Hearing set Monday for rezoning issue

By EDWARD SHERIDAN
Staff Writer

The saga of SFR Investments and its attempts to rezone property on the south side of Murray is about to take another turn.

Earlier this month, the Murray City Council voted 7-4 to send the matter of rezoning property at 500 South 12th Street back to the Murray Planning Commission, which had just voted 4-3 to deny the rezoning the month before.

The rezoning concerns an approximately 50-foot piece of land located at the corner of 12th and Sycamore streets.

Upon reviewing the council's decision, however, it was determined that the city council could not legally send the matter back to the planning commission. Now, a public hearing before the city council has been scheduled for 5 p.m. Monday at Murray's City Hall to consider the rezoning once again.

"When they went back and looked at the regulations on that ... it really didn't offer the option of sending it back to the planning

Attorney wants charges dropped in dorm fire case

By The Associated Press
BOWLING GREEN, Ky. (AP)

The attorney for one of the men charged in the death of a college student said Monday charges should be dropped against his client because of a lack of credible evidence.

Attorney David Broderick said there are no fingerprints or DNA evidence linking Lucas Goodrum to the death of Katie Autry, a freshman at Western Kentucky University.

There are also videotapes showing Goodrum walk into Hugh Poland Hall — the dorm where Autry, 18, of Pellville, was found beaten, raped and burned on May 4, Broderick said.

Autry died three days later at a hospital in Nashville, Tenn.

Goodrum and Stephen B. Soules, both of Scottsville, were indicted

Dr. Hughes: Income levels should play part in prescription drug issue

By KRISTIN TAYLOR
Staff Writer

As prescription drugs dominate health care discussions, Dr. Bob Hughes asks if health care is a right or commodity.

"I believe it's a right," the Murray physician said in an interview Monday morning. "I think what will answer that question is the pharmaceutical industry and whether new drug policies and technology gives access to everyone."

Hughes has served as chairman of the Pharmaceutical and Therapeutics Committee of the Kentucky Medicaid program since the legislature created it about two years ago. The committee oversees $700 million in annual expenditures that provides pharmaceutical benefits for 665,000 state Medicaid recipients.

In order to have a balanced health care system, Hughes, who practices at Primary Care

Medical Center here, said he suggests looking at income levels when considering prescription drugs and medical benefits. He also said because many states are experiencing financial concerns, especially with their Medicaid programs, the issues becomes a federal concern.

"The ultimate social safety net has to be the government," he said. "Does the poorer person

Personal issues deflected during Kentucky Attorney General debate

By JOE BIESK
Associated Press Writer

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky's three attorney general candidates said questions about their personal lives should not keep them out of office, during a debate broadcast statewide Monday night.

Democrat Greg Stumbo, Republican Jack Wood and independent Gatewood Galbraith appeared on an hour-long debate televised on Kentucky Educational Television.

Each candidate said that as attorney general they would uphold the state's laws, despite their different personal issues that have dogged them during the race.

Stumbo, the House majority leader, deflected questions about a paternity lawsuit. Stumbo has acknowledged fathering a son out of wedlock but has denied allegations that he tried to avoid paying child support.

On Monday, Stumbo said he has remained current on his child support payments.

"If I've violated any court order and you can show me that, I'll withdraw from the race," Stumbo said. "I haven't violated any court orders. When paternity was established, I began paying and do currently pay child support."

Wood, a one-time district court judge in Monroe County, said he "took responsibility" for an ad his campaign committee ran years ago that led to a 10-day suspension of his pay. Wood, who was a Democrat last year and ran unsuccessfully for a seat on Louisville's new Metro Council, said he did not remember other incidents where his pay may have been withheld.

"I accepted that. I use it as a learning experience and I go forward," Wood said.

Meanwhile, Galbraith said he has a prescription for marijuana and smokes it for medicinal purposes, namely as a treatment for asthma. Galbraith said the U.S. Constitution protects his right to smoke it in his home and that it would not affect his job as attorney general.

"Isn't it refreshing to have some honesty out here in politics, folks?" Galbraith said.

The office of attorney general is "the most appropriate" statewide office for an independent candidate to hold, Galbraith said. Because he is not beholden to partisanship or commission," Murray City Administrator Don Elias said this morning.

Rezoning recommendations are passed from the planning commission to the city council for final approval. Just this past week, the commission voted 5-1 to recommend that property, at 1108 Sycamore St. be rezoned from residential to business. The developer in that matter is also SFR Investments, which is based in Germantown, Tenn.

The 500 S. 12th St. property request is also to rezone from residential to business. The scenario is slightly different, though, because part of the property is already zoned for business, but the back portion is not, Elias said.

"About the last 50 feet of this lot with the house on it is zoned residential," he said. "It's kind of split in two right now."

Elias said the council will have the option Monday of approving or rejecting the rezoning request.

Hospital under siege by militants

KHOBAR, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Saudi security forces raided a farm today, setting off a running battle with gunmen who fled into a hospital and took foreigners hostage, security officials and an Arab television station said. The government said the gunmen were militants planning a terror attack.

One security official and three militants were killed in the gunbattle, a government statement said.

Security officials said the stand-off at the hospital building in Jizan, 600 miles south of the Saudi capital, Riyadh, continued at mid-afternoon. An Arab television station said the hostages were foreign doctors and nurses.

The raid came amid a crackdown on Islamic militants launched after May 12 suicide bombings in Riyadh that killed 26 people, as well as 200 suspects have been arrested and more than a dozen killed in a series of high-profile police raids since then.

The battle began when security forces raided a farm near Jizan, looking for suspects.

Jordyn D. Randolph, 17, Murray, was driving north on Ky. 1824 in Hardin Sept. 18 at approximately 10:31 p.m. when she looked down at the radio in her vehicle and crossed the center line of the roadway. Randolph applied the brakes and skidded through the oncoming lane and into a ditch. Her vehicle then struck a culvert and overturned. Randolph and two passengers, Ethan Ross, 20, Benton, and Ashley Henderson, 17, Murray, were injured and transported by Marshall County EMS to the Marshall County Hospital.

Bush promises help in wake of hurricane strike

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Surrounded by photographs of Hurricane Isabel slamming into the Atlantic coast, President Bush offered federal help to states that took the worst hits from the storm.

"The true character of this country comes out in times of stress and emergency. This country has responded once again," Bush said Monday at the Virginia State Police Academy to a room filled with more than 250 emergency relief workers from 12 federal agencies who coordinated recovery efforts in the state.

"On behalf of a grateful nation I want to thank people at all levels of our government for working extra hard to help our country when it needed help," Bush said.

Bush told the workers, "You've done your state proud."

Earlier, Bush talked to governors from several states during a video conference briefing. "If you need equipment, let us know," he said.

FEMA officials showed the president a brief slide presentation of pictures showing Isabel five days before landfall and how it tracked across the Southeast.

Isabel ravaged nine states and the District of Columbia on Thursday, leaving more than a million people without power and at least 35 dead.

Tom Ridge, secretary of the Homeland Security Department, said his agency has worked with state officials to coordinate the relief effort.

Warren County Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Chris Cohron said there is evidence against Goodrum that Broderick did not mention, but Cohron would not elaborate.

Soules told police several different stories about what happened before saying both he and Goodrum were in Autry's dorm on May 4, Western Kentucky University Detective Mike Dowell has testified.

After repeated questioning by police, Soules said he was having "consensual sex" with Autry, Dowell said in May.

get the same care and medicine as someone with health insurance? Implementation is the important part. Anything you do on one end, you do to the other. You have to see the big picture."

Hughes said he became interested in prescription drug issues about eight years ago when new cholesterol and acid reflex medicines and later arthritis prescriptions came out. At that time, there was an increase in pharmaceutical sales and expensive drugs.

"I believe in this process," Hughes said. "I could talk all day about some of the battles we've fought. With prescription drugs, the more details that get out there, the more the public understands."

Nine physicians with different specialties and three pharmacists serve on the state Pharmaceutical and Therapeutics Committee. Since it was formed, the committee has saved the state's Medicaid program more than $128 million, Hughes said.

"The committee wants to optimize tax dollars to have the most care available with our resources," he said. "We are working to have the best quality with the most efficient cost."

Kentuckians spend close to $470 million each year in pharmaceuticals, Hughes said, and that figure is only rising. He said those who lobby for pharmaceutical distributors are powerful voices.

"Most would agree that the appropriate use of a prescription drug is the right drug, for the right patient, taken in the right way, and at the right cost," he said in a presentation to create the committee in August 2001. "However, in Kentucky right now, it is unfortunately all drugs, for all patients, taken hopefully in the right way, and at any cost."

Thirteen percent of Murray's population is part of the Medicaid system, Hughes said, which is less than the 20 percent of the state's residents.

To create a more efficient system, Hughes suggests reducing dispensing costs, looking at the length of prescriptions, creating an incentive plan for physicians to be cost effective in the prescribing habits, reviewing drug use and implementing disease management programs.

Serving as chair on the committee has given Hughes a chance to listen to leading experts in his chosen field and become more interested in evidence-based medicine, especially using computerized medical records.

"It's made me more interested in computerized records to make health care more efficient," he said of his time on the committee. "We've made decisions that affect people, and it's only going to get better."

campaign contributors, Galbraith said he would make the better candidate.

Stumbo touted his "Make Pushers Pay" anti-drug plan that he says could help curb drug abuse in the state. As part of the proposal, Stumbo said he would establish a Kentucky Bureau of Investigation that would be primarily charged with fighting the state's drug problems.

Galbraith and Wood each criticized Stumbo's plan, saying it would create an additional layer of state bureaucracy. Instead, Galbraith said, he would follow along the same lines of the national tobacco lawsuit and seek $2 billion from pharmaceutical companies to help people addicted to prescription drugs.

Wood claimed he was the "only conservative" in the race, and that voters with ideas similar to his should support him.

Wood criticized Stumbo for writing a letter to Gov. Paul Patton on behalf of convicted killer Kevin Stanford. This summer, the governor said he planned to commute Stanford's death sentence.

Stumbo said he was "uninformed about the facts" when he wrote the letter and that he later wrote Patton to retract his letter.

Gordon Jump of 'WKRP,' Maytag ad fame dies at 71

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gordon Jump, who played a befuddled radio station manager on the sitcom "WKRP in Cincinnati" and made his mark in commercials as the lonely Maytag repairman, died Monday. He was 71.

Jump suffered from pulmonary fibrosis, said his cousin, Katherine Jump Wagner. The illness causes scarring of the air sacs of the lungs, leading to heart or respiratory failure.

Wagner, of Arcanum, Ohio, said she learned of her cousin's death from her father, also named Gordon Jump. Her cousin was under hospice care at his home southeast of Los Angeles, she said.

Jump played Arthur Carlson in "WKRP in Cincinnati," which aired on CBS from 1978-82 and featured Gary Sandy, Loni Anderson, Tim Reid, Howard Hesseman and Richard Sanders as the ragtag station's crew.

A native of Dayton, Ohio, Jump began his career working at radio and TV stations in the Midwest. He worked behind the microphone and the camera, including jobs as a producer for Kansas and Ohio stations.

Jump portrayed the Maytag repairman "O'Lonely," a well-recognized advertising symbol, from 1989 until he retired from the role in July and another actor took over.

attention he got for the ad campaign and the steady work it provided, Wagner said. But his heart was elsewhere professionally.

"What he loved more than anything was doing theater. He was a marvelous actor," she said, recalling a visit to Florida to watch him perform in "Norman, Is That You?"

Jump began his Hollywood career after moving to Los Angeles in 1963, appearing on series including "Daniel Boone," "Get Smart" and "The Partridge Family."

His dramatic roles included a part in the TV movie "Ruby and Oswald," about the assassination of President Kennedy, and "Conquest of the Planet of the Apes."

Jump is survived by his wife, four daughters and a son, Maytag said in a statement. He also had a brother, Wagner said.

Boy hit by pitch died of rare heart occurrence

COLD SPRING, Ky. (AP) — A 15-year-old boy hit in the chest by a pitch during a baseball game died because the low-impact trauma disrupted his heart's rhythm, according to an autopsy.

Campbell County Coroner Mark Schweitzer said commotio cordis is a rare occurrence, with only 46 such cases involving baseball or softball reported nationwide through 2001.

Justin Saccone, a sophomore at Campbell County High School, was playing in a game Sunday at Penderly Park when he was struck while attempting a bunt. He collapsed along the first base line and was taken to St. Luke Hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

Classmate Chris Steele, who spoke during a prayer service

Monday at First Baptist Church of Cold Spring, said Saccone had volunteered to fill in when a friend's team was down a player.

"He would have played for anybody, anytime," Steele told hundreds of classmates and friends. "I guess it was just his time to go, and he died doing what he loved to do, and that was play baseball."

Saccone didn't make the school's freshman team last year and was playing in the fall Campbell County Knothole league to improve his skills.

Saccone's parents, Rocke and Tammy Saccone, declined comment Monday but asked Campbell County High School Principal Anthony Strong to tell the community that their son loved baseball.

Just because a megabank has a branch in town doesn't mean that's where your money stays. It often winds up at some corporate headquarters far away, where it does little for us locally. At our bank, that's not the case. As a local bank, we keep your money right here. We reinvest in the community, building homes, businesses, and schools. Most important, your money helps make this a better place to live. That alone is a pretty good reason to switch your accounts to our bank. When you realize we can compete with the big banks, is there any question? So, bring your money and your business to us. And we'll put it right back out into the community. Shadow of Clinton looms over Clark's campaign

By RON FOURNIER
AP Political Writer

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — After watching from the sidelines for months, former Commerce Secretary Mickey Kantor was lured into action by presidential candidate Wesley Clark — with a nudge from former President Clinton.

"The president knows General Clark better than I know General Clark, and I just asked what he thought," Kantor recalled. "He said, 'I have a tremendous regard for him.'"

And with that, Kantor joined Clark's campaign as a senior adviser.

By action and association, Clinton has had a major impact on Clark's first bid for elective office, causing some Democrats to wonder whether the former president's pledge of impartiality may be giving way to his loyalty toward a fellow Arkansan.

There is no proof that Clinton is pulling the strings in Clark's campaign — indeed, most Democrats say they doubt the former president would be so bold.

But some party activists, particularly those lodged in rival campaigns, point to circumstantial evidence suggesting that the impressive list of political heavyweights rallying behind Clark may be a reflection of Clinton's endorsement — if not endorsement.

Others say the support is coincidental, a result of so many Clinton allies vowing to remain neutral in this year's election only to get the itch late in the cycle.

Another theory: Clark's is the last hope for establishment Democrats who fear the other contenders have stalled while the current front-runner, Howard Dean, would be defeated by President Bush.

"I think for several months now the establishment — you know, the guys and girls who believe they're in the loop — they've been looking for a horse to ride and they looked at the nine in the race and said, 'All the seats aren't taken,'" said Democratic strategist Donna Brazile.

Regardless of the reasons why, it can't be disputed that Clinton is casting a long shadow over Clark's campaign.

The former president and his wife, Sen. Hillary Rodham Clinton of New York, urged Clark to enter. "He's a smart man, served our country well," Clinton said in Iowa on Saturday.

Clark's advisers point out that Clinton has counseled other Democratic candidates, and heaps them all with praise.

Then there's Clark's team, a potent mix of Clinton allies from Arkansas and lieutenants of two Clinton campaigns in the 1990s. Skip Rutherford, head of the Clinton presidential library, former White House lawyer Bruce Lindsey, former Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark., and the entire Arkansas congressional delegation lined up behind Clark this week.

State Democratic leaders say the word is out that Clinton favors

Clark, but their support is less about the former president than it is about their excitement over another favorite son candidacy.

A close Clinton associate, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the former president is not siding with any candidate. However, he said Clinton is the most "emotionally invested" with Clark, the candidate with whom he has most in common. The pair has had a casual acquaintance since the 1960s, culminated by the rise and fall of Clark's military career under Clinton.

Clinton is walking a fine line between impartiality and sending subtle signals of his support, the official said.

One of those signals came at a recent party in New York, when Clinton was overheard saying there were two Democratic stars — his wife and Clark.

A Washington-based Democratic consultant, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Clinton spoke glowingly of Clark in a recent conversation and mentioned offhandedly that the former general might need help.

Kantor said Clinton did not ask him to aid Clark.

"The only connection is we all share the same philosophy and sense of commitment to moving the country forward," Kantor said of Clark and his new team.

Clark's advisers include several other former Clinton administration officials, including Mark Fabiani and Eli Segal.

When Clark convened the first conference call of his campaign, he was joined by several Clinton allies including former White House Chief of Staff John Podesta, former White House aide Rahm Emanuel, now a congressman from Illinois, and former Clinton White House press secretary Mike McCurry, participants said.

Emanuel cheered Clark on. "You have the potential to put the money together," he told the candidate.

Some of the conference callers hedged their support. Podesta, for example, has said he will lend advice to any Democrat to request it.

One participant told Clark that James Carville and Paul Begala, two high-profile Clinton consultants, would be available to advise him. "I've offered to help all the candidates," Begala said in telephone interview.

Clinton's ties to the Clark campaign has triggered speculation among conservative commentators and Clark's rivals that the former president is encouraging a weak candidate so that he will lose, leaving the field open for Mrs. Clinton to run in 2008.

Most Democrats said that theory seems far-fetched, though Clinton fueled speculation Thursday when he seemed to hint that Mrs. Clinton could seek the White House this year despite her promise to complete her term.

"That's really a decision for her to make," Clinton said.

Another Opinion

Lexington Herald-Leader

The tobacco buyout must be gaining traction in Congress. RJR and Brown & Williamson are publicly attacking it. The New York Times is editorializing against it.

Excuse us if we don't cry crocodile tears for RJR and Brown & Williamson. They could have been part of the discussions about how to link a quota buyout with regulation of tobacco by the Food and Drug Administration. They wanted no part of the talks; now that something might come of them, they spout dire warnings about a buyout's effects on everything from their profits to state government coffers.

What it amounts to is RJR and B&W don't want FDA regulation. Nor do they want to help pay the $10 billion cost of a buyout. (Farmers and quota owners would receive $13 billion in exchange for giving up the current price support program, but the cost to the companies would be lower because they no longer would pay $3 billion through what's known as Phase 2 of the tobacco settlement.)

The Times chastises tobacco lawmakers for predicating their buyout proposal "on the notion that these quotas are bankable assets."

But they are bankable assets. Congress created the assets when it established the tobacco program in the 1930s. The quotas are part of the value of hundreds of thousands of pieces of real estate. No telling how many banks have approved mortgages based on the value of a farm's tobacco quota.

Until the last five years, taxpayers never wrote a check to individual tobacco growers. Tobacco was one farm program that worked by balancing supply and demand, at very minimal cost to taxpayers.

Now that steep declines in demand for domestic tobacco are rendering the program obsolete, land owners and farmers are not, as the Times says, asking for "lavish compensation," just equity.

The Paducah Sun

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Ben Chandler abruptly changed the generally positive tone of his campaign recently by accusing his opponent, Ernie Fletcher, of putting his friendship with an Ohio congressman ahead of preserving jobs at the Paducah Gaseous Diffusion Plant.

The allegation is beyond the bounds of normal political exaggeration. It's easy to dismiss it, as a Fletcher spokesman dismissed it, as "just silly."

However, the attack on Fletcher injects bare-knuckled partisanship into what had been a bipartisan effort to persuade USEC Inc. to build a gas centrifuge plant in Paducah.

Kentucky officials need to present a united front to USEC, which will choose either Paducah or Portsmouth, Ohio, as the site for the gas centrifuge later this year.

Portsmouth is believed to have an advantage in the competition, given that USEC officials decided last year to build a test plant there.

Gov. Paul Patton has made the centrifuge project his top economic development priority. Republican members of the state's congressional delegation — including First District U.S. Rep. Ed Whitfield, U.S. Sen. Mitch McConnell and Fletcher — are lending their support and influence to the governor's efforts to land the plant.

Earlier this summer, Fletcher wrote a letter to USEC officials urging them to build the gas centrifuge in Paducah. Fletcher promised to back a generous incentive package for the plant, which is expected to employ at least 400 workers.

It now appears likely that USEC will make its decision before Patton leaves office in December. However, Fletcher hasn't tried to exploit anxieties in western Kentucky about the possible loss of jobs by accusing the governor, the state's top Democrat, of failing to aggressively pursue the test plant and the permanent facility.

Fletcher could point out that hundreds of jobs have been lost at the gaseous diffusion plant on Patton's watch. Fortunately, Fletcher appears more interested in playing a positive role in the recruitment campaign than in scoring political points by bashing the Democrats for the decline of the uranium enrichment industry.

Until recently, Chandler also was taking a positive approach to the gas centrifuge project.

But the attorney general politicized the issue with his off-the-wall claim that Fletcher was in "bed with the enemy" because he attended a Republican fund-raiser that included U.S. Rep. Rob Portman, who represents Portsmouth.

Chandler's baseless charge won't influence many voters in western Kentucky, but a fear is that it will fracture the bipartisan coalition that has battled for the interests of Paducah's USEC workers for the past decade.

The Job Terminator

GuestVoice

by Mark Guillofoyle

When the Kentucky Democrats rolled out the "Jobs Terminator" mascot at Fancy Farm to poke fun at Ernie Fletcher, most of us got a good chuckle. Using Arnold Schwarzenegger's character from the Terminator movies seemed like a funny way to draw attention to Congressman's Fletcher's record on economic issues.

As it turns out, the mascot also conveys a very serious message. A good argument can be made that Fletcher's votes in Congress really have worked to the distinct disadvantage of working Americans.

Most of us would probably agree that politicians have little to do with the business cycle. Presidents may take credit for good economic times, and they certainly refuse to accept blame for recessions. The reality, however, is that the economy ebbs and flows based on factors largely beyond the control of any president. Truth be told, the Federal Reserve has much more to do with the state of our economy than the policies of any president.

This is why it was transparently false for Fletcher to state recently that Americans today are victims of the "Clinton economy." Indeed, Bill Clinton left office in January 2001. The most recent recession began in March 2001 and ended in November 2001. Thus, the most recent recession came and went after Bill Clinton left the White House!

No, the big question has to do with why we have continued to lose jobs over the last 20 months while we have been in a "recovery." During this recovery, unemployment has gone from 5.6 percent to 6.1 percent, and we have lost more than 1 million jobs. In August alone, 93,000 were lost.

Can Fletcher rightfully be ascribed blame for this jobless recovery — the worst hiring slump since the Great Depression? Absolutely yes, and here's why.

It is an uncontroversial fact that George Bush and Fletcher sold the American public on two huge tax cuts with the express promise that the tax cuts would create jobs and lead to a jobs recovery. Before passage of the latest tax cut, the administration predicted that the tax cut would add 1.4 million new jobs. The opposite has occurred, and the sad fact is that we are going in reverse on the jobs front.

Clearly, the tax cut strategy has not worked. And little wonder. The bulk of the Fletcher-Bush tax relief favors wealthier folks who, by and large, do not create new jobs with their lower tax burden — they tend to reinvest it in the stock market. It should be no surprise, then, that the stock market has surged since the Fletcher-Bush tax cuts passed.

The issue runs deeper than tax policy, though. Fletcher-Bush trade policies are also to blame for some of the job losses. Fletcher favors unbridled free trade, and this policy has caused a flood of jobs to go overseas. Some reports estimate that 5 million jobs, many of them high-paying, will be lost to other countries by 2015.

Clearly, it is time for a mid-course correction on NAFTA and other free-trade laws, but Congressional Republicans like Ernie Fletcher show no openness to anything but wide open free trade. Again, American workers come up short under Fletcher-Bush.

Of course, in the midst of the current jobless recovery, many employers have simply utilized overtime with existing workers rather than hire new workers. Not surprisingly, Fletcher has done nothing to oppose recent efforts in Congress and by the Department of Labor to revamp the well established overtime law.

He did not vote on House Roll Call Vote #351 on July 10, 2003. These amendments would make overtime more attractive for employers and less available to workers. Again, American workers get the short end of the stick.

In the final analysis, it is abundantly clear that Ernie Fletcher has waged an all-out assault on workers since he has been in Congress. And it's the kind of assault that would make the Terminator proud. It's been deadly effective, and we have the job losses to prove it.

Stamp is new effort by post office to fight domestic violence

The Dexter Post Office has joined a nationwide effort to fight domestic violence through sales of a new stamp.

The Stop Family Violence "semipostal" stamp is the third semipostal in U.S. history. As a semipostal, the difference between the sales price of the stamp (45 cents) and the underlying postage in effect at the time of purchase (less the Postal Service's reasonable costs) consists of a charitable contribution.

"The Postal Service is pleased to announce the availability of the Stop Family Violence stamp," said Postmaster Peggy Smith. "The Postal Service has a proud tradition of issuing stamps to help raise awareness of social issues. The Stop Family Violence stamp takes this wonderful tradition a step further by providing funds for a worthy cause. We encourage everyone to purchase and use the Stop Family Violence stamp on their cards and letters."

The 45-cent, self-adhesive Stop Family Violence semipostal stamp is valid for postage at the First-Class Mail, first-ounce letter rate in effect at the time of purchase (currently 37 cents), with the differential (currently 8 cents, less the Postal Service's reasonable costs) going to the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services for domestic violence programs. The differential consists of a tax-deductible contribution.

For the stamp design, art director Carl T. Herrman of Carlsbad, Calif., selected artwork by a young girl that expresses the pain and sadness caused by domestic violence. To see the stamp, go to the Collector's Corner of the Postal Store at www.usps.com/shop.

The first U.S. semipostal stamp was the Breast Cancer Research stamp issued in 1998 and will sell until Dec. 31. To date, more than $30 million has been raised for breast cancer research.

The Heroes of 2001 stamp was issued June 7, 2002, and it has raised more than $8 million for the families of relief personnel killed or permanently disabled during the terrorist attacks on Sept. 11, 2001. It will sell until Dec. 31, 2004.

These semipostal stamps are available for purchase at Post Offices across the country, by toll-free telephone orders at 1 800 STAMP-24 and by online orders at www.usps.com/shop.

Blood drive will be Wednesday

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be at the Weaks Community Center, 607 Poplar St., Murray, on Wednesday, Sept. 24, from 2 to 8 p.m.

All blood donor types are welcome at this blood drive.

Larry Doyle, Calloway County Red Cross Blood Drives chairman, said "every day lives are saved by blood donors who voluntarily provide the precious gift of life to patients in need. Only voluntarily given blood may be used for transfusions and blood cannot be manufactured."

If you have Type O blood, your blood may be used in trauma cases when there is no time for cross-matching blood types and is the most common type transfused to newborns.

When an illness or accident occurs, everyone expects blood to be in the hospital with all other supplies; but if the blood supply runs out -- no 24-hour convenience store can produce it for you. Maintaining the blood supply is a community responsibility that is crucial, and yet depends entirely upon voluntary donors.

To be eligible to give blood, donors must be healthy, at least 17 years old, weigh at least 110 pounds and not have given blood in the last 56 days. (Fluids are replaced within 24 hours after a blood donation. The red blood cell count is back to normal and ready for donation after 56 days.)

A health review will be conducted to further determine eligibility to give blood. Donors with diabetes and high blood pressure are accepted if it is under control.

Refreshments will be served and a T-shirt will be given to all donors.

Racers get fresh start in OVC

By MICHAEL DANN
Sports Writer

Truth be told, Joe Pannunzio never does anything the easy way. The Murray State head coach admitted as much during his regular weekly press conference on Monday.

A 1-3 record was not the way Pannunzio envisioned starting the 2003 season. But the present for the fourth-year coach is 0-0, meaning no wins and no losses in Ohio Valley Conference play.

In fact, there aren't many wins in the OVC. In four weeks, the conference has gone 0-9 — namely to its nemesis, the Gateway Conference.

The Racers fell victim to Indiana State last Saturday at Roy Stewart Stadium. The Sycamores snapped MSU's home winning streak at eight games. Murray also felt the ill effects of a 32-7 shellacking at Southern Illinois the week before.

Despite losses in the last two games, Pannunzio feels his squad made significant strides against Indiana State.

However, he also realizes the team has holes to fill and questions to be answered.

Murray State fumbled with less than three minutes to play at the Indiana State 15-yard-line, ending a potential game-tying drive Saturday evening.

The Racers led 10-7 at half-time, but could not mount a scoring drive in the second half. Meanwhile, the Sycamores scored 10 unanswered points.

"We have to be a little more explosive in what we do," Pannunzio explained. "I started to see some signs in our offensive line that we are coming together and are starting to run the football like we want to."

"We still have concerns about the way we throw the football, but we are hopeful that will come together."

Pannunzio will take those concerns on the road this Saturday as Murray travels to OVC rival

Racers at Tennessee Tech
What: Racers travel to face Golden Eagles
When: Sat., 2:30 p.m.
Where: Cookeville, Tenn.
Records: Racers (1-3); Tennessee Tech (1-2)

Tennessee Tech for the opening weekend of league play. Game time is 2:30 p.m. at Tucker Stadium in Cookeville, Tenn.

The Racers' track record over their last eight road games is 1-7, which is why Pannunzio plans to shake things up this week.

He signified the importance of the game against the Golden Eagles on more than one level, and explained what precautions he is taking to change the format of his team's usual game plan.

"Usually, we don't leave until real late, and normally we go straight to the hotel," he said. "This time, we are going to leave early in the afternoon and go right to the field and work out there. We are going to try to make some things different. We have to find a way to win on the road."

Pannunzio stressed that for his team to go to Cookeville and beat the Golden Eagles, they will have to do things differently.

A win could mean the biggest victory since the Racers beat Eastern Kentucky in Pannunzio's first season at the MSU helm in 2000.

"This is a big game for us, and it could be a big win for us," noted Pannunzio. "I think we are ready to pop out of it — I really do."

"I haven't felt really good about our team with the people that we have had in places on offense and defense until Sunday. I think we have mixed and matched and moved people around. I'm excited about what we have."

Pannunzio described Tennessee Tech as a team that is always well coached and fundamentally sound. The Golden Eagles battled Division I-A upstart North-

TALKING IT OVER ... Murray State quarterback Stewart Childress (left) talks to senior fullback Jamie Alexander (40) and the rest of the Racer offensive unit before an offensive series during last weekend's loss to visiting Indiana State. ern Illinois — a surprise winner over Alabama and Maryland already this season — to a 21-10 score late in the first half of a game earlier this year.

"That shows you that (Tech) does have athletes and that they are a pretty good team," Pannunzio said. "The one thing they do that is different from other teams we play is that they have big splits between their offensive linemen."

"Traditionally, with our defensive lineman, it takes them a quarter or two to get used to that and to figure out how we can attack their offense."

Pannunzio is encouraged with his squad's defensive efforts this season. However, he said the Racers can not afford to have the lapses they had last week against Indiana State.

"We can't have the inconsistencies of giving up three or four plays that hurt you in the end," said Pannunzio.

"Our special teams, I think, are going to be all right there. Our weakest area is our kickoff return. We have to get some yardage out of that, and some productivity."

Pannunzio feels the team that will eventually win the OVC is similar to the team MSU is putting on the field now.

"Whoever wins this league is going to be just like us, and there's no reason why it can't be us," he claimed. "I think we are all about the same."

"If you had to ask me right now to pick a winner, I'd have to say Eastern Kentucky. They look like they have some offense."

"Although, I'm sure they didn't play as well as they would have liked against Western, Eastern Illinois has to be pretty good. Tennessee State looked good ... We are the big question mark right now."

Brooks wants streak vs. Gators to end

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Lest anyone think Kentucky football coach Rich Brooks isn't an excitable guy, he closed his weekly press conference on Monday by shouting his enthusiasm about the Wildcats' game on Saturday against No. 25-ranked Florida.

Brooks told media members to "get fired up" for Florida, drawing laughs. But the recent history of the Kentucky-Florida series is no laughing matter in the Bluegrass State. Kentucky (2-2, 0-1 Southeastern Conference) hasn't beaten league rival Florida (2-2, 0-1) since 1986 and has lost its last 16 games against the Gators. Brooks said that streak has to end sometime.

"We've got to get it done, obviously," Brooks said. "The history is what, 1986, (under former coach) Jerry Claiborne?"

"We've got to change it. We've just got to change it."

Brooks has a believer in wide receiver Derek Abney, who returned both a punt and a kickoff for a touchdown in Kentucky's 41-34 loss to Florida last season.

Abney said Kentucky's players are tired of continually losing to upper-echelon SEC teams.

"Going into every game, we hope we can get it done," Abney said. "Like (Brooks) said, I've never beaten Florida."

Brooks designated last Saturday's game at Indiana a "must-win," and the Wildcats responded by beating the Hoosiers 34-17. Brooks said the Wildcats need to build on that win.

He singled out the performances of defensive end Jeremy Caudill, cornerback Leonard Burrell, left tackle Matt Huff and quarterback Jared Lorenzen.

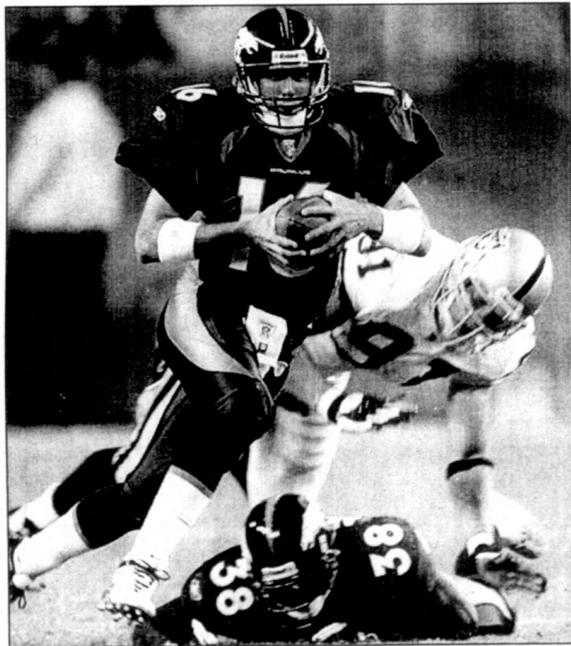

"Obviously, it's a little better today than it was last week at this time," Brooks said. "Two-and-two is a heck of a lot better than 1-3. I believe that we made a lot of strides in the Indiana game and a few of our players had what I would consider their best games of the year."

Punter Anthony Thornton was named the SEC's special teams player of the week after averaging 46.3 yards on seven punts against Indiana.

Thornton, who entered the season as the backup, now is a solid No. 1 on the depth chart, Brooks said.

"It's the best performance our punting game has had," Brooks said.

Brooks said another player who earned more playing time is sophomore tailback Arliss Beach, who rushed for a team-high 46 yards on 10 carries against Indiana after not carrying the ball a week earlier in a 27-17 loss to Alabama.

Broncos bash Raiders 31-10

DENVER (AP) — A perfect first quarter was all the Denver Broncos needed to embarrass the Oakland Raiders.

Jake Plummer passed for two touchdowns and ran for another in the first period as the Broncos raced to a 21-0 lead en route to a 31-10 victory Monday night.

"We were really efficient," Plummer said.

Denver (3-0) marched 60, 55 and 50 yards for touchdowns on its first three possessions, generating 170 yards total in the quarter and limiting the Raiders to just 7.

"I don't think our first quarter could have been any better," receiver Ed McCaffrey said.

JACK DEMPSEY/AP
Denver QB Jake Plummer (16) breaks loose on a 40-yard run against the Raiders in the second quarter of Monday's game. The Broncos won 31-10.

The game was payback for the Broncos, who lost twice to the Raiders last season, including a 34-10 Monday night thumping in Denver when the Broncos were 6-2 and the Raiders 4-4 and on a four-game losing streak.

The Broncos went on to miss the playoffs, while Oakland lost only one game on the way to the AFC championship.

Plummer, showing no ill effects from a slightly separated right shoulder, rolled left and threw an 18-yard touchdown pass to Shannon Sharpe on the Broncos' first series.

Plummer scrambled and hit a wide-open Ashley Lelie for 44 yards to cap the second series. Then, the quarterback bootlegged 6 yards around the left side to make it 21-0.

Plummer's 40-yard scramble — the longest run from scrimmage in Plummer's career and the longest ever by a Denver quarterback — helped set up Jason Elam's 20-yard field goal late in the second quarter for a 24-0 lead.

Mike Anderson, playing most of the second and third periods after Clinton Portis aggravated a bruised sternum, went 44 yards on a cutback run to the 1 and scored on the next play, making it 31-0 early in the third quarter.

"We made some great plays early and took them out of their game plan," Broncos coach Mike Shanahan said.

"Jake made a couple plays in there scrambling that were big-time plays. I thought he played exceptional. And our defense played spectacular the entire game."

Plummer was 14-of-21 for 197 yards and two TDs with no interceptions.

"It's been awhile since we've played with this kind of fire and chemistry," Sharpe said. "It goes back to the '97 and '98 seasons when we won Super Bowls. You can just sense that we've got something special going right now."

Marlins extend wild-card lead over Phillies

ATLANTA (AP) — The Florida Marlins are heading home in better position than they expected.

Derrek Lee homered and drove in four runs. Mark Redman pitched seven strong innings and Florida beat the Atlanta Braves 6-3 Monday night to extend its lead in the NL wild-card race.

The Marlins are a game ahead of Philadelphia, entering a crucial three-game series with the Phillies on Tuesday night.

"It's good to be a game up," Lee said. "That's what we were shooting for coming into this game."

Actually, the Marlins figured they would be one game behind, but Philadelphia lost two of three last weekend to Cincinnati. The Phillies were off Monday.

"We were expecting the Phillies to sweep," Redman said. "To be up a game on them going into this series is a real pick-me-up for the team."

In other NL games, it was San Francisco 6, Houston 3; and San Diego 9, Los Angeles 5. Houston dropped into a tie with the Chicago Cubs for the NL Central lead, while the Dodgers' playoff hopes took a blow.

Los Angeles fell 3 1/2 games behind Florida in the wild-card race. The Marlins are two games ahead of Houston and Chicago.

"This is the position we wanted to be in," said Juan Pierre, who sparked Florida with a pair of bunt singles. "We control our own destiny."

Florida split a four-game series with the Braves, who already clinched the NL East. After playing Philadelphia, the Marlins close the season at Pro Player Stadium with three games against the last-place New York Mets.

The game in Atlanta was played on a damp, dreary night before an announced crowd of 17,345 — the smallest in Turner Field history.

The game began in a mist that quickly developed into rain. Florida loaded the bases against Mike Hampton (14-8) without getting a ball out of the infield. Luis Castillo led off with a walk before Pierre and Ivan Rodriguez reached on consecutive bunt singles.

Lee lined a run-scoring single to left, giving the Marlins a 1-0 lead and leaving the bases loaded. But with a 4-0 count on Miguel Cabrera, umpires called for the tarp to begin a 53-minute rain delay.

When play resumed, Cabrera took another ball, then lined a two-run single to right.

Florida doubled its lead in the second. Castillo and Pierre singled — the latter on a perfectly placed bunt down the third-base line — before Lee came up with two outs.

Hampton left a 2-0 fastball over the plate and Lee launched his 31st homer deep into the left-field seats, giving the Marlins a 6-0 lead. He now has 88 RBIs, surpassing his previous career high of 86 last season.

WAY TO GO ... Derrek Lee (25) celebrates with Marlins pitcher Ugueth Urbina after defeating the Atlanta 6-3 Monday. Florida leads Philadelphia by one game for the NL wild-card heading into the start of a crucial three-game series tonight in Miami.

No Bull: Petrino gives USF plenty to think about

By CHRIS DUNCAN
AP Sports Writer

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — By design, Louisville coach Bobby Petrino is giving South Florida plenty to think about leading up to their Oct. 4 game in Tampa. Petrino has said the Cardinals' first four games are merely tune-ups for their Conference USA opener. As each game passes, South Florida's coaches have more of Louisville's offensive weapons to watch on film.

Nine different Cardinals made catches in Saturday's 42-14 win over UTEP. Joshua Tinch had a game-high five, but he's only the team's third-leading receiver with nine. J.R. Russell, who had six catches in the 30-20 victory over Syracuse two weeks ago, has 12 receptions this season. Broderick Clark, who caught six passes in the opening 40-24 win at Kentucky, has 11.

"It's kind of rotated now," Petrino said at his weekly news conference on Monday. "Broderick had the most catches in the Kentucky game, J.R. at Syracuse and then Tinch, which is a good thing to have happen."

The offensive distribution doesn't stop there.

Eric Shelton, who topped 100 yards in Louisville's first two victories, had a season-low 29 rushing yards against UTEP. But backup Lionel Gates rushed for 56 yards and a touchdown, and nine different Cardinals had carries, including 6-foot-5, 350-pound offensive lineman Kurt Quarterman.

WAITING FOR WORD ... Judges of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals listen to oral arguments in San Francisco Monday. The 11 federal judges could decide the date of the California's on-again, off-again recall election during a hearing on Monday.

Calif. awaits recall ruling

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Pro and anti-recall forces held their breath as a federal appeals court mulled arguments on whether to hold the vote next month, each side hoping they had convinced at least six judges needed for a majority.

The judges of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals on Monday sharply questioned lawyers for both California and the ACLU, with proponents of the Oct. 7 timetable saying the risk of missed votes was acceptable and opponents arguing it constituted an "unlawful election."

A court spokeswoman said a ruling was expected this morning.

The election will determine the fate of Gov. Gray Davis, a Democrat who has been dogged by his handling of the state's ailing economy. Lt. Gov. Cruz Bustamante is running as a fallback candidate if voters oust Davis, and Republicans Arnold Schwarzenegger and state Sen. Tom McClintock are also running among the 135 candidates vying for Davis' job.

The American Civil Liberties

Union wants the election postponed until six counties can install new voting machines so that 40 percent of California voters will not have to use the infamous punch card ballots that tarnished the 2000 presidential election.

The ACLU contends that minorities may be more prone to have their votes discarded because the six counties have higher percentages of minorities than California as a whole. Recall proponents said a postponement would be unfair to voters who have already cast absentee ballots.

Judges Alex Kozinski and Johnnie B. Rawlinson challenged Charles Diamond, a lawyer for a pro-recall group, to explain just how error-prone a county's votes can be before it violates the Constitution. "We cannot value one person's vote over another," Rawlinson said.

If one out of every 10 votes doesn't count, Kozinski said, is that "close enough for government work?"

"If it was 50 percent I think we'd want to take a searching look,"

Diamond conceded. Still, he stressed, "You don't stop everybody from voting if some of the people who do vote may have their votes counted erroneously."

But Judge Richard C. Tallman expressed concern about the nearly 615,000 absentee ballots that Californians already have cast.

"The real point, I think, is it's an unlawful election," said Harvard University scholar Laurence Tribe, who argued for the Democrats in the Florida dispute that reached the Supreme Court in 2000.

The hearing was the result of a ruling last week by a three-judge panel of the 9th Circuit that postponed the gubernatorial election, perhaps until March.

The full court later decided to reconsider, setting up Monday's hearing.

The 11 judges could either uphold the three-judge panel's ruling that postponed the vote or overturn the decision, reinstating the Oct. 7 date.

The losing side could then appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

BY JACQUELINE BIGAR

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Wednesday, Sept. 24, 2003:
You have the potential for an excellent year if you just go with the flow. If you rebel against others' styles — promise — you will run into trouble. You might want to keep a journal to give you a better perspective. You will gain a lot of insight as a result. Your career grows in importance, at least to you. You might opt to work very hard to achieve your long-term goals. Opportunities knock on your door, but perhaps not in the obvious way. You are protected from any major problems. If you are single, check out romantic opportunities with care. Someone might not be as emotionally available as you previously thought. If you are attached, schedule plenty of time alone together. Your relationship will grow as a result. VIRGO reads you cold.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have:
5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ Pace yourself, with an eye to completion. You might need to deal with a matter head-on right now. Excellent communication helps clear the air. Pressure builds involving distant relatives and a potential trip. Tonight: Take a night just for yourself.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★ For the most part, others delight in your imagination, though a close associate might have a bone to pick with you. Express your creativity and ability to problem-solve. You find answers where others could easily toss their hands in the air. Tonight: Go for a midweek break.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★ Try another approach with a family member if your normal way doesn't work. Finding answers could be difficult with this person, who specializes in tossing obstacles in your way. Don't back off on a budgetary decision. Tonight: Happy at home.
CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ When you speak your mind, you always stand a strong chance of a hard reaction, whether you like it or not. You might not be thrilled by what you hear, but letting others know that you're absolutely serious is critical. Tonight: Stop in at a favorite spot.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★ Handle finances with a firm hand.

You might not know what needs to happen within a relationship, especially as this person could act very strangely out of the blue. Hang out and observe what might be happening. Tonight: Your treat.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ Your subtlety might blow away with the wind when you want to make a point and drive a hard bargain. You might not feel comfortable with a loved one's or friend's emphasis. You also might not be able to turn this situation around. Tonight: Smiles melt more resistance than many other ways or manipulation.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★ Take your time, especially in the face of a difficult and demanding boss. You might not be comfortable with what comes down your path. Kick back rather than make any grandiose statements. Follow your instincts, please. Tonight: Get some extra R and R.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★ Aim for more of what you want. A unique opportunity is heading your way that could toss the status quo. You might not feel 100 percent secure in taking a risk. Get past a case of the nerves and move into a new dimension. Tonight: Where your friends are.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ Others look to you to take the lead. You could be a bit shaky and somewhat out of control. Still, remain confident and follow a strong path. You know what you want. Don't hesitate at the last moment. Tonight: Burn the midnight oil.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ You might want to defer to someone else. Seek out many opinions, and you'll inevitably come up with successful answers. Tossing around solutions and brainstorming brings the kind of ideas you like. Tonight: Rent a movie.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★ Deal with others and their brilliant ideas. Your tendency to play devil's advocate puts a hole or two in your thinking. Don't get too caught up in your goals; look at what is good for everyone. Tonight: Togetherness is the theme.
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ Consider your options more carefully. What might feel good to someone hits a discordant cord for someone else. Laugh and relax with the moment. You find that someone really does have a great idea. Encourage this person. Tonight: Go along with another's ideas.

DR. GOTT

DEAR DR. GOTT: It seems that your readers who are grandparents are often concerned about their grandchildren's health.

PETER GOTT, M.D.

ported to the local hospital and admitted. That fact cannot be shared with anybody, including Irma.

DEAR READER: You are absolutely on the money and I'm glad you wrote. My generic advice to "talk with the pediatrician" was over-simplified Moreover, the new federal Health Insurance Portability & Accountability Act (HIPAA) specifically forbids the disclosure of medical information, except in special circumstances or with a patient's signed consent.

For example, spouses are not privy to their partners' medical data without special consent. So, if Harry and Irma (who have been happily married for 50 years) are my patients and I'm treating Harry for hypertension, and his wife calls me on the phone to learn of his recent blood pressure reading (he forgot it), I must refuse to share that or any other health information until Harry has signed a release.

Think that's bad? Here's another scenario.

While on vacation in an unfamiliar city, Harry was playing golf one Sunday morning and suffered a stroke that left him in a coma. He was trans-

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: Time is the enemy when a child is abducted. To help in the search, communities must mobilize quickly.

AMBER Alert was named to honor the memory of 9-year-old Amber Hagerman, who was abducted and murdered in Arlington, Texas, seven years ago.

Outraged following her brutal murder, the community was determined to fight back. One day, during a local talk radio show, some listeners called in and suggested that radio stations use the Emergency Alert System to warn the public about abductions in the same way they do tornadoes.

In 2001, the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children (NCMEC) launched a campaign to roll out the AMBER Alert program across America. At that time, there were only 27 such programs in the United States.

Today, the AMBER program (which stands for America's Missing: Broadcast Emergency Response) has become a successful partnership between law enforcement agencies and radio and television stations to activate emergency bulletins to the public when a child is abducted and believed to be in danger.

I hope you will engage your readers to promote this worthy program in their communities.

ERNE ALLEN, PRESIDENT, NCMEC

parents should do to better safeguard their children:

1. Keep a complete description of your child on hand.

2. Update it by taking color photographs of your child every six months.

3. Keep copies of your child's fingerprints — prepared by law enforcement.

4. Keep a sample of your child's DNA, such as several strands of hair.

5. Know where your child's medical records are located.

6. Have your dentist prepare and maintain dental charts for your child.

IF YOUR CHILD GOES MISSING:

1. Immediately report your child to your local law enforcement agency.

2. Ask the law enforcement agency to enter your child into the National Crime Information Center (NCIC) Missing Persons File.

3. Limit access to your home until law enforcement arrives and has the opportunity to collect possible evidence.

4. Give law enforcement investigators all the information you have on your child, including fingerprints, photographs, complete description and the facts and circumstances related to the disappearance.

5. Call NCMEC at 1-800-THE LOST (1-800-843-5678).

Readers, more safety information can be obtained in "Personal Safety for Children — A Guide for Parents" by visiting the NCMEC Web site: www.missingkids.com. It is available in English or Spanish.

The bidding: West North East South
3 Pass Pass 3 NT
Opening lead — seven of spades.

Assume you've reached three notrump on the bidding shown and West leads a spade to East's jack, which you win with the king. You can now count eight sure tricks, and your only chance for a ninth lies in the club suit.

In isolation, the percentage play in clubs would be to cash the A-K, playing for the queen to fall in accordance with the adage "eight ever, nine never." But considering West's pre-emptive three-spade opening, which almost surely is based on a seven-card suit, the odds no longer favor cashing the A-K of clubs, since West is now much more likely to have started with a singleton or void in clubs. Because of this, you might decide to lead a club to dummy's king at trick two, planning to finesse against East for the queen.

Unfortunately, this seemingly rational conclusion would fail in the actual case, and you would go down one after East showed out on the second club. You could then claim bad luck, but a more accurate assessment would be bad play.

Before committing yourself to which way to tackle the club suit, you should first gather all the information you possibly can about West's holdings in hearts and diamonds. You do this by cashing the A-K-Q of diamonds and A-K of hearts. One possibility is that West will follow to all five leads, revealing that he has at most one club.

But in the actual deal, West turns up with just two diamonds and one heart, leaving him with three clubs. It is then a simple matter to cash the club ace and take the marked finesse against West's queen to finish with 11 tricks.

Murray students return from Mars mission

BY JOHN WRIGHT
Staff Writer

For most teenagers, summertime means just one thing ... getting away from school. And for most of this summer, Murray High School seniors Haley Hart and Ryan Cobb did engage in the normal type activities for this age — swimming, attending church camps, playing sports, hanging out, ect.

However, when the first part of August came and school officially opened at MHS, the two students were, ironically, already in school, though not in Murray.

They were involved with International Space School at the Johnson Space Center in Houston, Texas, also the home of the National Aeronautics & Space Administration (NASA).

"The week before (leaving on July 27), we had to start doing homework for school in Houston. We were getting assignments to do over the Internet, so that was interesting," said Hart, who returned with Cobb on Aug. 12, exactly a week after classes at MHS had started. "We had school from 8 in the morning until 5 in the afternoon when we were down there (nearly two hours more class time than at MHS)."

No need worrying about these two, though. All they did when they returned home was put on their learning armor and play catch-up for what they had missed while in Houston. Both are hovering around the 4.00 GPA mark when it comes to grade point average with schedules that include advance placement classes in subjects like French, biology, calculus, English and European history.

"They're exemplary," said MHS principal Teresa Speed, adding that their ability to overcome the deficit created by missing the first week is not surprising. "We knew they'd do well under that type of pressure. They weren't going to be bothered too much by that. That's why they went in the first place."

This was not a camping trip on which Cobb and Hart went either. They were the only two American students out of a lineup of 40 hailing from around 15 different countries whose sole purpose was to show what they could do in simulated situations relating to space exploration.

Hart was included in a project where her group tried to construct a plan for actually living on the planet Mars, part of a four-part mission integration assignment where other groups tried to determine the best way to travel there, work there and logistics. Cobb's assignment was to pick a crew for a mission, requiring a great deal of time in getting to know his foreign candidates.

In addition, Cobb and Hart both received a tour of the space center and attended a seminar with Franklin Chang-Diaz, a veteran of seven space shuttle flights and director of NASA's Advanced Space Propulsion Laboratory, detailing the progress of NASA's plasma propulsion system. Hopes are, this system can lead to manned missions to Mars in much faster time than it would take the shuttle.

It was also while they were in Houston that talks of restarting the shuttle program began getting more vocal. NASA has said it would like to send a shuttle into space in early 2004, but nothing has been determined yet.

"I've always been kind of interested (in the subject of space exploration)," said Cobb, whose interest is understandable, being that his father—Steve—came close to becoming an astronaut several years ago. "So, I jumped on this chance. I just figured this would be one of the coolest things I'd ever done, and it was."

"I'd do the whole school again, if I could."

Both Cobb and Hart would be welcomed back by the school's administrators, too, it appears. In an e-mailed message to Speed, the coordinator of the ISS, Robert Alexander, gave rave reviews of the MHS pair, the first students from MHS to be included in the ISS and whose performance seems to have ensured MHS' involvement in the program for next year as well.

"Each perfectly fit the criteria," said Alexander in his message. "They were both exemplary students and represented their home of Murray, Ky., very well. In addition, we will be asking that Ryan and Haley be involved in the mentoring and selection of next year's students, as well hope to encourage continued involvement from our alumni."

That selection process, with which Speed said Cobb and Hart will have a big part, is expected to begin shortly, lasting until December. Candidates will be asked to write an essay explaining why they should be selected to participate in next year's ISS, along with having the necessary intangibles...solid grades, strong communication skills and an ability to get along well with others.

areas. His mother is a graduate of MHS; while his grandparents were both staffers at Murray State University. That is not the only tie NASA has with Murray either.

Gordon Cooper, one of the first seven astronauts chosen for missions by NASA in 1959 who piloted the 1965 Gemini 5 mission that set a flight endurance record at the time was a student and football player at Murray High School in the '40s.

"When we had an alumni reunion recently, that's when we discovered that. We'd had a poster sent to us, saying he had been here," Speed said. "To think, he went to school here in Murray. That reminds me of an old proverb I heard once: 'Life's a lot smaller than you think. The circles you travel, they intertwine so rapidly.'"

ROCKET POWER ... "For every action, there is an equal and opposite reaction." This is Newton's third law of motion formally stated. Calloway County High School student's in Beth Morehead's physics class demonstrated this law by racing balloon rockets. Using only balloons, paper clips, and straws, students made rockets attached to fishing line hanging across the room. On the signal, students released air from the balloons to send the rocket flying across the room. The action would be air blowing out of the balloon. The equal and opposite reaction would be the balloon flying across the room.

Presentation helps students understand bullies

Special to the Ledger

The eighth graders come out of library slowly and quietly, not with the gabble of conversation and laughter that usually characterizes their short minutes spent changing classes. Some are stone-faced, others are near tears; if they talk, it's in whispers, to close friends.

"Pretty emotional," one boy murmurs, as he passes a teacher.

Their hour-long session in the library hasn't been spent researching, looking through books or surfing through sites on the Internet. Instead, one group at a time, boys separate from girls, the students have been listening to a presentation by Allan Beane, a former Murray High and Murray State teacher who has become somewhat of an authority on bullying behaviors, about the bad things kids can do to each other and about the horrible things that can happen because of it.

"Every school day," he told them, "students are teased, intimidated, harassed, and hurt by other students. Bullying is a big problem. We need to put a stop to it."

He made sure they knew bullying meant more than the caricature of beating up a kid for his lunch money—and it's worse than just teasing.

"It's any behavior that hurts other people. It can be physical, emotional, and verbal, but most of it is verbal."

He shared some facts: about one in every seven students is either a bully or a victim, he told them, and bullying affects about five million students in the U.S. And he wanted them to recognize that bullying is more than teasing, and it's not a normal part of growing up. Bullies can leave lasting scars on their victims.

And to make sure they got the message, he shared true stories about kids who had been affected by bullying—several to the point of suicide. Among them was the suicide of his own son.

"If I have reached any one of you," he said, "if I have helped any child today, then I have brought honor and purpose to my son's life."

A flock of kids gather around Dr. Beane after the others have left. They're the ones who are feel that they are bullied, that other children pick on them, mistreat them. What do we do? they want to know. He doesn't give them sympathy, he doesn't give them platitudes. "There are techniques," he says, and he tells them just what to do.

But haven't there always been bullies? Isn't it human nature? Bullies, and their victims, have been around forever. What's new, Dr. Beane points out in his book, The Bully Free Classroom, is our attitude toward bullying.

What used to be accepted as "kids will be kids" (or "boys will be boys," though girls are bullies, too) has changed. In our more enlightened century, we know that bullying is serious. Young bullies grow up to be abusive adults. Young victims get hurt, sometimes very seriously.

And it's not just the bullies and victims who are affected. People around them are distracted, intimidated, and upset.

Murray Middle School's new assistant principal, Tawyna Hunter, invited Dr. Beane to make his presentation because she'd seen first-hand the affect he'd had on students in Graves County, where she used to teach.

"Bullying behavior can affect the whole school, not just the individuals who are bullied," she said. "It's a bad atmosphere for a school. It prevents students from learning, and teachers from teaching. Dr. Beane's philosophy can give all of us, kids, parents, and teachers, to tools we need to make sure it doesn't happen."

She hopes to set up workshops for parents and teachers too, so they can learn how to counteract bullying behavior.
