EDITORIAL

THE CRISIS

College and schools in Kentucky, and in other states for that matter, are facing serious difficulties in obtaining sufficient revenue for operation. Right here in Fulton a grave situation exists, and before another school term these problems must be worked out, or our children cannot enjoy the advantages that free schools have offered for so long.

We hope that our grammar and high schools are given sufficient revenue to maintain the usual school term. In correcting our educational problems we believe that the state department should give first consideration to our grade schools. Every child deserves a high school education, regardless of whether they ever obtain a college degree.

It is time that more attention be directed upon county and city school systems, where the great majority of young America is educated. For years state treasuries have been heavily tapped to build up fine colleges at the expense of our common schools. Then came the collapse of our financial system which exposed the mistakes that have been made in financing higher education as has been true in other walks of life. We now have hundreds of colleges with insufficient funds to operate, hundreds of college professors and teachers out of employment or underpaid, thousands of college graduates walking the streets or back home on their parents who have sacrificed to send them to college.

Our colleges have become commercialized, even our collegiate sports. Pride and vanity have driven many American to strive to keep on with or outside their neighbor by sending their children to college. Education has become a very definite part of our social system. But, with all that, there are many mistakes which have been educated for something they are not. Too often talents and practicality are neglected. Colleges are all right for those capable of absorbing and making use of the knowledge they obtain, but our grammar and high schools are far more important.

The next few years will probably bring vital changes in our educational system. But we hope that our people will see to it that our grammar and high schools are continued without interruption, with a fine personnel of teachers in charge to model with care the thoughts and character of the youth of today who will rule the world of tomorrow.

SCOUTING TAKES ON IMPETUS IN FULTON

Scouting has formed an active part in the lives of Fulton boys for many years, but with the opening of the new Scout cabin Friday night and the recent organization of a girls troop interest is at its highest. ## SURE DIVIDENDS

Fulton, as the hub of railroads and highways, enjoys the patronage of thousands of visitors every year. These travelers drop many dollars in the course of passing through our city. Too, hundreds of people visit Fulton because of Sunday shows and other amusements.

There are definite dividends to be realized by business interests here from these people who visit Fulton, especially the tourists. It is to the interest of every business man and citizen in Fulton to court the favor of these visitors. When they stop here—at our hotels, restaurants, garages, service stations, etc., proprietors of these places of business should extend such cordial treatment and hospitality that these visitors will remember it. This would encourage them to make Fulton a stopping point on their next trip through here, and incidentally, they would tell their friends about the good treatment they received in Fulton.

Let's welcome the traveling public to Fulton and reward them with such courteous Southern hospitality that they shall retain it in their memories. Tell them about what a good town we have here, and invite them back. This kind of talk will be a real investment and will pay sure dividends.

JAPAN VS. RUSSIA

Japan and Russia are gnashing their teeth and preparing to go at each other's throats. The outcome is uncertain. But if there should be war it would be horrible from the standpoint of property destruction and taking of lives.

Military equipment and methods of waging war have undergone unbelievable changes that mean even more gruesome results than was the case in the World's War. Modern aeroplanes that carry not only poison gas and explosive bombs, but also incendiary bombs, could wreck untold havoc in thickly populated Japan, and that country faces grave danger in this respect if it goes to war with Russia. Incendiary bombs carefully dropped in aerial attacks could make thousands homeless in a few short hours.

What is true of Japan is also true elsewhere. Results of another war between any of the stronger nations of the world are too gruesome to think about. Secretary Hull of the United States, sees war in the distance and states that militarism must be curbed. He points out that the best method of dealing with militarism is to have the United States' machinery set up and ready to prevent it, if war should turn in our direction.

Some of our national leaders have the mistaken idea that war can be prevented by soft words. If they will open up their histories and also study the human race, they can readily see their mistake. As long as mankind exists, greed, avarice, selfishness and hatred will cause nations to fly at one another's throats when they think there is something to be gained by it.

Common sense and sufficient strength to back up what is right is necessary to keep that great war lord Mars from getting the upper hand. Old war prevention ideas along with obsolete equipment must be cast aside, and in their place modern aeroplanes, submarines and common sense can keep down foreign aggression upon United States soil.

War is horrible. The American people do not want it. Nor do we want to idly by unprepared to keep other nations from invading our country, wrecking our homes, killing our people. But let's stay at home from now on and protect our own lives and property.

BORAH, THE STATESMAN

In a recent speech before the United States Senate, U. S. Senator Borah of Idaho, made an eloquent plea for constitutional government, as he launched a brilliant attack upon Fascism, Nazism, Communism and other groups that have been formed in different parts of the world in opposition to democracy. His speech in part follows:

"The integrity of constitutional government has never meant so much to the average man and woman, to those whom Lincoln was wont to call the common people, as in this very hour. Nowhere on this round globe today do the common people enjoy the blessings of liberty except in a constitutional democracy.

"There are there alone are to be found a free press, free speech, personal liberty and all those blessings which distinguish the people of a free country from the helpless, hapless, persecuted individuals who constitute the mere cogs of some vast machine in an absolute dictatorship.

"Fascism, Nazism, Communism, appealing to the forces of terror and fanaticism, have buried the individual beneath the schemes of personal advantage and now they are constantly ridiculing and attacking democracy.

"Why do they attack democracy? They attack democracy because democracy stands for personal liberty and free speech. Neither Nazism, Fascism nor Communism as a form of government could exist for a moment in the pure atmosphere of intellectual freedom. Those governments rest upon the enslavement of the masses, upon the submergence of those who must do the working, the fighting and the dying. For personal aggrandizement they live and they will continue to live only so long as they put chains upon the body and fetters upon the brain.

"This constitutional democracy of ours is the only form of government which preserves or intends to preserve the rights of the individual. It is the only form of government which makes personal liberty the keynote of the arch. Of these things this republic was built and of these things alone it will be maintained.

"We have sufficient power. The instrumentalities of democracy are sufficient. We have had emergencies before when the Constitution was sufficient. We have had our hours of dire peril and the instrumentalities of democracy were sufficient.

"There is a niche alongside these immortal defenders of free government (Washington Lincoln) for the brave American who, in his place of power, challenges the apostles of terror and fanaticism, challenges these enemies of free government, and who announces his willingness to rely upon it and to defend and to preserve the integrity of constitutional government and to rely upon it and defend it against all comers, emergencies or otherwise, and at all costs and at all hazards."

Senator Borah has demonstrated his moral courage and integrity upon many occasions when constructive statesmanship has been required. He is man of deep thought and great foresight. He is ably filling the position to which his people elected him. He has the interests of the people at heart and by his thoughts and deeds has won national distinction and honor. He has our heartiest commendation.

RAINBOW SHADOW BOX LIGHTING NEW FEATURE ON THE PRESIDENT

The Wreckus Steamer "President" has excited more interest and comment than most any other feature on this many-faceted boat. At St. Louis, at New Orleans, and at every river town between where the President stopped last fall, crowds were held spellbound at the varied and beautiful lighting effects created by the unique rainbow shadow-box.

"It's just like dancing in a rainbow" is the way one girl described it, as the rich blues, warm reds, brilliant yellows and soft greens fade into one another—a different combination of lights for every dance. So flexible is this system that it provides for more than light, beautiful and varied lighting effects.

Psychologists say that light and color affect your moods as well as sound. If this is true, then the dancers are assured of a wonderful evening when the S. S. President stops at Hickman for a Starlight Outing on Wednesday for the liting music of Fate Marable and his famous "Cotton Pickers" will add its charm to the magic of the rainbow shadow-box ballroom lighting.

APPENDICITIS

Appendicitis is now one of the most frequent and serious diseases. Probably more surgical operations are performed in this country for appendicitis today than for any other condition. This is as it should be as surgery is the only rational treatment for appendicitis.

At present the death rate of appendicitis is entirely too high, due in most part to people not understanding the condition, delaying operation and by the use of purgatives.

Appendicitis usually begins to manifest itself by generalized abdominal pains of varying severity. Owing to a pernicious custom in this country, it matters not the cause of an abdominal pain, in this country the first home remedy is a purgative. Sad experience by the medical profession has taught us that purgation in appendicitis materially increases the death rate. Another cause of the high death rate is delay in operating.

At the first appearance of abdominal pain, instead of giving a purgative, call a competent physician.

DECORATION SERVICES HELD HERE SUNDAY

The American Legion of this city held brief memorial services Sunday at the cemetery here. Rev. L. R. Neill of Troy gave an inspiring address in memory of the dead, and the firing squad fired a salute to the honored dead. The Boy Scout drum and bugle corps marched from the Legion Log Cabin on Fourth-st to the cemetery, and furnished martial music for the occasion.

Raymond Roach, recently deceased Legionnaire, and former Chief of Police of South Fulton, was honored when the chaplain spoke of the loss of this member, and the audience paid their respects by a half minute of silence in his memory.

Flags were placed at every soldier's grave here and thruout the county.

well equipped hospital. By following the above simple suggestions many fatal cases of appendicitis would be well in a few days, restored to their relatives and to their friends.

Hauling Cotton Before the 'Iron Horse'

Above is an excellent illustration depicting the early method of hauling cotton to market over the old "plank roads" before the introduction of railway transportation in Western Kentucky. ## Ring The Bell Of Prosperity With An R. F. C. For Industry

AMERICA'S economic strength is so deeply rooted in industry that whatever affects industry affects the nation. When millions of industrial workers are forced out of jobs because the business employing them cannot meet payrolls, think what happens:

Bank deposits necessarily fall off and savings are withdrawn. The savings are withdrawn. The small businessman—the retail dealer—is immediately hit hard. The cities, where most factory workers live, suffer tax delinquencies. Agricultural produce brings such cheap prices that farmers can't make ends meet. Railroad profits cease because when production stops there is little freight to move and when people can't work they can't travel. Insurance companies can't collect premiums.

All these things are the direct RESULTS of industrial stagnation yet we have attempted to treat them as CAUSES of the depression. You cannot cure a disease by treating only the headache that results from it and you cannot cure a depression unless you get at the real cause.

The RFC loans to banks, insurance companies, railroads, etc., can have only the effect of soothing the outer manifestations of our real trouble. They may save capital investments, protect stock and bondholders and fill in some of the void caused by depreciated securities, but they don't put the great army of industrial workers back on the job, nor do they give the average man any of the benefits of widespread employment.

An RFC for industry, providing loans that would permit industry to replace its working capital, would immediately open the door to re-employment and prosperity. Industrial capital was not exempt from the shrinkages and depreciations that deflated all other capital, but so far industrial capital has been exempt from the kind of government assistance that has been given to other capital.

Give industry a chance to show what it can do with an RFC. It looks to us as though industry will come nearer hitting the bell of prosperity and payrolls than the other fellows with their loans.

Let's dispose of the table linens first. Don't pay too much attention to the clever new cocktail napkins and bibs and the intriguing breakfast sets because your friends will probably deluge you with those. Concentrate on the actual table linens. Have at least two sets of place doilies and napkins in plain linen, or Madeira, and a lace set, too for formal luncheons if the budget allows. Have two damask table cloths with at least a dozen napkins to match each pattern. Then squander the rest of the table linen budget on peasant linens for breakfast lunch and suppers out in the garden. Before the budget is quite gone be sure and have a silence pad for the dining table, and a scarf or two for the buffet.

Next take up the bath linens. A good rule to follow is to have each member of the family have a color all their own. Then it will be easy for them to grab their own towels and washcloths when washing up in a hurry. The new towels can be had in all the garden colors and some have most amusing designs. Let your bath linens be as colorful as you like but be sure to have eight or more bath towels for each person six washcloths apiece, six to twelve guest towels, two or three bath mats and two shower curtains for the bathroom.

When we come to bedroom linen we reach the very important subject of sheets. Be sure your sheets are long enough to tuck in comfortably over the toes of the longest member of your family and still have a generous amount to turn back over the blankets. To accomplish this all your sheets should be 108 inches long. Go on a color spree if you like and have the borders on your sheets, the blankets and the spreads one of the predominating colors in your bedroom, but be sure the blankets and sheets are long enough.

And here are the basic needs for each bedroom: two mattress pads to fit each bed, six sheets or more for each bed (single or twin beds three to 3 1/2 feet wide, 72 by 108 inches) (double or three-quarter beds, 4 to 4 1/2 inches wide, 81 by 108 inches), four pillow cases or more for each pillow (for 22 by 38 inch pillows use 45 by 40 1/2 inch cases, two or more blankets for each bed depending upon climatic needs, two spreads for each bed, two sets of bureau and dressing table covers for each room. When that's all taken care of let yourself go if you can possibly manage it get a big, puffy satin comforter to make you feel luxurious, and one of those loosely woven throw blankets to keep you comfortable, just in case you ever have time to take a small cat-nap before dinner.

Of course you don't need to stop here in stocking your linen shelves. You can go right on and have all your linens monogrammed with a nice large monogram or a discreet tiny one, and you might have glass doors put on the linen closet so you can just stand and admire the colorful shelves of linens. But without all that you'll have a pretty complete and attractive linen closet. And if you stick to well known trade names you'll have a linen closet that will last for years with just a slight replenishment here and there.

BOOSTERS TAKE PARIS GAME BY SCORE OF 3-1

The up and coming Boosters Club of Fulton matched wits with the Paris Oilers again Sunday, and took the game by a 3-1 score. The Paris boys recently defeated Fulton, but the locals went back with blood in their eye and took the laurels Sunday. Young Rhodes did the pitching for Fulton in the first seven innings but in that frame he was replaced by Howard to check a Paris rally. Valentine was on the receiving end for Fulton.

SON CALLS FROM SIAM FOR PARENTS' GOLDEN WEDDING

When Mr. and Mrs. Charles Scholtz, of Louisville, Ky., recently celebrated their golden wedding anniversary, the event was made more enjoyable by a telephone conversation with their son, Herman, who is in Bangkok, Siam. The hook up was for a distance of 10,000 miles over land and sea, and the Scholtzes said that they were able to hear their son's voice clearly and that he could hear them with ease. The son, Herman Scholtz, a graduate of the University of Kentucky, is head of an engineering company in Siam and an adviser of the king. He has been there for fourteen years.

STOCKING LINEN SHELVES

May White Sales, June Brides, summer plans all lead our thoughts to the linen shelves these days. It's hard to know just what would go on those shelves. If summer is to be spent at the shore it means at least a dozen more wooly bath towels, or if up at the lake an extra blanket or two will be needed. Oh, it's all very confusing we'll admit.

Blankets have never seemed quite so soft and warm as those on display now, and the colors are simply entrancing. Towels are as colorful or subdued as anyone could wish, and the new ones are good and absorbent, too. Table linens are the most varied of all. It's very easy to over spend one's budget for months in advance at a May sale.

Just to help you keep within it if you can we've a few suggestions to make. They are really guiding rules for the about to be a June bride, but brides of ten or more Junes ago might like to know the very lowest common denominator for the linen closet.
