Rand ranking still a plus for Calloway growth

By EDWARD SHERIDAN
Staff Writer

Can a ranking issued over a decade ago still have an effect on a community? Murray Mayor Tom Rushing believes it can.

In statistics released this week from the United States Census Bureau, Calloway County was a significant contributor to Kentucky's trend of having more people move into the state than move out of it.

Calloway's 1,805 gain in population actually placed it 15th among Kentucky counties that gained in population between 1990 and 2000. Neighboring Marshall County gained 1,301, while Graves County saw a loss of 113.

Murray, as well as the rest of Calloway County, received a huge boost in its population efforts in 1998, when Rand McNally designated it as the nation's top retirement community. Rushing, who was a bank executive when that rating came out, believes Calloway is still reaping the benefits of that ranking today.

"I think Rand McNally had a big impact on this," he said. "I think once [people are] here they see how attractive it is and how friendly it is and what a good place to live it is. It's just a great place to be."

Murray-Calloway County Chamber of Commerce executive vice-president John Williams agreed with Rushing's assessment of the Rand McNally rating, but also said the local area serves up a unique combination of economic options, as well.

"I just think we have a very good economic mix," Williams said. "There's a mix of service, with the hospital and the university; manufacturing with Pella and Briggs and Stratton; and tourism, with us being located so close to Land Between the Lakes."

According to the Kentucky State Data Center, Calloway County's population grew from 30,735 in 1990 to 34,177 in 2000. The median age in that time period rose from 32.7 to 34.5. Only two age groups — 15 to 19 years and 65 to 74 years — saw decline over that same period of time.

The age group experiencing the largest amount of growth from 1990 to 2000 was the 45 to 54 year group, which grew by 47.6 percent from 1,245 to 1,838. The county's largest population group in 2000, though, was the 20 to 24 year age group, at 4,868.

Calloway County Judge-Executive Larry Elkins said he believes the local area's combination of quaintness and proximity to larger areas is a major draw. He also said low county taxes could be a draw, as well.

"I think probably one of the main reasons our population continues to grow is because of our recreation opportunities," he said. "They have opportunities to go to larger cities and shop and do those sorts of things while living in a rural community."

Elkins also said he believes that if Calloway County can keep attracting visitors, it will continue its growth trend.

"We need to continue to promote the local community," he said. "If we continue to get people to look at us, we'll continue to grow."

Help being sought for new Gentry House site

By BRANDI WILLIAMS
Staff Writer

The Gentry House is preparing for its new location, which should be ready by October.

The Gentry House, named for the late Kathie Gentry, a former board member, is a transitional home for families in crisis, such as fire victims, situations of domestic violence or evictions. The current home is located on 5th Street behind the Murray Police Department.

The problem the Gentry House has, though, is the current house is not big enough to serve its needs.

"I'm usually turning people down because it is always filled," said Rosalin Lowery, Gentry House case manager. "We've been having to refer families to Mayfield and Paducah. I hate to turn away someone who is in need."

The new home, which will be a four-plex, is located on Memory Lane. Construction started on the complex at the end of May.

Although a state grant paid for the construction of the building,

Expansion plan being eyed by Briggs & Stratton

By EDWARD SHERIDAN
Staff Writer

Thanks to a collaborative effort between state agencies, local city and county governments, the Purchase Area Development District and the Murray-Calloway County Economic Development Corporation, Briggs & Stratton is on its way toward bringing additional jobs to the local area.

The Kentucky Department of Local Government has announced that the Murray Briggs & Stratton plant, which currently employs nearly 1,000 people, is being recommended for $100,000 in funding from the Delta Regional Authority for an expansion project that will create as many as 100 additional jobs within the next five years.

The DRA is a federal-state partnership serving a 240-county/parish area in an eight-state region. Briggs & Stratton's funding request will now move on to the DRA's federal office in Clarksdale, Miss., for final approval.

While $100,000 may sound like a sizable enough amount for expansion, Joe Wright, Briggs & Stratton's vice president and general manager of its small engine division, said the DRA funding is just the tip of the iceberg as far as the plant's growth efforts are concerned.

"We plan to spend about $6 million on this facility over the next six to eight months," he said. "Through international sales and some domestic market share gain, we're looking at adding some capacity to this plant in the form of another shift."

"We have two main assembly lines for our engines. We run those two shifts each, and we're going to run one additional six hour shift five days a week."

Wright said the new jobs would consist of full-time equivalent employees. Some of the new spots that open up will also be created by the plant shifting some of its part-time employees over to full-time status, according to plant manager Rodney Bohannon.

"We've got a second shift seasonal assembly line, so we're going to convert that second shift to a full-shift status," he said. "Then we'll be hiring additional part-time employees to take their place on the third shift."

"We're going to hire full- and part-time jobs," added Wright. "Folks working 30 hours a week are converted to 40 hour a week jobs. For instance, if I have 'x' number at 30 hours, you convert that to actual 40 hours of work for those folks."

Briggs & Stratton has already begun running advertisements in local newspapers seeking to fill

Fletcher pushes 'character ed,' Chandler courts businesses

RICHMOND, Ky. (AP) — Republican gubernatorial candidate Ernie Fletcher said he would promote school safety through "character education" and more alternative schools for chronically disruptive students.

His Democratic opponent, Attorney General Ben Chandler, courted business votes in Shelbyville and disavowed the "transgressions" of Democratic Gov. Paul Patton.

Campaigning at White Hall Elementary School in Richmond on Thursday, Fletcher, the 6th District congressman, said schools should not be solely responsible for shaping character but can play an important role.

In an earlier interview, Fletcher said he was talking about "values that are virtually universally accepted."

"Things like fairness and justice and respect for other people.

Honesty, integrity and those sorts of things," Fletcher said. "I think it's important because some parents are taking their children out of school because of discipline problems."

Fletcher said more school districts need alternative schools for students who are disruptive or otherwise are unable to function in a regular classroom. He did not suggest specific numbers or costs.

Fletcher said he voted in Congress for legislation to designate "persistently dangerous schools" and would see to development of services for them, including training of "school safety teams" through Kentucky Educational Television.

No Kentucky school has been declared persistently dangerous. A Fletcher spokesman, Wes Irvin, said the proposal was prudent.

In Shelbyville, Chandler shared a Chamber of Commerce podium with Fletcher running mate Steve Pence, who alluded to scandals in the Patton administration. They include Patton's extramarital affair and multiple investigations of the Transportation Cabinet.

Arguing that it is time for a change after 32 straight years of Democratic governors, Pence said

State school board opts for dual testing scheme

By CHARLES WOLFE

Associated Press Writer
FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — The Kentucky Board of Education adopted a dual testing system for judging whether schools are doing an effective job.

The state would keep its own system, in use for the last decade, under the board's plan, announced Thursday. It then would add reading and math tests to satisfy requirements of the federal education law known as No Child Left Behind.

Still to come is the task of explaining to the public why Kentucky will have two testing schemes that take significantly different approaches and seem likely to result in apparent contradictions: a school succeeding by one measure and failing by another.

The mechanics and rationale of each system will have to be carefully spelled out for the public, Education Commissioner Gene Wilhoit said. "It's not enough just to say we're going to have a two-tier system," he said.

Kentucky's system — the Commonwealth Accountability Testing System — uses tests in seven subjects to help assess school performance. Schools need to demonstrate progress by the student body as a whole. The state uses two years of data when rating a school's performance.

Under No Child Left Behind, schools are to be judged annually on the basis of tests in two subjects — reading and math. Tests must be given in every grade from third through eighth. Kentucky does not currently test for reading in grades 5 and 8 or for math in grades 4 and 7.

Also under the federal law, overall improvement is not enough. Individual groups of students — racial minorities, low-income and disabled students and those who speak limited English — all must be making "adequate yearly progress" toward proficiency, though states decide for themselves what constitutes proficiency.

If one student "subpopulation" comes up short, the school is deemed to be failing. If a school receives federal "Title I" funding and fails two years in a row, parents of students have to be given an opportunity to transfer.

State officials say it is entirely possible, even probable, that some Kentucky schools will land on the federal government's failing list and simultaneously qualify for performance bonuses under the state system.

Distribution center could employ up to 200

HENDERSON, Ky. (AP) — Columbia Sportswear Co. announced Thursday it will build a $40 million footwear distribution center here.

The center is scheduled to begin operations in 2005 and will employ 90 people during the first year, the Portland, Ore.-based company said.

The 428,000-square foot center could employ up to 200 over time, said Henderson economic development agent Jimmy Jones.

The center will distribute footwear to stores in the eastern and midwestern United States, the company said.

Vendors at renowned yard sale angered by tax agents

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — The world's longest yard sale had some unexpected and unwanted visitors Thursday when more than a dozen agents from the state's revenue department distributed notices and permits to several vendors.

The actions of the agents, the first such attempt to collect taxes on the huge yard sale in its 17-year history, did not go over well with merchants or supporters of the weeklong event, scheduled to end Sunday.

"The state should give these folks a break and realize that this event draws a lot of people and a lot of other money into this state," Fentress County Executive John Mullinix told the Chattanooga Times Free Press. "We had a lot of people around here scared when some of these agents started flashing their badges and showing their guns."

Tennessee's tax guide states someone can have occasional yard, estate or flea-market type sales and not have to pay state or local sales taxes. Some of the vendors stretched along U.S. Highway 127, however, also sell their merchandise at other festivals, yard sales or in stores throughout the year.

there are still items the center needs to make the spaces more like home.

"Mostly household items," Lowery said. "Things that are good and sturdy."

People interested in making donations are asked to call first so she can examine the items' condition.

The center is currently looking for items such as dishes, bedding, rugs, curtains, towels and sofas.

"I have already been getting donations from the community," said Lowery.

She recently sent letters to several department stores asking for donations and already has a storage space filled with items for Gentry House. Lowery said more storage space would probably be needed if someone would like to donate it, as well.

Those interested in donating should contact Lowery at 753-5000.

"no one will say we're proud of what the Patton administration has done."

"We see an abject failure in basic qualities of leadership out of the executive office," Pence said.

"I'm running for governor, and we've got a new Democratic Party, and you can't blame Paul Patton's transgressions on the Democratic Party generally," he said.

some of the new positions. That is one of the steps, Wright said, that will enable the plant to be eligible for the DRA funding.

"There's certain things that we have to achieve," he said. "We have to do the hiring. We have to start some of the projects."

"It's contingent on us making that capital commitment and employing that number of people we told them we would be employing," Bohannon said. "This is really just a way of financing that."

Wright said the additional employees will eventually translate into major employee tax savings for the plant.

"Over the next 10 years, we should see some pretty significant tax reduction opportunities based on the number of people we've got employed," he said. "We're looking for some tax deferral dollars to assist us in keeping this facility profitable and trying to keep our tax liability down a little bit."

While the word "expansion" is being used to describe the plant's efforts, Bohannon said the actual plant itself will not be increasing from its current size of approximately 300,000 square feet.

"We're really not adding square footage," he said. "We're re-allocating some of our storage and some of our extra square footage. We're probably going to have to use outside storage space for some of our components."

The moving and shifting that will occur, Bohannon said, will happen mainly in the plant's downstairs area, where new die machines will be added. He also said some office space will have to be converted, while some new offices will be added. With extra employees will come extra parking demands, and Wright said the plant is already exploring options of where to put everyone and their vehicles.

"We're looking at re-organizing our existing lot," he said. "We're pretty much landlocked. We're investigating some things right now."

Briggs and Stratton is the world's largest producer of air-cooled gasoline engines for outdoor equipment. Its other plants in the United States are located in Wauwatosa, Wis.; Poplar Bluff and Rolla, Mo.; Auburn, Ala.; and Statesboro, Ga.

Wright estimated that 13,600 engines come off the Murray Briggs & Stratton's assembly lines each day. Bohannon said there are currently approximately 450 people working on the plant's first shift, 300 on its second and a "couple hundred" on its third.

The plant has also utilized seasonal shifts in the past, where employees would work for a limited time. Wright said the new third shift will be examined over its first year of operation to see if it is needed year-round.

While local production is doing well, Wright said it is Briggs & Stratton's success in the international realm that is a major reason for the decision to expand the Murray plant.

"We're expanding in Asia and eastern Europe," he said. "Most properties in Europe are smaller, so they like the smaller engines on the smaller decks. There's also kind of a slow conversion from what they call electric product to propane or gas-powered product."

Wright said Briggs & Stratton has other economic requests in with various agencies to secure additional funding for the expansion project. Bohannon said all the shifting around that will occur in the next couple of months free up the plant's employment options.

"We're moving existing people into new jobs here in the plant, so that's creating openings that were not here in the past," Bohannon said. "That will help us fill the backlog of jobs we have here in the plant to fill the capacity requirements."

Local EDC president Mark Manning said Briggs & Stratton's decision to invest such a large sum of money on expansion is a good sign for Murray's future economic endeavors.

"The expansion is terrific, and we're very happy that they're going to be hiring more people. But the fact that they're expanding in Murray is a good sign that this is a business that is going to be here for a long, long time," Manning said.

"The EDC has been working very closely with them," said EDC chairman Melvin Henley. "Anytime you have a world-class industry in your community like Briggs & Stratton, you do everything you can to keep them here."

Investigators: Hijackers, not passengers, deliberately crashed Flight 93

By TED BRIDIS

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Sept. 11 hijacker in the cockpit of United Airlines Flight 93 instructed terrorist-pilot Ziad Jarrah to crash the jetliner moments before it slammed into a Pennsylvania field because of a fierce passenger uprising in the cabin, recently disclosed testimony by the FBI director shows.

The theory described by FBI Director Robert Mueller, based on the government's analysis of cockpit recordings, discounts the popular perception of insurgent passengers grappling with terrorists inside the cockpit, trying to seize the plane's controls, immediately before the crash.

The government's findings — laid out deep within the July 24 congressional report on the Sept. 11, 2001, attacks — aim to resolve one of the enduring mysteries of the deadliest terror attacks in U.S. history: What happened in the final minutes aboard Flight 93? The newly published excerpts from Mueller's testimony appear at odds with what families of some passengers have come to believe happened.

The FBI strenuously maintains that its analysis does not diminish the heroism of passengers who, with the words "Let's roll," apparently rushed down the airliner's narrow aisle to try to overwhelm the hijackers. In phone calls from the plane, four passengers said they and others decided to fight the hijackers after learning of the attacks on the World Trade Center in New York that morning.

"In the cockpit! In the cockpit!" the passengers are heard yelling, according to Alice Hoglan of Los Gatos, Calif., who was among family members permitted to listen to the cockpit recording. Her son, Mark Bingham, died in the crash. She said the recording and a transcript the FBI provided to her and other families "doesn't leave very much doubt at all that passengers were able to get that cockpit door open."

President Bush and Attorney General John Ashcroft have regularly praised the courage of those aboard Flight 93.

"While no one will ever know exactly what transpired in the final minutes of Flight 93, every shred of evidence indicates this plane crashed because of the heroic actions of the passengers," FBI spokeswoman Susan Whitson said Thursday.

Thirty-three passengers, seven crew members and the four hijackers died when Flight 93 crashed, one of four hijackings that killed more than 3,000 people on Sept. 11.

Citing transcripts of the still-secret cockpit recordings, Mueller told congressional investigators in a closed briefing last year that, minutes before Flight 93 hit the ground, one of the hijackers "advised Jarrah to crash the plane and end the passengers' attempt to retake the airplane."

Hoglan said the FBI's transcript quotes one hijacker after fighting breaks out in the cabin asking another hijacker in the cockpit in Arabic, "Finish her/it now?", and she believed they were discussing whether to crash the plane. The response from the second hijacker, she remembered, was either "wait" or "not now."

Jarrah is thought to have been the terrorist-pilot because he was the only one of the four hijackers aboard known to have a pilot's license. The congressional report also describes the hijackers wearing bandanas and carrying knives, and passengers reported seeing the captain and co-pilot lying on the floor of the first-class section, presumably dead.

Mueller's depiction of the events was disclosed in a brief passage far into the 858-page report to Congress. Previous statements by FBI and other government officials have been ambiguous about what occurred in the cockpit.

The same cockpit recording was played privately in April 2002 for family members of victims aboard Flight 93, and the FBI also provided them with its best effort at producing an understandable transcript. Some family members believe passengers used a food cart as a shield and successfully broke into the cockpit.

“ While no one will ever know exactly what transpired in the final minutes of Flight 93, every shred of evidence indicates this plane crashed because of the heroic actions of the passengers ”

— Susan Whitson
FBI spokeswoman

"It is totally obvious listening to that flight recorder that they made it into the cockpit," said Deena Burnett, who lost her husband, Thomas E. Burnett Jr., on Flight 93. "You cannot listen to the tape and understand it any other way."

She declined to discuss specifics of the tape because federal prosecutors have asked families not to describe the recording. She remembered hearing a hijacker telling Jarrah in Arabic to crash the plane deliberately, as Mueller described, and Jarrah refusing.

Burnett also said U.S. authorities, including Assistant U.S. Attorney David Novak, told families in April 2002 that the recording indicates passengers made their way into the cockpit.

Hoglan said the hijackers inside the cockpit are heard yelling "No!" at the sound of breaking glass — presumably from the food cart — and that the final spoken words on the recorder seemed to be an inexcrisp.

Separately, the data recorder showed the plane's wings rocking violently as the jet flew too low and too fast for safe flight.

Intelligence officials believe the likely target for Flight 93 was the White House, based on information from Abu Zubaydah, a senior al-Qaida terrorist leader in U.S. custody who is believed to have played a key role in organizing the Sept. 11 attacks.

Prosecutors have sought a judge's permission to play recordings from Flight 93 during the terrorism trial of Zacarias Moussaoui, the only defendant in a U.S. case prosecutors have directly tied to the attacks. Moussaoui is accused of conspiring with the hijackers. Novak, the prosecutor quoted by Burnett and other family members, is one of the lead attorneys in the Moussaoui case.

The government has said it can link Moussaoui to Jarrah, using a telephone number found on a business card recovered at the Shanksville, Pa., crash site.

Moussaoui has acknowledged allegiance to Osama bin Laden and al-Qaida but says he was not involved in the attacks.

Eighteen soldiers from the Fort Campbell-based air assault division have died while participating in Operation Iraqi Freedom since the division deployed in February to Iraq.

The Army has not released what date Letufuga's body will be brought to the United States.

His death remains under investigation.

A U.S. soldier was shot and killed in western Baghdad, the military reported today, the third American soldier reported slain in the capital in the past two days.

The military said the soldier was attacked Thursday night in the upscale al-Mansour neighborhood.

Since U.S. President George W. Bush announced an end to major combat in Iraq on May 1, 56 soldiers have died in combat.

The total combat casualties in the war has climbed to 170, 23 more than in the 1991 Gulf War.

The military gave no details on the latest soldier's death and withheld his name until relatives were notified.

Lynch to write about Iraq capture

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Former prisoner of war Pfc. Jessica Lynch will tell her story in a book, a family spokesman said Thursday.

"The Lynch family has received many offers from people interested in bringing Jessica's story to life," spokesman Randy Coleman said. "Jessica and her family have concluded that the most appropriate and complete telling of this story will be in a book, which they will have more to say about soon."

Coleman would not discuss specifics of the book deal.

He said that Lynch was not granting interviews.

Lynch, a 20-year-old Army supply clerk from Palestine, W.Va., was captured March 23 after her 507th Maintenance Company convoy was ambushed in the southern Iraqi city of Nasiriyah. She was rescued from a hospital in the city on April 1.

Lynch, who returned home last month from a long hospitalization in Washington, D.C., has yet to talk publicly about her experience.

NBC said Wednesday that it had cast the role of Lynch in a TV movie scheduled to go into production this month. The movie has been developed without Lynch's authorization. But the network has said it was in talks with her to participate.

CBS abandoned its plans for a Lynch movie. CBS News had come under scrutiny after sending Lynch a letter that highlighted the prospect of a TV movie and other opportunities at sister companies while CBS was seeking a news interview.

NEWS ITEM: THE CALIFORNIA SUPREME COURT CONSIDERS WHETHER NEW VOTING MACHINES ARE REQUIRED FOR THE GOVERNOR'S RECALL ELECTION.

Road could be rocky from stardom to Sacramento

By ERICA WERNER
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Arnold Schwarzenegger took even his political advisers by surprise when he said he was running for governor, and his candidacy dramatically reshaped the California recall election. But what does he stand for?

While the Austrian-born actor's accent and trademark quips are familiar to millions, he has offered few clues about how he would handle California's knotty problems, from a staggering budget deficit to an affordable housing shortage to traffic gridlock.

His public comments Thursday, a day after he announced his candidacy on "The Tonight Show with Jay Leno," didn't offer much illumination.

The first media question Schwarzenegger faced after picking up candidacy papers at the Los Angeles County Registrar-Recorder's office: "What is your plan to cut the state budget?"

"We will have a plan very soon, a detailed plan on how to face those kinds of problems and how to solve those kinds of problems," he responded. "The important thing to know is that we have a crisis here in California. We have a $38 billion budget deficit that we have to deal with."

He avoided specifics, saying he wanted to ensure that all Californians had "a great job, a fantastic job" and that he would focus on children's issues. But the former bodybuilder likely will have to start outlining at least some of his plans in detail if he wants to muscle through a half-dozen seasoned politicians, from Democrats to conservative Republicans, with gubernatorial ambitions as fierce as his own.

Before announcing his candidacy, Schwarzenegger's lone foray into state politics came last year, when he drafted and successfully championed Proposition 49, a state ballot initiative aimed at dedicating as much as $550 million annually to before- and after-school programs.

"You all know that I am very passionate about children's issues," he said Thursday. "I've been involved in education and after-school programs for 10 years."

He also focused on political reform, criticizing the influence of special interest groups in the state Capitol.

"What we have right now in Sacramento is self-interest first — self-interest of the politicians, self-interest of special interest groups, and we have to reverse all that," he said. "It's public interest first."

Democrats immediately attacked Schwarzenegger as inexperienced and not up to the job.

"It's fine to say you're going to clean house. It's another thing to know what you can do and what you can't do under the California Constitution and the laws that have been established to date," Sen. Dianne Feinstein told CNN. "And I don't think people are going to fall for old clichés."

And for Republicans to the actor's right politically, the moderate Schwarzenegger could be a target for his social views. He has described himself as "very liberal" on social issues, noting that he favors legalized abortion, gay adoptions and "sensible gun controls," including a ban on assault weapons.

Schwarzenegger has other vulnerabilities, including allegations of groping and womanizing. When he contemplated running for governor last year, a Davis strategist bombarded newsroom fax machines with articles detailing such claims — and one of the same negative articles already has re-circulated.

Schwarzenegger denied the allegations at the time, and some of his co-stars came to his defense. During his appearance on the Leno show, he quickly sought to inoculate himself against such charges, saying he knew the attacks against him would include branding him as "a womanizer."

He vowed he could take it.

Last year's re-release of the film that first made him a star in the United States, the acclaimed 1977 documentary "Pumping Iron," also brought scrutiny when it was noted that Schwarzenegger was smoking marijuana in one scene.

"I did smoke a joint and I did inhale," he told The Associated Press. "The bottom line is that's what it was in the '70s, that's what I did. I have never touched it since."

Schwarzenegger could risk criticism in environmentally conscious California for his fleet of gas-guzzling Hummers. As of February, he owned six. Fellow candidate Arianna Huffington, for one, has crusaded against such vehicles.

But Schwarzenegger has already assembled an experienced campaign team that includes top aides to former Republican Gov. Pete Wilson. His chief political strategist, George Gorton, was also chief strategist to Wilson. His two senior strategists, Sean Walsh and Don Sipple, also worked for Wilson.

News of Schwarzenegger's candidacy resonated in his Austrian home village of Thal — population 2,138 — where the former hometown boy received some cautionary advice from Mayor Peter Urdl.

"We're happy for him, and we're sure he'll make it," Urdl said. "But he will have to realize that as a politician you cannot choose between roles, and you have to accept whatever comes your way."

Hillary might not wait until '08

In 1968, a carpetbag senator from New York pondered a race to unseat an incumbent president. Determined to capitalize on his family name, raised to mythic proportions by his relative's tenure in the White House, he judged, nevertheless, that his time had not yet come and that he should wait for four more years to venture out and run on his own.

But along came an unknown candidate who saw the vulnerability of the incumbent and mounted a campaign driven by the left-wing activists of the anti-war movement. With the president's strength more apparent than real and Americans chafing under the daily dose of combat casualties, the unknown candidate gathered momentum and support.

With each passing week, the incumbent president seemed more and more vulnerable.

Fearing that the train was leaving the station without him, the famous senator hastily revised his plans and jumped into the '68 presidential contest and led a national crusade to oust the incumbent. The unknown but venturesome candidate was shunted aside, and the senator mounted what promised to be a formidable challenge before it was cut short by a bullet.

Will the role Robert F. Kennedy was preparing for be played by Hillary Rodham Clinton, Lyndon Johnson by George W. Bush and Eugene McCarthy by Howard Dean? As that famous philosopher Yogi Berra said, "It's déjà vu all over again."

Bill and Hillary Clinton have one central idea in their uncluttered, ambitious minds: Hillary in 2008. Let Bush get re-elected, use the '04 primaries and general election to clean out the underbrush of competing Democratic candidates, and proceed unimpeded to the '08 nomination. Use the book tours to build support and popularity, but let somebody else take the fall in 2004.

But those well-laid plans would go awry if somebody else beats Bush.

With a Democrat in the White House certain to seek a second term in 2008, Hillary would have to wait until 2012 to run. By then, she'll be 65 and have been out of power for 12 years. The bloom will have faded and the honors gone elsewhere. So as Bush continues his descent in the polls, the chance that Hillary will run becomes ever greater.

The most recent polls put Bush's job approval at 58 percent but, ominously, indicate that only 47 percent would vote for him against a hypothetical Democratic candidate. Forty-seven percent is just about what Bush won in 2000. And how committed could the top 11 percent of his backers be to say that they approve of the job he's doing but won't necessarily vote for him?

Although the economy will improve and one hopes Bush will find a way out to stop the killings in Iraq, the larger reason for the collapse of his ratings is the decline of terrorism as the major issue facing America. Once, more than 50 percent cited it in verbatim questions, but now less than 10 percent do. Like many presidents before him — and like Churchill in 1945 — Bush is the victim of his own success, eradicating the issue that propped him up in the polls by solving it.

The president has skillfully moved to preempt such Democratic issues as the Medicare prescription drug benefit, generic drugs and racial profiling and has made taxes a key issue for the '04 contest by sunseting his tax cuts, but he still lacks a key domestic issue to use in ginning up his support. I have always felt that immigration reform to keep out terrorists and drug testing to cut demand to dry up the funding for narco-terrorists would serve him well, but so far, he hasn't moved to take up that or any other such issue.

If Bush continues to drop and one or more Democrats start to catch fire, Hillary Clinton will have some thinking to do. She won't have to look far to absorb the consequences of sitting on the sidelines. If 1968 is a distant recollection, 1992 would be doubtless more vivid. Bill Clinton got the nomination because Mario Cuomo decided not to run. Cuomo, figuring Bush couldn't be defeated, elected to wait, as Hillary is waiting in 2004, calculating that Bush can't be taken.

Will Hillary remember 1968 ... and 1992?

Union numbers shrink, not political clout

By LEIGH STROPE
AP Labor Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Unions' share of the work force has declined every year for the past 20 years, yet the power of organized labor at the polling place continues to grow.

Mindful of labor's election muscle, the nine Democratic presidential hopefuls are courting union leaders gathered for the AFL-CIO's executive council meeting, and also will participate in a Tuesday night forum.

Each is hoping to win labor's crown — a political mobilization machine that turns out voters.

For while the proportion of union members in the work force has fallen from 20 percent in 1983 to 13.2 percent now, labor's relative strength at the ballot box continues to grow in the face of overall declines in voter turnout.

The share of union household voters has grown from 19 percent in 1992 to 23 percent in 1996 to 26 percent in 2000.

Dick Gephardt will take another step toward his goal of a laborwide presidential endorsement with Tuesday's scheduled announcement of support from the United Steelworkers of America.

The union endorsement is his 11th, following a coveted seal of approval from the Teamsters in a leadership vote last week.

Union officials are meeting this week in part to determine whether Gephardt, who has staked his campaign on the support of organized labor, can snag enough endorsements from individual unions to win the AFL-CIO prize.

The AFL-CIO has endorsed only twice before: Al Gore in the last election and Walter Mondale in 1984. It's a difficult benchmark, requiring support from two thirds of the AFL-CIO's 13 million rank-and-file members.

Labor leaders say Gephardt is the only current candidate with a chance to join that list, even as they caution that there is a real possibility the labor group will make no endorsement.

Union officials may call for another meeting later this fall, giving them more time to gauge support.

"I think it's going to be hard because there are a bunch of big unions, particularly some of the service and public sector unions, that aren't ready to endorse him," said Steve Rosenthal, the former AFL-CIO political director credited with building labor's successful political program.

Questions plague the Missouri congressman's campaign, particularly about whether he can win. Gephardt, a longtime ally of labor, also sought the nomination in 1988.

For the United Food and Commercial Workers, which had its convention last week, members are widely divided about who to support.

"What's become clear from our convention is there is no consensus in our union for any one candidate," said union spokesman Greg Denier. Former Vermont Gov. Howard Dean and Gephardt "both got tremendously good responses," he said, "but there was not some clear favorite, that this is the person."

Another critical issue facing organized labor this week is money. With most unions struggling in the poor economy and membership down in some of them, labor officials are trying to figure out how to finance the largest political effort ever.

"After seeing George Bush raise 200 million dollars, I think we know that to be able to talk to our members and in some cases nonunion voters, we're going to need a lot of resources to be heard," said Andrew Stern, president of the Service Employees International Union, the largest in the AFL-CIO.

The executive council will consider transferring about $5 million from the AFL-CIO's general fund or organizing budget, and levying another surcharge on its affiliates of 4 cents per member per month to boost its political funds.

The same surcharge was approved for the 2002 election cycle — after much grumbling from some unions — and was to pay for the political program through 2005.

The AFL-CIO spent $42 million in the last presidential cycle and Stern said the council is considering an increase of about 25 percent.

Dr. Howard, Tucker-Garland Road, Kirksey, died Wednesday, Aug. 6, 2003, at 2:20 p.m. at Murray-Calloway County Hospital.

As a sixth generation Calloway Countian, Dr. Howard graduated in 1967 from Murray High School and then attended Auburn University and Murray State University. He went on to receive his medical degree from the University of Louisville; this, before completing his internship and residency at Baptist Memorial Hospital, Memphis, Tenn.

In 1985 he completed a fellowship in cardiology at Northwestern University, Chicago, Ill., where he was Chief Fellow. His work was published in the Journal of the American Medical Association. Both the American Board of Internal Medicine and the American Board of Cardiology and Cardiovascular Disease certified Dr. Howard.

His fellowships included the American College of Physicians and the American College of Cardiologists. During his career, he served as chief of staff at Murray-Calloway County Hospital and as president of the Calloway County Medical Society.

Dr. Howard practiced in Murray for five years with the late Dr. John C. Quettermous in internal medicine before opening his cardiology practice in 1988. As Murray's first cardiologist, he was instrumental in instituting MCC's first diagnostic tests for treadmill, echocardiogram, holter monitor and cardiac catheterization. He also performed the hospital's first dual-chamber pacemaker procedure.

Dr. Howard was the first medical director of the Angels Community Clinic and was among the clinic's founding board members.

His father, Rudolph Howard, preceded him in death. He was born April 8, 1949, in Murray.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Cindy Sawyer Howard; one son, Robert Howard, Kirksey; two twin daughters, Kim Howard and Mary Kay Howard, New Haven, Conn.; his mother, Mrs. Opal Blalock Howard, Murray; one sister, Judy Carroll and husband, Ed, one niece, Kathryn Carroll, and one nephew, Brian Carroll, all of Nashville, Tenn.

Mrs. Kathleen Ruffin

Mrs. Kathleen Ruffin, 60, Lakeview Church Road, Benton, died Tuesday, Aug. 5, 2003, at 5:40 a.m. at Western Baptist Hospital, Paducah.

A prep cook, she was a member of Lakeview Baptist Church. Two sisters, Mable Jackson and Mary McLeod, and one brother, Ricky Coats, all preceded her in death. She was the daughter of the late Starling Coats and Lottie Parker Coats.

Survivors include her husband, Charles Ruffin; two daughters, Mrs. Susan Ruffin Webb, Bardwell, and Mrs. Melissa Ruffin Hale, Calvert City; one son, Douglas B. Ruffin, Benton; five grandchildren, Charles David Ruffin and Michael K. Ruffin, Benton, Brittany Paris and Kathleen Webb, both of Bardwell, and Clayton Thomas Hale, Calvert City; three sisters, Mrs. Bessie Barefoot, Lillington, N.C., and Mrs. Gladys Barefoot and Mrs. Kathy Wells, both of Coats, N.C.; three brothers, Charles C. Coats and Buddy Coats, both of Coats, N.C., and Starling Coats Jr., Selma, N.C.

The funeral will be today (Friday) at 2 p.m. in the chapel of Collier Funeral Home, Benton. The Rev. Darvin Stom and the Rev. David York will officiate. Burial will follow in the Lakeview Cemetery.

Visitation is now at the funeral home.

Episcopal leaders approve same-sex blessings

By RACHEL ZOLL
AP Religion Writer

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Gay advocates in the Episcopal Church will leave their national meeting with two victories: approval of the first openly gay bishop and an affirmation that same-sex blessing ceremonies are "an acceptable practice in the church."

The measure on same-sex unions was not what advocates had hoped. Bishops rejected creating an official liturgy for the ceremonies.

But gays and their conservative opponents agree that the measure, which received final approval the day before the convention was to end Friday, signaled broader acceptance of homosexuality in the denomination.

The Rev. Francis Wade, head of the liturgical committee that wrote the document, said he interpreted the measure to mean that dioceses conducting same-sex blessings "are operating within the parameters of the understanding of this church and its doctrine and discipline."

Wade's explanation marks a reversal from how several bishops viewed the document when they approved it Wednesday. Those bishops had described the statement as only an acknowledgment that same-sex unions are being blessed in local dioceses — not an endorsement.

The Episcopal gay advocacy group Integrity said "we understand the language clearly to give national license" to the ceremonies.

The Rev. Kendall Harmon, a leading conservative who lobbied against the document, said what "seems like a compromise" actually isn't.

"Let's be honest. This is authorization," Harmon said. "It sanctions homosexual behavior."

The House of Bishops approved the measure first, on a voice vote Wednesday. They cut from the original proposal the plan on drafting standard language for the ceremonies for an official church prayer book.

Many said they wanted to weaken the measure out of concern for church unity following Tuesday's contentious confirmation of the Rev. V. Gene Robinson, a gay clergyman, as New Hampshire's bishop.

The House of Deputies, a legislative body comprised of clergy and lay people, approved the amended version of the document Thursday.

The deputies used a complex voting procedure that required clergy and lay people in diocesan delegations to cast separate ballots. The measure needed a majority of votes in each delegation to win. In the combined results, 120 delegations voted yes and 72 voted no. The votes of 24 delegations were not counted because their members were divided.

The document said, "We recognize that local faith communities are operating within the bounds of our common life as they explore and experience liturgies celebrating and blessing same-sex unions."

Bishop Mark Sisk of New York was among those who interpreted the measure as simply an acknowledgment of the different approaches to same-sex blessings in each diocese.

Three bishops — in Kansas, New Hampshire and Delaware — authorize same-sex blessings, according to the Rev. Michael Hopkins, president of Integrity. Other dioceses bar them, while some bishops have a "don't ask, don't tell" approach, overlooking the ceremonies priests perform.

"I'm sure some people will understand this to be an authorization. I don't believe that is what the intention of the resolution was," Sisk said. "It carefully steps back from saying we authorize. It says we recognize."

But Wade said it affirms the blessings as "within the bounds" of church teaching and an "acceptable practice in the church."

It is unclear what impact — if any — the measure will have. Bishops now decide whether to permit same-sex blessing ceremonies in their local parishes and they retain what church leaders call that "local option."

That is a key provision for conservatives, who fear the church will create a mandatory same-sex blessing ceremony that will force them to offer the rite in their parishes.

Bishop Robert Ilhoff of Maryland contended the statement would have little practical effect. "It continues the policy that is in effect in all our dioceses."

Navy decommissions aircraft carrier USS Constellation

CORONADO, Calif. (AP) — The Navy bid farewell Thursday to the USS Constellation, the aircraft carrier that President Reagan dubbed America's Flagship, in a solemn ceremony at the Navy base that has been the ship's home for most of its nearly 42 years of service.

Some of the 60,000 sailors and officers who served on the Constellation over the years gathered in the ship's massive shadow at Naval Air Station North Island to witness the decommissioning.

"Today is a day to be proud," said Capt. John W. Miller.

A Navy band played, the ship's bell tolled and two 40mm cannons boomed out a 19-gun farewell salute. Three F/A-18s that had flown night operations from the Constellation in Iraq roared overhead in formation.

Following Navy tradition, the ship's executive officer, Cmdr. Dave Maloney, ordered all sailors off the ship. The ship's colors and the commissioning pennant that flew over the flight deck were lowered. Miller then signed the final entry in the ship's log: "7 August, 2003, USS Constellation CV64 decommissioned and deck log closed."

The carrier returned from its 21st and final voyage in June after taking part in the war with Iraq. It will head next month to a ship graveyard in Bremerton, Wash.

The $4.6 billion USS Ronald Reagan, the Navy's newest nuclear-powered carrier, is expected to take the place of the steam-fired Constellation in Coronado next year.

AMA offers online guide for gauging driver safety

CHICAGO (AP) — The American Medical Association is offering a new Internet guide to help doctors decide whether their elderly patients are still fit to drive.

"It's a lot easier to prevent tragedy than to deal with tragedy once it has occurred," said AMA trustee Dr. John H. Armstrong, a trauma surgeon in San Antonio. "This guide is all about preventing the tragedy."

The AMA said the guide was conceived and prepared long before two recent serious crashes involving elderly motorists in California and Florida.

The guide recommends that doctors ask patients if they have difficulty driving. Doctors are told to be alert for things that might hamper driving ability, such as cataracts, arthritis, strokes and certain medications.

Doctors are also reminded to comply with state laws on reporting unfit drivers. Thirteen states have laws requiring some kind of reporting by doctors about patients deemed medically unfit to drive, Armstrong said.

The AMA put the guide on its Web site with a free print version to follow later this year. The AMA published its first guide for determining driving fitness in 1959.

Diabetes workshop planned here

Murray-Calloway County Hospital Center for Diabetes is offering a Diabetes Workshop on Friday, September 19. The workshop will be held at Glendale Road Church of Christ from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

The workshop will include a series of speakers discussing issues in diabetes care. On completion of the program, participants will be able to describe different medications used to manage diabetes, discuss pattern management techniques for controlling blood glucose levels, describe the connection between insulin resistance syndrome and diabetes, and discuss the role of Amylin in the management of diabetes.

The fee for attending the seminar is $40 ($20 for students). For MCCH employees and associates, the fee is waived. This offering has been approved by the Kentucky Board of Nursing for six contact hours, provider number 4-0072-7-04-041. Participants must attend the entire session and complete an evaluation form. Five CEUs have been applied for to the American Dietetic Association for Registered Dietitians. CMEs for physicians and CEUs for pharmacists have been applied for as well.

For more information on the Diabetes Workshop or to register, contact the Center for Diabetes at 270-762-1806.

Pujols' milestone lifts Cardinals

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A milestone game for Albert Pujols helped the St. Louis Cardinals avoid a sweep.

Pujols reached 100 RBIs, scored his 100th run and extended his hitting streak to 21 games in a 3-0 victory over the Florida Marlins on Thursday night.

"It's good to get it and it shows what I've accomplished, but it's more important that we won," Pujols said. "We avoided a sweep and that's real big for us."

Brett Tomko pitched shutout ball into the ninth as the Cardinals ended a three-game losing streak.

The Marlins have won nine of 12, and held St. Louis to six runs in the series. "We took two of three and I'm happy," manager Jack McKeon said. "We came in with the idea of winning the series and we did that."

Pujols is 33-for-82 (.402) during his hitting streak, the team's longest in four seasons, to raise his average to a major league-

Marrero begins rehab at Triple-A

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Cardinals outfielder-catcher Eli Marrero, out since mid-May with torn ligaments in his right ankle, will begin a rehab assignment on Friday with Triple-A Memphis.

The Cardinals estimate Marrero will need a week to 10 days to get ready, although he's hoping to be back sooner.

"I'm going to go down there and get my act together, come back here, and do whatever I can," Marrero said. "It's been a long time. Basically I'm starting over and hopefully I can come back quick."

The Cardinals aren't sure how much Marrero will be able to contribute, at least at first. He was batting .227 with two home runs and 15 RBIs before slipping on wet turf in Chicago on May 11 while chasing a fly ball in a game that was eventually postponed. He's been on the DL since May 13.

"He's still a little sore, so it's not like he's going there pain-free," manager Tony La Russa said. "But it would be an important plus for us."

When Marrero comes back, backup catcher Chris Widger's job could be in jeopardy. Widger was batting .156 in 45 at-bats.

Marrero mostly has played the outfield this season but the Cardinals also want him to do some catching during the rehab with Memphis, which plays at Omaha this weekend.

the board in the first inning."

Tomko (8-7) won for the first time in five decisions at home, although he's pitched a lot better at Busch Stadium than on the road. He has a 3.30 ERA in 11 home starts and is 7-3 with a 7.53 ERA in 13 road games, 12 of them starts.

Tomko has allowed more hits and runs than any NL pitcher. But he held the Marlins hitless until Mike Lowell singled to start the fifth and left after giving up his fourth hit to open the ninth. Tomko struck out five and walked one to move above .500 for the first time this season.

"Personally, I finally showed up for the season, it felt like," Tomko said. "The front office traded for me to get games like this, and I haven't provided it."

Jason Istringhausen worked the ninth for his ninth save in 10 chances, completing the Cardinals' fifth shutout. The Marlins have been blanked four times.

Pujols' RBI double in the first off Josh Beckett (5-6) gave the Cardinals the lead. St. Louis added two runs in the sixth on an RBI single by Scott Rolen and the alert baserunning of Bo Hart.

Hart made it 2-0 when he scored from second on Tino Martinez's fly out, capitalizing on Pujols' baserunning mistake. Hart advanced to third on the flyout and Pujols tried to move up a base also but got caught in a rundown.

IN ACTION ... Former Murray State tailback Billy Blanchard will face his former teammate, defensive lineman Cedric Harden, when the Browns visit the Titans in an NFL preseason game on Saturday night in Nashville.

Former Racers to meet in NFL

Staff Report
Murray Ledger & Times

A pair of important pieces to Murray State's 2002 Ohio Valley Conference title run, running back Billy Blanchard and defensive tackle Cedric Harden, will face one another on the National Football League gridiron on Saturday at 7 p.m. at The Coliseum in Nashville, Tenn.

Blanchard, who signed with the Cleveland Browns as an undrafted free agent, and Harden, a member of the Tennessee Titans after also signing as an undrafted free agent, were key contributors to last season's OVC championship.

The Browns and Titans will open their preseason schedules in the Music City tomorrow. The game will be broadcast on WPSD Channel 6 and WKRN Channel 2.

Blanchard, a first-team All-OVC selection in 2002, led the Racers with 1,081 yards rushing and 16 touchdowns to rank second in the league in both categories. He also led the conference with a 6.04 yards per carry average.

The Aberdeen, Miss., native played two seasons at MSU after transferring from Itawamba Junior College, finishing his career with 1,796 yards on 294 carries and 19 touchdowns.

Blanchard's best career performance at MSU came in last year's 38-31 victory over Southeast Missouri State, gaining 183 yards on 19 carries while scoring four touchdowns, including three in the fourth quarter.

A native of Humble, Texas, Harden played one season at MSU after transferring from the University of Missouri. The 6-3, 309 pound defensive tackle played a key role in the middle of the Racers defensive line during last season's march to the Division I-AA Playoffs.

Harden finished 2002 with 37 tackles, including eight for loss, three sacks, one fumble recovery and one blocked kick as the Racers finished second in the league in pass defense and third in total defense.

Baseball event set for weekend

Staff Report
Murray Ledger & Times

While local students headed back to the classroom this week, the second annual USSSA Back To School Bash heads back to the local baseball diamonds this weekend.

Murray-Calloway County Park fields will host the watered down version of last weekend's 68-team youth, which was postponed due to inclement weather.

The response was positive to last weekend's event, and many of the participating teams simply did not want to end the season with an unfinished tournament.

About half of last weekend's scheduled teams are returning to the Murray City Park fields to participate in the area's season-ending event.

The field includes teams representing Murray in the 7-under, 10-under, 11-under, 12-under and 13-under divisions. The local clubs were off to a 6-2 overall start before last Saturday's storms knocked out the tournament.

All five of the Murray teams will be in action tonight.

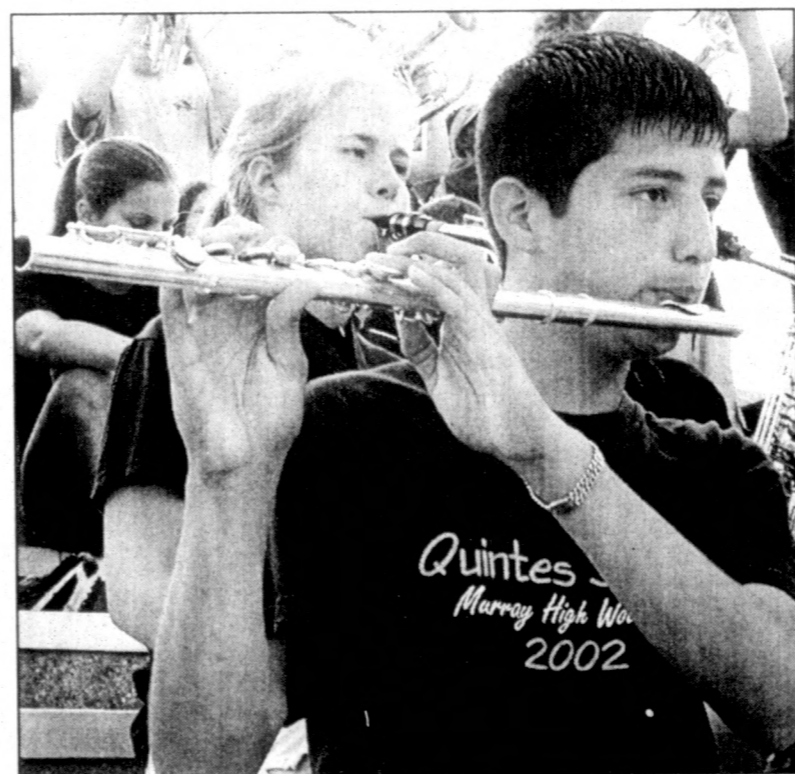

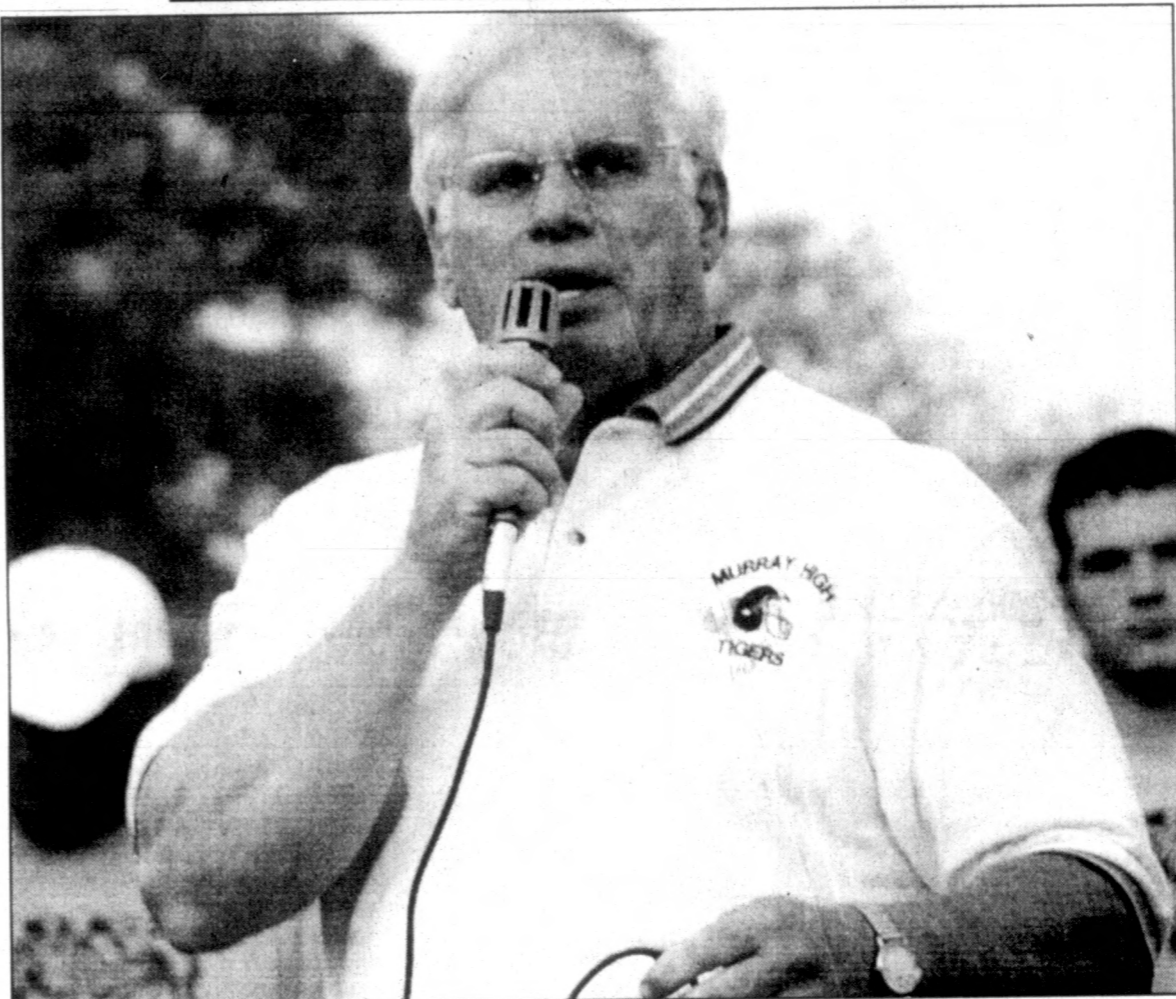

The Murray Thunder 11-under team will open today's action at 6 p.m. against Marshall County at the Central Park complex. The Murray Mud Dogs will play their first game of a doubleheader, beginning at 6:30 against the Paris (Tenn.) Predators and the Clarksville NW All-Stars.

In 7-under machine pitch action, the Murray Bucs take on Marshall County at 7. The Murray 10-under All-Stars play a doubleheader, starting at 7:30. Meanwhile, the Murray Lightning 12-under club begins their opening night doubleheader against Purple Flash at 7:40.

Saturday play begins at 9:45 a.m. and will continue through approximately 10:30 p.m. The top four teams in each age group will be back on Sunday for semifinal and championship rounds, starting at 1 p.m.

Admission to the Back to School Bash is $5 for the weekend. Kids 8-under are free.

TAKEDOWN ... Patriots quarterback Tom Brady gets sacked by the New York Giants Brandon Short during the first quarter of a preseason game Thursday at Gillette Stadium.

Pats hammer Giants

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — New England's newcomers made a good first impression as the Patriots posted a 26-6 exhibition victory over the New York Giants on Thursday night.

Rosevelt Colvin and Tyrone Poole produced first-quarter turnovers that led to 10 points, and Fred McCrary caught a touchdown pass in the third quarter that gave New England a 20-6 lead.

Nose tackle Dan Klecko, drafted in the fourth round out of Temple, had 2 1/2 of the Patriots' seven sacks. His father, former New York Jets defensive lineman Joe Klecko, attended his pro debut.

The Giants played their first game since last year's first round of the playoffs when they blew a 24-point lead in the last 20 minutes and lost to San Francisco 39-38. On the final play, Trey Junkin's second poor long snap ruined a field goal attempt by Matt Bryant.

The Giants appear to have an improved offense although it didn't show as first-stringers played only the first quarter.

Kerry Collins went 6-for-10 for 56 yards and an interception. Tiki Barker rushed eight times for 10 yards and tight end Jeremy Shockey had one catch for seven yards.

The Patriots, eliminated from playoff contention on the last day of the regular season, had one of the NFL's worst rushing defenses.

So they concentrated on defensive players in free agency, signing Colvin, a linebacker, from Chicago and Poole, a cornerback, from Denver.

Bryant case may force media changes in L.A.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers are considering changing the way they deal with the media this season because of the circuslike atmosphere the Kobe Bryant case figures to create.

Team spokesman John Black said Thursday the team might make adjustments, including the possibility of traveling with two public relations representatives on road trips rather than one.

The Lakers don't have many answers concerning Bryant's plans for training camp, and even those who can talk about Bryant were keeping quiet or not saying much in the aftermath of the 24-year-old star's brief appearance in an Eagle, Colo., courtroom on Wednesday. Training camp begins Sept. 30 in Honolulu.

Veterans, including Bryant, Shaquille O'Neal and newcomers Karl Malone and Gary Payton, are scheduled to report Oct. 2.

The first full practice will be held the following day, and the Lakers face Golden State in exhibition games Oct. 7-8 before returning to Los Angeles the same day — Oct. 9 — that Bryant has his preliminary hearing on a sexual assault charge.

Black said following Bryant's hearing Wednesday it was too early to know how training camp will be affected.

"We'll sit down with Kobe at some point when it makes sense to do that and discuss his plans with him at that time," Black said.

A call Thursday to Bryant's agent, Rob Pelinka, was referred to the Colorado office of attorneys Pamela Mackey and Hal Haddon, where a spokeswoman said no interviews were being granted.

The coverage might be unprecedented, but the Lakers have dealt with media mobs before. The franchise was in the spotlight during the Showtime era of the 1980s and engaged in memorable clashes in the NBA Finals with Philadelphia, Boston and Detroit.

There also was Magic Johnson's retirement in 1991 when he announced he was HIV positive, and his ensuing comebacks.

Phil Jackson was hired as coach in June 1999 and the Lakers won three straight championships from 2000-2002 despite a Bryant-O'Neal feud midway through the 2000-01 season that fueled scrutiny of the team.

Gordon looks to win at the Glen

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) — Robby Gordon believes the time has come for him to win at Watkins Glen International.

"Honestly, ever since 2000, we've been the car to beat here and we haven't won the race," he said. "We'd like to come back and capitalize on that, but it's not going to be given to us."

If it isn't, however, he might take it Sunday — the way he did in winning two months ago on NASCAR's only other road course. Late in the race in Sonoma, Calif., Gordon violated the so-called gentleman's agreement and passed Richard Childress Racing teammate Kevin Harvick as the cars headed back to the line after a caution flag waved.

That led to considerable criticism, but Gordon pointed out that he did nothing illegal. Harvick, a winner last week at the Brickyard 400, and four-time Winston Cup champion Jeff Gordon were Robby's harshest critics.

Jockey's condition worsens after fall

HENDERSON, Ky. (AP) — Jockey Remi Gunn was reported in serious condition after suffering injuries in a spill at Ellis Park.

Gunn was listed in critical condition at St. Mary's Medical Center in Evansville, Ind. Thursday, but Friday morning, a nursing supervisor said she was in serious condition.

Jockey Greta Kuntzweiler was also involved and suffered a broken right collarbone or dislocated right shoulder, said Bob Cunningham, Ellis Park's director of marketing.

The spill occurred in the fourth race on Wednesday's card, a one-mile race for $8,000 claimers.

Gunn's mount, Betty Sue, was running seventh in the nine-horse field when she clipped heels with a horse in front of her and fell around the final turn.

Don't Be Afraid To Make Mistakes

Occasionally, we may miss out on a unique experience or may not profit by some situation because we are afraid of making mistakes or attempting something that seems too risky, and thus we end up doing nothing. The old cliché, "nothing ventured, nothing gained" applies here, because doing nothing has risks of its own. World-class figure skaters will fall thousands of times before getting the chance to compete in the Olympics, and they will have to choose a demanding and risky program if they hope to bring home the gold medal. While it is possible to be too comfortable with risk, many of us are too averse to it. The right approach in most endeavors is somewhere between the extremes. Ideally, we should attempt things that have a moderate level of difficulty, so that we have a reasonable prospect for success. And then if we succeed, we gain the confidence necessary to attempt more difficult things. In the Bible, when David went out to fight Goliath, the odds were seemingly against him, but his skill with the sling tipped the odds in his favor. Now of course, no one remembers those timid souls who refused to fight the giant Philistine.

...God did not give us a spirit of timidity but a spirit of power and love and self-control.

In Our Churches

Liberty CP Church

plans homecoming

The Rev. Terry Henderson of Gospel Mission Church, Reidland, will be the speaker at the annual homecoming at Liberty Cumberland Presbyterian Church on Sunday, Aug. 10.

Rev. Henderson, former pastor of the church, will speak at the 11 a.m. worship service. A gospel singing featuring the group, Rushing Mighty Wind, will be at 1:30 p.m.

The Rev. Don Faulkner, pastor, invites the public to attend.

The church is located off Highway 94 East onto Highway 1346 and turn right on Liberty Road.

Arnett will be speaker

at Kirksey gospel meeting

Charlie F. Arnett will be the speaker at the gospel meeting on Kirksey Church of Christ starting Sunday, Aug. 10, and continuing through Tuesday, Aug. 12.

He will speak Sunday morning on "What Soldier Am I?" His other topics at the 7:30 p.m. services will be "Am I Running the Race" on Sunday, "The Church and Baptism" on Monday and "Where Am I?" on Tuesday.

Arnett, raised in Calloway County, finished high school at Lynn Grove in 1934. He started preaching in September 1932 by filling in for Perry B. Cotham at Kirksey. Most of Arnett's preaching has been in mission work, either new work or small congregations. His preaching work has carried him into 14 states and six foreign countries.

Arnett and his wife, Ruby, live in their house near Coldwater. They have six children. To support his family, Arnett has farmed much of the time and also done carpenter and electric work.

Arnett will be 90 Sept. 14 and will have been preaching for 71 years.

This prayer helped me: Through Prayer, Through Application, Through the Holy Spirit, Holy Spirit, you who solve all problems, light our roads so that I can attain my goal. You, who give me the divine Gift to forgive and forget all evil against me, you who is always with me. I thank you for all things as you confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you. In spite of material illusions I wish to join you in Eternal Glory. Thank you for Your Mercy toward me and mine. A person must say this Prayer for 3 consecutive days -- after 3 days the favor requested will be granted. This Prayer must be published after the favor is granted. Without mentioning your favor only your initials should appear at the bottom. A.D.

TVA to hold public workshop on reservoir operations alternatives

GILBERTSVILLE, Ky. — TVA will hold a community workshop Aug. 12 at Kentucky Dam Village State Resort Park to gather public comments on policy alternatives for managing the Tennessee River system. The public may come any time between 2 p.m. and 8 p.m.

A draft environmental impact statement containing eight alternatives was developed with guidance from the public and federal, state and local agencies as part of a two-year comprehensive study. After obtaining public comments, TVA will develop a final environmental impact statement with a preferred alternative.

The Reservoir Operations Study is being conducted to determine if changes in river system operating policies would produce greater overall public value. The current operating policies provide year-round navigation and flood risk reduction; supply affordable and reliable electricity, recreation opportunities, an adequate supply of water, and improved water quality; and support sustainable economic growth.

"We have been working for more than a year to develop new ways to analyze data, which will enable us to better understand flood risks, water quality and economic impacts of operating the reservoir system," said David Nye, TVA's project manager of the study. "This analysis allowed us to develop the alternatives, and we want people to tell us what they think of these alternatives and their implications on the many benefits the river system provides."

The alternatives include a "base case" alternative and seven others with proposed operational changes that would alter the balance of benefits provided by the river system. Examples include holding summer reservoir levels longer to enhance recreation, providing greater depths in the river for commercial navigation, moving water to optimize its use for hydro power production and equalizing flood risks across all seasons.

The draft Environmental Impact Statement is available on the TVA Web site, www.tva.com, and in local libraries across the Tennessee Valley.

People may submit comments on the study on TVA's Web site, use computers available at a community workshop, talk with a court reporter at a workshop or write comments on a card and return it to TVA. Comments also may be submitted by fax to TVA at (865) 632-3146 or by writing to: ROS Project Manager David Nye, TVA, c/o WT 11 A, 400 West Summit Hill Drive, Knoxville, TN 37902.

TVA is the nation's largest public power producer, providing power to large industries and 158 power distributors that serve 8.3 million consumers in seven southeastern states. Its power system and natural resource stewardship programs are self-financed.

Al Gore

Former vice president assails Bush policies

NEW YORK (AP) — Emerging from the political shadows, former Vice President Al Gore upbraided President Bush on Thursday for pursuing a divisive, ideologically narrow agenda and misleading the nation on issues from Iraq to the economy.

The 2000 presidential nominee delivered the major policy address amid calls from some Democratic quarters for Gore to change his mind and join the crowded field of nine White House candidates. He tried to end that kind of talk with a simple declaration: "I am not going to join them, but later in the political cycle I will endorse one of them."

The Democrat who won the popular vote but lost the electoral tally in a disputed election used the 35-minute speech to offer a biting critique of Bush's policies, and argue that the nation is headed in the wrong direction.

Gore credited Bush for deposing Afghanistan's Taliban rulers and Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, but he said the administration's unilateral approach to the war against Iraq has put American troops at excessive risk, alienated allies and is leaving the United States to foot the full reconstruction bill.

Echoing the recent criticism from several of the Democratic presidential candidates, Gore said the administration launched the Iraq war under false pretenses, including claims that Saddam was involved in the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks and was poised to provide terrorists with chemical, biological and nuclear weapons.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, Aug. 9, 2003:

Make the most out of a very special work or day-to-day opportunity. You are in the process of spreading your wings and trying many new things. Expect a financial upswing, but be careful with spending. You also might gain tremendous financial insight, if you so choose. You have a tendency to go to extremes, as you have a lot of energy and sometimes a devil-may-care attitude. If you are single, a very special relationship will walk into your life. What you decide to do with it is your call. If you are attached, you will benefit from being more nurturing to each other. CAPRICORN helps you.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have:
 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive;
 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

***** Others seek you out. You are called to action, and you'll meet the challenge. You might need to pull plans together or even stage the party.

Whatever your role might be, enjoy yourself to the utmost. Some of you could find yourself working, but liking it. Tonight: A force to be dealt with.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

***** If you have the opportunity to take off, why not? Someone at a distance reaches out to you. Why not meet him or her halfway for a fun day? In a different setting, you renew and recharge your energy. Don't let anyone stop you. Tonight: Try some exotic cuisine.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

***** Deal with others directly and individually. An important discussion that needs to happen naturally occurs in such a friendly environment. Make plans with those special people in your life, making time for each one. Tonight: Someone wants to pull in close to you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

***** Others approach you, putting you in a year or nay situation. Although in some form you feel cornered by all this action, you do feel cared for. Learn to support yourself, making the choices you want. Take your time choosing a gift. Tonight: Out.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

***** Projects come forward, whether it is getting the barbecue ready or doing some lawn care. You will enjoy yourself no matter which way you turn, as long as you have company. Invite someone along; he or she will pitch in. Tonight: Make dinner easy.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

***** You say what you think, and someone responds. You might not believe what is happening around you. Understand how much a child or loved one appreciates your caring; just hang out with him or her. Tonight: Ever playful.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

***** Invite others to come to you, rather than going to others. A conversation with a family member might be long overdue. You aren't going to change this person, but the two of you can find a halfway point. Entertain only those you really care about. Tonight: Happy at home.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

***** You naturally fall into the right place at the right time. A call or invitation encourages you to get together with friends. Don't forget someone you haven't seen in a long time. Perhaps it is time to catch up on each other's news. Tonight: By all means, don't stand on ceremony.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

***** Expenses could quickly have you flapping your arms in dismay. Rather than carrying on, do something about the situation. You also might opt to put in more overtime, if need be. Extremes punctuate what is going on. Tonight: Treating others doesn't have to be expensive.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

***** Whatever you get your hands into naturally seems to turn out as you like. Try something totally new if you're in the mood. Different might very well appeal to you right now. News heading your way could be very interesting. Tonight: Free-flow with the moment.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

***** Knowing when to allow others to take over could be instrumental to your well-being, as well as a relationship. A partner or close friend loves being able to steal the scene. He or she might like taking a stronger role. Tonight: Togetherness works.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

***** Someone has an awful lot to say. Although you might feel cornered on some level, you also might enjoy all the news. You might be surprised by what is going on with some friends. Don't forget a call to a loved one at a distance. Tonight: Where your friends are.

DR. GOTT

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Because I have pernicious anemia, my doctor gives me monthly B-12 shots. Recently, however, I've developed an unbearably itchy rash on my legs. Could the shots be to blame?

DEAR READER: Pernicious anemia is caused by the lack of a substance called intrinsic factor in the stomach. Intrinsic factor permits vitamin B-12, an essential element, to be absorbed from the diet. Without adequate amounts of B-12, patients develop anemia, severe nerve damage and profound mental changes, including dementia.

The most satisfactory method of treating this disorder is to administer supplemental B-12, usually in the form of injections, which "bypass" the need for intrinsic factor.

I have never heard of B-12 shots causing a rash. Usually, these inexpensive injections are completely safe — so safe, in fact, that most patients can easily be taught to self-administer them, much as a diabetic gives himself insulin.

I suggest that you be examined by a dermatologist, who will diagnose the cause of your rash and prescribe therapy.

To give you related information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Blood: Donations and Disorders." Other readers who would like a copy should send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and $2 to Newsletter, P.O. Box 167, Wickliffe, OH 44092. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Is there any treatment for Sjogren's syndrome?

DEAR READER: This autoimmune disease causes dry mouth, dry eyes, enlarged salivary glands, loss of smell and taste, baldness, arthritis, pneumonia, liver disease, nerve disorders and other complications. Sjogren's syndrome shares many of the characteristics of lupus and rheumatoid arthritis.

The diagnosis is made by blood tests and a special examination of the speed with which patients produce tears (called a Schirmer test).

Prednisone and other steroids are standard therapy for severe cases, because if untreated, the syndrome can lead to death from pneumonia, renal failure or lymphoma (lymph node cancer). Mild to moderate cases require no treatment other than symptomatic relief, such as artificial tears.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I began taking an aspirin tablet a day after reading of its many benefits, but had to stop because of constipation. Am I the only person in the United States who is affected this way?

DEAR READER: Perhaps. Many medical studies have confirmed that low-dose, daily aspirin therapy is a safe and inexpensive way to prevent blood clots from forming in patients who have had heart attacks or strokes. Experts do not recommend aspirin for the general public. Aspirin doesn't cause constipation and you have been taking a small amount anyway. Do you really need it?

Ask your doctor to investigate this highly unusual association and advise you about the necessity of taking aspirin. Perhaps he will choose to address your constipation as a separate issue.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I am 24, and after four years of dating have recently become engaged to "Zack." We are very much in love, and quite frankly, until lately I never could have imagined myself with anyone else.

Last week, one of my co-workers — I'll call him Keith — confessed to me that he's developed a crush on me — and the more I think about it, the more I feel a mutual attraction. Keith has been a good friend over the years. We work out together on a regular basis in the company gym and have shared many lunches. Abby, I am confused. I find myself thinking about Keith more than my fiancé.

Keith has always been easy to talk to. I wish Zack and I could have the conversations I'm able to share with Keith.

The last thing I want to do is wreck my engagement. How can I stop this confusion and once again focus on my relationship with my fiancé? Help!

S.O.S. ASAP
IN THE SUNSHINE STATE

DEAR S.O.S.: Let's analyze this situation. Why did Keith wait until you were engaged to Zack before declaring his feelings? Could it be that once you were "taken" you became safe — and not a threat to his freedom? Many men find women who are married, engaged, going steady, etc., easier to talk to and even more attractive than those who are available.

Do not allow yourself to be distracted from a relationship that has worked for four years. Limit your workouts with Keith and put your energy into developing better communication with Zack.

DEAR ABBY: For more than a year, I have been a live-in caregiver for a sweet 94-year-old lady I'll call Ethel. For the most part, Ethel has enjoyed good health. We have a lot of fun together.

Last week, when we went on our weekly outing to the beauty shop and lunch, I noticed how loud her voice was in the restaurant. She attracted the stares of several diners.

Ethel has also begun chewing with her mouth open, completely unaware of how she appears.

I want to let her know that she isn't acting like the well-mannered lady she's been in the past, but I don't know how to tell her without hurting her feelings. Please give me some advice on how to broach the subject. There is only one restaurant in our small town, and Ethel dearly loves our weekly meal there. Thanks, Abby.

EMBARRASSED
IN NEW MEXICO

DEAR EMBARRASSED: Tell Ethel what you have observed about her hearing loss and schedule a visit with her doctor. She needs a referral to have her hearing checked. While you're there, mention to the doctor the change in her table manners. Any abrupt change in the behavior of a person is something his or her physician should know about.

Please don't be reticent or embarrassed. You are her caregiver, and it is your obligation to inform her physicians what you observe.

DEAR ABBY: I have a wedding etiquette question. Twice within the last month, I've been invited to a bridal shower without receiving an invitation to the wedding.

I have witnessed a social blunder or two in my day, but this takes the cake. Are you with me on this, Abby?

DISGUSTED
IN SOUTH CAROLINA

DEAR DISGUSTED: To invite someone to a bridal shower who will not be invited to the wedding is a breach of etiquette. However, before becoming angry about it, please consider that this was ignorance on the part of the couple or the families.

Bidding Quiz

You are South, neither side vulnerable. The bidding has been:

West North East South
1 ♦ Dbl Redble ♠

What would you bid now with each of the following five hands?

1. ♠ 6 ♥ 963 ♦ J754 ♣ 8732
2. ♠ K1053 ♥ Q1053 ♦ 10 ♣ J984
3. ♠ KJ87642 ♥ 8 ♦ 73 ♣ 542
4. ♠ Q53 ♥ 10962 ♦ 72 ♣ Q763
5. ♠ Q62 ♥ J107642 ♦ A43 ♣ 8

1. One heart. Whether or not to bid over a redouble is more a matter of common sense than convention. A pass indicates that there is nothing to be gained by bidding, while a bid indicates that it is unwise to pass.

Here, the aim of the one-heart bid is to avoid the awkward situation that could arise if you were to pass and partner bid one spade, your worst suit. The heart bid does not promise any specific values; it can be based merely on heart length and/or the obligation to keep partner out of trouble.

2. Pass. This is a fairly good hand opposite a takeout double, but there is no need to respond at this point, since partner has a bid coming, and

Murray City Council passed an ordinance bringing into the city the area west of North 16th Street and the area bound roughly by Sycamore and South 16th Streets which was formerly outside the city limits. The hearing was heard in Calloway County Circuit Court. Since no protests were made at the hearing, the annexation was approved by the court.

Recent births reported at Murray Hospital include a boy to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wrenn Smotherman.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, Aug. 8, the 220th day of 2003. There are 145 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Aug. 8, 1974, President Nixon announced he would resign following new damaging revelations in the Watergate scandal.

On this date:

In 1942, six convicted Nazi saboteurs, who'd landed in the United States were executed in Washington, D.C.; two others received life imprisonment.

In 1963, Britain's "Great Train Robbery" took place as thieves made off with 2.6 million pounds in banknotes.

Ten years ago: In Somalia, four U.S. soldiers were killed when a land mine was detonated underneath their vehicle, prompting President Clinton to order Army Rangers to try to capture Somali warlord Mohamed Farrah Aidid.

Five years ago: President Clinton, in his Saturday radio address, vowed the bombers of two U.S. embassies in Africa would be brought to justice, "no matter how long it takes or where it takes."

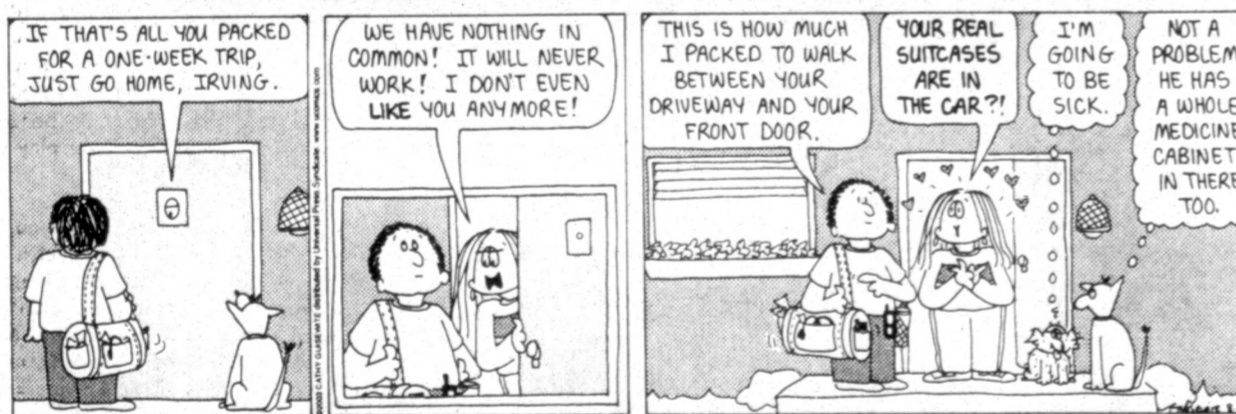

One year ago: Saddam Hussein organized a big military parade and then warned "the forces of evil" not to attack Iraq as he sought once more to shift the debate away from world demands that he live up to agreements that ended the Gulf War. Bankrupt telecommunications firm WorldCom said it had uncovered another $3.3 billion in bogus accounting, adding to the $3.85 billion fraud it revealed in June.

West Nile virus cases have tripled since last week

By The Associated Press

ATLANTA (AP) — The West Nile Virus is spreading faster than federal health officials had expected, with the number of cases tripling to at least 164 since last week.

In the latest warning about the rapid advance of the mosquito-borne disease, Dr. Julie Gerberding, head of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, said Thursday that this year's tally will likely break last year's record.

"The numbers are starting to change very, very quickly," said Gerberding. "That is very concerning."

State health officials report seven people — all of them elderly — have died from the virus. Four of the deaths were reported in Colorado, the hardest-hit state.

Health officials had expected the disease to spread this year to all corners of the country, invading Western states previously unscathed. But they appeared somewhat surprised at its speed.

"It indicates we are starting the epidemic with more cases than last year," Gerberding said. She warned of "a great number of infected people."

Nationwide, the CDC said at least 164 people in 16 states are infected, compared with 59 a week ago. The latest figures do not include new cases reported by Colorado health officials, which the CDC had not verified.

Last year, 4,156 people caught the virus, and 284 died. There were 112 cases in four states at this point in 2002, when the United States suffered the biggest reported outbreak of West Nile encephalitis in the world.

West Nile virus rarely kills, but about 1 in 150 people who get it will develop its potentially deadly encephalitis or meningitis. Most often, it affects the elderly. Of its seven victims this year, the youngest was 68.

Why four of those occurred in Colorado, which reported 154 cases Thursday, is somewhat a mystery. Some experts blame the outbreak on a wet June and very hot July, which they say provided the perfect summer for mosquitoes.

"I can't predict what will happen in Colorado, nor can I completely explain why it is happening," Gerberding said.

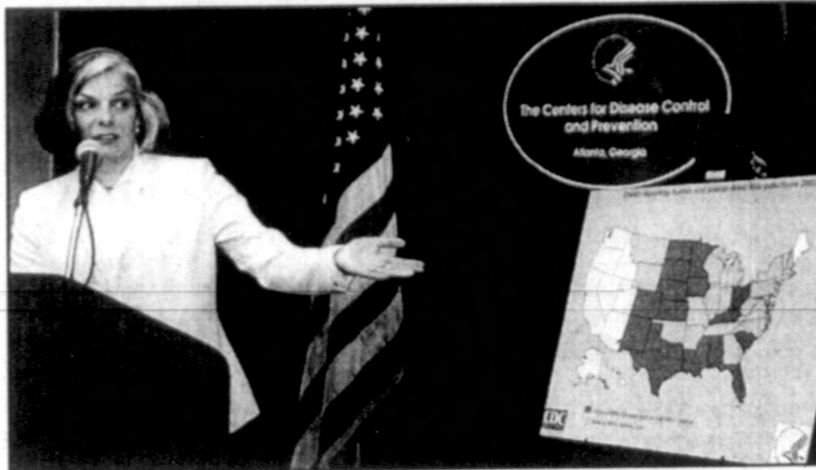

Colorado differs from other states because it reports mild cases that some do not report, said state epidemiologist John Pape. The CDC has only confirmed 72 Colorado cases.

Last year, that state had about a dozen cases. Four states — Arizona, Utah, Nevada and Oregon — had no signs of the disease in man or animal.

"If it can increase that dramatically in Colorado, it has the potential to do so in Arizona," said Craig Levy of the Arizona Department of Health Services. "That certainly makes us very nervous."

Until Colorado's first death a week ago, the virus had never killed anyone west of the Great Plains states.

The CDC is urging people in the 16 states where the virus has appeared to use mosquito repellent, cover arms and legs with clothing and avoid early morning and evening hours when mosquitoes are most active.

Those states are Alabama, Colorado, Florida, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Minnesota, Mississippi, Nebraska, New Mexico, North Dakota, Ohio, South Carolina, South Dakota and Texas.

Since West Nile first entered this country through New York in 1999, health officials have tried everything — mosquito spraying and other control efforts, prevention messages and disease detection systems.

But there's no way to prevent the virus from spreading and there's no way to predict which areas it will strike hardest, said Dr. Sue Montgomery of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

Last year, Louisiana had more than 300 cases and 25 deaths from the virus. They did "everything ... according to the book and we had a large epidemic," recalls Dr. Raoult Ratard, state epidemiologist for the Louisiana Department of Health and Hospitals.

"It's like a viral hurricane." Most people who are infected with the virus won't get sick. The CDC says about a fifth of those will develop a fever, headache, body aches and sometimes a rash and swollen lymph glands.

Symptoms for West Nile encephalitis or meningitis include headache, high fever, neck stiffness, disorientation and sometimes paralysis.

Red Cross seeking donations for nearly depleted disaster relief fund

WASHINGTON (AP) — With its disaster relief fund at the lowest level in more than a decade, the American Red Cross is appealing for help.

The relief fund, which aims to keep a balance of $56 million, had dwindled to $1.2 million by the end of July. The fund has spent $114.3 million over the past year, while donations have totaled less than $40 million.

The organization says hurricane season can be a particularly demanding time, and some weather experts say this could be an intense year for hurricanes.

The Red Cross has spent over the past year nearly 40 percent of its disaster relief fund, or $43.6 million, on hurricanes, tropical storms and typhoons.

Five years ago, Hurricane Georges cost the organization $101 million. The Red Cross opened 1,103 shelters and served nearly 1.1 million meals.

"Today, there is a real lesson to be learned from Hurricane Georges: Preparedness is key," said Marsha J. Evans, Red Cross president and CEO. "For the Red Cross, being prepared not only means having trained volunteers, supplies and equipment ready to go — it means that we must have adequate funds to be able to respond before and after landfall."

Donors can contribute to the disaster relief fund by calling the Red Cross at 1-800-HELP-NOW or visiting the organization's Web site, www.redcross.com.
