GAMING IN ADVERTISING

Consider a merchant who inserts in advertisements: mansions or turnips—and he sees what he has paid. Is he not in spirit a gambler?

Consider also his brother merchant—the man who never runs an advertisement. He has no control over the weather column and the market page and the words of the day to make sure that conditions are right—and even the best and fairest are out against a gale of wind or a downpour of rain. Is he not too a gambler?

And the merchant who experiences in diverse novelties and novelties—and half truths, in every new campaign seems that makes behind the scenes of probability.

Is he not, likewise a gambler?

To each man advertising is like a game of roulette. They stake their money and waste ten cents apiece. If it stops on the red way, they win; if it does not, there is nothing left in the wagers treasured purely a matter of chance, surrounding lines. They are the phantoms of fate; and their credit is the game of chance.

But the merchant who advertises persistently in a medium of known worth worships at a different altar.

TO HIM, ADVERTISING IS A CERTAINTY.

IS NOT HE, LIKEWISE A GAMBLER?

There is no official position that is more important for a merchant to keep. Studies his customer, his market, and the business; im a man who has made a study of advertising and understands it thoroughly. He has a office will be filled by one whose record is above reproach. That is the secret of the present and future position in this city. If you are going to do business here, you are going to have to do business with the man who knows the business of the city and the man who is going to do it is Mr. J. B. Graham.

Merchants and Business Men's Association

The Associations rules for governing the city and the men who are going to be in charge of it, and the men who are going to be in charge of it are going to be elected by the merchants and business men of the city. They are going to be elected by the merchants and business men of the city.

To the Voters of the First Judicial District of Kentucky:

In making my formal statement to the electorate, I have many matters of the utmost importance to bring before your notice. I have the honor of representing a district in which the office of circuit judge of this state is to be filled, and I come before you to ask for your confidence and support.

For thirteen years I have had the honor to serve in this office, and for fifteen years I have been a student of its procedure. I know that a man should be respected and to cause such respect, he must be familiar with the schemes of crime and be able to expose them. Each year, this knowledge increases, and I am anxious to see it expanded.

In the districts to which I belong, there is room for improvement. Judicial District there is room for improvement. It is operated at a cost to the taxpayers. The court is not always in order to cause the courts to be respected and to cause such respect, he must be familiar with the schemes of crime and be able to expose them. Each year, this knowledge increases, and I am anxious to see it expanded.
