THE LISTENING POST

THE FIRE house gang journeyed down to Mud Creek Saturday and spent the night and Sunday in fishing, hunting, eating and just having a general vacation. They report this morning that they went squirrel hunting but that all they brought back was peckerwoods.

THREE DRUNKS were fined in Fulton City Court before Judge Lon Adams this morning and given fines of $5.00 apiece and the costs.

FOUR CRAP shooters, colored, were in the South Fulton jail Saturday and Sunday, taking a little vacation from their shooting. They were fined $2.00 and court costs and released.

MAYOR PAUL DeMyer has received a letter from the Kentucky Municipal League inviting him or any interested member of his official family to be among the T. V. A. minded people who will make a trip to Knoxville and the conference with Tennessee Valley Authorities relative to the possibilities of securing T. V. A. electric current for Kentucky cities. The letter stated cars would leave the Lexington City Hall on next Sunday, October 26, at 11 a. m. and follow a route as designated. Headquarters for the group in Knoxville will be at the Andrew Johnson Hotel, and arrangements for an informal smoker have been made for Sunday night. The meeting with the T. V. A. will be held at 9:30 Monday morning. There will be a visit to Norris, Tenn., and the Norris Dam during the afternoon.

THE WEST FULTON P. T. A. will meet tomorrow afternoon in the Carr Institute Auditorium at 1:15 o'clock, and the President, Mrs. John T. Price, wants all members to attend. She urges that all parents who have children in Carr Institute or Fulton High join up with this organization and thereby help the children in the many different ways this Association can help. Last year this organization had a very successful year under Mrs. Price's administration, and this year she hopes to be able to increase the membership to 200. As the dues have been reduced from $1.00 to .25, this should not be hard to do.

THE CITY of Fulton is in doubt as to whether their supply of picks, shovels, saws and other tools has been stolen or has only been borrowed from the tool house of the city on Mears street. J. N. McNeilly, chairman of the street department of the city council, stated this morning he would appreciate it very much if the "borrowers" would bring them back, and that if they have been stolen he intends to have every thing possible done to get them back. The city needs them in the Third street project started here this morning, when only 5 shovels and 7 picks could be found for about 15 men to work with.

Cleveland, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Nineteen crew members and a woman passenger of the Canadian ship Sand Merchant, drowned last night when the 252-foot sand-sucker rolled over in a fifty-mile gale which swept across treacherous Lake Erie, fourteen miles northwest of Cleveland.

Many of the sailors desperately clung to two capsized lifeboats for hours before sliding off to their death. Seven men were rescued at about 8 a. m. today by two freighters en route to Lake Erie ports.

Meusa, Gifford, Morse and White were picked up by the Bessemer & Marquette No. 2. They were suffering from exposure, and White's condition was described as serious.

Gifford, who suffered least from the ten hours of exposure, said the woman on the boat was Mrs. Bernice Drinkwater of Port Stanley, Ont., wife of the first mate. She had boarded the boat at Windsor for a short trip.

Third Street Tension Project Started Today

Third street extension work got under way this morning, with fifteen workers on hand hauling materials, taking measurements and preparing for the re-locating of the bridge which formerly spanned Harris Fork Creek at the lower end of Lake street to be placed on Collins street. The replacement of this bridge will be the first work done on the project, after which the street connecting Collins with Third will be made.

It is expected the work will consume about 90 days to complete. The Pierce-Cequin Company will furnish the cement for the work, and local firms, it is believed, will furnish the rest of the material with the exception of steel for reinforcement.

REGISTRATION OFF IN HICKMAN COUNTY

Figures compiled by the county court clerk show that there were 3,294 Democrats registered, 386 Republicans, 104 Independents, two Socialists and one other.

Once a City, Now a Mass of Toppled Masonry

Ruins in Toledo, Spain, after bombardments, artillery fire. Raked by artillery fire, sundered by continuous air bombardment, the city of Toledo, Spain, now is a mass of toppled masonry. This sight of desolation is typical of many such in Spain as the Fascist Rebels and the Popular Front government troops continue their fight for victory.

REBELS NOW ONLY 19 MILES FROM MADRID

BOYS, GIRLS CALLED TO AID IN STUBBORN PERSISTENCE

With Loyalists At Torrijon, Spain, Oct. 18.—A terrific rebel attack along the Madrid-Toledo Highway routed Government forces today and sent them fleeing in panic to Torrijon de la Calzada—only nineteen miles from the capital.

Black Junker bombers bombarded and machine-gunned the raw Government troops, shattering their lines and inflicting heavy losses. The rebels captured Illescas, last town of any size on the road to Madrid from the southwest, after only twenty-five minutes of fighting. Earlier, a "strategic withdrawal" of Government forces on the Northwestern front allowed the oncoming rebels to advance to within twenty miles of the capital.

Reform Lines At Torrijon When Madrid heard of the setback in the Southwest, fresh troops, officers, political commissars, ammunition, and food supplies were rushed out to stem the retreat. The Loyalist lines were reformed at Torrijon and the village of some 900 population was transformed into an armed camp within three hours.

Rebels in the sudden attack gained control of more than half the distance between Toledo and Madrid. The advance evidently took the Loyalists by surprise. During the battle an aerial dogfight between two rebel bombers and two fast Government pursuit planes resulted in three planes crashing in flames. The identity of the sole ship surviving was not determined.

COMMENT

A PUZZLING MATTER

I have never taken any stock whatever in the Literary Digest straw vote, and have never believed that it was infallible in predicting the result of a presidential race. I do believe that it might correctly forecast a landslide, but when a landslide is impending no straw vote is needed. There is usually something which tells a fellow before that takes place. I remember in 1912, when Roosevelt cracked the Republican party wide open, that I thought I knew Wilson was certain to be elected. That was not a vote landslide, but it was an electoral vote landslide, and it stood out like a lighthouse. I did not see it that way in 1916, and subsequent events proved it was not anything like a landslide. Following that date, I had no hope of Democratic success until 1932, when I again sensed a landslide coming. I knew then that Hoover could not be elected, and I knew that Roosevelt was due to ride into office on a tremendous majority. (No, I won't money on any of these things. I never bet, even though I believe I might win, I'm scared I might lose.) But, as stated above, I think a straw vote could hit the truth in a landslide, but I think it is likely to err when the vote is close. Only a few votes would swing an election when it is close, and the straw vote could never hope to correctly interpret what might happen when many states might hand in the balance by a handful of votes. The straw ballot sent out could not hope to fall into the right hands to correctly interpret the swing of votes.

The thing that is puzzling to me, however, is that Landon should be in the lead at all. By all political portents and signs, the result in November should be in the bag for Roosevelt. He should win in a walk, and a landslide should be expected. Yet, I do not believe this to be the case. I expect a close election. In fact, I hope it will be close, with Roosevelt winning, for I think the best interests of the nation will be served by a close election. I would regret to see Roosevelt swept into office this year by such a vote as he piled up four years ago, for I regard it much better for the two dominant parties to have pretty close to the same power. I prefer the Democratic party, but right at the present time I would regard it as a dangerous thing for the party to be returned to power by an

WHAT'S WHAT AT A GLANCE

WASHINGTON WORLD

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Central Press Staff Writer
WASHINGTON, D. C.—What is communism?

We had a new definition in Washington the other day. The street railroad folk in the capital have been wanting to extend their one-man car system, abolishing conductors.

Patrons objected. Labor objected especially. It is easy to see why.

Nevertheless the District of Columbia public utilities commission a k'd the readjustment.

Thereupon the local Central Labor Federation held a meeting to protest against the commission's action and to demand the commissioners' removal from office.

A resolution to that effect was adopted, minus one vote. That one vote was not negative. It simply was not cast.

C. J. McLane of the American Federation of Government Employees balked.

"This resolution," he said, "attacks the utility's constitutional right to gouge the people. Therefore it is communistic. I can't support communism."

Was he sarcastic?

WHAT INDUSTRIES?

The United States Chamber of Commerce recently submitted figures indicating that 7,000,000 workers have been re-absorbed into private employment since the depth of the depression.

It sounds pretty fair.

But the chamber cannot give a breakdown, industry by industry, of the increase. I tried to get one and it is not available.

It was suggested that, by applying here and there to the secretaries of various different industries' organizations, I might be able to get the desired information and foot their various estimates up. The chamber, however, had not bothered to do so. All it had done was to guess.

How much are these loose guesses worth?

SUPREME COURT EASER?

When the United States supreme court resumed the other day, a young lawyer, aged 24, and his wife, aged 22, were admitted to practice before the august triumvirate. I will confess, frankly, that there have been some things during the past four years that did not suit me. Perhaps I am difficult to please; perhaps I am old-fashioned, but I look on a powerful centralized government as something that is not desirable. With Roosevelt back in office by a tremendous, overwhelming vote, the stage might be set for some of his followers to try things that will not be tried if he goes in by a close vote.

Personally, I do not think that calamity will certainly result by the election of either of the two candidates. I think that the corner has been turned, and that industry is well on the path upward. I do not believe that the result of the election will have much effect, one way or the other. But I do sincerely believe that the orderly march upward can best be carried out by the Democratic party. After all, if there has been recovery, and none but those mentally blind will deny that there has been a large measure of recovery, it was started under the Roosevelt administration. None but the blindest partisan can deny this. This being true, I feel that the present administration is best fitted for the job of carrying on.

Getting back to the straw vote, the thing that puzzles me is that binial. It was quite an event; photographs taken and all that.

The rule, come down through American history, is that no lawyer can be admitted to federal supreme court practice without at least four years' previous state court practice.

This husband perhaps had started in on his state court practice at the age of 20, but is it likely that his wife started in at the age of 18?

You're Telling Me!

By WILLIAM RITT

Central Press Writer
THERE ARE ten ways to remain on good terms with your neighbors. We'll bet No. 1 is: Don't practice on the saxophone.

And we'll wager No. 2 is: Never borrow their ice cubes without first inviting them over for a drink.

Japanese censors last year cut out two miles of kisses from Hollywood movies. That doesn't make us mad—we'd like to have them all back.

You can always tell a loafer, if he is wearing a bathing suit. He has callouses on his shoulders instead of his hands.

The G. O. P. might disguise and use again their 1932 "chicken in every pot slogan." Just call it: "A fowl dinner pail."

The bank of Shanghai, China, looks like a cathedral. Maybe the Chinese, getting civilized, have also borrowed our idea that money is gold.

"Empty cradles cannot conquer an empire," says Mussolini. No, but conquest can empty a lot of cradles.

Those new fall hats for women must have been designed by a homely stylist because it is impossible for anyone to look lovely in one.

Landon should have the lead. I know of course that the Republicans outnumber the Democrats. With no special issue involved with a mere contest between the two parties, the result would be easy to forecast. But it does seem to me that even a straw vote now should show Roosevelt leading. All political barometers would indicate it. But the vote shows Landon leading. I do not understand it. I do not think that the Literary Digest is trying to put anything over on the nation. I think it is doing what is fair, and not trying to stampede the country into getting on the Landon bandwagon. After due consideration, I have decided that what the straw indicates is a very close vote, and I am still picking Roosevelt as the winner. But I heartily wish that political speakers would cease their efforts to scare voters, by predicting dire things if so and so is not elected. This country has lived through many elections, has had many presidents. Some of them were good, some indifferent, some plain bad—but the nation has always been bigger than its presidents. I am satisfied that this will continue to hold good.

A Member of the Family

IT WAS A DOUBLY welcome telegram that permitted one tense-nerved passenger to relax as he faced the remaining journey to his old home town. It gave him the news he had not dared to hope for: "Your mother is much better. Don't worry."

The message was signed, oddly enough, by a stranger. That stranger, who constituted himself for the moment a member of the traveler's family, was an Illinois Central representative. He telegraphed promptly when an inquiry concerning arrival time revealed that the threatened pneumonia had begun to respond to treatment. In thanks the passenger wrote: "I will always be a great booster for your road."

WE OF the Illinois Central like to think of our organization as a family—all for one and one for all. That feeling extends beyond business ties, and it extends also to our patrons, both freight and passenger, for whom it finds expression in a variety of ways.

Elko, Nev., Oct. 18.—(AP).—Sheriff C. A. Harper announced today Luther Jones, alias H. S. Knickerbocker, 32, arrested former Montana convict, had confessed killing four Nevada men, three of them prominent ranchers, whose bodies were found piled in a little cabin near here late yesterday.

Harper said the confession followed an all-night questioning which started shortly after Jones had been taken into custody at Carlin, 26 miles south of here.

Walter Godecke, 29, Carson Valley rancher.

Manuel Arrascade, Elko cattleman.

Bardwell Men Fired On From An Ambush

Bardwell, Ky., Oct. 16.—(Spl).—Sam Roberts, a Bardwell jeweler, was fired upon last night about 10:30 as he was driving west on Highway 98 near the Hopewell church about three miles west of Arlington.

Although the windshield was broken in several places and the body of the car showed numerous shot gun pellet dents, Roberts was not hit.

Earlier in the evening, Byrol Carter, another Bardwell citizen was fired upon in the same manner near the same place as he was driving toward Arlington on the same highway. The charge did not strike Carter's car with as much force as it did Roberts yet numerous dents in the body and pecks in the glass were made. Carter's car was struck mostly on the right rear door. The shots came from behind bushes alongside the right-of-way.

Neither Carter nor Roberts stopped to investigate.
