BENTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY EVENING, FEBRUARY 8, 1893.

NUMBER 16.

NATIONAL NOTES.

WASHINGTON D. C., Feb. 2.—President-elect Cleveland has long ago shown that he possesses the rare faculty of being able to see and to do the right thing at the right time and place. Therefore it was not surprising that his telegram of condolence should have been among the first received by the widow of James G. Blaine, the American statesman. Although differing widely in many of their ideas there was one bond of sympathy between them, one prominent trait in the character of each of them that the other could admire without forgetting their political differences, and that was the intense Americanism, which makes Grover Cleveland the most popular living American, today. And therein lies a lesson that should not be lost upon men ambitious of popularity and power. There never was a period in the history of our country when sturdy, uncompromising Americanism was more highly appreciated by the masses than it is now.

Mr. Blaine's funeral, which was held Monday at the Church of the Covenant, was by request of his family made as simple as possible. The pall bearers were all intimate personal friends of the deceased and the services at the church were confined to the reading of the Presbyterian burial ritual and a prayer by the pastor. With the exception of an organ dirge before and after the short service, played by Walter Damrosch, the husband of one of Mr. Blaine's daughters, there was no music. Not one-tenth of the people who wanted to attend the funeral could get in the church, and a very large crowd remained outside during the services and afterwards followed the remains to Oak Hill cemetery, where the interment was made, Mr. Blaine having requested that he be buried there by the side of his son Walker, who died suddenly several years ago. There was much disappointment here because the funeral was not public, and at the capitol. Congress adjourned from Saturday to 2 o'clock Monday afternoon to give its members an opportunity to attend the funeral, and all of the government buildings were closed Monday.

Unless there is a great change in the present opinion of the democratic senators nothing short of a cloture rule, which the senate refused to adopt when the force bill was under consideration, will enable the republicans to confirm the nomination of the republican successor to the late Justice Lamar, whom Mr. Harrison is said to be determined to nominate. The democratic senators are unanimous in the belief that this vacancy should be filled by a democrat and they will not allow a vote to be taken on the nomination of a republican unless compelled to do so by a cloture rule.

The house committee on rules has set aside February 9 and 10 for the consideration of the Andrew's bill for the repeal of the Sherman silver law. The general impression seems to be that a vote will not be reached, although a number of the friends of the bill express confidence in its being passed.

If Postmaster-General Wainmaker holds the reception to the employees of his department which was to have been held at his residence Monday night, the invitations to which were withdrawn on account of the death of Mr. Blaine, he will retire from office with the personal illwill of nine-tenths of the white employees of the department. The reason is not difficult to locate. In sending out the invitations for the reception he included all the negro laborers, watchmen, messengers, and scrub women on the department payroll, and the white clerks, particularly the females, object to associating on terms of social equality with the negroes.

Considerable interest is felt as to what position the administration will take on the petition of the provisional Hawaiian government for annexation to the United States. Whatever view Mr. Harrison may take of the matter it is hardly probable that any action will be taken by the present congress.

The house ways and means committee is putting in some hard work studying and digesting the treasury statement furnished by Secretary Foster last week, and Senator Carlisle has taken a copy of it over to President-elect Cleveland.

Senator Carey has given notice of two amendments to the house bill for the admission of New Mexico; one including Utah and Oklahoma in accordance with a decision of the republican caucus, and another including those two and Arizona. Unless the plans of the republican caucus are changed it is very doubtful whether any vote will be reached on this question at the present session.

The election of Representative Mitchell, of Wisconsin, who was chairman of the democratic congressional committee in the last campaign, to the senate is gratifying to democrats here, and they regard the promotion as deserved.

Rev. Sylvanus Lane Of the Cincinnati M. E. conference, makes a good point when he says: "We have for years used Hood's Sassafras in our family of five, and find it fully equal to all that is claimed for it. Some people are greatly prejudiced against patent medicines, but how the patent can hurt a medicine and not a machine is a mystery of mysteries to me."

Hood's Pills cure liver ills.

The Breckinridge News gives this list of applicants for collector in the second district: In the first congressional district, Judge C. L. Rand e, of Hickman, and Mr. Geo Catlett, of Princeton. In the second district, Judge J. T. Dempsey, of Madisonville, and Col. J. D. Powers and J. A. Fuqua, of Owensboro. In the third district, Mr. A. G. Rhea, of Russellville, and Mr. H. P. Potter, of Bowling Green. In the fourth district, Mr. D. H. Severs, of Breckinridge. There are several precincts, however, from which the news has yet to be heard.

J. H. Brunner, a St. Louis drummer, has brought suit in the Crittenden circuit court against the Ohio Valley railroad for $5,000 damage. The plaintiff boarded a train at Blackford to come to Nunn's switch. He claims he could not get a ticket at Blackford and that the conductor refused to accept the fare tendered him in money. When he refused to pay more than the regular fare he was ejected from the train about half way between the stations.—Ex.

The new postal money orders which have been ordered by the government will soon be issued; in the new system there is little or no complication. Sheets will be issued calling for amounts from one cent to three dollars, which can be torn off to suit the demands of the purchasers. The postmaster will have no writing to do on it, the sender simply endorsing it the same as a check or draft. One cent will pay the charges on any amount up to three dollars, instead of five cents as at present.

A shoemaker in New York is now at work on a pair of shoes for a colored preacher in Georgia, which are perhaps the largest ever manufactured. They are 21 inches long and 7 1/2 inches in width and in the trade are known as "twenty-eights and a half." The man is of a size to match the shoes for he weighs 410 pounds.

The 261 Hopkinsville Sam Jones converts have united with seven churches as follows: Baptist; 73; Methodist; 62; Christian; 56; Presbyterian, 19; and Episcopal, 8. Owensboro, Paducah and Bowling Green have arranged to have Sam Jones early in the spring.

A young farmer named Garber, living 15 miles west of Fort Scott Kan., having learned that his wife and his brother-in-law, Charles Kirby, loved each other, traded his wife to Kirby for a horse.

AN OLD RELIC.

In order that the readers of the Tribune, who have grown into manhood in the last 30 years may know the kind of oaths that the yankees while in power during the war required our people to subscribe and take before they could remain as undisturbed citizens, we publish below a copy of an oath that Provost-Marshal Jno R. Howlett, who was stationed at Paducah in 1862, required our fellowtownsman John Fisher to take in that city on August 8, 1862, which will be read with some interest. This oath was taken by Mr. Fisher nearly 31 years ago and he says he is still living up to its requirements. It is as follows:

OATH OF ALLEGIANCE

To United States of America. I, John Fisher, of Marshall county, and state of Kentucky, do solemnly swear that I will support, protect and defend the Constitution and Government of the United States against all enemies, whether domestic or foreign, that I will bear true faith, allegiance and loyalty to the same, any ordinance, resolution or law of any State Convention or Legislature to do contrary notwithstanding; and further, that I will well and faithfully perform all the duties which may be required of me by the laws of the United States. And I take this oath freely and voluntarily, without any mental reservation or evasion whatsoever, with a full and clear understanding that death or other punishment by the judgment of a Military Commission, will be the penalty for the violation of this, my solemn oath and parole of honor.

JOHN FISHER. SEAL.

Subscribed and sworn before me at Paducah, Ky., this 8th day of August, A. D. 1862.

JNO. R. HOWLETT,

Provost-Marshal.

Uncalled For.

The assaults made upon Gov. Brown by the Louisville Commercial concerning charges which the governor answered and settled in the minds of the people, of not only Kentucky, but of the entire country, are not only uncalled for but out of good taste, and the course of that paper is now receiving the hearty condemnation of all respectable men in all political parties. The charges mentioned in the Commercial are familiar to the people of Kentucky and have been for over fourteen years, and if they had not known that Mr. Brown fully vindicated himself they would not have elected him governor of the state. Now just because his name was favorably mentioned for United States senator that a paper should dig up these old charges and dose them out to the public for the purpose of damaging a gentleman high in authority is altogether out of place and entirely uncalled for, and will not receive the favorable sanction of a conservative and generous public.

Obituary.

Mrs. Callie Dupriest, nee Smith, was born Jan. 1, 1854. Departed this life Nov. 27, 1892. She was the wife of C. P. Dupriest. She was born, raised, married and died near Briensburg, Ky.; was a member of the M. E. church south and was a devoted christian. She suffered long and much, but in it all she was cheerful and patient. When she first became very ill, she sent for Rev. J. C. Ross and wife, her son-in-law and daughter. Pearly, her daughter, had long wished to hear her mamma rejoice and praise the Lord, as she had always been quiet and calm in her devotions. On the night after they got home she requested Rev. Ross to sing. She helped sing a few verses but got so happy she turned her singing into rejoicing and praising the Lord, and as she embraced her daughter she said "this is the way I will meet my dear Creed and children at that beautiful gate and be faithful and after awhile you will all meet me." She wanted to hear Rev. J. M.

Mooney preach one time more this side of eternity. She enjoyed the sermon very much, at the close of which she had Martin Franklin to conclude with one of his warm and earnest prayers. She talked to her friends and members of her family about death, just as quietly as she ever did about any other matter. She left nothing unsaid. She was particularly fond of music. To one of her friends with whom she had frequently sung, said that she expected to sing such songs in heaven some bright day. She left a husband and six children to mourn her loss. She is gone to her reward in heaven where there is no sorrow, pain and death, for "God will wipe away all tears from their eyes and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain, for the former things are passed away." To the family, she is gone, she cannot come to you, but you can go to her. May God in his infinite goodness bring her husband, Alvie, Pearl, Charlie, Mattie, Emma and little Ella to enjoy a sweet reunion in heaven in the sweet by and by with wife and dear mother. A FRIEND.

BRIENSBURG.

I thought I would write a few lines to the Tribune. I like the Tribune fine. I am a little boy, 8 years old last August, and I have been reading your paper sometime. When I get to be a man I will subscribe for the Tribune. I live on the public road, two miles east of Briensburg. There is no school in the neighborhood, and all I can do is study and play at home.

I can hear the trains so plain at Paducah, I think I will go over and take a ride by and by.

I will be glad when the mud dries up so I can get out with the boys and play ball.

I would like to read a letter in the Tribune from some other little boy 8 years old. RUDY DEES.

We received an interesting letter from our young friend H W Jones, who is now in Bagwell, Texas, on a visit to relatives and friends in the Lone Star state. He left Mayfield on the 20th of January and went to Memphis where he took the popular route to Texas, the "Great Cotton Belt" to Texarkana. He had the pleasure of seeing some beautiful country and thriving towns, and crossing the principle waters, the Mississippi, Arkansas, Red and other rivers. He was delighted at the fine sections of the cotton producing country along the route. We would like to publish his entire letter, but our space is too limited. He will remain away several weeks, after which he will return to the land of his nativity.

The senior proprietor of this paper has been subject to frequent colds for some years, which were sure to lay him up if not doctored at once. He finds that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is reliable. It opens the secretions, relieves the lungs and restores the system to a healthy condition. If freely used as soon as the cold has been contracted, and before it has become settled in the system, it greatly lessens the attack and often cures in a single day what would otherwise have been a severe cold.—Northwestern Hotel Reporter, Des Moines, Iowa. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by R. H. Starks.

The French newspapers tell of a very interesting match that came off in France. Two women in good society challenged each other to talk fast. Each was to utter as many words as possible in a fixed time. Each woman talked three consecutive hours. One uttered 203,500 words. The other won the match with 206,080 words.

IT IS RUMORED

That the new city charter is a good one.

That "cinch" parties are a thing of the past.

That U. R. Waller is no longer one of the "400."

That Judge Blewett does not smile when on the bench.

That Dan Eley says we left him out in our last report.

That Clay Lemon certainly "stands in" in North Benton.

That some of the boys did not like what we said about them in our last.

That there are more widows in Benton than any town its size in the state.

That Jim Fisher said we failed to announce that he is a candidate for matrimony.

That some of our county officials do not not attend to their duties as closely as they should.

That Kentucky has thirty million gallons of whisky in stock and that Benton has her share.

That the city ordinances should be printed and posted up where people may see and read them.

That in one respect the north pole is like a woman's pocket. It is there but no man can find it.

That the man who weds his type writer will find that he has done all his dictating before marriage.

That some of the papers of the state are complaining that the cigarette habit is destroying the minds of the youths. No danger; a "youth" who has no more sense than to smoke a stinking cigarette, has no mind to lose.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

We are authorized to announce
of Marshall county, a candidate to represent Marshall and Lyon counties in the next General Assembly of Kentucky; subject to the action of the democratic party.

WED. EVENING, FEB. 8.

The jail at Murray, the jail at Benton, the jail at Smithland—all to let.

Twenty-five days and it will be President Cleveland; and won't that be nice!

Don't be uneasy about Kentucky not having plenty of suitable timber for United States senator at any time.

Senator Carlisle was only elected to fill out the unexpired term of Jas. B. Beck, which only lacks one year being out. One year hence another senatorial election will be held.

Major George F. Barnes is a candidate for re-election to the office of councilman in his ward in Paducah. We know that the genial major will make as good councilman as any republican, and why not elect him and say no more about it.

Republican postmasters here and there all over the country are resigning fourth class offices, and recommending democrats to fill their places. This is wholly unnecessary; if they will only wait until after the 4th of March plenty of democrats can be found who will be put in their places without any of their assistance.

President Harrison did a commendable act in appointing Judge Howell E. Jackson, a democrat of Tennessee, a member of the supreme court to the place made vacant by the death of the great jurist Judge Lamar. Such a course in the closing hours of his administration is indeed commendable and will meet the hearty approbation of the people of the south.

This is not going to be a milk and cider administration. Every republican postmaster will be removed and not one will be left to tell the tale. In every instance where a democrat wants in a republican will go out. This will be the way things will go, especially in a congressional district where Hon. W. J. Stone is the congressman. One hundred days from March 4, 1893, the last official head will be clipped by the new political guillotine which is now in the hands of the democratic party.

A NEW PAPER.

The Saturday Item, an every other week publication, issued by that terse and interesting writer, Wilder Wear, appeared on our table the other day, and we read it with eager interest until we devoured every "item" in it. It is a newsy little paper and though we can hardly expect it to become as great a paper as the Tribune, yet from its beginning we would not be surprised to see it at no distant day equal in every respect to the St. Louis Republic, Courier Journal and other like metropolitan journals. It is published at Murray, the county seat of Calloway county. We recommend the Item to a progressive people.

RACE FOR REPRESENTATIVE

At the coming November election the people of Lyon and Marshall counties will elect a member of the next general assembly to succeed Mr. Glenn, who is now our worthy member. We are not informed whether he will desire an endorsement or be an applicant for his own successor or not, but it is presumed he will soon make his wishes known in this respect and that those who expect to enter the race will not delay their action, as the democrats will, of course, after the race is made up, call a joint primary election, in which both counties will take part on the same day and nominate a man to represent the two counties in the next general assembly. There are several gentlemen doubtless in both counties who will be candidates before the democratic primary for that position, and the people ought to have ample time to see who they are and think of their fitness for that position. The people should be careful and put none on guard but good and true men. The first Monday in August we suggest will be the time best suited to hold the primary and time plenty will then be given the candidates to mix and mingle among the people. It is time those who expect to enter the race were letting themselves be known so that the people can, when the time comes, make a good and worthy selection.

ELIAS BARRY.

In the Tribune this week will be found the announcement of Elias Barry as a candidate for a seat in the next General Assembly of Kentucky from the counties of Lyon and Marshall. In presenting the name of Judge Barry for this important position we present the name of one of the best men this legislative district can boast for this place of honor. He has always been a prominent figure in the affairs of his own county. He was born in Sumner county, Tenn., on Nov. 15, 1849, but was only seven years old when his parents moved to this county in 1856. He grew up in this county and was educated in the best schools the county afforded. He was raised on a farm, and in 1874 was a candidate before the 16 justices of the county for the office of county school commissioner. There were four contestants, and on the first ballot he received 13 votes. At the expiration of the term he was re-elected without opposition. In 1886 he was elected county judge and served the people acceptably for four years. In the race for this office he ran against four of the county's best men and received 52 votes more than the two foremost of his opponents. He has always been a moral, sober, upright gentleman and in all dealings with his fellowmen has been honest and trustworthy. In politics he has been a democrat of the old school and announces himself a candidate subject to the action of his party. If the people see proper to elect him as their representative they will find in him a true and faithful public servant.

District Union.

The district union of the Farmers' Alliance met last week at the Dale House in Paducah and elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, J. Crit Jones, of Marshall county; vice-president, W. W. Holland, of Lyon county; secretary and treasurer, G. C. Finley, of Marshall county; lecturer, Dr. Samuel Graham, of Marshall county. The newly elected officers were duly installed and now are ready to enter upon their duties of another year's work. It will be seen from the above that Marshall county gobbled up nearly all of the important officers belonging to the district union. Marshall stands foremost among the counties in the First district as an alliance working county.

Among the vacant seats in the Dale House and in the union were the seats of Hon. Ben Keys, Editor Wesson and the immaculate Erwin, and where, oh! where is our beloved Tom Gardner? Are these great lights in the alliance cause dropping out and fading away?

The School.

Prof. Lankford's school opened up Monday with a good attendance. The indications are now that he will have a very interesting school. He seems to be a teacher of superior ability, and from the way the school has begun the people and patrons may expect that a first-class school will be taught and that those who attend will receive the full benefit of their money. The people here can do much to aid him in building up a good school that will be of great benefit to both the town and country. We hope the proper encouragement will be given the school by everyone who has children that should be in school.

BRIENSBURG.

As we have got to be one of the boys, we feel that the cautious tread of the tender-foot is no longer necessary.

Married at the home of the bride on last Wednesday evening, Rev. A. L. Dallas officiating, Mr. Robt. Phelps to Miss Minnie Boatwright. We join in with their many friends in wishing them a long life of peace and plenty.

The denizens who inhabit the eastern part of town are greatly excited on account of the finding in an old outbuilding a deck of cards, poker chips, a set of dice, and in fact everything that goes to make up a first-class gambling hell. The floor and walls are covered with blood and signs of a terrible struggle are evident. A day-book was found which may furnish a clue. That shrewd detective, Bill Smith, is working up the case and some startling developments are expected.

The matrimonial market which has been at a low ebb here for many months seems to be on the verge of a boom. The knowing ones say that such another marrying and giving in marriage, that will take place here before the ideas of March come and go, will astonish the natives.

With tobacco a good price and pork at 8c a pound, with the patent-right man abroad in the land we see no cause why the poor down-trodden farmer shouldn't be reasonably happy.

The fight for the postoffice is on in earnest, and we say "lay on McDuff, and bedammed be he who first cries enough!"

Miss Bettie Reeves is quite sick.

Several of our young men will leave in a few days for the sunny south, where they will engage in the patent-right business, and that beautiful ballad entitled, "Good bye my lover, good bye," is being rehearsed by a couple of young ladies.

The "ouija" board craze has broken out afresh in this town.

YORICK.

Murray, Ky.

Bob Miller, one of the escaped prisoners, was captured at the depot here Friday night. Under something of a pressure he "blowed" on Shad Ray and Tom Willis both colored, as the parties who furnished the implements with which to break jail. They were promptly arrested on that charge and now linger behind the bars.

Alex Stephens, a colored brother who runs a "shack" near the depot, was pulled Saturday for dispensing red liquor in violation of the prohibition and local option law here.

Mrs. Radford, wife of Sheriff Radford, was thrown from a buggy Saturday evening by runaway horse and considerably bruised, but not seriously.

E. Wilder Wear, the youngest brother of the numerous Wear boys, has started a very creditable little paper here, and he tells us he is meeting with very satisfactory success.

Mr. Aubrey Covington, of Hardin, showed his handsome "phiz" on the streets here Monday.

Judge B. B. Linn went to Cadiz this week. MAURICE LANDER.

Hamilton, Wash.

We are in receipt of a letter from an old Marshall county boy who is now a resident of the far-away state of Washington, but the letter came too late to be of interest to the readers of the Tribune, and we only make mention of it because we are always glad to hear from a Marshall county boy it matters not upon what part of the earth he may be located. This letter is from W. I. Lyles who left this county on Feb. 24, 1880, and resided in Texas for five years, after which he went to Mexico where he lived one year. He was in Mexico when the trouble came up between Uncle Sam and Mexico about Cutting at El Paso. He, at the time, was near the City of Mexico, and says he was never treated better by any nationality; then said he was expecting war declared every day. After this trouble was over he went back to western Texas, near El Paso, and remained nearly two years. Then he drifted into California and on into San Francisco, where he stayed for some time. Then said he, "I took a steamer to Seattle, Wash., and after a voyage of 2,200 miles on the Pacific ocean I arrived at Seattle, where I have been for three years. I am now at Hamilton, in Skagit county, engaged in the butcher business. The main resources of this state is timber. The largest trees grow here of any state in the Union, except the red wood of Colorado. If I well to tell you the enormity of the trees you would not believe it, but if any of your people visit the World's fair at Chicago they will see one of these trees whose height was 240 feet. That same tree was cut within 20 miles of here. There are plenty of claims of 160 acres whose timber will cut 10,000,000 feet to the claim. This looks very large to the scrubby oaks of old Marshall."

This letter was written by W. I. Lyles who formerly lived below Palma, and if we mistake not is a brother of Mr. Verge Lyles who is one of the county's best citizens of that locality. We shall be glad to hear from Mr. Lyles again.

Double Elopement.

Under the caption of "Double Elopement in Marshall," the Paducah News of Thursday says:

Two couples left the little town of Olive, Marshall county, this forenoon, bound for Paris, Tenn., to be united in bonds matrimonial. The parties were W. A. Hartley and Miss Melissa Norwood, and Henry Chandler and Mrs. Genoa McCoy. All the parties are well known in that section, are worthy young people, and have many friends. Mr. Hartley is a merchant at Olive and an ex-pedagogue, who is personally known to many Paducahans. His bride is a charming and interesting young lady. Mr. Chandler is also a merchant at Olive, having been in business at that point for several years. He is an affable young man, and is liked by everybody. Mrs. McCoy is a young teacher of sweet disposition and bright mentality. She resigned a school at Sharpe a few days ago, in anticipation of the happy event, which occurred today.

John Estes Acquitted.

Johnnie Estes, who on August 12, 1891, killed Otis Karnes, in Henry county, Tenn., was tried last week in the circuit court at Paris and acquitted.

Our readers will remember about the murder as both Mr. Estes and Mr. Karnes were young men who were from near Briensburg in this county and were highly beloved and respected by all who knew them. They were at work together in the logging business near the mouth of Sandy on the Tennessee river, and from trivial misunderstanding became involved in a personal encounter in which Mr. Karnes lost his life.

Estes was indicted by the grand jury of that county and after a continuance of the case for three or four times, it was finally called and tried last week, with the above result.

The friends of both parties were assisted by able and learned counsel. The prosecution was conducted by the state's attorney of Tennessee, Gen. Lewis, and Jacob E. Rowe, commonwealth's attorney of the sixth judicial district of Kentucky, while the interest of the defense was cared for by Stacker Taylor, one of the ablest criminal lawyers in West Tennessee, assisted by John G. Lovett of this place. Notwithstanding Estes was indicted for murder in the first degree, yet after hearing the evidence the jury after having the case for two days acquitted the defendant on the grounds that he had to kill his antagonist in self-defense. The friends of Johnnie Estes will rejoice to hear that he is again a free man. The parents of both the boys to this unfortunate occurrence are highly respected and have the sympathy of all their friends and acquaintances.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The Best Salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by J. R. Lemon.

Jumbo Willis and Shad Ray the two colored gentlemen who furnished the prisoners in the Murray jail with crow bars and other tools by which the jail was broken, are now in jail ready for a trip to the pen.

Notice.

On or about January 18, 1893, in my store at Benton a boy carried off one coat without my consent or my clerk's, and I said it was Joe Ford's boy, and thought if it were he just forgot to pay for it and that it would be all right, but since then I found it was not Mr Ford's boy, and some one told him I said he stole the coat, which is a mistake. I did not mean to say he stole the coat at all, for Mr Ford and his boys were good customers of mine and I took them to be good, straight, nice people. Hoping this will be satisfactory to Mr Ford and his boy and their neighbors and acquaintances and that I may continue to have them as friends, I am very truly

A Costly Acquittal.

Martin Powell, an aged gentleman, living near Calvert City, was arrested and arraigned for trial in that city last week charged with attempted rape on a twelve year old girl of Jesse Hatcher-on. The case was continued over from Thursday to Friday. On that day all parties were ready for trial, but just before the trial began Mr. Heath, county attorney, dismissed the charge of rape and had Mr. Powell arrested on a warrant for breach of the peace. Mr. Powell confessed his guilt, or his attorney did for him, in the sum of $50, which he paid and thus ended the case. Mr. Powell denies having been guilty of attempted rape or a breach of the peace and when he was brought to his senses by a fine of $50 and an attorney's fee of $50 and cost amounting to $20 all told $120, he exclaimed: "Gentlemen, if I had been guilty of both crimes it would have cost me less money." God save the innocent.

A Good Record.—"I have sold Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for ten years," says druggist E. B. Legg, of Vail, Ia., "and have always warranted it and never had a bottle returned. During the past 90 days I have sold twelve dozen and it has given perfect satisfaction in every instance." It does not dry up a cough, but loosens and relieves it. It will cure a severe cold in less time than any other treatment. 25 cent, 50 cent and $1 bottles for sale by R H Starks.

It Breaks the Record.

The new "Washington Limited" train inaugurated by the N. C. & St. L. Ry. between Nashville and Washington City, makes the run in the unparalleled time of twenty-five hours, leaving Nashville 7:30 a. m. daily, arrives at Chattanooga 12:25 p. m., Knoxville 3:45 p. m., Washington, eastern time, 9:30 a. m., and New York, eastern time, 3:00 p. m. It is one of the finest trains in the country, having Pullman Vestibuled Sleeping Car through from Nashville to Washington, with magnificent new Dining Car and Day Coaches from Chattanooga, making the run five and a half hours quicker than by any other route. It is truly a record breaker, and will be a blessing to the people going east.

Do You Want a Public Office?

There are 180,000 offices within the gift of the new Administration and now is the time for those seeking public employment to take proper steps to secure one of these lucrative positions. All who are interested should at once send for a copy of the United States Blue Book. It is a register of all Federal offices and employments in each State and Territory, the District of Columbia and abroad with their salaries, emoluments and duties; shows who is eligible for appointment, questions asked at examinations, how to make an application and how to push it to success, and gives besides a vast amount of important and valuable information relative to Government positions never before published. Handsomely bound in cloth. Price 75 cents, post paid. Address J. H. Soule, Pub., Box 43 Washington, D. C.

ODDITIES OF GREAT MEN.

Cardinal Richelieu hated children and loved cats; when he died his favorite Angora pet refused to eat and soon perished.

George III was passionately fond of music, and during his madness could always be calmed by the sound of an organ.

Louis XVI in early life learned the trade of a locksmith, and during his imprisonment amused himself by making locks.

Scott was fond of riding, and by daylight would be out with his horse and dogs. Most of his work was done before dinner.

George Eliot wrote for eight years with the same pen, and when she lost it bewailed her misfortune as almost too hard to bear.

Daniel Webster was extravagantly fond of oysters, and all those on his farm knew him by sight and would follow him like dogs.

According to Macaulay, the favorite amusements of Frederick William were to smoke, sip Swedish beer and shoot partridges.

The brave Marshal d'Abbeville could not endure the sight of a pig, and was subject to a fainting fit if he looked steadily at one.

Louis Napoleon was fond of mimic warfare, and would often have forts constructed in his garden to illustrate some tactical point.

Vladimir, King of Poland, always said he would rather meet a thousand foes than be shut up in a room with a bushel of apples.

Henry III of France was so fond of spaniels that he went about in public with a litter of pups in a basket suspended from his neck.

The soldierly Duke d'Eperny became sick for hours if he saw a hare, and once kept his bed for a week because one leaped on him.

Patti had a weakness for Mexican spaniels, and wherever she goes carries two or more with her usually wrapped up in silk shawls.

Whenever Whittier had an inspiration he would go to a corner of his room and kneel down while he reduced his thoughts to words.

John Milton loved to play on the organ. He made his second wife sing, and said she had some voice but not the slightest idea of tone.

Napoleon's favorite amusement was indulging in intrigues, which, he said, relaxed a man's mind when tired with serious business.

Petavius, the author of "Dogmata Theologica," when tired of study amused himself by twirling his chair for five or ten minutes.

Octavius Augustus had a mortal dread of thunder, and whenever a storm came on he retired to an underground vault built for protection.

Richter was fond of pets and at one time kept a great spider in a paper box, carefully feeding and tending the creature for many months.

Philip, the Duke of Burgundy, spent much time in contriving trap door in his house and grounds to souse unwary stranger in water beneath.

Marshal Bazez once accidentally killed a relative while both were rabbit-hunting, and ever afterward would swoon at the sight of a hare.

Spinoza's favorite amusement was to set spiders to fighting, and he would laugh immoderately at beholding their ferocious struggles.

Julius Caesar was ashamed of his bald head, and when it became shiny he constantly wore a laurel wreath in the hope of concealing the deformity.

Vaughan, the Hanoverian, could hunt wild boars, but could not endure the sight of roast pork even the smell making him deathly ill.

Seneca, when tired writing his treatises on morals, found amusement in going over his accounts and calculating how much interest was due him.

Burton, when out of spirits, would go to the Thames, sit on the steps leading to the water, and find pleasure in listening to the stories of the bargemen.

Next to money Rembrandt loved nothing so well as his monkey. He shed tears when the ape died and painted a portrait of his pet from memory.

Adam Smith, the author of the "Wealth of Nations," when tired of study would go into a neighboring blacksmith shop and watch the smith at work.

George IV was fond of low practical jokes and on one occasion came near being thrashed by a companion whom he pushed into the water.

Herschel, the astronomer, had been a player in a Prussian regimental band, and often in his old age set his neighbor's teeth on edge with a hautboy.

Pennetts, the great traveler, hated wigs, and got into innumerable broils by snatching off the head covering of every man he met who wore a wig.

The great painter Razzi filled his house with all sorts of animals and taught his raven to cry "come in" whenever there was a knock at the door.

With pure, vigorous blood coursing through the veins and animating every fibre of the body, cold weather is not only endurable but pleasant and agreeable. No other blood medicine is so certain in its results as Ayer's Sarsaparilla. What it does for others it will do for you.

Personal Reminiscences of Blaine. My acquaintance with Mr. Blaine began at the opening of the Forty-first congress on the 4th of March, 1869. I was a member of that congress and he was speaker.

Shortly after I was sworn in, the speaker came to my seat, gave me his hand, and conversed for a few moments. This cordiality undoubtedly was caused by the friendly things Garfield had spoken of me to him. I was greatly impressed by his manner and friendly treatment. I was a stranger to the bulk of the members, and had never had legislative experience. I closely watched the proceedings and especially the part taken by the speaker.

He grew upon me wonderfully as a man of power, and of sincerity in his views, and in his views, and in his professions of friendship. I immediately became his friend, and I felt that he would render me all the aid he properly could in the work so new to me.

I early inquired what committee I preferred. I said, "I am a lawyer, and my personal interests suggest the judiciary, but I represent a commercial city, and think I can best promote the interests of my constituents by being placed on commerce." He put me on that committee. He took pains to aid the young members. He was then a man of splendid presence, his figure was plump, his hair and whiskers were thick and dark brown, and his complexion healthful. He was vigorous and sprightly in mind and body. The first session lasted till near the end of April and in it comparatively little was done.

Blaine was by nature magnificently endowed, both physically and mentally. He drew around himself an immense number of friends and followers in every part of the nation. As a politician he possessed more skill and adroitness than is usual to men of his frankness and positive characteristics, and in this respect he had no equal in the country unless it was General Logan. His influence over the house was unbounded, and it arose from several causes. First, he was magnetic; second, he was fair and impartial; and third, his familiarity with parliamentary law and accurate knowledge of the cause of legislation gave him the confidence even of his political opponents.

In general intercourse Blaine was companionable and genial, and the charm of the social circle. He was always fresh and sprightly and possessed a fund of pertinent and aptly illustrative anecdote. He was a fascinating speaker; language flowed easily, and his voice was clear and penetrating.

Blaine will ever remain a conspicuous character in our political and diplomatic history. His political opponents and bitterest personal enemies never denied that he was a man of great ability and unquestionable patriotism.

This Meat for You.

It has been truly said that half the world does not know how the other half lives. Comparatively few of us have perfect health, owing to the impure condition of our blood. But we rub along from day to day, with scarcely a thought, unless forced to our attention, of the thousands and thousands who are suffering from scrofula, salt rheum and other serious blood disorders, and whose agonies can only be imagined.

The marked success of Hood's Sarsaparilla for these troubles, as shown in our advertising columns frequently, certainly seems to justify urging the use of this excellent medicine by all who know that their blood is disordered. Every claim in behalf of Hood's Sarsaparilla is fully backed up by what the medicine has done and is still doing, and when its proprietors urge its merits and its use upon all who suffer from impure blood, in great or small degrees, they certainly mean to include you.

The assessor of Crittenden county has finished taking a list of the property of that county, and finds, under the new revenue law, that the assessment this year will exceed last year's by a good many thousand dollars. It is the opinion that similar results will come from every county in the entire state, as there is no doubt of it, the new law gets at a certain class of property that heretofore was never listed.—Ledger.

Colorless, Emaciated, Helpless
A Complete Cure by HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA.

This is from Mr. D. M. Jordan, a retired farmer, and one of the most respected citizens of Chicago, Co., N. Y.

"Fourteen years ago I had an attack of the liver and kidneys, and have since been troubled with my gradually growing worse. Three years ago I got down so low that I could scarcely walk. I looked more like a corpse than a living being. I had no appetite and for five weeks I ate nothing but gruel. I was badly emaciated and had no more color than a marble statue. Hood's Sarsaparilla was recommended and I thought I would try it. Before I had finished the first bottle I noticed that I felt better, suffered less, the inflammation of the bladder had subsided, the color began to return to my face, and I began to feel hungry. After I had taken three bottles I could eat anything I wanted to eat. Why, I got so hungry that I had to eat five times a day. I have now fully recovered, thanks to Hood's Sarsaparilla. I feel well and am well. All who know me marvel to see me so well." D. M. JORDAN.

Hood's PILLS are the best after-dinner pills, assist digestion, cure headache and biliousness.
