MIDDLE ROAD NOW BEING SURVEYED

In a communication received by this paper from County Judge C. L. Walker, it was brought out that progress is being made on surveying of the middle road. Mr. Walker said:

"I have just been over the middle road with the locating engineers of the highway department and they will survey and locate this road as quickly as possible, the survey starting in the next two or three days.

"This road will extend from Fulton through to a point connecting with the Hickman and Union City Highway near Poplar Grove church. Thought you would like to have this for the readers of your paper and those who are interested in the building of this road."

ACIDITY TESTS TO BE HELD AT UNION CITY

Acidity tests may be obtained by Obion county farmers without charge when a soil test car will be in Union City on July 10 from 9 A. M. to 2 P. M. for the purpose of testing any and all soil samples brought in by farmers and land owners who wish to learn the lime requirements of the land, according to Assistant County Agent Floyd Timbs.

Instructions for securing soil samples for the test may be had by calling at the county agent's office. The soil should be taken from the upper six inches of the surface and sealed in paper envelope; these should be allowed to become room-dry, but should not be exposed to excessive heat. A number of samples should be allowed.

Form instructions will be mailed to those writing or calling in for same. The soil test car is being sponsored by the N. C. & St. L. Railroad and the University of Tennessee Agricultural Extension Service. The car will be near the N. C. & St. L. depot while in Union City.

WORKED STARTED ON UNDERGROUND CABLE

Work was started last week on the underground cables for the business district of Fulton, which will lead to the lot on the corner of Main and Washington-sts, where the new telephone building is to be erected. The Southern Bell Company has secured a permit from the city to dig up the city streets which is necessary in laying of these underground cables, with the agreement that the streets are to be reworked by the telephone company and finished in as good condition as before the work started. It is believed that only two streets will have to be used, Lake and Main, as most of the cables can be laid in alleys.

The definite date for actual construction of the new building has not been announced, but it is believed that as soon as the cables are laid, the present building occupying the site will be razed.

"OIL FOR LAMPS OF CHINA" IS FEATURE, ORPHEUM TUESDAY

Alice Tisdale Hobart's best selling novel, "Oil for the Lamps of China" comes to the Orpheum theatre Tuesday as a Cosmopolitan production, released by First National Pictures. Mrs. Hobart spent a large part of her life in China, and after years of collecting her data, spent five years in writing her story of the romance, sacrifice and hardship endured by the men and their wives who are the pioneers in introducing American oil into the Orient.

The picture sweeps from the snow wastes of Manchuria, through picturesque Chinese cities and villages to the torrid interior. There are shots also in the cherry blossom land of Japan and in New York.

Cameras were sent to Manchuria early in 1934, to make atmosphere shots, more than a year before the picture was started at the studio. Director Mervyn LeRoy also spent some months in China studying the country and the customs of its people before even casting the picture.

Pat O'Brien, Josephine Hutchinson and Jean Muir head the cast which includes John Eldredge, Lyle Talbot, Arthur Byron, Henry O'Neill, Donald Crisp and Ronnie Cosby. Several hundred Chinese work in the picture in roles from important speaking parts to extras.

TOO MUCH!

There is over production of cotton.

An over production of corn;

Too much of every thing is grown.

Too many people born.

A surplus yield of wheat and bread

Of potatoes, oats and rye.

Hog and hominy, ham and eggs,

And homade pumpkin pie.

Too much to eat, too much to wear.

Cattle on too many hills.

Too many agricultural tools.

Too many plows and drills.

There is a surplus now of clothing.

Of every grade and kind;

Too many books and papers.

Too much thought and mind.

Too many men to do the work.

Too many women to weep;

More daylight than the people need.

Too much night for sleep;

Of benedicts a surplus.

An over supply of wives.

Too many birds and blossoms.

More bees than there are hives.

More sunshine and more shadow.

Than is needed for the dell;

An over production of grave stones.

More coffins than we can sell;

An over production of ignorance.

A sight too many schools.

Too many poor, too many rich.

And lots too many fools.

GARTH FERGUSON SIGNALLY HONORED

Louisville, Ky. (Special)—A very great surprise, as well as an unusual type of a voluntary testimonial to a public servant, was given Garth K. Ferguson, Secretary and General Manager of the Kentucky State Fair Saturday night by hundreds of leading citizens of Louisville and out in the state, who have been identified with him in his fine work for the State Fair within the last three years. It was in the form of an old fashioned barbecue on the Fair Grounds. The great crowd, irrespective of party affiliations, not only gave Mr. Ferguson a rousing ovation, but pledged their heartiest support to him in his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Commissioner of Agriculture before the Democratic Primary.

Attorney Harry Nute Lukins acted as Master of ceremonies. Numerous other leading citizens from Louisville and over the state, reviewed Mr. Ferguson's splendid record with the Fair which, by his fine executive ability and grasp of the State's Agricultural needs, he has turned from an institution threatened with extinction to a very great success financially and otherwise. Mr. Ferguson, in acknowledgment of this tribute from so many personal friends and associates in the Fair work, promised a finer Fair program than ever this year, as well as a continuance of the same type of management as he has marked his efforts from the time he first took hold.

COLUMBUS HAS HISTORY INTEREST

There are numerous reasons why people come to Columbus to visit what is there. Briefly, here they are:

In 1787 George Rogers Clark built a blockhouse at Columbus. It was one of the most frontier points at that time.

In 1804 the blockhouse was fortified to stop the Aaron Burr conspiracy, which was trying to set up the southwest empire at New Orleans. The federal troops stopped it at this point.

In 1814 the national capitol burned and in 1820 the people decided that a capitol should be set up at a point further inward, that the British might not burn it. Four thousand acres of land were surveyed by Jackson during Jefferson's administration and this was the most likely site for the capitol. For some unknown reason it was made at Washington.

Then, there was the Civil War period. Columbus was called the Gibraltar of the west. It was a training camp for the southern soldiers for a year and half. One of the first fierce battles of the war was fought here. There were 15,000 soldiers that fought hand to hand for six hours, and about 600 were killed. Grant was defeated.

The largest cannon in the Civil War was here and it blew up. The name of the cannon was Lady Polk. It shot a projectile weighing 128 pounds. The ten-ton anchor and the chain, the links of which weigh 21 pounds each, has a great attraction.

This is the only incorporated town in the world that has been completely moved from one location to another. This was done after the flood of 1927.

Columbus was the terminal of the first steel train railroad in the world.

There the river and the Columbus Belmont Battlefield State park are interesting attractions.

TOBACCO GROWERS TO VOTE JULY 20-27

A referendum to determine the desires of tobacco growers regarding tobacco production adjustment is to be conducted in each tobacco county during the week of July 20-27, according to Franklin Yates County Agent Obion County.

Every Obion county tobacco grower, whether owner, tenant, renter, or share cropper, will be entitled to vote "yes" or "no" on the ballot. Both contract signers and non-signers will be privileged to vote.

A statement describing the features of the proposed new tobacco program and the contracts to be signed at the beginning of the 1936 season, should the program be continued, will be made to tobacco growers before the date of this referendum.

FARM AND HOME

The cereal grains are a cheap source of food fuel, and an important item in nutrition. Corn, wheat, rice, rye, barley and oats furnish about a third of the average individual's diet. The "whole grain" or "dark" products are richer in vitamins than refined materials.

A heavy feeding of grain assures fat pullets for the laying house in the fall, says C. E. Harris in Poultry Leaflet No. 4. Feed should be placed in the hopper in the brooder house and left before the chicks constantly. Feed both grain and mash to the ## MONEY in your Kitchen.

THERE'S money earned (by being saved) in your kitchen every day if there's a Superfex Oil Burning Refrigerator in the corner. Superfex saves your foods from spoiling during the hottest days... provides the means to convert "leftovers" into tasty meals... gives you ice cubes for cooling drinks... saves you thousands of steps rushing downstairs or outside for foods that should be within easy reach in your kitchen. The burners of Superfex burn only about two hours a day to give you perfect refrigeration for 24 hours. Let us tell you about the five Superfex models... there's one to suit the needs of every family. When you've seen the one you like, you will be surprised to learn how easy it is to have one for your home.

ICED DRINKS

In the heated season, our people, especially those living comfortably, are inclined to eat and drink up to the limitations of capacity, rather than within bounds of good judgment. It is not by any means wise to overload on iced drinks. Chilling the stomach cripples very seriously its protective power against microscopic impurities that are always ready to pullets a orange.

To cook fruits, add enough water to prevent scorching, cook gently until tender and sweeten to taste. To retain the shape of the fruit cook in a syrup. For most well-ripened fruits two parts of water to one part sugar gives a mildly sweetened product.

Veal or tenderloin may be used instead of chicken in making salad, according to 4-H club demonstrators at Junior Week. It is then a plain meat salad. However, chicken salad made be made of one part chicken and two parts of veal or veal.

A good bleach for the hands may be made by placing 1-4 cup of cornmeal in a bowl with a teaspoon of pure finely shaved soap or soap flakes, one drop of tincture of benzoin and the juice of one half a lemon. Use hot water to make a paste thin enough to wash the hands.

Skim milk is often available in such large amounts that it cannot all be used for drinking or cooking, and at least part of this extra milk may be utilized in the form of cottage cheese. It is a highly nutritious dairy produce, and easily made. Write to the College of Agriculture for directions.

invade the body.

I know a farmer, a "good liver," who sits down to a sumptuous dinner and washes down a hearty meal of all kinds of substantial food with six or seven glasses of heavily sweetened iced tea! He laughingly admits being a tea-hound. He has it right; but is it necessary for him to indulge like that? Far beyond the limit of temperate need? He should remember that we pay for every excess as sure as time goes on. If not soon—then later. The penalty is certain.

Moderate cool drinking in hot weather is refreshing and beneficial. Excess is distinctly harmful, even dangerous.

Frequently, attacks of appendicitis in the warm season, are due to the freezing of the digestive tract with deluges of ice-cold beer, and excesses of other iced beverages. It is not a matter of temperature, but content of the beverage that constitutes the danger.

Iced tea is a distinct luxury and, perfectly proper to use with meals, but always TEMPERATELY. A glass-sipped deliberately as the need is not a matter of temperature, but content of the beverage that constitutes the danger.

Breakfasts are developed from indiscriminate eating and harmful drinking. It is very unwise to drink a large pint or two of water on top of a heavy dinner. Better to drink a glass of moderately cool water before the meal.

DEE L. McNEILL

FOR STATE REPRESENTATIVE OF THE FIRST DISTRICT COMPOSED OF FULTON AND HICKMAN COUNTIES

I take this means of announcing to the public my candidacy for Representative of the First District subject to the action of the Democratic Primary to be held August 3rd.

I would like to say that if I am elected as your Representative, I will be elected without making any promises whatsoever. I feel that if the Representative goes to legislature when he is not pledged that he will be in a better position to do more for his district than if one goes up there already pledged and tied.

I would favor any measure that would be economical to any and all branches of the state government. I would also favor a reduction in tax on farm lands and would further favor absolute exemption on small farms and small homes from state taxes. I believe that the burden of taxation should be placed upon people who are best able to pay. I would be in favor of the state providing the revenue to match the government aid money for relief purposes and for the U. S. Old Age Pension law, which was recently passed by Congress and which would also benefit the old, the blind, and for providing sufficient funds for maintaining the school system and many other important matters.

The present sales tax law as you all know will not be any law after next July, and that will call for numerous measures that would be presented before the legislature for raising revenue, and I would be in favor of some measure for raising the revenue sufficient to meet the state requirements that will not hurt any citizen and at the same time not make any one set or class of people pay the burden of taxes. The manner of collecting taxes should be changed. If there should be a sales tax, I would favor a man in the district to collect these taxes instead of having some man from Frankfort or Louisville to collect the taxes that are paid by the citizens of this district. I realize that in our legislature that there will be many very important matters that will come before the legislature and that these measures cannot be fought out at this time by anyone who is a candidate. I believe the people should elect a man who they believe capable of handling these matters in the legislature and to the best advantage of our district. You all know that you cannot run a government without revenue, it is like any other business. There must be some revenue with which to operate, and I would favor a plan of raising revenue that would be least harmful to the masses of the people and at the same time collect a sufficient amount of revenue to carry on the state government and to have sufficient money with which to match the necessary money furnished to the state by the federal government. The federal government will not issue to our state, or to any other state, any money for relief or for roads or for schools or for old age pensions, unless the same is matched by the state, and if we wish to take advantage of this money, it is absolutely necessary that the state make sufficient provisions for raising this revenue. There will no doubt be proposition to raise some part of this fund by an income tax and this would be a fair, just and equitable way to raise a part of this revenue. I also favor a tax on luxuries and in that way the necessities of life can be exempted as well as the small farms and small home owners, and at the same time a sufficient amount of revenue could be collected.

If you see fit to elect me as your representative, I will not falter or fail to render the best services that I can to obtain the best results for this district, and I feel that if I am not pledged to any political machinery that I will be free to act to the best interests of both Hickman and Fulton Counties. In all probability I will not be able to all of the voters before the primary election, but I hope that you will consider my candidacy, remembering that when you cast your vote that this is a responsible position and that the fight in the coming legislature will be trying and that there will be vital and important matters to be fought out and you should cast your vote for one who has the ability, and for one in whom you have confidence, and elect a legislator who will do things instead of promising everything.

RESPECTFULLY SUBMITTED,

DEE L. McNEILL

'The Divorce Court Murder'

BY MURTON PROPPER

FIFTH INSTALLMENT

SYNOPSIS—Six persons are in an inner office of the law firm of Dawson, MacQuire and Lucke at Philadelphia. A master hearing in the divorce case of Rowland vs. Rowland is under way. Mrs. Rowland, represented by her lawyer brother, Mr. Willard; Mr. Rowland the defendant, and his attorney, Mr. Trumbull; the court clerk and six persons. There is a new development in the case. After fail-Mr. Dawson, the master are the ing to defend himself against the charge of adultery in earlier hearings. Mr. Rowland digs up evidence and asks the court's permission to produce witnesses and resist the suit Judge Dawson overrules the heated objections of Mr. Willard and orders the witness brought in Rowland's lawyer goes to get the witness but finds her dead—chloroformed. She is Mrs. Barbara Keith, wife of a prominent Philadelphia business man, assigned to the case. He is now Judge Dawson phoned for the police. Detective Tommy Rankin is questioning all of the parties involved in the case. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"If you don't mind," Mr. Trumbull said the detective, "I'd first like to straighten out what occurred this afternoon. I understand you also summoned Mrs. Rowland's companion—the man with whom you claim she is involved?"

"Chiefly because the law requires he receive due notice of the libel, so he may be represented if he desires to defend himself. I don't need his evidence and hardly intended to call on him. Naturally, he'd be a hostile, difficult witness; he'd never willingly confirm Mrs. Keith's story and admit an illicit affair with my client's wife."

"Is he here? Did he answer the summons or disregard it?" Rankin asked.

"I noticed him in the outside office after Allen and I both arrived," Mr. Trumbull stated. "But I've had no reason to speak with him. If he didn't leave before I before the tragedy was discovered, he should still be there."

The detective absent-mindedly drew lines on sheet of paper. "And who is he, Mr. Trumbull?"

"I know little more about him than that his name is Hugh Campbell. He isn't a Philadelphian; he comes from New York and has some sort of connection with night clubs. I believe he supplies talent and produces entertainment for them."

Had he been watching Rankin carefully, he might have observed that he gave an abrupt start.

"Hugh Campbell?" Abruptly he changed the subject. "With regard to Mr. Willard and his sister," he queried; "as far as you're aware, did either of them enter fifteen-o-five before the meeting, if only for a minute?"

Mr. Trumbull pondered. "Not with Mrs. Keith, I'm certain. Of course, I can't say what happened after we left the library and Allen went below. As I recall, Mrs. Rowland preceded us into the main office and talked briefly to Mr. Campbell. Then she returned to this room for about two minutes. I suppose to rejoin her brother. And while I was phoning my own office out there, she came out again and rather hurriedly left the suit altogether, by the center door."

"She went into the corridor? Have you any idea how long she stayed away?"

"More than five minutes, certainly—close, perhaps, to eight," the lawyer replied slowly. "Mr. Rowland had rejoined me over three minutes before she came back. Then she spoke to Mr. Campbell again and re-entered the library. Mr. Willard stayed in the throughout and did not come out."

Rankin pushed back his chair as a signal to conclude the interview. "Thank you, Mr. Trumbull, that will be all now," he dismissed him. "Will you please ask Mr. Rowland to come in next?"

A brief space after Mr. Trumbull departed, his client dropped into the chair he had vacated. A bronzed giant, still under thirty, Allen Rowland had the broad shoulders and stalwart physique of an athlete. He had silky and blond curly hair, a broad nose and full lips, which with a twist might easily relapse into sullenness. Attractive though his virility was, thick hands and a heavy neck betrayed a natural crudeness and uncouthness. He was fully cognizant of his pleasant appearance.

He carried himself with perfect ease, yet Rankin sensed that his poise was acquired. He was not "to the manner born." Mr. Dawson introduced them, and appreciating the gravity of the situation, he acknowledged the detective's greeting soberly. Then, his face pale and anxious, he lighted a cigarette, and waited for the first question.

Rankin opened sympathetically. "I realize this is a most regrettable affair to you, Mr. Rowland. But I must ask you to bear with a few inquiries, mainly about Mrs. Keith's movements this afternoon. You accompanied her to the meeting, didn't you?"

"Yes, I called for her at the Aldrich Apartments at two o'clock," Allen Rowland answered. "We drove to town in her car, with Mr. Keith's chauffeur; the trip took us about half an hour."

"Did Mrs. Keith ever say anything, either then or before, to suggest she anticipated any danger to herself? Or that she had reason to fear some one?"

"No, I had no warning anything so terrible might happen. Naturally she was a bit anxious about the hearing; but otherwise she seemed perfectly normal."

"And after you arrived," Rankin queried casually, "did you remain with her the entire time until the hearing started at three o'clock?"

Mr. Rowland's answered accorded with that of the lawyer. "Oh no, Mr. Trumbull and I both left her in that empty office next door, after about ten minutes. She wanted to be alone and preferred not to wait outside. Then I went below to dismiss her chauffeur, since Mr. Trumbull had consented to escort her home in his car; I didn't return to her again."

Rankin was satisfied at this check through Rowland, of Mr. Trumbull's account and movements.

"I think that covers the points I'm interested in at present," he said. He turned to Mr. Simpkins: "Be good enough to request Mrs. Rowland to come in."

With a nod, the court clerk rose to do his bidding. Adele Rowland followed him from Mr. Dawson's chamber. She was a large woman, in both body and features, yet perfectly proportioned; and, without being beautiful was extremely handsome and striking. Willful and dominating, Rankin clearly perceived she was accustomed to command.

"I only wished to ask, Mrs. Rowland, if you entered the office where Mrs. Keith met her death, after Mr. Trumbull and your husband left her there?" asked Rankin.

Taken unawares, at the abrupt query, as though to gain time to recover her poise, she repeated it slowly. "Did I enter that room? No, I never went near Mrs. Keith; they had closed this door between, and I stayed in here with my brother, waiting for Mr. Dawson."

"How about the outside door in the corridor, when you quit the suite altogether? That was unlocked; why did you go out?"

Mrs. Rowland caught her breath nervously. "I went below to the stand in the lobby to purchase a newspaper," she answered.

"That was the only place you went?" the detective asked incredulously. "That little errand took you the eight minutes or more you were gone?"

"No—on the way back, I stopped in the lady's waiting room on this floor."

Though the reply came too glibly to be convincing, Rankin appreciated her self-possession in producing an excuse he could neither investigate nor disprove.

"I believe you are acquainted with Mr. Hugh Campbell. Before you left these offices, you spoke to him and then returned to the library. Could you tell me what you talked about?"

Haughtily and disdainfully, the woman drew herself to her full height. "That is none of your affair, Rankin," she replied scornfully, her mouth curled. "I don't care to discuss my connection with Mr. Campbell, which is wholly private and has nothing to do with Mrs. Keith's unhappy death."

Rankin nodded, unabashed. "As you wish, of course," he agreed, unpleasantly amiable. "Then I may as well have Mr. Campbell in next and question; perhaps he will be less reticent."

He observed a sudden flash of alarm and fury illumine her eyes. They hardened and she had to bite her lip to restrain a resentful retort, as Rankin stepped to the office entrance, still smiling provocatively.

LOOKING AHEAD OF 1936

We hear a great deal of talk about a possible Coalition Party to take the field against President Roosevelt in next year's Presidential contest. It is easy to see where this talk arises. The number of conservative Democrats of more or less prominence who disapprove of the Roosevelt Administration is steadily increasing. So some of the that it would be a fine thing for Republican Party and the Democratic political planners are suggesting the conservative elements of the eratic Party to get together and nominate a joint candidate.

Such a scheme might work if nothing but national issues were involved. But, state, local and congressional politics cannot be overlooked. The strength of any political party is in its local organization. We think that even the most conservative Anti-Roosevelt Democrats would hesitate before trying to substitute a local coalition machine for the existing party machinery in their respective localities. And we cannot imagine many local Republican Party leaders leading themselves to any movement which, however beneficial it might be to their party's chances for the Presidency, would inevitably disrupt their town, county and state organizations.

What we think is much more likely to happen is some such revolt within the Democratic Party as occurred 40 years ago when the "Gold Democrats" who were opposed to Mr. Bryan put their own ticket in the field. The Palmer and Buckner ticket was defeated, but it drew enough votes from the regular Democratic ticket to insure the election of Major McKinley, the Republican candidate. We are not good enough political prophets to even suggest that such a result might occur in 1936, but we think it more likely that the Anti-Roosevelt Democrats will follow some such course than that they will join the Republicans, and it seems even more unlikely that the Republican Party will nominate a Democrat for President.

SHARING THE WEALTH

We expect to hear a great deal of discussion about the President's proposal to levy inheritance taxes in addition to the present estate taxes, and to increase the percentage of taxation on very large incomes. There is, of course, a tremendous popular appeal to the man in the street, in this plan to redistribute wealth. We doubt, however, that even if such taxation extended to the point of complete confiscation it would make very much material difference to the average citizen, just as we doubt that the imposing of these proposed new and higher taxes would have the dire results that some people are loudly predicting.

It is, of course, true, though most folks do not realize it, that no man has a right to say what shall be done with his wealth after he is dead. A dead man can own nothing. The passing on of his property by will is a privilege granted by statute and not a fundamental right. The State, which has granted the privilege of leaving wealth to one's descendants has a perfect right to revoke that right at any time. There is, therefore, no question of elemental rights involved in any proposal to tax inheritances up to as high as 100 per cent. The only question of consequence is one of public policy.

Since practically nobody who has any material amount of wealth keeps any large part in cash, the payment of death duties and inheritance taxes often, if not generally, involves the forced selling of property, which usually results in realizing much less than its real value. That is why many states, and the Federal Government, allow long terms of years for the payment of estate taxes, to give the executors of large estates ample time in which to raise the necessary cash for tax payments without sacrificing values.

J. P. Morgan has lately been selling pictures from the art collection founded by his father, and disposing of considerable real estate holdings for cash. Mr. Morgan is approaching seventy, and seems to be attempting to provide sufficient cash to pay the death duties, after he passes on.

We think it is probably right to tax the man with a ten-million-dollar-a-year income—if there is any such man in these days—at a higher percentage than the man with only a million-dollar income. But when we get up into those high income figures we touch only a very few fortunes, perhaps not as many as a hundred.

INDEPENDENCE DAY

It is just 160 years that this little group of men gathered in Independence Hall in Philadelphia and affixed their names to the document which launched the United States of America upon its venturesome course. To any student of history it must be clear that these signers of the Declaration of Independence were those in whom two quantities of character predominated, determination and courage. As Benjamin Franklin remarked, when he called upon all of those present to affix their signatures to the Declaration.

"If we don't hang together we will surely hang separately."

They literally took their lives in their hands, these rebellious subjects of the King of England who, as Woodrow Wilson phrased it, "felt themselves to be free men of England, and as free Englishmen could not tolerate the tyranny and oppression of the English King."

They had no distinct idea of founding a new nation, these signers of the Declaration of Independence. They were the representatives of 13 colonies, each of which had suffered grievances which its people could no longer bear, and each of which asserted its rights as a free and independent nation. They could not win that independence except by acting in common; but on that Fourth of July, 1776, it is doubtful whether any of them looked forward to anything more than a temporary alliance for war. The idea of a united group of nations as a permanent institution had hardly been born at that time.

From that little gathering in Philadelphia, however, has arisen the richest and most powerful nation the world has ever seen. The basic principle of human liberty, embodied in The Declaration of Independence, is the foundation upon which our national existence and progress have been based.

ANCIENT BURIAL MOUND AT REELFOOT LAKE

Developments continue at the Ancient Burial Mound at Reelfoot Lake, R. D. Smith, manager states that representatives from the Smithsonian Institute, and the University of Mississippi and the University of Arkansas, have visited the burial mound, and all have spoken in highest terms of the preservation of the skeletons. Experts estimate the mound to have existed from 500 to 2000 the scientific value of the discoveries.

The soil formations are especially adapted for preservation of bones, and also each burial was accompanied by ceremonial fire, as evidenced by ashes found with the bodies. This ash helps to preserve the bones, by nullifying the soil acids. The bodies are buried on the top of a high mound, which has excellent drainage.

The skeletons being unearthed indicate that the people were of about the same stature as the people of today. Few skeletons are more than six feet.

Beads, dogs, and pottery were also buried with bodies, the beads and pottery being in splendid state of preservation. Some of the pottery is upright and some is inverted.

AVOID THE DANGER OF BLOWOUTS

Firestone removes the danger of blowouts by preventing their main cause—internal friction and heat. This is accomplished by Gum-Dipping.

THERE ARE THREE QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS THAT WILL SOLVE YOUR PROBLEM OF WHAT TIRES TO BUY.

1 "Will the tread give me the greatest traction and protection against skidding?"

—Recent tests by a leading University show that Firestone High Speed Non-Skid Tires stop a car 15% quicker than any other of the leading makes.

For eight consecutive years Firestone Tires have been on the winning car in the dangerous Pike's Peak Race where a skid means death.

2 "Are they blowout-proof?"

—Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires have the most amazing records for being blowout-proof of any tires ever built. In the grueling 500-Mile Race at Indianapolis, May 30th, every one of the 33 cars was equipped with Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires. Not one of the 33 drivers had the trouble of any kind.

Ab Jenkins drove his 5,000 pound car on Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires over the hot salt beds of Utah, 3,000 miles, averaging 127.2 miles per hour, with temperatures as high as 120°, without tire trouble of any kind.

3 "Without sacrificing these two important safety features will they give me longer mileage, thus making them the most economical tires I can buy?"

—Firestone High Speed Tires not only give you more than 30% longer wear, but also lowest cost per mile. In fact, unequaled mileage records of thousands of car owners add undisputed evidence of the longer wear and greater economy of Firestone High Speed Tires.

'The Divorce Court Murder'

BY MILTON PROPPER

"Jenks!" he called, and when the detective approached, he said, "I think there is a Mr. Hugh Campbell waiting out there; ask him to join us, please."

For a moment, his assistant's featured pucker in a puzzled reflective frown. "Hugh Campbell?" he repeated. "There's no one—" Abruptly, his eyes lighted. "Oh, yes, koned with in the bootlegging business, commanding an organization to import liquor from Canada to a chain of roadhouses and "joints" in Connecticut and Long Island. Tho he had never met him, Rankin knew he was no gangster; on the contrary urbane, shrewd and well-bred, he traveled in good society, a picturesque and somewhat mysterious individual. He had influence in political circles and never personally participated in the aggressive activities of his agents. But it was his audacity and ambitious management that developed an effective and profitable smuggling ring, controlled the racketeers in his employ, arranged for the acceptance of his wares and paid the necessary protection.

Tommy Rankin was more than ordinarily interested in Hugh Campbell. For he was a power to be re-

Then this was the man Adele Rowland had chosen, her husband claimed, to be her lover. If she contemplated a fresh martial venture, her new choice, the detective reflected in grim amusement, was certainly more romantic and exciting than either the late Tom Marshall or her present incubus.

He received quietly enough Jenks' announcement of Campbell's departure. "Did he leave any message to explain the call," he inquired, "or indicate where he was going?"

"No, he didn't," Jenks replied. "All I learned is that some chap rang the office and inquired for him; and the phone clerk summoned him to her desk, where there was a connected instrument, to take the call."

Rankin's interest quickened. "At her desk? Then she might have caught some of the conversation?"

"Yes, she could hardly help hearing several things this Campbell said, he spoke so loudly and—well, violently. First he shouted, 'What?' and then, very much alarmed, 'Oh, my God!' Next he cried, 'You fool!' and said he'd join him; he hung up greatly upset, and hurried out without a word."

"Perhaps Mrs. Rowland," Rankin turned inquiringly toward the woman, "can offer a reason for his disturbance or has an idea where he went?"

He could not judge, from her diffident manner, whether she was relieved or troubled by Campbell's absence.

"I don't know anything about it, Mr. Rankin," she returned brusquely. Rankin drew his assistant into the central office, but beyond the hearing of both the staff and those concerned in the divorce.

TAXES CUT INTO RAIL DOLLAR

Although railway taxes have declined about one-third from their normal pre-depression level of a million dollars a day, they have failed to keep pace with the decline in railway revenues. As a consequence, taxes now consume 8 cents out of each dollar of the gross operating revenues of the railroads, as compared with 6 cents and even less in more prosperous years.

This situation has naturally had its influence on the abandonment of railway line. More than 14,500 miles have been abandoned in the United States in fourteen years, the bulk of it since 1929.

In many localities this loss of taxes has means unfortunate reductions in school support and in other community activities. The needed remedy is a square deal for the railroads in regulation, taxation and patronage.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.
