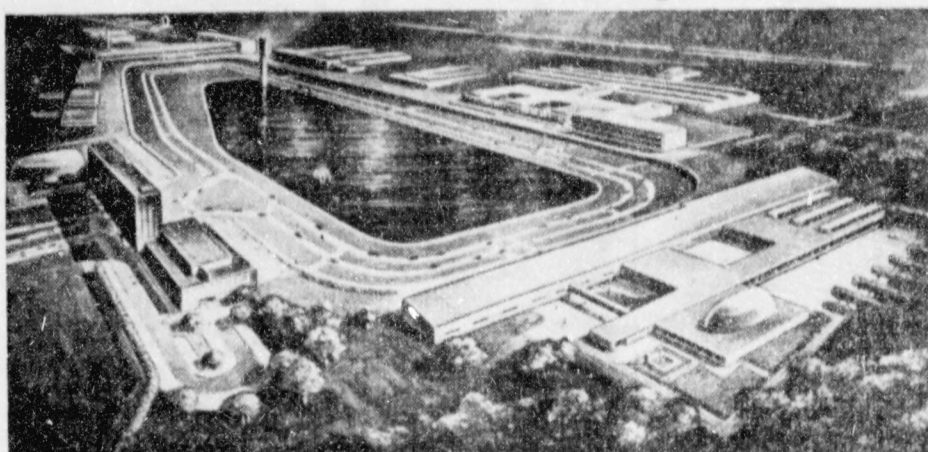

If Columbia Valley Authority grows and spreads like TVA did, in accepting it we would be selling our liberty for the mere promise of a mess of pottage. Broad powers and unlimited funds granted to almost any group of fallible humans results in waste, inefficiency, regimentation, and eventually in desolation, want and fear.—(Eastern Oregon Observer.)

SEAWAY TO SPENDING

The sponsors of Federal power ownership have long sought to launch the United States on the development of a St. Lawrence seaway. The argument is advanced that this would cut railroad freight rates. The fact that the seaway would be blocked with ice months of each year, and that the country tributary to it would be helpless without the railroads, is never mentioned. Buried in the St. Lawrence seaway proposal is also a well worked out plan for Federal development of power at the expense of the general taxpayer.

Why should our government in-

GM Plans Vast New Technical Center To Create More Jobs Through Research

UTILITY AND BEAUTY are combined in the overall design of the new General Motors Technical Center (as shown in the artist's conception above) which is to be built just outside the automobile center of Detroit with a postwar objective of creating "More Jobs Through Research." This view shows the layout of buildings and connecting the Research Laboratories building. Other buildings shown in the drawing represent potential expansion.

jure such industries as coal mining, electric utilities and railroads, which employ millions of workers and pay government billions of dollars in taxes? Why should we sanction projects which reduce jobs in private industry, thereby forcing our citizens onto public payrolls? What excuse is there for our government going into industrial projects unless there is deliberate intent to make government the master in industrial activity, and the people mere servants of the government? Why not keep government to the functions of governing and encourage free industry to expand as in the past, under suitable regulation?

Why should we promote national socialism which by insidious methods seeks to dominate or eliminate the activities of private citizens in many lines of endeavor? It is time to think about this if we wish to perpetuate a free America.

"COMPULSION" NOT "VOLUNTARY"

In the plans now before Congress to expand social security, a program for socialized medicine is included which is patterned along European lines. Proponents of such legislation to put the government in the driver's seat over the individual, never like to have the words "socialism," "compulsion" or "taxation" used in describing their plans. But if Federal domination and control of a nation's medical set-up isn't socialism, then European nations that boast of their socialized medicine are misusing the term. If legalized deduction of four per cent from an employee's pay check and a like deduction from the employer paying the check is not a tax, it would be hard to find a name for it. If the fact that both a wage earner and employer have to pay the tax is not "compulsion," then the word compulsion has no meaning.

There has been persistent endeavor to apply the terms "voluntary" and "contributions" to the eight per cent this proposed law would take from workers and employers to finance this expanded social security program, including socialized medicine.

The cost of this measure would run into many billions of dollars each year. The nature of the medical program in the bill is compulsory and just the opposite of the voluntary health insurance programs which now cover millions of individuals in the United States and which are open to all at less cost than the gigantic omnibus social security, health, unemployment and old-age provisions now embodied in one bill before Congress.

THE AMERICAN WAY

By George Peck
AMERICA CAN REMAIN FREE

By Dr. Norman Vincent Peale
Can the United States resist the world-wide trend toward a collective state? Thoughtful observers are aware that most European countries are turning to Communism; perhaps not to a strict Marxian Communism, but to something very similar. Their programs include not only nationalization of many industries and banks, but also land, meaning the abolition of private property, which is of course, Communism. Even in Britain the tide toward collectivism is mounting.

Should all Europe turn Communist, it would leave the United States as the sole great capitalistic country in a collectivist world. The question then would be, would we be able to live and to do business with the world whose nations have economies so vastly different to our own. Would the pressure become so great that the Free Enterprise philosophy of business and government would find it most difficult to survive?

Personally, I believe that our American system can move toward wider social reform and still preserve private initiative, competition, private property and all of the basic values associated with the American way. But this result will not obtain automatically. Only by hard thinking, active work and sincere effort can we keep our form of social and economic life in which we have so long believed.

The Communists and Fascists (I lump them together because they are merely two facets of superstition) are determined to take over this country. For a long time I did not believe this. I know that only a small number of actual Communists and Fascists exists in this nation, but they are reinforced by a vast number of well-meaning people who "go along." It must be remembered that approximately 90,000 Communists took over Russia, and we know that only a few Fascists took over Germany and Italy in the beginning.

Most Americans do not want either Communism or Fascism. They hate both. What they want is Americanism, a democratic, socially-conscious economy in which the individual is given opportunity to get ahead, to enjoy the privileges of this life, to have sufficient of this world's goods; in short, they wish to preserve the things which have distinguished America from the very beginning of our history and which have made us the greatest nation in the world.

In spite of this, there still remains the danger that our people will be powerless to prevent the coming of either Fascism or Communism. They may fall victim to shrewd propagandists; and the foolish "fellow-travelers," having served the purpose of their clever manipulators, will be pushed aside. If this comes to pass, these "fellow-travelers" will stand aghast as they behold what they unwittingly helped to bring about.

But we can resist the trend to Communism if we preserve two things; first, the spirit of Christian brotherhood and understanding—people can always debate issues if they do so in a spirit of kindness and fairness. Second, everybody must be allowed freely to express themselves without being subjected to personal attack, vilification, vindictive and hateful slurs, to lies being told about them to impugn their motives.

Years ago Lloyd George said that there is a difference in the very air of America as compared with the Old World. He said it is alive and vibrant and has a tonic quality. We do not want the deadening, decayed things of the Old World. What we need to do is to continue the vigor, the sportsmanship, the meanness and the Christian attitudes which have characterized America. We can solve our problems. We are different from any country in the world, and we do not need to "go along" with the march of European peoples toward paternalistic government control, and the eventual breakdown of democratic civilization. America can remain free.

THE AMERICAN WAY

RANCID BUTTER

By DR. ALFRED P. HAAKE
Our family just did not have enough red points to buy butter, so we went to oleomargarine. After a while we liked the "oleo" and didn't mind using it. There must have been other people like that, because our market man has been trying for weeks to sell us butter, telling us that he had more than he knew what to do with.

We finally bought some butter—and then could not eat it. That stuff had lain "in state" somewhere so long that it was strong enough to stand by itself. Some unkind person might say it was part of the butter we gave to the Russians, and took back because they did not find it fit to eat.

We have heard of car-loads of eggs that spoiled because too long stored or improperly cared for; of meats that rotted and had to be thrown out; and other items accumulated and even spoiled because deliberately denied to the public or kept unnecessarily high in point values.

We remember the mountains of rubber tires which patriotic citizens gave up to the government in the first throes of rubber scarcity. There were billions of miles of travel left in those tires, but the authorities were not ready for them and permitted them to rot by the thousands.

There were stories of gasoline poured down streams, wasted, because it meant the use of tires which took the place of those rotting in the piles.

Other stories told of enough obstetrical calipers to furnish all the doctors in the country for five years, and other items, all for possible but highly improbable use by the armed forces.

In Bloomington, Indiana, at this moment it is said, 148 new three-ton trucks are rotting and rusting in the weather. Looks as though the Army cannot use them, and the bureaucrats cannot get around to doing anything about them until they are no longer fit for use by civilians who need them so desperately.

Some stories may be exaggerated, but they illustrate the inefficiency and waste the bureaucratic control. We recognize the necessity of government control of supplies in time of war, for no other agency is as well informed to know the relative needs of military and civilian use. But, we also recognize the folly of extending or continuing that control beyond the point of necessity, or carrying it over into peace time as a regular diet.

It is no idle dream to warn ourselves against the danger that power-hungry bureaucrats may use wartime controls to establish collectivism here as has already been done elsewhere.

Symbolic of the billions upon billions of dollars of waste is the butter we bought and could not eat. It does seem too bad to let anything spoil before permitting people to use it—even though, as is reported, butter is taken out of the warehouses to make into laundry. Surely the American people deserve better than that, and have every right to insist that a stop be put to such wanton and unnecessary wastage.

The need for abundant food supplies will last far longer than the Jap War.

Lumber cut this fall far war purposes will lessen the need for lumber for white crosses next spring.

Your livestock can enjoy and benefit from a green carpet of winter cover crops under their hoofs next winter.

Don't keep hens—let hens keep you. When a hen stops working for you—you begin working for her. If you have 20 cull hens in a flock of 100 hens, 20 of your layers are working for the culls and only 60 of them are working for you.

Market supplies of chickens and turkey will increase seasonally from now until fall, but the unprecedented consumer demand will continue to create shortages. Field reports indicate production of turkey meat may be 10 percent greater than the record of 547,000,000 pounds set in 1944, and the number of chickens on farm June 1 was 1 percent greater than the 1944 total.

Great things can be accomplished in our days; great discoveries, for example, great enterprises; but these do not give greatness to our epoch. Greatness makes itself appear notably by its point of departure, by its flexibility, by its thought. —Sainte-Beuve.

SAY "WE"

By RUTH TAYLOR

Unity — unity — unity. United Nations. United States. United people. The word is like a drum beat through our minds wherever we turn. But—how can we achieve this much to be desired end—this cohesiveness, this unity?

Kipling once pointed out a simple, yet truly practical way. It was in his verse story of the Norman Baron advising his son: "Say 'we' 'us', and 'ours' when you're talking, instead of 'you fellows' and 'I'."

Nothing but good, sound, practical common sense when you stop to think it over. If we, who pride ourselves on being Americans, would think in terms of "we", "us", and "ours" instead of "you fellows" and "I", if we would temper our personal ambitions in the pool of our common interests, we could by our combined abilities solve our mutual problems.

After all, why do we want unity? Because we have learned by the hard way of war, the lesson that no man liveth unto himself, alone, that there is nothing, even in our every day lives, in which we are not dependent upon others and they upon us.

We cannot achieve prosperity, we cannot reach the pinnacles of any success, we cannot even have peace, by ourselves without help from others. What concerns one, concerns all.

There is no phrase of life to which this does not apply. There will be no peace for man and women anywhere until the world is at peace.

We cannot separate citizens into groups by class, creed, color of original origin—we have seen what the concept of second class citizenship has done to countries overseas. Here—all are Americans—period.

Unity means working as "we", not as "you and I". Unity is not a standing on opposite sides of the wall of our differences. It is joining forces on a common ground of desires, aims, ambitions, hopes, and—most of all—ideals.

In our own communities during the past years, we have met many of the problems which appear in the larger scene. We have witnessed the getting together of people from different backgrounds or with different social concepts. We work together because we work as neighbors. We not only tolerate each other's opinion, we moderate our own viewpoints.

This is working together. As we use the "we" concept rather than the "I" we shall win our way to a peaceful world. This is the ideal of Democracy.

THE AMERICAN WAY

THE CANNON POLISHER
By GEORGE PECK

Dick Dope wasn't a bad sort of a chap—all his friends liked him, but regretted that nature had failed to endow him with his fair share of brains. Poor Dick! he found it difficult to eke out an existence.

A group of his friends came to his rescue. Each member of the group agreed to chip in one dollar per week to give to Dick. So that he could maintain his self-respect and not consider himself an object of charity, they bought a big brass cannon and told Dick his job was to keep that cannon polished.

This was comparative opulence for Dick—he wasn't lazy and he tackled his new job with vim and vigor; he kept that old brass cannon resplendently shined. After a lapse of several months, Dick came to one of his employers and said, "I'm sorry but I've got to leave you fellows."

"Why, Dick? That's too bad. Is there anything wrong?" the friend inquired.

"No," replied Dick, "I've saved the wages you fellows have paid me; I've bought a cannon of my own and I'm going into business for myself."

Quite a stupid fellow this Dick Dope—not smart enough to sense the benevolence of his friends, he had come to the conclusion that his benefactors some how or other were making themselves rich off his sweat and toil. Just how they were doing it, Dick didn't know, but one thing he was sure of and that was that they weren't entitled to any profit on his labor.

Unfortunately, there are too many Dick Dopes in this country—men who delude themselves into believing that the boss is just a lucky "stiff" who by some sort of accident or trickery has gotten into a position of responsibility and authority.

These Dick Dopes either are not smart enough to realize, or refuse to understand, that invested capital is entitled to a fair return; that the men who are successfully managing businesses, large and small, and who are thereby giving employment to others, are entitled to compensation commensurate with the service they are rendering to society.

It is these Dick Dopes who are certain the capitalistic system has outlived its usefulness and who vociferously demand that America abandon its system of Competitive Enterprise and adopt one of the totalitarian systems. Because of their lack of ability or industry or thrift, they are envious of those who possess those desirable qualifications. Not willing or able to lift themselves up, their ambition is to pull others down, down to their level—in other words, to apply the lawn-mower method of trimming everyone down to the same low stature.

Yes, we have a lot of Dick Dopes among us—brass cannon polishers who don't know how lucky they are in having the opportunity to work and earn wages, polishing a cannon bought, paid for and maintained by someone else. They don't realize that this is only possible under a system like the American Way, and that under some other kind of political or economic system, the chances are they would not be polishing cannons—they might even be fodder for them.

"LET'S CALL HER NANCY"

And being christened, this plaything—of no earthly use for winning a war—becomes precious to Sergeant Williams and his Mary Lou.

Precious to her as a gift from her Daddy, home only yesterday from a place called Europe.

Precious to him for the memory of adoring eyes that will follow him in 30 days across 5,000 miles of blue Pacific.

We have a fatherly interest in that doll, ourselves. The Illinois Central brought her to town. She came as one of many pieces of freight classified unromantically as "merchandise."

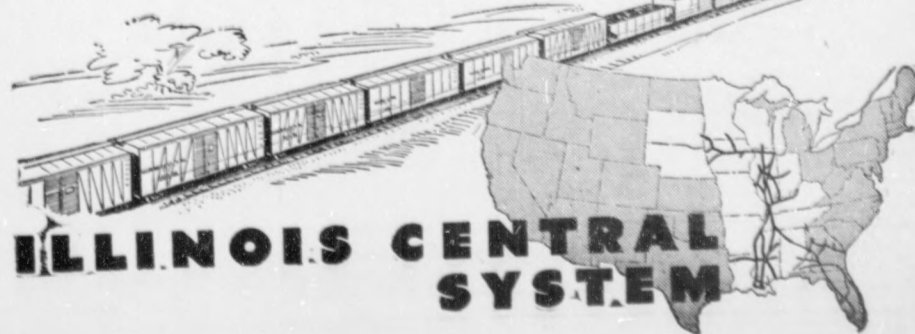

Last year we handled 892,462 carloads of "merchandise" and "miscellaneous" freight, ranging all the way from steel castings and canned goods to baby rattles.

If you'll look in the windows and on the shelves of your local stores, you'll see many things the Illinois Central brings to your community.

The railroads provide low cost delivery service for most of the merchandise the American people buy and use every day. No other transportation does so much for so many for so little.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Soul" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, August 19, 1945.

The Golden Text is: "My soul waiteth for the Lord more than they that watch for the morning; I say, more than they that watch for the morning." (Ps. 130)

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "I stretch forth my hands unto thee; my soul thirsteth after thee, as a thirsty hand . . . Cause me to hear thy lovingkindness in the morning; for in thee do I trust; cause me to know the way wherein I should walk; for I lift up my soul to thee." (Ps. 143)

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Lamb is a good summer meat. If a whole leg can be purchased, have three or four sirloin steaks cut from the heavy end to broil for one meal. Then roast the remainder another day. Use left over lamb in patties, curry or casserole dishes. For a distinctive flavor, baste the lamb while baking with French dressing, then sprinkle it with chopped mint leaves for 15 minutes before removing from the oven. If desired, lamb may be served with mint sauce.

Roast Leg of Lamb
1 leg of lamb

1-2 teaspoon salt
1-8 teaspoon pepper
Flour.

Wipe the meat with a damp cloth, sprinkle with salt and pepper and rub well with flour. Lay the roast, fat side up on a rack in an open pan without water. Place in low oven, 325 degrees, and roast for 35 to 40 minutes to the pound. Lamb must be well done. Make gravy from drippings.

Menu: Roast leg of lamb, browned potatoes with gravy, buttered squash, wholewheat rolls and butter and peace icecream.

PAYMENTS ON SHEEP AND LAMBS FOR SLAUGHTER

Government action designed to increase the supply of lamb and mutton by helping producers meet increased costs through Commodity Credit Corporation payments to sheep raisers and lamb feeders was announced today by the Secretary of Agriculture, Clinton P. Anderson. The payments will become effective on sheep and lambs marketed on or after August 5, 1945, and through June, 1946.

The Commodity Credit Corporation payments to the seller of lambs and sheep to legally authorized slaughterers for slaughter will range from $1.50 to $2.50 per hundredweight for lambs weighing to 90 pounds; from $2.15 to $3.15 per hundredweight for lambs weighing over 90 pounds; and they will be $1.00 per hundredweight for all other sheep and lambs.

The variation of payments is designed to create the returns from heavier lambs and to make feeding more attractive. The highest payments are to be made on lambs weighing over 90 pounds, during the months when fed lambs are usually marketed.

At the same time the Reconstruction Finance Corporation announced that the subsidy of 95 cents per hundredweight now paid to slaughterers for all sheep and lambs slaughtered in authorized plants will be withdrawn, as to any slaughter performed on and after August 5, 1945.

The program seeks (1) to encourage the raising and feeding of lambs to heavier weights, (2) to bring about a more normal seasonal distribution in the marketing of lambs, (3) to divert more market lambs into legitimate slaughter channels, (4) to help producers meet increased costs without increasing consumer prices on lamb and mutton.

Recommendations of a sheep industry committee composed of representatives of sheep raisers, feeders and packers were considered in drawing up the program.

In recent months sheep raisers and lamb feeders have been subject to increasing costs and decreasing profits. As a result, brooding ewes and relatively light lambs have been sold for slaughter. Stock sheep have decreased from slightly less than 50 million head on January 1, 1942 to approximately 41 million head, January 1, 1945.

To be eligible for payments under the new program, sheep and lambs must be sold to a legally authorized slaughterer who has certified that the animals are purchased for slaughter. Sellers should retain their sales accounts, invoices, and other evidence showing the weights and purchasers of all lambs and sheep sold on or after August 5, 1945.

Payments to sellers are to be made through the offices of County Committees of the Agricultural Adjustment Agency.

While the program is expected to increase the supply of lambs, consumers should not expect an immediate increase in total supply since time is required to grow and fatten lambs to heavier weights. More lambs are expected to be marketed through legitimate channels, resulting in improved distribution.

The complete schedule of payments per hundred weight for sheep and lambs August, 1945 through June 1946, follows:

Lambs 65 to 90 lbs	Over 90 lbs.
Aug. 1945 1.50	2.15
Sept. 1945 1.50	2.15
Oct. 1945 1.50	2.15
Nov. 1945 1.50	2.15
Dec. 1945 2.00	2.65
Jan. 1946 2.00	2.65
Feb. 1946 2.50	3.15
Mar. 1946 2.50	3.15
Apr. 1946 2.50	3.15
May 1946 2.00	2.65
June 1946 2.00	2.65

Payments for all other sheep, August 1945 through June 1946, will be $1.00 per hundredweight.

The new payment program, with payments made by the Commodity Credit Corporation instead of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is in accordance with Senate Bill 1270 passed by the Congress on July 20, 1945, and now awaiting signature by the President.

THE COMMON DEFENSE

Fuzzy Minds Cannot Win

In a recent article in the New Leader, William Henry Chamberlin quoted Arthur Koestler as having said in his book, "The Yogi and the Commissar," "The predicament of Western civilization is that it has ceased to be aware of the values which it is in peril of losing." Obviously so—for it is impossible for anyone to be aware of values in which he has ceased to believe, of whose nature he is ignorant, and of whose source he has forgotten.

Mr. Chamberlin, referring to the evil effects of what he calls "the revolt against civilization," says that "the two great curses of the twentieth century" are "war and totalitarian methods of rule" which "have reduced great areas of the world to wastelands, desolate materially, culturally, and spiritually."

And how curb the revolt against civilization? Mr. Chamberlin declares that it is necessary to regain "a sense of certain absolute values, human liberty, reason, elementary standards of justice and humanity, and to be just as uncompromising about those values as William Lloyd Garrison was in his denunciation of slavery."

ATHLETES FOOT

Make This 10 Minute Test

Successful treatments must reach the germ. Powders, ointments and mild solutions do not penetrate sufficiently. Get a strong mobile liquid. One containing at least 80 per cent alcohol is good. We suggest Te-ol. It contains 90 per cent. REACHES MORE GERMS. Most druggists now have the test size. Small lot just arrived at Bennett Drug Store.

In brief, Mr. Chamberlin is saying that you can't fight something with nothing. You can't defeat the totalitarian idea—which is very definite and absolute and dogmatic—with no idea at all. You can't defeat it as relative, of whose feat it, either, with an idea about which you are uncertain, or where truth you are doubtful. You must believe in them on reasonable grounds and without compromise. Then you are prepared to give battle to the totalitarian idea—certainly not until then.

For example, it has been shown countless times that anti-Semitism is but the beginning of a chain of persecutions—all based on the denial of the Christian principle of man's sacredness and his possession of inalienable rights as the gift of God. It has been demonstrated over and over again that—as in Hitler's Germany—anti-Semitism leads to dictatorship. It must, because it involves the suppression of freedom—and free government's don't go in for that. It takes a dictator to do that—to suppress freedom.

Very well—no one, absolutely no one—has a chance of standing up to the anti-semite and defeating their idea unless he knows—not supposes, but knows and is positive in his own mind—that anti-Semitism is wrong because it violates the truth—the truth being that God has given the same inherent rights to all men and that, irrespective of race or religion, these rights must be respected, whether they be the rights of the Protestant, Catholics, Jews, or anyone else.

To violate them in any case or in any instance is to defy the moral law of God. That is what we must know. To waiver in this knowledge—to be unsure of our position—is to go over the other side, the side of the dictators, the suppressors, the totalitarians.

The totalitarian idea will be defeated, not by the fuzzy-minded, but by those who think straight and in accordance with the law of God.

Salute TO KENTUCKY'S SOLDIERS OF THE SOIL

THE farmer is the unsung hero of World War II. Faced with such handicaps as unfavorable weather, a shortage of help, lack of machinery and insufficient supplies of fertilizer and insecticides, Kentucky farmers have toiled long and hard to achieve the greatest production record of all time.

In winning the battle of production—which made the battle of bullets possible—these soldiers of the soil produced in Kentucky during 1944 the following record-breaking crops in terms of market values:

Tobacco.....	$197,254,000
Corn.....	89,387,000
Hogs.....	63,000,000
Dairy products.....	62,000,000
Poultry and eggs.....	50,000,000
Hay.....	42,685,000
Beef cattle.....	40,000,000
Sheep and wool.....	8,000,000

In this marvelous production record electricity played an important part. The Kentucky Utilities organization is proud to have shared in making that record possible through the 12,000 rural customers it serves direct and the eighteen R. E. A. co-operatives to which it supplies power wholesale.

Even though wartime shortages of materials greatly impeded natural expansion, rural electrification has made progress in Kentucky during the war years. Many more farmers will have the benefit of electric service as soon as the necessary material and man-power can be obtained to build the many line extensions to those who have already applied for service.

TIDBITS

THE HALL CLOSET

All radio fans enjoy Fibber McGee's famous over-crowded closet with its contents tumbling out on unsuspecting people. I suppose that the reason we all laugh week after week at this farcical play is that it brings forcibly to our minds our own adventures in putting things away. Every house has its storage place, nearly always inadequate. When I think back over my days at Fidelity, I can recall how wisely we saved everything useful and then found ourselves fenced in with this plunder.

Every part of our small house—small for the number of people who had to occupy it—was filled to overflowing, and our house was not very different from the most prosperous or the least. Dressers, bureaus, and trunks held their quota of things not for immediate use. The old-fashioned beds, with their tall headboards, furnished a ready-made closet merely by turning the bed slightly away from alignment with a wall. On the headboard could be fastened hangers of all sorts to hold dresses, winter wraps, and suchlike. The corners could be piled with hand-boxed and their contents. Closets themselves bulged with bed cover, quilt-making or patching or re-making of garments. The old Seth Thomas Clock was a store-house for poisonous drugs and for valuables. On the walls of the kitchen could be hung up bags of dried apples and other things saved for the Paraden. Several safes held the dishes, every-day and Sunday, and every nook and corner of both the kitchen and the dining rooms had its complement of junk.

Our house had only one story, with a finished "loft" above some of it. This attic or loft was crowded with chests and boxes and bags. In winter we stored the canned fruit in the loft above the kitchen, so the warmth from the stove and the fireplace could prevent freezing. The few open spaces in the loft, dimly lighted by a window over by the chimney, made a good playhouse. Tons of cast-off clothing could always be found for dressing up and playing going to see. Things slightly less valuable or more bulky than those stored in the closets found their way into this loft storehouse.

The smokehouse was primarily for meats, but it held everything imaginable: sauerkraut, soap grease, lye soap, seed corn (hung up in sacks dangling by a string to stop raids by rats,) etc., etc. The shed room to the smokehouse held the loom when it was not in use. It was too big to set up in there and had to be knocked down and stored. The spinning wheel also reposed there in the warm summer months, but as fall came on, it had its daily or nightly duty to perform as Mother spun the thread for our Christmas stockings. Supernumerary wash kettles, the wash tubs, the wash boards, and similar things, bulky and not in daily use, made the shedroom to the smokehouse another Fibber McGee's closet.

Around the farm there were many other places where things were kept dry or in out of the weather. The loft over the buggy shed, the space under the corner crib (which was built on a hillside and thus had a high lower side,) the tobacco barns in spring and summer after the old crop was disposed of and before the new one was cut—these are some of the storage places that I can now recall. There must have been many more. Noah's Ark might have had a more varied assortment than all these storage nooks and rooms contained, but I doubt it. The more I think of it, the more I wonder where all this junk had come from. But I was the tenth child; the family had had time to collect a lot of unnecessary stuff before I arrived, and nobody ever thought of throwing anything away. No wonder a man whom I knew rejoiced when his house burned, for it destroyed so much plunder that was always in the way.

A TRIBUTE TO YOUTH

by Ruth Taylor

Just before they went overseas, a group of soldiers was asked what they would say to the youth of the nation if they had only one minute on the air. The answer came quickly and surely from one lad:—"Learn how to live for the things for which we die."

I heard that story during a recent when I had the privilege and pleasure of addressing young people in colleges throughout the South, and of talking with them in their class rooms. To me it expresses just what the youth of today is trying to translate into action.

I rise in tribute to the clear thinking, high idealism of these young people. There was none of the wilderness I had been told I should find, none of the impatience of intolerance with conditions. They were both levelheaded and farsighted, realistic and idealistic.

The young people of today are learning how to live for the things for which our boys—their brothers and sweethearts—are dying. They face their problems in this light. They are eager to understand those problems. Their questions are intelligent in the extreme, their speech measured.

They face the fact that their lives may be no different from their dreams, but they already know that their elders stumbled over, that no man is free unless all men are free; that all must serve in a democracy; that special privilege and special discrimination are alike in the face of basic injustice.

They are determined that the world of tomorrow be a better world for all people, that cooperation be the key to peace and prosperity. They are not ashamed of being idealistic. They know they cannot live at another person's expense; that each man must shape his own life; that the only way to have a friend is to be one; that action is best which procures the numbers.

They do not overlook the past, greatest happiness for the greatest but they are not afraid of the future. They are mentally prepared to face it. There is not hatred. But there is determination to solve this problem of war. They believe in fighting for those things that are Right but they are determined to take preventative measures at the first sign of tyranny. They know in what sort of a world they went to live, and they are determined to bring it to pass.

My heart is at ease about the future when I know that minds and hearts such as these will have a great part in shaping the world of tomorrow.

Men buy success by giving up a host of things they want for what they want the most.—Arthur Guiterman.

VICTORY

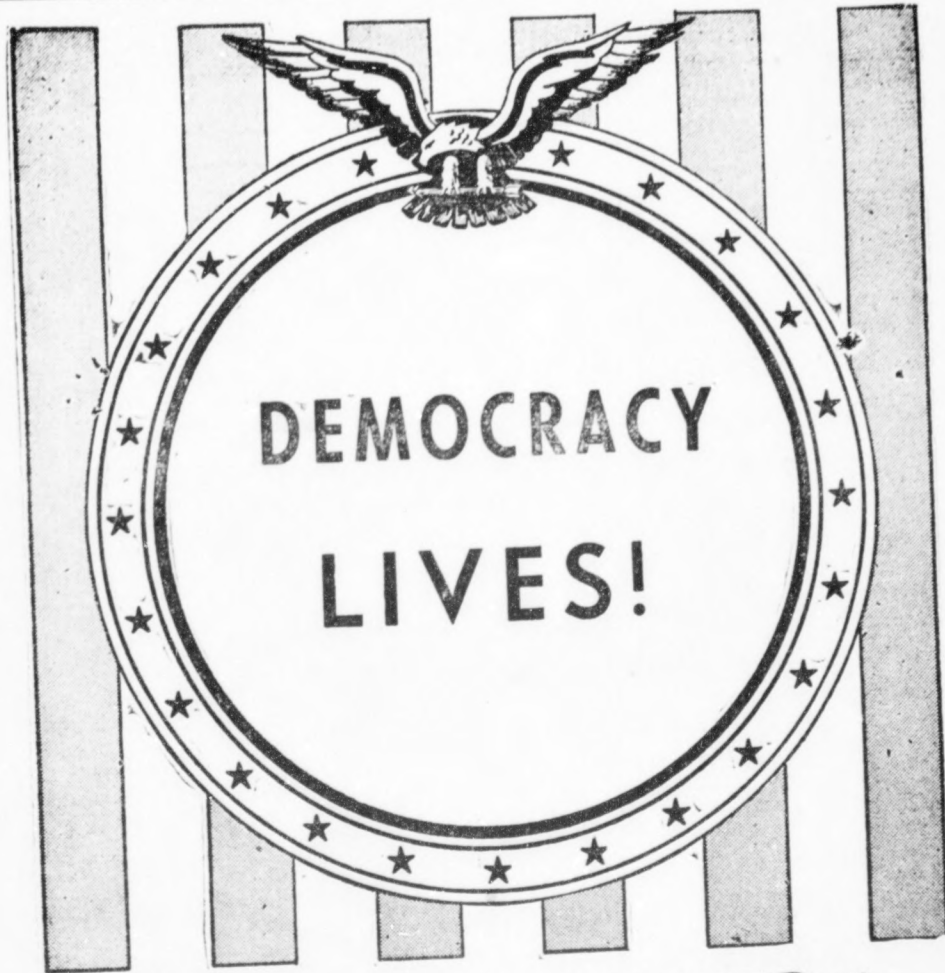

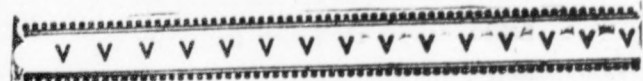

As Victory comes we feel an inward welling up of the emotions—a look, a glance, a hand clasp, words are unnecessary.

As we pause with this divine message of thankfulness surging through our very being we are conscious of our responsibility to the future—a responsibility to see to it that it will be a future free from doubts and fears—free from ignorance and greed—free from war.

We join our neighbors in this devout purpose, not only at home but for all peoples of the world.

Hope for a peaceful life again—in a place they knew—is what leads these, the displaced, the disillusioned, the old, the sick, the empty-handed and starving, the bewildered people of Europe.

There are prisoners of war; refugees from war-ravaged and Nazi-terrorized areas; deportees expelled for political racial or religious reasons.

But the majority of the moving millions are the wartime laborers in Germany—French, Russian, Belgians, Norwegians, Poles. Then million Allied nationals, not counting the prisoners of war, were in Germany when it fell.

The permanently displaced present the biggest problem. It is a two-fold problem—rehabilitation and resettlement.

Victory found the transportation facilities of Europe greatly disrupted. This is one of the biggest factors complicating repatriation of those looking homeward.

THE WORLD ABROAD

As the excitement over the surprise victory of the British Labor Party dies down, it becomes possible to see a little more clearly what this victory means—and also what it does mean. It means:

1. That, because of its substantial majority (more than two thirds of the seats in the House of Commons) the Labor Party will have a full five years in office. British law—suspended during the war—calls for a national election at least once in every five years. In the past, however, elections have usually been called at more frequent intervals. This was because Governments, lacking a strong majority and therefore depending upon coalition support, were frequently forced to resign by a vote of no confidence, even though such a vote sometimes reflected only a minor shift in the political scene.

2. That, during the next five years, public utilities, transportation facilities, fuel, the Bank of England, perhaps the large private banks and some of the major industries will be gradually nationalized.

3. That the maintenance of full employment and the provision of decent housing and living conditions, rather than nationalization for the sake of socialist theory, have become the chief domestic objectives of the British Government.

On the other hand, it is clear that the Labor victory does not mean:

1. That Britain will rush headlong into complete socialism, or that private enterprise will be eliminated.

2. That there will be any collectivization or nationalization of the ownership of land.

3. That Britain's traditional Parliamentary democracy is in any way threatened by totalitarianism.

In foreign affairs, the Attlee Government will pursue a course of continued close cooperation with the U. S. and the U. S. S. R. On the other hand the Tory policy of supporting France in Spain and unpopular kings in Greece, Yugoslavia, Italy and Belgium will be supplanted by a policy of supporting the aspirations of peoples rather than the vested interests of regimes.

Whereas what Ed Murrow (CBS) called the "revolution by consent" is warmly welcomed by middle-of-the-road and progressive leaders here and abroad, the ultra-conservatives are badly frightened. Here are two examples:

The New York Times' Arthur Krock actually urges President Truman to reconsider all our signed agreements for economic cooperation with Great Britain, now that Britain has "gone over to state socialism." He wants the President to use the great economic power of the United States to force the British people to turn back from the course they have chosen.

Mark Sullivan, syndicated in many newspapers, says that until the British elections, Mr. Truman and Mr. Churchill constituted a capitalist majority of the Big Three at Potsdam, but that "Today the majority is on the other side," since "today Mr. Truman's tablemates are one Socialist and the other a Communist."

As a matter of cold fact, there have been no more implacable foes of Communism than traditional Socialists such as Mr. Attlee. Furthermore, it is a fact that the British Labor Party has steadfastly refused to make a united front with the Communists in Britain.

The smooth and rapid termination of the Potsdam Conference showed clearly that the twice-reconstituted Big Three are able to work harmoniously. The Big Three communique issued simultaneously in Washington, Moscow and London, does not answer all of the difficult questions inherent in the final peace settlement. It is clear that the Big Three have not so much decided the major questions of peace as they have set up machinery for dealing with them in the months and years to come.

Next week this column will comment in detail upon that machinery.

There is an outside possibility that there may be a further major political casualty among the Allied statesmen. It is just barely possible, though it does not seem likely, that General DeGaulle may resign as Chief of the Provisional Government of France.

Reason: the Consultative Assembly turned thumbs down upon De Gaulle's proposal for a new Constitution under which the Executive would be more or less independent of the Legislature. The Assembly wants an Executive responsible to the Legislature.

A compromise seems more likely than DeGaulle's resignation.

We can hardly look forward to the New Year as likely to be happy as in peace time, but we can face it with courage and determination, everyone of us, to make it a year in which the possibility of happier times may again be won.—Edward Seubert.

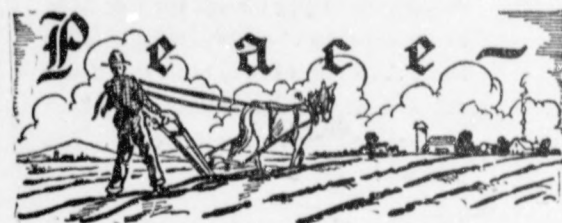

UNITED NATIONS playing a game of terrific odds have chalked up a final victory to cross out the three major menaces to world security and happiness.

And now, together, working in harmony we shall check any rising power that may again threaten the security of a world once more at Peace. . . .

We shall do our part to make this a happier and better place in which to live.

FREEDOM

These then are safe . . . The ending of wars throughout the world brings safety to the Four Freedoms, not only for Americans but for any of the peoples of the earth who are inclined to embrace them.

America has led the way in the past and now we must lead by example into a secure and war free future.

The war is won and we are truly thankful—
Now as the din of battle fades, we pledge anew to the accomplishment in fact of an enduring peace.

New problems face us — but Americans can muster all out effort in the cause of a secure peace just as they went all out in the pursuit of armed victory. Our fighting men and women as well as those who have played their part on the home front are now equal to the new tasks ahead of them.

WE JOIN OUR FELLOW AMERICANS IN CELEBRATING THIS RIGHTEOUS VICTORY AND PROMISE TO PLAY OUR PART IN CREATING A BRIGHT AND HAPPY FUTURE NOT ONLY FOR OUR COMMUNITY BUT FOR OUR COUNTRY AND THE WHOLE WORLD.

The forces of evil represented by Hitler and Hirohito believed they could prosper more by taking what they wanted from others than by creating what they wanted themselves. Their utter failure has proved the folly of such thinking. They have proved that good deeds are the only paths to peace and prosperity.

Whether in the affairs of nations, of business or individuals the principles of fair play always win in the long run. The outcome of this war is ample proof of that fact.

AGAIN, POST-WAR PLANINGG
(Live At Home)

First, parents should cooperative-ly study their families needs and likes.

- Read, study and adopt fitting modern practices.
- Be original—"Brains pay more than muscles."
- Practice self-denial of useless luxuries and waste of time. Be conservative and salvage.

- Clothing—use discretion in buying—(consider price, practicability and comfortability.) Economize—(alter, mend, wash only when necessary, and properly salvage garments when possible, use "hand - me-downs.")

- Food—grow all possible by gardens, fruits, cows, chickens, hogs, and beef. Can or freeze plenty.

- Shelter—Arrange buildings conveniently—keep them clean—build walks to out buildings.

- Recreation and beauty—be rational—(use home recreation much (music, reading, play and rest.) Give children chores for relaxation and thrift—compensate them. Teach order (method and technique in all things!) Think! Think! Think! for accuracy and speed. A practical education lies in present magazines, periodicals, and newspaper editorials. Use them.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Despite the sugar shortage, frozen desserts may be made at home as syrup substitutes quite satisfactorily in them, according to food specialists at the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics. This is particularly true when tree ripened peaches are used. The addition of a pinch of salt further brings out the natural sweetness of the fruit.

Frozen Peach Dessert

- 1 cup crushed peaches
- 1-4 cup sugar or 1-2 cup white corn syrup
- 1 cup cream or evaporated milk
- 2 egg whites
- 1-8 teaspoon salt
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice or 1-2 teaspoon almond flavoring

Combine the crushed peaches with the syrup and stir until well blended. Fold the sweetened fruit into the whipped cream, and then add the beaten eggs to which the salt has been added. Add lemon juice or almond flavoring. Freeze without stirring in a mechanical refrigerator or pack in an ice cream freezer.

Evaporated milk may be whipped satisfactory if it is thoroughly chilled and if the bowl and beater are also cold.

Menu: Chicken pie, buttered new peas, harvard beets, combination vegetable salad, biscuits and butter and frozen peach dessert.

LABOR LEADER

From time to time you will have read articles in THE NEWS by Maurice R. Franks. Other than telling you that he is National Business Agent of the Railroad Yardmasters of North America, Inc., and editor of that Union's official publication, the Railroad Workers Journal, we have told you nothing about this unusual labor leader. It occurs to us that our readers might care to know a few things about him.

At the age of 19, Franks started as a switch-tender on the Kansas City, Missouri. Two years later City, Missouri. Two years later found him on the Denver and Rio Grande at Pendleton, as a switch-man.

In 1921, he went with the Switchmen's Union of North America, with which organization he was successively business agent, committee man, delegate and finally manager the Journal of the Switchmen's Union. In 1930, he connected with the Railroad Yardmasters of North America, Inc., as National Business Agent, which position he launched the Railroad Workers Journal, and has been editor and manager of that magazine for the past six years.

Many of his outright editorials, that have in that magazine, have been reprinted in the Congressional Record, in the Saturday Evening Post, Liberty and other leading

A SALUTE TO THE VICTORS

The light of Victory shines with a brighter glow than ever—

We pause to salute the Victors . . . Yes, every American has contributed in some degree in this victory over Japan.

But the greatest share of the glory must be accorded the men and women on the fighting fronts and the men and women on the production front, and to the workers and buyers of bonds on the home front.

Every last one has had a part in the Victory — — Americans, we Salute You!

We salute you because you fought the good fight by continued cooperation until Victory, and will continue a united front to preserve a world peace in the years ahead.

TO WHOM WE OWE SO MUCH

The boys and girls who have brought us peace. They all have had their important part to play . . . Theirs was the hard part . . . yet accomplished because of the confidence they had in the folks on the home front.

Yes, we are truly grateful to these, our men and women who so nobly sacrificed that we might continue to enjoy the privileges of "Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness."

magazines.

Frank's labor philosophy is that workers and employees are partners and as such should work together harmoniously and should deal with each other fairly and equitably. During his 25 years as a labor union official he has won the respect and esteem of all employers and workers with whom he has had to deal.

His current article, "Mites Are Mighty," appears in this issue of

THE NEWS. In it he gives some "mighty" good advice to union members. We urge you to read it.

The worth of a State in the long run is the worth of the individuals composing it. —John Stuart Mill.

The true grandeur of nations is in those qualities which constitute the true greatness of the individual. —Charles Sumner.

GARDNER'S STUDIO

Only when Victory for Peace follows Victory in War can the triumph be complete.

Together the peoples of a torn and bruised world have vowed to make an everlasting peace.

We here in this community have labored and contributed in a degree to this Victory. Now with thanks in our hearts and an earnest prayer we bend our energies toward the securing of the Victory for Peace.
