NUMBER TWELVE

4 Negroes Held On Counterfeit Charge

Four negroes were arrested in Fulton Tuesday night by Officers Dunn, Huddleston and Dalton, on a charge of passing counterfeit money. Local police were notified by description of four colored persons who, while passing through Mayfield coming from Paducah, had passed a counterfeit $5.00 bill at a Mayfield restaurant. They were caught here in Missionary Bottom, having stopped here for a room. Mayfield officers were called, who were in Fulton soon after to take charge of them. The accused admitted that they were coming from Paducah but denied knowing even the whereabouts of Mayfield.

They are Margaret Moore 26, Anne Mae Garrett 20, Isaac Moson 27, and Joseph Martin 26, all of Chicago. They at first told officers that they were going to Memphis but later told that they were enroute to Covington to visit with friends. Colly Hayes, negro, was arrested Tuesday by Officers Huddleston and Boaz, on a charge of stealing four copper valves valued at $25 each, which were taken from the City Water Works pump station. The valves were sold by two other negroes, who Hayes had given them, to telling them that E. L. Michael, engineer at the plant had given him the old copper. Hayes was tried in Judge Adams' court.

The smokehouse of R. L. Jolley south of town was broken into and one shoulder, two hams and two muddlings stolen.

NEWS BRIEFS

We read with interest an editorial in a recent issue of the Cairo Evening Citizen, in which the conditions causing the delay in appropriations for construction of the Cairo-Wickliffe bridge were set out. Virgil Chapman, Kentucky Congressman from Paris, chairman of a committee at Washington, is alleged to have stated that the bill will be passed over his dead body.

Southern Illinois and West Kentucky are anxious for this bridge to be built, which would be the means of bringing thousands of motorists through this section each year. Much traffic now going thru Missouri would come through Kentucky.

It seems to us that the next relief project in this community should be one to keep the Harris Fork Creek from flooding our streets, stores and residential section. It not only is a nuisance but is detrimental to property and business activities. It is a big problem and we do not propose to know just how to go about the proper drainage of this area. But a survey of conditions and causes by a competent engineer would be the first step toward correction of this situation. Now that the KERA and PWA are putting up money for work programs, it is unwise to delay action on this matter. Business interests and property owners should call upon the City Council to push forward a plan that would do away with these flood conditions.

The regular second Sunday singing which was scheduled to be held at the court house here Sunday has been postponed on account of the Fulton-Hickman county convention of the high school building at Paducah, six miles east of Clinton on the Clinton-Mayfield highway.

Union services will be held at the First Christian church here on Good Friday, April 19, from 9 a. m. to 3 p. m. according to a committee of the Fulton Ministerial Association. Rev. E. M. Mathis, pastor of the First Methodist church, will preside. All protestant churches in the city will co-operate, and the various ministers will be in charge at each hour. The Chamber of Commerce has asked every business house in the city to close for one hour during this period, and co-operate with the religious program.

During the severe electrical storm which preceded torrential rains here early Friday morning, lightning struck the home of Herschel Cashon on Oak-st in South Fulton. The bolt penetrated the roof, striking a bed, shattering its posts and setting fire to the bed clothing. His daughter, Miss Montez Cashon, had arisen from the bed only a short time before, and would have suffered injury and maybe death had she remained in bed.

Strawberry trains have begun to move through Fulton with consistent regularity in the past few days averaging better than 100 cars per week. Berries routed through here are now coming from Louisiana, and between 3500 and 4000 cars are expected through Fulton in the next few weeks. Tennessee berries are expected to start moving around May 1 or 5, with Kentucky berries becoming ready for shipment about May 10 to 15. Indications are that the harvest will be better this season, and shipments are expected to be larger.

The April term of Fulton Circuit Court started at Hickman Monday, with Judge L. L. Hindman presiding. All cases will be tried without jury. On May 6th the May term of circuit court will convene at Fulton.

BOARD OF EDUCATION IN MEETING MONDAY NIGHT

The Fulton Board of Education met Monday night at the school building with all members present. During the business meeting all present teachers of Fulton High and Carr Institute were re-elected. The budget was discussed and a financial report was given by J. C. Lewis. A payment is to be made of $2,000 on the school indebtedness by the secretary, Mrs. Butterworth.

BROADWAY GLAMOUR IN BIG STAGE SHOW HERE

The Orpheum Theatre offers for two days starting Tuesday, one of the newest yet one of the oldest stage revues on the road this season, when they present for their patrons the all new Clifford's "Manhattan Revue" featuring 25 very fine entertainers. The show has just completed a tour through the East and North over the Loew circuit of theatres, and comes here this season with everything new.

It is doubtful if any show this season has a more plentiful supply of good clean comedy, fast dancing, good singing, new novelty and brightly music than is offered by the "Manhattan Revue." Charlie Clifford, one of the best known showmen of the age, has seen to it that the show is clean and entertaining above all and has produced all new forty-five minutes of stage show that is worth while.

Featured in the show are seven acts which include Rosaline, the Pan Dancer, Robert Demont Trio of comedy acrobats, Shannon "Smiles" Stanley, "Acrobatic Dancer" Hal Bronsin, Brazil's favorite "nut", Joe Sterling, Broadway's favorite dancer Merkle and O'Neil, "that sister team", the Three Hillbillies with their "Backwoods nonsense", a very excellent blues singer, plus the Six American Dancers of good looking young ladies and the Eight Radio Ramblers who offer a brand of music that fairly scintillates with bubbling rhythm and charm.

The show this year offers no master of ceremonies to kill time introducing the various acts, but moves right on with no waste of time between numbers, hence the program is fast, snappy and worth while entertainment of the first magnitude and above all clean enough for every member of the family.

The screen attraction is Warner Bros. "Florentine Dagger" with Donald Woods and Margaret Lindsay.

REV. GEORGE HEATON ROTARY SPEAKER HERE

The Fulton Rotarians met Monday in its regular meeting. President Earle presided and made a very interesting talk on the meeting in Paris last week. Rev. George Heaton pastor of the First Baptist church of Paducah was present and made a very instructive talk to the group on "Progress," having been introduced by W. R. Barr Sr.

Other visitors for the meeting were the Rev. E. M. Mathis, R. E. Gohlsby and T. T. Boaz.

A committee was appointed to aid in the work to be done on the Cairo-Wickliffe bridge. Those appointed on that committee were T. M. Franklin, Messrs. Weeks and Smith.

CARROLL E. CLOYD EDITOR CROCKETT CO. SENTINEL

Many Fulton people remember Carroll E. Cloyd, who formerly filled a pulpit in a local church. During his stay in Fulton he made many friends, who will be glad to hear a word about him. A friend of his passed along to us a copy of the Crockett County Sentinel, a weekly newspaper published at Bells, Tenn., and of which he is publisher.

It is interestingly gotten up, and shows that his old inclination to like the publishing business was not just a passing fancy. But he still labors in the pulpit, and conducts services regularly in his adopted section.

MEETING OF FULTON CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

The Fulton Chamber of Commerce met Tuesday night for a brief report. Fourteen regular members were present. It was reported that $56.60 had been raised for the building of a band stand in Carr's park which is estimated to cost about $60. This report was made by Raymond Peoples, chairman. The remainder of this needed fund is available through the remaining TVA funds which were raised here last year.

A letter was read to the group from a promoter who would install tomato canning plant here, and asking that a stock of $4,500 be raised, which was rejected by all present.

Retail Merchants Oppose Sales Tax

Retail merchants of Fulton, Clinton and Hickman met at the Chamber of Commerce here Monday night to consolidate the efforts of their organization in opposing the state sales tax and bring about a reform in the state government. J. Ray Graham, president of the Fulton merchants association, presided.

Wallace Embry, secretary of the Kentucky Retail Merchants Association, explained the efforts of the association and outlined its platform. Chief among the planks of its platform are repeal of the sales tax, enactment of a law of referendum and recall to control lawmakers, abolition of the per diem plan of pay for legislators and placing of them on a salary basis, reform in election laws, economy in government and opposition to increased taxes, strict adherence to budgets, and promotion of better relations between retailers.

George Hester, Bert Newhouse and L. Kasnow of Fulton, E. Dobson and V. P. Rudd of Hickman and Mr. Walker and Mr. Vance of Clinton were named as committees to raise association dues in the respective communities.

Raymond Peoples called attention to the Cairo bridge program which is being held up, and pointed out what the completion of this bridge would mean to this section. It was agreed that a telegram should be sent Congressmen and Senator from this district, asking their support in behalf of this project.

A delegation of retail merchants went to Mayfield Wednesday to induce Rob Humphreys to make the race again for state senator. But Mr. Humphreys stated that he could not run due to business at home.

The Lucky Lawrences

By Kathleen Norris

SYNOPSIS

The luck that brought the Boston Lawrences to California at the beginning of the gold rush has deserted the present generation. From a 4,000-acre ranch, their holdings have shrunk to a small farm, and the old family home in Clipperville, Phil, now twenty-five, has gone into the iron works. Gail to the public library and Edith to the book department of Clipperville's largest store. Sam is in school, and seventeen-year-old Ariel is becoming a problem. Phil is fascinated by "that terrible" Lily Casa, whose husband has deserted her. Young Van Murchison, son of a wealthy family, returns from Yale, and Gail has visions, through marriage with him, of the turning of the Lawrence luck. Dick Stebbins, Phil's best friend, has the run of the house. Ariel is sneaking out of the house at night for joy rides. Phil suggests, to his sisters' consternation, that they invite Lily Casa to the house. Gail goes with Van for a week-end with the Clippes, his uncle and aunt. She is received coldly by Mrs. Clippie and her guests. At a roadside diner she sees a race-car driver helping Ariel into a roadster. Ariel admits she was at the place, at night, and displays no remorse. Gail is gloomy as she considers the family's outlook.

CHAPTER V—Continued

Best of all had been the morning after a dance, when, waking in the big hotel on the hilltop, Gail had breakfasted in pajamas—the silk pajamas Edith had won when she won the Hope Chest at the Catholic fair last year.

After breakfast the party had split and scattered, Gail going off with Van in the roadster.

They had gone to the Cliff house and apostrophized the seals that were barking harshly on the rocks behind the drifts of fog; they had had tin-types taken on the board walk, and had tried all the swings and chutes. They had come downtown again and lunched on a roof above old Chinatown, hearing the cars honking in the streets below and the fishermen crying their wares. They had bought ginger and li-chee nuts, had lingered long at the theater doorway, studying the cheap little photographs, bursting into fresh laughter as they pretended to translate the hieroglyphics to one another.

An idiot—yes, but Van was a most lovable idiot, the ideal idiot with whom to spend a silly day like this, when one's senses were still dreamy and dulled with the excitement of a gala night, and when one had him to oneself—not showing off, not given any chance to be drawn away, innocently to hurt one's feelings. This day in Chinatown was one to be marked with a white stone for Gail.

At four they had known they must start for home. It would take almost two hours to drive to Clipperville; Gail had not dared prolong the fun too far. Van had landed her safely at her own gate at six o'clock, and she had gone into the dim old brooding house, that was close and dark to night, with a sudden realization of the limitations of the place—the stupidness of home.

"I've had the best time I ever had in my life," she had told them over and over again, exhausted by sheer felicity. She told them the jokes, the situations, the events, in an incoherent jumble. Edith had listened eagerly, sympathetically; Phil was not at home. Ariel had listened, too, but with a difference.

"Ariel had an experience last night. She went out for a casual drive with the Camps after the movie," Edith had said, "and they broke a spring, and it was nearly midnight when she got in! Phil and I were terribly frightened."

Gail's eyes and Ariel's had flashed together. But even when they were alone Ariel had not been communicative.

"You run your affairs and let me run mine!" she had said, not rudely, very simply.

"But it wasn't a broken spring, Ariel?"

"I say it was."

Gail had been too anxious to get back to her own dreams and memories to worry, even about Ariel.

The day had had its marvelous moment. It had come at four o'clock, when she and Van, laughing over the purchase of dragons, bowls, candlesticks and charms in the small, old-fashioned interior of a dark little Chinatown shop, had been reluctantly forced to a consideration of the flying time.

"Yep, that's so, we can't stay in town—we ain't married yet!" Van had said, with his wild laugh.

It wasn't much. But it was enough for her to remember happily now; it showed that he did think of it, that it was in his mind.

"We ain't married yet!" It would have been a little better if he had not put it in the vernacular. Still, it was sweet.

She went to sleep dreaming of the newspapers of a few years hence. Her heart was very tender toward Van tonight. He had been a charming companion today, this big tweed-clad man with the well-filled wallet and the shining open ear. Gail liked the memory of his smiling lean face grinning at her. She liked his clothes, his speech; she liked his references to places and things that belonged to a world of leisure and luxury that she did not know. Almost every week-end was spent at the ranch in Los Gatos now, and between the Mondays and Fridays Gail lived in but a dreamy half-consciousness of what went on at home. The women of Van's set had taken her up, and when the Clippes were back at home, as they frequently were in mid-week, Mary Spence or Lucia would come to Clipperville to stay with Lenore, and they would all straggle into the library during the dull forenoon to revert their shopping expeditions, or to try to coax Gail to come off with them to a country club luncheon.

Life, at this accelerated pace, fairly burned her up. The new pleasures enchanted her, but never satisfied, leaving her always straining for more; which indeed was the position of them all—Lenore, Mary, Van, Fred, to say nothing of their elders. They went everywhere, anywhere, they did anything and everything that might promise fun. Breakfast on the Macleish's yacht, for example; life on the Macleish's yacht had nothing to do with sailing or the water. The yacht might as well have been moored ten feet underground in a coal mine, for all its gay party ever saw of the sea. Yet there was something distinguished about being asked to spend a week-end on a real yacht!

The glory spread far ahead of it, and far behind it. Gail saw her name in the Clipperville Challenge more than once during this amazing summer, listed among the guests at affairs whose distinction a few months back was beyond her wildest dreams.

She had a feverish feeling sometimes of having lost Edith, lost Phil and Sam and Ariel, lost touch with her work at the library and her duties at home—one could not live two lives, after all, and Van's very exactions were a delight, an answer to her wild young ardent prayers of last spring. Nothing mattered but that she should please him, should keep close to him. She grew wittier, quicker, gayer as the weeks went by; their talk together was merely a quick cross-fire of repartee.

One night in late August she and Van walked home from a movie in Clipperville. The night was insufferably hot, and the audience was glad enough to struggle out into the black darkness of the Calle, where the air was some degrees cooler.

"Whew! That was frightful," Gail breathed, turning her bare head up to the stars, shaking back her tawny mane.

He Might Easily Have Put His Arm About Her.

"This is a snorter!" Van commented.

"Los Gatos tomorrow, hey? And into the pool?"

The moon had not yet risen, but there was an odd light in the world, at nine o'clock; whitewashed, surfaces and the adobe walls of the oldest buildings wore an odd pale glimmer of white. The upper balconies of the great trees over the Calle rustled wearily in a hot wind.

"Maybe we'll go over to the beach Sunday," Van said.

"I wish we were there now!"

"Take you in a minute!" he offered eagerly. The girl laughed.

"A hundred miles," she said drily. "And we'd get so hot going over, and be so tired coming back, that we wouldn't gain much."

"Ice cream at Dobbins'?" he suggested.

"Kind of mussy." But she turned toward the drug store none the less; the opportunity to be seen by all the town, having soda at Dobbins' with Van Murchison, must not be overlooked.

All Clipperville came in and out of Dobbins' on a hot summer evening, and she kept wheeling about on her high stool to greet library acquaintances and neighbors and friends.

"How-do, Miss Lawrence." "Hello, Gail." "How-do, Gail." "Good evening, Miss Lawrence!"

They all saw that she was with Van Murchison.

Ariel came in and put her slim arms about Gail from behind and kissed the bright wave of tawny hair over Gail's ear.

"Take our places," Gail said, getting down. "We're done!"

She walked along beside Van silently in the street. The man kept up his regular stream of chatter for a minute; somehow it jarred tonight. Gail broke across it suddenly.

"The reason I wanted to come away was—my brother Phil was in Dobbins' there."

"Your brother Phil was?"

"Yes. Way over in the corner, in one of the twosomes."

"Why didn't we yell at him?" Van asked simply.

She had to have sympathy; she had to test him. With a sudden letting down of the bars she said, "Because his girl was with him."

"And don't you like her?" Van demanded, with his delighted air of discovering something amusing.

"I despise her!" Gail answered somberly.

"Not really?" he exclaimed ecstatically. "What? Phil's girl?"

"She's not a girl, really, and it's very serious," Gail said, determined to sober him. "She's a divorced woman, and she has three little boys about three and two and one."

"Oh, I love it!" Van said with relief. "Phil! Old sober sides! I adore it! I'm crazy about it!"

"Van, how can you say so?" Gail reproached him, hurt. "She's a terrible girl; she comes from Thomas Street Hill; she was one of the Wilbersons."

"Oh, I think it's perfectly grand!" Van said, with his raw, joyous laugh. "Think of the trouble and expense saved—his family all ready-made!"

But suddenly perceiving that she was not amused, and that a genuine mood of anger and disappointment was keeping her silent, he changed his tone and said rationally, lightly:

"Why, what do you care who your brother marries? You don't have to marry her! It's his funeral."

"I suppose so," Gail conceded after a moment, wearily.

"Want to jump into the car and rush off somewhere and get cool?"

"It would take too long, and I'm too tired, and I promised Edith to be home early. She gets nervous."

The car was parked a hundred feet from the Lawrence gate. Gail went to the fence that had once been their meadow fence, and leaned on the bars and stared into the night that was now lighted by the moon.

"Phil's marrying would simply wreck our home," she said, reverting to the topic deliberately, desperately.

"Oh, forget it! He won't marry her," Van assured her easily.

"I think," she began, a little thickly. "I think what worries me is Ariel. She's proud, she's so sensitive—"

"Sticks!" She isn't any prouder or more sensitive than you are!" Van said un sympathetically. He hated to be serious, Gail knew: He was hating it now.

"The thing about Ariel is," Gail pursued resolutely, "that she is running around with that Buddy Ralsch crowd—of course they are a perfectly decent crowd underneath—"

"Why she's nothing but a school child!" Van said, in distaste and displeasure.

"Well, she's not such a school child but she lets Buddy Ralsch take her out in his roadster—"

"Oh, I love it! I think it's priceless!" Van exclaimed, laughing, as Gail's troubled voice fell still.

"I don't know what to do about it," Gail began again. "I was wondering," she added timidly, "what you would think I ought to do, Van?"

He was interested now, but in an annoyed, reluctant sort of way. He said quickly:

"For heaven's sake, what should I know about it? It seems to me if she's such a fool she likes to run 'round with a bouncer like that, why, let her do it!"

"But you don't understand, Van," Gail said patiently. "She's only seventeen—she won't be eighteen until next Christmas."

"That wasn't no hindrance to the late Miss Juliet Capulet!" Van reminded her joyously.

Gail laughed faintly, and was silent.

"I'll come for you early tomorrow," Van presently said. "How's nine o'clock? That gets us to the ranch at noon, easy."

The girl felt cold, unresponsive, heavy.

They were standing close together at the old fence rail; he might easily have put his arm about her. But he never attempted that sort of thing; Gail wondered sometimes if it were some queer lack in her that prevented him, or some missing quality in him.

Going into the house she determined that she would not go down to Los Gatos at all tomorrow, and felt a great relief in the thought. If they wanted her they could make a special overture next week.

She wandered away to her own room, returned in pajamas, brushing her thick mop of tawny-gold hair.

"Phil was at Dobbins' tonight," she said suddenly, "with Lily."

Edith opened her lips to speak, made no sound. They stared at each other.

"He wasn't?" Edith whispered after awhile.

"He was."

"At Dobbins'?"

"In one of the twosomes—the alcoves."

"Oh, Gail!" Edith walked.

"I know. It's awful!"

"He's crazy," the younger sister said darkly. They brooded upon it in silence.

Gail felt tired and blue; discouraged about Phil, about Ariel, about her own hopes and plans concerning Van. A sense of futility, of helplessness, was heavy upon her as she went slowly downstairs and slowly moved about the kitchen, pressing her white linen, freshening her printed chiffon.

Let Our Motto Be GOOD HEALTH

BY DR. LLOYD ARNOLD
Professor of Bacteriology and Preventive Medicine, University of Illinois, College of Medicine.

IF WE HAD BEEN SICK CENTURIES AGO

In prehistoric times, the chances are that if we had really had something serious the matter with us, we should have been left to die by the whole tribe. For they believed that the sick were possessed by an evil spirit, and the only way they could ward off the evil spirit from themselves was to keep away from the one possessed.

Herodotus, the Greek historian, whom everyone still regards as a most accurate observer and recorder of what he saw, reported that in Persia: "The citizen who has leprosy or the white sickness may not come into a town or consort with other Persians. They say that he is so afflicted because he has sinned in some way against the sun."

Before the days of ether, the operating rooms were filled with the groans and shrieks of the unfortunate victims. Often the noise and suffering were so great that students would faint.

The only way patients could forget their pain was in sleep—if they could sleep. Shakespeare says in Cymbeline: "He that sleeps feels not the toothache."

Speaking of toothache, it was the barbers who generally extracted teeth. And in Shakespeare's day the barbers had a custom of having musical instruments in their shop windows—maybe it's from that custom that we derive the term "barber shop chords," and then they would tie the teeth they had drawn to the end of the late stripes.

But one of the most famous physicians in medical history, Avicenna, whose Canon was a text book in medical schools as late as the fifteenth century, "loosened teeth by means of the fat of tree toads in preference to pulling them."

The barbers were the surgeons just about everywhere. Indeed the surgeon was an apprentice to the barber shops. In England in 1540, a union of barber surgeons and guild surgeons known as the Company of Barbers and Surgeons was founded. A practicing surgeon didn't begin to have the social standing of a physician proper. His business was to do blood-letting and to open abscesses and to dress wounds. He wasn't allowed to prescribe internal medicine.

In Holland the barber surgeons used to remove glands or sebaceous cysts from various portions of the head and neck. "He has a stone in the head," meaning "he is crack-brained" was a common saying in Holland in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. So "cutting the stones from one's head" was supposed to be curative for mental deficiency.

People everywhere believed in charms. In many places people dared not be bled without consulting the stars. Those who couldn't afford astrologers consulted almanacs printed for that purpose. In England the mere touch of the sovereign's hand was a cure for scrofula. King's Evil was another name for this affliction. Perhaps a circumstance that helped maintain the royal touch as a cure was the fact that it was always accompanied by the gift of a gold piece to the patient from the sovereign. Charles II for King's Evil. Queen Anne was the last to practice the royal touch. Samuel Johnson, the great lexicographer, was touched by Anne.

But there were some queer remedies in this country, too. In Governor Winthrop's day, a well-known woman healer had two favorite recipes for curing jaundice: In one she put lemon, tumeric and saffron; the other consisted of 20 head lice mixed with nutmeg and sugar and powder of tumeric. And many believed that jaundice could be cured by the patient looking at yellow objects.

Hydrophobia was one of the great scourges of the eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries. Here is a remedy which the legislature of the state of New York bought from Mr. Crous for the sum of $1,000. It consisted of an ounce of the jaw bone of a dog, burned and pulverized or pounded to a fine dust; the false tongue of a newly foaled colt which was dried and pulverized, and finally one scruple of verdigris, which was raised on the surface of old copper after lying in old earth, the copper of George I and George II being the purest and best. These ingredients were mixed together, and an adult was given a teaspoonful of it daily.

Still the physicians of these by-gone times were no fools. They had a lot of knowledge of human nature.

For instance George Cheyne, English physician born in 1671, said: "Too great nicety and exactness about every minute circumstance that may impair one's health is to die for fear of dying." That holds true to this day.

Lesson for April 14

CHRIST THE SAVIOUR

LESSON TEXT—John 3:14-17; Romans 8:36-39; Philippians 3:10-11.
GOLDEN TEXT—For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life. John 3:16.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Why Jesus Came.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus the Saviour.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What It Means to Be Saved.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How Christ Saves Us.

It is not feasible to consider all the texts proposed by the lesson committee, but it is desirable to select the three suggested to be printed and to introduce several others.

I. The Saviour Predicted (Gen. 3:15; Isa. 9:6, 7).

In connection with the fall of man and consequent pronouncement of judgment upon the woman, the man and the serpent, and the announcement of the undying enmity which was to exist between the seed of the woman and the seed of the serpent, ultimate victory was predicted of the woman's seed. On the cross of Calvary the stroke was made which imposed the death sentence (John 12:31; Heb. 2:14). In due time the unlawful ruler of the world will be displayed by the coming of the king and the establishment of a universal and everlasting kingdom.

II. The Saviour Born (Luke 2:11, 30, 32).

That which had been predicted was historically fulfilled in the birth of Jesus Christ in Bethlehem. When Jesus was brought to the temple as a child the Holy Ghost revealed to Simeon that Jesus was the Messiah.

III. The Saviour Described.

1. A seeker of the lost (Luke 15:3-7). This seeking of the lost is illustrated by the man leaving the ninety and nine sheep and going after the one which was lost, and his rejoicing over his success in finding it. Great, indeed, is the joy in heaven over the salvation of a lost soul.

2. He died for the lost (John 3:14-17). God gave Jesus Christ to die to make an atonement for the sins of the world. As the brazen serpent was lifted up in the wilderness by Moses, so Jesus Christ was lifted up on the cross. As the Israelites only needed to look at the uplifted serpent, so the lost soul needs only to look to the crucified Christ for salvation. All who believe on him as their Saviour receive eternal life and, therefore, escape condemnation.

3. He knows his own (John 10:14). The good Shepherd has a definite knowledge of the lost ones. He therefore seeks them out and gives his life for them.

4. He keeps his own (John 10:27-29). Believers are Christ's sheep, and because they are his sheep, they hear his voice and follow him. He not only knows them personally, but they, in turn, know him. He not only gives unto them eternal life, but holds them in his omnipotent hands.

IV. Some Blessings Received Through the Saviour.

1. Justification (Rom. 5:1-11). The one who receives Jesus Christ is by the living God declared righteous. His guilt is removed and he is given the same standing as Jesus Christ himself. Because of this the very peace of God settles down upon his soul. He has the assurance of God's love and is able, therefore, to have joy in God himself.

2. Freedom from the power of sin (Rom. 6:1-7). It is not enough to be freed from the guilt of sin, there must be a dynamic which will enable the believer to live a life of victory over sin. Being vitally united to Jesus Christ in the power of his resurrection life, the dynamic is provided which enables the believer to triumph over sin.

3. He is free from the law as a means of sanctification (Rom. 7:1-6). Christ's death called the law to the tree. The one who has been vitally united to Jesus Christ by faith died with Christ. The law, therefore, has no more dominion over him.

4. Victory over the flesh through the indwelling Holy Spirit (Rom. 8:2-4). The introduction of the law of the spirit of the life in Christ Jesus enables the believer to free himself from the dominion of the flesh.

5. Christ is the supreme example to the believer (Phil. 2:5-11). Because the Saviour became incorporated with the race through the incarnation he is able to impart life to those with whom he is identified. Furthermore, because he thus imparts life, the believer is able to make the Saviour his grand exemplar.

The World's Three Evils

The three great evils of the world are iniquity, inequality, and hopelessness. The world doesn't know the character of God, therefore it's unclean. The world does not know the love of God and therefore men are not brothers. The world does not know the life of God, therefore men despair alike of the present and the future.

Nye's Committee Offers Drastic War-Profit Bill—Austria Decides to Enlarge Its Army—Progress of European Peace Negotiations.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
© Western Newspaper Union

SENATOR GERALD P. NYE'S munitions committee, which has spent seven months investigating the doings of the manufacturers of arms and munitions, reported to the senate its measure designed to take the profits out of war and provide for the conscription of industry in the event of another armed conflict involving the United States. The bill is decidedly drastic, giving to the President in war time powers that are practically dictatorial, permitting him not only to fix prices but also to license all industry and control raw materials. It also has taxation features that will arouse considerable opposition. It would raise individual income taxes to 6 per cent in wartime, levy surtaxes up to 94 per cent on incomes in excess of $10,000, and seize profits of corporations in excess of 6 per cent return on invested capital.

The Nye bill gives the President very broad powers to fix prices of commodities, to license industry, to prohibit profiteering and to prevent the hoarding of goods. It provides for the drafting of industrial leaders, who would be permitted to remain with their companies, subject to military law and given rank and compensation not exceeding that of a brigadier general.

Meanwhile the house military affairs committee reported the McSwain bill, similar to the senate measure but without the tax features. This lack made the more radical members angry but when they tried to amend the bill they were routed, 258 to 71.

The Nye senate committee, after reporting its bill, continued its inquiry. It heard a rather sensational bit of evidence to the effect that Roger S. McGrath, an insurance company agent who was described as a friend of the President's son James, had sought successfully to obtain two naval building contracts for the Bath Iron Works up in Maine.

FOLLOWING the example set by Hitler, Austria has decided to disregard the limitations on its military strength set by the treaty of St. Germain and to increase its armed forces immediately. The official communique issued by Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg did not say how big the army would be or whether conscription would be restored. The annual spring parade of the army at the Ringstrasse in Vienna was revived, and the troops appeared in fine new uniforms.

It is believed Hungary and Bulgaria soon will ask permission to increase their armies and re-introduce conscription.

SOVIET Russia is ready to line up with Great Britain, France and Italy in promoting the general European security pact which is the basis of England's plan for peace. This was brought out by the visit to Moscow of Capt. Anthony Eden, British lord privy seal, and his conferences with Dictator Josef Stalin and Maxim Litvinov, Soviet foreign commissar. According to the joint communique given the press, these statesmen "were of the opinion that in the present international situation it is more than ever necessary to pursue the endeavor to promote the building up of a system of collective security in Europe as contemplated in the Anglo-French communique of the third of February, and in conformity with the principles of the League of Nations."

It was made clear that Germany and Poland would be welcome to enter the arrangement, but that it would go ahead even without them.

Captain Eden then went on to Warsaw to talk things over with the Poles; and even as he was departing from Moscow the Soviet press launched another fierce attack on Germany.

Michael Tukhachevsky, vice commissar for defense, in an article in the newspaper Pravda, declared Germany would have an army of 840,000 by the summer, exceeding the French army by 40 per cent and almost equaling the Soviet army in size.

He charged Hitler with "juggling France to sleep" with anti-Soviet war talk in the hope France would not realize her own peril.

Tukhachevsky's view that Germany contemplates attacking France was supported by an authorized article in the weekly Journal de Moscou which asserted the leaders of the reich realized "the exceptional risk to which Germany would subject herself by invasion of the tremendous territories of the U. S. S. R.—a country possessing powerful armaments and unlimited opportunities for improving and increasing these armaments."

"It is almost probable," the Journal said, "that under certain circumstances

Hitler will prefer other fields of action, and an intensified revision of the map of Europe will be started not in the east but in the west."

PREMIER MUSSOLINI is highly skeptical of the success of efforts to persuade Germany to enter into general peace plans for Europe. In his newspaper, Popolo d'Italia, appeared an editorial, probably written by him, warning his fellow countrymen that no miraculous results may be expected from the conference of foreign ministers in Stresa. It asserted that the western European powers "must stabilize their line of common action against several eventualities which can be foreseen, and they must take definite responsibility."

It then charged that the French and British are impeding Mussolini's wish to take action against Hitler because of their preoccupation about their own internal policy.

Premier Flandin and Foreign Minister Laval of France were reported to have devised a vast, new, flexible plan to organize the peace of the continent within the framework of the League of Nations.

POLAND appears to have decided to play a lone hand in the European embroglio, though she remains friendly to Germany. It is reported that Captain Eden's visit to Warsaw was as disappointing as was that of Sir John Simon to Berlin. The Polish government is determined to sign no pact that would commit the nation to fight for Russia against Germany or for Germany against Russia and France, nor will it permit either German or Russian troops to be transported across Poland. The Polish statesmen say they will sign a series of bilateral pacts, and will go as far as any other nation in parallel disarmament. They assert that they have no alliance with Germany, though their mutual troubles have been settled for the next ten years, and that the alliance with France still holds good.

FROM Tokyo there came a statement indicating that Japan would give at least moral support to the European powers that are seeking agreements to counteract Hitler's move for the re-armament of Germany. It was given out by Eiji Amai, the frequently quoted spokesman for the foreign office. He said Japan will hold aloof from the European crisis and that there would be no far eastern Locarno pact, but that "we cannot think of any alliance with Germany." Tokyo, asserted Amai, is ready to discuss with Russia some degree of demilitarization of the eastern frontiers.

FOREIGN nations that discriminate against American imports have been warned by President Roosevelt that they must discontinue that practice under penalty of economic reprisals by the United States. In a letter to Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau the President outlined his foreign trade policy and disclosed the fact that the administration is considering denouncing existing trade pacts with Germany, Italy, Portugal and Denmark because of discrimination. He proclaimed the new Belgian-American reciprocal trade agreement, and also decreed that, pending the conclusion of negotiations for new pacts now in progress, the reduced duties and other concessions granted Belgium will be extended to Canada, Spain, The Netherlands, Switzerland and Liechtenstein for six months.

DEBATE on the Copeland-Tugwell food, drug, cosmetic and advertising bill was lively in the senate, and the opposition was led by a Democrat, Josiah W. Bailey of North Carolina, who urged the retention of the present food and drug law with such amendments as changed conditions require.

"I understand the Department of Agriculture and not to govern advertising," Senator Bailey said. "It is inconceivable to me that it should take charge of medicine, cosmetics, and advertising. There might be an argument that the department has made such great triumphs in agriculture that it is seeking new worlds to conquer. But I believe that if some one should make that boast, I should agree that it had exceeded Samson in the slaughter of pigs, but had fallen far short of doing as good work in the matter of cotton as has the boll weevil."

STANLEY REED, the new solicitor general, obtained from the Supreme court permission to dismiss the government's appeal in the Belcher lumber code case. Therefore there probably will be no decision as to the constitutionality of the national industrial recovery act by the chief tribunal before congress takes action on the bill to extend the recovery law.

WHEN the Illinois legislature, at the behest of Governor Horner and the federal administration, passed a state recovery act the New Dealers bailed this as an example that all states should follow. Now County Judge Homer W. H. H. at Bloomington has held that the act is unconstitutional. He also declared the national automobile code inoperative as applied to Illinois.

Under the state recovery act the judge remarked, an unlawful delegation of the authority of the state legislature has brought about a situation whereby violations of the state act can be prosecuted by the state only through the sanction and by the authority of the federal director of codes.

THROUGH the efforts of Donald Richberg, chairman of the NIRA, an agreement was reached by the bituminous coal operators and the United Mine Workers, whereby the prevailing coal code is extended to June 10 and a threatened strike of about half a million miners averted. The present wages and hours of work are continued. President Lewis of the miners insisted the union had not yielded to the operators; but the fact remained that if it had not consented to the agreement Mr. Richberg could and would have extended the code by executive order.

SCORES of agents of the Department of Justice's division of investigation were carrying on a concentrated search for "public enemies" at large, according to Chief J. Edgar Hoover. The three are: Alvin Karpis, twenty-five, a leader in the notorious Barker-Karpis kidnap and bank robbery gang; Raymond Hamilton, twenty-two, killer who broke jail while awaiting execution, and Thomas H. Robinson, Jr., twenty-eight, kidnaper of Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll, wealthy young society matron of Louisville, Ky.

ONE of America's leading sculptors, Augustus Lukeman, died in New York at the age of sixty-four years. After a long illness he was in the Confederate memorial committee in 1925. Lukeman took over the work of carving the huge monument on the face of Stone Mountain in Georgia, completing it in 1928. He was chief of sculptors at the World's fair in Chicago.

OBEYING alleged directions from the yacht on which President Roosevelt was fishing in Florida waters, the majority in the house refused to accept the restrictions injected in the work relief bill and sent it back to conference to have these removed. The restrictions objectionable to the administration were those requiring senate confirmation of administrative officers of the program and that in loans and grants to states at least one-third of the money should be expended for direct labor. The latter requirement, according to Secretary Ickes and others, would result in the exclusion of rural electrification, slum clearance and similar projects.

Defending the move to send the bill back to conference, Buchanan of Georgia said: "The President is assuming responsibility. All we ask is to give him a bill that he can work on in shifting from dole to employment." In replying to Buchanan, Representative Robert Bacon (Rep., N. Y.) contended that the labor provision was needed in order to "kick out pet local projects" and afford as much direct relief of unemployment as possible.

"Congress has reached a pretty low ebb," declared Minority Leader Bernard Snell (Rep., N. Y.), "when it can't even pass on a conference report without receiving orders from the Chief Executive."

FOR the second time the United States Supreme court reversed the convictions and death sentences of two of the Scottsboro negroes who were accused of assault on two white girls. The court held that since negroes in Alabama are not permitted to serve on juries, they are denied "equal protection of the laws" in violation of the Fourteenth amendment. It declared the state court error in not quashing the indictments.

This was a big victory for the colored race, but in another decision by the Supreme court the negroes were the losers. The tribunal ruled that the Democratic party in Texas is a voluntary association, not subject to control by the state legislature, and as such may exclude colored persons from voting in its primaries.

DIRECT negotiations with Italy over the border dispute were broken off by the Ethiopian government, which sent a new note to the League of Nations. Special measures were taken to protect foreigners in Addis Ababa. The Italian government did not take this rupture seriously, still hoping a peaceful arrangement might be reached without the intervention of the league.

NINETEEN cardinals met with Pope Pius in a secret consistory, and to them he delivered an emphatic denunciation of war, which, he said, "would be so enormous a crime, so foolish a manifestation of fury, we believe it absolutely impossible." If, however, there is someone who wishes to commit "this heinous crime," then, the holy father said, he could do nothing else than pray to God to "destroy those people who desire war."

CUTTING PATCHES FOR QUILTS

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK

When making a patch quilt the patches must be cut out right if the finished quilt is to look neat. Sewing seams the same width is also very important. These two points should always be watched as work progresses, to obtain good results, and not have trouble after work is well under way. Cut the patches from accurate cut-out diagrams. The cut-out diagrams shown here are a set for the "Dresden Plate" and "Basket" quilts, and include allowance for seams. Any width for seams may be used but always use the same width in one quilt, to come out right. Directions for use are very simple. Place cut-out on material so the longest dimension follows the weave. Mark outline with pencil and cut out material carefully.

Send 10 cents to our quilt dept. and we will mail you both of these fiber cut-outs set No. 83A and 10A.

Erroneous Belief That Bees Know Their Owners

By JAMES T. HAMBLETON

"Bees never come to know their owner," says James T. Hambleton, agriculturist in the bureau of entomology, dispelling the belief that beekeepers do not get stung, because their bees know them. "Every person who works with bees will be stung occasionally. The layman who is stung most often is probably nervous and afraid of bees. Apiarists are well aware that their bees never get to know them. One who understands bees can work as safely in another apiary as in his own."

Bee specialists also point out that the worker bees, which do the stinging, do so only in defense of their hive, and even then only a few assume the responsibility of guards, leaving the others free to go about their work. If all bees rushed at once to the defense of the hive, and were successful in stinging their victim, there would be no workers left, because in stinging a bee not only loses its sting but also loses its life. Away from the hive, bees are intent upon their work and can scarcely be induced to sting, unless they are caught and crushed.—Boston Transcript.

STATE EMERGENCY OFFICE MAKES LABOR SURVEY

Louisville, April 4.—A joint survey by the Federal Emergency Relief Administration and the Department of Labor to determine the least amount an unskilled or semi-skilled worker and his family may live on was launched here today.

Everything that enters into the cost of living at a fair standard will be considered in the survey, Leland E. Beecraft, in charge of the survey said. Upon its completion the findings will be forwarded to Washington where facts found throughout the entire nation will be consolidated.

Results of the survey, Mr. Beecraft said, are to be used in arriving at settlements of labor differences, a better understanding of relief needs, and, in all probability, will have a marked effect upon the course of the new works program contemplated by the Administration.

RELIEF PROJECTS ARE ANNOUNCED BY KERA

Monday, April 1, Perry A. Rowe, Director of Works for the Kentucky

Emergency Relief Administration approved five relief projects in Fulton County, as follows:

Emergency road repairs in Moscow district, to employ twenty eight workers at a total expenditure of $5,380; Emergency road repairs in Meigs district which will put 26 men to work at a total expenditure of $2,780; Emergency road repairs in Beulah district which will furnish employment for 28 workers at a total expenditure of $3,380; Repair streets and ditches, Clinton, Ky., which will employ 16 workers at a total expenditure of $1,560; Repairing streets, Columbus, Ky., to employ eighteen workers at a total cost of $1,559.

The KERA has also approved a relief project in Fulton, west, to terrace public library and school grounds. Thirteen workers will be given employment and the total amount of $503 will be expended on this project.

IT COSTS PARENTS MONEY TO REAR THEIR FAMILY

The parents of Fulton and vicinity are well aware of the worries they have undergone in raising their children from infancy to manhood and womanhood. They can tell you of the many anxious hours they have spent in watching over their youngsters, but, it is doubtful if any one of them can tell you in dollars and cents what it costs to raise a child from an infant to the age of 18 years.

One of the larger insurance companies of the country recently compiled data with regard to statistics of this kind and have announced that the average cost of raising a boy or girl to the age of 18 is approximately $6,000. Therefore, taking in consideration the worries attendant upon raising a child and the cost in dollars and cents, a parent has a pretty good investment in each and every child they raise to the point where they are ready to take their place in the world. One can easily recognize the reason why a parent eagerly watches the progress of any child after they have gone out from beneath the parental roof.

In addition to the money, expended in providing food and clothing for the child, the parent also bears his portion of the taxation for the education of the child. Thus a parent does a double duty to the state in that he furnishes a means for the production of the future wealth and prosperity of the nation, and at the same time defrays his proportionate share of the cost of providing good citizens.

The question was argued pro and con recently in a little gathering, and one of the debaters threw a bomb-shell into the argument when he declared that in his opinion all parents should be exempt from the payment of school tax and that this burden should fall upon the bachelors and old maids of the country.

"For," he declared, "these individuals are adding nothing whatsoever to the future of their country. They are enjoying the benefits of the public protection and advantages, and they should at least give something in return for the benefits which they are deriving."

Another pointed out that this would be unjust in that they had no children to send to school, whereas upon the one who advanced the idea declared that this the very reason he would be in favor of such a tax being borne entirely by the unmarried portion of the population. They sit back in their selfishness and let the other fellow provide the future citizens of the nation and expect him not only to do this but pay the expense of making them a profitable investment as well.

The above conversation proves that we all don't think alike.

POLITICAL OUTLOOK

The political outlook this year is beginning to take on new color, and it won't be long until candidates will be appearing in the field seeking election at the hands of the people in the August primary.

Choosing candidates in this day and age, when taxpayers are laboring under every form of taxation until their tax burden has become almost unbearable, is a serious and duty-bound obligation upon every citizen. If the people themselves do not stand up for their rights, and leave the reins entirely in the hands of self-seeking politicians, they cannot hope for relief.

Kentucky must select a governor and representatives to our State Legislature, and the steps taken by the Chief Executive and members of our state legislative bodies will determine the soundness of our government, the progress of the state and the welfare of the people of this Commonwealth.

It seems to us that a Referendum law would help safeguard the rights of the people. This law would give the people the privilege of voting upon any question of importance to the state, providing those elected to protect the rights of the people go back on their promises and support legislation not pleasing to the majority of the people. And, it is worth while for us to give some consideration to what a candidate seeking election should stand for, and endeavor to find means of guaranteeing the desires of the people themselves.

Another thing of vital importance to the people of this state, is to stop the sure and steady increase of governmental expenses, which necessarily brings heavier taxation burdens upon the people. We see no reason why our government cannot be operated in a business-like manner. We often wonder how long some of our legislators would stay in business for themselves if they operated their business like they do our government. The state, counties and municipalities would do well to have Budget Committees, uncontrolled by politics, who would study the tax books, and designate just how much each department of our government could afford to spend and could pay from tax revenues collected.

Then, if the heads of these various departments, spend more than the budget allows, let them be held responsible, protected by bond. When office holders realize that they will have to pay every dollar spent above the budget, then they will keep a closer watch upon the expenditures of their office.

It is time to quit running around in circles, piling up heavier and heavier taxes, adding more and more political offices that are in many cases useless and unnecessary in the proper execution of governmental duties. Working under a Referendum and budget committees, state county and municipal governments would show decided improvement in economy and sane statesmanship.

It is up to the people to see that some definite action is taken to bring about necessary changes in the operation of our governmental bodies, so that the interests of the people—and not some political group—are faithfully served. Think it over, and when it comes time to vote, keep that thought in mind.

BUILDING FOR TOMORROW.

It was with interest that we learned of the proposal to inaugurate a baseball Sunday School League here this season. It is our earnest hope that plans along this line will be carried out, for it is a most worthy movement.

Several years we were living in another city, when a Sunday School League was organized. From that beginning the foundation for a fine, live baseball organization has been created. The same can be true in Fulton.

There is much material around Fulton for making several good teams which can engage in a season of games that will entertain themselves and the community. Besides providing recreation for many, taking idle off the hands of others, the games bring sportsmanship and good fellowship.

Our word to movers in this cause is "Carry On."

Athlete's Foot or Dermatomycosis

Athlete's foot is of very frequent occurrence, especially among men. It makes its appearance in the form of blisters and fissures upon the feet, mostly around the toes and on the hands. This condition is most annoying and at times very painful. The cause is a fungus, which seems to be found mostly around swimming pools, bath rooms and all public places where people bathe.

This condition comes and goes at times making its appearance only at certain seasons of the year, and affecting only certain parts of the body. Apparently it comes without any exciting cause. The blisters and fissures may cover the entire foot or hand and render the victim unable to use his hands or walk. Many of the itching skin troubles appearing around the groin and skin creases are due to this fungus.

Every one suffering with this condition is very anxious to be rid of it, but they find this is no easy job. If it gets well for a time, soon it is back again, with all of its itching and stinging.

Prevent having athlete's foot if possible. When frequenting bathing pools, beaches and public bathing places protect the feet with rubber slippers and immediately after drying off use some good antiseptic on the feet. Be sure the feet are dry. Should you be so unfortunate as to contract this disease, consult your doctor; if it does not respond to simple treatment at once. Many of these cases are infected with other germs which makes the condition much worse, and very much harder to cure.

The best known treatment for dermatomycosis is the x-ray. No single drug gives relief in all cases. Some cases respond to treatment by one drug and some to another. A preparation, which can be bought at all drug stores, sold under the name of storalax acts fine in many cases.

If the American people will attend to the things that need attention in this country they won't have much time to give to reforming other countries.

BAD BREATH

Bad breath is not only of much embarrassment to the one so afflicted, but is very disagreeable to those having to associate with one so affected. Many are the causes of bad breath. Any septic condition of the mouth, gums or accessory structures, but the cause of constant and bad breath may give rise to bad breath but the cause of constant and lasting bad breath most often comes from poisonous gases generated in the intestinal tract.

Physicists now tell us that eighty percent of all the gas generated in the intestinal tract is absorbed into the blood stream and passed from the body in the exhaled breath. Therefore the sweetness or unpleasantness of the breath depends in a great measure upon whether the gases generated in the intestinal tract are poison or non-poisonous. Many of the heavy coated tongues and bad taste in the mouth are from the same cause.

Bad breath is only a symptom of some underlying condition. To get rid of this most embarrassing condition the cause must be found and remedied. Antiseptic mouth washes at times takes care of the trouble. Many times they are inadequate, then a thorough and painstaking examination should be had by all means by a most competent doctor.

Should this condition be caused by the poisonous gases generated in the intestinal tract it is imperative that the basic condition be corrected, as it not only causes bad breath but many of the chronic afflictions with which mankind suffers. Allowed to go untreated the person afflicted may be able to be up and about and not know that a subtle and slow working poison is gradually wrecking his system. Therefore the great importance of proper examination and treatment.

The United States exists for the general welfare of the people of this nation and when it ceases to stand for their behalf then the sooner it is checked out the better.

Are You Undecided

PERHAPS you and your family have given serious thought to having a telephone in your home, but are not quite sure you really need it.

It is a matter which concerns everyone in the family. Think how much a telephone would help Mother with her shopping and household duties, and how Father would find it handy in many ways. The young folks too, would use it frequently in arranging social activities with their friends.

In addition, a telephone assures you prompt assistance in emergencies and quick personal touch with friends and relatives both in and out-of-town.

When you sum up the many advantages of telephone service, compared with the small cost of only a few cents a day, you will probably decide it really doesn't pay to try to do without it.

Order your telephone today. Your friends will be glad to know you have one and every member of your family will enjoy it. Just call the telephone business office.

THINK THE CHURCH SHOULD ADVERTISE

A citizen dropped in at the office of The NEWS a day or two ago and after discussing in a general way the topics of the day and then picking up a copy of the recent issue of THE NEWS he commented on the advertising appearing in its columns and then said:

"You know, it is rather surprising that the modern church does not use more advertising space than it does."

He continued by pointing out that hundreds of business enterprises have been built to stupendous proportions through the medium of advertising. He then spoke of the modern church, declaring that offering as it does, the very best that there is to be had in this life, it offering should be heralded to the masses through every medium possible. There is no better way to get their attention than by newspaper advertising.

It was pointed out by us, that despite the fact that editors of newspapers request that each church provide weekly programs and sermon topics for publication, most of them fail to provide copy even for this free publicity, let alone run paid advertisements.

The NEWS is interested in obtaining detailed reports about all community organizations, prior to and immediately following all meetings. It is to their interest and that of the community that we receive pertinent information pertaining to the activities of churches, schools and other organizations. Besides appearing in The NEWS, some of these articles are sent out to Associated Press papers through this office.

C. M. T. C. QUOTA HAS RISEN FROM 1650 TO 3450

Major General Albert J. Bowley, commanding Fifth Corps Area, at Columbus, Ohio, announced today that the quota of C. M. T. C. candidates to be trained in this corps area has been increased from 1650 to 3450 candidates. This increase will mean a corresponding increase in the procurement quotas allotted the 355 counties in the corps area. Applications required to take care of this additional increase will be accepted from qualified young men between the ages of 17 and 24, residing Indiana, Kentucky, Ohio and West Virginia.

Plans for accommodation of these additional trainees are now being considered, General Bowley said, and no effort will be spared in making these camps enjoyable to the enrollees as well as interesting and profitable in their training programs.

The Military Training Camps Association, a purely civilian organization, through its county representatives, will furnish application blanks and literature concerning these camps. Application blanks may also be obtained from the C. M. T. C. Officer, Headquarters, Fifth Corps Area, Fort Hayes, Columbus, Ohio.

The longer we live the longer we hope to live, and the more we learn the less we know we know.

We know very little about it but somehow we have an idea that the nation is getting over its 1929 spree.

64 BRUCE BARTON
ST. PAUL

In the lists of names voted for in this series, the very highest name next only to that of Jesus was Saint Paul. Practically every ballot was marked for him, as well it might have been. Paul was born in Tarsus, a university town in Asia Minor, the northeast corner of the Mediterranean. He knew something of classic literature and philosophy, but whether he attended the local college we do not know. He was sent by his parents, who were Jews of the strictest sect of the Pharisees, to be trained by the famous teacher of the Pharisees, Gamaliel.

We first meet him at the stoning of Stephen when he is "a young man named Saul." We next see him for the sword of Nero, Unconquered in prison, "Paul the aged," waiting for the sword of Nero, Unconquered by his imprisonment and peril, he towers triumphant over circumstance in the assurance that he had fought a good fight and kept the faith and finished his course.

His conversion must have followed within a few months after the stoning of Stephen. That ardent young friend of the Gentile element in the infant church left a greater successor than he could possibly have suspected in one of the men who voted for his execution.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE OF MARTIN STAGES HORSE SHOW

The Martin Junior Chamber of Commerce in cooperation with the University of Tennessee Agriculture Club is staging the most spectacular Horse Show ever held in West Tennessee on the night of April 13th under the flood lights at the college athletic field. Horses from all over West Tennessee have been consigned in all professional and non-professional classes to this show and from the entry list it promises to be the best show ever held in this section.

A nationally-known judge, highly competent, will place all the horses and a square deal is assured all competing. Entry for this show is free and the University has consented to stable all animals free of charge in what is said to be one of the finest barns in the State. Generous prizes are to be offered each class of competition, and there is enough money offered as premiums to make showing interesting. Preceding the horse show will be an all-day auction of mules, and other farming equipment, and mule dealers from all over West Tennessee have consigned mules here for that occasion. Private sales will also be conducted and any farmer desiring fresh stock for the coming season is assured plenty of stock to choose from.

Other general entertainment features will be a band concert, parade, rodeo events, comedy horse riding, and other entertaining features.

KENTUCKY DIVISION HAS
BEST RECORD FOR I. C. R. R.

A perfect record for safety for five years, or more, merits the card bearing the personal signature of L. A. Davns, president of the Illinois Central System which have been received by sixteen residents of Fulton, Ky., and vicinity. The award, made annually for the past nine years, this year goes to approximately 3600 employees of the Illinois Central, who hold supervisory positions connected with the operation of trains and the maintenance of tracks. It is considered a great honor to carry the token because it indicates that during these years there have been no reportable injuries to the heavier or to those for whom he is responsible.

"Railway employment was once ranked with the most hazardous of occupations," said Mr. Downs. "That ranking was lost many years ago. Transportation of passengers and freight was likewise once considered to be dangerous. Now a passenger on a train is safer than in his own home and freight is handled with a minimum of loss or damage."

"The Safety First slogan and the national safety movement had their beginnings on the railroads. The presentation of these awards to our employees emphasizes the importance still placed upon safety in the daily operation of all American railroads."

The names of those who received cards, and the length of the perfect records follow: E. L. Tunks, engineer, 5 years; C. C. Maxfield, engineer, 8 years; F. M. Hancy, engineer, 9 years; J. T. Adams, engineer, 9 years; George Imhoff, engineer, 9 years; L. W. Braswell, engineer, 9 years; W. H. McClelland, engineer, 9 years; E. R. Bell, signal maintainer, 6 years; U. R. Small, engine foreman, 6 years; J. T. Price, engine foreman, 6 years; J. S. Omer, engine foreman, 6; C. L. Newton, engine foreman, 6 years; C. Linton, engine foreman, 6 years; Tom Hales, engine foreman, 6 years; Joe Gafar, engine foreman, 6 years; J. B. Bruce, section foreman, 9 years.

The Kentucky Division led the entire Illinois Central System in the first quarter of the 1935 personal injury campaign, with two reportable accidents in March, and only ten for the first quarter—a 60 per cent reduction under 1934.

When shipbuilders make 34 per cent on warships it is not natural for them to support the "keep the government out of competition with private industry" propaganda.

Marriages in Fulton, if what we hear is correct, will be more numerous than last spring which is a sign that cupid is not dead even if the country has had a depression.

It's a Season of Plaids and Checks

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

GOES madly on the rage for checks and plaids. Where fashions are at their smartest these animated patternings are flourishing with all their might, both for day and evening wear.

The new plaids and checks are apt to be "all wool and a yard wide" (more likely fifty-four inches) as they are apt to be of washable synthetics, linens or cottons. In fact among the swankiest weaves going you will find linens done in garish, racy plaids which make up too swaggar for words—ever so effective for sports wear.

Then, too, topeaks of gorgeous plaids are going places where they never went before, for women are wearing them during the daytime hours about town and for travel as well as sports. Some have fur collars and some haven't, but they are that good looking with or without you will be envying the fortunates who possess them. The girl seated to the right in the picture is wearing a model which is styled with latest details, such as the hand-cut fringe of self material which trims the wide scarf ends and the wide turn-over collar. The predominating colors in the plaid for this coat are brown and beige with a streak of orange in its makeup. The same plaid is striking in tones of reds or greens.

Her companion is wearing a check suit and if you are wanting to get into something decidedly stylish for spring here's your cue and no mistake about it. This one is black and white but if you happen to be in some other color mood, there is a check to satisfy, such as green with gray, navy with white, brown with tiger yellow. Then, too, there are tweed checks galore out on the field of action. They are smart, to be sure, but we must say there is a regular landslide in the direction of the simple little checks as pictured.

It is ever so good style to wear a tweed wool check skirt with a jacket of plain or the reverse. It is smart, too, to top a plaid or check skirt with a colorful suede jacket.

Plaid taffetas for daytime frocks, either synthetic or pure silk are making a grand success of it this season. A shirtwaist dress of plaid taffeta is in the height of fashion. Likewise a one-piece taffeta frock topped with a redingote of wool in navy or black makes an ideal spring costume.

Myriads of simple little morning and informal afternoon frocks choose plaid for their media. The model on the standing figure plays up bias-to-straight effectively. Novel touches such as buttons in alternate colors and little pockets set in on the bias add zest to this mode.

The other dress is interesting, too, in that it is made of a star print—little stars instead of the dotted theme and you can get this material with white stars on navy or red and other combinations. A deep pointed collar of white pique and large white buttons tune into the scheme of things most cleverly.

NAVY AND YELLOW

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

It is good-looking, this girlish frock and hat to match, is it not? It is a film-folk fashion and you know it is smart and advance if it originates in Hollywood, as it has. Ruby Keeler wears it. Attention is especially called to it because of its navy and yellow color scheme. Navy for the foundational color with either white, yellow or pink is the talk of town this season. The smart set are carrying out the idea by wearing accessories made of natural toned chamomile skin. The dress pictured is of navy wool with accents of canary colored rough-textured crepe.

Turquoise Preferred

The turquoise has the preference among evening jewels, appearing effectively with white crepes and satins and especially with black velvet. Big turquoise buttons trim a black velvet dress cut away in front to show a fan-pleated underskirt of black tulle.

"SKIMMER" NEWEST WHIM OF HATTERS

The "skimmer" is the newest whim of the hatters, with madness its chief distinguishing charm.

The skimmer is the 1935 version of the pancake sailor which has been with us, off and on, in recent months. Only now it is flatter and crazier and generally more exhilarating than ever. You clap it on the side of your head at whatever angle best suits your current mood, hatten it down with a band around the back or even a hatpin, and then go out and join in a sporting battle with the spring breezes.

There is one redeeming feature about the new skimmers. They have done away with the unsightly elastic bands that decorated last spring's version of this particular style of headgear, and have substituted bands of ribbon or felt or straw to match the hat.

New Silhouette Featured

by Alix and Schiaparelli

There is much discussion and some difference of opinion expressed concerning the new draped lines which had their most prominent exponents in Alix and Schiaparelli dresses. These influences, variously related to the Hindu, the Persian and the Iranian, are best known in the sari-draped togas familiar in Near East photographs.

The draping is in a soft, statuesque line, swirled round the body in a continuous movement from ankles to head. Several arrivals consider it a significant new silhouette trend, promising more for later season development. Others are inclined to disregard draping, considering it too extreme.

Spring Accessories Matter of Importance to Fashion

Accessories are going to be matters of prime fashion importance this spring for there are "finger and snap" in the way they are put together. Here is the way one chic Parisian accents a black and white check suit: Yellow straw hat with black band, yellow blouse and yellow chamomile gloves, blue cornflower in the buttonhole, black suede bag and gloves.

Lace With Tweeds

Bows of soft lace are being worn with tweed costumes.

IDEAL FROCK FOR AFTERNOON WEAR

PATTERN 9206

Something different in the way of smartness is this youthful afternoon dress. Its yoke, round in front and buttoning into a chic triangle at the back, points the way to shoulder width, which every style-conscious woman knows is most important this season. The smart bodice is tucked at the yoke-line for flattering fullness. Then, too, the skirt—coming to a nice point above the waistline, back and front—boasts a slimming back seam and kickpleat for extra "back interest." This design would be particularly lovely in metal-flecked crepe, either silk or wool. Short sleeves are included with the pattern.

Pattern 9206 may be ordered only in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 16 requires 3 yards 39 inch fabric. SEND FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE. Complete, diagrammed Sew Chart included. Send your order to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West Eighteenth Street, New York.

War? Who Knows?
Strange Hanging
How Old Is Craft?
What Are Life and Death?

Lloyd George says there will be no war "this time," but some in Europe do not agree. Mussolini wants France and England to join him in an agreement to suppress any outbreak affecting them.

France is said to have moved troops for defense to the German frontier, although it is hard to guess what those troops could do. If Germany declared war it would be with planes dropping explosives and poison gas on Paris. No nation at war will sit in trenches for four or five years, now that flying is real.

Britain, going a long way around, wisely, sends a suave statesman, Captain Eden, to Moscow to see Stalin of Russia. The talk, not published, may have been like this:

If England agrees to help you fight Japan, will you help against Germany, in case of need?

A British naval officer cut the throat of a shipmate. In England they hang you for that. When hanging time came, Mrs. Violet Vanderelst, prosperous widow, opposed to the death penalty, hired two planes to fly back and forth above the gallows, trailing banners reading, "Stop the death sentence."

While airplanes flew overhead, trucks drove back and forth before the gallows, with loud speakers following "Abide With Me."

The man that "killed his comrade sleeping," or however he did it, did not "abide." He went through the trap.

The British believe in discouraging murder, and prompt punishment seems to do it.

Graft and dishonesty are old, as old as human need and cunning. A papyrus written 1,200 years before Christ tells of three men tried for robbing a royal tomb. Egyptian kings were descended from the gods; to rob their tombs was sacrilege, the punishment death.

A dishonest jeweler, putting base metal in a supposedly "pure gold" crown for King Hiero, was exposed by the great Archimedes, who thought out a method in his bath, and started the word "eureka" down through the ages.

Michael Angelo, building St. Peter's at Rome, complained to the pope of the materials furnished by contractors, reminding his holiness that he, Michael Angelo, would make no profit from St. Peter's except "benefit to my soul," and urged the pope to punish the grafters. There is even graft now in this modern, enlightened republic.

What is life? What is death? What are we?

An English gentleman "dies"; doctors pronounce him dead. He returns to life, says he has been in heaven, tells what he saw—a dull account, clothing the same as we wear here. How far, how fast, did his spirit travel while he was "dead"?

What does the soul do while the body is supposedly dead? Does it go away and come back, or just wait around inside the body? What is death? Some say it is only a "belief," and there is no such thing.

In New York's American Museum of Natural History is shown a drawing of the largest land mammal that ever lived, named Baluchitherium. This huge animal, which vanished from earth 25,000,000 years ago, stood 17 feet 9 inches high at the shoulder, was as big as two big elephants, weighed 20,000 pounds or more. It was not as big as a dinosaur, but the dinosaur laid eggs and was no mammal. A food problem might be solved if the "biggest mammal" could be brought back and raised by cattlemen. It ate 500 pounds of food a day; that must be considered. In America it might be necessary to drown the mammoth Baluchitherium, with her unborn babies.

Sir John Simon, returning from an unsatisfactory talk with Hitler, reports "certain divergencies" of opinion. That is going pretty far for a British statesman. There is a bigger fly than that in the ointment: Sir John learns from Hitler that Germany "already has a larger air force than that of Great Britain." Britain thought Germany had only half as many planes. A wise statesman gets his fighting airplanes ready before he starts to fight.

In France three persons "sterilized" at their own request by "mysterious Austrian doctor" because they did not want to have children have been arrested.

France, striving for more population, believes that "sterilization" can be overcome.

The mysterious Austrian performed 15 operations on men and women before disappearing.

National Topics Interpreted
by William Bruckart
National Press Building Washington, D. C.

Lays Out Work for Congress

Washington.—President Roosevelt has submitted to congress a list of the legislation he deems necessary to have passed before the present session adjourns. He has divided it into two categories—"must" and desirable. If congress enacts only the list of "must" legislation and passes over the other group of bills which the President considers desirable, it is made to appear that the membership of the house and senate is due to suffer some of the torrid temperature and the uncomfortable humidity of a Washington summer. The President said he must have legislation extending the National Recovery administration, providing social security, eliminating public utility holding companies, increasing the loaning power of the Home Owners Loan corporation, extension of the so-called nuisance taxes, which expire by limitation of law on June 30, and revision of the banking laws.

In addition, the President made known that he would like to have enacted legislation to take the profits out of war, whatever that may mean. He previously had sent a message asking enactment of a law providing for expansion of the American merchant marine through the use of ship subsidies, and he also desires to have enacted legislation setting up machinery for the settlement of labor disputes. This legislation is in the congressional hopper in the form of a bill by Senator Wagner, of New York.

The President would like to have amendments to the agricultural adjustment act in order to eliminate some of the weaknesses which the AAA people admit exist. The air mail contract situation is another matter with which Mr. Roosevelt has been concerned.

Seasoned observers recognize that this list of "must" legislation, not to mention the desired legislation, is sufficient to keep congress grinding away far into the summer. They recognize likewise that if the desired legislation later becomes of such concern that the President wants to place it on the preferred list as well, the membership of congress must be prepared to forego summer trips of any kind.

Pets of Their Own

Since a good many members of congress have grown tired of being called rubber stamps for the administration, they naturally have turned attention to legislation which they think will be helpful to their own bailiwicks, to themselves personally or from a party standpoint. Thus there have been promoted numerous pieces of legislation for which some individuals, at least, entertain greater fervor than they do for measures that were drafted by President Roosevelt's official family and transmitted to congress as administration legislation. It is the general observation that an individual, representative, or senator frequently will go much further in fighting for legislation that is his own brain child than for legislation placed before him on a silver platter such as administration proposals have been. Consequently, individual or group measures are constantly cluttering up house and senate legislative calendars. This is a fretful meaning delay for administration bills.

It is to be remembered, as has been reported in these columns, that Mr. Roosevelt is unable to ward off criticism of some of his proposals. Indeed, there have been Democratic criticisms and Democratic opposition to a greater or lesser degree to all of the legislation he has proposed since congress convened last January. All of which is by way of saying that congress faces weeks of committee work and floor debate despite the fact that the house Democratic leaders still retain rather solid control of a sufficient majority in the lower house of congress to drive through any pet measures for the administration. In the senate the situation is decidedly different.

Included in the legislation being fostered by individual members is the bill that would permit cabinet officers to appear on the floors of congress for questioning and explanation, such as occurs under the British and French parliamentary systems. The administration does not want this bill. It will have to exert some pressure to avoid passage. The reason is that the Roosevelt administration is no longer one in which the cabinet is dominant. Cabinet officers are only part of the scheme, and if congress wanted to inquire about the handling of relief money, which it probably will desire, it must talk with Administrator Hopkins. Mr. Hopkins is not in the cabinet. The same is true of NRA and to some extent to the AAA, although Secretary Wallace of the Department of Agriculture theoretically is a superior officer to Administrator Davis. The administrator is definitely opposed to the passage of bonus legislation for the former soldiers, sailors and marines and it looks like a Presidential veto will be necessary there. The same is true of inflationary proposals of which there are many. The situation is one, therefore, in which Mr. Roosevelt must be constantly on his guard to prevent action which he does not want as well as being fortified at all times with pressure to put through the legislation he has described as necessary. Thus it is seen he is confronted with many complications which did not disturb him in the first two sessions of New Deal congresses and these complications mean a longer life for the current session.

Some "Must" Legislation

Let us examine the status of the legislation which the President said he deems necessary. The "must" outlook is something like this:

The extension of the National Recovery administration is still far off. Senate hearings are just ended and the house is still further behind. No action can be expected in either body for several weeks. The present law expires June 10. Recently Mr. Roosevelt sent to congress a very bitter message denouncing public utility holding companies and demanding legislation eliminating them from our economic structure. The house committee considering this legislation is just winding up its hearings and the senate committee which will have jurisdiction has taken no action at all. It must be said that a hard fight is in prospect if and when this legislation reaches the stage of debate because investors in these companies are not going to have their equities destroyed while they sit idly by. These investors are doing more now than just making faces at congress and the volume of letters which members are receiving in opposition to the holding companies legislation transcends anything that ever has happened in the memory of this correspondent.

The banking legislation which Mr. Roosevelt has proposed, or which was proposed for him by Governor Eccles, the New Deal and radical governor of the federal reserve board is faced with opposition equally as bitter and as well organized as that confronting the holding companies bill. Perhaps it can be said that opposition to the banking legislation is even stronger because in that fight the President will be opposed by Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, who must be regarded as the most virulent of all the Democrats in the senate. The house banking committee has about done its job with hearings on this bill but the senate committee where the full force of the Glass opposition will be felt has not even set a date for committee consideration.

The social security bill about which Mr. Roosevelt has done much talking, because it is distinctly a reform measure, has finally been redrafted in the house while senate leadership is unable to get together on any policy respecting it. Some senators want to split up this bill and pass the section providing for old age pensions, allowing the other parts of the bill to die a slow death.

The legislation to increase by $1,750,000,000 the loaning power of the Home Owners Loan corporation probably will get through the senate without much more ado. The house passed the bill because it could not do otherwise with individual members realizing that there was a chance that some of this money would go into their particular districts. Included in this bill is a line that promises a good many hundred jobs for politicians and it is natural that the party in power is not going to overlook this possibility.

There remains on the "must" list, then, only the proposal to extend the nuisance taxes which expire at the end of June. It is probable that the bulk of these taxes will be accepted by congress as necessary.

One cannot fail, in tramping around Washington these days, to note the frequent expressions about the outlook concerning the future of the New Deal and for President Roosevelt's personal political future. In fact, some hardboiled servers lately have been heard to say that Mr. Roosevelt is suffering from too much ballyhoo. He was put up on a pedestal that made of him in the eyes of many persons something of a superman. He himself is regarded as having contributed to this condition by his many campaign promises, some of which he has found absolutely impractical as remedies in leading the country out of the morasses and on to a more satisfactory economic plain. In truth, the President's own political colleagues have continued to depict him as an individual capable of things which no human can accomplish and this combination of circumstances is declared by many keen minded persons as likely to bring, if indeed it has not already brought, a definitely bad political reaction from the President's standpoint.

About the Future

It is still fresh in the minds of men and women throughout the country how President Hoover was over-advised as a superior person in an administrative way. Mr. Hoover suffered from too much ballyhoo to an extent greater than any other man who has served as President with the possible exception of Woodrow Wilson. When the depression came and the current turned against Mr. Hoover he was utterly powerless. With a recalcitrant congress on his hands and a dissatisfied people, Mr. Hoover met the fate that must have been expected.

Food Faddism Founded on Unsound Reasoning

Food fads are the result of faulty reasoning, according to Dr. Harry Gouss who recently discussed them in Hygeia, the Health Magazine.

Food fads are not new but are as old as civilization itself. They are the children of well meaning but misguided intellects. From the fad introduced by the cult which believed that a teaspoonful of sand eaten every day aided digestion, to those fads observed in the work-a-day world among persons who will not eat fish and milk during the same meal and those who believe that milk and orange juice are an unhealthful mixture, these fads have no scientific basis.

One meets faddists who protest against the eating of protein and starch in the same meal, and there are those who brand as dullards all persons who eat meat. They declare that meat eating races are more savage than vegetarian races. Such theories are exploded by the fact that the Anglo-Saxons are reputed to be great meat eaters, and they have not proved slow or plodding in establishing their positions in worldly affairs. The Eskimos, the most carnivorous people alive, today, are a most peace loving people.
