4. Leonard Hagan is Superflu Dealer

The Vereen Institute, a private, non-profit organization providing educational programs to children, has installed new lighting fixtures at the Vereen Institute, which are said to be the latest in a series of improvements being made to the institute. The new lighting fixtures, purchased with the aid of a grant from the federal government, will help to improve the educational environment for students at the institute.

In addition to the new lighting fixtures, the Vereen Institute has also received a grant from the state government to purchase new furniture for the classrooms. The grant, which is part of a larger initiative to improve the physical facilities of public schools, will provide the Vereen Institute with much-needed furniture for its classrooms.

The Vereen Institute is located in the heart of the community and serves as an important resource for local residents. The institute offers a variety of educational programs, including after-school programs and summer camps, to help students achieve their full potential.

Leonard Hagan is the superflu dealer for the Vereen Institute, and he is excited about the improvements being made to the facility. "We are really looking forward to seeing the new lighting fixtures and furniture in action," said Hagan. "It will definitely make a difference in the learning environment for our students."

Among the County Agents

If you will look in the local newspapers, you will find that the county agents are making a thorough canvass of the county. They are engaged in visiting all the towns and villages, and are endeavoring to get the farmers to meet the requirements of the law. They are also making a careful examination of the soils of the county, and are trying to determine what crops will best suit the soil of each locality. They are also trying to promote the interests of the county, and are making every effort to encourage the farmers to improve their farms and to raise better crops.
