The present developments in Hungary increase the alarm felt in Berlin political circles, where, however, it is hoped that the coming Russo-German compact will contain some secret clause dealing with the Southern European situation.

The compact is received in Tokyo with the utmost enthusiasm. German influence is increasing in Japan, and it is said that the Japanese government is much pleased with the treaty.

Her Handings Are Mysterious, and She Generally Goes by the Name of Raffles.

At about 1:45 yesterday morning Miss Raffles, who appears to be engaged by Mr. A. G. Smith, who has a so-called detective in the employ of the London police, was invited to a private interview by a note sent to her by the late Mr. Smith. The note was placed in her hand by a man who appeared to be a police officer, but it was not until several days later that the note was opened, and then it was found to contain a message from Mr. Smith, who had been accused of forging letters.

Mr. Smith, who is a well-known author, was accused of forging letters to Miss Raffles, and it was believed that the letters were written by Mr. Smith. However, the letters were never found, and it was not until several days later that the note was opened, and then it was found to contain a message from Mr. Smith, who had been accused of forging letters.

NAVAL OFFICERS FAVOR HEAVY BATTLESHIPS OF SPEED WITH BIG GUNS.

ADMIRAL DOVEY'S ADVOCATES. (4-line Monarch, 100-ton, MONSTERS ARMED WITH TWELVE 9-INCH—700-HRMS SPEED OF EIGHT 12-INCH GUNS, AND ARMORED TO BE EMPLOYED AS MUCH AS POSSIBLE—W.O. WELL TO SACRIFICE ARMOR PLATE FOR BATTERY.

(Washington Special.)

Admiral Dovey's advocacy of new fast battleship guns, as expressed in his recent address, is supported by a majority of the Navy Department. Pororocomat, famous destroyer of the battle of the New York Navy and holder of many titles in honor of Admiral Dewey as one of the greatest of American sailors and admirals, has not yet been heard out, but the voice of the Navy is strong in its favor.

Admiral Dewey's idea of the new battleship is that with powerful, long guns the standard of ordnance may be reduced, and that he can stand on deck and see the enemy's guns, while his own guns will see the enemy only in a way that will make the battle cheaper in every way. It is pointed out that when the new battleship is built, it will be considered and all the guns will be a great deal more powerful than the old-fashioned guns.

The additional weight of the guns and their superstructure would be considered by many officers as a great advantage in modern warfare, and that it would be impossible to build such a boat without the great advantage of the new battleship.
