BENTON TRIALS

First Night Rider Cases Resulted
In a Hung Jury.—One
Acquittal.

Benton, Ky., June 20.—The jury in the Burnett Phelps case was dismissed this afternoon at 2 o'clock, after having been held together for twenty-six hours. They reported that it was impossible to agree. It was ascertained that the jury was evenly divided, six being for conviction and six for acquittal.

Burnett Phelps is charged with participating in the raid on Birmingham, in March, when John Surges, an old negro, was killed, and his infant grandchild was so badly shot it died the next day. Several negroes were whipped.

The defense relied on alibi evidence to acquit their client. Both sides made out a strong case. Commonwealth's Attorney John G. Lovett made a strong speech, denouncing such lawlessness as night riding in strong terms. He pleaded with the jury to do its duty and send Phelps to the penitentiary. Attorneys C. K. Wheeler and W. A. Berry, of Paducah, also put up strong arguments for their client. Attorney Wheeler's speech being flowery. William Reeder also spoke for the commonwealth and Attorney Jack Fisher for the defendant.

The Phelps case was the first tried in Marshall county and it is considered a victory for the defense. The commonwealth's attorney is hopeful though of convicting some of the men indicted, and he has a large number to work on.

While Attorney Berry was speaking he made a remark that was approved by a large number of the audience applauding. The commonwealth's attorney was quick to arise and asked the court, "Judge I wish you would stop these night riders from applauding the speaker." There were some murmurs of disapproval at the request, but Judge Reed promptly informed the audience that a repetition would mean jail sentences for the guilty.

The case of Sam Collie, charged with the same offense, was finished at five o'clock this afternoon and given to the jury. The evidence in this case was practically the same as in the Phelps case, Otis Blick being the most important witness. Collie's defense is about the same as in the other case, both defendants presenting strong alibis. A verdict of not guilty was returned.

Mrs. S. L. Bowen, of Wayne W. Va., writes: "I was a sufferer from kidney disease, so that at times I could not get out of bed, and when I did I could not stand straight. I took Foley's Kidney Remedy. One dollar bottle and part of the second cured me entirely." Foley's Kidney Remedy works wonders where others are a total failure. Sold by all druggists.

The Confessed Night Rider.

The ire of an alleged wronged woman is powerful and accomplished something that threats of death from night riders failed to do, as rather than face his wife Sanders Hall, the confessor king bee of the night riders pulled his freight from Paducah yesterday and skipped out, or is in hiding, as his wife came down from Lyon county and secured from Judge David Cross, a warrant charging that Hall and a woman named Minnie Bean were living as man and wife at a certain boarding house in Paducah. Before the authorities could nat

Hall and the female so accused, they had left and cannot now be located.

Hall is the fellow who six weeks ago came here from Lyon county and made a confession in Paducah to County Attorney Walter Krone, of Lyon, in which he acknowledged taking part in the night riding raids of that vicinity, while he also gave the names of about fifty other parties he charged with being along. These parties will be indicted, and fearing violence may be attempted him in Lyon county, Hall has remained in Paducah to wait until the trials come up at Marion, Ky.

Mrs. Hall came from Lyon county to Paducah Tuesday but did not lodge the charge against her husband and the Dean woman until yesterday morning. In the meantime Hall must have gotten wind that she was here as when the police authorities went to the boarding house yesterday after the pair, they learned they had flown.

The Dean woman also hails from Lyon county.—Paducah Register.

Martin's Chapel.

The farmers are having to hustle to kill the grass. Quite a number of the members met at Martin's Chapel last week and fixed the church. They removed those old props, braced up the church and made new steps.

The Women's Foreign Missionary which met at Mrs. Ben Pools last Monday was well attended and much enjoyed by all present. The report given by Miss Zenie Harrison (who had just returned from the missionary society at McKenzie) was grand.

Mrs. John Rowland and daughter, of Arlington, are visiting his brother, Robert Rowland.

Miss Grace Butterworth is visiting relatives in this section.

Miss Edna Luter is visiting friends near Clinton.

Robert Broach, who has been attending school returned home a few days ago.

The protracted meeting will begin at Martin's Chapel the second Sunday in July. Bro. Brassfield will help in the meeting.

The death angel visited the home of Mr. James Whitnell last Thursday morning and claimed for its own, Mrs. Whitnell. The husband, children and friends did all in their power for her. But there is one who is more powerful, one whom she had trusted and served since a little girl. She was truly a good woman and each one should try to live as she has lived, don't be preparing for death but prepare to live if we live right we are sure to die right. She leaves a husband and two sons besides a number of relatives and friends to mourn for her. Interment at Martin's Chapel Friday. Funeral services were conducted by Bro. S. Humphrey and Leake.

Mrs. Evaline Rowland is quite sick this week. JUNE BUG.

Taft and Sherman.

Chicago, June 19.—With 15,000 spectators groaning and hissing and 702 delegates cheering themselves hoarse, the Republican National Convention yesterday nominated William H. Taft for President of the United States. The convention met at 10 o'clock and Taft was nominated seven hours later. From first to last it was a Roosevelt demonstration.

Taft was virtually permitted to select his running mate and this morning at 11:15 o'clock James S. Sherman, an unknown Congressman from New York, was nominated on the first ballot.

OPEN MEETING.

County Committee of Tobacco Association Held Meeting
Fourth Monday.

The Calloway county committee of the tobacco association held an open meeting here Monday in the court house, and to which a general invitation was extended the public. A number of speeches were made by members of the committee in which conditions of the growing crop were given.

Following these talks others were made with a view of re-establishing absolute harmony throughout the county.

Suggestions were made regarding the pledging of the present crop and it was given as the sense of the committee that a number of mass meetings be called in each district under the direction of the district chairman who should name the date and place for such meetings.

While it has been generally conceded for some time that there would be no trust or independent buyers in Murray this season the following was submitted as evidence of the sympathy the town entertains for the tobacco growers. The article was signed by about seventy citizens of the town.

"We the undersigned citizens of Murray, without purpose to do anyone any harm or injury of any kind, record it as our earnest belief that it is best for our town and county, that no independent buyer purchase tobacco in Murray the coming season. We are for the association and desire that it handle the coming crop, and believe that the best interests of all of our people pool their crops."

The above article was read by R. T. Wells. An amendment was offered by O. J. Jennings to the effect that every signer be furnished with an association pledge and that he go to work to aid the organization in pooling every crop of tobacco in the county.

A list of places and dates were made for speaking and speakers assigned by the chairman but a called meeting of the committee was held Thursday and the entire list cancelled.

ASSOCIATION MEETINGS.

The tobacco growers of the Wadesboro section will hold a mass meeting Friday night 26th at Wadesboro.

The Jackson school house meeting will be held Saturday night 27th inst.

Friday night July 3rd a mass meeting will be held at Russell's Chapel.

Saturday night July 4th a meeting will be held at Dexter. O. J. Jennings, of Murray, will be present at each of the places and make an address.

Everybody is urged to come out. Ladies are invited.

Ten Years in Prison.

Lon Holly was given ten years in the penitentiary Tuesday by the jury at Benton in the Circuit Court for fatally stabbing Reese Fisher, two months ago during trouble they had there. One of Holly's cousins testified on the stand that he noticed Fisher put his hand in his pocket as if to draw a revolver or knife, during the altercation. The testimony showed that Fisher did not have any revolver or weapon on his person, but there was nothing to conflict with the evidence of Holly's cousin that Fisher made as if to draw a weapon.

The verdict was returned yesterday at noon by the jurors who got the case early in the morning. Holly and several others were out in a buggy while drunk at Benton, and while away from the rig a moment, the wife of one took the booze and carried it to her home, where she was accompanied by Fisher. Holly stabbed Fisher several times, death resulting two weeks later.

Cottage Grove.

Farmers are busy now killing weeds and grass.

Some weddings, Mrs. Dant Webb and King Stephenson, Allen Winger and Ora Steward, Boyd Powell and Agnes Hall, Taylor Holley and Nina Poyner. Singing school began at Bethany Sunday.

Uncle Buck Chery, as everybody called him, died a few days ago.

Sam Baustwick was shot five times by Birch Matheny at Palmersville Saturday night. Matheny made his escape. Baustwick died of his wounds. The trouble grew out of a game of craps.

Miss Lou Doro Turner, daughter of John Turner died from taking 12 grains of Morphine. No reason is assigned for the deed.

Will Rainey has returned from New Mexico, he thinks Tennessee good enough for him.

There has been over 1,500 acres of tobacco pledged here at Cottage Grove and all that is needed is some one like O. J. Jennings to come and make us a talk. Most of the tobacco is already pledged.

The W. O. W. are going to have a good time the 4th of July. All Woodmen are invited to attend. This would be a good time for some one to speak on the tobacco question.

There was a large crowd at the unveiling of Sov. Tom Pullen's monument the first Sunday in June at Cottage Grove.

This country has been raided by some parties and several pair of buggy harness and everything they could haul in a buggy was taken. Most everything missing was found at Mr. Holdens.

Mrs. Holden was arrested for concealing the things and bond fixed at $250, in default of bond she was placed in jail. Mr. Holden and one of his boys came clear and the others made for tall timber and are still at large.

I want to say hurray for O. J. Jennings, you are the man for me and all other farmers, stay with us in our fight for liberty for we need you, we don't need any trust bugs and all voters of Calloway county should remember the trust bugs when we go to vote.

LIMBER JIM

Called Off.

Owing to confusion of dates and places not being suitable the list of appointments for association speaking is called off. The committee is called to meet Saturday, July 4th, 10 o'clock. Every member of the committee is urged to attend this meeting that this matter might be properly adjusted.

A. J. G. Wells and wife returned Monday from Newbern, Tenn., where they attended the funeral of the late W. B. Featherston, who died last Friday of cancer.

ELEPHANTS ON RAID

VICIOUS BEASTS TAKE HUMAN LIFE IN RHODESIA.

Head of Wesleyan Mission Bonds Particulars and Precautions Against Protection Accorded the Animals in South Africa.

Rev. Mr. Gifford, in charge of the Wesleyan mission at Johannesburg, has been told of a raid made by a herd of elephants, which resulted in the loss of life.

He says: "I shall be glad if you will make known to the mission of your paper the following incident and my comments on it in the hope that public sentiment may be aroused against a condition of things in which many suffer for the sake of a few of a few, who share none of the misery that their heathen fellows upon whom in May last the natives on the farm suffered serious damage from the incursions of a troop of elephants that visited in three nights in succession. In this respect we are not the only sufferers, for I am constantly hearing of the same kind of thing throughout the neighborhood. We have no law of means of protecting our crops, and application for damages are ignored."

"On Friday morning two old natives and a policeman, who had been sleeping in a skinned animal in the jungle, awoke to find that ten grown elephants and three calves were within a few yards of where they lay. The natives fled in terror, pursued by one of the beasts, which was apparently enraged at the sight of human beings in such close proximity to the point of being trampled. The policeman, who was on his hands and knees, was trampled under the feet of the elephants. The elephants then proceeded to rip the victim to pieces, splitting one leg from buttock to calf and an arm from shoulder to wrist. He just lived long enough to urge his friend to fly to the kraal, or no one would be left to tell the tale."

"We are told that in strict self-defense they may be fired upon. Are we then to wait until one of the brutes is in the act of charging upon us ere we pull a hasty trigger, which is more likely than not to be our last? And what is the use of firing at one angry elephant when several others are standing by ready to take up the cause of their companion if it does fall?" It is popularly supposed that elephants will not attack a human being unless provoked to do so. This is generally confined to cattle, horses and dogs. Why, then, should elephants, which in this district are a much greater source of terror, be protected, and the killing of one be a criminal offense?—Rhodesia Herald.

Can Such Things Be?

A new custom is being introduced this summer at some of the summer hotel dances. It seems to trace its origin back to practices common at the old country barn dances. A young man attending a dance at a nearby resort was surprised to find his fair partner at the close of a dance, said: "Come over to this end of the veranda. I hid my bottle on the window sill."

Your what? gasped the young man. "My bottle. Why, where have you been? We girls are all taking cocktail bottles to the dances this summer. She produced a good-sized bottle from the window ledge as she spoke and invited her companion to partake in the old-fashioned way without the intervention of a glass. Near by another young woman was passing her bottle around among a little group of friends.—N. Y. Tribune.

Love Me, Love My Dog.

A curious incident, involving a young and good looking French woman and her dog, occurred recently on a Continental railway. For several hours the young woman bestowed more attention and tender care upon the pretty little creature than the majority of women do upon their first born, and at every station it was taken out for exercise, and between stations it was fed with dainty nibbles taken from its special basket, which also contained extra wraps, fresh shoes and a gay collar with a huge bow. What attracted most attention was, however, the purchasing of a bottle of mineral water, the taking out of a tiny folding traveling cup, into which some of the water was poured and the sipping of it up by the pet.—Dundee Advertiser.

Broke Will for $200,000.

A few days ago it was said to have been paid by a New York lawyer, William D. Guthrie, for breaking the will of the late Henry D. Plant, owner of a system of steamships, railways and hotels. Belgium Cuts as Yankees.

Artificial diamonds are made in Belgium in so clever a manner that they can hardly be distinguished from genuine ones, especially if mixed with the latter. BUSY DAY IN NAVY.

OFFICERS AND MEN CHANGE DRESSES FIVE TIMES.

Not a Regular Occurrence, But One Instance of What the Men Are Sometimes Required to Do.

Four thousand officers and blue jackets, constituting the crews of five first-class battleships and one gunboat, in the New York navy yard, changed their uniforms simultaneously five times on a recent Sunday, says the New York Times. The reason of so much changing of dress was due to the regulation which requires that each officer and man must at all times wear a uniform to conform with that worn by the commanding senior officer of the fleet or squadron.

Rear Admiral Rodney D. Evans, the commander-in-chief of the North Atlantic fleet, five of whose battleships are at the navy yard, is, of course, the ranking officer at the yard. He is away on leave of absence. Next to him comes Rear Admiral Coghlan, the commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet, and Admiral Davis, commanding the second division of the battleship squadron. However, it was said absence of commanding officers were frequent, and this made the ranking a good deal of a puzzle to anybody but a navy man.

At any rate the officers and men of the Keokuk, Kentucky, Alabama, Maine and Missouri and the second-class gunboat Dubuque had to make some lightning changes of dress. The changes began at reveille, when a signal from the Alabama showed that the commanding officer was going to breakfast dressed in blue.

This information was quickly widespread to all the ships, and when the men lined up for mess each of them was clad in the blue uniform of the service. After breakfast the men lounged about the decks or strolled around the yard. About ten o'clock another signal was blown from the flagship. The signal was to the effect that the ranking officer was wearing a white cap. Ten minutes later all the officers and nearly 3,500 men had discarded their caps of blue and had appeared in caps made of pure white duck.

The next change was at the lunch hour. Hardly had that meal ended when the signal was blown from the commanding officer was in the full uniform of white duck. Half an hour later the officers still on the ships and every blue-jacket on ship or in the yard had returned from a hurried visit to his quarters, where he had changed the blue for the white duck.

Just before the dinner bell another signal appeared. "Off with the blue and on with the white," is a liberal translation of what the man with the signal flags said. It was nearly sundown, but the interval between signal and mess call was sufficient for another rapid change of garb, and when the "last call for dinner" sounded the decks of every battleship and the little gunboat showed formations of smart seamen, every one of whom was clad in the full blue uniform of the United States service.

"I believe we hold the record in changing clothes is under discussion," remarked an officer, as he darted around a 12-inch turret on his way to his quarters to change his white duck for a blue uniform.

New Explosive.

Vice Consul Stephens, of Plymouth, England, writes about a new explosive which it is claimed will reduce climatic conditions. "It is reported that Messrs. Kynoch (Limited), one of the government manufacturers of cordite, claim to have produced an explosive which, but which, because of ingredients added, will reduce climatic effects by one-half. Instead of a round cord, in cordite, a ribbon is the form of manufacture, and it is claimed that the explosive will not corrode the barrels so much as the older form, that there is less friction and consequently greater accuracy. Experiments have been made which show that after firing the new explosive the deposit does not injure the barrel if left in it for some hours at a time."

Nimble Animals.

Although the flea holds the record for agility of movement among insects and is capable of a speed of nearly ten miles an hour, could it continue jumping without cessation and without tiring, it has but little the better of the jumping mouse found in the African deserts, which clears ten feet at a jump at the rate of 800 feet a second. Compared with these, the larger animals are slower, for the ostrich moves 28 feet a second, the gazelle 35, and the Russian roach, swift among dogs, covers only 75 feet a second. The swallow, fastest among birds, covers only 400 feet in a second, or just one-half what the African mouse can accomplish were the latter to sustain its efforts.

Population of China.

The latest authoritative information obtainable, according to Consul Anderson, of Amoy, places the population of the Chinese empire at 422,000,000. Chinese people are brought in contact with the world outside the lower kingdom is made apparent by the fact that the total population of the treaty ports is only 1,000,000.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.

Prevalence of Kidney Disease. Most people do not realize the alarming increase and resultant prevalence of kidney disease. While kidney disease is the most common disease that preys upon the system, it is almost entirely unrecognized by patient and physician alike. It is a disease that tests the system with disturbing effects, while the organs and disease undermines the system.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and sealding pain in passing it, or bed effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild but extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, by mail. Address Dr. J. C. Kilmer & Co., Inc., 101 West 29th Street, New York, N. Y. Write for free literature. Do not mistake the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Birmingham, N. Y.

Relief from Rheumatic Pains.

Among the troubles that beset mankind rheumatism is one of the most aggravating. "I suffered with it for over two years," says Mr. Roland Curry, a patrolman, of Key West, Fla. "Sometimes it settled in my knees and lamed me so I could hardly walk, at other times it would be in my feet and hands so I was incapacitated for duty. One night when I was in severe pain and lame from it my wife went to the drug store here and came back with a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. I was rubbed with it and found the pain had nearly gone during the night. I kept on using it for a little more than two weeks and found that it drove the rheumatism away. I have not had any trouble from that disease for over three months." For sale by Dale & Stubblefield.

OTHER OPINIONS.

The military service in seven months has cost the State $45,000, but Gov. Willson's equalization board raised the tax assessments to bring in $200,000 new taxes. This increase falls mostly upon farm lands, which he claims have been enhanced in value by more lucrative prices for farm products. It will thus be seen that the farmers themselves are paying for the soldiers. Hopkinsville Kentuckian.

Justice hangs her head in shame when murderers are pardoned and soldiers are stationed throughout the Commonwealth to force into subjection the farmers who have been robbed of their just dues, by a hiring of the trusts. Hopkinsville Independent.

It's now up to Gov. State Treasurer Farley says it is possible that an extra session of the state legislature will be necessary to provide funds to carry on the state government. Governor Willson will bankrupt the state if he is allowed to use the soldiers as he is now doing.

Upholds Tax Law.

Frankfort, Ky., June 17.—The famous and much mooted dog-tax law, which is charged with putting the Republicans into offices in the State and which was the bone of contention in the Legislature last year, next to the senatorial race, to-day was sustained by the Court of Appeals by a divided court. The opinion was written by Judge Barker and the dissenting opinion was written by Judge O'Rear, with Judges Nunn and Carroll concurring in the dissenting opinion. The law is sustained fully on all points.

The court holds, in the majority opinion, that the right to tax dogs is done under and by authority of the police power of the State and that the tax imposed by this act is not a tax for revenue, but one for regulation. As to the question of two subjects being mentioned in the title, the court holds that only one subject is referred to.

Fulton Suicide.

Fulton, Ky. June 22.—Col. Emmet C. Reed, capitalist and horse fancier, committed suicide Sunday at 9 o'clock. Standing before a mirror in his room at his residence. Reed placed a 38-caliber pistol against his right temple and fired a bullet into his brain. Death occurred in a few hours. Several days ago Reed was arrested on the charge of unmercifully whipping a boy employed at his stables.

Enemies of Reed offered services to assist the boy in a suit for damages, and this, coupled with recent financial reverses, is believed to have temporarily unbalanced his mind for several days, and relatives, fearing for his life, vainly tried to get possession of the pistol he habitually carried. Hundreds of people congregated at the suicide's home, and no tragedy of recent years has caused such sensation.

Mr. Reed's wealth was estimated at $75,000, of which much was invested in real estate.

These boards will elect the teachers in time for the schools to begin early in September.

WELL DESERVED.

The Praise That Comes From Thankful Murray People.

One kidney remedy never fails.

Murray people rely upon it. That remedy is Doan's Kidney Pills.

Murray testimony proves it always reliable.

Mrs. A. J. Davis, living in Murray, Ky., says: "When I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, my kidneys were in a very disordered condition, and I had been informed on good authority that kidney trouble was slowly poisoning me. I suffered from dizzy spells and it was with great difficulty that I was able to keep from falling. The passages of the secretions caused great annoyance by their too frequent action, and sharp twinges would catch me in the back which felt as if a knife were being thrust into me. Finally after a severe attack of La Grippe I was rendered helpless with backache. I was in bed three weeks without being able to turn and no tongue can tell the agony I endured. The doctors were only able to relieve me temporarily, but I was continually growing worse when someone advised Doan's Kidney Pills. I procured them at Dale & Stubblefield's drug store, and had taken them but a short time when I felt much better. Thus encouraged I continued their use and improved rapidly until after three weeks time there was not a symptom of trouble remaining. I keep Doan's Kidney Pills in the house constantly, and recommend them at every opportunity."

Very Drastic Law.

The child labor law passed at the last session of the Kentucky legislature, is now in effect, and has been since Monday. It is estimated by good authorities that there are now many unemployed minors as a result.

The law forbids the employment of minors under fourteen years of age absolutely, and the employment of minors under sixteen years of age unless they possess a school certificate showing their good standing in their classes. The latter provision, however, does not become effective until September 1, 1908.

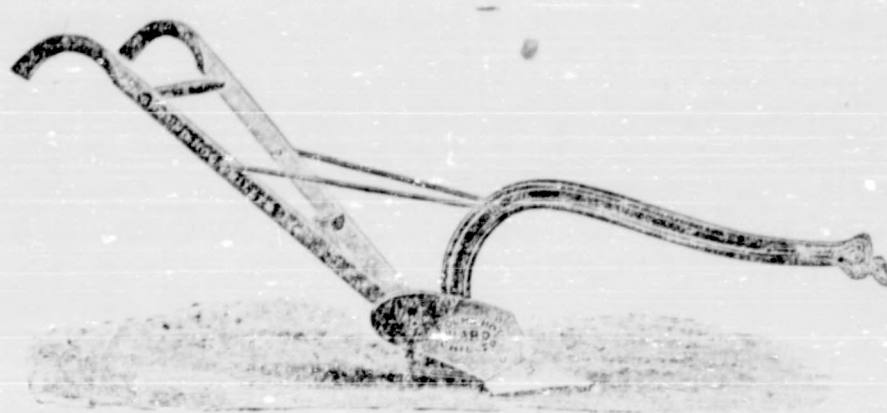

The new law is one of the most drastic and far advanced of any in the Union. A jail penalty is provided for the employer who violates the law.

I want to call your attention to the fact that at the meeting of the board of directors held June 10, the books for pledging to the association for the year of 1908 were ordered closed August 1, 1908.

The time for joining is so limited that it is desired to give the widest publicity to it, so that everyone who desires may have the opportunity of joining.

It is not probable that the books will ever again be opened after the directors have set the time for closing for any season.

Clarksville Tenn., June 22.—The case of John Gardner and Walter Hunt, charged with the murder of Vaughn Bennett has been continued to the fourth Wednesday in August. The case was called two weeks ago and means for the defendants' application for a change of venue, which motion was set for argument Saturday. When court reconvened, however, the court announced the case continued. This case is one of the most important to be tried in Montgomery county in many years and grows out of tobacco troubles here. It is claimed Vaughn Bennett was waylaid and shot down on the public highway by the defendants, who at the time were in the employ of the Regies, but doing special guard duty.

Negro Presided.

Chicago, June 19.—Franklin A. Denison, a negro, assistant corporation counsel of Chicago, presided over the deliberations of the Republican national convention for three-quarters of an hour today. He held the gavel and dictated the course of the proceedings while nominations were made and seconded, with their accompanying speeches, of favorite sons for the office of vice-president.

This is the first time in the history of the Republican party that such an honor has been given to a negro. Twenty years ago, during the Republican convention at Chicago, which nominated Benjamin Harrison, John R. Lynch, of Mississippi, at one time a slave, was presiding officer over the temporary organization for a few minutes, but he had nothing to do with the permanent business of that body. Consequently Denison feels unusually proud of his distinguished position.

The contract was made Wednesday calling for the erection of three new brick business houses on the east side of Main street. The enterprising business men behind this work are Messrs. R. W. Chrisman & Son, Bun Nix and Myers & Kelley. The new stores will be built adjoining. All of them are to be two stories in height and 75 feet in length. The contract calls for their completion by Sept. 1. Messrs. J. W. Osburn & Son and Wilson Bro. are the contractors. They will begin the work of construction about July 1.—Hazel News.

THE LAST MOMENTS

WHEN THE SPIRIT CROSSES THE BORDERLAND.

Passing of a Life as Seen by One Who Is Not a Physician—Death Rattle a Shock to Listeners.

One afternoon a reporter for the New York Sun was sitting in one of the rooms of the house surgeon of a hospital in New York city, smoking a cigar and chatting with the doctor while the latter busied himself with looking over some instruments that he had taken from a case.

An orderly entered and said, "Doctor, I think he is dying now."

"Are his brother and mother here?" asked the house surgeon.

"No, they said they were coming but they are not here yet."

"It's a case of severe operation," said the doctor to the reporter. "He took his ether all right and rallied from the shock, but he has been losing ground for two days. Will you come along with me?"

The reporter followed the physician into one of the small rooms devoted to private patients.

Lying flat on his back on the narrow iron cot was a young man perhaps a little more than 20. The bed-clothing was in perfect order. The narrow counterpane was spread smoothly on the cot and folded over, with the sheet across the patient's chest.

His arms lay straight on either side. His face did not indicate emaciation. His breathing was irregular, and there seemed to be a considerable interval, sometimes longer and sometimes shorter, between the end of an expiration and the beginning of an inspiration. The orderly stood at the foot of the cot.

"How long has he been unconscious?" the physician asked.

"A little more than an hour," replied the orderly.

"We may talk," said the doctor, "but he won't hear us. But this was spoken in a low tone, as befitted speaking in the presence of death."

"Does every person die unconscious?" he was asked.

"Many persons are conscious when they believe they are dying. They become unconscious, and they may or may not regain consciousness and lose it again before death takes place."

"A period of unconsciousness is immeasurable to the subject. A second, a minute, a million years—there is no difference so far as he is concerned."

"The death rattle," whispered the orderly.

The intermittent breathing of the man on the cot had given way to a sound that was strange to one not accustomed to hear it—a sound so far from human that it is made but once in a lifetime, and that is when one is passing to the other side of the borderland of human existence.

"Unearthly" is perhaps the one word that comes nearest to designate this sound. Because, maybe, of the silence of the death chamber, it seems loud to ears not accustomed to it. It seems even loud enough to be heard through the brick walls and out in the street.

The sound ceases, and the watchers turn their eyes toward the face of the physician. It begins again, as if the dead were awakening.

"They will not come before he dies," said the doctor.

"Is he likely to regain consciousness, even for a moment?" the physician was asked.

"I don't think so," was the reply.

"May I hold his hand, so that if he does he may feel that he is not alone?"

The physician nodded assent.

The man's hand felt very cold to the warm hand that took them. There was no sign of permission or resistance. The death rattle continued with longer intervals between the breathings.

For how many minutes this continued cannot be told; it seemed an age. The strange, unearthly sound ceased, and two faces were turned toward that of the physician.

Then there was a convulsive movement of the body on the cot, followed by a jerk of the head as if from strangulation. The jaw of the patient fell and his eyes, which had opened, stared at the wall.

There had been no sign of response from the hand of the dying man.

The orderly stepped to the head of the cot, and with the thumb and a finger of one hand pushed down the eyelids over the sightless eyes.

Kissing the Book.

The exact origin of kissing the Book in English courts, though modern, is obscure. It is not a matter of legal obligation but seems to be merely a custom dating from the middle of the eighteenth century. If a witness claims to follow the law according to Coke and to take his "oath" by touching the Book, he shall "kiss him his right."

The "kissing" set seems akin in deed to what the "face" call some what unpleasantly, a saliva exists, which in modern western life exists in a few forms, though many of the "other classes" still "spit" on a coin for luck.

Caught in a Corner.

"John," said his wife, "now you can't tell me you married me, let me give you this marriage."

"Of course I did. What makes you think I didn't?"

"I didn't give you any."

LOYALTY THAT IS REAL

True Friendship One of the Most Sacred of Earthly Things.

What is more sacred in this world than our friendships? One of the most touching things I know of is the office of a real friend to one who is not a friend to himself—one who has just his self-respect, his self-control and fallen to the level of the brute!

Oh, this is friendship, indeed, which will stand by us when we will not stand by ourselves! I know a man who thus stood by a friend who had become such a slave to drink and all sorts of vice that even his family had turned him out of doors, says a writer in Success Magazine. When his father and mother and wife and children had forsaken him, his friend remained loyal. He would follow him nights in his debauches, and many a time saved him from freezing to death when he was so inebriated that he could not stand. Scores of times this friend would leave his home and hunt in the slums for him to keep him from the hands of a policeman and to shield him from the cold when every one else had forsaken him; and this great love and devotion finally reformed the fallen man and sent him back to decency and to his home. Can any measure measure the value of such devotion?

WHEN LOVE BEGINS TO COOL.

Diré Significance of Wife's Failure to Meet Husband.

"William Dean Howells," said a magazine editor, "is one of the few men of mark and genius who admit that love—the love that exists before marriage—dies after it. It takes courage to admit this truth, for it is a sad one."

"And talking rather sadly about it, I once heard Mr. Howells narrate a conversation between a young husband and wife of Long Branch."

"The young couple had been married in the winter in New York, and they were now spending the summer at the seashore. The pretty wife in her white gown, walking on the beach beside her husband, tossed her head and said:

"Well, what if I don't come to meet you every night at the station any longer, what does it signify?"

"The husband smiled sadly.

"That we have been married five months," he said."

The Rustic Wain.

The city man was killing time by wandering around the farm. Down by the mill bridge he sighted an old man gazing intently into the water.

"Looking for fish, uncle?" ventured the city man.

"Nope," replied the old man without looking up.

"What, then?"

"Polce!"

"But, my dear man, I can't see any poles down there."

"I can't. Let you my barlow agin your watch chain."

"I'll go you. Now what kind of poles are down in that water?"

"Tadpoles! Always heard city folks war powerful green, stranger."

And the old man, pocketing the watch chain while the city boarder returned to the farmhouse, added, but wither.

Dime Novel Days.

From Readle's days onward most of the dime tales have been American. Names, scenes, atmosphere, are familiar. In reading them the American boy's soul seems to be at home.

Why the average youth who found Rob Roy and Ivanhoe dull was immensely entertained by Ellis' Bill Biddon, or Leon Lewis' Dorothea Dick, King of the Cowboys.

Were these "spines" all illusions? queries C. M. Harvey, in the Atlantic Monthly. Many of them were, yet they were pleasing illusions. Illusions felt us every day, and which we would not want to read about. Some of us might like occasionally to see time's clock turned back to the days when the world was young enough and rich enough to have illusions that make us glad.

Nature Fake.

The chauffeur is a flying animal new to our fauna. Its original habitat is France, but it is hardly adapted itself to all climates, and multiplies rapidly, so that it now abounds in most parts of the world.

Its habits are as yet undetermined. It flies by night as well as by day, low toward the ground. It does not liberate strictly speaking, although it shows some preference for warm regions.

Its reason for killing its prey is still in question. It does not feed upon its prey, but since increase of speed in flight accompanies each death, some have supposed that the chauffeur draws vigor in some way from the victims.—The Naturalist.

The Name for Common Grass.

The most approved name of the common blue grass that adorns our lawns was "Gramen pratense" pronounced "grah-men, prah-tens," till the "Pratense" was changed to "prans." Other names of the same grass were "Gramen vulgare," "Gramen pratense majus," "Gramen pratense minus," and "Gramen pratense minus minus."

In the first publication by Linnaeus, it appears as "Poa colymbica," which means "Poa of the swamps."

"I think that Linnaeus and his contemporaries had much more exacting names for it," says "These horrible Latin names!"—Journal of the New York Botanical Garden.

HAVE STRANGE GIFT

QUEER POWER EXERCISED BY "HORSE WHISPERERS."

Authentic Cases on Record Where the Most Unruly Beasts Have Been Made Tractable by a Few Words.

The horse whisperers might be an unknown quantity in England and Ireland today, but there are not a few men who exercise a wonderful control over their voices over horses which, when the dominating influence is absent, are apt to literally kick over the traces, says a writer in the London Stock Journal. In the thoroughbred stables of England and Ireland today there are not a few stablemen and jockeys who succeed in holding in check the vice in horses which in demonstrative manner show that they cannot tolerate the presence of the groom or attendants.

The horse whisperer of today avoids all gesticulation, and trusts entirely to a combination of sounds and words. There is no bullying done, and the whisperer can face a mad horse with his hands behind his back and apparently at the mercy of the beast that has to come under the charm.

One means of keeping unruly horses quiet in stables, says the writer, is the African war was that employed by the yeomen, who sat in a ring of head-to-head horses stinging as loudly as possible and riveting the ears and attention of the otherwise sprawling and hungry animals.

One of the first whisperers to acquire the power was Con Sullivan, who migrated in his youth from Killmallock, where he could trace his genealogy through a long line of snafes and was almost exclusively employed by Lord Denmore.

So unaccountable and so magical was the power Sullivan instantly acquired over the most savage brute that his parish priest, who had excommunicated him for not believing him a saint, denounced him as a sorcerer.

The whisperer of this man made an indelible impression upon any horse, bringing the pupil to a degree of docility unattainable in the ordinary course of discipline.

The rare horse King Pepin, a famous racer, vicious, and ready to have killed two grooms at the Curragh, once came under his charge. He was wanted to win a race at Malpas, but when saddling time came it found him in one of his unmanageable moods. He reared, plunged and flung, and would not be completely cowed from and jockey. It was at this crisis that some one recommended that he should be "whispered." As was the only chance left of taming him, King Pepin was "whispered" by Sullivan, who, he said, "and we'll soon tame him."

When he got within the circle—and a wide one it was—in which King Pepin was playing his snafes, he walked up to him, approaching the horse from behind. He murmured some words as he walked, which, though not quite audible, were as unintelligible as a sermon in the unknown tongue, but they had a most magical effect on the horse, for he stood stock still. Sullivan then patted him on the neck, while he whispered a word or two in his ear, whereupon King Pepin went on his knees and incontinently lay down.

The whisperer then stretched himself on his mat full length, took out a pouch containing a pipe and tobacco, flint and steel, struck a light, and, seated on a bench in his favorite posture, after two or three puffs he got up, beckoned the nag to his side, starting post, the horse, snuffing and fawning upon him like a dog. He won the race in a canter.

Your Second Best.

It is said that so many of us are content with our second best. We are always going to do better. We have vague ideas as to the great things we will do, but that is as far as we get.

Before you go to bed tonight think over your day. If you had it to live over again would you spend it just as you have done?

Most of us would not. Well, we still have tomorrow.

No matter how well you do anything, try to do it better. Don't be satisfied with anything but the very best that you are capable of.

Remember that this is your chance. Don't lose your golden opportunity.

Brave Leader of Arabs.

Most remarkable of all the figures brought into the limelight by the troubles in Morocco is the "red hand," a native leader who has ridden at the head of 15,000 men in many a gallant charge against the French. A correspondent says of him: "His name is Kaid el-Hennery, however misspelled. He belongs to the Moroccan tribe, the Chouhada. He derives his name from the fact that he always dresses in red. The Kaid is portrayed in both hands and cannot shoot, but he is well known for his gallantry in leading his men, and he is said to possess a falcon which follows him about."

One Symptom.

"Aw, I tell you, Pettysville gets more and more metropolitan every day," triumphantly declared the landlord of the tavern, who was swollen with local pride.

"Pettysville" pessimistically replied the patient, "when man, who happened around every now and again, 'I reckon you're right. The streets are dirtier every time I come.'—Puck.

DAVED BY BROTHER-IN-LAW.

Nervous Man Escaped Ordral That He Deared.

Mr. B—and his brother-in-law are local members of a certain Evangelical church in a city where the weekly prayer meeting forms an important feature. Mr. B—, while regular in his attendance at the church services on Sunday, has seldom been present at the prayer meeting, through fear lest, according to the prevalent custom, he may be called upon either to pray or "give testimony." He is a faithful man, and such an ordeal has extreme terror for him.

But one evening recently he yielded to his brother-in-law's persuasion and formed one of the congregation at the midweek service.

After two or three others had been called upon and responded, the searching eye of the pastor lighted upon Mr. B—, demanding approval, and feeling, apparently, that public recognition would be an encouragement to the infrequent visitor, he announced:

"And now Brother B— will please lead us in prayer."

The unhappy victim was thunder-struck. Exactly what he had always feared had happened. He was fairly paralyzed with fright, and he knew that even should he open his lips he would not be able to utter a sound.

Pur what escape was there? The congregation had already devoutly bowed their heads, waiting for him to begin. The delay had become noticeable, and Mr. B—'s torture grew momentarily, when sudden relief came in an unexpected form. His brother-in-law, who is somewhat deaf, judged him gently, and inquired in an anxious whisper:

"What is the matter, John, did he call upon me to pray?"

"Certainly, Sam," shamelessly responded the other, with ready presence of mind. "He called on you."

The difficulty was solved. Praying and speaking at the meetings were familiar to the brother-in-law, and he took up the task which had been laid upon Mr. B—. The latter breathed freely again, like a man who had escaped a great danger. Some members of the congregation looked surprised, but a look of comprehension passed over the face of the minister, and Mr. B— believes that, should he have courage to attend again, he would be passed over as a silent participant.

Make the Dead Dead.

From New Zealand comes the following weird yarn: "The tuihanga (native magician) was even credited with the power of influencing the dead. The present writer was a witness of the following incident: A branch of the Arawas, the tribe of the district of Rotomua, being at war, had suffered defeat and one of their braves had been killed. The tuihanga was quizzed at once to find out by some other connected with the dead chief whether they would be successful in their next encounter. The tuihanga was requested to procure the desired object, the people squatting in a ring about the bier. Advancing a few paces from the dead body, the priest began to recite a powerful incantation, intent on making the deceased give some sign, eyes of all present being fixed on the slain warrior. Presently the corpse was observed to move slightly to one side, on which a great cry of joy rose from the people. The movement was interpreted as a sign of future victory. This feat was often performed by the tuihanga of olden times."

Popular Hatred.

Let no man slight the sear and hate of the people. When it is unjust, it is a wolf, but when it is just, a dragon. Though the tyrant seated high, does think he may content their malice, yet he ought to remember that they have many hands, while he hath one neck only. If, being single, he dares to go to many, those many will to him alone be dangerous in their hate. The sands of Africa, though they be but heaped, will bury him, if, angered by the winds, they bury both the horse and traveler alive. Against the hatred of a multitude there is no fence but what must come by miracle, nor wealth, nor wit, nor bards of armed men can keep them safe that have made themselves the hate of an enraged multitude. It is thunder, lightning, storm and hail to them.

Overcame All Obstacles.

At 12 years of age Kety Hardie, the well-known labor member of the British Parliament, could neither read nor write, and the only kind of schooling he received was a rough drilling in the vicinities of reading, which he obtained by studying books and notices in shop windows. Writing and shorthand Mr. Hardie taught himself, practicing the latter in the coal mine with the aid of a white stone blackened with smoke from his pit lamp and used as a tablet upon which he scratched the symbols with a pin. At 22 he left the pits and became secretary of a miners' union and two years later he obtained a position as sub-editor of a local newspaper at Cumbria, the town in which his present home is situated.

MEMBER 54TH CONGRESS U. S. Recommends Peruna.

Peruna Is A Healthful Tonic And Successful Catarrh Remedy.

HON. W. E. ANDREWS.

Nebraska has furnished to our National Congress some of the brightest minds that have ever adorned that great national legislature. Men of push and fire, men of great oratorical and intellectual resources, men who have done much to shape the destinies of the great western section of our country.

Among these modern statesmen of that venerable American type, is Hon. W. E. Andrews, of Hastings, Nebraska. Hon. Andrews was formerly Vice President of Hastings College, and established an excellent record as a promulgator of public education before he became a member of Congress. Speaking of Peruna, he says:

"I cheerfully recommend the preparation, Peruna, as a healthful tonic and a successful remedy for catarrh in its various forms."—Hon. W. E. Andrews.

Hon. Thomas C. Calkins, who was elected to Congress from Alaska, is well known on the Pacific slope, where he has resided. His Washington address is 1312 Ninth street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

Congressman Calkins writes of Peruna: "I can cheerfully recommend Peruna as a very efficient remedy for coughs and colds."

Some people prefer to take tablets rather than to take medicine in a fluid form. Such people can obtain Peruna tablets, which represent the medicinal ingredients of Peruna. Each tablet is equivalent to one average dose of Peruna.
