FULTON, KENTUCKY, FRIDAY JUNE 1, 1934.

South's Oldest Locomotive Will Attract Thousands

The South's oldest locomotive has passed through Fulton. That was in the spring of 1893 while enroute to the Columbian Exposition at Chicago. This year marks the 50th anniversary of railway transportation in West Kentucky, and the old pioneer train will appear in a street parade during a celebration in Fulton.

The South's oldest surviving railway locomotive has been accorded a position of high honor at the Chicago World's Fair of 1934. One hundred years after it was built, the old "Mississippi" stands at the entrance to the inspiring pageant, "Wings of a Century," opposite the gigantic Travel and Transport Building. It is hard to believe that the 4-wheeled, 7-ton, wood-burning, canopied centennial is a direct ancestor of the mammoth Illinois Central locomotives that today pull modern trains at speeds undreamed of 100 years ago.

The old "Mississippi" has played a large part in making history in the lower Mississippi Valley and well merits the position of prominence it is accorded.

First operated on the Mississippi Railroad out of Natchez in 1836 it is said to have run between Natchez and Hamburg, Miss., until a terrific storm in 1840 partly destroyed Natchez and put the railroad out of business. The locomotive was subsequently acquired by the Grand Gulf and Port Gibson Railroad Company and was operated continuously up to and during the Civil War. It was used to move troops and supplies by Confederate forces until the Union Army under Grant captured the railroad during the siege of Vicksburg. The "Mississippi" therefore served under both flags during the war.

The next authentic record shows that the "Mississippi" was placed in service between Vicksburg and Warrenton on the Mississippi Valley and Ship Island Railroad, which is now a part of the main line of the Yazoo and Mississippi Valley Railroad of the Illinois Central System shops at McComb, Miss., and run from that point to Chicago under its own power for exhibition in the World's Columbian Exposition of 1893. That was the longest run ever made by this queer little engine.

Since then the "Mississippi" has been on exhibition in the Field Museum in Chicago, the St. Louis World's Fair of 1904 and the Travel and Transport Building of A Century of Progress. The diminutive locomotive has been presented by the Illinois Central System to the Museum of Science and Industry in Chicago, where it will be permanently on display after the present World's Fair.

MISS TYLER INJURED

Last Tuesday soon after noon just west of the new bridge in Fulton on West State Line, as a car driven by Miss Helen Tyler of Fulton and that of John Mathis of Pierce, Tenn., collided. Miss Tyler was driving west, while Mr. Mathis was coming from the opposite direction, enroute to the Fulton Undertaking Company, the body of his aunt, Mrs. Elsie Hodges lay in state.

Miss Tyler sustained lacerations about the face, a broken nose and the loss of several teeth, as she was thrown against the cow of her car, cut of the door and onto the pavement as the cars collided. Others in the two cars were not seriously injured. Miss Tyler was taken to the office of Dr. Ward Bushart for examination.

The Pineappoliers, Hawaiian entertainers, will present a program at the Science Hall here Friday night, in which singing and dancing will be featured including the descriptive hula dance. What a game! Donkey baseball will be played here Friday and Saturday under the auspices of the American Legion. Louie Kasnow is responsible for this curious game coming here. The first game was played here Thursday. It's a riot of fun. The idea is to ride a donkey around the bases, or the fielders mount a donkey and go after the ball, when it has been struck. That's when the fun begins!

When tried for reckless driving before the county court here Tuesday Julian Marks was discharged of the indictment. He did, however, consent to pay bills incurred by the accident causing Latham's death, and to make a settlement with relatives of the deceased. The charge was withdrawn pending a private settlement.

A dramatic recital was given Friday night in the First Methodist church by pupils of Mrs. Milton Exum. Miss Sara Owen rendered two piano numbers during the program.

Officers in South Fulton have been active this week in their efforts to rid the community of stray dogs. The south side is alarmed by a mad dog scare since a dog bit three persons Monday. The dog was killed and its head sent to the Obion county health office for examination. Mrs. Finis Webb, little Benjamin Holland and a small negro girl were bitten.

Marriage, by "correspondence" is an accurate description of a ceremony performed here recently when Mrs. Hattie Guthrie of Enslay, Ala. became the bride of Iley Webb, 57 year old farmer of near Dukedom. Bride and groom had never seen each other until the day of the wedding. Everything went off happily and the groom took his bride home rejoicing.

A new Chevrolet, belonging to Maxwell McDade, and stolen May 21, was found in Paducah Thursday night of last week near the Illinois Central Yards there. The car was only slightly damaged and had been driven approximately 400 miles. Indications from articles left in the car led officers to believe that it was used in robberies at Sedalia and other places in this section.

F. M. Pryor & Co., of Mayfield were the lowest bidders on the contract for building the Dukedom to Fulton highway. Clyde Hill and W. M. Hill, of Seneca, Ky., Frankfort for letting for this road project.

Pupils of the piano class of Miss Sara Butt, music teacher of this city, gave a recital at her home on Pearl-st. this Thursday night. The program included numbers by the following students: Betty Lou McCollum, James Adams, Lillian Stalins, Altha Neil Houston, Mildred Mount, Joe Trees, Rachel Hunter, Baldrige, Bonnie Ruth Ross, Louise Adams, Carlene Caldwell, Ann Valentine, Sara Owen, Eleanor Ruth Jones.

Registrations For Concessions And Floats Are Needed

Fulton and communities throughout this section will participate in a colorful Fourth of July Celebration and Railway Exposition to be held in Fulton soon. The most unusual program is now being arranged. Program Committees are seeking floats, bands, drum and bugle corps, concessions and other talent for the parade and gala program. The early pioneer train will be the principal attraction in the parade, and cash prizes will be awarded for the best floats participating in the parade. Business firms or individuals are urged to enter floats in the parade and registrations for competition in the cash prizes should be made immediately. Registrations can be made at the City National Bank with Clyde Williams, chairman of the Celebration, or at the offices of Leader or The News.

This celebration is far from the ordinary Fourth of July celebration. It is built around the 80th anniversary of railway transportation in this section, and with this event as the foundation, an interesting Independence Day program is being arranged. The Illinois Central will bring a replica of the first little train to pull through Fulton, and also this railroad most modern equipment for exhibition—a Century of Progress in Transportation.

A wide variety of entertainment will be provided with a gigantic fireworks program at night. Thousands of people from every corner of West Kentucky and West Tennessee will pour into Fulton on July 4th, and it is estimated that 15,000 will visit here that day.

DEATHS

Mrs. Sallie Alderdice of near Mayfield passed away Tuesday night at her home after an illness of several weeks. Funeral services were held Thursday. Surviving are four children, Miss Mildred, Errett and Raymond Brady of Mayfield and Sam Brady of Union City.

THE ROTARY CLUB

The Fulton Trio, composed of Mrs. Montelle Marley, Mrs. Lucille Adams and Miss Tommie Nellie Gates, gave a very talented performance in which they rendered several charming numbers. ## HOSPITALITY

Hospitality! What a word. But W. T. Vinson, manager of the New Century Hotel at Dawson Springs certainly knows its meaning. He entertained members of the West Kentucky Press Association last Friday and Saturday, and he entertained them royally.

Words are inadequate to describe the gratitude of the press association for the fine and cordial reception given its members by Mr. Vinson and by the people of Dawson Springs. A folder sent out by The New Century Hotel speaks the truth:

"Since the days of Daniel Boone and George Rogers Clark, the gracious hospitality of Kentucky homes has been a deep rooted tradition handed down from generation to generation. At the New Century Hotel we have assumed the responsibility of preserving this world renowned tradition. Ever conscious of the obligation, we have combined the comforts and convenience of modern life with traditional Kentucky hospitality and we offer our guests sinners courtesy and gracious service."

Dawson is certainly a place of health and happiness. It is Western Kentucky's own health resort "where Nature spills its sparkling dew." For forty years it has been a place of pilgrimage for thousands of people who want rest, recreation and health. They go there to relax, laugh and play, and cast their cares away.

Many people from this and other sections have visited Dawson. Visitors to this famous resort have some pleasant surprises in store for them. Under the able management of Mr. Vinson the New Century Hotel has been wonderfully improved. It has been thoroughly renovated and refurnished. Every appointment for the comfort and convenience of the guest has been made. The atmosphere is friendly and inviting. Those delicious meals, for which the South is famous, are something to write home about.

Although many changes have been made at Dawson in step with modern civilization, the old landmarks of nearly half a century are undisturbed. As you enter the town over the old road bed of Illinois Central System, where a new paved highway now runs, you are comforted by the restful and peaceful surroundings.

And as you linger, you will visit the various points of interest in and around Dawson. Through the hills, dense woodland, towering cliffs. All Nature seems in fold. Clear, babbling brooks, beautiful lakes and bountiful bird life enthrall you. Kentuckians should feel proud of this area which is so natural and invigorating in setting. It is truly a vacation land unexcelled in atmosphere, climate and hospitality.

DEEP RUMBLINGS

The State press is accurately recording the deep rumblings of political discontent now existing in Kentucky. Both administrations of two different party affiliations which have served during this distressing period have been indifferent to party platform pledges and the demands of the situation.

These administrations have promised to ease the tax burdens of the people and as soon as placed in office they have turned around and sought new ways to levy taxes. Rigid retrenchment and efforts to effect practical steps toward economy have been vitally important to meet the present situation.

On three occasions the sales tax has been voted down, and still the administration leaders talk of bringing it up again. The removal of the tax on all real estate permits larger corporations to escape huge tax payments, while it places additional burdens upon the small property owners. Then, the action of the Legislature in taking away the compulsory primary election from the people and placing the choice in the hands of a selected group of politicians at a convention, was preposterous and unwarranted.

Instead of taking over $3,000,000 from the State Treasury by real estate tax reductions which benefit the larger corporations, abolishment of useless offices and saving the taxpayer's money is demanded. It seems that the Legislature was bent upon placing new burdens upon the farmers and housewives when they reduced the real estate tax. If the majority of our state body has the true conception of what is best for the people, they have failed to show it. There are some honest, hard-working men who are striving to support the best interests of their people.

In nearly every state in the Union during the economic depression the people have rebelled against the power of the political rings controlling their government, and we predict that unless radical changes occur otherwise, this will probably happen in Kentucky.

A REJOINER

United States Attorney General Cummings recently ruled that those nations which have made token payments on their war debts to the United States are not in default. This decision brought a rejoinder from Soviet Russia, as the Moscow government has paid nothing on the $187,000,000 borrowed from this country in 1917 by the Kerenski regime. The present Communist State has refused to recognize the pre-war Czarist debts. Therefore its credit is under question. The Soviet Envoy Troianovski has declared that his government is endeavoring to determine whether it shall assume the obligations made by the Czar to the United States.

The Soviet Government has never failed to pay its debts to other countries. Its credit rating is A-1. For that reason Moscow is now protesting against the Cummings ruling. But the fact still remains that technically Russia is still in default.

A NEW CRAZE

"Ain't nature grand." Back to "mother nature" seems to be the keynote of the program sponsored by the nudist societies or colonies throughout the country. This new modernism is claimed by some to be nothing more than a return to barbarism, while others contend that it is for the health's sake. Every time old man winter retreats before the heat of balmy summer weather, nudism gathers new momentum and support.

In Kentucky lawmakers have endeavored to protect public decency by prohibiting nudist colonies, unless these camps were surrounded by a 20-foot wall—but that effort failed. It seems there is nothing left to do but go about our own business and let the other fellow do as he pleases. At least, we don't have to look and that will be some consolation, just like it is when we don't like some radio programs, and turn off the station.

Maybe after the craze to go about with nothing or as nearly that way as possible has worn out its appeal because nothing is left for the imagination, the silly fad will play out.

ANNUAL JUNIOR WEEK TO BE HELD AT LEXINGTON

Between 500 and 600 boys and girls from 75 to 85 counties are expected to attend the annual Junior Week at the University of Kentucky June 4-9.

In addition to the morning and evening inspirational services, the boys and girls will attend classes and give demonstrations in farm and home practices.

Classes will include livestock raising and judging, soil and crop management, fruit and vegetable growing, the care and repair of farm machinery, cooking, baking, sewing, canning, health and other homemaking subjects.

A health contest, style show and canning, baking and judging contests will be other features of the week.

Fulton county will be represented by five girls and two boys, who are 4-H club members, one Utopia club delegate and one 4-H club leader. These include Theda Bara Ownby, Annie Laurie Burnett, Pauline Waggoner, Janette Watts, Joy Watts, Naylor Ward Burnette and Craig Roberts, 4-H club members; Helen Watts, Utopia club delegate and 4-H leader; and possibly one other leader not yet determined. Accompanying these delegates will be Miss Anna Culton, County Home Agent, and O. R. Wheeler, County Agricultural Agent. The group will leave June 8 by auto and return June 9.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rashid, Neomon Rashid and Arif Naifeh of Fort Madison, Iowa, are visiting relatives in Fulton. Mrs. Rashid was formerly Miss Blanche Haman of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Davis, Miss Charlotte and Joe Jr., left Monday for Columbia, Mo., to attend the commencement exercises of Miss Elva Davis, who graduates this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Gus Bard have returned from a visit in Nashville.

THINK IT OVER

"OFF DAYS"

Why don't some scientist or fundamentalist delve into things that would be of some benefit to humanity? Why waste valuable time in probing into such useless problems as where man came from, who were our ancestors? Now, for instance—

What is it that upsets all members of a family on some days? For weeks at a time the family will go along with the usual worries and then of a sudden the whole family is upset. Is it atmospheric, scientific moral or mental? Father finds fault with everything, daughter regards life as a real tragedy, son is like a wet hornet and mother is "droopy." Then the next morning all is serene, cheerful and happy. The day before every member of the family is in such a muddle that he or she would sooner lose a finger than speak a kind word to another member.

Is the same in an office or shop where a number of people are associated together. On certain days, everyone seems keyed up to a high tension, snappy, sour, ill-natured and abominable. On other days everyone is serene and pleasant. Is there any explanation? Any solution. Can scientists unravel the mystery. Can fundamentalists give a remedy?

LAUGH AND LIVE LONG?

A prominent doctor at a convention in Boston, Mass., not so long ago gave a lecture before the American Institute of Homeopathy, in which he said some good things about health. His theory was that if you would live long and be happy look on the humorous side of life. Cultivate a taste for good stories, read the comics in the newspapers. "People who fly into a rage," he said, "are candidates for nerve exhaustion and brain fog. A calm even temperament is an invaluable health asset. I advise neuroasthenics to look for the funny side of life. The liberal sprinkling of our newspapers with comic strips, for they provide laughs which are beneficial from a health standpoint."

That man or woman who finds nothing in life to cause him or her to laugh, is a pitiable misfit, suffering from a wooden head. Those who see only the serious side of life are to be pitied. A laugh a day will keep the jinx away. Life itself is but a comic strip in passing the events and he who reads only the heavy parts of the story, skipping the comics, misses all the joys of living.

Every day and in every way one can see something funny to make them laugh. There is a laugh in every hour of the day. Life is not a tragedy, unless we choose to make it such. It is not a perpetual mourn—it never was intended to be. Laugh and live long. Think it over.

It's all right to spend an hour or two doing a good piece of work or performing a noble deed, but the trouble with most people is they want to spend the balance of the week talking about it to those who don't care to hear it.

Observation leads me to believe that the kind of man who will get up and leave his wife and children isn't such a big loss as their family sometimes think.

It may be that a liar will have a hard time getting past St. Peter at the gate but he is no worse than the man or woman who always speaks "nothing but the plain truth."

PREVENTABLE DISEASES

Medical science has made marvelous advances in the last fifty years in the control of preventable diseases. Yet there is a vast amount of unnecessary sickness and many thousands of unnecessary deaths. Over 88,000 people died in the year 1930, from tuberculosis alone, yet tuberculosis should be prevented.

A flow fever and bubonic plague once very common have been eliminated in the United States. Typhoid fever and smallpox have been greatly curtailed. While the number of cases of sickness and deaths from preventable diseases have been greatly lessened, they have not been stamped out as they should out as they should be.

Medical men have the knowledge, technique and equipment to successfully prevent many of these preventable diseases, if the people would utilize fully the means available. The prevention of these diseases is practically devoid of danger and the cost to each individual negligible.

Nearly all of the acute diseases are preventable. All are caused from germs. The germs from one causing the disease in another. Many of these diseases are transmitted by direct contact, others through various insects, waste and food. Every person should take himself in the quest of knowledge concerning the how and why of these preventable diseases that he may render himself and his dependents immune.

Health is the most valuable individual or national asset and if people would only avail themselves of the means to prevent many diseases general health would be materially bettered.

FARM INCOME CLIMBS UNDER FIRST YEAR OF ADJUSTMENT ACT

Cash income of American agriculture increased more than 39 percent during the year which ended May 1, 1934. This marked improvement in the farm income situation is cited by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration in a general summary of the first 12 months' operations under the agricultural adjustment act which was passed on May 12 last year.

Estimated farm income, exclusive of the value of products used on the farm, for the period which ended May 1, 1933, was $3,979,000,000. In the year ending May 1, 1934, the cash income is estimated at more than $5,530,000,000—an increase of more than $1,550,000,000. Of this increase in agricultural income, rental and benefit payments to farmers who cooperated with the administration in adjustment programs accounted for more than 12 percent.

At the close of the first year under the adjustment act, farmers have signed more than 2,850,000 contracts to restrict acreages under production control plans which provide benefit payments. In addition, approximately 800,000 farmers are benefiting from marketing agreements which have been put into effect during the year. Initial steps are being taken towards additional adjustment programs, as well as expansion of beneficial marketing agreements and codes fair competition.

Created at a time when farm prices were borne down under the weight of immense surpluses, the Agricultural Adjustment Administration centered its activities upon the task of better adjusting production to demand. Through the machinery of the adjustment act, farmers have been organized into production control associations to carry forward these necessary adjustments.

Although much remains to be done, a real beginning of adjustment has been accomplished and already farm income is showing important improvement, due in part at least to the better balance of supply with demand.

Definite progress has been made toward "parity" for farm prices, which is the object of the adjustment act. A year ago the ratio of prices the farmers receives to the price he pays was 52. It now has advanced to 62.

An outing was held Saturday at Brown Meadow Lake under the sponsorship of the Commercial Club, Woman's Club and Legion Auxiliary of Dawson. Basketball, swimming and boating were enjoyed.
