These headlines contain statements which, if true mean EVERY-THING to the buyer who wants the most a given amount will buy.

If this advertisement will cause you to act—induce you to make an investigation of the claims we make for OVERLAND Cars and compare them with others, it will have accomplished its mission.

Make your comparisons thoroughly, part by part. The more thorough your investigation, the stronger your conviction that the OVERLAND is the car to buy.

Your comparison will prove, first that you get in the OVERLAND, the largest, handsomest, most luxuriously finished car, that you get a power plant not equalled for efficiency, reliability, quietness and flexibility in any car selling at less than $2,500. Compare the motor in Model 52 OVERLAND with the best car you know selling at $1,700, $2,000 or $2,500.

Compare the springs and riding qualities, the speed, the hill climbing ability, the wheelbase, the frame, transmission, brakes, rear wheels and axle; steering gear. Compare the finish, upholstery, the body design and workmanship. You'll find that OVERLAND fore door models are designed and built as fore door models, not old bodies patched up to meet the prevailing style with shifting lever and emergency brake outside and out of reach. See the detail cut to the left, showing OVERLAND center control, the approved practice in all up-to-the-minute, high class cars.

Consider, and bear this point in mind ALWAYS, that the OVER-LAND is a MANUFACTURED car, every part and every piece made by us, after our own designs, by our own men, in our own plants.

You'll find, too, that the OVERLAND is a thoroughly standardized car. Each operation is made by an expert workman on that particular part, by machinery in a special "jig," from the best material.

Each operation, from the frame, transmission, body, etc., is made in the final assembly.

On parts like pistons, cam shafts, work as close as one one-thousandth part of an inch. One-thousandth part of an inch in clearance is common practice in OVERLAND construction.

Unlimited production of exact standardized duplicates, and ideal organization built up, controlled and directed by one man—John N. Willys—enables us to make the minimum price on the maximum of motor car efficiency.

We could make them more extravagantly, but we cannot make them better.

The production of OVERLAND cars for 1911 will be 20,000. We make ONLY five chassis—22 body styles, with or without fore doors.
No extra charge for fore doors.

We have prepared a sheet of comparative data, tabulating specifications of OVERLAND Cars with America's best in their class.
Write for this sheet and our catalogue.

There are 22 models of OVERLAND for 1911. The perfection of the automobile craft is found in these cars, and the accompanying illustrations are just a suggestion of their beauty. Yes, OVERLAND cars are as nearly perfect as brain and money can make them. Look them over. Note the stability of construction, the quality of the finish, the graceful lines, their flexibility and utility. They fairly bristle with good points, from radiator to differential, and besides which visible points of superiority (of which we could mention a score or more) you'll find a real surprise beneath the hood, and so on throughout the car.

Look at the suspension of the motor—supported on three points.
The big valves and the adjustable valve stems. The five big liberal bearings of the crank shaft which insures long service. Note the offset crank shaft which gives maximum turning power and avoiding the dead center at the time of firing. The spiral art motor gears which make for noiseless running. The low hung carburetor insuring at all times sufficient gravity for the gasoline, especially on the hills.
Look at the system of ignition—the very highest type. The suspension of the radiator carried on swivel bearings, obviating all danger of leaks or straining. Observe the method of control—simple safe and certain. The brake equipment is wonderfully efficient, capable if necessary, of locking the rear wheels instantly. The long large springs insuring solid comfort. The transmission assembly is splendidly worked out—A solid, satisfactory piece of work and quite in harmony with the balance of the car. The body is a masterpiece—every little detail carried to the point of absolute perfection. Yes, OVERLANDS are good cars.

FULTON COUNTY

The Garden Spot of the "Purchase," Rich Lands, Versatile Soil, Living Streams, People Prosperous and Happy.

FULTON COUNTY COURT HOUSE.—W. H. SPRADLIN, BUILDER.

President James Monroe on January 17, 1819 ratified the treaty made by Gen. Andrew Jackson and Gov. Isaac Shelby with the Chickasaw Nation, whereby was granted to the National Government forever that portion of Kentucky now divided into the counties of Fulton, Hickman, Graves, McCracken, Marshall and Calloway, together with twenty counties in West Tennessee. This portion of Kentucky and Tennessee is now known as the "Jackson Purchase," and nearly in the geographical center of it lies calm and serene the county of Fulton, conceded to be the most fertile spot in the "Purchase."

The first settler of which there is any account was a man named Mills, who in 1819 came down the Mississippi, tied up his boat and called the place Mills' Landing. It is now known as Hickman, and is the present county seat of government. Fulton county was named in honor of the inventor, Robert Fulton. It contains 184 square miles of territory, and its organization as a county dates from April 4, 1845.

The first legal transaction of which there is record is one wherein Goodrich and others transferred to Green-bury Watson 160 acres of land, being the northwest quarter of section 18, township 1, range 5, for the consideration of $500.

In May, 1845, the site of a court-house was selected, and it was authorized that a suitable structure be erected for which $4,000 was to be paid, but it was not until 1848 that the building was completed and ready for occupancy. In 1846 a log house was erected and used as a jail until 1860, when it was replaced by another of the same kind. This latter, from the fact of lying idle, fell down one day, and in its place now stands a substantial modern jail.

Being the garden spot of the Purchase Fulton county is in the midst of one of the finest agricultural sections of the entire south. The average elevation above the sea level is 400 to 500 feet. There are a few hills to the northwest of Fulton which reach an altitude of probably nearly a thousand feet. The surface is mostly a rolling level inclining toward the Mississippi river.

The soil is as versatile as it is rich and will grow corn, wheat, all the cereals, clover, grasses, tobacco, the dark variety, fruits, potatoes and vegetables of all kinds.

While a great deal of timber has been cut in recent years in the county much valuable hardwood timber can yet be found in the county, particularly in the bottoms.

Fulton county is a splendid stock section, on account of the freedom with which the grasses flourish here. The county is well watered by living streams. It would be hard indeed to find any county in the country that is well adapted to so many leading crops, to stock raising and all kindred lines of agriculture. The county is inhabited by a happy, prosperous, progressive people.

From the general satisfaction he is giving now he will no doubt have no opponent at the next election.

In 1905, he was elected to the office of Clerk of Fulton County Court and is now serving his second term.

He is a Democrat to the manner born, and his popularity was shown in his nomination and election a year ago. He is serving his first term and it goes without question that he will be endorsed when the time comes for another election.

J. A. NOONON.

Uncle Joe Noonon was born in this county February 3, 1837, it being called at that time Hickman county. He is the nestor of Fulton county officials, both as regards age and term of office, having been jailer since 1895. Before assuming his duties as jailer he was a farmer and later a resident of Fulton where he served as councilman and street commissioner. His many friends hope that he will be spared many more years to discharge the office he now holds.

World's Best Ear of Corn for 1910

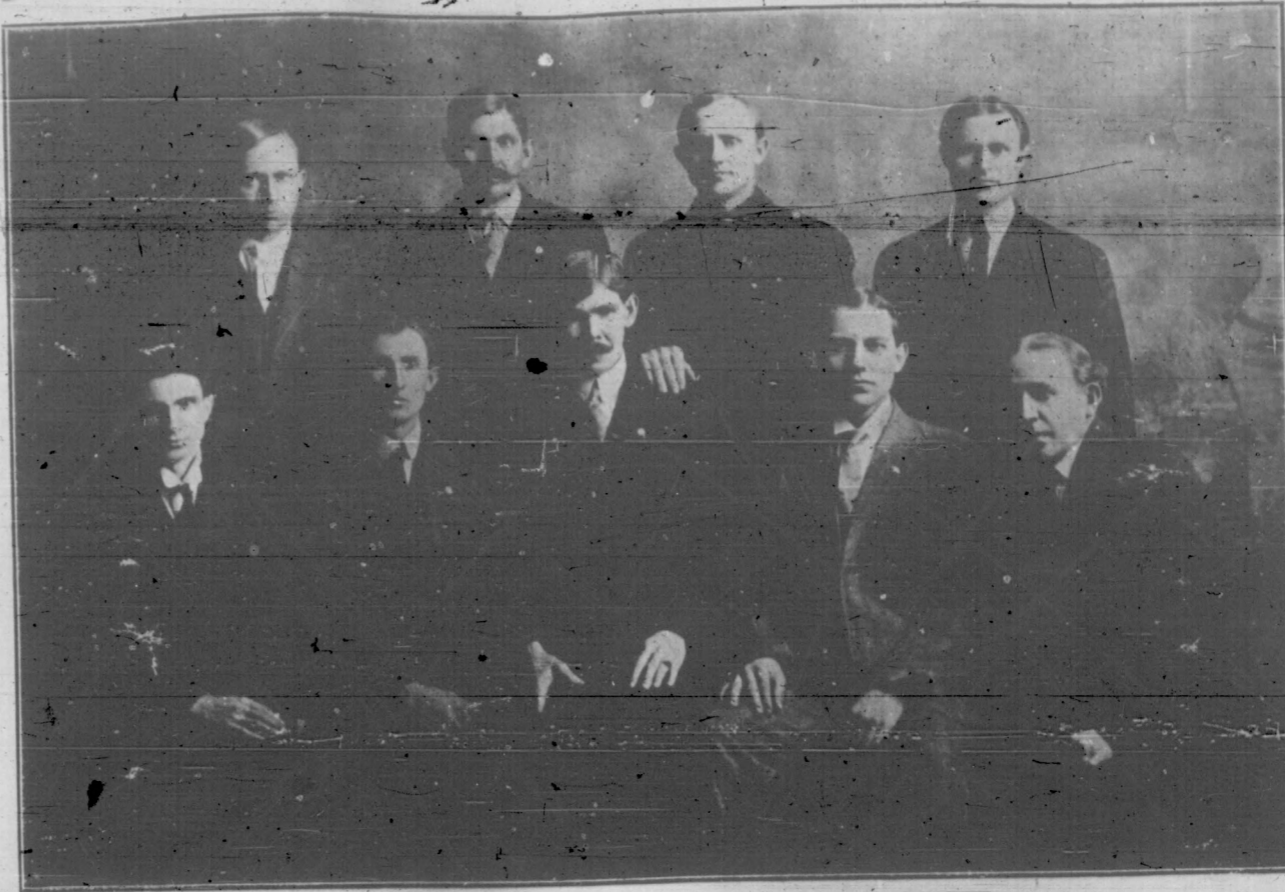

Modern Woodmen of America.

The Giant of the Fraternal Insurance World.

On the 5th day of January 1883, a little coterie of the foremost fraternal insurance men of the day met in the little city of Lyon, Iowa, and organized Camp No. 1, Modern Woodmen of America, with 22 members. This society was not organized for the purpose of making money, but to furnish reliable insurance to its members at absolute cost. It was to be owned and managed by its members. These principles together with its strong and attractive fraternal features, its beautiful and instructive ritualistic work, and a truly representative form of government, at once appealed to the American citizen, and its marvelous growth has been one of the wonders of the age. From the small beginning of one camp and 22 members it has grown until today it has 1,500 local camps and nearly a million and a quarter members in good standing.

The society's death rate last year was only 5.71 per 1,000 members, which speaks well for the rigid medical examination that applicants are compelled to undergo. During the year just passed $10,857,084.55 was paid to beneficiaries of deceased Modern Woodmen, and the total paid since organization reaches the enormous sum of $94,122,350.93, all of which was paid out of the benefit fund. In addition millions have been paid both by the Head Camp and local camps for the relief of members who have been overtaken by misfortune. When the news of the great San Francisco earthquake was flashed over the wires, the Modern Woodmen through their executive board at once appropriated a substantial sum of money, appointed a committee to disburse the same for the relief of unfortunate members and their families, the same policy was carried out in Kansas City. During the great flood at Galveston when that city was devastated by a tidal wave and in other instances, the Modern Woodmen has shown its great fraternal heart beats in sympathy with its membership in distress.

It is an undisputed fact that with the single exception of the Masonic Fraternity, the Modern Woodmen has more members of state and national reputation than any fraternal society in America, such men as the Hon. W. J. Bryan, Hon. Champ Clark, Ex. Lt. Governor Northcott of Illinois, and hundreds of other well known public men are enthusiastic members of this order. The present Head Consul is the Hon. A. R. Talbot, who for years was associated with Hon. W. J. Bryan in the practice of law. Mr. Talbot is today recognized as the greatest fraternalist of the age, under his wise leadership the Modern Woodmen has flourished as never before. In his great brain which literally teems with schemes for the betterment of social conditions surrounding the people at large and the Modern Woodmen in particular was born the idea of a Great Modern Woodman Sanatorium.

Realizing the fact that with its immense membership it could undertake and carry to a successful issue, plans that would seem impossible to so large a body of men, the Modern Woodmen of America have purchased 2,000 acres of land at Colorado Springs, Colo., on which they have erected a great sanatorium for the treatment of tuberculosis, or what has become popularly known as "The Great White Plague." According to the testimony of leading physicians and experts on pulmonary diseases, the climate, altitude and general conditions of that part of Colorado, make it an ideal location for the treatment of this dread disease. This great institution has been erected and is maintained by voluntary subscriptions and the small assessment of ten cents per capita levied on the membership semi-annually. Any Modern Woodman in good standing who is suffering from tuberculosis is taken in and treated free of charge. Here with ideal climate and surroundings, the best and purest of food, fresh milk from a herd of Jersey cows maintained on the premises, and specially constructed canvas walled tent cottages, together with a staff of expert physicians and trained nurses, hundreds of Woodmen have been not only benefited, but absolutely cured. Many Woodmen all over the land, who have been told by their physicians that all hope was gone, are looking towards this sanatorium as the storm tossed mariner looks on the lighthouse that will guide him into a safe harbor. In building and maintaining this splendid free sanatorium, the Modern Woodmen have shown to the world that its motto "Pur Autre Vie" (For Another's Life), is no meaningless phrase, but is the prevailing sentiment of the society.

The Local Camp.

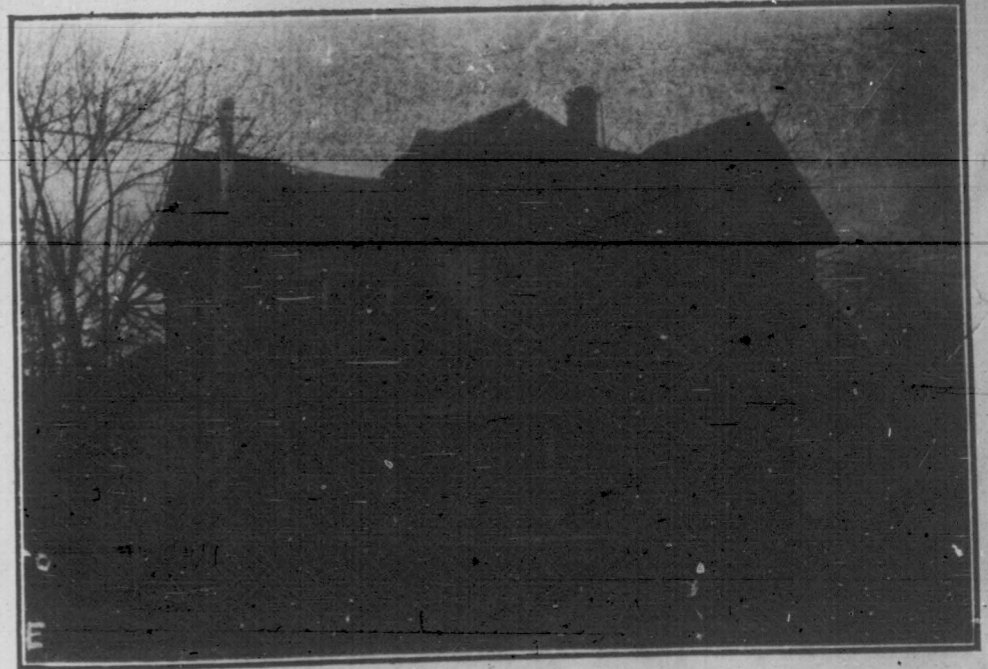

Kentucky Home Camp No. 11,351 Modern Woodmen of America was organized October 5th, 1903, with fifteen members, and the following officers were elected: Consul Dr. J. C. Yates, Adviser Frank A. Cole, Banker Van Milam, Clerk Hugh Callahan, Escort H. J. Riddell, Watchman W. A. Love, Sentry L. Mattingly, Managers O. R. Harvey, W. L. Mansfield, and George Fowler, Physician Dr. J. C. Yates. With this splendid set of officers the future of the camp was assured. Its growth has been steady and healthy it has never offered any "bargain counter" rates to secure members, but charged the same initiation fee at all at present nearly two hundred members in good standing and applications are voted on at almost every meeting.

Many of our prominent citizens are members of this order and they never fail to speak a good word for it when an opportunity offers. Since it was organized over eight years ago, the camp has lost four members by death, the beneficiaries of these deceased members join in praising the society for the promptness with which their claims against it were settled. The camp meets every Tuesday night at their hall in the Brown block and harmony and goodfellowship always prevails. On numerous occasions the members of the order have shown that they understand the art of entertaining and the banquets, smokers and other public functions given under the auspices of the camp are always well attended and greatly enjoyed. The present officers are, Consul W. H. Falwell; Past Consul, V. C. King; Adviser, S. P. Etheridge; Banker, E. M. Lucas; Clerk, F. A. Cole; Escort, J. H. Sullivan; Watchman, W. N. Stallins; Managers, Dr. R. T. Rudd, Thomas Dalton and W. T. Thompson; physician, Drs. Rudd, Cohn and Slayden. The officers and members are striving to make this the banner year in the history of the camp. The campaign for new members is on. Would you like to be a Modern Woodman? Would you like to be one of over a million "Neighbors" joined together in bonds of fraternal confidence marching shoulder to shoulder under the flag of this great fraternity? Are you a male person between the ages of eighteen and forty five, a sound mind and body, of good moral character, not engaged either directly or indirectly in the manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquors, not working at any of the occupations classed by the society as hazardous then you are eligible for membership, they will welcome you at their camp fire, they will try to help you in a social and fraternal way, and then when you are taken by the relentless hand of death, the amount of your benefit certificate will come like a ray of sunshine into your darkened home. Any officer or member will take in your petition, you can insure for $500, $1,000, $1,500, $2,000 or if not over 41 years of age for $3,000. The rates are the lowest, see about it at once.

P. H. WEEKS ONE OF THE OLDEST FIRMS.

Continuously in Dry Goods, and Clothing Business in City. A Splendid Business.

The oldest merchant in the dry goods business continuously in this city is Mr. P. H. Weeks, the well known and popular merchant at the corner of Lake street and Commercial avenue.

He came to Fulton 16 years ago, engaged in business and has been merchandising here ever since. He has done business in the splendid building shown above for the past 13 years, having moved into the building when it was erected. Mr. Weeks did not build up his present splendid business with a mushroom growth, but through the years that have intervened by careful business methods, by buying and selling honest goods at reasonable prices he has won and held the confidence of the public and has steadily built and held a trade that embraces a large per cent. of the best people of Fulton and all the surrounding section.

He has one of the best and most dependable stocks of dry goods, notions, clothing, shoes, hats etc., to be found in any house in Western Kentucky. He occupies the entire first floor of the big building with a large balcony running the full length of both sides and the entire rear thus virtually having two floors.

Mr. Weeks holds his customers by straight forward business dealings and by selling goods on a live and let live business. Another strong feature in the success of his business is that he employs people in his different department who know the business and always give courteous attention to the customers.

The following popular salesmen are employed in the store: Messrs. R. E. Stille, J. H. Stone, Charlie Donoho, Geo. Bruce and Mrs. Maude Stone.

Mr. Weeks is one of Fulton's foremost public spirited citizens. He is a valued member of the Board of Education, is a director of the bank of Water Valley, and interested in other enterprises.

He is chairman of the Board of Stewards of the First Methodist church and a leading member of that church.

His beautiful home in West Fulton appears elsewhere in the 1911 edition.

JIM PIRTE CAMP NO. 990 U. C. V., FULTON ROLL OF MEMBERSHIP ALIVE AND DEAD.

Was Organized Here in May 1897. Last List Of Heroes—Wearers Of the Gray.

The most interesting picture in this special souvenir 1911 edition is that of the Confederate reunion held in Fulton last year under the auspices of Jim Pirtle Camp of this city. That gallant band of heroes who wore the gray and forever immortalized Southern valor is growing fewer in number faster as the years roll on, and soon the reveille will sound for the last time on this side and all will have crossed to the other side to be with "Old Man" Jackson and the others gone before and "rest under the trees."

The following is the roster of Jim Pirtle Camp No. 990 organized in Fulton in May 1897, furnished us by Esq. R. A. Browder, an honored member.

Those who are dead are so marked, as far as known, some having moved away from Fulton.

PALACE BARBER SHOP

Fulton's Leading Tonsorial Establishment Is a Credit To the City. Up-to-date in Every Respect.

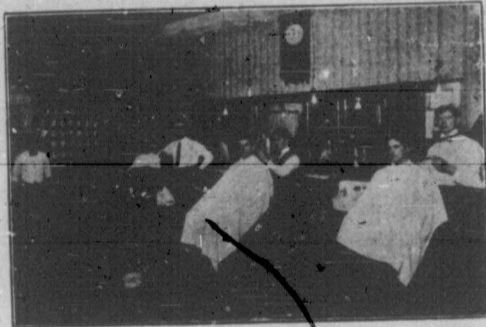

No city of Fulton's class in the country has a better appointed tonsorial establishment than "The Palace" on Lake street of which Mr. J. E. Hannephin is proprietor. It is a credit to the city. It is neat and inviting from the

in at The Palace since March 8th, 1908, and has made a host of friends in the three years he has been there and is considered one of the best artists in his line any where.

Mr. Clyde Copeland has been with The Palace since August 1910 and front door back to the clean, well kept and sanitary bath rooms. It is a luxury to have your tonsorial work done at The Palace. Mr. Hannephin has been in the business 8 years in Fulton and he is well and favorably known not only in Fulton and surrounding country, but to most of the visitors to this city. He keeps everything in a clean and sanitary condition, has the best in all departments for the public and keeps only the best workmen. Any lady bringing or sending children is guaranteed the best of attention and will find an inviting orderly place. Any visitor or stranger will find a welcome at The Palace and the best attention.

There are six chairs at The Palace. The following are a few of the up-to-date features of service to be had at this shop, not usually to be had outside large cities:

Olive Oil Shampoo.
Crude Oil Shampoo.
Fitch Shampoo.
Ed Pinard's Hair Tonic.
Ed Pinard's Face Lotions.
Electric Face Massage.
Electric Head Massage.

Besides these the services of the best talent in all styles of hair cutting and shaving can be had at all times.

Mr. A. H. Kindred has been work-has served the Fulton trade about 4 years. He is also popular and a splendid workman.

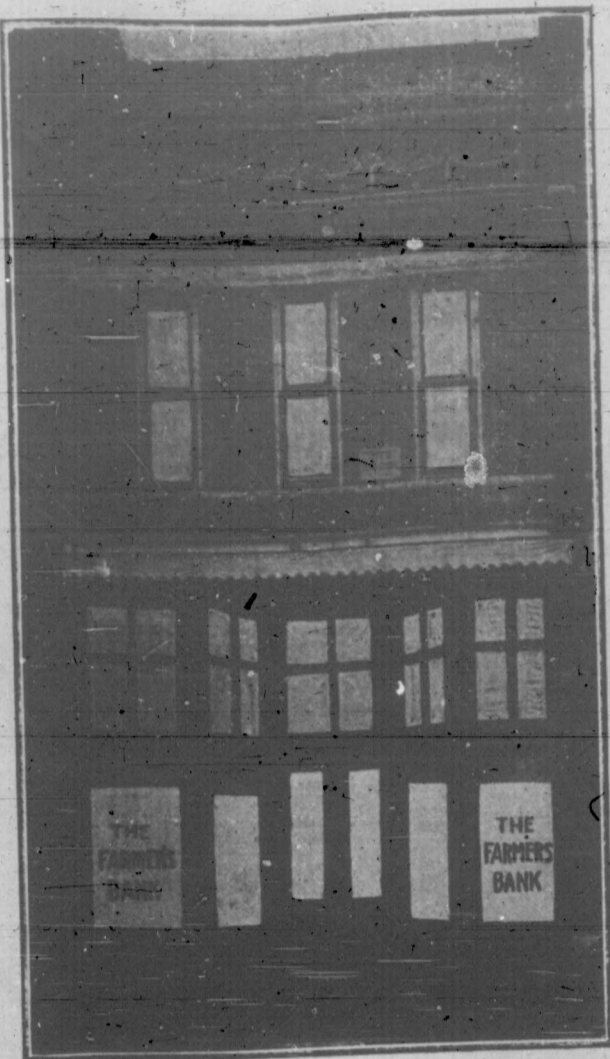

The small boy, (weight about 225) on the 1st chair on the left, with the smile that won't come off has made lots of friends since he has been with The Palace and they are always glad to find his chair empty when they come around for their work. Mr. Short is always there with the goods.

Another pleasant feature of The Palace which is appreciated by the public is the porter service, and Zealous and Rastus are on the job and ready to serve you when you need anything in their line.

Main Street Shop.

The Main Street Shop, which is also owned by Mr. Hannephin is managed by Mr. H. C. Craig and like "The Palace" is neat, well kept and the best workmanship, and courteous treatment to all customers. The cut above shows this tidy inviting place.

Mr. Craig has worked in Fulton 5 years and is well and favorably known to the public and is an adept tonsorial workman. He is assisted by Mr. Lewis Newton, who also has many friends. He says if they are fortunate enough to get in his chair he will do the rest in a manner that will thoroughly please them.

The Farmers Bank of Fulton

One of the financial institutions of Fulton County, The Farmers Bank was organized in 1908 with a capital of $35,000 and today is aggregating about $100,000 surplus of $7,500.

On April 1st the capital is to be increased to $50,000 and the surplus to $10,000. It has been a paying investment from the start to the stockholders. The bank was first established on the East side of Church street in the building now occupied by the McDowell Ladies' store and later moved to its present location on the west side of the street opposite the postoffice.

It has a splendid corps of officers and directors, numbering some of the best business men and most successful farmers in the county. They are: Prof. J. C. Cheek, president; W. H. Powers, vice president; E. H. Ligon, vice president; J. V. Hefley, Cashier; J. D. Davis, assistant cashier.

Directors: W. H. Powers, W. D. Morgan, J. C. Cheek, Charles Brann, J. W. Jolly, B. B. Jonakin, J. A. Ferrell, Jno. R. McGehee, E. H. Ligon, J. V. Hefley.

The bank is not only popular in business circles, but is strong in the county and with the agriculturists of all the surrounding section.

PROF. J. C. CHEEK.

Superintendent of Fulton Schools and President of Farmers Bank.

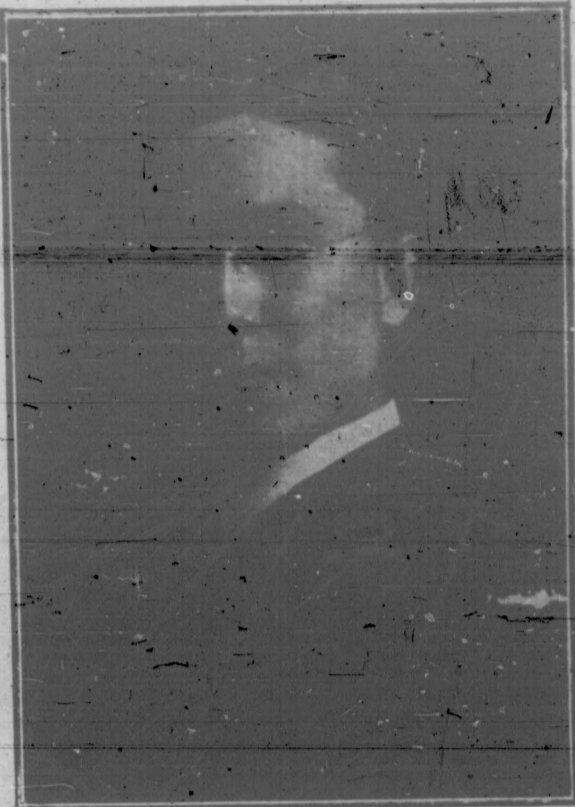

The handsome gentleman whose picture appears at the head of this article is Prof. J. C. Cheek, Superintendent of the Fulton schools and also president of the Farmers Bank of this city. He fills that rare combination, known as a successful school man and a successful business man. He has never failed at anything in life, which he has undertaken to do.

He is one of the most successful school men in Kentucky. Has been superintendent of the Fulton schools ten years and was, prior to coming here, superintendent at Hickman, in this county, seven years. He also successfully conducted the city schools at Ripley, Humboldt, and Milan, Tennessee, and was a bank director and active in the banking business at each of these places.

Under his management the Fulton schools have taken high rank with the best public schools in the south.

He is a native of Paris, Tennessee, and has the snap and activity of a much younger man than he really is, though we are not going to tell his age just here. Prof. Cheek, at the last annual election of the Farmers Bank of Fulton was elected president of that popular and prosperous institution. The bank is taking on new life and is rapidly growing and expanding in business.

B. H. FREEMAN.

You know when a newspaper gets out a special edition showing pictures of people and houses and the like, they always have write-ups of the various fellows around town who constitute "Our Leading Citizens." Of course these write-ups are modestly prepared—that is they are modest as far as is practicable to have them modestly prepared without destroying their intent and purpose, which is nothing more nor less than a detailed account of the subject's enterprise and virtues.

As a matter of fact or as a matter of general interest, it doesn't matter a rap where or when I was born. The fact remains undisputed that I am here, and am digging every day the best I can dig to make a living. I am in the fire insurance business here and have in my agency some of the representative companies of the world. They have to pay part of nearly every loss we have here from fire, accident or theft, and they pay promptly, and justly. You have helped me put my business up to where it is, and I am grateful to you for it. If you don't believe it, give me an opportunity sometime to prove it and I will convince you. If you have any doubts about my companies, ask the fellow that had the fire—any fellow that had any fire—and he will tell you that he was shown every courtesy and assistance possible until the loss was finally settled.

After working five years in an insurance office larger than my own, and after working my own insurance business three years, I feel that I am pretty well prepared to have my policy correctly written, and I have a great deal to do with the adjustment of losses. I have more often times than I can count an agent can say "fire comes."

These are the few things I want you to know, and that is exactly why I am writing them. About the "enterprising and progressive" part, that's all right too, but I am advertising my fire insurance business in this article, and don't care to argue the question of enterprise or progress in these columns. I want to write as much of your fire insurance business as you are willing for me to have, and what of it I do write will be correctly written in good, old line companies, and if you should happen to have a fire, you'll get the money.

So I have finished. My picture is here because an Industrial Edition isn't worth getting out without pictures. And besides, there might be some poor, misguided cuss in the world who had never seen me, and this might enable him to locate me. And I will say this; if he does locate me, and I do write his insurance, and he does have a fire, HE WILL GET THE MONEY.

Yours very truly,
HAYDEN FREEMAN.

THE DAILY LEADER.

As we are saying much about other people, about Fulton and Fulton enterprises, we have thought it would not be amiss to speak a word about the Leader in the special edition.

The first issue of the Fulton Daily Leader made its appearance on the streets of Fulton on the afternoon of June 25th, 1898, founded by Col. Mott Ayres. The paper was a success from the beginning and in the following month of July the Fultonian-Democrat, the oldest weekly in Fulton, came under the control of the Leader. Since then a number of daily and weekly newspapers have arisen and flourished for a season and have either been absorbed by the Leader or have put out their lights and passed into oblivion.

The Leader has pursued the tenor of its way, sometimes even, sometimes uneven. Its greatest addition was when it secured the Fulton Commercial and Farm Journal, our big weekly, the leading farmers paper in Western Kentucky.

The Leader has always been progressive and full of virility. We do not believe in going to sleep on the job and we have labored to give the people a live newspaper. We have stood for a straightforward, moral civic policy, without being an extremist or a follower of isms. We believe the voice of the people should control the public policy and in politics we are Democratic to the core. The Leader gives the news and gives it while it is news. We don't expect to, neither do we claim to compete with the metropolitan dailies in giving all the news but we do give the news of Fulton and surrounding section and such general news as we feel will be of special interest to our people.

The Leader office is equipped with the latest improved No. 5 model linotype, two revolution Campbell printing press, Gordon and Universal jobbers, Boston wire stitcher, and the latest and most up-to-date job type.

The matter for the special edition has been prepared and edited by Messrs. J. M. Simmons and R. S. Williams, who have had the assistance of quite a number of our citizens in securing historic and other data.

The company is incorporated under the name of The Fulton Publishing Co. The officers are Mott Ayres, president; Herbert Carr secretary and treasurer; R. S. Williams, business manager.

We desire to thank those who have contributed to the success of the special edition with their liberal advertising or assistance in any other way.

The importance of Fulton as the leading city of the county, was shown in 1904 when a branch of the Fulton County Circuit Court was established here. The court room is on the second floor of the City Hall building. Regular terms of court in course are held here. Just as they are at the county site.

FULTON SCHOOLS RANK AMONG THE BEST.

In the State Of Kentucky. Prof. J. C. Cheek, Superintendent, One of the State's Foremost Educators.—Splendid Corps of Teachers.—Schools Pride of the City.

Fulton is not surpassed by any city in the State in her public schools, which rank among the best. They are the pride of the city. For ten years, Prof. J. C. Cheek, one of the foremost educators in the South, has been at the head of the Fulton schools and under his management and his splendid corps of assistants the high watermark has been reached. During that time the schools have grown from 8 teachers and one house, to 13 teachers and three houses; from 40 in High School to 100 and a relative growth and improvement every way has been made. When Prof. Cheek took charge graduates could not enter college. Now twelve grades are taught and last year two high school graduates entered the Kentucky State college; two entered the Illinois State college; one entered Vanderbilt University; one entered the Kentucky State Normal; and one entered Belmont college.

Half of the High School is made up of boys, an unusual thing. The enrollment the past two years has been over 90 per cent. of the scholastic population, which is a most remarkable per cent.

The Carr Institute and High

School is a splendid building situated in West Fulton. The other two schools are the East side, well located in East Fulton, and a school at Riceville. The East side teaches through the 1st grade and Riceville school through the 4th grade.

The total enrollment of these schools is above 650. There is also a colored school with an enrollment of about 200.

South Fulton has the Tennessee College an enrollment of over 400 and a colored school with nearly 300 enrolled.

The following is a list of the splendid faculty of the Fulton schools: J. C. Cheek, superintendent, served for the past ten years Carr Institute. Miss Alma Givens, has taught 4 years in high school. Miss Gemma Hopkins has taught 1 year in high school. Miss Macon Sebastian, 8th grade taught 2 years. W. C. Underwood, 7th grade has taught 3 years. Miss Jessie Lee Reed, 5th and 6th grades, has taught 4 years. Miss Bessie Rice, 4th grade has taught 5 years. Miss Lillian Kirkland, 3rd grade, has taught 2 years. Mrs. R. A. Herring, 1st grade has taught 5 years.

Since the above was written Miss Sebastian resigned on account of her health being somewhat impaired and is now at her home in Martin, Tenn.

Miss Jane McConnell, from near Jordan, this county, was elected in her place to teach the 8th grade and assumed the position March 20th. She has taught some time in the Fulton county schools.

ton county schools.

Terry-Norman school—East side. Miss Hettie Collins, 6th and 7th, grades, taught 12 years. Miss Vivian Hall 3rd and 4th grades, taught 6 years. Miss Kate Hill 1st and 2nd, grades has taught 5 years.

Riceville—Prof. R. A. Herring, principal, for 4 years, teaches all the 4 grades taught at this school.

DR. W. T. BOLLING, D. D.

Rev. W. T. Bolling, D. D. was born in Green county, Alabama, May 25th, 1846 and moved with his parents to Tennessee in 1855. In April 1861 he entered the Confederate service as a member of the Harris Zouave Cadets from Memphis, Tennessee forming Co. D., 154th St., Tennessee infantry, Col. Preston Smith commanding. Serving four months, he was discharged as too young for service and enlisted with his young comrades in Co. C., 2nd Tennessee infantry, Col. Wm. B. Bate commanding, with which regiment he served until the close of the war, being in all the engagements, save one, in which this command participated, including Perryville, Murfreesboro, Chickamauga, Ringgold Gap, the entire Atlanta campaign, from Dalton to Jonesboro, Franklin and Nashville, where he was captured and sent to Camp Chase prison, near Columbus, Ohio, where he remained confined until the close of the war. He was wounded three times, at Chickamauga, Lost Mountain, and Nashville and from one of these wounds came very near losing his right arm.

In the fall of 1868 Dr. Bolling entered the Methodist ministry in which he has served continuously until the present and during these many years has filled a number of the most important places, including Hannibal, Mo., Denver, Col., Lexington and Covington, Ky., Shreveport, La., Jackson, Miss., and Central church, Memphis, Tenn.

At the last session of the Memphis Conference he was assigned to the pastorate of the First Methodist church this city, where he preaches to large and interested congregations.

Dr. Bolling first received the degree of D. D. from the St. Charles College in Missouri in 1886, and from the University of Nashville and Peabody Institute for Teachers in 1909.

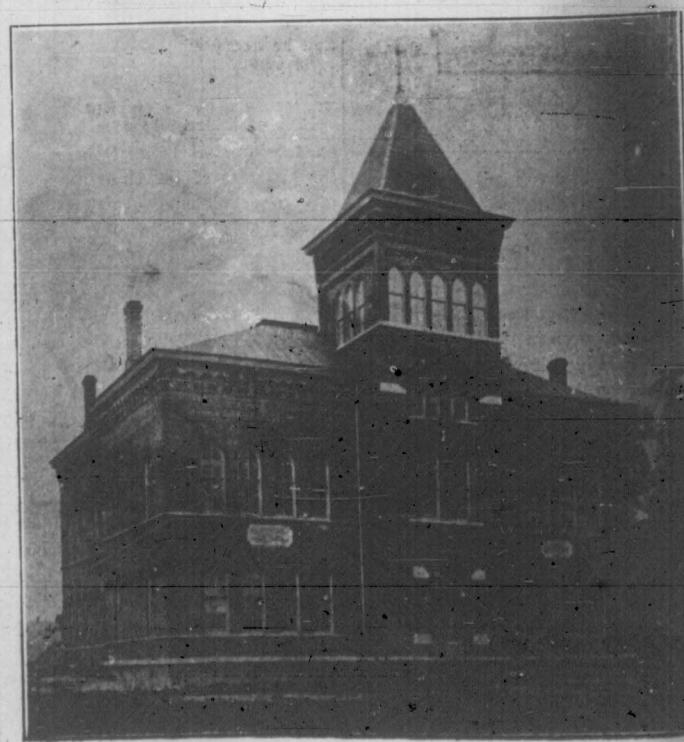

Dr. Bolling is a young old man, looks on the bright side of things, and is universally liked by young people. He likes Fulton and Fulton likes him, and the Leader joins the many who hope that he may remain long with us and that his ministry may be abundantly blessed.

History of Some of Fulton's Churches

THE FIRST METHODIST CHURCH

The largest church in point of membership and probably the oldest in Fulton is the First Methodist church, which embraces many of the prominent citizens of the city and of the surrounding section.

This church was organized in 1870 in the old Seminary building, a two story frame which stood about where Smith & Roach's American Cafe is now located and which was used for church services, school and by the lodges of the city. The church has had some of the best men and ablest ministers of the Memphis Conference as pastors.

Rev. T. L. Beard was the pastor who organized the church in 1870. The following have followed him: Revs. J. T. C. Collins, J. M. Spence, J. S. Renshaw, F. Bynum, J. W. Knott, W. H. Armstrong, O. B. Whitten, C. F. Moore, A. E. Scott, J. R. Bell, H. B. Johnston, W. C. Sellars, G. W. Wilson, E. K. Bransford, J. M. Scott, J. G. Clark, E. B. Ramsey, W. G. Hefley, W. A. Freeman, H. B. Brooks and the present pastor, Dr. W. T. Bolling, a sketch of whom appears elsewhere.

Of the 18 charter members there survive to this time only five. They are: Mr. J. B. McDowell, Mesdames J. B. McDowell, R. A. Browder, Jessie P. Bransford and Ella Anderson.

The first church house erected was by the Methodists in 1871 and stood on State Line street where Dr. Alexander's Sanatorium is now located.

The congregation moved into it that year, but it was not completed until 1873.

The present handsome and commodious structure on the corner of State Line and Plain streets was erected under the pastorate of Rev. H. B. Johnson in 1889.

A Sunday school was started even before the church was organized and prospered under the leadership of Rev. J. T. C. Collins and Dr. S. G. Patterson. Other superintendents who have followed them are: F. M. Holladay, R. S. Murrell, R. A. Browder, S. A. D. Steele, Turner Gardner, R. M. Bollinger, W. P. Felts, and D. W. Hughes. Mr. Hughes is the beloved and efficient superintendent, now and has served in that position for a number of years. Under his management the school has nearly doubled and at present numbers about 450, including home department and cradle roll. The school pays $200 for sustaining a missionary in Mexico. Mr. Hughes is also secretary and treasurer of the official board of the church.

The membership of the church is now over 600 and it is a live mission church maintaining a missionary to Mexico, Miss Rosa Brooks at $600 per year. She is the lovely daughter of Rev. Warren Brooks, late pastor of the church. She is located at El Paso, Texas, where she teaches in the Mexican Mission.

The church was never in a more flourishing condition than now. Substantial improvements, repainting, etc., are to be made on the church this summer, to cost probably $1,500.

The following is the Board of Stewards of the First Methodist church: P. H. Weeks, chm., D. W. Hughes, secretary and treasurer.

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

To give a history of the Christian church in Fulton, Ky., a period of previous history must be stated. The first preaching by representatives of this people was done by Eld. Jesse Sewell about 1855 in the yard of one Daniel Huddleston. As the fruit of his labors a congregation was set in order and a log house built. This meeting house was known as Mont Rose. The second Sunday of May 1874 a number of the Mont Rose church with others, forty in number, were set in order as a church by Eld. R. A. Cooke. In the spring of 1875 the house of worship was built and remained until remodeled in 1909. Part of the historic building can be seen as a part of the present edifice. Four of the charter members, W. T. Carr and wife, Mrs. Fannie Eddings and J. T. Stubblefield are still with the church. Of those who united soon after the organization are: Mrs. Charlotte McCall, Mrs. H. A. Burns, Mrs. M. J. Hubler, J. H. Huddleston and wife and H. F. Taylor and wife. The church has in the 37 years had about 1,500 members.

The early congregation had many of the experiences and hardships that come to all young organizations. The spirit of its people was dauntless and difficulties were but stepping stones upon which they rose. The spirit was that of the pioneer and prominent families whose influence, liberality and zeal for good works has given to Fulton this organization. Among those who, as preachers helped to fight the battle of success were: R. A. Cooke, F. M. McKibbey, J. H. Roullas, R. W. Dunlap, Brown Godwin, E. M. Waits, Evangelists who held meeting were J. C. Creel, J. W. Higbee, W. E. Hall, C. C. Cline, Wm. Cooke, O. A. Carr, H. L. Calhoun, W. H. Sheffer, Wallace Sharp, E. L. Powell, J. W. McGarvey, J. B. Briney, Geo. E. Flowers, E. C. Dougle. These men are God's noblemen, men of culture and ability, some of them leading spirits in the pulpit of the brotherhood.

The congregation in the past has been blessed with the lives of men and women, whose influence, good works and liberality were richer than Norman blood. While the personal of the congregation has changed from its early form, there are those upon whom the spirit of the past has fallen. The present congregation is made up of people from all the ranks of honorable life. In the congregation those, who with their children and children's children, and others who have joined them are living stones, material for an edifice more pleasing than the line of the visible architecture.

The present membership of the First Christian church is about 225, with a home of $18,000.00 value and a seating capacity of nearly 400. The Bible school has an enrollment of 130.

C. K. Marshall is the pastor now in charge.

ed to the full work of the ministry and immediately called to the pastorate of this church for half time and continued until March 1903. At this time the membership had grown to nearly 50.

In 1900 the old church was sold and began at once to plan for a new one. Mrs. Ada Clemmons donated the lot. The contract was let and work began.

In the spring of 1901 the church completed the first sermon being preached by J. H. Zwingli. The cost of the new church was about $4,500.

In March 1903, W. H. Meslesky was called half time and in Sept. 1903 was called full time, this being the first full time preaching and he continued to Sept. 1909.

In Oct. 1909 Rev. J. H. Zwingli was called and was the pastor until July 1910.

The membership is composed of a devoted band of Christian workers, at time, they have only had three superintendents, the first being Mr. W. F. Coburn, who served faithfully and at his death was succeeded by Mr. Joe Wade, who held this office for a number of years. The present superintendent, Mr. Ed Heywood, has been in active service for the past eighteen or twenty years and has won the love and respect of all who have come under his supervision during these years.

Since the erection of this church there has been a number of ministers in charge, many who still linger in the minds of Fulton people for some good deed done. Their last minister, Rev. C. L. Price, was rector for thirteen years, and during his stay here won the good will of the people of Fulton, and the members have felt themselves lost since his removal this year to Florence, Ala.

At the present the members of this church are in correspondence with the Government for the sale of their lot, and if this deal is made, there will be a modern and pretty Episcopal church built on a better location.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH.

The First Baptist church of this city is located at the corner of Second and Eddings streets and in one of the handsomest residence sections of Fulton.

The church was organized in the year 1878. The organization was the outcome of a meeting held here by Evangelists Hobbs and Butler, Baptist missionaries working in this part of the state. The organization was made up of just 19 members, of whom Mrs. J. M. Freeman and Mrs. Jessie Whitsell are now living in and near Fulton.

The first pastor called to the care of the church was Elder J. N. Hall, one of the most noted polemicists among the Baptists, and an able man in every sense of the word. His salary was fixed at $150 per annum, and he accepted the work to preach to the church one Sunday each month.

It is of interest to note the names on the original subscription list to the expenses of the church. Among them appear the names of Norman, Crutchfield, Shaddock, Booker, Meadows, Hicks, Atherton, Workman, Freeman, Murrell, Terry, Wright, DeMyer, Snowden, Finch, Cunningham, Green, Winston, Johnson and others.

For four years the church worshipped in the old Seminary building on Lake street. At the end of this time the church had grown to such strength as to make it possible for an effort to be made toward the building of a house of worship. This encouragement was further strengthened by the liberal gift of a lot for this purpose by Mr. W. T. Carr, and the gift of brick for the building by Mr. Jesse Whitesell. With these liberal gifts the pastor, then Eld. W. G. Reeves, and Bro. M. L. Norman began putting the material on the ground for the erection of the building. A modest little brick house was soon completed, which served as a home for the church for the next twenty years.

About the year 1898 there was begun in the church the agitation of plans for a new and more suitable building. For some years this agitation was kept up and under the ministry of Eld. W. D. Turnley the present handsome structure was erected.

There have been in all 14 pastors during the thirty-three years of the existence of the church, Revs. J. N. Hall, de'd; W. G. Reeves, Judson Tyler, de'd; W. H. Williams, W. S. Poney, B. M. Bogard, Martin Ball, R. D. Wilson, W. J. Bolin, J. H. Wright, W. D. Turnley, Rev. M. E. Dodd and the present pastor, Rev. M. E. Staley.

The late Dr. T. T. Eaton, of Louisville, beloved by the entire Baptist denomination who was stricken and died at Grand Junction, Tenn., on his way to Mississippi, preached his last sermon in the First Baptist church here.

The debt on the church building was wiped out under the ministry of Rev. M. E. Dodd, one of the most successful in the church's history, the last note of $1,500 being burned in the presence of a large audience of 700 people on Sunday Sept. 8, 1907, a great day in the history of the congregation and the day when the church was dedicated Dr. E. Y. Mullins, president of the Theological Seminary, Louisville preached the dedication sermon at the tabernacle, all the churches uniting in the service, Rev. W. D. Turnley, the former pastor, came from Ft. Dodge, Fla., to be present at the dedication.

The church property now consists of one of the best equipped church buildings to be found anywhere, being perhaps the handsomest church building in this city. It is equipped with modern baptistry, pipe organ, golden oak furniture, carpeted throughout, heated by steam, lighted by gas and electricity. There is also on the church property a convenient and comfortable pastor's home. It is estimated that the property of the church is worth about $10,000.

The present pastor, Eld. M. E. Staley, is now in the fourth year of his ministry with the church, is very popular and the church is growing in strength and power with God and the people. The membership is about three hundred.

OTHER CHURCHES.

In addition to these there are the First Presbyterian church on Walnut street, which has been without a pastor some time, but numbers some of our best people in its membership. Also the Primitive Baptist church on State Line street in South Fulton, which has some splendid people for its membership.

The colored people also have five churches in and around Fulton and some with large membership.

FIRST CUMBERLAND PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The history of the First Cumberland Presbyterian church in Fulton is quite brief and like most churches in their infancy it had dark days as well as bright ones and many obstacles to overcome. When the people began talking of organizing a church the good friends of the Christian church offered the use of their house of worship for that purpose. With grateful hearts the offer was accepted and on June 20, 1887 the church was organized by Rev. G. H. Sheldrake with 18 members. It was received under the care of Obion Presbytery in March 1888 at Newbern, Tenn. In 1889 the old Methodist church was purchased and made a mission, until September 1893. At that time Obion Presbytery met here and Rev. J. H. Thomas was ordain-including quite a number of prominent Fulton families.

THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

The Episcopal church was established in Fulton in the late seventies. Their first services were held in a building on the Tennessee side, which was formerly used as a saloon, and the word for sometime showed dimly over the entrance. This site is now occupied by Wade's Second Hand Furniture store.

These earnest workers at that time were only four men and their wives, they were: W. F. Coburn, Joe Wade, F. H. Green and W. P. Nolen; their children composing the Sunday school, worked hard and earnestly until they erected the present church building on Main street in 1880.

IRBY BROS.

Leading Firm of Druggists With Established Reputation and Fine Business.

One of Fulton's most solid business firms is Irby Bros., druggists on Lake St., about midway the business section of that busy thoroughfare.

There are not two more popular business and Christian gentlemen in the city than Messrs. T. H. and G. F. Irby the proprietors. They were born in Hademan county, near Whiteville, and both in early life went to Bolivar, the county site to engage in business. About 8 years ago Mr. T. H. Irby, the senior member came to Fulton and engaged in the drug business with Dr. W. J. Cox. Two years later, the junior member, Mr. G. F. Irby came here, Dr. Cox's interest was purchased and the present firm was formed, of Irby Bros. They did business for several years in the old Dr. Bennett stand, just west of their location now and in November of last year moved to their present stand where they have one of the prettiest, best arranged drug stores in this section.

Besides being experienced druggists themselves they have as pharmacist Mr. Milton W. Paris, a registered prescriptionist of six years experience and one of the most competent men in his line in Western Kentucky.

The firm carries a full line of fresh drugs of all kinds, proprietary remedies and carry a big line of Mastic paints, all colors. Besides their main store they have a big warehouse just at the rear across the alley.

In addition to their drug business Irby Bros. do the soda business of the city. They have one of the handsomest and most elegant soda fountains in the State and serve all kinds of delicious cold and hot sodas, ices, mineral waters, etc. Polite dispensers are always ready to serve the public when you are wearied or thirsty and need to be refreshed, just drop in at Irby Bros. and get one of their delightful drinks. It will make life appear better and all will go happier with you.

Mr. Alvin J. Burrow

Well known Music Dealer, has been Engaged in the Piano business Here Thirty Years.

One of the best known and most successful business men of Fulton is Mr. Alvin J. Burrow dealer in Pianos, Organs and all kinds of musical instruments. Mr. Burrow is a native of Carroll county, Tennessee, and came to Fulton in 1874, making him a citizen of this city 37 years, but he does not look much older than that now.

Mr. Burrow is one of the most successful music dealers in all this section. He buys the instruments direct from the factory and is thus prepared to give his customers close figures on all purchases. His leading instrument is the Knabe and the Story & Clark pianos and he has placed them in hundreds of homes in Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi, Arkansas and Missouri. He has also furnished organs to numerous churches as well as other instruments to individuals and societies throughout this section. His instruments always come up to his promises and that is another reason for his splendid success in the music line.

In addition to his music business Mr. Burrow is raising thorough-bred jersey cattle. He is proving as successful in this line as in the musical business.

Mr. Burrow has just completed a handsome, up-to-date residence on Third street in West Fulton, which is one of the prettiest homes in the city. A splendid picture of it appears in this edition.

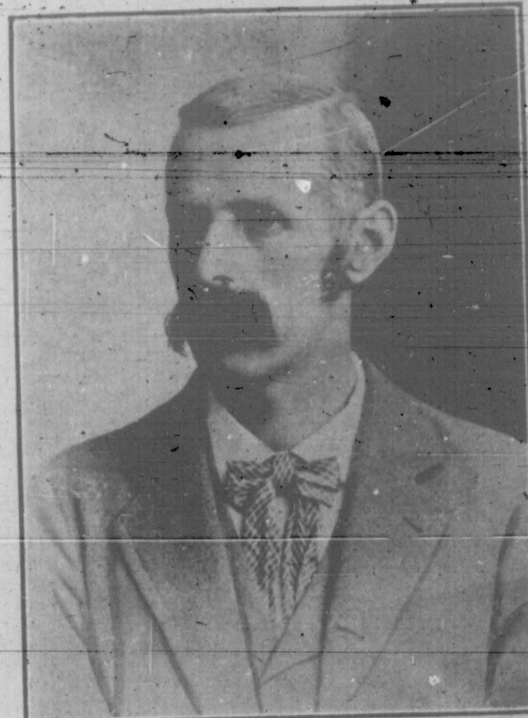

His only child, Miss Mamie Burrow, is an accomplished musician, and has a host of friends who admire her splendid talent in this line. She has a large room fitted up as a studio in her beautiful new home and gives instruction on violin and piano.

JOE WADE & COMPANY, Incorporated.

ONE OF FULTON'S OLDEST AND MOST SOLID BUSINESS FIRMS.

Joe Wade & Co., Furniture Dealers and Undertakers, was established in 1874. The founder of this establishment, the late Joe Wade, came from England in the early seventies, and in the latter part of 1873 came with his family, to Fulton, which was then, just a station, with a few scattered residences and three of four frame store along the railroad on what is now known as Lake street.

After viewing the landscape over, Mr. Wade pitched his tent on the State Line, Tennessee side, and erected his residence with a one room store connected, on one corner of the lot. Here Mr. Wade began the Furniture and Undertaking business on a small scale, and after battling with early hardships, his sales rapidly increased, and the demands called for larger store rooms. These have been added to from time to time, until Wade's Furniture Store now occupies the entire lot. The building, owing to its quaint construction, has caused considerable comment and criticism, especially by strangers, but the people of the surrounding country have come to regard it through long years of trading there as the one place of all others and do not think of going elsewhere in that line. During Mr. Wade's business career in Fulton, until his death, which occurred two years ago, he had seen many similar enterprises spring up and fall, but none ever enjoyed the extensive business of his store. Since the death of Mr. Wade, the business has been incorporated, and continues under the same name, Joe Wade & Co. Those connected in the incorporation are not new and unfamiliar people with the firm, but are Mr. Wade's children and years' associates in business. They are, J. W. Wade, Mrs. C. A. Fall, Paris, Texas, H. E. Wade, and Ed Heywood, of Fulton. Mr. Heywood, the business manager has been with this firm for the past twenty years, as Embalmer, and has won many true and lasting friends for the firm throughout the Fulton territory. His name stands as a tower of strength, for honesty and fair dealing and the people know when they go to him they get just what they pay for and no higher compliment can be paid a business man.

Joe Wade & Co., are the largest importers of Japanese and China Matting in Western Tennessee and Kentucky. Their line of furniture will compete with any in larger cities and towns anywhere in this section of country. They employ the best salesmen who know the business and customers always receive prompt and courteous attention. Their Undertaking Department is complete in every detail, having in this service, three Licensed State Embalmers for Kentucky and Tennessee. Their embalmer for the colored people is Bob Blythe, who has been in this service for the past twenty-three years.

The corps of working force for this establishment, are as follows: Ed Heywood, business manager; Miss Coralie Green, bookkeeper; Ed Wade, collector; E. M. Lucas, S. P. Etheridge, P. C. SUPERINTENDENT J. J. GAVEN AND HIS STAFF OF ASSISTANTS

THE ILLINOIS CENTRAL RAILROAD, FULTON'S GREATEST SINGLE ASSET.

WE ARE SITUATED AT THE GREAT CARDINAL POINTS CROSSINGS OF THE SYSTEM—OVER FIVE HUNDRED EMPLOYEES HERE—VAST IMPROVEMENTS PAST FEW YEARS—IMMENSE PAY ROLL—SUPERINTENDENT J. J. GAVEN, HEAD OF DIVISION AND HIS STAFF OF ASSISTANTS.

No individual firm or corporation employs as many people or has the property interest in Fulton that the Illinois Central Railroad Co. has. Fulton sits at the crossing of the two most important arms of this great railroad system, stretching to the cardinal points of the compass, north, east, south and west and making this city the gateway to the south, and about the center of the system.

The fact is Fulton is a kind of protegee of the Illinois Central and we expect some time it may make this place the base of some of its most important offices and work shops.

The company a few years ago expended a large sum of money in improving its trackage through the city of Fulton, building its division headquarters; a large roomy office building, improving its depots and establishing a system of beautiful little parks in the heart of the city adorned with flowers and shrubbery, which are kept up by a landscape gardener and assistants and which are a joy to the eye and present a lovely attractive and restful scene through all the spring and summer and fall months.

In addition to this the company built what is known as the New Yards, out in the northwestern suburbs, or Riceville, and which are the finest yards in the south. Here is also located roomy shops for round house and repair of engines requiring quite a force of men. Here the equipment for the southern division is inspected.

All these improvements represent more than a hundred thousand dollars.

SUPERINTENDENT J. J. GAVEN.

Here are located division headquarters at the head of which is Superintendent J. J. Gaven, one of the best equipped and most successful railroad men in the south.

Superintendent Gaven was transferred from the position of superintendent at New Orleans, La., to Fulton, June 27th, 1903, this being a promotion it being the most important in the southern division of the system. It has been under his administration that all the changes above mentioned in the way of train yards, shops, buildings etc., have been made, representing an expenditure of more than $100,000.

Mr. Gaven's splendid executive ability was recognized and that was the reason he was placed here to have these improvements made. He has also identified himself with the local interests of Fulton and is one of our most progressive and esteemed citizens.

Big Payroll and Hundreds of Employees.

The importance of the I. C. R. R., to Fulton is manifest in the large number of employees and the payrolls.

The average monthly payroll for the Fulton employees proper, is $25,000.

The average monthly payroll for the trainmen, engineers, etc., running in and out Fulton is about $70,000.

The number of employees who reside in Fulton is about 500; of these 51 are located in the division office building. The present heads of the various departments in the division headquarters and in the city are as follows:

J. J. Gaven, Superintendent; Guy

Thomas, private secretary; H. Cully, Chief Clerk.

Roadmaster—J. M. Egan.

Trainmasters—T. E. Galloway, Fulton to Memphis and R. M. Alford, Cairo and Jackson district.

THE FULTON ELECTRIC LIGHT AND POWER CO.

Established in 1895—Now Owned By J. H. Hooks—Up-to-date Lighting.

It was in 1895 that Fulton felt herself swell in importance by the inauguration of electric lighting, replacing coal oil, not only in the homes and business houses of the town, but relegating the ancient street lamps to the junk pile. The Morganfield Construction Co., Incorporated, of Morganfield, Ky., during this year put into operation in Fulton what was known, and has ever since been known as the Fulton Electric Light and Power Company.

The first plant of the company, which was owned by Morganfield capitalists, was erected in the building now occupied by Crunk & Stover, Main street, and was under the management of Fred Carden, an electrician of long experience, and, although when the dynamos first came hum in Fulton many disadvantages of the pioneers of the infant industry from the beginning the project was lent the endorsement of everyone. It was a great step towards modernity and was recognized and welcomed as such.

In 1900 a large brick plant was erected for the Fulton Electric Light and Power Company at the present location on Walnut street and during that year the company moved into their new home, enlarging the capacity of the plant somewhat. Two years later in 1902 Henry F. Oliver, of Morganfield, acquired the stock of the company and came to this city to take charge of his purchase, becoming active manager. The plant was by this time in a flourishing condition and was supposed to be a highly paying and valuable investment.

During 1904 L. W. Graham and others purchased the interests of Mr.

Oliver and the former was elected president of the Fulton Electric Light and Power Co., soon after assuming full control of its operations, acting as manager. From the first a general dissatisfaction seems to have set up among the stockholders and suit after suit followed in an effort to oust Graham from his position as manager of the plant's affairs; finally by action of the court Mr. R. M. Chowning was appointed receiver for the company and in November, 1907 became the active manager of its destinies. During about three years of his control which followed the company was put upon a paying business and dividends declared.

J. H. HOOKS

The stockholders of the company finally secured an order from the circuit court judge that the property be sold at public auction to the highest bidder and in June of 1910 its present owner, Mr. J. H. Hooks, of Clarksdale, Miss., bought the whole plant, assuming control in July, last, since which time he has been in active direction of its management. He is thoroughly conversant with the business and has put the plant on an up-to-date basis, with the latest equipment in the lighting line.

The present condition of the Fulton Electric Light and Power Company is flourishing and prosperous and Mr. Hooks is living up to the reputation brought with him from Clarksdale, of being a live and clean cut business man. At all times he is on hand at his handsome offices in the upper story of the plant, and although exceedingly pleasant and courteous in his transactions fairly bristles with energy and is strictly business from toes to finger tips. He has associated with him as bookkeeper and office manager, Mr. J. M. Culver, a very efficient young business man, and as superintendent of the plant Mr. J. W. Stitts, who, since 1900, more than ten years ago, has been a valued employee of the company. Mr. Stitts is an able electrician and well liked by everyone. Mr. Milam Wheelis is engineer of the plant.

Although when first installed in Fulton at the old Main street home the plant's capacity was only 125 horse power with a 60 kilowatt generator, its present capacity is 450 horse power, with a 277 kilowatt generator. It supplies light to all the streets of Fulton and South Fulton, to practically all the business houses and to a large majority of the homes of the city, as well as power for the many electric fans in town, and for a number of motors operating newspaper plants and other machinery.

During 1910 the city council ordered arc lights on Lake street and it is thought that the arc system will at an early date replace the incandescent lights all over the city.

A tremendous money saver for the electric consumer has just been put into use by the Fulton Electric Light and Power Company in the form of the MAZDA LIGHT, which makes exactly three times the light of the incandescent burner at the same cost. It is fast popularizing electric lighting here and the MAZDA LIGHT is being used in home and business houses alike with equally splendid results. It is a beautiful white light, far superior to the old yellow burner and will eventually entirely supplant the latter.

Few cities of even much larger size than Fulton possess such an up-to-date electric lighting plant as this place and our people are well pleased with the plant under the new management and ownership.

MR. JACK HALL

The Poultry King of Kentucky and a Successful Business Man.

The above is a splendid likeness of Mr. Jack Hall, one of Fulton's handsomest citizens, known at Jackson, Miss., where he was in business 4 years as Uncle Jack, and the Poultry King of Kentucky.

Mr. Hall was born in Christian county, Kentucky, in 1856, moved to Graves county in 1861, with his parents and came to Fulton in 1881, when quite a young man. He first engaged in buying tobacco for the firm of Browder, Usher & Barry. He next embarked in the dry goods line with Jno. W. Blythe & Co., and was with them 6 years.

In 1890 he entered into the poultry business when it was in its infancy here. The first year he did a business ranging between $5,000 to $10,000. He is now doing a poultry business of $260,000 per annum. He ships an average of a car load of poultry a week to the cities or 52 cars per year, besides many hundred cases of eggs.

He has developed the poultry business into an important industry in this section. He raises and encourages the raising also, of fine strains of poultry of every description, adding many thousands of dollars to the wealth of the surrounding section.

He spent 4 years of his time in business at Jackson, Miss., but returned to Fulton at the end of that time. He is now the senior partner and leading member of the firm of Hall, Brooks & Boone, wholesale dealers and shippers of eggs and poultry. Their poultry house is just north of Lake St., where they have a large building and enclosure for the care of their fowls until they are placed in cars and shipped away.

Mr. Hall lives on Park Ave., near Third St.

His business has been worth much to the people throughout this section in giving them a market the year round at good prices for eggs and poultry.

Fulton is one of the best Poultry markets in the South, and all kinds of fowls are easily raised here at a handsome profit.

OSTEOPATHY==WHAT IS IT?

Something of the Science Which Is Becoming So Popular with Suffering Humanity.

As this is a comparatively new science, as such, having been established as a separate science, in the present generation, there is much inquiry about it, what it is and what qualifications are necessary for an osteopath for handling diseases. It takes practically the same length of time to make a full-fledged osteopath as it does to make a physician of the regular school. The course embraces almost the same class of subjects as are included in the course adopted by the Association of American Medical Colleges, the chief difference being the study of the principles of Osteopathy instead of the materia medica, all the other important branches being taught by both schools. The course is thorough covering the whole range of practice and the anatomy of the human system is made the features in Osteopathy.

Osteopathy is a scientific method of treating disease, which receives no assistance from drugs and depends for its efficacy on manipulations designed to restore abnormalities of structure to their normal position.

Osteopaths maintain, and the principle which lies at the foundation of their science asserts that function is dependent on structure, in other words, if structure is in any particular out of the normal, the function of some organ must suffer as an inevitable result.

The osteopath, then, is an educated mechanic of the human body, and his duty to find out what is the structural misplacement which is causing the machine to run stiffly and to function poorly.

It is here that we see the essential difference in standpoint between the osteopathic and medical practitioner. The latter notes that an organ is functioning abnormally and hopes either by stimulating it, or in some way replacing the normal secretion to force the organ again to take on its function.

The osteopath, looks, not at the abnormally functioning organ, although, of course, symptomatology is important in diagnosis, but away behind what is apparent, and asks what is the cause.

In other words, the osteopath believes that normal functioning is inevitable, that it must take place if there is no structural abnormality preventing it from doing so.

No one puts this more forcibly than Dr. Still himself, the discoverer of the new science, when he says:

"If every part of the machine is adjusted and in perfect harmony, health will hold dominion over the human organism by laws, as natural and immutable as the laws of gravitation."

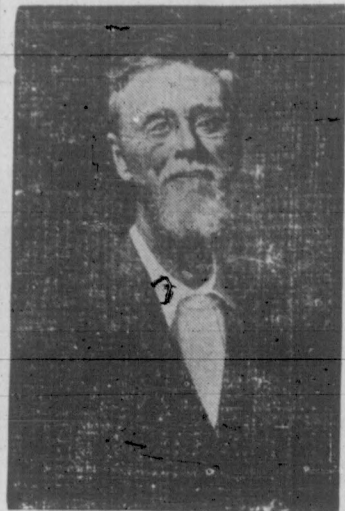

It is difficult at first to grasp the full significance of this thought, for its universal acceptance which he knew would only be a matter of time, must involve a radical and far-reaching change in the whole trend of thought of the world.

But one result could obtain from the constant reiteration of such a thought by such a man, namely the establishment of a school in which an attempt might be made to put his plans into practical application. It was in 1892 that such a school was started, with, we believe, 18 students. That school was the American School of Osteopathy at Kirksville, Mo., which at the present writing has graduated over 3,000 practitioners, has a student enrollment of 625 and presents a course of study which is equal to almost any medical college in the country.

This phenomenal growth has no parallel in the whole annals of medical history, it means that there has been born a method of treating disease which is based on the facts of anatomy and physiology.

It means too that the public is beginning to appreciate this discovery and to hold out the glad hand of welcome to those who have graduated from this school, realizing that the practitioners of this science are coming into their midst equipped with a knowledge of inestimable value to themselves and of vital importance to the whole world.

DR. ANDREW TAYLOR STILL.

The discoverer of Osteopathy was born in Jonesboro, Virginia, eighty-two years ago. His father was a physician and preacher.

When still a boy his father moved to Missouri. In due time Dr. Still grew to manhood and graduated from the medical department of the Washington University at St. Louis. He located in Baldwin, Kansas, where he was a successful physician, but being dissatisfied with the effects of medicine, he began to study the body from a mechanical view. He frequently dissected Indians in order to better understand the mechanism of the human body and soon learned that readjustment of tissues, especially bony, would get the necessary nutrition for parts affected and would therefore cure the disease. He was considered insane because he dared to undertake to cure diseases without medicine, and was severely persecuted for many years, but is now living to enjoy the results of his labors.

Dr. Nora B. Pherigo

DR. NORA B. PHERIGO A TRUE HEROINE.

Story of the Life Of A Fulton Woman Who Has Won Splendid Success By Her Own Efforts.

The story of some of our brightest statesmen and most successful men in all walks of life show that in early life they had to struggle with poverty and misfortune and by overcoming them proved themselves heroes and won lasting admiration and fame.

In this article we tell the life story, briefly of a real heroine, whose experience has been no less strenuous, whose success is as fully deserving of praise and admiration as many of those who have become immortal. We refer to Mrs. Nora B. Pherigo, whose likeness graces the head of this article, and the story of her life should prove an inspiration to the young to study to win.

Dr. Pherigo was partially reared in a section where schools were scarce and it was difficult to obtain an education. When scarce fifteen years of age she was left an orphan. Unaided, alone in the world she had the ambition and determination to get an education and she seems to have been singularly blessed in her efforts. At the age of 17 years she had made such use of her opportunity that she was granted a license to teach school in summers and with the means obtained attend Normal School in the winters, thus securing a good education.

In the meantime, at the age of 20 years, she was married.

Studied Osteopathy.

The study of osteopathy appealed to her and in the fall of 1907 she entered the American School of Osteopathy at Kirksville, Mo., and graduated in a class of 115 in 1909.

She made many of the best grades in the entire class, and never failed in any of the examinations, though forced by circumstances to take two courses part of the time.

While in college Dr. Pherigo was president of the Y. W. C. A., also president of the Axis club, the largest Osteopathic club in the world. She is a member of the Kentucky Osteopathic Association and is on the program for an address at the next meeting at Louisville. She too, is a member of the American Osteopathic Association, which meets in Chicago this year. Dr. Pherigo delivered several public addresses to the students and did special work in women's diseases.

President Still, founder of Osteopathy, paid an unusual rare compliment to Dr. Pherigo, by predicting for her eminent success in the Osteopathic field. She was interne four months in the hospital and her work was highly commended by the faculty. Her success in practice at college was noted and the subject of favorable comment.

She graduated with honors and was elected orator of one of the college societies. No student has ever graduated at the American School of Osteopathy whose personal standing as a student and as a lady was superior to Dr. Pherigo's. She was a favorite among the faculty and student body.

Dr. Pherigo has undergone the state examinations in four different states and holds license to practice in Colorado, Missouri, Tennessee and Kentucky. After investigation she selected Fulton, Ky., as the most suitable place to locate. On June 3, 1909, Dr. Pherigo and two little girls reached the depot at Fulton and after a day or so located and opened an office, and hung out her modest sign, "Osteopathic Physician," to the world.

A perfect stranger in a strange place and a country different in many of its habits and customs from where she had lived; her profession but little known and strong prejudice against it; aided alone by the genuine merit of a genuine science she has won the general confidence of the people and established a large and lucrative practice. Dr. Pherigo has the right to feel proud of her splendid success for she daily meets those who but for her skill, science, and knowledge with good, honest, faithful work would today be helpless invalids or it may be, have passed beyond. Certainly her sleep is sweetened by the "Well done, etc." for the part she has played in relieving suffering among humanity.

Her life since coming among us has been an open book, easily read by all. Her friends are counted by the number of her acquaintances. Her practice is very large, in fact has grown somewhat onerous for one person to do.

A physician who believes in the ethics of her profession; a lady in its truest sense; but nerve and pluck have changed the hardships of her earlier life and she has won deserved success. The clouds have rolled away; the sun is lending its brightest rays to her life. With friends in abundance her little ones doing nicely at college, her cup is filled to the level. Many will bless the fate which beckoned Dr. Pherigo and led her to become one of us.

FULTON POSTOFFICE

Its Rapid Growth—Business Has Increased in Past Few Years—Postmaster Robert B. Beadles Paid Out Over $35,000 in 1910.

The Postoffice comes in touch with every home and every class of business in city and country.

The evolution and growth of the Fulton postoffice from a case with a hundred or so pigeon holes in the rear-end of a business house to its present importance as a live up-to-date office of the second class has been a feature, marking the growth and keeping abreast of it with the city of Fulton. The present efficient postmaster, Mr. Robert B. Beadles, has been in that position since July of last year, but he had been assistant to his father for a number of years, and the active moving spirit in the direction of the office for a long time. He has been connected with the office ever since the administration of President Benjamin Harrison when it was in the rear of the J. A. Collins store about where the DeMyer Jewelry store is located on Lake street. It was next moved to the Reed block on Lake street, where the Palace Barbershop now is. Under the McKinley administration it was moved to its present location in the Meadows block. The store room at the southwest corner of the Meadows block is being fitted up in good style and the postoffice will be moved into it in a very short while. It will remain there, in all probability until it moves into its handsome home, which the government will build for it on the lot purchased on Main street. Every removal has meant a better building and enlarged business.

There is no better thermometer of the growth and development of a town or city than the postoffice.

The present postmaster, since his connection with the office, has seen it grow from an humble importance, employing two people a portion of their time until now, the employees are: Robert B. Beadles, postmaster.

J. W. Beadles, Assistant postmaster.

A. C. Bellew, chief clerk.

W. C. Beadles, mailing clerk.

Rural Route Carriers:

B. W. Priddy, No. 1; J. H. Lowe, No. 2; Tom Winsett, No. 3; J. G. Finch, No. 4; W. E. Waggoner, No. 5; P. L. Wills, No. 6; J. T. Holmes, No. 7.

M. Barksdale, the faithful colored messenger has been with the office for the past 8 years and during that time has never missed getting a sack of mail to the train at the right time, though there are 14 mail trains a day through Fulton.

The postoffice will show sufficient business to entitle it by the 1st of July to have free delivery, and Fulton can get it as soon as the house are properly numbered and the streets named.

The following figures for the year 1910 will show some thing of the magnitude of the business which passed through the Fulton office: money orders issued, 7849; amount $38,689.38; fees $364.78.

Paid money orders 4165; amount

$17,645.12.

Newspapers published and mailed at Fulton, 60,816 pounds.

Registered letters received 1855, registered letters dispatched 1760.

Amount paid postmaster, assistants, railway postal clerks and rural carriers, $35,184.42.

EX-POSTMASTER, HON. T. F. BEADLES.

One Of Our Oldest Citizens—Postmaster Many Years—Prominent Republican.

The above is a good likeness of one of Fulton's old and esteemed citizens, Hon. T. F. Beadles, ex-postmaster, who is 74 years of age, having been born in Graves county, Ky., in 1837. He came to Fulton May 9, 1887 and engaged in the hardware business and on June 4, 1889 was appointed postmaster of Fulton by President Harrison. In 1893 when President Cleveland became president the second time Mr. Beadles resigned and Hon. John W. Chambers was appointed. In November 1906 Mr. McKinley was elected president and in the following spring was inaugurated. He appointed Mr. Beadles postmaster. Mr. Roosevelt re-appointed him in January 1902 and again on June 26th, 1906. He served till last year when he retired and his son, Mr. Robert B. Beadles, who had been the efficient assistant postmaster under his father was appointed postmaster.

When Mr. T. F. Beadles took charge of the postoffice in 1889 was in a small room cut off in corner of the dry goods store of A. Collins, on Lake street. Under administration the postoffice came to be one of the best second class postoffices in the State. It now consists of the postmaster, assistant postmaster, chief mailing clerk and seven rural delivery carriers.

The second rural route established in Fulton county was from Fulton office.

This city never had a more prominent and popular postmaster than T. F. Beadles, during the long years he served the public and this is a reason, that when he retired he was appointed to continue in the position.

Mr. Beadles stands high in the councils of the Republican party in West Kentucky. He is a good citizen and is esteemed by all the people at home regardless of politics.

CITY OF FULTON, QUEEN OF THE PURCHASE

The Gem Among Her Sisters. Story of Its Remarkable Growth. Its Modern Comforts and Conveniences. Its Business and Social Side. Wonderfully Blessed By Soil and Climate. A Splendid Outlook For the Coming Decade. Best People On Earth Here.

Situated in the heart of one of the most fertile sections of this country, surpassing in its productiveness the far famed valley of the Nile, Fulton, a city of beautiful homes, of handsome business and public edifices sits a Queen among the cities of the Purchase, the fairest of them all. Already possessing a population numbering 6,000 or more, it is just entering upon a career that will cause it to outstrip all its neighbors, and in a few years will become the home of 25,000 or more people, with all the appurtenances and up-to-dateness of a thoroughly metropolitan city. Situated at the crossing, north, east, south and west of the two main lines of the Great Illinois Central railroad system, destined to be the greatest in the country and with its surrounding natural resources, there is everything necessary here for the making of a city. In 1850 the land upon which Fulton has been built was owned by B. F. Carr, Dr. G. W. Paschall and one or two others. The survey of the C. O. & S. W. railroad was made about that time and the road built through from Louisville. It is now part of the I. C. system, having been purchased some years ago.

It is said that W. T. Woolridge erected a frame store building on the site of the C. O. & S. W. depot, in 1831 and opened the first store, a grocery. The same year T. M. Thomas built the first house on the Tennessee side. The war coming on just at this time no further efforts at building a town were made till the war had closed, there being only a dozen or more families here.

Peace having been declared, a few pioneer citizens began to build the future city. Among these sturdy men were the Paschalls, Normans, McFalls, Carrs, Eddings, Tomlinsons and others whose families are today numbered among our best and most substantial citizens. There was quite a wide difference between the little village with its muddy streets and road and log cabins then than the present well built business structures and handsome residences and other buildings, its concrete sidewalks and gravel streets, which stamp it as a gem of a little city.

The growing town was incorporated in 1872 under the name of Fulton.

About this time the Mississippi Central, as it was then known, now the I. C. railroad, was extended through Jackson, Tennessee, to Cairo. Being located at the junction of this line and the C. O. & S. W. which had been extended to Memphis, Fulton began to assume some importance. The town was laid off into lots which were purchased by people who came to east their lot in the beautiful and growing town. This has continued until the present day. One by one improvements were made and people came. The village took on the airs of a larger town and then grew until at this time it contains all the comforts, conveniences and appurtenances of a modern city.

Will Be Much Larger City.

It does not require a prophet to prognosticate the future and tell that Fulton is going to be a much larger city than now, within a very few years.

In the first place it has a people as citizens who will not fail. They the milling industry and two large mills here giving employment to a number of people do an immense business and ship their products hundreds of miles south and west. Grain and grasses have developed the live stock interests and Fulton is now one of the greatest mule markets of any small city in the country and other live stock in somewhat less degree. It is a big tobacco market, with four or five large tobacco barns and handles five or six millions pounds per year. These give employment to a large number of employees at remunerative wages.

Illinois Central Railroad.

The purchase some years ago by the Illinois Central railroad of the C. O. & S. W. R. R., which crossed it here at Fulton, was a big thing for Fulton. The road spent hundreds of thousands of dollars at this, its most important crossing in the South. The track was raised, a viaduct built, a division headquarters with superintendent and other officers here, a lumber interests are a considerable feature in the volume of business done here.

Tobacco, Wheat and Corn.

The soil of the surrounding section is peculiarly adapted to the growth of tobacco, of wheat and of corn, as well as other cereals. As has already been stated, several millions of pounds of tobacco are annually sold in the Fulton market of the dark variety and of superior flavor. A considerable amount of it is shipped direct to Europe, being taken by the Italian Government.

This soil grows wheat of a high class, large yield and the winter varieties, many thousand bushels being marketed here at good prices.

Corn grows here as well as anywhere in the country and the yield per acre will compare with the best. Other cereals like oats, rye, the far famed alfalfa and all the hay crops and grasses grow to perfection here.

The Poultry Industry.

Scarcely any city the size of Ful-tons, besides the cereals, it follows as a natural sequence that this should also be a splendid stock section. Cattle of all kinds are raised and brought to the Fulton market while hogs are shipped from here at almost all seasons.

Fulton is the largest mule market in this entire section, more than 1,000 having been sold here within the past four months.

Bright Outlook.

With its splendid growth of population and business and the early erection of a handsome $50,000 postoffice building by the Federal Government at a well located lot on Main street in the business section; free delivery will be one of the early certainties for the coming year.

Fulton is also to have a big County Fair the coming fall on one of the best selected sites that could have been procured about the city.

Other enterprises that will add to the growth and development of Fulton now in the embryonic state will be ready for fruition in the near future.

All things considered, no city of near its size in the south has a better outlook than Fulton for a magnificent growth within the next ten years. It presents a most inviting field for those desiring to invest and to locate in an up-to-date little city and among the best people in the world.

CHURCHES—GUARDIANS OF THE MORALS OF THE COMMUNITY.

That the churches in any community exercise a most potent influence for good, is conceded by all, except the most rabid or blatant infidel, whose egotism and self-conceit blind his mind to the inestimable value of Christianity. But to what extent are the churches valuable in this community? The Galilean teacher said of His disciples: "Ye are the light of the world." "Ye are the salt of the earth." Hence, if all His disciples are the light of the world and the salt of the earth, the logical conclusion is that they are the light of the community in which they live.

These declarations, however, do not preclude the possibility of the light going out—being hid under a bushel or the salt losing its saltiness. But certainly no reasonable or fair minded person would accuse the churches of being wholly composed of united bands of hypocrites. For it matters not to what extent sin, in its many forms, may prevail in the ranks of the church, you will find, within its membership, consecrated men and women. And it should be borne in mind that it only requires a few of the above-mentioned class to become the light of the community.

There is not a man in our town, however indifferent to the claims of Christianity, would want to rear his family here if there were no churches or church influence, for he at once recognizes them as the guardians of the morals of the community. The high moral standing of our city is due to the fact that it has been permeated by Christian influence and education, such as have radiated from the various church organizations established here.

FULTON WATER UNSURPASSED

Sparkles With A Bluish White of Exceptional Purity.

The water supply of a city is one of its most important considerations. In this respect Fulton is probably unexcelled. The supply of its water is not only ample to meet the city's present needs, but the future needs of the city have been anticipated many years. The quality of the water is unsurpassed and sparkles with a bluish white of exceptional purity.

The Fulton Water Works represents an investment of upward of $50,000 and is owned by the city. The pumping capacity is 2,500,000 gallons daily; consumption 1,000,000 gallons.

Capt. J. P. Tyler is superintendent and a more efficient man could not be found. During the time he has had charge many valuable improvements have been made to the plant and the entire water works system has reached the pinnacle of perfection. Water is furnished at a low rate and Capt. Tyler hopes to be able to reduce even this rate. However, as the matter stands, Fulton people enjoy as low rate, if not a lower rate than the average city of this size. The new well completed about the first of March, this year, was a gusher and a valuable addition to the property.

A recent report of the superintendent shows that approximately 4,500 people are served with water as well as the Illinois Central railroad.

On account of our excellent water the railroad diners also wait until they reach Fulton to get their supply of water, the purest of the pure.

RESIDENCE OF MR. H. P. JOYNER, WEST FULTON.

are a commingling of the Puritan and Cavalier, ambitious, sturdy, moral, reverential, refined, cultured and possessing an indomitable spirit to succeed in whatever they undertake, and the elements, such as soil, climate and other natural resources are here to aid them.

Remarkable Growth.

Once it had started to grow, development came rapidly.

Fulton is situated in the heart of a section adapted to the growth of both gain and tobacco.

The farmer with his grain has made Fulton the natural center for large station built, a big passenger yard built and recently an elaborate new yard constructed and a round house built employing quite a large force and founding the town of Riceville. in our northern suburbs.

Timber Industry.

Fulton has for years been widely known as an important lumber center. Magnificent forests have furnished millions of feet of timber which have been converted by saw-mills into lumber and large lumber plants here have drawn an immense business for years and employed many people in the business. The ton has so many products, right at its doors for increasing its volume of business. The poultry and egg industry has grown in the past few years from a modest beginning to a wholesale business of more than $350,000 per annum, besides the local retail trade. Chickens, turkeys, ducks, geese and all kinds of barn-yard fowls and eggs are shipped to the leading markets of the country and it is profitable alike to the grower and shipper.

Stock Raising.

With a soil that will grow in abundance all kinds of hay and grass

RESIDENCE OF MR. JOHN MELTON, EAST FULTON.

RESIDENCE OF MR. C. E. RICE, WEST FULTON.

FULTON WELL GOVERNED CITY

Headed By Mayor J. F. Fall, Who Is Serving His Third Term. No Graft Here. City Interests Looked After Like It Was An Individual Business Enterprise.

Fulton is well governed as any city in the country. There is no graft here, but to the contrary every official of the city takes a personal pride in advancing the interests of the city in every way and using the same care and business judgment that he would in his own business affairs. This is why everything moves along so smoothly and without hitch or friction. Every official looks out for the welfare of Fulton and feels that everyone of his fellow associates is doing the same. The city officials are: Mayor J. F. Fall.

Councilmen—W. W. Meadows, C. H. Bransford, Dr. R. T. Rudd, L. T. Callahan, C. W. Fowler, W. K. Hall.

H. F. Taylor, City Judge; Frank Carr, City Attorney; J. P. Tyler, superintendent of Water Works and City Clerk; Bailey P. Huddleston, Chief of Police; John St. John, Night Policeman; Jake Roberts, Chief Fire Department.

Board of Education—W. P. Felts, Chairman; C. E. Rice, Joe Browder, P. H. Weeks, W. A. Terry.

Under the splendid administration of the above officials the city has prospered as probably never before in its history.

Hon. J. F. Fall is serving his third term as mayor. He served two terms of four years each, and was out one term, and was again elected without opposition.

He is one of the city's most progressive citizens and most capable business men. As mayor he has made a splendid executive and has constantly the welfare of the city at heart. When he has finished his present term he will have been mayor twelve years and it is probable that he will be continued in that high office.

Of the councilmen, Mr. W. W. Meadows has been longest in the service of the city. He built the Meadows block, is proprietor of the Meadows Hotel and is a public spirited progressive citizen. The other councilmen, Dr. R. T. Rudd, Messrs. W. K. Hall, L. T. Callahan, C. H. Bransford and C. W. Fowler, are among Fulton's leading and most prominent citizens.

Judge H. F. Taylor, is serving his first term as city judge and has given satisfaction, because he holds the balances of justice evenly poised and deals it out to all alike.

Hon. Frank Carr, City Attorney, is one of the most brilliant young lawyers of Western Kentucky. He is a graduate of Vanderbilt Law school and is a Fulton boy, having been born and reared here. He has been city attorney since 1904 and his splendid legal ability and good business judgment have been invaluable to the city council and saved thousands of dollars to the city.

The "old man" of the city administration of the city is Captain J. P. Tyler, Superintendent of the City Water Works and City Clerk, who has filled those position for many years, has always made a most capable, painstaking officer and is popular with everybody.

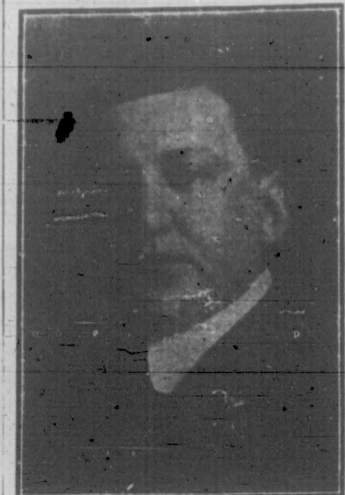

Mr. Bailey Huddleston is serving his first term as chief of police, and he is making a good one, in fact they say the best Fulton has ever had. His newspaper training stands him well in hand, as a newspaper man has to learn how to hunt up things and play the detective too, if he makes a success of his job. Mr. John St. John his night assistant has been a long time in the service and is a most capable man.

Jake Roberts is the efficient chief of the fire department and they do say he can almost smell a fire by the time starts even if it is four blocks away. He has splendid assistants. The fire force is paid for every fire and you may be assured they are promptly on the spot when a fire alarm is turned in no matter from what part of the city they may be called. The city has plenty of good fire hose and gets the pressure direct from the fire plugs of the City Water Works.

The Board of Education is composed of leading business men of the city. The chairman being ex-mayor, W. P. Felts and his associates being Messrs. P. H. Weeks, Joe Browder, C. E. Rice and W. A. Terry. In their hands the educational interests of the city are well planned.

No city in Kentucky is better governed or has a more efficient corps of officials than has Fulton.

JUDGE HERBERT CARR.

The above is a splendid likeness of Judge Herbert Carr, one of the leading attorneys of Fulton and West Kentucky.

He was born at Fulton in 1875, and is a son of Mr. W. T. Carr, of this city, and a grandson of B. F. Carr, one of the founders of Fulton.

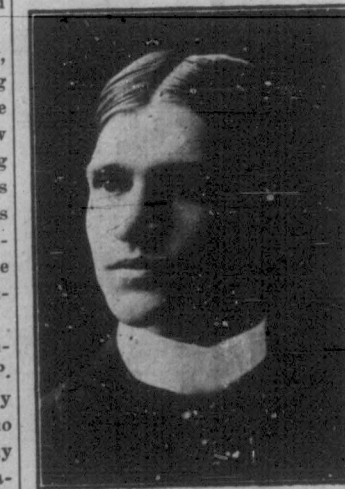

Judge Carr graduated from Vanderbilt University in 1898 and immediately engaged in the practice of law here and was very successful from the very start.

In 1900 he married Miss Myrtle Skeen, of Bell Buckle, Tenn. They have two children, a daughter 4 years of age, and a son aged one year.

In 1900 he was elected Judge of the City Court and served two terms of eight years, having no opposition for the second term and declining a third term.

In 1909 he returned to the practice of law, becoming the senior member of the firm of Carr and Carr. This firm is associated in practice with Robbins and Thomas, of Mayfield, Ky. The firm are the local attorneys for the Illinois Central railroad, and enjoy a large and growing practice.

Judge Carr is secretary of the Fulton Publishing Company.

FRANK CARR

City Attorney of Fulton and Prominent Young Attorney.

The above is a likeness of Hon. Frank Carr, the popular city attorney of Fulton and one of the leading attorneys of Fulton county.

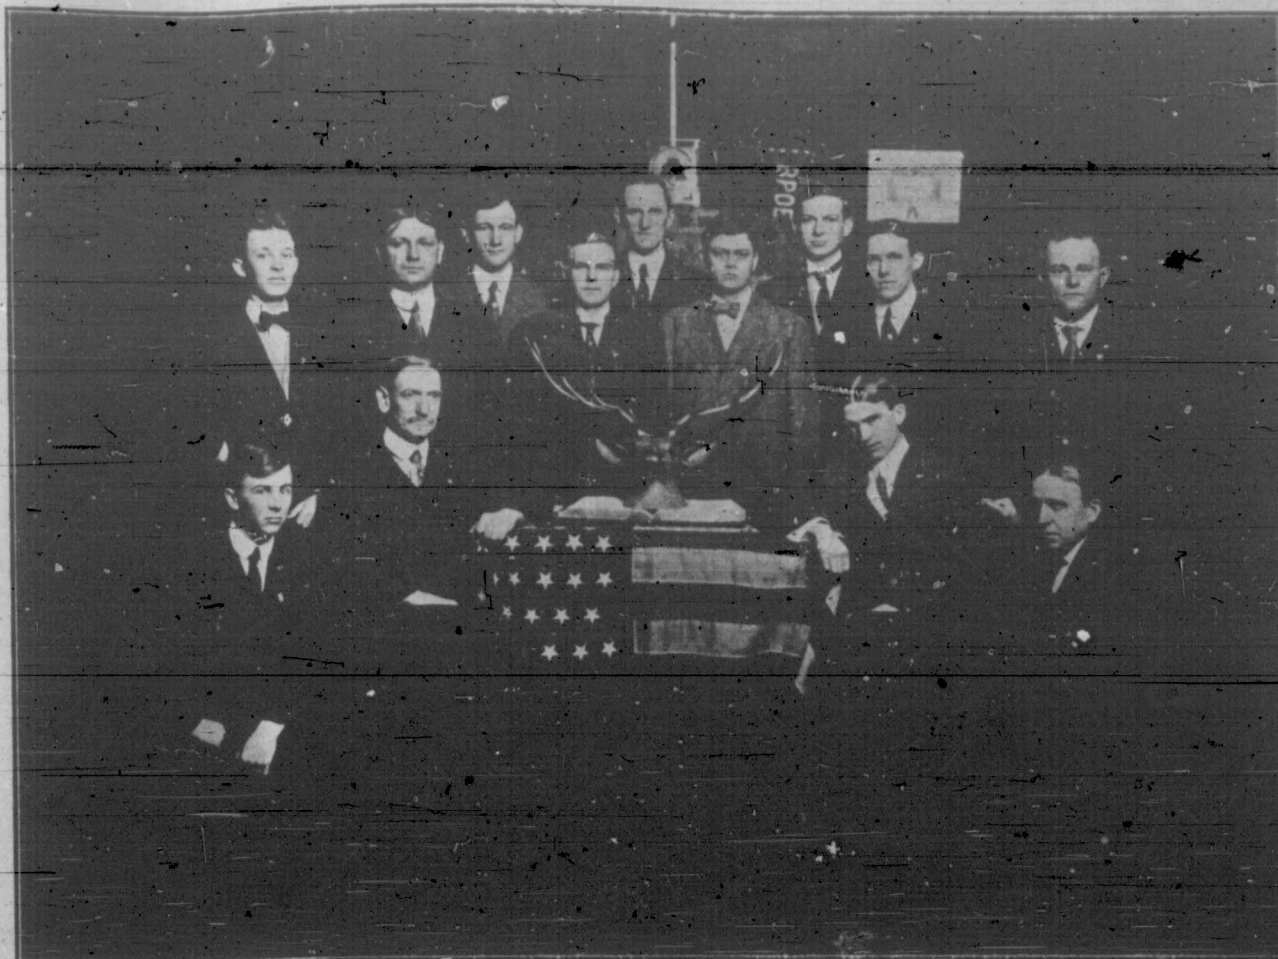

He was born in 1879 in the city of Fulton and descended from a pioneer family of this section, being a grandson of B. F. Carr one of the founders of this city.

He graduated from the academic and law department of Vanderbilt University in 1903 and has since been engaged in the practice of law, being junior member of the law firm of Carr and Carr.

He was elected city attorney of Fulton in 1904 and has held the position ever since.

He is one of the most prominent young attorneys of West Kentucky,

The Fulton Antlers

Lodge No. 1142, B. P. O. Elks was instituted in Fulton December 21, 1900, by Smith T. Bailey, District Deputy Grand Exalted Ruler for the Western District of Kentucky with a chartered membership of forty-two. Since that date the order has increased its membership to about one hundred and fifty.

The membership of this order comprises the very best element of the citizenship of this community. The leading citizens of every walk in life in Fulton are to be found in this order. It is the baby lodge of the state, and it is the consensus of opinion of all Elks who have visited the lodge that it is one of the most progressive lodges in the state. The lodge rooms are elegantly furnished in Old Mission furniture and the reading room is filled with the newest and best literature to be had. All the leading magazines, periodicals and daily papers are to be found on the reading tables where the members while away many pleasant and profitable hours reading and smoking. The order of Elks is a charitable and social order. It stands primarily for charity, justice, brotherly love and fidelity, and these virtues have been exemplified in this community to a far greater extent than the outside world has any idea of. This order believes that the proper way to do charity is to do it and say nothing about it. Numerous instances could be given where it has dispensed charity with a generous hand in this town if we were permitted to give them.

The Elks Home of this town is one that every citizen may well feel proud of even though he does not belong to the order and never intends to. It will be surprising to many here to know that it cost a little more than $3,500 to fit up and furnish this lodge, and will likewise be gratifying to all to know that it is out of debt with money in the bank. A fund has been started with which a magnificent Home will be built in the near future. The order expects to select in the near future a desirable lot and erect on it a building that will be an ornament to the town.

The Elks believe in developing the social side of man and with that in view Friday of each week has long been designated as "Ladies Day" and the young ladies of the town (there are no old ones here) gather there on these days and enjoy themselves with music, books, pool billiards, and almost each week a most delightful informal dance is had.

Dr. W. E. Simmons was the first Exalted Ruler of this lodge, and he was surrounded with a capable cabinet. He served one term in this office which is as long as the office may be held under the constitution. W. T. Anderson succeeded Dr. Simmons and he held the office till his duties in the railway world called him to Illinois and he was succeeded by Ed C. Paschall who is the present

Exalted Ruler, and whose term expired April 1st.

The new officers are: Jan. L. White, Exalted Ruler, G. G. Bard, Esteemed Loyal Knight, Joe D. Davis, Esteemed Lecturing Knight, Paul Pickering, secretary, Harry Ekdahl, W. W. Morris, C. E. Rice and Dr. Seldon Cohn, Trustees. ATKINS COLE, District Manager and Head Clerk Woodmen of the World.

The handsome gentleman, whose photograph appears above is Mr. Atkins Cole, District Manager and Head Clerk for Kentucky Woodmen of the World.

Mr. Cole is one of Fulton's most popular citizens, a public spirited gentleman and a woodman from the stump up.

He was appointed District Manager of Western Kentucky by the Sovereign Camp Woodmen of the World in 1903 and he has added more names as members of the order during the past eight years than any man in Kentucky the figures being more than 2,000. He has organized in that time numerous new camps and strengthened all the older ones throughout his jurisdiction. His record in the interest of woodcraft has been one of continued success and by his untiring efforts he has put woodcraft in the first ranks of all orders in his district. He has made his home camp, Evergreen No. 4, of Fulton; the banner camp of the State, its membership numbering more than 500. This speaks volumes for him and shows that he does not do things by halves. His magnificent record was recognized by the Woodmen of the State, when in 1909 he was elected head clerk of Head Camp U. State of Kentucky.

His splendid work in that position is recognized by all the Head Camp officials of the State, the Sovereigns and Sovereign Camp. His record shows that he has collected more per capita tax from over the State than any clerk who ever preceded him and his books are in excellent condition.

The Head Camp which recently met in biennial convention at Madisonville, on March 14th, showed its confidence in Mr. Cole by re-electing him on the first ballot, his majority being 104 votes more than his two opponents combined. The cheering which followed showed the great popularity of the Fulton Sovereign. Mr. Cole has a pleasant look and a smile that wins them all.

FULTON ICE COMPANY. UP-TO-DATE PLANT.

One of the substantial manufacturing enterprises of this city is the Fulton Ice Company. This plant was established in 1898 and its capacity is 20 tons per day. It supplies not only the city of Fulton, but all the nearby towns.

The plant is up-to-date in every particular, using the latest machinery in the ice manufacturing line. And is one of the best in Kentucky. The business has steadily grown and a large new brick storage building has been erected during the past few months ready for service the coming summer.

Mr. R. H. Wade, the genial manager has been in charge of the plant ever since it started. He is thoroughly posted in his business and he looks after his customers, seeing that they promptly taken care of and get just what they want. He is one of the most popular and reliable business men in Fulton.

The ice of this plant is made from pure freestone water, coming from a considerable depth in the earth. There is no deposit of any kind in it and the ice made from it is of the clearest, purest crystal and does not melt as rapidly as ice that is made of impure or muddy water to begin with and has a solid body.

This means quite a saving of percent. to the customer, Fulton can feel a just pride in her splendid ice plant.

GRAHAM & JOHNSON BROS.'S. BIG FURNITURE AND UNDERTAKING ESTABLISHMENT.

One of Fulton's largest and most popular mercantile firms is the Graham & Johnson Bros. Furniture and Undertaking establishment on lower Lake street.

This firm has been in business here eleven years, and the past nine in the same big double store. Its popularity and solid business growth is shown in the fact that a half story has been added in more recent years, making the building two and a half stories and in addition the second story of the building on the west side has been secured to carry the immense stock. The patronage has been extended, not only to embrace Fulton and immediate surroundings, but on account of the magnificent and varied stock carried by this house, trade and orders come from other communities for many miles away, orders having to be shipped to other towns. The stock of carpets, matings and all kinds of floor coverings cannot be surpassed outside of a big city.

They carry everything in the furniture line, so as to suit everybody and their prices are always reasonable.

The firm also gives especial attention to their undertaking and embalming department, having experienced embalmers in this line.

Mr. J. Ray Graham, the managing partner, is an experienced furniture man. He was in the business formerly at Clinton, Ky., where he made a success before coming here 9 years ago, and his present splendid establishment shows what a magnificent success he has had here. He knows his business and knows it well and in addition he is courteous to everybody and he sees that his customers receive prompt attention and quick delivery of all goods purchased.

These are the reasons that have made for the growth of this firm and their large business which is constantly expanding.

When you need anything in their line be sure to visit this firm, they will take care of you or your order and at the right prices.

EXTERIOR VIEW OF M. F. DeMYER'S JEWELRY STORE COR. LAKE ST. AND COMMERCIAL AVE.

Twenty-One Years in the Jewelry Business in Fulton.

Everybody who knows anything of Fulton, knows the popular Jeweler, Mr. M. F. DeMyer, whose business house is one of the most prominent in Fulton, located at the busy corner of Lake street and Commercial ave., the hub about which revolves the business of Fulton.

Mr. DeMyer was born and reared in Fulton county, near the city of Fulton and comes of one of the pioneer families of this section, his father having owned a large estate almost in the suburbs of Fulton.

Mr. DeMyer has been longer in business in the same line in Fulton than any other firm, with the exception of two men.

He started in the jewelry business 21 years ago, when Fulton was a mere village. The house now used as a negro tenement, still stands, a reminder of the past. Mr. DeMyer remained there 5 years. This was before the Meadows block was built and its present site was then occupied by negro tenements. For five years he was engaged in the jewelry business with Mr. R. N. Phipps under the Vendome Opera House. The past 11 years he has been in business by himself on Lake street.

He carries one of the most complete stocks of up-to-date jewelry of any house in Western Kentucky and enjoys an extensive trade, the public knowing from long years of business dealing that he is perfectly reliable, both in quality of articles and in prices. His stock embraces everything in the jewelry line, Silverware, solid and plated, fine decorated

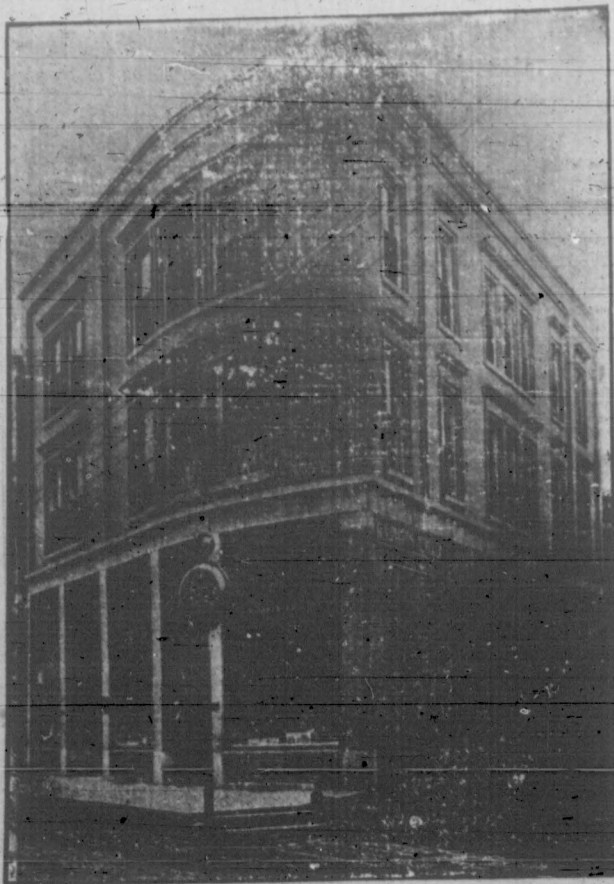

China, elegant cut glass and everything that is late and up-to-date in the jewelry line can be found at DeMyer's.

Optical Department.

He has one of the finest and most complete optical departments in the State under the management of Dr. J. J. House, a skilled optician a graduate, and who has devoted many years to that special work. He has all kinds of machinery for testing and fitting and grinding glasses and people come from all the surrounding section to be fitted by Dr. House. For this reason the firm enjoys a large patronage in this line of their business.

The firm of DeMyer stands for reliability and everything purchased there will be found just as represented.

FULTON'S FAMOUS FLAT IRON BUILDING

Mr. R. N. Phipps, Leading Jeweler, Proprietor and His Successful Business Career.

One of the sights and also one of the most famous and best known business houses in Fulton, as well as the handsomest and most complete is the Flat Iron building, which stands three stories high as shown in the above cut, at the corner of Church, Main and the Illinois Central railroad in the most commanding business site in the city. This splendid structure was erected by Mr. R. N. Phipps, the well known leading jeweler in 1907. He occupies the first floor with his handsome jewelry store.

Mr. Phipps began business in Fulton about 17 years ago, and has made a success of the business. For many years he conducted his business under the Vendome Opera House, Main street and by straightforward dealing and close attention to business made a success and it steadily grew. In 1907 he erected the Flat Iron building and moved into it. He carries one of the largest and most beautiful and up-to-date stocks of jewelry in Western Kentucky, being complete in every line.

He has an optical department and carries a full line. Eyes tested and fitted at most reasonable prices and satisfaction guaranteed.

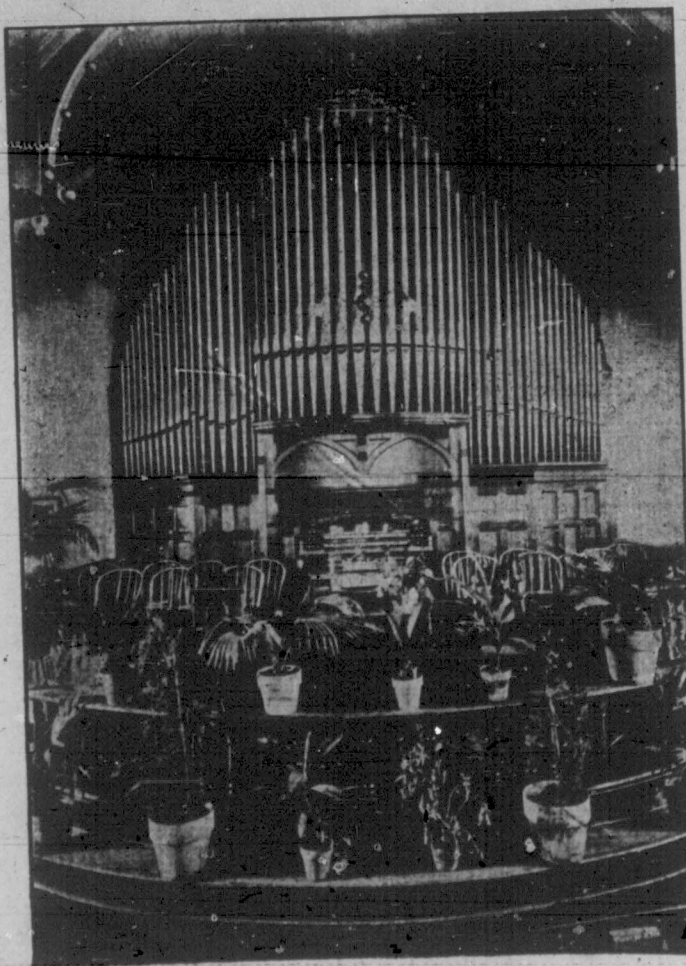

A special department also for Kodaks and Edison phonographs with latest records. Be sure to visit this department when you are in the store.

A master of his business himself he is most ably assisted by Mrs. Phipps, formerly Miss Irene Cason, of Jackson, to whom much of the splendid success of the business is due. Mr. Phipps employs the best and most expert workmen in the watchmaking and clock repairing lines.

Mr. Phipps is watch inspector for the I. C. R. R. from Fulton to Dyersburg and from Fulton to Jackson and inspects and keeps in exact time hundreds of time pieces of employees of the I. C.

When you need anything in the jewelry line, remember that Phipps has it, or he can get it for you and at most reasonable prices.

No visitor has fully seen Fulton who has not visited the Flat Iron building and jewelry store.

BEAUTIFUL PIPE ORGAN AT THE FIRST METHODIST CHURCH, FULTON, KENTUCKY.

Fulton Fair Association

Location Of Fair Here Marks An Epoch In The City's Permanent Attractions.

In the matter of the establishment of permanent attractions in Fulton, the year 1911 will go down in history as the real beginning of the Fulton County Fair. The organization is yet in its infancy, but it is a pretty healthy infant and has a brilliant future before it. Letters of incorporation have been filed and the capital stock is $10,000. The officers are as follows: Dr. J. M. Alexander, pres.; Hayden Freeman, secretary; C. E. Rice, treasurer.

Directors—Tom Franklin, Arch Huddleston, Oswald Croft, Jack Hall, Guy Howard, Bruce Henderson and Charlie Brann.

Magnificent Fair Site.

The Fair Association has selected 44 acres of ground in the northern section of the city, which is unusually well adapted to fair purposes with railroad accommodations, therefore exhibits, etc., can be unloaded at the fair grounds without extra expense of carriage.

The fair site also has the unusual advantage of being near the passenger depot and the business part of the city.

There is not a prettier plot of ground in this section of country, partly surrounded by beautiful forest trees and just rolling enough to drain well. For many years the late Emmet Reeds, a great fancier and breeder of fine stock, used this plot of ground for training purposes and had constructed a splendid half mile track, but for the past year or two the ground has been in cultivation.

The promoters of the fair are making preparations to build a fine race course and construct all the necessary buildings, including grandstand, live stock pavilion, stables for horses and cattle, pens for swine, sheds for sheep and poultry, and numerous other smaller structures. The plans of the management is to construct the stables for the horses, cattle, sheep and swine in such a manner as to give easy access to the live stock pavilion and railroad. In fact, it is proposed to connect the several stables with the main showing by means of covered arches so in case of bad weather exhibitors will not be exposed. No time will be lost in beautifying the grounds and the work will be turned over to an expert landscape gardener so every thing will be in readiness for Fulton's first fair in the fall of this year.

We understand that the track is to be made a full half mile and will be an unusually fast one in consequence of the nature of the soil and the topography of the ground.

Nothing will be left undone to make the Fulton County Fair a grand success. A large and attractive premium list will be given and increased from year to year as the growth of the exhibits require. The Fulton County Fair must rank with the best fairs in this section of the country; especially in point of exhibits. And the attendance will be the largest, due to the fact that Fulton is centrally located and known throughout this broad domain as not doing things by halves.

The success of a fair is not measured in dollars and cents, so much as it is in the effect it has on the various industries and interests represented by the exhibits. Much interest is being manifested already by some who want to be in on the first list of exhibitors. Yes, as soon as a fair was whispered for Fulton the effect was noticeable.

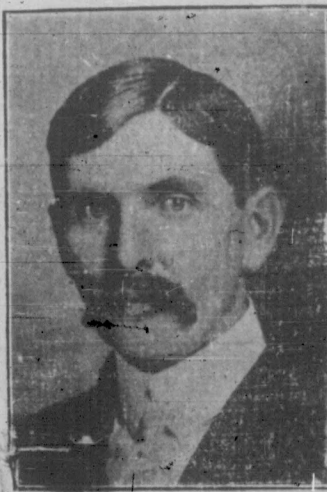

The fair dates will be arranged in accordance with the fairs held in neighboring towns.

There will be several distinctive features of the Fulton County Fair. Including running and trotting races.

The present management of the fair is considered to comprise as capable men in this line as can be found, and their efforts for the success of the fair are expected to be crowned with the success they merit.

The capital stock is $50,000. The deposits are about $110,000. The bank has paid in cash dividends to its stockholders $148,500, nearly three times its capital. Besides this there is a handsome surplus and the stock of this bank can hardly be had at any price.

that the city has ever had. It was in keeping with his record never to do things by halves, but do them right.

Hon. H. T. Smith, the vice president is one of the most successful lawyers in Kentucky. It is said of him that he never prosecutes, but his strong forte is to defend his fellow man, to uplift rather than pull down. A good criminal lawyer, has the foundation for success in the financial world.

Mr. Harry Ekdahl, the popular cashier, came from Union City, here several years ago and worked himself up to the present enviable position in the bank and in the financial world. He proved his fitness and won his way by pure merit and has the entire confidence of the directors, officers and stockholders as well as business interests of the city.

The First National wants your business and will appreciate your account whether large or small.

The importance of Fulton as the leading city of the county, was shown in 1904 when a branch of the Fulton County Circuit Court was established here. The court room is on the second floor of the City Hall building. Regular terms of court in course are held here. Just as they are at the county site.

One of the old and established enterprises of Fulton is the Webb Foundry and Machine Shops, Walnut street and Railroad crossing, established in 1884. The original name of the firm was N. C. Webb & Sons, the father and brother of Mr. C. E. Webb, the present proprietor, who has been the sole owner since 1901.

When the foundry was started in 1884, it occupied a frame building, formerly used as a livery stable.

The business has steadily grown until the plant now a two story brick with additions covers over 12,000 square feet, a large garage being in course of construction now.

This is one of the best equipped foundries and machine shops in Western Kentucky, being prepared to handle all kinds of work from repairing a thumb bolt to building a boiler.

The machinery is up-to-date in the different departments. The company uses an air compressor for riveting work on boilers and other high class machinery.

They handle architectural iron work, iron house fronts, eye beams, and ornamental iron work. They carry all kinds of steam fixtures.

The company have an up-to-date auto garage and do the repair work for the Fulton Auto Co.

C. E. Webb was born and reared at Paducah, coming to Fulton in 1884.

He is well posted in his line and employs skilled workmen.

When you need anything in the machine or foundry line or auto work be sure to go to the C. E. Webb Foundry and Machine Shops.

W. P. ALLBRITTEN

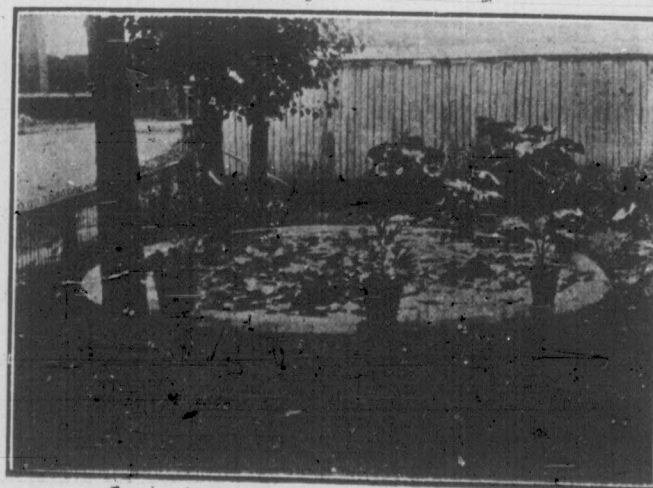

Clerk Evergreen Camp N. 4 W. O. W.

The above is a likeness of Mr. W. P. Allbritten, clerk of Evergreen Camp No. 4, Woodmen of the World. This Fulton organization is the largest camp in the State of Kentucky, having a membership of over 500 Woodmen. Mr. Allbritten served four years in succession as Consul Commander of his camp, the highest presiding officer of the camp. He was then elected clerk of the camp, has been re-elected and is now serving his fifth term as clerk.

The success and destiny of a camp of Woodmen of the World is in the hands of the clerk.

Mr. Allbritten is constantly looking after the interests of his members and sees that very few delinquents occur. He is a thorough order man, wide awake and constantly on the alert for new members. There is not a more popular citizen than Mr. Allbritten.

No better evidence of the substantial growth and real prosperity of Fulton is found than in the fact that there is not a vacant residence in West Fulton and only one, probably two, in East Fulton, while new houses are constantly being built and a great many families are boarding and rooming.

THE LUXURY OF YESTERDAY
AND THE NECESSITY OF TODAY.

There are but few telephone users today who ever stop to think and make comparison of what the conditions were before the telephone was invented and what they are today. It may seem astonishing, yet it is perfectly true, that in the olden days it usually required a journey over rough roads and through mountainous places of about six weeks to deliver any message at all, and then later on it required from three to four days to deliver a message over the railway service; and now, at the present time, it is only a matter of a very few minutes. Just compare the time between five weeks and two minutes, and see the great and astounding saving it is to the business man today. For instance, it was necessary for you to employ messenger service, each messenger costing you from $3 to $5 per week; then note what you are at present paying for this very service, much better equipped, through the use of the telephone. It is worth while to stop and think for a few moments of the great advantages the business men of today have over those of yesterday, and see what luxuries we are enjoying through the necessities. We have the railroads, steamboats and steamships, the telegraph and telephone, and yet, despite all these blessings, there are a few of us prone to kick at not having something better still. Occasionally a business man will seem inclined to criticize one of these public-utility corporations because he cannot get what he wants immediately. The railroads possibly cannot give him a sufficient number of cars; the steamboats cannot accommodate his freight on a certain date; the telegram that he wants a reply to immediately may be delayed for unknown causes; his telephone may be in use by outside parties. Then it comes down to a question of whether or not the modern business community is fully supplied or equipped with ample telephone service. The telephone is recognized as one of the greatest labor-saving devices that is being used to advantage by business houses, as well as enjoyed as a luxury in residences.

To bring this article to bear on the local situation, the people of Fulton, Ky., are served by the Cumberland Telephone & Telegraph Company's superb system of local and long distance lines. They have as many as 575 subscribers and this list is rapidly increasing, in fact so fast that it will soon necessitate additional switchboard capacity in order to accommodate orders at present on hand, not taking into consideration the anticipated business.

The McConnell Telephone Company is connected with the Fulton exchange and service is given to and from Fulton free of charge; also free service given subscribers to Hickman, Ky. Taking everything into consideration, the Cumberland company is to be commended for its prompt service and courteous treatment of all its patrons, and nothing but favorable criticism can be heard on every side of its service, both local and long distance. The people are served here by a competent corps of operators and a manager who is thoroughly informed as to his business, catering to the public's wants in the telephone line, who makes it his special aim to please the customer. It might not be out of place to mention the names of the operators, which are here given, together with the manager and his assistants.

In conclusion, it is a well established fact that this company strives to please all of its customers and patrons in its vast territory, which covers the southern portion of Indiana and Illinois, and the entire states of Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi and Louisiana, and it has the reputation of conducting its business on the most modern, up-to-date plan, and as far as the citizens of Fulton, Kentucky, are concerned, it is the company's aim to please them in every respect possible.

Not only the citizens of the city are offered the advantages of an efficient service day and night and every day in the year, but the farmers are offered this same service at very reasonable terms and many are taking advantage of the opportunity of putting themselves in closer touch with their neighbors, their dealers in town, the physicians—and in fact everyone of prominence.

The Fields-Hamlett Tobacco Company's Prizing House

BUSY DAY—WAGONS WAITING FOR THEIR TURN TO UNLOAD.

THE FIELDS HAMLETT TOBACCO COMPANY.

One of the solid business enterprises of Fulton is the Fields Hamlett Tobacco Co., whose big warehouse is situated at the corner of Carr and Second streets. The company was incorporated in 1905 and had been previously conducted by Fields Bros. The present proprietors of the company are Messrs. W. T. Hamlett and U. S. Thacker. Mr. Hamlett, the senior member has been connected with the company for the past 8 years and has been all his life in the tobacco line and knows everything in connection with the business, its growth, its value and its sale. Mr. Thacker though not so long in the business is thoroughly posted in the details.

This company buys entirely for the Italian Government and all the tobacco bought is exported. This firm started the export business here when the total annual receipts at Fulton were only six or seven hundred hogsheads, now the receipts are above six thousand hogsheads. This firm made a market and a price that meant money to the grower and thus has made a big market here. They handle all the grades sold here but particularly the heavy dark grades. They pay always the full market price for the tobacco and that fact has made a splendid market for tobacco at Fulton. During the tobacco season, as will be seen from the street scene above, their tobacco barn is one of the busiest points about the city.

The tobacco is taken from the wagons, piled in great squares, by grades. Afterward all the better grades are taken and packed into big hogsheads, holding 1,500 or more pounds, for shipment to New York for direct export.

The short leaves and lower grades are steamed and stimed before being packed for shipment. They are used for fillers while the long large leaves make the cigar wrappers. This handling, steaming and packing gives employment to about 75 people and the pay roll of the company is from $600 to $700 per week. The tobacco season lasts about 8 months in the year. It will thus be seen what such a concern is worth to Fulton and also to the tobacco growers of the immediate section.

They have the entire confidence of the growers of the surrounding country.

J. T. STUBBLEFIELD LEADING GROCER.

One of the most popular places of business in Fulton is the grocery store of J. T. Stubblefield, about midway of the business section of Lake street and a leading grocery of the city.

Mr. Stubblefield has been engaged in the retail grocery business for more than 20 years. One year of this time he was in the wholesale business which was a success, the company selling to another firm.

Mr. Stubblefield has lived in Fulton, except a short time, for 38 years and was a citizen when it was incorporated. He served as councilman and has been identified with all the progressive steps taken by the city. He was in the revenue service under Cleveland's first administration and was sheriff of Fulton county four years from 1898 to 1902. He was formerly in the grocery business in the Paschall block on the hill. He knows the grocery business thoroughly and he keeps just what the people want and his prices are reasonable. You will find that his groceries are dependable.

Mr. Brown Moss is the popular head salesman and LaCade West and John Morris are the city solicitors.

You will get the best at reasonable prices at Stubblefield's. Call or phone No. 8 your orders will receive prompt and courteous attention.

ESQUIRE R. T. MILNER

One of the Marrying Esquires of Fulton Who is Becoming Famous.

The above is a handsome likeness of Esq. R. T. Milner of South Fulton, who is becoming famous as a marrying Esquire.

Esquire Milner is 78 years old, but he is still handsome and spry as most men of 60 years. His beloved wife is 77 years of age. Their happy married life is an example and should be an inspiration for good to those whom the Esquire is called upon to marry. Esquire Milner has been a citizen of South Fulton for about 16 years. During that time he was in the grocery business some years. He was mayor of South Fulton 8 years, until that town gave up its charter. In 1909, about 22 months ago, he was elected a magistrate of Obion county. During that time he has performed 52 marriages and as he becomes better known in that line he is more frequently called upon to perform the ceremony that makes "two hearts beat as one."

The marriage licenses are furnished him in blank by the county court clerk. His residence is quite convenient to the heart of the city and couples coming by train can repair to his home in a few minutes and the licenses prepared and ceremony concluded in about ten minutes.

After all, the marriage by an officer of the law is the highest legal evidence in the courts of the land for posterity.

MR. F. A. COLE

The Leading Photographer in Western Kentucky.

The views for nearly all the splendid cuts in this special edition were taken by Mr. F. A. Cole, Fulton's leading photographer, and the best in Western Kentucky. He is an artist in his line and the work he does is a credit to any studio.

Mr. Cole lived in St. Louis for about 14 years and took up photography while there. He had three years' experience in that city and was connected with some of the best studios in the country. He thus became well equipped to do the best in his line.

He came to Fulton 11 years ago and opened a studio upstairs on Walnut street, and has been there ever since. He has a well arranged studio and all the equipment for work.

SECOND STREET LOOKING EAST.

FOURTH STREET LOOKING EAST.

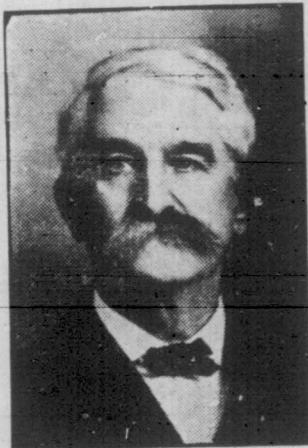

SOUTH FULTON, OUR LIVE SISTER CITY.

South Fulton is a hustling and enterprising little city of about 1,500 in population. It is situated on the Tennessee and Kentucky State Line, immediately south of Fulton, Ky., in the fertile and far famed county of Obion, and the great and grand old volunteer State of Tennessee, and upon the banks of the noted and famous Harris Fork. The waters of this stream are not sufficient for the navigation of large boats and steamers at all seasons of the year, yet it affords drainage for our city and serves the interest of the town in many other respects. There has been a project on foot by the West Tennessee Drainage Company to straighten this stream from Fulton to the Obion river, which will result in immense benefit to Fulton and surrounding country.

South Fulton is also located on the great Illinois Central railroad tracks, both of its main trunk lines passing through our borders. Its freight depot is located in South Fulton, and it is here where an immense freight business is handled amounting to from $75,000 to $100,000 revenue to the railroad company each month in the year, and giving employment to a number of people at fine salaries.

Large wood working establishments are maintained and much tobacco is handled in South Fulton. The old reliable wholesale and retail furniture store of Joe Wade & Co., is located in South Fulton, where they have enjoyed a very successful and prosperous business for many years. This firm commands a splendid and very successful business all over West Tennessee and Kentucky.

They have many thousands of dollars invested in their business, and employ several men who are constantly kept busy handling their immense volume of trade. The business of this firm is an honor to any city.

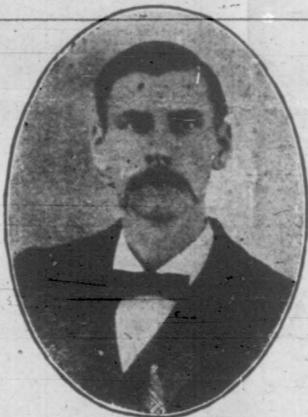

D. R. BONDURANT, the hustling and pleasant groceryman, has recently made some splendid improvements upon his property on the corner of Sams and State Line streets, and is enjoying a fine trade which he richly deserves. Mr. Bondurant is the oldest groceryman now doing business in South Fulton, and he keeps constantly on hand a large, nice and clean stock of staple and fancy groceries. For honest and fair dealing and for better goods at less money, D. R. Bondurant cannot be excelled. You can always rely upon his representation of goods and a square deal in every business transaction. He will always treat you just and right.

Other Industries.

Space will not admit of a full and complete notice of all the many and various mercantile establishments of South Fulton, they are all fine business gentlemen and are conducting splendid and successful stores and are having a fine patronage.

Among the leading business men and prominent real estate owners of South Fulton may be mentioned the names of W. W. Morris, W. D. Morgan, J. S. Murphy, P. D. Chambers, J. V. Kirkland, W. P. Lockridge, W. T. Pillow, J. R. Wilson, J. T. Futrell, R. T. Milner, W. P. Albritten, W. L. Nicholas, J. P. Swann, and a host of others. Most of our citizens are of the best and purest type. They are people of the highest moral and spiritual culture, intelligence and refinement. As a rule they are members of and workers in the various churches and societies in our city. More kind and clever neighbors and friends could hardly be found in any other town in this country. Kindness, hospitality and generosity is constantly exhibited and manifested among our citizens. A bad or lawless character may turn up once in a while but he is soon apprehended, brought into court and punished severely for his misdeeds or evil conduct. His days are but few and full of trouble, and his nefarious business is generally of short duration and sorrowful termination. South Fulton can truly boast of having as few of the lawless class of citizens at present as any town of its size. We have now no dives, debauchery or gambling dens, to mar the peace and morals of our citizens. Such places have long since become a thing of the past in this city. About all the worst element, the ruff gang has sought out and departed for more congenial climes. We have good laws and officers to enforce them. J. P. Swann is at present mayor of South Fulton. T. C. Hasting is City Marshal.

J. T. FUTRELL.

The above is the likeness of J. T. Futrell, the noted and famous marrying Esquire, who is a resident of and has his office in South Fulton, where he has already united over one thousand couples in the holy bonds of matrimony and is still being sought by people far and wide to unite them for life. He has performed the ceremony for couples from almost every state in the Union. His name has become almost a byword in the mouths of young people for hundreds of miles around. They come to him to tie the wedding knot for them, on the trains, in buggies, in autos, in wagons, on horseback, on foot and every way from all parts of the country and at all hours of the day and night, and at all seasons of the year. He is also a Notary Public as well as Justice of the Peace and has a fine business in that line. He has always stood for the full enforcement of law and order; and believes in good government for the city, county, state and nation. But as before stated, our citizens in the main are a church working and law abiding people, and it is seldom necessary to invoke the strong arm of the law to maintain peace and order. We have excellent church and school facilities.

Maggie Nix are the assistant teachers. They are each well and eminently qualified for their respective positions, and are doing a most ex-

SOUTH FULTON COLLEGE.

South Fulton College ranks among the leading educational institutions of all this section. For the past two or three years the number of pupils from abroad has greatly increased, and it is rapidly establishing a reputation as a safe and desirable place to educate the children, both morally and intellectually. People are coming to realize that it is better to send their children to institutions like this where they get personal instruction, rather than the big institutions in cities where much of the work is machine work and factory.

All the different branches of study taught in any of the first class colleges, including business, stenography, typewriting, etc., are taught successfully and scientifically here. The college building is a brick structure, very large, commodious and conveniently arranged and is heated with steam. The building is situated upon an elevated and beautiful location. Pessimists and kickers are being rapidly relegated to the rear. They will soon be obsolete. The many advantages, inducements and resources of South Fulton affords a golden opportunity for investment and for those who are seeking a delightful and desirable home, where they can locate and live among good people, in a happy and healthful town, with good schools, good churches, low taxes, low rate of insurance, where law and order prevails, and a thousand other privileges and blessings can be bountifully enjoyed and appreciated. The citizens feel proud of the fact that they live here, and extend a cordial welcome and invitation to others to come and invest their means, live here and be happy.

These headlines contain statements which, if true mean EVERYTHING to the buyer who wants the most a given amount will buy.

If this advertisement will cause you to act—induce you to make an investigation of the claims we make for OVERLAND Cars and compare them with others, it will have accomplished its mission.

Make your comparisons thoroughly, part by part. The more thorough your investigation, the stronger your conviction that the OVERLAND is the car to buy.

Your comparison will prove, first that you get in the OVERLAND, the largest, handsomest, most luxuriously finished car, that you get a power plant not equalled for efficiency, reliability, quietness and flexibility in any car selling at less than $2,500. Compare the motor in Model 52 OVERLAND with the best car you know selling at $1,700, $2,000 or $2,500.

Compare the springs and riding qualities, the speed, the hill climbing ability, the wheelbase, the frame, transmission, brakes, rear wheels and axle; steering gear. Compare the finish, upholstery, the body design and workmanship. You'll find that OVERLAND fore door models are designed and built as fore door models, not old bodies patched up to meet the prevailing style with shifting lever and emergency brake outside and out of reach. See the detail cut to the left, showing OVERLAND center control, the approved practice in all up-to-the-minute, high class cars.

Consider, and bear this point in mind ALWAYS, that the OVERLAND is a MANUFACTURED car, every part and every piece made by us, after our own designs, by our own men, in our own plants.

You'll find, too, that the OVERLAND is a thoroughly standardized car. Each operation on every part is made by an expert workman on that particular thing, by special machinery in a special "jig," from the best material.

Each cylinder, gear, shaft, bearing, axle, frame, transmission, body, etc., etc., is EXACTLY like the other in the same OVERLAND chassis. No fitting or filing is necessary or permitted in the final assembly.

On parts like cylinder pistons, cam shafts, etc., we work as close as one one-thousandth part of an inch. One one-thousandth part of an inch limit of tolerance is common practice in OVERLAND construction.

Unlimited facilities, enormous production of exact standardized duplicates, an ideal organization built up, controlled and directed by one man—John N. Willys—enables us to make the minimum price on the maximum of motor car efficiency.

We could make them more extravagantly, but we cannot make them better.

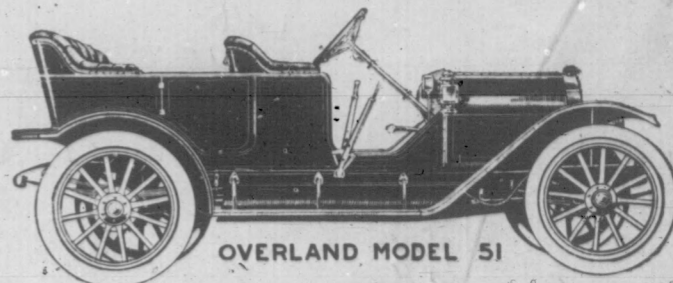

The production of OVERLAND cars for 1911 will be 20,000. We make ONLY five chassis—22 body styles, with or without fore doors. No extra charge for fore doors.

We have prepared a sheet of comparative data, tabulating specifications of OVERLAND Cars with America's best in their class.

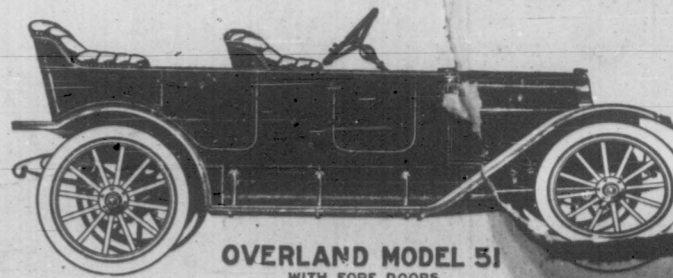

Write for this sheet and our catalogue.

There are 22 models of OVERLAND for 1911. The perfection of the automobile craft is found in these cars, and the accompanying illustrations are just a suggestion of their beauty. Yes, OVERLAND cars are as nearly perfect as brain and money can make them. Look them over. Note the stability of construction, the quality of the finish, the graceful lines, their flexibility and utility. They fairly bristle with good points, from radiator to differential, and besides which visible points of superiority (of which we could mention a score or more) you'll find a real surprise beneath the hood, and so on throughout the car.

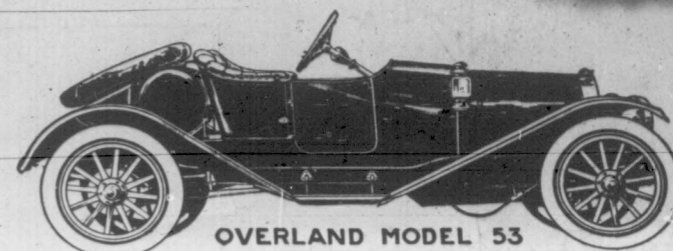

Look at the suspension of the motor—supported on three points. The big valves and the adjustable valve stems. The five big liberal bearings of the crank shaft which insures long service. Note the offset crank shaft which gives maximum turning power and avoiding the dead center at the time of firing. The spiral art motor gears which make for noiseless running. The low hung carburetor insuring at all times sufficient gravity for the gasoline, especially on the hills. Look at the system of ignition—the very highest type. The suspension of the radiator carried on swivel bearings, obviating all danger of leaks or straining. Observe the method of control—simple safe and certain. The brake equipment is wonderfully efficient, capable if necessary, of locking the rear wheels instantly. The long large springs insuring solid comfort. The transmission assembly is splendidly worked out—A solid, satisfactory piece of work and quite in harmony with the balance of the car. The body is a masterpiece—every little detail carried to the point of absolute perfection. Yes, OVERLANDS are good cars.

THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF FULTON.

The Oldest Banking Institution In the City.
Solid Basis and Leading Business Men
Officers and Directors.

The First National Bank is the oldest banking institution of Fulton and one of the most solid financial institutions of West Kentucky.

It was founded here May 16, 1891 and next month will be 20 years old. It was moved from Mayfield here.

The capital stock is $50,000. The deposits are about $110,000. The bank has paid in cash dividends to its stockholders $148,500, nearly three times its capital. Besides this there is a handsome surplus and the stock of this bank can hardly be had at any price.

The First National has been at its present favorable location, on Lake street, in the center of the business

The directors are: R. M. Chowning, H. T. Smith, R. H. Wade, Jno. T. Stubblefield, and Guy Howard. The officers are: R. M. Chowning, president; H. T. Smith, vice president and Harry Ekdahl, cashier.

R. M. Chowning was one of the moving spirits which caused the transfer of the bank from Mayfield and the establishment of the First National here. He was cashier from the beginning and in that responsible position successfully steered the bank to its present enviable position in the business world. Three years ago he was called to take the executive head of the bank and has been its president since that time.

district for the past 17 years, having bought it from the Farmer's Tobacco Bank, which went into liquidation in 1894.

The First National is rated as one of the best and safest banks in Kentucky.

Its officers and directors number among the wealthiest citizens and leading business men of Fulton.

He is one of the most successful business men and financiers in this section, being largely interested in several of the most important and successful business enterprises of Fulton.

He was mayor of the city and under his administration the streets were graded and concrete walks laid, the greatest internal improvements that the city has ever had. It was in keeping with his record never to do things by halves, but do them right.

Hon. H. T. Smith, the vice president is one of the most successful lawyers in Kentucky. It is said of him that he never prosecutes, but his strong forte is to defend his fellow man, to uplift rather than pull down. A good criminal lawyer, has the foundation for success in the financial world.

Mr. Harry Ekdahl, the popular cashier, came from Union City, here several years ago and worked himself up to the present enviable position in the bank and in the financial world. He proved his fitness and won his way by pure merit and has the entire confidence of the directors, officers and stockholders as well as business interests of the city.

The First National wants your business and will appreciate your account whether large or small.

The importance of Fulton as the leading city of the county, was shown in 1904 when a branch of the Fulton County Circuit Court was established here. The court room is on the second floor of the City Hall building. Regular terms of court in course are held here. Just as they are at the county site.

The above is a likeness of Mr. W. P. Allbritten, clerk of Evergreen Camp No. 4, Woodmen of the World. Th's Fulton organization is the largest camp in the State of Kentucky, having a membership of over 500 Woodmen. Mr. Allbritten served four years in succession as Consul Commander of his camp, the highest presiding officer of the camp. He was then elected clerk of the camp, has been re-elected and is now serving his fifth term as clerk.

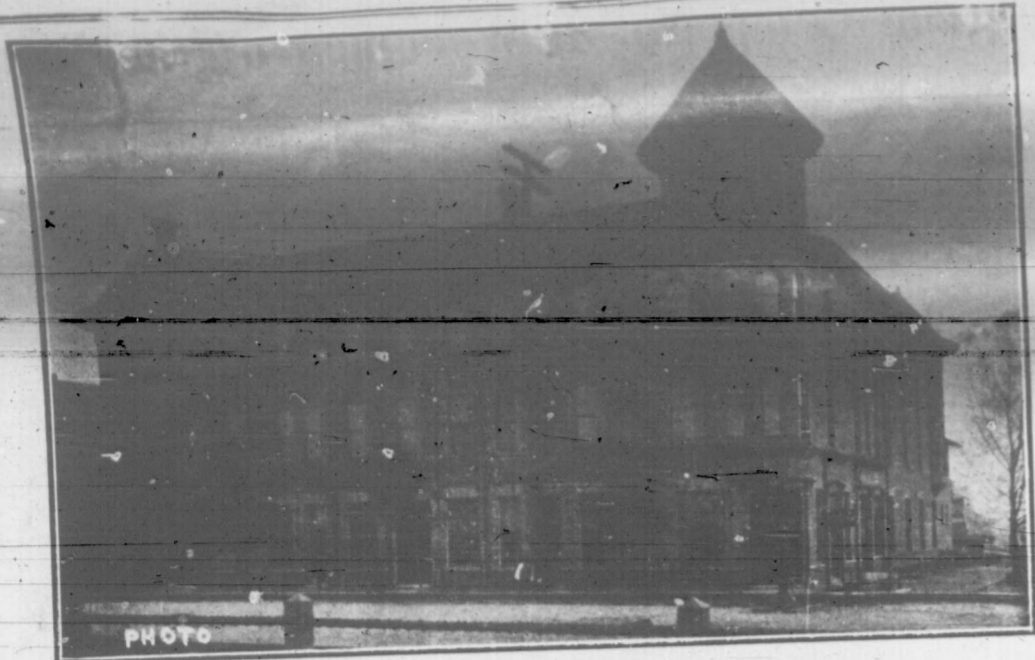

The success and destiny of a camp of Woodmen of the World is in the hands of the clerk.

Mr. Allbritten is constantly looking after the interests of his members and sees that very few delinquents occur. He is a thorough order man, wide awake and constantly on the alert for new members. There is not a more popular citizen than Mr. Allbritten.

No better evidence of the substantial growth and real prosperity of Fulton is found than in the fact that there is not a vacant residence in West Fulton and only one, probably two, in East Fulton, while new houses are constantly being built and a great many families are boarding and rooming.

PALACE BARBER SHOP

Fulton's Leading Tonsorial Establishment Is a Credit To the City. Up-to-date in Every Respect.

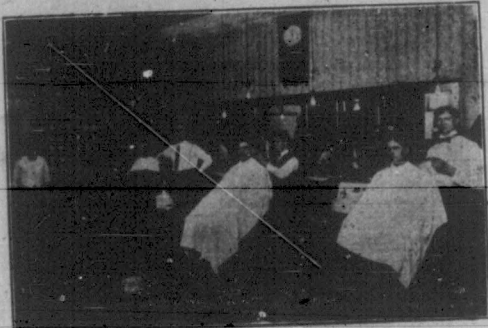

No city of Fulton's class in the country has a better appointed tonsorial establishment than "The Palace" on Lake street of which Mr. J. E. Hannephin is proprietor. It is a credit to the city.

in at The Palace since March 8th, 1908, and has made a host of friends in the three years he has been there and is considered one of the best artists in his line any where.

Mr. Clyde Copeland has been with The Palace since August 1910 and front door back to the clean, well kept and sanitary bath rooms. It is a luxury to have your tonsorial work done at The Palace. Mr. Hannephin has been in the business 8 years in Fulton and he is well and favorably known not only in Fulton and surrounding country, but to most of the visitors to this city. He keeps everything in a clean and sanitary condition, has the best in all departments for the public and keeps only the best workmen. Any lady bringing or sending children is guaranteed the best of attention and will find an inviting orderly place. Any visitor or stranger will find a welcome at The Palace and the best attention.

There are six chairs at The Palace. The following are a few of the up-to-date features of service to be had at this shop, not usually to be had outside large cities:

- Olive Oil Shampoo.
- Crude Oil Shampoo.
- Fitch Shampoo.
- Ed Pinaud's Hair Tonic.
- Ed Pinaud's Face Lotions.
- Electric Face Massage.
- Electric Head Massage.

Besides these the services of the best talent in all styles of hair cutting and shaving can be had at all times.

Mr. A. H. Kindred has been work-has served the Fulton trade about 4 years. He is also popular and a splendid workman.

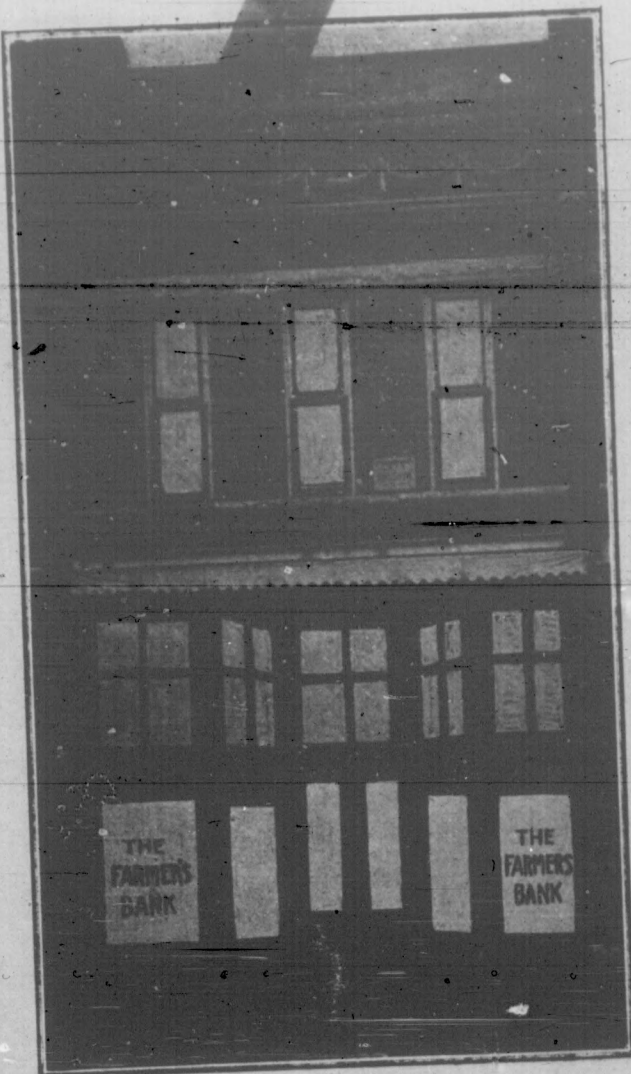

The small boy, (weight about 225) on the 1st chair on the left, with the smile that won't come off has made lots of friends since he has been with The Palace and they are always glad to find his chair empty when they come around for their work. Mr. Short is always there with the goods.

Another pleasant feature of The Palace which is appreciated by the public is the porter service, and Zealous and Rastus are on the job and ready to serve you when you need anything in their line.

Main Street Shop.

The Main Street Shop, which is also owned by Mr. Hannephin is managed by Mr. H. C. Craig and like "The Palace" is neat, well kept and the best workmanship, and courteous treatment to all customers. The cut above shows this tidy inviting place.

Mr. Craig has worked in Fulton 5 years and is well and favorably known to the public and is an adept tonsorial workman. He is assisted by Mr. Lewis Newton, who also has many friends. He says if they are fortunate enough to get in his chair he will do the rest in a manner that will thoroughly please them.

The Farmers Bank of Fulton

One of the solid financial institutions of Fulton, is the Farmers Bank organized in April 1905 with a capital of $35,000. It has grown steadily and today has deposits aggregating about $100,000 and a surplus of $7,500.

On April 1st the capital is to be increased to $50,000 and the surplus to $10,000. It has been a paying investment from the start to the stockholders. The bank was first established on the East side of Church street in the building now occupied by the McDowell Ladies' store and later moved to its present location on the west side of the street opposite the postoffice.

It has a splendid corps of officers and directors, numbering some of the best business men and most successful farmers in the county. They are: Prof. J. C. Cheek, president; W. H. Powers, vice president; E. H. Ligon, vice president; J. V. Hefley, Cashier; J. D. Davis, assistant cashier.

Directors: W. H. Powers, W. D. Morgan, J. C. Cheek, Charles Brann, J. W. Jolly, B. B. Jonakin, J. A. Ferrell, Jno. R. McGehee, E. H. Ligon, J. V. Hefley.

The bank is not only popular in business circles, but is strong in the county and with the agriculturists of all the surrounding section.

PROF. J. C. CHEEK.

Superintendent of Fulton Schools and President of Farmers Bank.

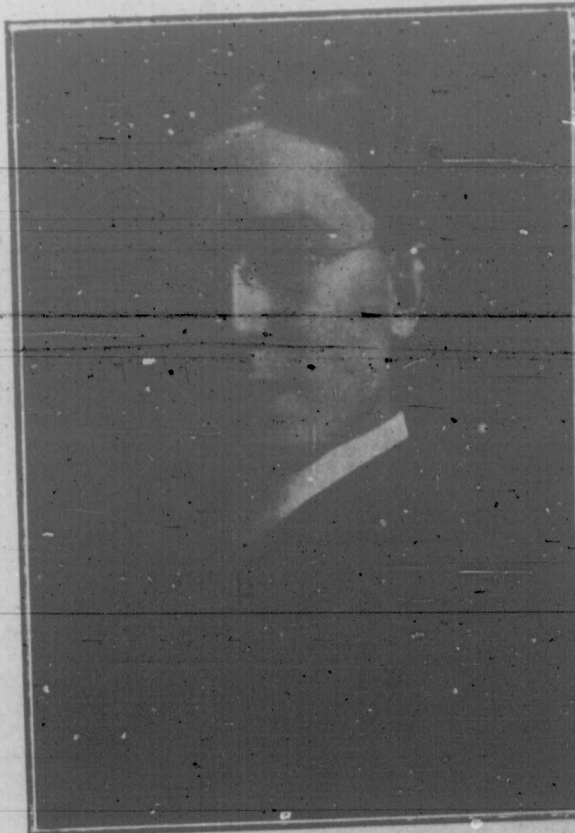

The handsome gentleman whose picture appears at the head of this article is Prof. J. C. Cheek, Superintendent of the Fulton schools, and also president of the Farmers Bank of this city. He fills that rare combination, known as a successful school man and a successful business man. He has never failed at anything in life, which he has undertaken to do.

He is one of the most successful school men in Kentucky. Has been superintendent of the Fulton schools ten years and was, prior to coming here, superintendent at Hickman, in this county, seven years. He also successfully conducted the city schools at Ripley, Humboldt, and Milan, Tennessee, and was a bank director and active in the banking business at each of these places.

Under his management the Fulton schools have taken high rank with the best public schools in the south.

He is a native of Paris, Tennessee, and has the snap and activity of a much younger man than he really is, though we are not going to tell his age just here. Prof. Cheek, at the last annual election of the Farmers Bank of Fulton was elected president of that popular and prosperous institution. The bank is taking on new life and is rapidly growing and expanding in business.

B. H. FREEMAN.

You know when a newspaper gets out a special edition showing pictures of people and houses and the like, they always have write-ups of the various fellows around town who constitute "Our Leading Citizens." Of course these write-ups are modestly prepared—that is they are modest as far as is practicable to have them modestly prepared without destroying their intent and purpose, which is nothing more nor less than a detailed account of the subject's enterprise and virtues.

As a matter of fact or as a matter of general interest, it doesn't matter a rap where or when I was born; The fact remains undisputed that I am here, and am digging every day the best I can dig to make a living. I am in the fire insurance business here and have in my agency some of the representative companies of the world. They have to pay part of nearly every loss we have here from fire, accident or theft, and they pay promptly, and justly. You have helped me put my business up to where it is, and I am grateful to you for it. If you don't believe it, give me an opportunity sometime to prove it and I will convince you. If you have any doubts about my companies, ask the fellow that had the fire—any fellow that had any fire—and he will tell you that he was shown every courtesy and assistance possible until the loss was finally settled.

After working five years in an insurance office larger than my own, and after working my own insurance business three years, I feel that I am pretty well prepared to have your policy correctly written, and this too has a great deal to do with the adjustment of losses. It has as much or more oftentimes than anything an agent can say or do after the fire comes.

These are the few things I want you to know, and that is exactly why I am writing them. About the "enterprising and progressive" part, that's all-right too, but I am advertising my fire insurance business in this article, and don't care to argue the question of enterprise or progress in these columns. I want to write as much of your fire insurance business as you are willing for me to have, and what of it I do write will be correctly written in good, old line companies, and if you should happen to have a fire, you'll get the money.

So I have finished. My picture is here because an Industrial Edition isn't worth getting out without pictures. And besides, there might be some poor, misguided cuss in the world who had never seen me, and this might enable him to locate me. And I will say this; if he does locate me, and I do write his insurance, and he does have a fire, HE WILL GET THE MONEY.

Yours very truly,
HAYDEN FREEMAN.

CONFEDERATE VETERANS REUNION IN FULTON, SEPT. 1910

JIM PIRTL CAMP NO. 990 U. C. V., FULTON ROLL OF MEMBERSHIP ALIVE AND DEAD.

Was Organized Here in May 1897. Last List Of Heroes—Wearers Of the Gray.

The most interesting picture in this special souvenir 1911 edition is that of the Confederate reunion held in Fulton last year under the auspices of Jim Pirtle Camp of this city. That gallant band of heroes who wore the gray and forever immortalized Southern valor is growing fewer in numbers, faster as the years roll on, and soon the reveille will sound for the last one of this side and all will have crossed to the other side to be with Stonewall Jackson and the others gone before and "rest under the shade of the trees."

The following is the roster of Jim Pirtle Camp No. 990 organized in Fulton in May 1897, furnished us by Esq. R. A. Browder, an honored member.

Those who are dead are so marked, as far as known, some having moved away from Fulton.

FULTON COUNTY

The Garden Spot of the "Purchase," Rich Lands, Versatile Soil, Living Streams, People Prosperous and Happy.

FULTON COUNTY COURT HOUSE.—W. H. SPRADLEY, BUILDER.

President James Monroe on January 17, 1819 ratified the treaty made by Gen. Andrew Jackson and Gov. Isaac Shelby with the Chickasaw Nation, whereby was granted to the National Government forever that portion of Kentucky now divided into the counties of Fulton, Hickman, Graves, McCracken, Marshall and Calloway, together with twenty counties in West Tennessee. This portion of Kentucky and Tennessee is now known as the "Jackson Purchase," and nearly in the geographical center of it lies calm and serene the county of Fulton, conceded to be the most fertile spot in the "Purchase."

The first settler of which there is any account was a man named Mills, who in 1819 came down the Mississippi, tied up his boat and called the place Mills' Landing. It is now known as Hickman, and is the present county seat of government. Fulton county was named in honor of the inventor, Robert Fulton. It contains 184 square miles of territory, and its organization as a county dates from April 1, 1845.

The first legal transaction of which there is record is one wherein Goodrich and others transferred to Greenbury Watson 160 acres of land, being the northwest quarter of section 18, township 1, range 5, for the consideration of $500.

In May, 1845, the site of a courthouse was selected, and it was authorized that a suitable structure be erected for which $4,000 was to be paid, but it was not until 1848 that the building was completed and ready for occupancy. In 1846 a log house was erected and used as a jail until 1860, when it was replaced by another of the same kind. This latter, from the fact of lying idle, fell down one day, and in its place now stands a substantial modern jail.

Being the garden spot of the Purchase Fulton county is in the midst of one of the finest agricultural sections of the entire south. The average elevation above the sea level is 400 to 500 feet. There are a few hills to the northwest of Fulton which reach an altitude of probably nearly a thousand feet. The surface is mostly a rolling level inclining toward the Mississippi river.

The soil is as versatile as it is rich and will grow corn, wheat, all the cereals, clover, grasses, tobacco, the dark variety, fruits, potatoes and vegetables of all kinds.

While a great deal of timber has been cut in recent years in the county much valuable hardwood timber can yet be found in the county, particularly in the bottoms.

Fulton county is a splendid stock section, on account of the freedom with which the grasses flourish here. The county is well watered by living streams. It would be hard indeed to find any county in the country that is well adapted to so many leading crops, to stock raising and all kindred lines of agriculture. The county is inhabited by a happy, prosperous, progressive people.

Modern Woodmen of America.

The Giant of the Fraternal Insurance World.

On the 5th day of January 1883, a little coterie of the foremost fraternal insurance men of the day met in the little city of Lyon, Iowa, and organized Camp No. 1, Modern Woodmen of America, with 22 members. This society was not organized for the purpose of making money, but to furnish reliable insurance to its members at absolute cost. It was to be owned and managed by its members. These principles together with its strong and attractive fraternal features, its beautiful and instructive ritualistic work, and a truly representative form of government, at once appealed to the American citizen, and its marvelous growth has been one of the wonders of the age. From the small beginning of one camp and 22 members it has grown until today it has 1,500 local camps and nearly a million and a quarter members in good standing.

The society's death rate last year was only 5.71 per 1,000 members, which speaks well for the rigid medical examination that applicants are compelled to undergo. During the year just passed $10,857,084.55 was paid to beneficiaries of deceased Modern Woodmen, and the total paid since organization reaches the enormous sum of $94,122,350.93, all of this was paid out of the benefit fund. In addition millions have been paid both by the Head Camp and local camps for the relief of members who have been overtaken by misfortune. When the news of the great San Francisco earthquake was flashed over the wires, the Modern Woodmen through their executive board at once appropriated a substantial sum of money, appointed a committee to disburse the same for the relief of unfortunate members and their families, the same policy was carried out in Kansas City. During the great flood at Galveston when that city was devastated by a tidal wave and in other instances, the Modern Woodmen has shown its great fraternal heart beats in sympathy with its membership in distress.

It is an undisputed fact that with the single exception of the Masonic Fraternity, the Modern Woodmen has more members of state and national reputation than any fraternal society in America, such men as the Hon. W. J. Bryan, Hon. Champ Clark, Ex. Lt. Governor Norcross of Illinois, and hundreds of other well known public men are enthusiastic members of this order. The present Head Consul is the Hon. A. R. Talbot, who for years was associated with Hon. W. J. Bryan in the practice of law. Mr. Talbot is today recognized as the greatest fraternalist of the age, under his wise leadership the Modern Woodmen has flourished as never before. In his great brain which literally teems with schemes for the betterment of social conditions surrounding the people at large and the Modern Woodmen in particular was born the idea of a Great Modern Woodman Sanatorium.

Realizing the fact that with its immense membership it could undertake and carry to a successful issue, plans that would seem impossible to smaller societies, the Modern Woodmen a few years ago purchased 2,000 acres of land near Colorado Springs, Col., on which they have erected a great sanatorium for the treatment of tuberculosis, or what has become popularly known as "The Great White Plague." According to the testimony of leading physicians and experts on pulmonary diseases, the climate, altitude and general conditions of that part of Colorado, make it an ideal location for the treatment of this dread disease. This great institution has been erected and is maintained by voluntary subscriptions and the small assessment of ten cents per capita levied on the membership semi-annually. Any Modern Woodman in good standing who is suffering from tuberculosis is taken in and treated free of charge. Here with ideal climate and surroundings, the best and purest of food, fresh milk from a herd of jersey cows maintained on the premises, and specially constructed canvas walled tent cottages, together with a staff of expert physicians and trained nurses, hundreds of Woodmen have been not only benefited, but absolutely cured. Many Woodmen all over the land, who have been told by their physicians that all hope was gone, are looking towards this sanatorium as the storm-tossed mariner looks on the lighthouse that will guide him into a safe harbor. In building and maintaining this splendid free sanatorium, the Modern Woodmen have shown to the world that its motto "Par Autre Vie" (For Another's Life), is no meaningless phrase, but is the prevailing sentiment of the society.

The Local Camp.

Kentucky Home Camp No. 11,351, Modern Woodmen of America was organized October 5th, 1903, with fifteen members, and the following officers were elected: Consul Dr. J. C. Yates, Adviser Frank A. Cole, Banker Van Milam, Clerk Hugh Callahan, Escort H. J. Riddell, Watchman W. A. Love, Sentry L. Mattingly, Managers O. R. Harvey, W. L. Mansfield, and George Fowler, Physician Dr. J. C. Yates. With this splendid set of officers the future of the camp was assured. Its growth has been steady and healthy it has never offered any "bargain counter" rates to secure members, but charged the same initiation fee at all at present nearly two hundred members in good standing and applications are voted on at almost every meeting.

Many of our prominent citizens are members of this order and they never fail to speak a good word for it when an opportunity offers. Since it was organized over eight years ago, the camp has lost four members by death, the beneficiaries of these deceased members join in praising the society for the promptness with which their claims against it were settled. The camp meets every Tuesday night at their hall in the Brown block and harmony and goodfellowship always prevails. On numerous occasions the members of the order have shown that they understand the art of entertaining and the banquets, smokers and other public functions given under the auspices of the camp are always well attended and greatly enjoyed. The present officers are, Consul W. H. Falwell; Past Consul, V. C. King; Adviser, S. P. Etheridge; Banker, E. M. Lucas; Clerk, F. A. Cole; Escort, J. H. Sullivan; Watchman, W. N. Stallins; Managers, Dr. R. T. Rudd, Thomas Dalton and W. T. Thompson; physician, Drs. Rudd, Cohn and Slayden. The officers and members are striving to make this the banner year in the history of the camp. The campaign for new members is on. Would you like to be a Modern Woodman? Would you like to be one of over a million "Neighbors" joined together in bonds of fraternal confidence marching shoulder to shoulder under the flag of this great fraternity? Are you a white male person between the ages of eighteen and forty five, sound in mind and body, of good moral character, not engaged either directly or indirectly in the manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquors, not working at any of the occupations classed by the society as hazardous? then you are eligible for membership; they will welcome you at their camp fire, they will try to help you in a social and fraternal way, and then when you are taken by the relentless hand of death, the amount of your benefit certificate will come like a ray of sunshine into your darkened home. Any officer or member will take in your petition, you can insure for $500, $1,000, $1,500, $2,000 or if not over 41 years of age for $3,000. The rates are the lowest, see about it at once.

P. H. WEEKS ONE OF THE OLDEST FIRMS.

Continuously in Dry Goods, and Clothing Business in City. A Splendid Business.

The oldest merchant in the dry goods business continuously in this city is Mr. P. H. Weeks, the well known and popular merchant at the corner of Lake street and Commercial avenue.

He came to Fulton 16 years ago, engaged in business and has been merchandising here ever since. He has done business in the splendid building shown above for the past 13 years, having moved into the building when it was erected. Mr. Weeks did not build up his present splendid business with a mushroom growth, but through the years that have intervened by careful business methods, by buying and selling honest goods at reasonable prices he has won and held the confidence of the public and has steadily built and held a trade that embraces a large per cent. of the best people of Fulton and all the surrounding section.

He has one of the best and most dependable stocks of dry goods, notions, clothing, shoes, hats etc., to be found in any house in Western Kentucky. He occupies the entire first floor of the big building with a large balcony running the full length of both sides and the entire rear thus virtually having two floors.

Mr. Weeks holds his customers by straight forward business dealings and by selling goods on a live and let live business. Another strong feature in the success of his business is that he employs people in his different department who know the business and always give courteous attention to the customers.

The following popular salesmen are employed in the store: Messrs. R. E. Stille, J. H. Stone, Charlie Donoho, Geo. Bruce and Mrs. Maude Stone.

Mr. Weeks is one of Fulton's foremost public spirited citizens. He is a valued member of the Board of Education, is a director of the bank of Water Valley, and interested in other enterprises.

He is chairman of the Board of Stewards of the First Methodist church and a leading member of that church.

THE LUXURY OF YESTERDAY
AND THE NECESSITY OF
TODAY.

There are but few telephone users today who ever stop to think and make comparison of what the conditions were before the telephone was invented and what they are today. It may seem astonishing, yet it is perfectly true, that in the olden days it usually required a journey over rough roads and through mountainous places of about six weeks to deliver any message at all, and then later on it required from three to four days to deliver a message over the railway service; and now, at the present time, it is only a matter of a very few minutes. Just compare the time between five weeks and two minutes, and see the great and astounding saving it is to the business man today. For instance, it was necessary for you to employ messenger service, each messenger costing you from $3 to $5 per week; then note what you are at present paying for this very service, much better equipped, through the use of the telephone. It is worth while to stop and think for a few moments of the great advantages the business men of today have over those of yesterday, and see what luxuries we are enjoying through the necessities. We have the railroads, steamboats and steamships, the telegraph and telephone, and yet, despite all these blessings, there are a few of us prone to kick at not having something better still. Occasionally a business man will seem inclined to criticize one of these public-utility corporations because he cannot get what he wants immediately. The railroads possibly cannot give him a sufficient number of cars; the steamboats cannot accommodate his freight on a certain date; the telegram that he wants a reply to immediately may be delayed for unknown causes; his telephone may be in use by outside parties. Then it comes down to a question of whether or not the modern business community is fully supplied or equipped with ample telephone service. The telephone is recognized as one of the greatest labor-saving devices that is being used to advantage by business houses, as well as enjoyed as a luxury in residences.

To bring this article to bear on the local situation, the people of Fulton, Ky., are served by the Cumberland Telephone & Telegraph Company's superb system of local and long distance lines. They have as many as 575 subscribers and this list is rapidly increasing, in fact so fast that it will soon necessitate additional switchboard capacity in order to accommodate orders at present on hand, not taking into consideration the anticipated business.

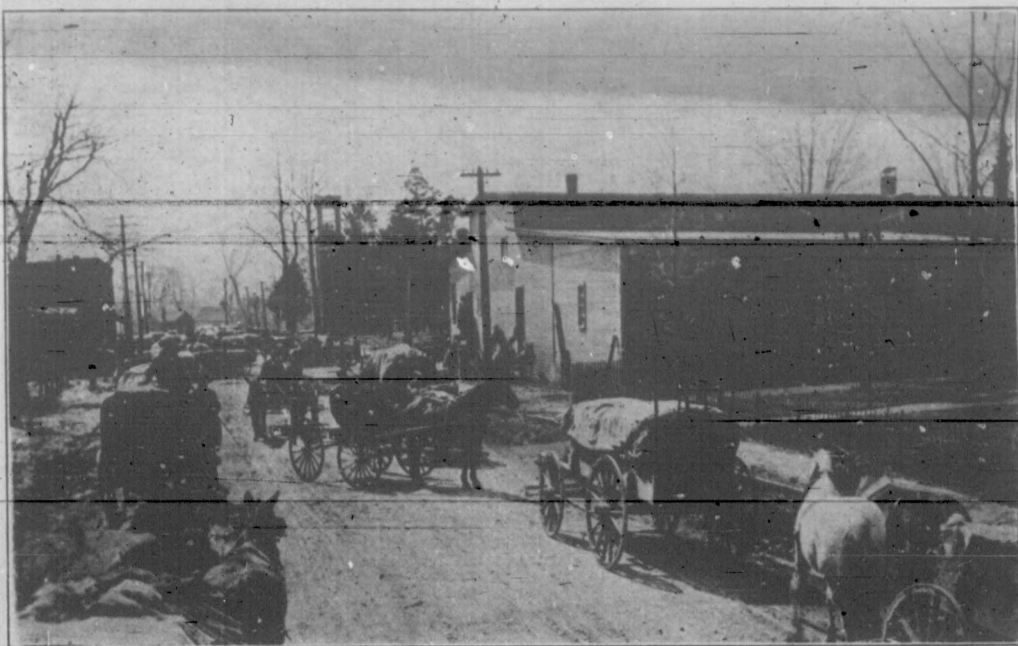

The McConnell Telephone Company is connected with the Fulton exchange and service is given to and from Fulton free of charge; also free service given subscribers to Hickman, Ky. Taking everything into consideration, the Cumberland company is to be commended for its prompt service and courteous treatment of all its patrons, and nothing but favorable criticism can be heard on every side of its service, both local and long distance. The people are served here by a competent corps of operators and a manager who is thoroughly informed as to his business, catering to the public's wants in the telephone line, who makes it his special aim to please the customer. It might not be out of place to mention the names of the operators, which are here given, together with the manager and his assistants.

In conclusion, it is a well established fact that this company strives to please all of its customers and patrons in its vast territory, which covers the southern portion of Indiana and Illinois, and the entire states of Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi and Louisiana, and it has the reputation of conducting its business on the most modern, up-to-date plan, and as far as the citizens of Fulton, Kentucky, are concerned, it is the company's aim to please them in every respect possible.

Not only the citizens of the city are offered the advantages of an efficient service day and night and every day in the year, but the farmers are offered this same service at very reasonable terms and many are taking advantage of the opportunity of putting themselves in closer touch with their neighbors, their dealers in town, the physicians—and in fact everyone of prominence.

The Fields-Hamlett Tobacco Company's Prizing House

BUSY DAY—WAGONS WAITING FOR THEIR TURN TO UNLOAD.

THE FIELDS HAMLETT TOBACCO COMPANY.

One of the solid business enterprises of Fulton is the Fields Hamlett Tobacco Co., whose big warehouse is situated at the corner of Carr and Second streets. The company was incorporated in 1905 and had been previously conducted by Fields Bros. The present proprietors of the company are Messrs. W. T. Hamlett and U. S. Thacker. Mr. Hamlett, the senior member has been connected with the company for the past 8 years and has been all his life in the tobacco line and knows everything in connection with the business, its growth, its value and its sale. Mr. Thacker though not so long in the business is thoroughly posted in the details.

This company buys entirely for the Italian Government and all the tobacco bought is exported. This firm started the export business here when the total annual receipts at Fulton were only six or seven hundred hogsheads, now the receipts are above six thousand hogsheads. This firm made a market and a price that meant money to the grower and thus has made a big market here. They handle all the grades sold here but particularly the heavy dark grades. They pay always the full market price for the tobacco and that fact has made a splendid market for tobacco at Fulton. During the tobacco season, as will be seen from the street scene above, their tobacco barn is one of the busiest points about the city.

The tobacco is taken from the wagons, piled in great squares, by grades. Afterward all the better grades are taken and packed into big hogsheads, holding 1,500 or more pounds, for shipment to New York for direct export.

The short leaves and lower grades are steamed and stirmed before being packed for shipment. They are used for fillers while the long large leaves make the cigar wrappers. This handling, steaming and packing gives employment to about 75 people and the pay roll of the company is from $600 to $700 per week. The tobacco season lasts about 8 months in the year. It will thus be seen what such a concern is worth to Fulton and also to the tobacco growers of the immediate section.

They have the entire confidence of the growers of the surrounding country.

RESIDENCE OF MR. W. T. HAMLETT, EDDINGS STREET.

Interior of J. T. Stubblefield's Grocery Store on Lake Street.

J. T. STUBBLEFIELD LEADING GROCER.

One of the most popular places of business in Fulton is the grocery store of J. T. Stubblefield, about midway of the business section of Lake street and a leading grocery of the city.

Mr. Stubblefield has been engaged in the retail grocery business for more than 20 years. One year of this time he was in the wholesale business which was a success; the company selling to another firm.

Mr. Stubblefield has lived in Fulton, except a short time, for 38 years and was a citizen when it was incorporated. He served as councilman and has been identified with all the progressive steps taken by the city. He was in the revenue service under Cleveland's first administration and was sheriff of Fulton county four years from 1898 to 1902. He was formerly in the grocery business in the Paschall block on the hill. He knows the grocery business thoroughly and he keeps just what the people want and his prices are reasonable. You will find that his groceries are dependable.

Mr. Brown Moss is the popular head salesman and LaCledé West and John Morris are the city solicitors.

You will get the best at reasonable prices at Stubblefield's. Call or phone No. 8 your orders will receive prompt and courteous attention.

ESQUIRE R. T. MILNER

One of the Marrying Esquires of Fulton Who is Becoming Famous.

The above is a handsome likeness of Esq. R. T. Milner of South Fulton, who is becoming famous as a marrying Esquire.

Esquire Milner is 78 years old, but he is still handsome and spry as most men of 60 years. His beloved wife is 77 years of age. Their happy married life is an example and should be an inspiration for good to those whom the Esquire is called upon to marry. Esquire Milner has been a citizen of South Fulton for about 16 years. During that time he was in the grocery business some years. He was mayor of South Fulton 8 years, until that town gave up its charter. In 1909, about 22 months ago, he was elected a magistrate of Obion county. During that time he has performed 52 marriages and as he becomes better known in that line he is more frequently called upon to perform the ceremony that makes "two hearts beat as one."

The marriage licenses are furnished him in blank by the county court clerk. His residence is quite convenient to the heart of the city and couples coming by train can repair to his home in a few minutes and the licenses prepared and ceremony concluded in about ten minutes.

After all, the marriage by an officer of the law is the highest legal evidence in the courts of the land for posterity.

One of the sights and also one of the most famous structures in Greater New York is the Flat Iron building, as it towers skyward in the heart of the city.

The most famous and best known business house in Fulton, as well as the handsomest and most complete is the Flat Iron building, which stands three stories high as shown in the above cut, at the corner of Church, Main and the Illinois Central railroad in the most commanding business site in the city. This splendid structure was erected by Mr. R. N. Phipps, the well known leading jeweler in 1907. He occupies the first floor with his handsome jewelry store.

Mr. Phipps began business in Fulton about 17 years ago, and has made a success of the business. For many years he conducted his business under the Vendome Opera House, Main street and by straightforward dealing and close attention to business made a success and it steadily grew. Mr. Phipps is watch inspector for the I. C. R. R. from Fulton to Dyersburg and from Fulton to Jackson and inspects and keeps in exact time hundreds of time pieces of employees of the I. C.

No visitor has fully seen Fulton who has not visited the Flat Iron building and jewelry store.

BEAUTIFUL PIPE ORGAN AT THE FIRST METHODIST CHURCH, FULTON, KENTUCKY.

Fulton Fair Association

Location Of Fair Here Marks An Epoch In The City's Permanent Attractions.

In the matter of the establishment of permanent attractions in Fulton, the year 1911 will go down in history as the real beginning of the Fulton County Fair. The organization is yet in its infancy, but it is a pretty healthy infant and has a brilliant future before it. Letters of incorporation have been filed and the capital stock is $10,000. The officers are as follows: Dr. J. M. Alexander, pres.; Hayden Freeman, secretary; C. E. Rice, treasurer.

Directors—Tom Franklin, Arch Huddleston, Oswald Croft, Jack Hall, Guy Howard, Bruce Henderson and Charlie Brann.

Magnificent Fair Site.

The Fair Association has selected 44 acres of ground in the northern section of the city, which is unusually well adapted to fair purposes with railroad accommodations, therefore exhibits, etc., can be unloaded at the fair grounds without extra expense of carriage.

The fair site also has the unusual advantage of being near the passenger depot and the business part of the city.

There is not a prettier plot of ground in this section of country, partly surrounded by beautiful forest trees and just rolling enough to drain well. For many years the late Emmet Reeds, a great fancier and breeder of fine stock, used this plot of ground for training purposes and had constructed a splendid half mile track, but for the past year or two the ground has been in cultivation.

The promoters of the fair are making preparations to build a fine race course and construct all the necessary buildings, including grandstand, live stock pavilion, stables for horses and cattle, pens for swine, sheds for sheep and poultry, and numerous other smaller structures. The plans of the management is to construct the stables for the horses, cattle, sheep and swine in such a manner as to give easy access to the live stock pavilion and railroad. In fact, it is proposed to connect the several stables with the main showing by means of covered arches so in case of bad weather exhibitors will not be exposed. No time will be lost in beautifying the grounds and the work will be turned over to an expert landscape gardener so every thing will be in readiness for Fulton's first fair in the fall of this year.

We understand that the track is to be made a full half mile and will be an unusually fast one in consequence of the nature of the soil and the topography of the ground.

Nothing will be left undone to make the Fulton County Fair a grand success. A large and attractive premium list will be given and increased from year to year as the growth of the exhibits require. The Fulton County Fair must rank with the best fairs in this section of the country, especially in point of exhibits. And the attendance will be the largest, due to the fact that Fulton is centrally located and known throughout this broad domain as not doing things by halves.

The success of a fair is not measured in dollars and cents, so much as it is in the effect it has on the various industries and interests represented by the exhibits. Much interest is being manifested already by some who want to be in on the first list of exhibitors. Yes, as soon as a fair was whispered for Fulton the effect was noticeable.

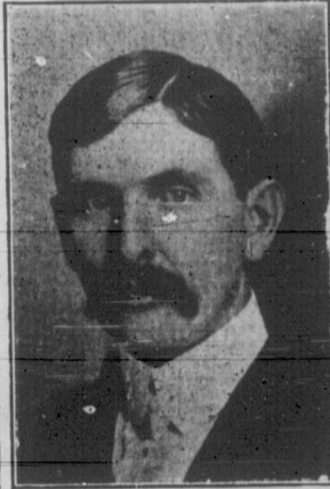

The fair dates will be arranged in accordance with the fairs held in neighboring towns.

There will be several distinctive features of the Fulton County Fair. Including running and trotting races.

The present management of the fair is considered to comprise as capable men in this line as can be found, and their efforts for the success of the fair are expected to be crowned with the success they merit.

ATKINS COLE, District Manager and Head Clerk Woodmen of the World.

The handsome gentleman, whose photograph appears above is Mr. Atkins Cole, District Manager and Head Clerk for Kentucky Woodmen of the World.

Mr. Cole is one of Fulton's most popular citizens, a public spirited gentleman and a woodman from the stump up.

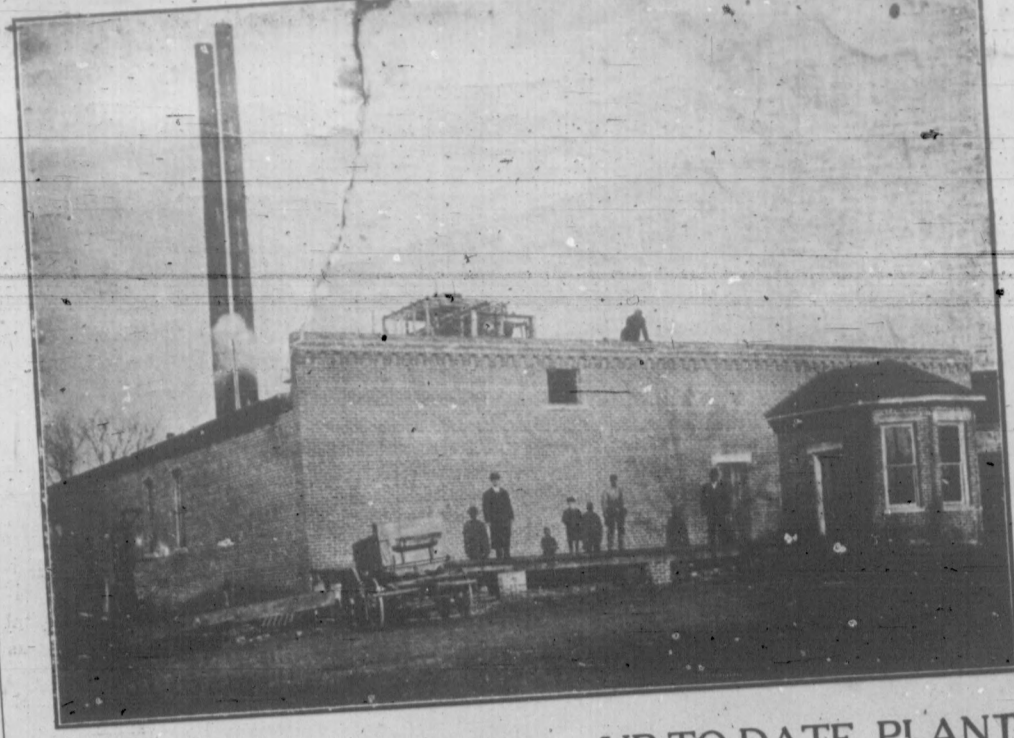

He was appointed District Manager of Western Kentucky by the Sovereign Camp Woodmen of the World in 1903 and he has added more names as members of the order during the past eight years than any man in Kentucky the figures being more than 2,000. He has organized in that time numerous new camps and strengthened all the older ones throughout his jurisdiction. His record in the interest of woodcraft has been one of continued success and by his untiring efforts he has put and his untiring efforts he has put woodcraft in the first ranks of all orders in his district. He has made his home camp, Evergreen No. 4, of Fulton, the banner camp of the State, its membership numbering more than 500. This speaks volumes for him and shows that he does not do things by halves. His magnificent record was recognized by the Woodmen of the State, when in 1909 he was elected head clerk of Head Camp U. State of Kentucky.

His splendid work in that position is recognized by all the Head Camp officials of the State, the State Managers and Sovereign Camp. His record shows that he has collected more per capita tax from over the State than any clerk who ever preceded him and his books are in excellent condition.

The Head Camp which recently met in biennial convention at Madisonville, on March 14th, showed its confidence in Mr. Cole by re-electing him on the first ballot, his majority being 104 votes more than his two opponents combined. The cheering which followed showed the great popularity of the Fulton Sovereign. Mr. Cole has a pleasant look and a smile that wins them all.

FULTON ICE COMPANY. UP-TO-DATE PLANT.

One of the substantial manufacturing enterprises of this city is the Fulton Ice Company. This plant was established in 1898 and its capacity is 20 tons per day. It supplies not only the city of Fulton, but all the nearby towns.

The plant is up-to-date in every particular, using the latest machinery in the ice manufacturing line. And is one of the best in Kentucky. The business has steadily grown and a large new brick storage building has been erected during the past few months ready for service the coming summer.

Mr. R. H. Wade, the genial manager has been in charge of the plant ever since it started in 1898. He is thoroughly posted in the business and he looks after his business personally, seeing that orders are promptly taken care of and that the customers get just what they order. He is one of the most popular and reliable business men in Fulton.

The ice of this plant is made from pure freestone water, coming from a considerable depth in the earth. There is no deposit of any kind in it and the ice made from it is of the clearest, purest crystal and does not melt as rapidly as ice that is made of impure or muddy water to begin with and has a solid body.

This means quite a saving of per cent. to the customer, Fulton can feel a just pride in her splendid ice plant.

MR. R. H. WADE.

GRAHAM & JOHNSON BROS.' BIG FURNITURE AND UNDERTAKING ESTABLISHMENT.

One of Fulton's largest and most popular mercantile firms is the Graham & Johnson Bros. Furniture and Undertaking establishment on lower Lake street.

This firm has been in business here eleven years, and the past nine in the same big double store. Its popularity and solid business growth is shown in the fact that a half story has been added in more recent years, making the building two and a half stories and in addition the second story of the building on the west side has been secured to carry the immense stock. The patronage has been extended, not only to embrace Fulton and immediate surroundings, but on account of the magnificent and varied stock carried by this house, trade and orders come from other communities for many miles away, orders having to be shipped to other towns. The stock of carpets, mattings and all kinds of floor coverings cannot be surpassed outside of a big city.

They carry everything in the furniture line, so as to suit everybody and their prices are always reasonable.

The firm also gives especial attention to their undertaking and embalming department, having experienced embalmers in this line.

Mr. J. Ray Graham, the managing partner, is an experienced furniture man. He was in the business formerly at Clinton, Ky., where he made a success before coming here 9 years ago, and his present splendid establishment shows what a magnificent success he has had here. He knows his business and knows it well and in addition he is courteous to everybody and he sees that his customers receive prompt attention and quick delivery of all goods purchased.

These are the reasons that have made for the growth of this firm and their large business which is constantly expanding.

When you need anything in their line be sure to visit this firm, they will take care of you or your order and at the right prices.

EXTERIOR VIEW OF M. F. DeMYER'S JEWELRY STORE COR. LAKE ST. AND COMMERCIAL AVE.

Twenty-One Years In the Jewelry Business In Fulton.

Everybody who knows anything of Fulton, knows the popular Jeweler, Mr. M. F. DeMyer, whose business house is one of the most prominent in Fulton, located at the busy corner of Lake street and Commercial ave., the hub about which revolves the business of Fulton.

Mr. DeMyer was born and reared in Fulton county, near the city of Fulton and comes of one of the pioneer families of this section, his father having owned a large estate almost in the suburbs of Fulton.

Mr. DeMyer has been longer in business in the same line in Fulton than any other firm, with the exception of two men.

He started in the jewelry business 21 years ago, when Fulton was a mere village. The house now used as a negro tenement, still stands, a reminder of the past. Mr. DeMyer remained there 5 years. This was before the Meadows block was built and its present site was then occupied by negro tenements. For five years he was engaged in the jewelry business with Mr. R. N. Phipps under the Vendome Opera House. The past 11 years he has been in business by himself on Lake street.

He carries one of the most complete stocks of up-to-date jewelry of any house in Western Kentucky and enjoys an extensive trade, the public knowing from long years of business dealing that he is perfectly reliable, both in quality of articles and in prices. His stock embraces everything in the jewelry line, Silverware, solid and plated, fine decorated

China, elegant cut glass and everything that is late and up-to-date in the jewelry line can be found at DeMyer's.

Optical Department.

He has one of the finest and most complete optical departments in the State under the management of Dr. J. J. House, a skilled optician a graduate, and who has devoted many years to that special work. He has all kinds of machinery for testing and fitting and grinding glasses and people come from all the surrounding section to be fitted by Dr. House. For this reason the firm enjoys a large patronage in this line of their business.

The firm of DeMyer stands for reliability and everything purchased there will be found just as represented.

CITY OF FULTON, QUEEN OF THE PURCHASE

The Gem Among Her Sisters. Story of Its Remarkable Growth. Its Modern Comforts and Conveniences. Its Business and Social Side. Wonderfully Blessed By Soil and Climate. A Splendid Outlook For the Coming Decade. Best People On Earth Here.

Situated in the heart of one of the most fertile sections of this country, surpassing in its productiveness the far famed valley of the Nile, Fulton, a city of beautiful homes, of handsome business and public edifices sits a Queen among the cities of the Purchase, the fairest of them all. Already possessing a population numbering 6,000 or more, it is just entering upon a career that will cause it to outstrip all its neighbors, and in a few years will become the home of 25,000 or more people, with all the appurtenances and up-to-dateness of a thoroughly metropolitan city. Situated at the crossing, north, east, south and west of the two main lines of the Great Illinois Central railroad system, destined to be the greatest in the country and with its surroundings of soil and natural resources, there is everything necessary here for the making of a city. In 1850 the land upon which Fulton has been built was owned by B. F. Carr, Dr. G. W. Paschall and one or two others. The survey of the C. O. & S. W. railroad was made about that time and the road built through from Louisville. It is now part of the I. C. system, having been purchased some years ago.

It is said that W. T. Woolridge erected a frame store building on the site of the C. O. & S. W. depot, in 1861 and opened the first store, a grocery. The same year T. M. Thomas built the first house on the Tennessee side. The war coming on just at this time no further efforts at building a town were made till the war had closed, there being only a dozen or more families here.

Peace having been declared, a few pioneer citizens began to build the future city. Among these sturdy men were the Paschalls, Normans, McFalls, Carrs, Eddings, Tomlinsons and others whose families are today numbered among our best and most substantial citizens. There was quite a wide difference between the little village with its muddy streets and road and log cabins then than the present well built business structures and handsome residences and other buildings, its concrete sidewalks and gravel streets, which stamp it as a gem of a little city.

The growing town was incorporated in 1872 under the name of Fulton.

About this time the Mississippi Central, as it was then known, now the I. C. railroad, was extended through Jackson, Tennessee, to Cairo. Being located at the junction of this line and the C. O. & S. W. which had been extended to Memphis, Fulton began to assume some importance. The town was laid off into lots which were purchased by people who came to cast their lot in the beautiful and growing town. This has continued until the present day. One by one improvements were made and people came. The village took on the airs of a larger town and then grew until at this time it contains all the comforts, conveniences and appurtenances of a modern city.

Will Be Much Larger City.

It does not require a prophet to prognosticate the future and tell that Fulton is going to be a much larger city than now, within a very few years.

In the first place it has a people as citizens who will not fail. They

the milling industry and two large mills here giving employment to a number of people do an immense business and ship their products hundreds of miles south and west.

Grain and grasses have developed the live stock interests and Fulton is now one of the greatest mule markets of any small city in the country and other live stock in somewhat less degree. It is a big tobacco market, with four or five large tobacco barns and handles five or six millions of pounds per year. These give employment to a large number of employees at remunerative wages.

Illinois Central Railroad.

The purchase some years ago by the Illinois Central railroad of the C. O. & S. W. R. R., which crossed it here at Fulton, was a big thing for Fulton. The road spent hundreds of thousands of dollars at this, its most important crossing in the South. The track was raised, a viaduct built, a division headquarters with superintendent and other officers here, a lumber interest are a considerable feature in the raising of business done here.

Tobacco, Wheat and Corn.

The soil of the Purchase section is peculiarly adapted to the growth of tobacco, of wheat and of corn, as well as other cereals. As has already been stated, several millions of pounds of tobacco are annually sold in the Fulton market of the dark variety and of superior flavor. A considerable amount of it is shipped direct to Europe, being taken by the Italian Government.

This soil grows wheat of a high class, large yield and the winter varieties, many thousand bushels being marketed here at good prices.

Corn grows here as well as anywhere in the country and the yield per acre will compare with the best. Other cereals like oats, etc., the far famed alfalfa and all the hay crops and grasses grow to perfection here.

The Poultry Industry.

Scarcely any city the size of Fulton, besides the cereals, it follows a natural sequence that this should also be a splendid stock section. Cattle of all kinds are raised and brought to the Fulton market while hogs are shipped from here at almost all seasons.

Fulton is the largest mule market in this entire section, more than 1,000 having been sold here within the past four months.

Bright Outlook.

With its splendid growth of population and business and the early erection of a handsome $50,000 postoffice building by the Federal Government at a well located lot on Main street in the business section, free delivery of mail by the post office, Fulton is a big County Fair the coming fall on one of the best selected sites that could have been procured about the city.

Other enterprises that will add to the growth and development of Fulton now in the embryonic state may be ready for fruition in the near future.

All things considered, no city near its size in the south has a better outlook than Fulton for a most magnificent growth within the next few years. It presents a most inviting field for those desiring to invest, to locate in an up-to-date little city and among the best people in the world.

CHURCHES—GUARDIANS OF THE MORALS OF THE COMMUNITY.

That the churches in any community exercise a most potent influence for good, is conceded by all except the most rabid or blatant infidel, whose egotism and self-conceit blind his mind to the inestimable value of Christianity. But to what extent are the churches valuable in this community? The Galilean teacher said of His disciples: "Ye are the light of the world." Hence, if all His disciples are the light of the world and the salt of the earth, the logical conclusion is that they are the light of the community in which they live.

These declarations, however, do not preclude the possibility of the light going out—being hid under a bushel or the salt losing its saltiness. But certainly no reasonable or fair minded person would accuse the churches of being wholly composed of united bands of hypocrites. For it matters not to what extent sin, in its many forms, may prevail in the ranks of the church, you will find, within its membership, consecrated men and women. And it should be borne in mind that it only requires a few of the above-mentioned class to become the light of the community.

There is not a man in our town, however indifferent to the claims of Christianity, would want to rear his family here if there were no churches or church influence, for he at once recognizes them as the guardians of the morals of the community, high moral standing of our people due to the fact that it is permeated by Christian influence, education, such as is derived from the various institutions established here.

are a commingling of the Puritan and Cavalier, ambitious, sturdy, moral, reverential, refined, cultured and possessing an indomitable spirit to succeed in whatever they undertake, and the elements, such as soil, climate and other natural resources are here to aid them.

Remarkable Growth.

Once it had started to grow, development came rapidly. Fulton is situated in the heart of a section adapted to the growth of both grain and tobacco.

The farmer with his grain has made Fulton the natural center for large station built, a big passenger yard built and recently an elaborate new yard constructed and a round house built employing quite a large force and founding the town of Riceville in our northern suburbs.

Timber Industry.

Fulton has for years been widely known as an important lumber center. Magnificent forests have furnished millions of feet of timber which have been converted by sawmills into lumber and large lumber plants here have drawn an immense business for years and employed many people in the business. The ton has so many products, right at its doors for increasing its volume of business. The poultry and egg industry has grown in the past few years from a modest beginning to a wholesale business of more than $350,000 per annum, besides the local retail trade. Chickens, turkeys, ducks, geese and all kinds of barnyard fowls and eggs are shipped to the leading markets of the country and it is profitable alike to the grower and shipper.

FULTON WELL GOVERNED CITY

Headed By Mayor J. F. Fall, Who Is Serving His Third Term. No Graft Here. City Interests Looked After Like It Was An Individual Business Enterprise.

Fulton is well governed as any city in the country. There is no graft here, but to the contrary every official of the city takes a personal pride in advancing the interests of the city in every way and using the same care and business judgment that he would in his own business affairs. This is why everything moves along so smoothly and without hitch or friction. Every official looks out for the welfare of Fulton and feels that everyone of his fellow associates is doing the same. The city officials are: Mayor J. F. Fall.

Councilmen—W. W. Meadows, C. H. Bransford, Dr. R. T. Rudd, L. T. Callahan, C. W. Fowler, W. K. Hall, J. H. Taylor, City Judge; Frank Carr, City Attorney; J. P. Tyler, Superintendent of Water Works and Sewerage; J. P. Huddleston, John St. John, Night Watchman; J. Roberts, Chief Fire

W. P. Feits, Joe Browder, Terry. In 1900 he married Miss Myrtle Skeen, of Bell Buckle, Tenn. They have two children, a daughter 4 years of age, and a son aged one year. In 1900 he was elected Judge of the City Court and served two terms of eight years, having no opposition for the second term and declining a third term. In 1909 he returned to the practice of law, becoming the senior member of the firm of Carr and Carr. This firm is associated in practice with Robbins and Thomas, of Mayfield, Ky. The firm are the local attorneys for the Illinois Central railroad, and enjoy a large and growing practice. Judge Carr is secretary of the Fulton Publishing Company.

Judge H. F. Taylor, is serving his first term as city judge and has given satisfaction, because he holds the balances of justice evenly poised and deals it out to all alike. Hon. Frank Carr, City Attorney, is one of the most brilliant young lawyers of Western Kentucky. He is a graduate of Vanderbilt Law school and is a Fulton boy, having been born and reared here. He has been city attorney since 1904 and his splendid legal ability and good business judgment have been invaluable to the city council and saved thousands of dollars to the city.

The "old man" of the city administration of the city is Captain J. P. Tyler, Superintendent of the City Water Works and City Clerk, who has filled those position for many years, has always made a most capable, painstaking officer and is popular with everybody.

Mr. Bailey Huddleston is serving his first term as chief of police, and he is making a good one, in fact they say the best Fulton has ever had. His newspaper training stands him well in hand, as a newspaper man has to learn how to hunt up things and play the detective too, if he makes a success of his job. Mr. John St. John his night assistant has been a long time in the service and is a most capable man.

Jake Roberts is the efficient chief of the fire department and they do say he can almost smell a fire by the time starts even if it is four blocks away. He has splendid assistants. The fire force is paid for every fire and you may be assured they are promptly on the spot when a fire alarm is turned in no matter from what part of the city they may be called. The city has plenty of good fire hose and gets the pressure direct from the fire plugs of the City Water Works.

The Board of Education is composed of leading business men of the city. The chairman being ex-mayor, W. P. Feits, and his associates being Messrs. P. H. Weeks, Joe Browder, C. E. Rice and W. A. Terry. In their hands the educational interests of the city are well planned. No city in Kentucky is better governed or has a more efficient corps of officials than has Fulton.

JUDGE HERBERT CARR.

The above is a splendid likeness of Judge Herbert Carr, one of the leading attorneys of Fulton and West Kentucky.

He was born at Fulton in 1875, and is a son of Mr. W. T. Carr, of this city, and a grandson of B. F. Carr, one of the founders of Fulton.

Judge Carr graduated from Vanderbilt University in 1898 and immediately engaged in the practice of law here and was very successful from the very start.

In 1900 he married Miss Myrtle Skeen, of Bell Buckle, Tenn. They have two children, a daughter 4 years of age, and a son aged one year.

In 1900 he was elected Judge of the City Court and served two terms of eight years, having no opposition for the second term and declining a third term.

In 1909 he returned to the practice of law, becoming the senior member of the firm of Carr and Carr. This firm is associated in practice with Robbins and Thomas, of Mayfield, Ky. The firm are the local attorneys for the Illinois Central railroad, and enjoy a large and growing practice.

Judge Carr is secretary of the Fulton Publishing Company.

FRANK CARR

City Attorney of Fulton and Prominent Young Attorney.

The above is a likeness of Hon. Frank Carr, the popular city attorney of Fulton and one of the leading attorneys of Fulton county.

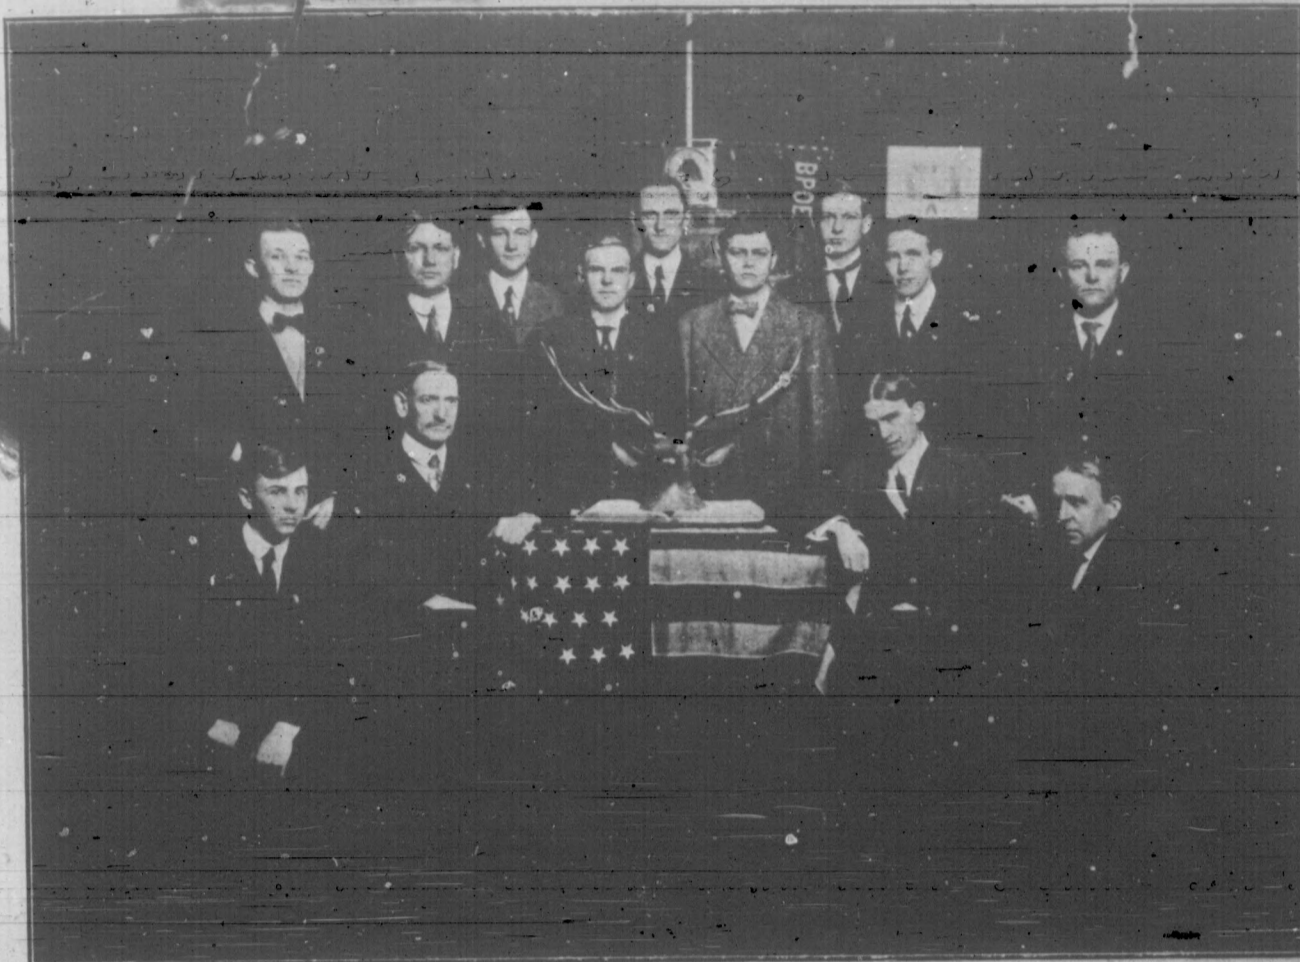

He was born in 1879 in the city of Fulton and descended from a pioneer family of this section, being a grandson of B. F. Carr one of the founders of this city.

He graduated from the academic and law department of Vanderbilt University in 1903 and has since been engaged in the practice of law, being junior member of the law firm of Carr and Carr.

He was elected city attorney of Fulton in 1904 and has held the position ever since.

He is one of the most prominent young attorneys of West Kentucky.

The Fulton Antlers

Lodge No. 1142, B. P. O. Elks was instituted in Fulton December 29, 1909, by Smith T. Bailey, District Deputy Grand Exalted Ruler for the Western District of Kentucky with a chartered membership of forty-two. Since that date the order has increased its membership to about one hundred and fifty.

The membership of this order comprises the very best element of the citizenship of this community. The leading citizens of every walk in life in Fulton are to be found in this order. It is the baby lodge of the state, and it is the consensus of opinion of all Elks who have visited the lodge that it is one of the most progressive lodges in the state. The lodge rooms are elegantly furnished in Old Mission furniture and the reading room is filled with the newest and best literature to be had. All the leading magazines, periodicals and daily papers are to be found on the reading tables where the members while away many pleasant and profitable hours reading and smoking. The order of Elks is a charitable and social order. It stands primarily for charity, justice, brotherly love and fidelity, and these virtues have been exemplified in this community to a far greater extent than the outside world has any idea of. This order believes that the proper way to do charity is to do it and say nothing about it. Numerous instances could be given where it has dispensed charity with a generous hand in this town if we were permitted to give them.

The Elks Home of this town is one that every citizen may well feel proud of even though he does not belong to the order and never intends to. It will be surprising to many here to know that it cost a little more than $3,500 to fit up and furnish this lodge, and will likewise be gratifying to all to know that it is out of debt with money in the bank. A fund has been started with which a magnificent Home will be built in the near future. The order expects to select in the near future a desirable lot and erect on it a building that will be an ornament to the town.

The Elks believe in developing the social side of man and with that in view Friday of each week has long been designated as "Ladies Day" and the young ladies of the town (there are no old ones here) gather there on these days and enjoy themselves with music, books, pool billiards, and almost each week a most delightful informal dance is had.

Dr. W. E. Simmons was the first Exalted Ruler of this lodge and he was surrounded with a capable cabinet. He served one term in this office which is as long as the office may be held under the constitution. W. T. Anderson succeeded Dr. Simmons and he held the office till his duties in the railway world called him to Illinois and he was succeeded by Ed C. Paschall who is the present

Exalted Ruler, and whose term expired April 1st.

The new officers are: Jas. L. White, Exalted Ruler, G. G. Barger, Esteemed Loyal Knight, Joe D. Davis, Esteemed Lecturing Knight, Paul Pickering, secretary, Harry Ekdahl, W. W. Morris, C. E. Rice and Dr. Seldon Cohn, Trustees. The order is in good hands for the ensuing year and under the able and efficient direction of these officers, assisted by the efforts of each individual Elk it is predicted the membership will be doubled in the next twelve months. May the Antlered Tribe of Fulton and surrounding community soon be a thousand and more.

ELKS PARADE FOURTH OF JULY 1910.

DECORATED AUTOMOBILE IN ELKS PARADE JULY 4.

Lake Street Looking South From A. T. Church's Confectionery.

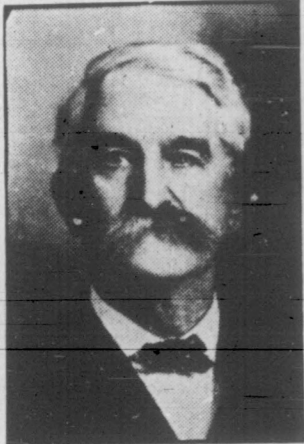

SOUTH FULTON, OUR LIVE SISTER CITY.

South Fulton is a bustling and enterprising little city of about 1,500 in population. It is situated on the Tennessee and Kentucky State Line, immediately south of Fulton, Ky., in the fertile and far famed county of Obion, and the great and grand old volunteer State of Tennessee, and upon the banks of the noted and famous Harris Fork. The waters of this stream are not sufficient for the navigation of large boats and steamers at all seasons of the year, yet it affords drainage for our city and serves the interest of the town in many other respects. There has been a project on foot by the West Tennessee Drainage Company to straighten this stream from Fulton to the Obion river, which will result in immense benefit to Fulton and surrounding country.

South Fulton is also located on the great Illinois Central railroad tracks, both of its main trunk lines passing through our borders. Its freight depot is located in South Fulton, and it is here where an immense freight business is handled amounting to from $75,000 to $100,000 revenue to the railroad company each month in the year, and giving employment to a number of people at fine salaries.

Large wood working establishments are maintained and much tobacco is handled in South Fulton. The old reliable wholesale and retail furniture store of Joe Wade & Co., is located in South Fulton, where they have enjoyed a very successful and prosperous business for many years. This firm commands a splendid and very successful business all over West Tennessee and Kentucky.

They have many thousands of dollars invested in their business, and employ several men who are constantly kept busy handling their immense volume of trade. The business of this firm is an honor to any city.

D. R. BONDURANT,

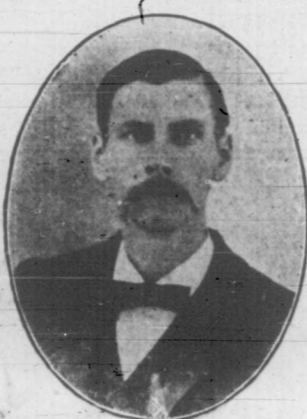

the bustling and pleasant groceryman, has recently made some splendid improvements upon his property on the corner of Sams and State Line streets, and is enjoying a fine trade which he richly deserves. Mr. Bondurant is the oldest groceryman now doing business in South Fulton, and he keeps constantly on hand a large, nice and clean stock of staple and fancy groceries. For honest and fair dealing and for better goods at less money, D. R. Bondurant cannot be excelled. You can always rely upon his representation of goods and a square deal in every business transaction. He will always treat you just and right.

Other Industries.

Space will not admit of a full and complete notice of all the many and various mercantile establishments of South Fulton, they are all fine business gentlemen and are conducting splendid and successful stores and are having a fine patronage.

Among the leading business men and prominent real estate owners of South Fulton may be mentioned the names of W. W. Morris, W. D. Morgan, J. S. Murphy, P. D. Chambers, J. V. Kirkland, W. P. Lockridge, W. T. Pillow, J. R. Wilson, J. T. Futrell, R. T. Milner, W. P. Allbritton, W. L. Nicholas, J. P. Swann, and a host of others. Most of our citizens are of the best and purest type. They are people of the highest moral and spiritual culture, intelligence and refinement. As a rule they are members of and workers in the various churches and societies in our city. More kind and clever neighbors and friends could hardly be found in any other town in this country. Kindness, hospitality and generosity is constantly exhibited and manifested among our citizens. A bad or lawless character may turn up once in a while but he is soon apprehended, brought into court and punished severely for his misdeeds or evil conduct. His days are but few and full of trouble, and his nefarious business is generally of short duration and sorrowful termination. South Fulton can truly boast of having as few of the lawless class of citizens at present as any town of its size. We have now no dives, debauchery or gambling dens, to mar the peace and morals of our citizens. Such places have long since become a thing of the past in this city. About all the worst element, the riff-raff gang has sought out and departed for more congenial climes. We have good laws and officers to enforce them. J. P. Swann is at present mayor of South Fulton. T. C. Hastings is City Marshal.

J. T. FUTRELL.

The above is the likeness of J. T. Futrell, the noted and famous marrying Esquire, who is a resident of and has his office in South Fulton, where he has already united over one thousand couples in the holy bonds of matrimony and is still being sought by people far and wide to unite them for life. He has performed the ceremony for couples from almost every state in the Union. His name has become almost a byword in the mouths of young people for hundreds of miles around. They come to him to tie the wedding knot for them, on the trains, in buggies, in autos, in wagons, on horseback, on foot and every way from all parts of the country and at all hours of the day and night, and at all seasons of the year. He is also a Notary Public as well as Justice of the Peace and has a fine business in that line. He has always stood for the full enforcement of law and order; and believes in good government for the city, county, state and nation. But as before stated, our citizens in the main are a church working and law abiding people, and it is seldom necessary to invoke the strong arm of the law to maintain peace and order. We have excellent church and school facilities.

Maggie Nix are the assistant teachers. They are each well and eminently qualified for their respective positions, and are doing a most excellent work in the various departments of this school. The enrollment at South Fulton College is about five hundred pupils. All the different branches of study taught in any of the first class colleges, including business courses stenography, typewriting etc., are taught successfully and scientifically here. The college building is a brick structure, very large, commodious and conveniently arranged and is heated with steam. The building is situated upon an elevated and beautiful campus. A more desirable and attractive location would be hard

SOUTH FULTON COLLEGE.

South Fulton College ranks among the leading educational institutions of all this section. For the past two or three years the number of pupils from abroad has greatly increased, and it is rapidly establishing a reputation as a safe and desirable place to educate the children, both morally and intellectually. People are coming to realize that it is better to send their children to institutions like this where they get personal instruction, rather than the big institutions in cities where much of the work is machine like and perfunctory.

Prof. W. Claude Hall, is president and principal of this institution, and under his wise, efficient and accomplished management and counsel, the school is attaining wonderful success. South Fulton has fine streets, miles of brick and concrete pavements, good healthy water, pure air, low taxes and insurance rates, and everything necessary to the well being, happiness and comfort of her citizens. The clear and conclusive evidences of peace and prosperity are reigning supreme throughout her borders. Its progress, growth and development is to be seen upon every hand, and by even the most casual observer. Pessimists and kickers are being rapidly relegated to the rear. They will soon be obsolete. The many advantages, inducements and resources of South Fulton affords a golden opportunity for investment and for those who are seeking a delightful and desirable home, where they can locate and live among good people, in a happy and healthful town, with good schools, good churches, low taxes, low rate of insurance, where law and order prevails, and a thousand other privileges and blessings can be bountifully enjoyed and appreciated. The citizens feel proud of the fact that they live here, and extend a cordial welcome and invitation to others to come and invest their means, live here and be happy.

JOE WADE & COMPANY, Incorporated.

ONE OF FULTON'S OLDEST AND MOST SOLID BUSINESS FIRMS.

Joe Wade & Co., Furniture Dealers and Undertakers, was established in 1874. The founder of this establishment, the late Joe Wade, came from England in the early seventies, and in the latter part of 1873 came with his family, to Fulton, which was then, just a station, with a few scattered residences and three of four frame store along the railroad on what is now known as Lake street.

After viewing the landscape over, Mr. Wade pitched his tent on the State Line, Tennessee side, and erected his residence with a one room store connected, on one corner of the lot. Here Mr. Wade began the Furniture and Undertaking business on a small scale, and after battling with early hardships, his sales rapidly increased, and the demands called for larger store rooms. These have been added to from time to time, until Wade's Furniture Store now occupies the entire lot. The building, owing to its quaint construction, has caused considerable comment and criticism, especially by strangers, but the people of the surrounding country have come to regard it through long years of trading there as the one place of all others and do not think of going elsewhere in that line. During Mr. Wade's business career in Fulton, until his death, which occurred two years ago, he had seen many similar enterprises spring up and fall, but none ever enjoyed the extensive business of his store. Since the death of Mr. Wade, the business has been incorporated, and continues under the same name, Joe Wade & Co. Those connected in the incorporation are not new and unfamiliar people with the firm, but are Mr. Wade's children and years' associates in business. They are, J. W. Wade, Mrs. C. A. Fall, Paris, Texas, H. E. Wade, and Ed Heywood, of Fulton. Mr. Heywood, the business manager has been with this firm for the past twenty years, as Embalmer, and has won many true and lasting friends for the firm throughout the Fulton territory. His name stands as a tower of strength, for honesty and fair dealing and the people know when they go to him they get just what they pay for and no higher compliment can be paid a business man.

Joe Wade & Co., are the largest importers of Japanese and China Mattings in Western Tennessee and Kentucky. Their line of furniture will compete with any in larger cities and towns anywhere in this section of country. They employ the best salesmen who know the business and customers always receive prompt and courteous attention.

Their Undertaking Department is complete in every detail, having in this service, three Licensed State Embalmers for Kentucky and Tennessee. Their embalmer for the colored people is Bob Blythe, who has been in this service for the past twenty-three years.

The corps of working force for this establishment, are as follows: Ed Heywood, business manager; Miss Coralie Green, bookkeeper; Ed Wade, collector; E. M. Lucas, S. P. Etheridge, P. C. Jones and Wyatt Horton, salesmen, all proficient in their line. Be sure to visit this big furniture establishment whenever you need anything in this line. You will find it.

SUPERINTENDENT J. J. GAVEN AND HIS STAFF OF ASSISTANTS

THE ILLINOIS CENTRAL RAILROAD, FULTON'S GREATEST SINGLE ASSET.

WE ARE SITUATED AT THE GREAT CARDINAL POINTS CROSSINGS OF THE SYSTEM—OVER FIVE HUNDRED EMPLOYEES HERE—VAST IMPROVEMENTS PAST FEW YEARS—IMMENSE PAY ROLL—SUPERINTENDENT J. J. GAVEN, HEAD OF DIVISION AND HIS STAFF OF ASSISTANTS.

No individual firm or corporation employs as many people or has the property interest in Fulton that the Illinois Central Railroad Co. has. Fulton sits at the crossing of the two most important arms of this great railroad system, stretching to the cardinal points of the compass, north, east, south and west and making this city the gateway to the south, and about the center of the system.

The fact is Fulton is a kind of protegee of the Illinois Central and we expect some time it may make this place the base of some of its most important offices and work shops.

The company a few years ago expended a large sum of money in improving its trackage through the city of Fulton, building its division headquarters; a large roomy office building, improving its depots and establishing a system of beautiful little parks in the heart of the city adorned with flowers and shrubbery, which are kept up by a landscape gardener and assistants and which are a joy to the eye and present a lovely attractive and restful scene through all the spring and summer and fall months.

In addition to this the company built what is known as the New Yards, out in the northwestern suburbs, or Riceville, and which are the finest yards in the south. Here is also located roomy shops for round house and repair of engines requiring quite a force of men. Here the equipment for the southern division is inspected.

All these improvements represent more than a hundred thousand dollars.

SUPERINTENDENT J. J. GAVEN.

Here are located division headquarters at the head of which is Superintendent J. J. Gaven, one of the best equipped and most successful railroad men in the south.

Superintendent Gaven was transferred from the position of superintendent at New Orleans, La., to Fulton, June 27th, 1903, this being a promotion it being the most important in the southern division of the system. It has been under his administration that all the changes above mentioned in the way of train yards, shops, buildings etc., have been made, representing an expenditure of more than $100,000.

Mr. Gaven's splendid executive ability was recognized and that was the reason he was placed here to have these improvements made. He has also identified himself with the local interests of Fulton and is one of our most progressive and esteemed citizens.

Big Payroll and Hundreds of Employees.

The importance of the I. C. R. R. to Fulton is manifest in the large number of employees and the payroll.

The average monthly payroll for the Fulton employees proper, is $25,000.

The average monthly payroll for the trainmen, engineers, etc., running in and out of Fulton is about $70,000.

The number of employees who reside in Fulton is about 500; of these 51 are located in the division office building. The present heads of the various departments in the division headquarters and in the city are as follows:

J. J. Gaven, Superintendent; Guy

Thomas, private secretary; H. Cully, Chief Clerk.

There is no enterprise that contributes more directly to the health and comfort of the people than that of the modern steam laundry and one of the leading institutions of this character is the O. K. Steam Laundry.

This valuable concern was established in 1898 by C. W. and J. J. Owen, brothers, who came to Fulton from Paducah.

The office and works are located on State Line street, a good likeness of which is shown in the interior and exterior views accompanying this write-up. The front of the building is of Roman pressed brick with large plate glass windows and doors. The plant is operated by steam power, and equipped with a 50 horse power engine, and all the latest machinery and appliances for a first-class establishment of this kind. They give employment to about 20 or 25 people, who are all selected for their knowledge and skill in their different lines of work.

The Owen Brothers' French Dry Cleaning and Sanitary Pressing work has a charm of its own aside from a pleasing personality. That is why work done by them has so many admirers. The simple reason that they "know how" to do the work properly, and furthermore they do it, and do it right. OSTEOPATHY—WHAT IS IT?

Something of the Science Which Is Becoming So Popular with Suffering Humanity.

As this is a comparatively new science, as such, having been established as a separate science, in the present generation, there is much inquiry about it, what it is and what qualifications are necessary for an osteopath for handling diseases. It takes practically the same length of time to make a full-fledged osteopath as it does to make a physician of the regular school. The course embraces almost the same class of subjects as are included in the course adopted by the Association of American Medical Colleges, the chief difference being the study of the principles of Osteopathy instead of the materia medica, all the other important branches being taught by both schools. The course is thorough covering the whole range of practice and the anatomy of the human system is made the features in Osteopathy.

Osteopathy is a scientific method of treating disease, which receives assistance from drugs and depends for its efficacy on manipulations designed to restore abnormalities of structure to their normal position.

Osteopaths maintain, and the principle which lies at the foundation of their science asserts that function is dependent on structure, in other words, if structure is in any particular out of the normal, the function of some organ must suffer as an inevitable result.

The osteopath, then, is an educated mechanic of the human body, and his duty to find out what is the structural misplacement which is causing the machine to run stiffly and to function poorly.

It is here that we see the essential difference in standpoint between the osteopathic and medical practitioner. The latter notes that an organ is functioning abnormally and hopes either by stimulating it, or in some way replacing the normal secretion to force the organ again to take on its function.

The osteopath, looks, not at the abnormally functioning organ, although, of course, symptomatology is important in diagnosis, but away behind what is apparent, and asks what is the cause.

In other words, the osteopath believes that normal functioning is inevitable, that it must take place if there is no structural abnormality preventing it from doing so.

No one puts this more forcibly than Dr. Still himself, the discoverer of the new science, when he says:

"If every part of the machine is adjusted and in perfect harmony, health will hold dominion over the human organism by laws, as natural and immutable as the laws of gravitation."

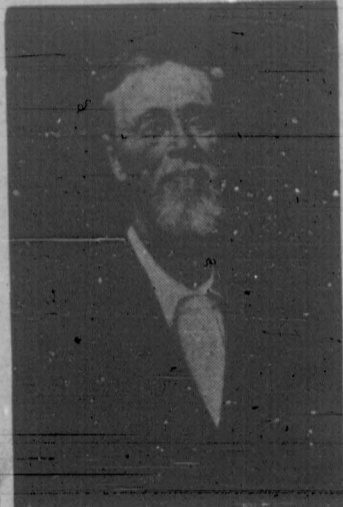

It is difficult at first to grasp the full significance of this thought, for its universal acceptance which he knew would only be a matter of time, must involve a radical and far-reaching change in the whole trend of thought of the world.

But one result could obtain from the constant reiteration of such a thought by such a man, namely the establishment of a school in which an attempt might be made to put his plans into practical application. It was in 1892 that such a school was started, with, we believe, 18 students. That school was the American School of Osteopathy at Kirksville, Mo., which at the present writing has graduated over 3,000 practitioners, has a student enrollment of 625 and presents a course of study which is equal to almost any medical college in the country.

This phenomenal growth has no parallel in the whole annals of medical history; it means that there has been born a method of treating disease which is based on the facts of anatomy and physiology.

It means too that the public is beginning to appreciate this discovery and to hold out the glad hand of welcome to those who have graduated from this school, realizing that the practitioners of this science are coming into their midst equipped with a knowledge of inestimable value to themselves and of vital importance to the whole world.

DR. ANDREW TAYLOR STILL.

The discoverer of Osteopathy was born in Jonesboro, Virginia, eighty-two years ago. His father was a physician and preacher.

When still a boy his father moved to Missouri. In due time Dr. Still grew to manhood and graduated from the medical department of the Washington University at St. Louis. He located in Baldwin, Kansas, where he was a successful physician, but being dissatisfied with the effects of medicine, he began to study the body from a mechanical view. He frequently dissected Indians in order to better understand the mechanism of the human body and soon learned that readjustment of tissues, especially bony, would get the necessary nutrition for parts affected and would therefore cure the disease.

He was considered insane because he dared to undertake to cure diseases without medicine, and was severely persecuted for many years, but is now living to enjoy the results of his labors.

her life should prove an inspiration to the young to study to win.

Dr. Pherigo was partially reared in a section where schools were scarce and it was difficult to obtain an education. When scarce fifteen years of age she was left an orphan. Unaided, alone in the world she had the ambition and determination to get an education and she seems to have been singularly blessed in her efforts. At the age of 17 years she had made such use of her opportunity that she was granted a license to teach school in summers and with the means obtained attend Normal School in the winters, thus securing a good education.

In the meantime, at the age of 20 years, she was married.

Studied Osteopathy.

The study of osteopathy appealed to her and in the fall of 1907 she entered the American School of Osteopathy at Kirksville, Mo., and graduated in a class of 115 in 1909.

She made many of the best grades in the entire class, and never failed in any of the examinations, though forced by circumstances to take two courses part of the time.

While in college Dr. Pherigo was president of the Y. W. C. A., also president of the Axis club, the largest Osteopathic club in the world. She is a member of the Kentucky Osteopathic Association and is on the program for an address at the next meeting at Louisville. She too, is a member of the American Osteopathic Association, which meets in Chicago this year. Dr. Pherigo delivered several public addresses to the students and did special work in women's diseases.

President Still, founder of Osteopathy, paid an unusually rare compliment to Dr. Pherigo, by predicting for her eminent success in the Osteopathic field. She was interne four months in the hospital and her work was highly commended by the faculty. Her success in practice at college was noted and the subject of favorable comment.

She graduated with honors and was elected orator of one of the college societies. No student has ever graduated at the American School of Osteopathy whose personal standing as a student and as a lady was superior to Dr. Pherigo's. She was a favorite among the faculty and student body.

DR. NORA B. PHERIGO A TRUE HEROINE.

Story of the Life of A Fulton Woman Who Has Won Splendid Success By Her Own Efforts.

The story of some of our brightest statesmen and most successful men in all walks of life show that in early life they had to struggle with poverty and misfortune and by overcoming them proved themselves heroes and won lasting admiration and fame.

In this article we tell the life story, briefly of a real heroine, whose experience has been no less strenuous, whose success is as fully deserving of praise and admiration as many of those who have become immortal. We refer to Mrs. Nora B. Pherigo, whose likeness graces the head of this article, and the story of

Dr. Pherigo has undergone the state examinations in four different states and holds license to practice in Colorado, Missouri, Tennessee and Kentucky. After investigation she selected Fulton, Ky., as the most suitable place to locate. On June 3, 1909, Dr. Pherigo and two little girls reached the depot at Fulton and after a day or so located and opened an office, and hung out her modest sign, "Osteopathic Physician," to the world.

A perfect stranger in a strange place and a country different in many of its habits and customs from where she had lived; her profession but little known and strong prejudice against it; aided alone by the genuine merit of a genuine science she has won the general confidence of the people and established a large and lucrative practice. Dr. Pherigo has the right to feel proud of her splendid success for she daily meets those who but for her skill, science, and knowledge with good, honest, faithful work would today be helpless invalids or it may be, have passed beyond. Certainly her sleep is sweetened by the "Well done, etc.," for the part she has played in relieving suffering among humanity.

Her life since coming among us has been an open book, easily read by all. Her friends are counted by the number of her acquaintances. Her practice is very large, in fact has grown somewhat onerous for one person to do.

A physician who believes in the ethics of her profession; a lady in its truest sense; but nerve and pluck have changed the hardships of her earlier life and she has won deserved success. The clouds have rolled away; the sun is lending its brightest rays to her life. With friends in abundance her little ones doing nicely at college, her cup is filled to the level. Many will bless the fate which beckoned Dr. Pherigo and led her to become one of us.

FULTON POSTOFFICE

Its Rapid Growth—Business Has Increased in Past Few Years—Postmaster Robert B. Beadles Paid Out Over $35,000 in 1910.

The postoffice comes in touch with every home and every class of business in city and country.

The evolution and growth of the Fulton postoffice from a case with a hundred or so pigeon holes in the rear-end of a business house to its present importance as a live up-to-date office of the second class has been a feature, marking the growth and keeping abreast of it with the city of Fulton. The present efficient postmaster, Mr. Robert B. Beadles, has been in that position since July of last year, but he had been assistant to his father for a number of years, and the active moving spirit in the direction of the office for a long time. He has been connected with the office ever since the administration of President Benjamin Harrison when it was in the rear of the J. A. Collins store about where the DeMyer Jewelry store is located on Lake street. It was next moved to the Reed block on Lake street, where the Palace Barbershop now is. Under the McKinley administration it was moved to its present location in the Meadows block. The store room at the southwest corner of the Meadows block is being fitted up in good style and the postoffice will be moved into it in a very short while. It will remain there, in all probability until it moves into its handsome home, which the government will build for it on the lot purchased on Main street. Every removal has meant a better building and enlarged business.

There is no better thermometer of the growth and development of a town or city than the postoffice.

The present postmaster, since his connection with the office, has seen it grow from an humble importance, employing two people a portion of their time until now, the employees are:

Robert B. Beadles, postmaster.
J. W. Beadles, Assistant postmaster.

A. C. Bellew, chief clerk.
W. C. Beadles, mailing clerk.
Rural Route Carriers:
B. W. Priddy, No. 1; J. H. Lowe, No. 2; Tom Winsett, No. 3; J. G. Finch, No. 4; W. E. Waggoner, No. 5; P. L. Wills, No. 6; J. T. Holmes, No. 7.

M. Barksdale, the faithful colored messenger has been with the office for the past 8 years and during that time has never missed getting a sack of mail to the train at the right time, though there are 14 mail trains a day through Fulton.

The postoffice will show sufficient business to entitle it by the 1st of July to have free delivery, and Fulton can get it as soon as the houses are properly numbered and the streets named.

The following figures for the year 1910 will show some thing of the magnitude of the business which passed through the Fulton office: money orders issued, 7849; amount $38,689.38; fees $364.78.

Paid money orders 4165; amount

$17,645.12.

Newspapers published and mailed at Fulton, 60,816 pounds.

Registered letters received 1855, registered letters dispatched 1700.

Amount paid postmaster, assistants, railway postal clerks and rural carriers, $35,184.42.

EX-POSTMASTER, HON. T. F. BEADLES.

One Of Our Oldest Citizens—Postmaster Many Years—Prominent Republican.

The above is a good likeness of one of Fulton's old and esteemed citizens, Hon. T. F. Beadles, ex-postmaster, who is 74 years of age, having been born in Graves county, Ky., in 1837. He came to Fulton May 9, 1887 and engaged in the hardware business and on June 4, 1889 was appointed postmaster of Fulton by President Harrison. In 1893 when President Cleveland became president the second time Mr. Beadles resigned and Hon. John W. Chambers was appointed. In November 1906 Mr. McKinley was elected president and in the following spring was inaugurated. He appointed Mr. Beadles postmaster, Mr. Roosevelt re-appointed him in January 1902 and again on June 26th, 1906. He served till last year when he retired and his son, Mr. Robert B. Beadles, who had been the efficient assistant postmaster under his father was appointed postmaster.

When Mr. T. F. Beadles took charge of the postoffice in 1889, it was in a small room cut off in one corner of the dry goods store of J. A. Collins, on Lake street. Under his administration the postoffice has come to be one of the best second class postoffices in the State. The force now consists of the postmaster, assistant postmaster, chief clerk, mailing clerk and seven rural delivery carriers.

The second rural route established in Fulton county was from the Fulton office.

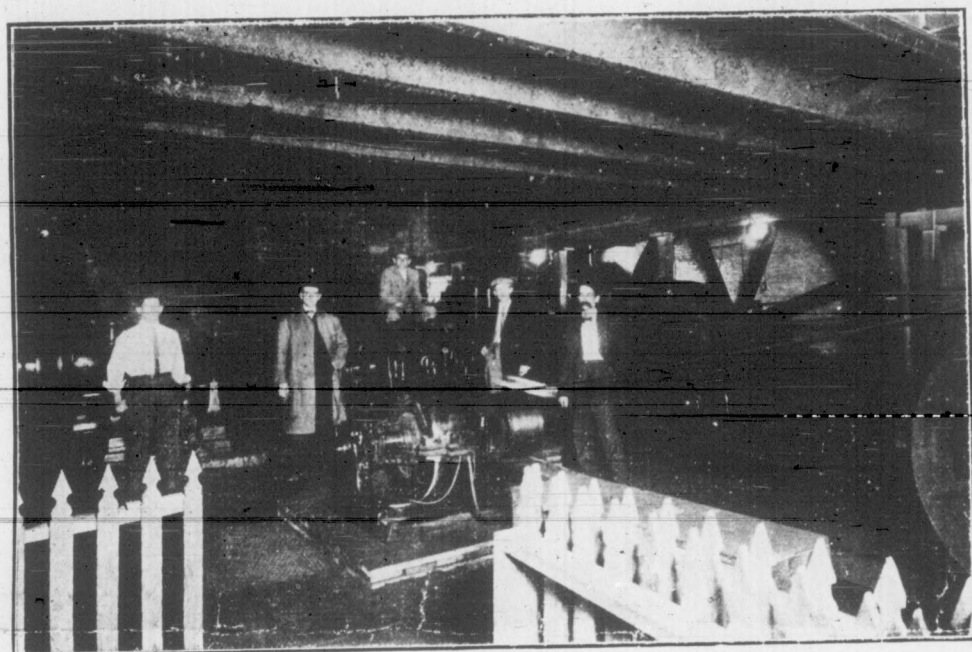

This city never had a more efficient and popular postmaster than Mr. T. F. Beadles, during the long years he served the public and this is the reason, that when he retired his son was appointed to continue in the position.

Mr. Beadles stands high in the councils of the Republican party in West Kentucky. He is a good citizen and is esteemed by all the people at home regardless of political

THE FULTON ELECTRIC LIGHT AND POWER CO.

Established in 1895—Now Owned By J. H. Hooks—Up-to-date Lighting.

It was in 1895 that Fulton felt herself well in importance by the inauguration of electric lighting, replacing coal oil, not only in the homes and business houses of the town, but relegating the ancient street lamps to the junk pile. The Morganfield Construction Co., Incorporated, of Morganfield, Ky., during this year put into operation in Fulton what was known, and has ever since been known as the Fulton Electric Light and Power Company.

The first plant of the company, which was owned by Morganfield capitalists, was erected in the building now occupied by Crunk & Stover, on Main street, and was under the management of Fred Carden, an electrician of long experience, and, although when the dynamos first came to hum in Fulton many disadvantages faced the pioneers of the infant industry from the beginning the project was lent the endorsement of everyone. It was a great step towards modernity and was recognized and welcomed as such.

In 1900 a large brick plant was erected for the Fulton Electric Light and Power Company at the present site on Walnut street and during that year the company moved into their new home, enlarging the capacity of the plant somewhat. Two years later, in 1902 Henry F. Oliver, of Morganfield, acquired the stock of the company and came to this city to take charge of his purchase, becoming active manager. The plant was by this time in a flourishing condition and was supposed to be a highly paying and valuable investment.

During 1904 L. W. Graham and others purchased the interests of Mr.

Oliver and the former was elected president of the Fulton Electric Light and Power Co., soon after assuming full control of its operations, acting as manager. From the first a general al dissatisfaction seems to have set up among the stockholders and suit after suit followed in an effort to oust Graham from his position as manager of the plant's affairs; finally by action of the court Mr. R. M. Chowning was appointed receiver for the company and in November, 1907 became the active manager of its destinies. During about three years of his control which followed the company was put upon a paying business and dividends declared.

J. H. HOOKS

The stockholders of the company finally secured an order from the circuit court judge that the property be sold at public auction to the highest bidder and in June of 1910 its present owner, Mr. J. H. Hooks, of Clarksdale, Miss., bought the whole plant, assuming control in July, last, since which time he has been in active direction of its management. He is thoroughly conversant with the business and has put the plant on an up-to-date basis, with the latest equipment in the lighting line.

The present condition of the Fulton Electric Light and Power Company is flourishing and prosperous and Mr. Hooks is living up to the reputation brought with him from Clarksdale, of being a live and clean cut business man. At all times he is on hand at his handsome offices in the upper story of the plant, and although exceedingly pleasant and courteous in his transactions fairly bristles with energy and is strictly business from toes to finger tips. He has associated with him as bookkeeper and office manager, Mr. J. M. Culver, a very efficient young business man, and as superintendent of the plant Mr. J. W. Stitts, who, since 1900, more than ten years ago, has been a valued employee of the company. Mr. Stitts is an able electrician and well liked by everyone. Mr. Milan Wheelis is engineer of the plant.

Although when first installed in Fulton at the old Main street home the plant's capacity was only 125

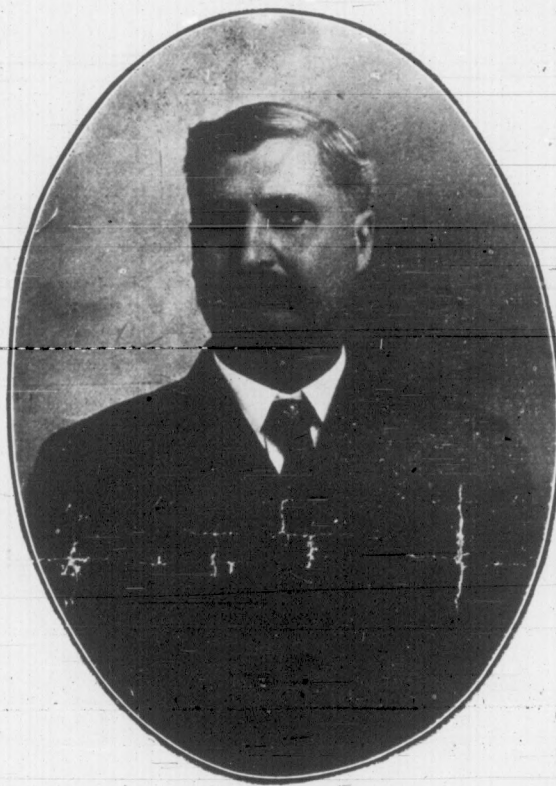

horse power with a 60 kilowatt generator, its present capacity is 450 horse power, with a 277 kilowatt generator. It supplies light to all the streets of Fulton and South Fulton, to practically all the business houses and to a large majority of the homes of the city, as well as power for the many electric Yarns in town, and for a number of motors operating in saw per plants and other machinery. During 1910 the city council ordered are lights on Lake street and it is thought that the are system will at an early date replace the incandescent lights all over the city.

A tremendous money saver for the electric consumer has just been put into use by the Fulton Electric Light and Power Company in the form of the MAZDA LIGHT, which makes exactly three times the light of the incandescent burner at the same cost. It is fast popularizing electric lighting here and the MAZDA LIGHT is being used in home and business houses alike with equally splendid results. It is a beautiful white light, far superior to the old yellow burner and will eventually entirely supplant the latter.

Few cities of even much larger size than Fulton possess such an up-to-date electric lighting plant as this place and our people are well pleased with the plant under the new management and ownership.

MR. JACK HALL

The Poultry King of Kentucky and a Successful Business Man.

The above is a splendid likeness of Mr. Jack Hall, one of Fulton's hand-somest citizens, known at Jackson, Miss., where he was in business 4 years as Uncle Jack, and the Poultry King of Kentucky.

Mr. Hall was born in Christian county, Kentucky, in 1856, moved to Graves county in 1861, with his parents and came to Fulton in 1881, when quite a young man. He first engaged in buying tobacco for the firm of Browder, Usher & Barry. He next embarked in the dry goods line with Jno. W. Blythe & Co., and was with them 6 years.

In 1890 he entered into the poultry business when it was in its infancy here. The first year he did a business ranging between $5,000 to $10,000. He is now doing a poultry business of $260,000 per annum. He ships an average of a car load of poultry a week to the large cities or 52 cars per year, besides many hundred cases of eggs.

He has developed the poultry business into an important industry in this section. He raises and encourages the raising also, of fine strains of poultry of every description, adding many thousands of dollars to the wealth of the surrounding section.

He spent 4 years of his time in business at Jackson, Miss., but returned to Fulton at the end of that time. He is now the senior partner and leading member of the firm of Hall, Brooks & Boone, wholesale dealers and shippers of eggs and poultry. Their poultry house is just north of Lake St., where they have a large building and enclosure for the care of their fowls until they are placed in cars and shipped away.

Mr. Hall lives on Park Ave., near Third St.

His business has been worth much to the people throughout this section in giving them a market the year round at good prices for eggs and poultry.

FULTON'S LARGEST DEPARTMENT STORE

J. KELLY WOOD & CO

THE NEW GLOBE ON THE HILL.

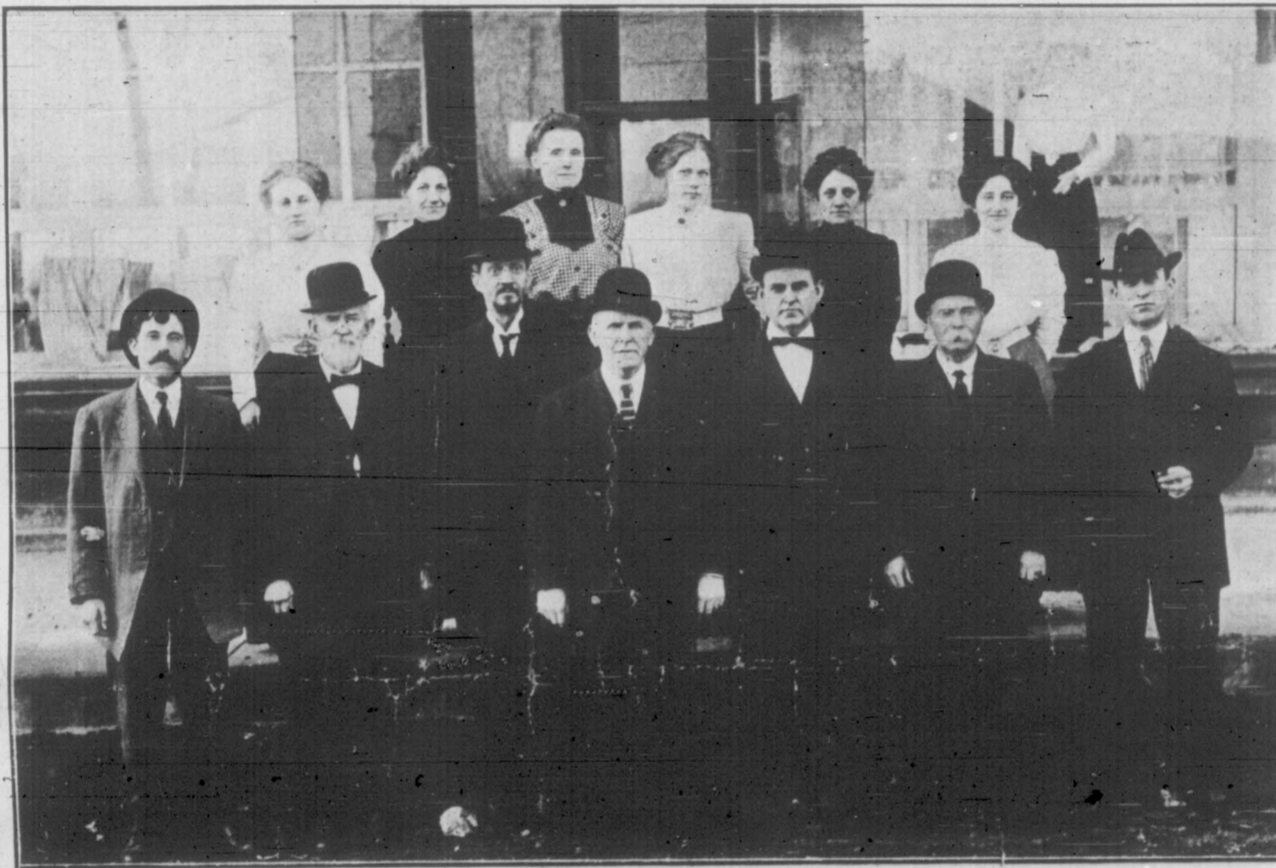

Unique in its marvelous growth and without a parallel in all this section of country has been the unprecedented rise of this big firm during the past two years, from a very modest beginning.

Something like four years ago, the moving spirit and active head of this business and who has shown himself to be one of the most capable business men and organizers in Kentucky, bought the R. L. Dacus stock on Lake street. He sold it out at a decided advantage in a few months and did so well, that when the opportunity offered for the purchase of the old Globe on the Hill on Main street early in 1909 he bought it.

From that time till now, slightly more than two years, has witnessed the most phenomenal growth of any dry goods business in Fulton or in the State. Within that time one building has grown into three and the floor space today is 100 by 100 feet square or 10,000 square feet, more than twice that of any other Fulton firm and admittedly one of the largest houses in the country, outside of a big city. This house has from 12 to 14 employees all the time and in the busy season increases to 18 or 20. This firm pays the salary and gets the best salespeople to be had.

A Department Store.

The big establishment is divided into three stores; the Ladies' Department, in which is carried an immense stock of every thing that Ladies wear, dry goods and notions.

The next store carries a big stock of men's clothing, furnishing goods, hats and every thing in that line. The third department is exclusively a shoe store and here is one of the largest stocks of foot wear to be found outside a metropolis. The three combined make the New Globe

How They Sell So Cheap.

The wonder is how this big store is able to sell so cheap. We will here give away the secret. This firm makes it a business to buy out first class stocks of goods, sold under the hammer getting them as a rule at a little more than 50 cents on the dollar. Of course these can be sold at much less than regular price and still a handsome profit made. Not only this, the New Globe buys direct in large quantities from the leading firms of the country, like the Hart, Schaffner & Marx Clothing Co., and other leading houses in the different lines and from the profits made out of the stocks bought under forced sales, is enabled to sell anything in the entire house lower than other firms and still come out ahead. This then tells the story of how the New Globe has been such a marvelous success. It has taken cool calculation, brain and money at the right time, together with a thorough knowledge of the business from beginning to end to bring about this result.

Mr. J. Kelly Wood, the head of the firm has lived in Fulton from childhood and has been selling dry goods all his life. He knows goods when he sees them, knows the prices that he can afford to give for them, knows his trade and knows what will suit them.

Do you wonder under these circumstances, that the New Globe, now just a little more than two years old has sprung, from a small beginning to its present immense proportions, carrying a stock of more than $75,000—and making big gains all the time.

REX, A Kentucky Thoroughbred.

He makes a specialty of the mule business and buys them all over West Kentucky, West Tennessee and Southern Illinois. He ships them throughout the south in car lots. He has handled already this season about 950 and will make it 1,299 by the time the spring season is over.

Mr. Callahan, although a very busy man with his mule and horse business finds time to look after the welfare of Fulton, being one of the city's councilmen and every ready to advance the interests of his city.

THE DAILY LEADER.

As we are saying much about other people, about Fulton and Fulton enterprises, we have thought it would not be amiss to speak a word about the Leader in the special edition.

The first issue of the Fulton Daily Leader made its appearance on the streets of Fulton on the afternoon of June 25th, 1898, founded by Col. Mott Ayres. The paper was a success from the beginning and in the following month of July the Fultonian-Democrat, the oldest weekly in Fulton, came under the control of the Leader. Since then a number of daily and weekly newspapers have arisen and flourished for a season and have either been absorbed by the Leader or have put out their lights and passed into oblivion.

The Leader has pursued the tenor of its way, sometimes even, sometimes uneven. Its greatest addition was when it secured the Fulton Commercial and Farm Journal, our big weekly, the leading farmers paper in Western Kentucky.

The Leader has always been progressive and full of vitality. We do not believe in going to sleep on the job and we have labored to give the people a live newspaper. We have stood for a straightforward, moral civic policy, without being an extremist or a follower of isms. We believe the voice of the people should control the public policy and in politics we are Democratic to the core. The Leader gives the news and gives it while it is news. We don't expect to, neither do we claim to compete with the metropolitan dailies in giving all the news but we do give the news of Fulton and surrounding section and such general news as we feel will be of special interest to our people.

The Leader office is equipped with the latest improved No. 5 model linotype, two revolution Campbell printing press, Gordon and Universal jobbers, Boston wire stitcher, and the latest and most up-to-date job type.

The matter for the special edition has been prepared and edited by Messrs. J. M. Simmons and R. S. Williams, who have had the assistance of quite a number of our citizens in securing historic and other data.

The company is incorporated under the name of The Fulton Publishing Co. The officers are Mott Ayres, president; Herbert Carr secretary and treasurer; R. S. Williams, business manager.

We desire to thank those who have contributed to the success of the special edition with their liberal advertising or assistance in any other way.

FULTON SCHOOLS RANK AMONG THE BEST.

In the State Of Kentucky. Prof. J. C. Cheek, Superintendent, One of the State's Foremost Educators.—Splendid Corps of Teachers.—Schools Pride of the City.

Fulton is not surpassed by any city in the State in her public schools, which rank among the best. They are the pride of the city. For ten years, Prof. J. C. Cheek, one of the foremost educators in the South, has been at the head of the Fulton schools and under his management and his splendid corps of assistants the high water mark has been reached. During that time the schools have grown from 8 teachers and one house, to 13 teachers and three houses; from 40 in High School to 100 and a relative growth and improvement every way has been made. When Prof. Cheek took charge graduates could not enter college. Now twelve grades are taught and last year two high school graduates entered the Kentucky State college; two entered the Illinois State college; one entered Vanderbilt University; one entered the Kentucky State Normal; and one entered Belmont college.

Half of the High School is made up of boys, an unusual thing.

The enrollment the past two years has been over 90 per cent. of the scholastic population, which is a most remarkable per cent.

The Carr Institute and High

School is a splendid building situated in West Fulton. The other two schools are the East side, well located in East Fulton, and the school at Riceville. The East side teaches through the 7th grade and Riceville school through the 4th grade.

The total enrollment of these schools is above 650. There is also a colored school with an enrollment of about 200.

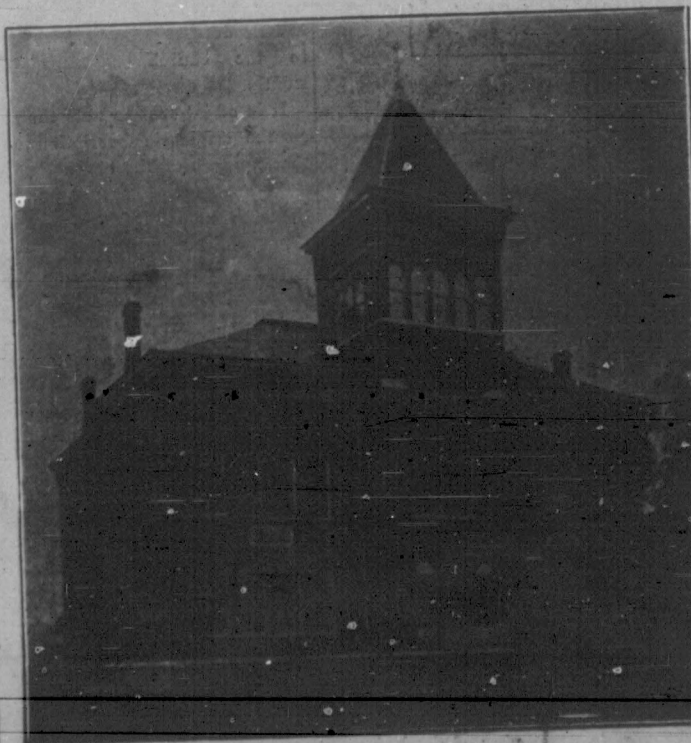

South Fulton has the Tennessee College an enrollment of over 400 and a colored school with nearly 300 enrolled.

The following is a list of the splendid faculty of the Fulton schools:

J. C. Cheek, superintendent, served for the past ten years Carr Institute. Miss Alma Givens, has taught 4 years in high school. Miss Gemma Hopkins has taught 1 year in high school. Miss Macon Sebastian, 8th grade taught 2 years. W. C. Underwood, 7th grade has taught 3 years. Miss Jessie Lee Reed, 5th and 6th grades, has taught 4 years. Miss Bessie Rice, 4th grade has taught 5 years. Miss Lillian Kirkland, 3rd grade, has taught 2 years. Mrs. H. A. Herring, 1st grade has taught 5 years.

Since the above was written Miss Sebastian resigned on account of her health being somewhat impaired and is now at her home in Martin, Tenn.

Miss Jane McConnell, from near Jordan, this county, was elected in her place to teach the 8th grade and assumed the position March 20th. She has taught some time in the Ful-

DR. W. T. BOLLING, D. D.

Rev. W. T. Bolling, D. D. was born in Green county, Alabama, May 25th, 1846 and moved with his parents to Tennessee in 1855. In April 1861 he entered the Confederate service as a member of the Harris Zouave Cadets from Memphis, Tennessee forming Co. D., 154th Sr., Tennessee infantry, Col. Preston Smith commanding. Serving four months, he was discharged as too young for service and enlisted with his young comrades in Co. C., 2nd Tennessee infantry, Col. Wm. B. Bate commanding, with which regiment he served until the close of the war, being in all the engagements, save one, in which this command participated, including Perryville, Murfreesboro, Chickamauga, Ringgold Gap, the entire Atlanta campaign, from Dalton to Jonesboro, Franklin and Nashville, where he was captured and sent to Camp Chase prison, near Columbus, Ohio, where he remained confined until the close of the war. He was wounded three times, at Chickamauga, Lost Mountain, and Nashville and from one of these wounds came very near losing his right arm.

In the fall of 1868 Dr. Bolling entered the Methodist ministry in which he has served continuously until the present and during these many years has filled a number of the most important places, including Hannibal, Mo., Beaver, Col., Lexington and Covington, Ky., Shreveport, La., Jackson, Miss., and Central church, Memphis, Tenn.

At the last session of the Memphis Conference he was assigned to the pastorate of the First Methodist church this city, where he preaches to large and interested congregations.

Dr. Bolling first received the degree of D. D. from the St. Charles College in Missouri in 1886, and from the University of Nashville and Peabody Institute for Teachers in 1909.

Dr. Bolling is a young old man, looks on the bright side of things, and is universally liked by young people. He likes Fulton and Fulton likes him, and the Leader joins the many who hope that he may remain long with us and that his ministry may be abundantly blessed.

History of Some of Fulton's Churches

THE FIRST METHODIST CHURCH

The largest church in point of membership, and probably the oldest church organization in Fulton is the First Methodist church, which embraces many of the prominent citizens of the city and of the surrounding section.

This church was organized in 1870 in the old Seminary building, a two story frame which stood about where Smith & Bunch's American Cafe is now located and which was used for church services, school and by the lodge of the city. The church has had some of the best men and ablest ministers of the Memphis Conference as pastors.

Rev. T. L. Beard was the pastor who organized the church in 1870. The following have followed him: Revs. J. T. C. Collins, J. M. Spence, J. S. Renshaw, F. Bynum, J. W. Knott, W. H. Armstrong, O. B. Whitten, C. F. Moore, A. E. Scott, J. R. Bell, H. B. Johnston, W. C. Sellars, G. W. Wilson, E. K. Bransford, J. M. Scott, J. G. Clark, E. B. Ramsey, W. G. Hefley, W. A. Freeman, H. B. Brooks and the present pastor, Dr. W. T. Bolling, a sketch of whom appears elsewhere.

Of the 18 charter members there survive to this time only five. They are: Mr. J. B. McDowell, Mesdames J. B. McDowell, E. A. Browder, Jessie P. Bransford and Ella Anderson.

The first church house erected was by the Methodists in 1871 and stood on State Line street where Dr. Alexander's Sanatorium is now located.

The congregation moved into it that year, but it was not completed until 1873.

The present handsome and commodious structure on the corner of State Line and Plain streets was erected under the pastorate of Rev. H. B. Johnson in 1889.

A Sunday school was started even before the church was organized and prospered under the leadership of Rev. J. T. C. Collins and Dr. S. G. Patterson. Other superintendents who have followed them are: F. M. Holladay, R. S. Murrell, R. A. Browder, S. A. D. Steele, Turner Gardner, R. M. Bollinger, W. P. Felts, and W. Hughes. Mr. Hughes is the beloved and efficient superintendent, now and has served in that position for a number of years. Under his management the school has nearly doubled and at present numbers about 450, including home department and cradle roll. The school pays $200 for sustaining a missionary in Mexico. Mr. Hughes is also secretary and treasurer of the official board of the church.

The membership of the church is now over 300 and it is a live mission church maintaining a missionary to Mexico, Miss Rosa Brooks at $400 per year. She is the lovely daughter of Rev. Warren Brooks, late pastor of the church. She is located at El Paso, Texas, where she teaches in the Mexican Mission.

The church was never in a more flourishing condition than now. Substantial improvements, repainting, etc., are to be made on the church this summer, to cost probably $1,500.

The following is the Board of Stewards of the First Methodist church: P. H. Weeks, chm., D. W. Hughes, secretary and treasurer.

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

To give a history of the Christian church in Fulton, Ky., a period of previous history must be stated. The first preaching by representatives of this people was done by Eld. Jesse Sewell about 1855 in the yard of one Daniel Huddleston. As the fruit of his labors a congregation was set in order and a log house built. This meeting house was known as Mont Rose. The second Sunday of May 1874 a number of the Mont Rose church with others, forty in number, were set in order as a church by Eld. B. A. Cooke. In the spring of 1875 the house of worship was built and remained until remodeled in 1909. Part of the historic building can be seen as a part of the present edifice. Four of the charter members, W. T. Carr and wife, Mrs. Fannie Eddings and J. T. Stubblefield are still with the church. Of those who united soon after the organization are: Mrs. Charlotte McCall, Mrs. H. A. Burns, Mrs. M. J. Hubbler, J. H. Huddleston and wife and H. F. Taylor and wife. The church has in the 37 years had about 1,500 members.

The early congregation had many of the experiences and hardships that come to all young organizations. The spirit of its people was dauntless and difficulties were but stepping stones upon which they rose. The spirit was that of the pioneer and prominent families whose influence, liberality and zeal for good works has given to Fulton this organization. Among those who, as preachers helped to fight the battle of success were: R. A. Cooke, F. M. McKibbey, J. H. Roulhas, R. W. Dunlap, Brown Godwin, E. M. Waits, Evangelists who held meeting were J. C. Creel, J. W. Higbee, W. E. Hall, C. C. Cline, Wm. Cooke, O. A. Carr, H. L. Calhoun, W. H. Sheffer, Wallace Sharp, E. L. Powell, J. W. McGarvey, J. B. Briney, Geo. E. Flowers, E. C. Dougle. These men are God's noblemen, men of culture and ability, some of them leading spirits in the pulpit of the brotherhood.

The congregation in the past has been blessed with the lives of men and women, whose influence, good works and liberality were richer than Norman blood. While the personal of the congregation has changed from its early form, there are those upon whom the spirit of the past has fallen. The present congregation is made up of people from all the ranks of honorable life. In the congregation those, who with their children and children's children, and others who have joined them are living stones, material for an edifice more pleasing than the line of the visible architecture.

The present membership of the First Christian church is about 225, with a home of $18,000.00 value and a seating capacity of nearly 400. The Bible school has an enrollment of 130.

C. K. Marshall is the pastor now in charge.

FIRST CUMBERLAND PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The history of the First Cumberland Presbyterian church in Fulton is quite brief and like most churches in their infancy it had dark days as well as bright ones and many obstacles to overcome. When the people began talking of organizing a church the good friends of the Christian church offered the use of their house of worship for that purpose. With grateful hearts the offer was accepted and on June 20, 1887 the church was organized by Rev. G. H. Shel-drake with 18 members. It was received under the care of Obion Presbytery in March 1888 at Newbern, Tenn. In 1889 the old Methodist church was purchased and made a mission, until September 1898. At that time Obion Presbytery met here and Rev. J. H. Thomas was ordained to the full work of the ministry and immediately called to the pastorate of this church for half time and continued until March 1903. At this time the membership had grown to nearly 50.

In 1900 the old church was sold and began at once to plan for a new one. Mrs. Ada Clemmons donated the lot. The contract was let and work began.

In the spring of 1901 the church was completed, the first sermon being preached in June. The cost of the new church was about $4,500.

In March 1903 Rev. W. H. Mesley was called for half time and in Sept. 1903 was called full time, this being the first full time preaching and he continued to Sept. 1909.

In Oct. 1909 Rev. J. H. Zwingle was called and was the pastor until July 1910.

The membership is composed of a devoted band of Christian workers, ent time, they have only had three superintendents, the first being Mr. W. F. Coburn, who served faithfully and at his death was succeeded by Mr. Joe Wade, who held this office for a number of years. The present superintendent, Mr. Ed Heywood, has been in active service for the past eighteen or twenty years and has won the love and respect of all who have come under his supervision during these years.

Since the erection of this church there has been a number of ministers in charge, many who still linger in the minds of Fulton people for some good deed done. Their last minister, Rev. C. L. Price, was pastor for thirteen years, and during his stay here won the good will of the people of Fulton, and the members have felt themselves lost since his removal this year to Florence, Ala.

At the present the members of this church are in correspondence with the Government for the sale of their lot, and if this deal is made, there will be a modern and pretty Episcopal church built on a better location.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH.

The First Baptist church of this city is located at the corner of Second and Eddings streets and in one of the handsomest residence sections of Fulton.

The church was organized in the year 1878. The organization was the outcome of a meeting held here by Evangelists Hobbs and Butler, Baptist missionaries working in this part of the state. The organization was made up of just 19 members, of whom Mrs. J. M. Freeman and Mrs. Jessie Whitsell are now living in and near Fulton.

The first pastor called to the care of the church was Elder J. N. Hall, one of the most noted polemic among the Baptists, and an able man in every sense of the word. His salary was fixed at $150 per annum, and he accepted the work to preach to the church one Sunday each month.

It is of interest to note the names on the original subscription list to the expenses of the church. Among them appear the names of Norman, Crutchfield, Shaddock, Booker, Meadows, Hicks, Atherton, Workman, Freeman, Murrell, Terry, Wright, DeMyer, Snowden, Finch, Cunningham, Green, Winston, Johnson and others.

For four years the church worshipped in the old Seminary building on Lake street. At the end of this time the church had grown to such strength as to make it possible for an effort to be made toward the building of a house of worship. This encouragement was further strengthened by the liberal gift of a lot for this purpose by Mr. W. T. Carr, and the gift of brick for the building by Mr. Jesse Whitesell. With these liberal gifts the pastor, then Eld. W. G. Reeves, and Bro. M. L. Norman began putting the material on the ground for the erection of the building. A modest little brick house was soon completed, which served as a home for the church for the next twenty years.

About the year 1898 there was begun in the church the agitation of plans for a new and more suitable building. For some years this agitation was kept up and under the ministry of Eld. W. D. Turnley the present handsome structure was erected.

There have been in all 14 pastors during the thirty-three years of the existence of the church, Revs. J. N. Hall, de'd; W. G. Reeves, Jndson Tyler, de'd; W. H. Williams, W. S. Rodney, B. M. Bogard, Martin Ball, E. D. Wilson, W. J. Bolin, J. H. Wright, W. D. Turnley, Rev. M. E. Dodd and the present pastor, Rev. M. E. Staley.

The late Dr. T. T. Eaton, of Louisville, beloved by the entire Baptist denomination who was stricken and died at Grand Junction, Tenn., on his way to Mississippi, preached his last sermon in the First Baptist church here.

The debt on the church building was wiped out under the ministry of Rev. M. E. Dodd, one of the most successful in the church's history, the last note of $1,500 being burned in the presence of a large audience of 700 people on Sunday Sept. 8, 1907, a great day in the history of the congregation and the day when the church was dedicated Dr. E. Y. Mullins, president of the Theological Seminary, Louisville preached the dedication sermon at the tabernacle, all the churches uniting in the service, Rev. W. D. Turnley, the former pastor, came from Ft. Dodge, Fla., to be present at the dedication.

The church property now consists of one of the best equipped church buildings to be found anywhere, being perhaps the handsomest church building in this city. It is equipped with modern baptistry, pipe organ, golden oak furniture carpeted throughout, heated by steam, lighted by gas and electricity. There is also on the church property a convenient and comfortable pastor's home. It is estimated that the property of the church is worth about $10,000.

The present pastor, Eld. M. E. Staley, is now in the fourth year of his ministry with the church, is very popular and the church is growing in strength and power with God and the people. The membership is about three hundred.

OTHER CHURCHES.

In addition to these there are the First Presbyterian church on Walnut street, which has been without a pastor some time, but numbers some of our best people in its membership. Also the Primitive Baptist church on State Line street in South Fulton, which has some splendid people for its membership.

The colored people also have five churches in and around Fulton and some with large membership.
