$14,500,000 Bond Issue Proposed.

Instead of Luxury Tax for Kentucky.

Frankfort, Ky.—Gov. Fields has accepted the proposition of a fourteen and one-half million dollar bond issue proposal made by a committee of business men and bankers.

In accepting the proposition, the governor agreed to withdraw administration pressure for passage of the income and luxury tax bills.

If, however, the bond issue bill is not immediately introduced and passed, the income and luxury taxes bill will be brought from House committee and passed, the governor said.

Furthermore, if the bond issue submission is not ratified by popular vote in the November election, Governor Fields said he would call an extra session for the first Monday in January, 1927, to lay before the legislature his income and luxury tax bills.

The committee agreed to the governor's counter proposal.

The bond issue bill will call for five million dollars for the University of Kentucky, five million for charitable and penal institutions and four and one-half millions to pay off the state's funded indebtedness.

South Fulton.

Few people seem aware of the progress and improvement which have been made in South Fulton during the past three or four years. In that portion known as the Holman Addition, some ten or twelve new residences have been erected, and in the Glenn Heights section, which is directly in front of the South Fulton High School, building lots have been laid off and at least two more new residences will likely be built in the coming spring.

The community spirit of the citizens of this part of our city for general improvement seems active, the school has a large attendance, and indications now point to a complete filling in of one of the choice resident sections in that part of the town in the near future.

CONN-BOCKMAN

On last Sunday evening, at 3 o'clock, there were two couples who drove up to the Fulton Circuit parsonage. One of the couples had special business with Bro. A. N. Walker.

Under the beautiful and impressive ritual of the Methodist church, Mr. James Walker Conn, and Miss Jessie Morris Bockman, became husband and wife.

Mr. Conn is a very successful farmer living near Riceville, and Miss Bockman is a very accomplished young lady, who lived near Beelerton. They were accompanied by Mr. O. L. Weatherspoon and Miss Leola Oliver, Mr. and Mrs. Conn will make their home near Riceville for the present. We wish for them a long, useful and happy life. The ceremony was performed by the pastor of the bride, A. N. Walker.

Mr. A. M. Browder and wife and daughter, Mrs. Roy Bard, and Glenn, the grandson, called on Brother A. N. Walker and family last Sunday evening. Their visit was very much appreciated by Brother Walker and family.

Five Cent Gas Tax Has Good Start

Autoists in Tennessee Fill Their Tanks in Kentucky

Sunday was a beautiful day in Fulton, and autoists took advantage of delightful weather conditions, filling their tanks with 5-cent tax gas and hiked for a joy ride over the country roads.

The Sunday closing law in force on the Tennessee side caused a number to fill their tanks on the Kentucky side, therefore, the first day on which the extra five-cent tax became effective, gasoline sales were boosted on the Kentucky side in Fulton.

Regarding the Sunday closing law in Tennessee, Editor Crockett of the Greenfield Gazette, had the following to say:

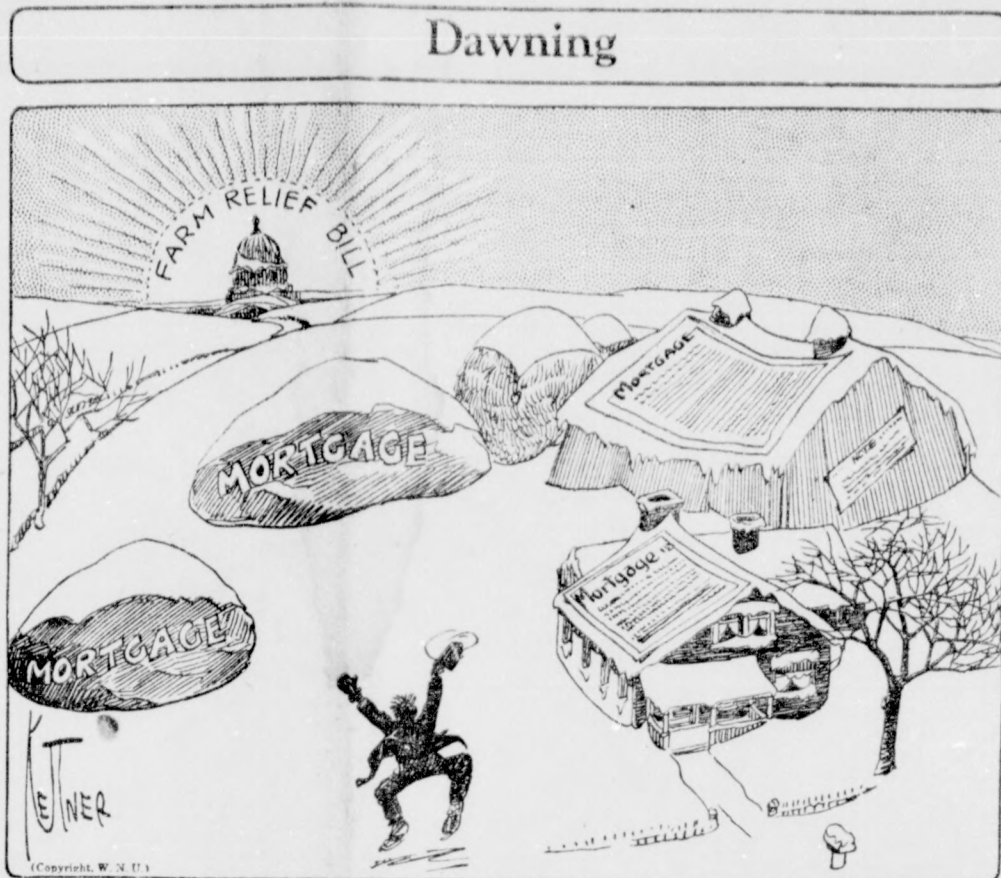

"Saturday afternoon, City and State officials visited the business houses in Greenfield and notified the owners that the Sunday closing law would be enforced and that all violators would be carried before the City Magistrate for trial. As the results of this warning, every business house closed and stayed locked up for the day. The joy riders heading for Kentucky towns and coming back with tanks dripping with gasoline.

"We think this Sunday closing law a farce—a straining at a gnat and swallowing the camel; as obsolete and out of date as the old custom our forefathers had of carrying their guns along to church when they went to worship. Conditions have changed since then and the man carrying a shotgun to church with him now would be sent to the bug house. This old law is just as far out of line as the gun carrying habit. When this old law was passed people didn't buy anything, there was nothing to buy, the stores averaged 50 miles apart; there were no bakeries, no butcher shops, no cold drink stands. The family cooked enough on Saturday to run through Sunday. The automobile they had then was an ox cart and the only fuel needed on Sunday or any other day was a long pole cut from the thicket as they drove through it. This law, if it means anything means that anything you sell on Sunday makes you liable and that anything you do and receive pay for it makes you liable. This would cover practically everything and narrow it down until it would be a joke. The automobile is here to stay and it must be fed Sunday, the same as other days—the tourists should not be stopped and held over just because he lands in a hick town on Sunday and out of gasoline. Nobody but a fanatic would object to the newspapers being published on Sundays. Convenience and pleasures are about all you get out of living and it seems that some are not satisfied unless they can deprive you of both.

"If Greenfield continues in the good work and lines up on all the laws like it has this one, our town will soon be known far and wide as running Heaven a close second in its purity and we'll all begin feeling to see if our wings have started growing."

Stolen Watch Recovered.

In a recent issue of The Advertiser we reported the loss of two watches that were stolen from H. H. Hastings in South Fulton. Mrs. Geo. W. Kirkland, one of our subscribers, read the article and notified Mr. Hastings that her husband bought a gold watch from a young white man for $4.50 and to call and see if it was one of the watches stolen from him. He called on Mr. Kirkland and sure enough it was his watch, a gold time piece which cost him $50.00. Mr. Kirkland was glad to return it to the owner, and the editor is pleased with the results obtained through The Advertiser.

Tobacco News

Top price at the loose leaf floor last Friday was $18.25 with a sale of 123,000 pounds sold and 150,000 offered. The market was stronger than at the previous sale, with numerous buyers present. Buyers from out of town say that the Fulton market is as good as at other towns, and the managers of the loose leaf floor here are correspondingly encouraged, and feel that their efforts to provide a market for the farmers of Fulton vicinity is being appreciated by both the farmers and the buyers.

A business visitor in Fulton, last week, informed the writer that he had visited a number of the dark fired floors, and that in his opinion, Fulton was getting as good prices as was being paid at other points.

Inquiry develops the fact that the farmers are not contemplating planting as great an acreage this year as last, but there is always the danger that some misguided few will "raise the limit" in the vain hope that they will reap an advantage by the other fellows planting short crops.

Fulton Man Mops Up in Florida

R. C. Whitnel Figures in Big Real Estate Deal

The friends of the Rev. R. C. Whitnel were delighted to hear about his good fortune in the real estate business in Florida. Rev. Whitnel formerly resided in Fulton, but moved to Florida more than a year ago and entered the real estate firm of Hicks & Whitnel. It is reported that the firm recently handled a sale of a million acres of Florida land at a price of $16,000,000. It is said that the land lies in the southwestern part of Florida and was purchased by a syndicate for colonization purposes. In point of acreage the sale is said to have been the largest land sale ever made in that state at one time.

NEW PRESIDENT OF HALL-MOODY JUNIOR COLLEGE

Professor James T. Warren, who has been president of Hall-Moody Junior College at Martin, Tenn., resigned, his resignation taking effect March 1, 1926. The Board of Trustees accepted the resignation, and at the same session elected as president of the college, Mr. William H. Preston, who is well known among the Baptists of the state.

Boy Scout News.

The Examining Committee of the Boy Scouts held an examination of candidates on Tuesday night of last week in the Chamber of Commerce, at which time a number of boys were passed to higher classes.

Cecil Wheelen, Eugene Boone and Jack Covington successfully passed the tests, advancing them from second to first class Scouts, and Paul Pickering, Jr., Harold Heywood, Avery Hancock and Howard Patterson were passed to second class.

These scouts have demonstrated that they are anxious to secure the higher marks, and the officials meet from time to time to pass on the progress made by the candidates for advancement and the tests are rather stiff, so that the boys are thoroughly posted on the work before appearing for the examination.

Troop No. 4, which formerly met in the Chamber of Commerce, has moved to a room in the Farmers Bank building, at which place the scouts are erecting booths so that each of the patrols may display permanently the handicraft of the several members. The use of the room was donated to the troop by the Farmers Bank.

John Culver has donated the use of several rooms on the second floor of his building opposite the ice cream factory to Troop 2 and the boys are busily engaged in rewiring and fixing up the new quarters.

Louis Weeks is Scout Master of Troop 4, and Robert Witty of Troop 2. There will undoubtedly be a keen rivalry between the two troops to see which will have the more attractive home, and as the scouts are proverbially thorough in whatever they undertake, the final results are certain to be worth while.

NARROW ESCAPE

In attempting to cross the railroad at Walnut street crossing, Friday morning, the car driven by Jim Stone and occupied by Mrs. Stone and Mrs. Jim Hutcherson was struck by a switch engine and dragged from one side of the crossing to the other. Fortunately the engine was going at a slow speed, avoiding serious accident. Mr. Stone was slightly cut by glass and Mrs. Stone received injuries confining her to her room, but not thought to be serious. Mrs. Hutcherson was slightly bruised. The car was badly damaged.

Lion's Club A Live Organization

Will Sponsor Big Easter Egg Hunt at Fair Grounds This Year.

The editor was a guest of the Lion's Club at luncheon Friday at the Usona Hotel. This organization means much to Fulton, and is manned by officials who will pilot them through 1926 of successful service to the community. It has developed its membership into a group that really desires to render that sort of community service which builds cities, fortifies churches and makes for fine fellowship among business and professional men, who ought to operate as a unit in civic affairs. Its attendance Friday and at practically every meeting is 100 per cent. Quite a rivalry exists among the members regarding attendance, with two sides lined up with their captains, Harry Murphy and Smith Atkins.

A feature of the business session at Friday's meeting was the planning of a big Easter egg hunt at the Fair grounds for the "kiddies" this Easter. It will be remembered that the Lion's Club sponsored an Easter egg hunt last year, which was a big success and a glorious event for the little ones.

After the business session President Vodie Hardin turned the meeting over to Ben Evans, the leader, who introduced R. S. Williams, editor of The Advertiser. Mr. Williams briefly addressed the members on the value of good roads leading into Fulton so the farmers could have easy access in marketing their produce and trading in Fulton. Also touched on fly-by-night firms which mail merchandise to prospective customers in our city with the request that they buy or return it. Stating that the home merchant suffered the consequences, and it ought to be curbed in some way; best by the party receiving the goods to notify the sender that the articles would be returned on receipt of 25 cents to pay for the trouble of repacking and returning.

Warning.

After March 1st the Fulton Police Department will co-operate with the sheriff in enforcing that part of the automobile laws that requires owners of cars to have same licensed. If you have failed to procure your 1926 tags, please get them by above date.

CHECK BLACKHEAD IN TURKEY FLOCK

Every year blackhead in turkey flocks becomes a little more common, and every year the losses from the dread disease are a little larger. And while no positive treatment has ever been discovered, a remedy is being used by hundreds of successful turkey growers that proves very satisfactory if used before the fowls are in the last stages of the disease, says a writer in Successful Farming.

A slight lumpiness is usually discernible in a turkey coming down with blackhead. The bird gradually grows weaker, refuses to eat, but drinks an unusual amount. Diarrhea is usually present, and when the disease is in an advanced stage, the droppings are usually a bright yellow. The wings and tail are not held up. The head is drawn close to the body.

Sometimes the flesh parts of the head turn a bluish-black. If you are not sure whether it is blackhead or some other ailment that is affecting the bird, it will be wise to make a post-mortem examination. If the liver is covered with black or gangrene spots it will not be necessary to look further for the trouble. You may be sure blackhead is the trouble, and begin treatment accordingly.

Powdered ipecac may be used either as a remedy for blackhead or as a preventive. We prefer to use it as a preventive, as any disease is better prevented than cured. When blackhead enters our flock it usually causes the greatest losses before the poulters are six weeks of age. For this reason we begin feeding the ipecac to the poulters as soon as we begin feeding mash. It is fed in a wet mash—one teaspoonful of powdered ipecac to enough mash for 20 turkeys—twice a week. The same amount is given to the young birds and the mature fowls. This treatment will prevent blackhead entering your flock, though the youngsters are allowed to range with the older birds, and on infected ground.

If blackhead has entered your flock before treatment is begun, the sick birds should be fed half a teaspoonful of powdered ipecac in wet mash (for each bird) for three successive days. If the disease is not in the advanced stage it will not be difficult to remedy, but if the fowls are nearly dead when the treatment is begun, you cannot expect a large percentage of cures.

Heretofore, the only cure for blackhead has been to move to new, uninfected land, and this is usually only effective for the first season.

Do You Remember?

The following questions which are put to the record flock keepers of Iowa by the Iowa State college are pertinent suggestions to all poultry keepers. "Do You Remember?" they say:

When milk ever spoiled the fertility or hatchability of an egg?

When a chick didn't make good growth when it has milk in its ration?

What a time you used to have getting a lot of early chicks hatched with hens?

When you had a mongrel flock and wished some one would come along and get you started with a good breed?

The time you had raising chicks on the old ground that had been used for 25 years without a change?

How your chicks acted when they were affected by worms and coccidiosis?

How you tried to fight internal parasites without new ground?

Poultry Facts

Milk in some form should be kept before chicks during the first month.

One of the things that our culling should do is to weed out the persistent sitters. The heavy layers do not waste time in broodiness.

Many chicks are not getting enough green feed. If they are not on range carry sod to them or fix up a feeder and give them cut alfalfa or clover hay. You'll be surprised how they will eat it.

Wheat treated with copper carbonate to prevent stinking smut is not harmful to chickens, at least if fed for only a short time. Neither is it harmful to hogs, when fed in small amounts.

Sunlight and cod liver oil are said to prevent leg weakness. So will getting the chicks onto the ground, either outside the brooder house or on chunks of sod placed on the brooder floor.

Remember that heavy, sudden rains and floods do great damage to young poultry which are not given broader housing under the right conditions. A house set low and open to rats and vermin is a menace to the profits of the flock.

Suspensions About Wall Street and How They Arise

By FRANCIS H. SISSON, President Trust Company Division, American Bankers Association.

WOULD-BE economists, political orators and the general public make frequent positive assertions about the functions of Wall Street without any realization of what constitutes Wall Street or what purpose it serves. Lack of knowledge breeds suspicion. Yet it is not difficult to understand the nature and function of Wall Street. Let us set down a few of the facts which account for the existence and nation-wide, as well as international, services of Wall Street.

F. H. Sisson

There are 316 banks in New York with combined capital and surplus of about $1,400,000,000. Their deposits aggregate over $11,500,000,000, and during 1924 their total volume of business reached nearly $250,000,000,000. The New York Stock Exchange in 1925 sold 463,000,000 shares of stock and in 1924 $3,828,000,000 worth of bonds. Wall Street is the national credit and money market. It is just as essential that there be markets for money and for the facilitation of trade, industry and investment are upon a correspondingly ample scale. It is clear that these funds must be employed sanely, constructively and to the real service of the business community. Otherwise they would inevitably soon be withdrawn.

Huge Investments Help Farmers

These huge investment operations in Wall Street are of significance to the farmer. Much of the $10,000,000,000 invested in farm mortgages was advanced by Eastern financial institutions. In no sense is Wall Street's interest in agriculture local or sectional. The main function of New York financial institutions is to send money where it is most needed.

Another service rendered to agriculture by Wall Street is the purchase of Farm Loan bonds, Joint Stock Land Bank bonds and the debentures of the Intermediate Credit Banks. There is a total of $1,451,500,000 of this paper outstanding, of which New York banks took about one billion.

Wall Street loans to country banks are made at low rates, usually below 12 per cent. The local banker's rates to his customers are adjusted to local conditions, which cannot justly be laid at the door of Wall Street.

General financial service to other industries related to agriculture also helps the farmer substantially. Wall Street loans to the packers, railroads, millers and farm-machinery manufacturers to help them serve agriculture.

Wall Street is as necessary and serviceable in the handling of credit and capital as is the cold storage plant in caring for seasonal perishable products. The necessity of such a credit center in a country with a $50,000,000,000 annual business is obvious.

What the People Want

Every great international bank in New York maintains close relations with thousands of other banks in the United States and in every foreign country of any importance. The movements of commerce and investment are supported upon this inter-related system of domestic and foreign banks. Thus it comes about that the products of the farm, factory and mine are financed by these banks all the way from the producer to the foreign consumer.

Wall Street in the discharge of its true functions as the nation's reservoir of capital and credit includes the whole business community in its field of operations. Its control lies with the people. Their demands govern it, and their presence or absence from the market determines its trends. Wall Street prospers as farming and industry prosper. Its service is to the people of the whole country and, for them, to the people of other countries. It is the direct reflection of American agriculture, industry and commerce.—From the Country Gentleman.

Four Billion Dollars

An approximate estimate of the main items in Wall Street's financial operations in handling farm crops shows that New York banks for the purpose of agriculture put out commercial loans to the value of one billion dollars, hold bankers' acceptances for another billion, buy commercial paper such as cattle and sheep loans for a third billion and carry balances for country banks for a fourth billion. Thus Wall Street furnishes a $4,000,000,000 river of credit annually to produce farm products and float them to market.

The outward flow to rural banks enables them to make the required advances on farm crops and for warehousing and handling cotton, tobacco, wheat, raisins, prunes and countless other products. Outside of his own personal efforts on his farm, Wall Street is the biggest single factor in the prosperity of the farmer. After these commodities have been moved to market, the money used in handling them returns to Wall Street for investment. New York is the largest security market in the country and offers a use and market for the idle capital of the rural banks between crops.

Funds from every part of the country flow to New York, attracted by the greater opportunity for their profitable use found in this center. Thus the accumulations of deposits are large, and in turn the openings for the useful employment of these funds in

SURPRISE BIRTHDAY PARTY

Mrs. Jack Hall entertained about sixty friends last Wednesday afternoon from three till six o'clock at her home on Park Avenue, with a surprise party in honor of her mother, Mrs. Paralee Bard, eighty-sixth birthday. The home was charming with quantities of roses and pink and white carnations, all gift flowers to the much loved honoree.

The guests were welcomed at the door by Mesdames Hall and A. L. Martin and cordially greeted by the honoree, Mrs. Bard, and her sister, Mrs. Sallie McDade, and Mrs. John Kaufman. A pink, white and green color scheme was featured in the dining room. The lace covered table had for the central adornment a cut glass vase filled with pink and white carnations, flanked by white candlesticks holding green tapers.

A handsome cake iced in white, holding pink flaming candles, outlining eighty-six, was an attractive feature of the table.

Mesdames Ray Brady, Jess Nichols, were assisted in serving lovely refreshments by two of the honoree's grand daughters, Mesdames Joe Bond, of Jackson, and Burt Smith, of Mayfield, and Walter Wright, of Jackson, presided at the Victrola and little Miss Martha Brady at the register.

Mrs. Bard received many gifts of love and good wishes for many more happy birthdays.

BRIDGE PARTY

Mrs. Jake Huddleston entertained with a prettily appointed bridge, Thursday afternoon, at her home on Eddings street. The three tables placed for the members of her club and substitutes were smartly outfitted with black decorated covers and pads to match, with silver dishes holding salted nuts.

Mesdames Chas. Binford and Joe Browder were joint hostesses to the community service department of the Woman's club at the home of Mrs. Binford on Eddings street, Friday afternoon.

There were fifteen members present and Mrs. Fred Worth, the chairman, presided over the business session.

The members decided to give a benefit Tea, March 17, proceeds to go for the club home.

The subject for the afternoon, "Our Chief Executive," was thoroughly and capably handled by Mrs. I. H. Read, leader for the day, in a most entertaining paper.

At the close of the program, tea and sandwiches were served. The next meeting will be with Mrs. H. G. Baldrige and Mrs. Sam Mathews at the home of Mrs. Baldrige.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY MEETS

Circle No. 5, of the W. M. U. of the First Baptist church, had an interesting meeting at the hospitable home of Mrs. Clarence Williams on Walnut street Monday afternoon. A short business session was presided over by the chairman, Mrs. Carl Hastings. Mrs. Glen Robertson led the devotional. A most delightful and interesting program on Japan was given, with Mrs. L. V. Brady as leader, assisted by Mesdames John Earl, O. H. McFarlin, Glen Robertson. A piano solo by Mrs. Amos Stubblefield, was enthusiastically received. During the social hour a biblical contest was enjoyed and Mrs. O. H. McFarlin received the awards of merit, a dainty hand made handkerchief, while Mrs. Walter Valentine received a bottle of cherries. A lovely ice course was served, carrying out the patriotic motif. Favors were hatchets.

Y. M. A. PARTY

It was a very delightful affair in the Chamber of Commerce, Friday afternoon when the members of Y. W. A. of the First Baptist church entertained with a birthday party. This being the month that the "Father of our Country" was born, national colors were used in the decorations. Favors were hatchets decorated with cherries. Tea and sandwiches were served.

A delightful program of readings and musical numbers were given by some of the city's most talented artists. Quite a nice sum was realized, to be used on the organ fund for the new church.

FOOD LIKE YOU GET AT HOME

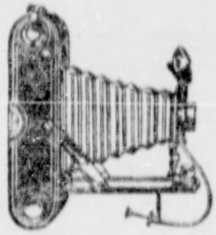

This is truly a home-like restaurant because it has endeavored to break down the prejudice based on the theory that restaurants could not serve food like you get at home. Many patrons will testify that there is no difference between our meals and the meals they get at home. That's the reason they come here so frequently to eat. Years of catering to the appetites of particular people make it possible for us to serve appetizing meals. The next time you want to eat away from home, bring your family here.

Lesson for February 28

JESUS TEACHES RESPECT FOR LAW

LESSON TEXT—Matt. 23:23-24, 27-28.
GOLDEN TEXT—Ye think that ye are wise to destroy the law of the prophets. I came not to destroy but to fulfill—Matt. 5:17.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Lesson on Obedience.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Obeying the Law.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOP-IC—Obeying the Law.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOP-IC—How to Secure Respect for Law.

It is to be regretted that the lesson committee introduced this lesson, important as it is, thus breaking up the unity of instruction in the Gospel of John. Teachers who prefer to continue in John would do well to choose John 12:1-11 as the alternative lesson.

I. The Tribute Money (vv. 15-22).

The Pharisees and Herodians proposed to entrap Jesus and bring Him into conflict with the Roman government so they came to Him with a subtle question—"Is it lawful to give tribute to Caesar or not?" At this time the Jews were galling under the yoke of the Roman government. Some even denied the right to pay tribute to the government. To have answered this question yes or no would have involved difficulty. To have answered yes would have conveyed the impression of endorsement of all that the Roman government did. To have answered no would have at once brought Him into conflict with the government. Christ's reply to this question, properly understood and applied, is the final word on the subject. Until the civil authorities demand of us that which is a violation of God's law, we are bound to render unto them obedience. "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's" means that within the realm of the right of government the Christian should yield glad and full obedience. "Render unto God the things that are God's" means the highest obligation. Since enjoying His protection and care, it is our duty to own all allegiance to Him, to yield our lives to Him in service, worship and praise. Everyone who enjoys the benefits of civil government is obliged to pay the taxes which are necessary for the support of that government, and everyone who receives God's favor is placed in like obligation unto Him.

II. The Great Commandment in the Law (vv. 34-40).

1. The First Commandment (vv.
34-38).

"Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, with all thy soul and with all thy mind." This means that supreme and undivided love to God is the first and great commandment. Man's supreme obligation is to God. It is wrong to evaluate man's character on the basis of his morality as expressed in his relation to his fellowman. Real righteousness is doing the right thing with God. The greatest immorality of which a man can be guilty is his failure to respond to the demands of God. The one who does not supremely and with undivided affection love God is the greatest sinner.

2. The Second Commandment (vv.
39-40).

The second commandment is like unto the first in that it centers in love. It is not said that it was equal unto the first; that would not be true.
A man may love himself, but not su-premely. One's love for his neighbor may be either too much or too little.
The measure set is love for self. We should love God better than ourselves.
He is worthy of all our affections, and demands all. Love is not mere emotion, but a supreme desire for the welfare of another and a willingness to do everything possible to secure that end. The command to love our neighbor is involved in the command to love God. To pretend to love God is folly if we do not love our neighbor. To attempt to establish a brotherhood among men without the recognition of the fatherhood of God is utter nonsense. Men become children of God by faith in Jesus Christ. It is true that in the sense of being God's creatures, all men are God's children, but in the New Testament sense, men are only God's children as they are in Christ. The only way to bring in the brotherhood of man is to preach Jesus Christ to the race and secure acceptance of Him. We thus become brothers in the real sense of the term when we have God as our Father. All obligation resting upon man is embraced in these two commandments. Those who conform their lives to them are God's children and are the very best citizens.

Go and Come

There is a mighty go in the gospel
as well as come. It is come, go. Go, preach and heal; go, home to thy friends; go, into the highways, go, into all the world. Many Christians do not obey; many churches have no blessing, because they do not go.—B.
F. Jacobs.

it is a question as to whether God is

The Tension Lock Holds

You know you can't do high-teeth missing or loose. Every harrow tooth is always on the job when you use the

John Deere Universal

the spike tooth harrow with the special John Deere tension lock.
Each tooth is firmly held into the notched U-bar tooth bar by the patented tension lock illustrated at the right.

Although the "Universal" is designed to meet any condition, you will specially appreciate its good work in orchard and vineyard. Levers have a spring release which permits the teeth to pass over roots, stones, or other obstructions without being damaged. Steel construction prevents damage to trees or vines.

U-bar steel construction is light weight and very strong. The "Universal" is well braced at all points of strain. It will give you years of good work without sagging.

Note large diamond-shaped pointed John Deere harrow teeth.

with a narrow for good with a wider to give good strength. Note, also, how the John Deere tension lock locks the tooth to the U-bar.

AIR DRIED CLOTHES

Do you realize what it means to receive a bundle of thoroughly washed and air dried clothes from a modern power laundry?

It means that at last the only remaining barrier between the housewife and the laundryman has been broken down. Because, now the modern laundry not only washes clean whatever you choose to send, but also duplicates in every respect the method of drying that the housewife has employed for time immemorial, namely, the hanging of the washing on the old-fashioned clothes line, to bask and dry in the glorious sunshine.

The greatest development in years and years, comes to this steadily growing industry in the perfection of a natural drying process. This new method of drying by air eliminates for all time that unmistakable odor which has branded the work of the power laundry in the past.

Thousands and Thousands of Cubic Feet of Concentrated Sunshine

The scientific application of air as a drying agent in the power laundry is accomplished by the perfection of the Vorclone Drying Tumbler. This most wonderful machine harnesses clean fresh air in such great volume that it almost entirely eliminates the necessity of heat to dry clothes with. It dries clothes by air, evenly and gently, ventilating them thoroughly, freeing them entirely of all lint, leaving them soft, fluffy and perfectly odorless. Clothes dried in this manner are never shrunk, discolored or left with a harsh feel.

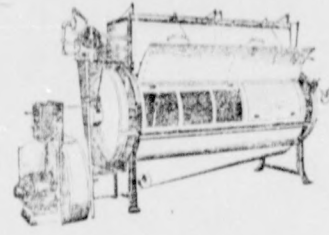

The Vorclone Tumbler used in our laundry is the only drying tumbler that does not depend solely on heat to dry clothes; it is the missing link in an otherwise perfect laundering process. It puts the work of the power laundry on par with that of the housewife's own private laundry.

Be sure to see this wonder machine in our laundry anytime, feel and smell the clothes it dries, notice how fresh and sweet smelling they are.

Entered as second class matter Nov. 25, 1924, at the Post Office at Fulton, Kentucky, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

Greatness.

The roads to greatness are still open. The avenues to human pre-eminence have never closed; no obstruction is there today that has not always existed. But not all those who seem to reach the summit may be considered truly great. All greatness that lacks element of greatness must be false. The man who rides over the just rights of others in order to secure his own advancement, is lacking in all that constitutes true greatness.

Wisdom, zeal, courage, perseverance of character that push one to the front. But above all things it takes industry to make advancement.

We must begin young. Time must not be wasted; it is too precious to those who expect to succeed. Idleness must not be tolerated. The men who reach notoriety are busy men. There are idlers in school; as a rule they are never heard of beyond the school room. There are street-corner loafers who spend days in whittling boxes and tie-posts; but who ever heard of them as being noted for anything else?

There will be great men yet, but they will be workers. The Lord pity the men who have time to spare; on whose hands the days drag; who have to invent ways in which to amuse themselves. While they are doing this they will find that somebody has gone on ahead. While they are idling, some one has worked; while they have been drones in the hive others have gone out and laboriously gathered the sweet stores.

Pull Together.

The prosperity of a town is not guarded by the wealth of its inhabitants, but by the uniformity with which they pull together when any important undertaking is to be accomplished. A man with a thousand dollars at his command and a love for his town in his heart, can do more for the upbuilding of it than the millionaire who locks up his capitol and snaps his fingers at home progress.

Some Good Advice.

Foolish spending is the father of poverty. Do not be ashamed of hard work. Work for the best salary or wages you can get, but work for half price rather than be idle. Be your own master, and do not let society or fashion swallow you individually—hat, coat and boots. Do not eat up or wear out all you can earn. Compel your selfish body to spare something for profits saved. Be stingy to your appetites, but merciful to others' necessities. Help others, and ask no help for yourself. See that you are proud, too! Let that pride be of the right kind. Be too proud to be lazy; too proud to wear a coat you cannot afford to buy; too proud to be in company that you cannot keep up with in expense; too proud to be stingy.

A Marriage Proposal.

One of our giddy youngsters of the male persuasion recently decided to make a formal offer of his heart and hand to one of our representative ladies to whom he had been paying some attention for a time. He cautiously prefaced his declarations with a few questions: "Did she love him well enough to live in a cottage with him? Was she a good cook? Did she think it a wife's duty to make a home happy? Would she consult his tastes and wishes concerning her associates and pursuits of life? Could she make her own clothes?" The young lady said before she answered his questions she would tell him of some negative virtues she possessed. She never drank, smoked or chewed; never staid out all night playing cards; never lounged on street corners and ogled giddy girls; never "stood in" with the boys for the cigars; never burned up her father's money all night in automobiles. "Now," said she, rising indignantly, "I am assured you do all these things, and yet you expect all the virtues in me, while you do not possess any yourself. I can never be your wife," and she bowed him out and left him on the door steps to silently meditate over his venture, a wiser man.

Hickman News

Hickman, no doubt, has the longest flight of steps of any town in the country. These steps were recently condemned as unsafe, but they have been rebuilt and are now finished new. They are known as the court house steps, leading to the top of the big hill where the court house is located, saving pedestrians half a mile's walk by taking this short cut up the steps to the top of the hill. The steps are viewed with much curiosity by visitors and strangers. The new flight has 140 steps, with only one landing which is near the top. Steps have led up this hill to the court house for the last half century or more and cut off much distance.

What is the Chamber of Commerce?

The Chamber of Commerce is the voice of the city.

It reflects the ideals of the community.

It expresses the aspirations of the people.

It gives direction to the aims of the citizenship.

It combines the efforts of those who think in terms of helpfulness.

It reduces unorganized elements to an organized unit.

It speaks in defense of the good name of the city.

It defends the city against the traducer.

It is the spotlight that reveals activities that are worthy.

It pleads in behalf of the voiceless.

It is the center of worth while enterprise.

It is the magnet that draws the outside world to your midst.

It is the clearing house of civic pride.

It is the power house of progress.

It is a composite picture of a city as its citizenship would have it.

Every progressive citizen of Fulton should be a member of the Chamber of Commerce

Bill Booster Says

Build or buy your own home and you'll always be glad you did. You don't have to pay rent, nor move, nor put up with inconveniences. And you will get a lot of satisfaction out of being your own landlord.

A booster cuts his grass, shovels his snow, keeps his cut-out closed, speaks well of his neighbors and his town, pays his bills, supports his church, subscribes to The Advertiser, keeps cheerful and puts aside a little for a rainy day.

This is a big old world and when a man becomes dissatisfied with his present abode, it is just as easy for him to move as it is for him to make life miserable for his neighbor by howling and whining around about the town's defects. Nine chances out of ten he is not a taxpayer anyway. Only a calamity howler.

The insistence on knowing what is in the sausage or canned mince pie has not yet subsided. A lot of people who have had spasms over the packing house revelations might not feel so touchy about the subject if the limelight could shed a few rays into their own kitchens. But then one's own slack ways are not near so censurable as those the other fellow is guilty of.

This is indeed a busy age, remorseless in its incessant calls upon even our leisure hours. The art of making haste slowly has been lost in the bustling turmoil and nothing equivalent has been gained. Still, we may, if we wish—the busiest of us—make for ourselves tiny oases in the desert of labor—green resting places where we may drink of the waters of refreshment.

Young men are so blind to their future interests that they never admire the girl at a picnic who stays and helps the old folks clean up the dishes and repack the baskets as much as they admire the snippy girl who walks off as soon as she has had all she can eat.

Fire Plays No Favorites.

Demon Fire plays no favorites as "Chet" Murrell can testify, for Monday night his new chicken coop was destroyed by fire, nearly creaming about 400 of his chicks that he had housed therein. "Chet" has spent a large part of the winter building his new "henery" and had recently secured a start for a business by installing the above-mentioned 400 chicks. But some way the fire started and only by the aid of the neighbors and the fire department were the lives of the entire brood saved. Being a fireman does not seem to guarantee immunity from fires, and this being the case, insurance rates continue to be high.

Miss White Returns Home.

Miss L. B. White, of Dyersburg, who has been in charge of the case of "Joe Dock" Williams, who was recently the victim of an accident at the L. C. station here, returned to her home Monday, the patient having improved sufficiently to no longer require the services of a trained nurse. Miss White has endeared herself to the family and friends by her skill and ability, and unflinching good nature. The many friends of "Joe Dock" will be glad to learn that he is improving so nicely.

IF HORSES, WHY NOT DOGS?

Covington, Feb. 20, 1928.—The Court of Appeals today overruled a motion of the Erlanger Kennel Club for oral arguments in its case to prevent interference with its operation of the pari-mutuel system of betting on dog races. Attorney General Frank E. Daugherty objected to having oral arguments.

As an organization that operates dog races, the Kennel club contends that it may operate pari-mutuels just as they are operated by jockey clubs on horse races. Mr. Daugherty attacked the gambling on dog races as a violation of the law and a moral menace to the people of Kenton County. The dog races were operated at Erlanger, and an injunction was obtained by the Commonwealth forbidding betting on dog races. At the same time that pari-mutuels on dog races was prohibited by injunction, pari-mutuels were being operated by the Kentucky Jockey Club on horse races at Latonia.

The Commonwealth won injunction suits in the Kenton Circuit Court and the Court of Appeals, and a case on its merits in the lower court. The kennel club now is appealing from the injunction decision of the lower court. Helm Bruce, Louisville attorney, has a brief as amicus curiae before the Appellate Court, protesting the pari-mutuel statutes as unconstitutional.

This case has attracted attention throughout the entire country wherein any kind of racing is being conducted.

The Erlanger Kennel Club, a corporation, on last August and September conducted a race meet at Erlanger, Kenton County, Kentucky. During part of the time in which their race meeting was held, the Kentucky Jockey Club was conducting a race meeting at Latonia. At both race tracks the pari-mutuel system of betting was used. The Kennel Club conducted their meetings at night while the Kentucky Jockey Club conducted their meetings in the afternoon. The officials of the Kennel Club were advised that they had the same right to have this form of betting as the Jockey Club or the various fairs held by the agricultural associations and the trotting tracks and relied solely upon Section 1981 Carroll's Kentucky Statutes, which provides that the pari-mutuel system of betting may be used on regular race tracks during the races thereon. The Kennel Club contends that their premises are constructed particularly and mechanically for the holding of a certain kind of race. The equipment, permanent in character, consists of buildings, sheds, tracks, lighting facilities, and electric hare and machinery for the operation, are all according to an established custom. In other words, the track is built and established according to a standard rule.

Greyhound racing is a well regulated recognized standard sport; dogs are entered, trained and raced according to established and recognized rules. The races are judged, the time kept, the results published and the entire record made under established rules and according to recognized custom.

toms and laws with reference to dog races. They must look beyond the Statutes therefore, to find some authority that would not include this track in the phrase "regular race track," and you will look in vain for any such authority. In 1898 race tracks existed but the mechanical hare which is used as a lure for the grey hounds, did not. The mechanical hare was invented about twenty years ago and it is an integral and necessary part of the system of dog races operated at Erlanger. Before that time there were hounds and racing dogs, but they did not race as they do now. A mechanical hare made it possible to race dogs on a circular track. Some confusion may have arisen by thinking the Legislature had mentioned in Section 1981 Kentucky Statutes, the kind of races conducted rather than the place where races were conducted.

It is the contention of John T. Murphy, of Covington, Kentucky, chief counsel for the Erlanger Kennel Club, that the Legislature referred to the place where races were conducted instead of the kind of races. The Legislature spoke of a "regular race track" during the races thereon. The term "regular race track" constitutes the genus. Why assign to this genus only one species? It is the further contention of counsel for the Kennel Club that where the statute deals with a genus, and the thing which afterwards comes into existence is a species thereof, the language of the statute will generally be extended to the new species, although it was not known and could not have been contemplated by the Legislature when the act was passed.

There is now pending in the Legislature a bill which will clear up any mistaken idea concerning the law with reference to the various kinds of race tracks. However, the case now pending before the Court of Appeals of Kentucky will determine whether or not dogs will be permitted to race the same as horses. A great many people who are interested in horse racing do not want dog racing to continue, for fear that it may interfere with the monopoly that they now have. Yet, when you analyze the situation the dogs have as meritorious a claim as the horses. The horse people contend that the pari-mutuel system of betting develops the breeding of the thoroughbred horse industry. Yet, at the same time, the dogs of this Commonwealth pay a great deal more in taxes than the horses. Can it be said that it is lawful to conduct a race meeting at Latonia, in Kenton County, and have the pari-mutuel system of betting and that a race at Erlanger, in the same County, is unlawful?

It is the contention of the attorneys representing the Kennel Club that it is just as lawful one place as the other. However, Mr. Helm Bruce, a prominent lawyer of Louisville, contends that all forms of gambling on a race track is in violation of the constitution.

The people will watch, with a great deal of interest, the decision which will be handed down shortly by the Court of Appeals of Kentucky.

How Butter Fat in Milk Is Broken Up

Do you know what the word homogenization means?

Ninety-eight out of 100 housewives to whom the question recently was put admitted they couldn't answer "Can you?" But here it is explained by Miss Meta H. Given, food authority doing research work at the University of Chicago.

"Homogenization," says Miss Given, "is the name of the process which breaks up butter fat in evaporated milk into tiny particles so they blend evenly with the solids. Homogenization causes the butter fat globules to adhere to the albumin and the casein of the milk. In the process, milk is forced through countless numbers of openings at a pressure of around 3,500 pounds.

"In addition to preventing a cream and skim milk line, this breaking up of fat contributes to smoothness and perfect blending of foods such as cream sauces, soups, too cream and in baked products.

"It also has a digestive advantage for those who have difficulty in assimilating milk. Many pediatricians recommend evaporated milk as a baby food, although, like other substitutes for the natural supply, it should not be considered as a food complete in itself. Addition of orange or tomato juice, barley water or lime water are important in providing adequate diet for the infant.

"All authorities recognize that normal mother's milk is the best food for infants, but this natural milk is frequently inadequate in quality and quantity. Scientists say cow's milk is the best substitute, but cow's milk must be modified and supplemented with other foods. The fat in mother's milk is in homogeneous suspension and being flocculent forms small curds in the stomach, but the fat in cow's milk is in relatively large globules, forms large tough curds in the stomach and is much harder to digest. In evaporated milk the fat is broken up by homogenization and the curds softened until in size and digestibility they resemble natural infant food."

Globules After Homogenization.

Nourishing Drink for Children

BABIES and children, the same as adults, grow weary of being fed the same food in the same way each day. It is true that most children take naturally to milk, but that does not mean that they must be fed it ad nauseam. On the contrary, that is the very thing to be avoided.

Pediatricians advise consumption by children of a quart of milk a day in one form or another. This does not mean skim milk, but whole milk, for the skimmed product is lacking both in butter fat and the essential food element known as vitamin A, which is found in butter fat. Many mothers do not appreciate that removal of cream from the top of a bottle of milk results in skim milk.

In evaporated milk, a product recommended by many leading doctors for the use of infants and children and which is simply pure cow's milk sterilized in cans and with sixty per cent of the water removed, there is no cream line. The milk in the top of a can is the same as it is in the bottom of the container. This results from a process called homogenization, in which the fat globules in the milk are broken up into such microscopic bits that they remain in homogeneous suspension. Every drop of homogenized milk has a buttery taste because it contains butter fat. For this reason, in evaporated milk there is none of the flat taste one finds in drinking from the bottom of a bottle of market milk.

In order to avoid feeding the baby or child plain milk three or four times a day, many authorities recommend the use of a mixture of fruit juice and milk, a highly palatable and refreshing drink.

Following is a recipe worked out by experts for an orange-milk drink. Mix in a fruit jar 1/2 of a cupful of orange juice, 1/4 of a cupful of evaporated milk, three teaspoonfuls of sugar, 1/2 teaspoonful of lemon juice and a few grains of salt. Shake well before serving.

Chestnut Glade

The home economics class is making preparations to begin cooking next week.

"Edgar A. Guest," was the subject of the Wednesday Chapel program given by the music and expression class.

Some of the best known poems of Guest were given by Mattie Elizabeth Breeden, Leon Nix, Annie Katharine Brown, Ralph Nix, Rodgers, Ralph Breeden, Guy Finch and Clay McConnell followed by an address on the poet, by Malcom Johns. In connection with this, there was music. Two songs, one by Mattie Elizabeth Breeden, Elizabeth Ward and Edith Strong, with Mike Nanney at the piano; another by Helma Reed, Thelma Golden and Clay McConnell with Nalda Strong at the piano; and piano solos by Herman Matheny, Russel Parish, Helma Reed, Thelma Golden and Josephine Howell. Ease and accuracy marked the playing of these young pianists.

The program was read by Beecher Finch.

The next program will be of a historical nature. Miss Nix will give it with the seventh and eighth grade pupils.

W. H. Finch visited the loose leaf floor in Fulton Friday, Feb. 12, Feb. 19, he attended the sales on the loose leaf floor at Hopkinsville. Prices run about the same on each of the two floors.

Mr. J. B. Nanney, with the assistance of Prof. Barrix, has built a demonstration cold frame for tomatoes. Others over the community have started theirs.

Poor Light Puts Production to Sleep—

Good Lighting Wakes It Up

The well-lighted factory is the pace-maker in its field—and enjoys costs appreciably lower than do competitors. This has been proved by engineers and works managers in every branch of industry. Yet four of every five plants are poorly lighted—have lighting that makes production cost excessive.

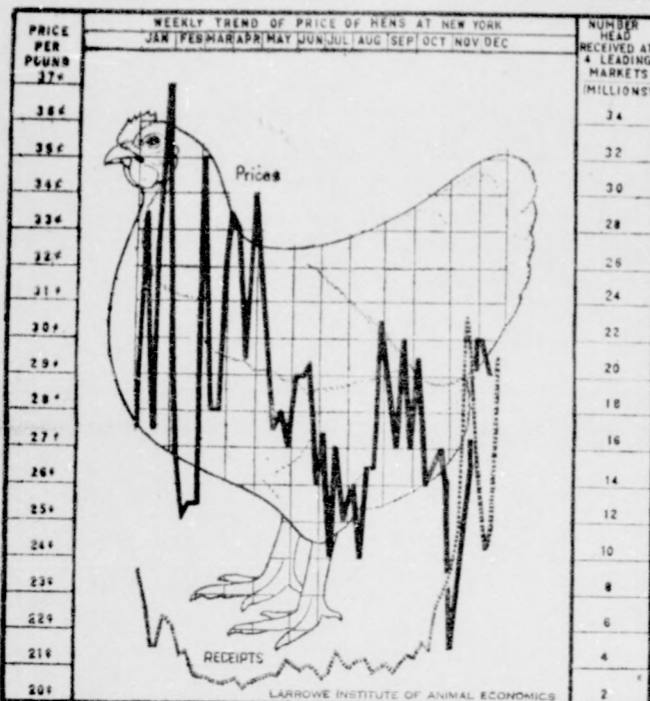

Good artificial lighting in your plant can give 15% increase in production or its equivalent in lowered manufacturing cost.

This problem of proper lighting in the factory is one of great importance and may mean the difference between profits and losses when the balance sheet is drawn.

Without obligation to you, we will gladly investigate your lighting needs and recommend improvements that will enable you to decrease your cost of production by increasing production with the same men and equipment.

Chicken Prices in 1925 Highest in Four Years

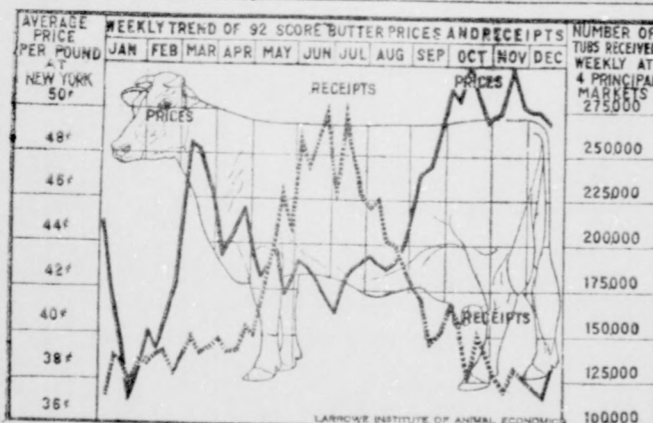

A STEADILY expanding market for table poultry in recent years resulted in an average 1925 farm price per chicken of 85¢, the highest since 1921, according to the 1925 market review of the Larrowe Institute of Animal Economics. Prices for fowls on the New York market during the year were highest in late January when extra quality reached 37 cents a pound. Since then they have ranged between 35 cents and 24 cents until early November when the usual heavy receipts of this time of the year began to be felt. Prices then dropped to 21½ cents a pound, but recovered rapidly as the colder holiday season came on.

Increased demand for poultry in 1925 over the previous year is due in some measure to a lesser consumption in 1924, caused by a wide-spread poultry epidemic in that year. Storage stocks of poultry did not accumulate as rapidly during the past year as they did in 1924, which is an indication of continued good prices during the spring months when this poultry is taken from storage.

Comparatively lower feed costs since 1920 have made poultry profits to recent years the highest in thirty years. Present market demands and industrial conditions in general point to good prices for poultry and poultry products for another two years at least.

Prosperous Dairy Year Shown by Butter Prices

THE 1925 butter market reveals a prosperous condition in the dairy industry, according to the year-end agricultural review of the Larrowe Institute of Animal Economics. Although butter production during the first nine months of the past year seems to have lagged behind the corresponding period in the year previous, it was larger during the last quarter of 1925 than in the corresponding period of 1924. Beginning with October, receipts were the largest on record at this season of the year. For the year as a whole they were about 3 per cent less than in 1924.

Prices averaged higher than in 1924. The average wholesale price of 92 score creamery butter on the New York market in 1925 was approximately 45 cents a pound compared with 43 cents the year previous. Highest 1925 prices were received in October and November when weekly averages reached 52 and 51.5 cents, respectively.

Zez Confrey Mixes Salads and Songs

Zez Confrey.

Zez Confrey, famous composer of the musical classic, "The Kitten on the Keys," is hailed by his friends as the most versatile of American's popular song composers. Those who know him say he can mix a salad or a song with equal success, which is saying considerable since his portfolio of the delightful pranks of a certain young fellow cranking over the typewriter has been recognized as the model of American songwriting.

But Mr. Confrey has other "tricks" in his repertoire. His acquaintances declare, "Country head," he is a judge of horse flesh, and also knows a good cigar.

The simple life is Mr. Confrey's idea of happiness. Every so often Manhattan gets too crowded for him and he boards a train for the country and the companionship of a certain murmuring brook. Inevitably he comes back with one of the merry tunes for which he is noted.

A bachelor, Zez keeps open house for his friends. If he invites a few of the boys over for a midnight supper, he does the cooking himself. Invitations to his lively little dinners are sought after. There are two dishes to which Mr. Confrey is partial. So are his friends. His recipes for the two follow:

Royal Eggs With Mushroom Sauce.
12 eggs
2 salt
Pepper
1-1/2 pound mushrooms
2 tbsp. butter
12 slices toast

Saute the mushrooms in two tbsp. butter, taking care not to burn; pour white sauce of two tbsp. butter, four evaporated milks and meat stock. Cook five minutes. Add the cooked mushrooms and chopped pineapples. Break eggs and drop into hot fat. Cook carefully to keep eggs in a golden brown. Just as soon as they are a golden brown lift out and drain. Place an egg on each piece of toast. Allow two pieces for each serving. Pour over all the mushroom sauce and garnish with parsley.

Pineapple-Cheese Salad.
10 slices pineapple
1 cup cream
1 cup chopped cheese
2 tbsp. evaporated milk

Crisp lettuce leaves
1 tsp. pineapple juice
1 tsp. sugar
Green and red mangoes
Creamy salad dressing

Combine the cheese, nuts, evaporated milk, pineapple juice and sugar, and blend into a smooth mass. Cut pineapple circles in half. Spread cheese mixture on a slice of pineapple and press the other half circle of pineapple on top of cheese as one would a slice of pineapple. In making a sandwich, cut the ends of triangles from around the mangoes and press into the edge of the cheese mixture between the pineapple. Lay two of the prepared pieces of pineapple on a crisp lettuce leaf. Serve with creamy salad dressing. This serves five.

Khedive's Ex-Chef Gives Cooking Tip

Great chefs are born, not made. Rarely if ever do they rise to the heights in their profession by dint of perseverance. In Europe and the East a chef with the true gastronomic instinct is treasured jealously. He expects and obtains the treatment of an ambassador. His dishes are the pride of his master, to be boasted of to friends in the cafes and bazaars.

Such a chef is Haroutoun Gedeon, sometime chef to the family royal of the khedive of Egypt, now the owner of a bizarre gold coast restaurant in Chicago. In his forty-three years as a chef extraordinaire, Haroutoun's word has been law in the cuisines of three Egyptian princes and one princess, the mother of the khedive. When Lord Kitchener was in the Sudan, Haroutoun cooked for him.

One of Kitchener's favorite dishes, according to Haroutoun, was schisch-kabb, a dish made from milk-fed baby lamb. Prince Daniel, another of his masters, was particularly fond of dried cream and honey, a preparation which is one of Haroutoun's zealously guarded secrets. Prince Saad Pasha was a keen admirer of a confection Haroutoun makes entirely out of flour, butter and nuts.

In many of his admirable dishes Haroutoun uses evaporated milk, which is simply fresh cow's milk sterilized in cans and with sixty per cent of the water removed. Because of a homogenizing process through which evaporated milk is put, the fat globules in the milk are broken up into microscopic particles and distributed throughout the milk, where they remain in homogeneous suspension.

This breaking of the fat globules gives a distinct buttery flavor to every drop of the evaporated product, a flavor which ordinary market milk does not have. Haroutoun says he uses evaporated milk in preference to market milk in the preparation of all sorts of baked dishes, as well as in cooking.

STRAIGHT TALKS WITH AUNT EMMY

ON HOW TO LEAVE AN ESTATE

"Do you know, Auntie," said Helen, as she accepted a cup of tea from Aunt Emmy, "I feel terribly sorry for Mrs. Strong."

"Yes," agreed Aunt Emmy, "it will be hard for her. She is such a dependent, helpless little thing."

"Oh, I don't mean that," interrupted Helen. "Her feelings are so hurt because, as she says, her husband publicly insulted her by not making her executrix and trustee of his estate."

"Good gracious, child, did she say that?" exclaimed Aunt Emmy, setting her cup down with a bang.

"Yes, she did, Auntie," said Helen, enjoying the sensation she had made and determined to make the most of it, "and I'm sure I agree with her. The idea of that old man appointing a trust company to look after Mrs. Strong's money. It isn't as though there wasn't plenty of it. The Strong's are the richest people in town, I guess."

"Well, for mercy's sake!" cried Aunt Emmy, disgust in every syllable. "If it don't beat all! You are as big a fool as she is then!"

"What do you mean, Aunt Emmy?" asked Helen with dignity. "I think it nothing short of disgraceful for a man to show that he has no confidence in his wife by putting his money in strangers' hands to be doled out to her as they see fit."

"You never thought that up, Helen," said Aunt Emmy, "that's Mrs. Strong. She always talks as though she was living in a story book, poor, silly, little thing."

Helen blushed and Aunt Emmy went on: "Do you know what it means to administer an estate, especially a big one like Mr. Strong's?"

"Why, no," stammered Helen, "but it must be simple."

Aunt Emmy sniffed. "Simple? Let me tell you a little about it. When a man dies the things he owns cease for a time to be anybody's property and become his estate. The property passes from his control on his death naturally, and as his estate it is controlled and supervised by the Court which will be in charge of the estate for many months probably. First this Court finds out whether or not there is a will and if the will is valid. Then it must find out about the executor. If the will is properly drawn and valid, it will be 'admitted to probate.' The persons who witnessed it must be found and examined.

"The executor must satisfy the Court as to fitness and willingness to perform the many arduous duties involved. Perhaps he will have to furnish a bond, to assure the Court of his financial responsibility. He must assemble all the so-called assets, have them valued and file an inventory and appraisal of them with the Court. All the debts against the estate must be collected. The settlement of all claims against persons and corporations is a job no one without a thorough knowledge of business can undertake."

"In an estate like Mr. Strong's there is sure to be a certain amount of financial negotiation that demands banking knowledge. Then the executor must pay claims against the estate in the order of precedence laid down by law. Also you know state inheritance and federal estate taxes must be paid promptly. Finally, after the estate is settled as to claims it has and claims against it, the executor must see that the various bequests are made."

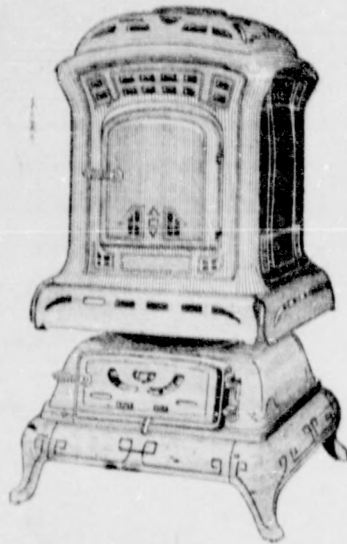

"Oh, Auntie, don't tell me any more. I never thought that there were so many complicated things to be done. Poor Mrs. Strong never knew a thing about business."

"Mr. Strong knew that," remarked Aunt Emmy dryly. "And don't you suppose he had his children in mind, too? He wanted his estate handled so that the children and Mrs. Strong would be protected and assured of a good, comfortable living all their lives, with something to go on to the grandchildren. Even if Mrs. Strong were a business woman, no one could tell how long she would live to administer the estate. He knew that the trust company would not die, nor lose its facilities, nor be influenced by personal feeling so that it might be unjust to some one and that it represents some of the best business and banking judgment in town."

"Well, I guess old man Strong knew what he was doing!" said Helen. — Anne B. Aymes.

The more recently adopted method of killing the common harberry which spreads black stem rust of small grains is by the use of such chemicals as salt and kerosene, according to the Department of Agriculture. These methods have several advantages over the digging method formerly used. They are less laborious, cheaper and more certain. This is especially true if bushes are growing in stony ground where digging is difficult. Department Circular 356 tells about how to use this method. — Sanker-Farmer.

Railroad News

I. C. Has Made Great Progress
On February 10, 1851, the Illinois Central received its charter and began construction of a railroad that was to be one of the greatest railway systems of the country. Since that date the Illinois Central has continually spread its lines from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic Coast in two directions, and we proudly add that Fulton is the hub of that great system. It has acquired railroads as part of its system that are older than the Illinois Central—one line in particular, the West Feliciana Railroad in Louisiana and Mississippi, incorporated in 1831—
but the history of the Illinois Central system is considered to have begun Feb. 10, 1851, on which date Governor Augustus C. French signed the act of the Illinois General Assembly
which incorporated the Illinois Central.

For the first 16 years of its corporate existence, the Illinois Central operated only in the state of Illinois, but after that it began to expand and grow into the great system, until now it covers over 8,500 miles and employs 73,000 employees. Only about 12,000 of these employees are actually engaged in the operation of trains, and of the remaining 61,000, 18,000 keep the cars and locomotives in condition and 23,000 maintain the tracks, buildings and other facilities, and 8,000 operate freight and passenger stations, baggage rooms, dining car and telegraph and telephone service. The clerical forces, storekeepers, janitors, watchmen and similar employees number 10,800. There are 700 specialists engaged in engineering, architecture, technical occupations and chemistry. There are 500 executives, division officers and staff assistants. We might add, that the population along the Illinois Central system has grown from 8 million to 38 million in 70 years of its existence.

The history of the Illinois Central includes the names of many men of national fame. It is doubtful if any other road in the country enjoys the distinction of having had so many notables connected with its history.
Abraham Lincoln was an attorney for the Illinois Central Railroad from the time the company received its charter in 1851 until his election as President of the United States in 1860. General Geo. B. McClellan, General in Chief of the Union army during the war, was connected with the Illinois Central as chief engineer and later vice president. Judah J. Benjamin, once secretary of war, attorney general and secretary of state of the Confederate States of America, and a right-hand adviser of Jefferson Davis, was a leading promoter of the New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad which now forms the main line of the Illinois Central system between New Orleans and Canton, Miss.
General P. G. T. Beauregard,
one of the most brilliant officers of the Confederate Army, who was in command of the firing of the first shot of the war at Fort Sumter, was President of the New Orleans, Jackson & Great Northern Railroad
now part of the Illinois Central. General Ambrose Burnside, Sir William C. Van Horne, Hon. Henry P. Plant and other notables were connected with the Illinois Central.

The Illinois Central has not ceased its extension, and is now spending between 16 and 20 millions in improving and extending its system. It is the hub of this great system, with lines representing the spokes, extending in four directions, and within another year a fifth spoke will be added to the hub, when the new Edgewood-Fulton line is completed.
