Controversy in the COMMONWEALTH

Conner to press ahead with lawsuits against Patton

By CHARLES WOLFE
Associated Press Writer

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — With a criminal charge mostly behind her, Tina Conner and her attorney say they plan to press ahead with lawsuits against Conner's former lover, Gov. Paul Patton.

Conner said she also would testify against Patton at an ethics hearing and might land a book deal.

Conner pleaded guilty to mail fraud in U.S. District Court on Thursday. She had been scheduled to stand trial beginning Tuesday. In exchange for a guilty plea, prosecutors agreed to recommend probation instead of a prison sentence.

Judge Joseph M. Hood set sentencing for Jan. 8. Conner could get up to a year in prison under federal sentencing guidelines, but her attorney, Thomas E. Clay of Louisville, said he expected Hood to grant probation "barring some unforeseen circumstance."

After that, they will turn their attention to one or more lawsuits against Patton, Clay said. "We're going to get more actively involved" on the civil side, he said.

In a 25-minute arraignment, Conner, 41, admitted to Hood that she engaged in a fraud to get her former husband's construction company certified by the Kentucky

Transportation Cabinet for contracts that were supposed to be reserved for companies headed by women and minorities.

The application for status as a "disadvantaged business enterprise" listed Tina Conner as the company's operator. Conner claims Patton and his transportation secretary, Jim Codell, pressured bureaucrats in the agency to approve it.

Outside the court, Conner was indignant that no one else had been charged with a crime.

"This is a chilling message to whistle-blowers," she told reporters. "I have accepted responsibility for my actions," she said, but "other people that were involved with me ... obviously had something to hide."

Conner claims Patton and Codell pressured workers in Codell's agency to approve the application for ST Construction, which eventually got a single contract that cost the government about $30,000, according to the plea agreement.

Patton acknowledged the affair, which ended his chance of running against Republican U.S. Sen. Jim Bunning in 2004. He denied misusing his power and said he only asked Codell to have ST Construction's application reviewed. Patton also said the governor is a proper intermediary between a constituent and bureaucrats.

Conner said Patton's denials were "malarkey." She said she told Patton that Transportation Cabinet workers were questioning the application. She said Patton later told her he had spoken with Codell, and her problem would be resolved.

Two cabinet officials who oversaw the disadvantaged-business program — Norris Beckley and Ron Derricks — were "on the receiving end of the pressure," Conner said. Both men were fired following an

Non-district contract issue tackled in special session

By JOHN WRIGHT
Staff Writer

With the regular monthly meeting being moved back to the middle of this month, the Calloway County Board of Education decided to hold a special session Thursday night to handle a few issues.

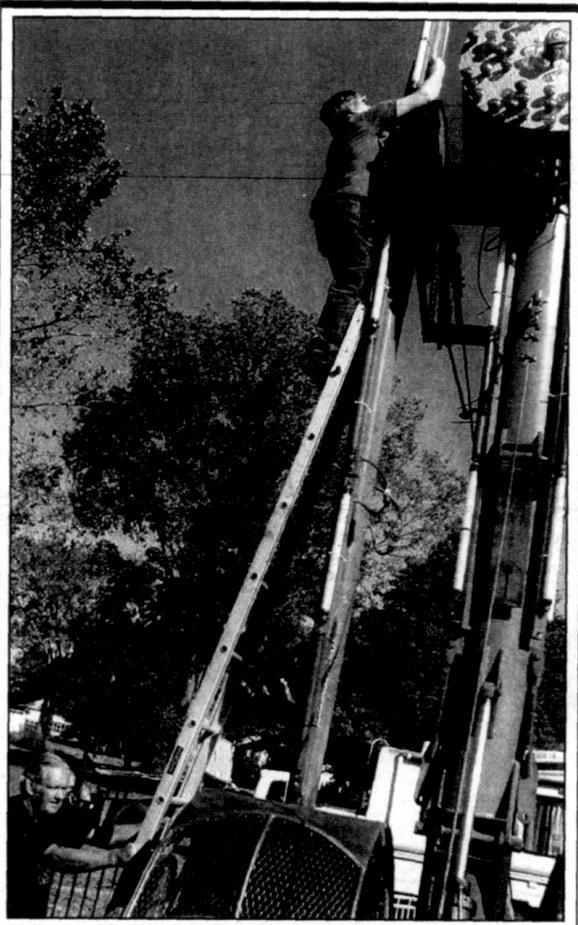

Taking the lion's share of the attention were five student disciplinary hearings.

First up, though, was a discussion about non-district student contracts, pertaining to students who live in Calloway County but go to other places for school. The matter is an annual item, but timing caused board members to feel it necessary to cover the issue yesterday.

"With us moving our regular meeting back to the 16th of this month, we run the risk of other districts having acted on this before then. Plus, the deadline for getting these contracts signed is Nov. 1, so we needed to get this settled," said Randy McCallon, Calloway's director for pupil personnel, citing next week's fall break as the reason for quicken action.

"If (other districts) had already had their boards approve of this, and we hadn't, then they'd have to go and have special meetings, too."

MSU joins coalition to stress state's role in educating students

By KRISTIN TAYLOR
Staff Writer

The state government's most important role is to educate Kentucky residents, said Murray State University President Dr. F. King Alexander.

A newly formed coalition of public schools, state universities, advocates for children and education associations will remind Kentucky legislators of that responsibility.

Murray State is among the 35 groups who will campaign for increased education funding at all levels as one entity, called Partners for Kentucky's Future. The group announced its mission Wednesday.

"Partners was created to remind Kentucky to not forget about their children and students," Alexander said via phone Thursday morning. "As public educators we are very concerned about the decisions that will be made in the future about the educational opportunities and the quality of those opportunities that we're going to be providing to our children.

"Often times decisions are made with little regard to their voices and concerns."

The coalition will concentrate on drumming up support among the public and General Assembly for more education money. Education funding made up 62.5 percent of the budget in 1990 but has decreased to 57.9 percent for this fiscal year.

Historically, postsecondary and K-12 educators have competed for funding. Alexander said uniting for this cause is important because education as a whole is losing dollars to the concerns of special interest groups.

"Anytime we can unite with a common mission, particularly this mission, it will help us fight special interest groups that are increasingly taking over government interests," he said.

The Partners for Kentucky's Future Web site provides information from Kentucky Long-Term Policy Research Center that supports the coalition's philosophy education is the answer to other social problems.

— Dr. F. King Alexander
MSU President

For example, criminal justice costs are less for men with bachelor's degrees than those who dropped out of high school. Education decreases welfare costs, specifically the money spent for food stamp benefits by educated women. Lifetime earnings reflect educational levels. And better-educated people pay more taxes.

"The constitution for the commonwealth of Kentucky says there is one obligation, and that's education," Alexander said. "Our group wants to remind people of that and be an advocate for children."

Priest says focus on faith in midst of controversy

By KRISTIN TAYLOR
Staff Writer

A picture of Jesus hangs in David Simmons' office at St. John's Episcopal Church on Main Street with a message that mirrors a philosophy the priest shares with his congregation: "He died to take away your sins. Not your mind."

As the denomination deals with controversy nationally and internationally about the confirmation of a gay bishop in New Hampshire, Simmons encourages people to remember the difference between doctrine and discipline.

"Doctrine is really what is important — salvation, Jesus' ascension, the virgin birth,"

Simmons said in an interview Thursday. "Ethics is something that comes out of that. It is not something that has been unified throughout Christian history."

Last month, Episcopalians in New Hampshire chose Gene Robinson as their next bishop in a local election. He has lived with his male partner for more than 13 years and worked in the diocese for nearly 15 years.

"They were not choosing a gay man," Simmons said. "They were choosing a man they've known for quite some time."

Still, the bishop's confirmation has caused heated discussion among Episcopal churches and associations throughout the world. Simmons compared the current debate with the denomination's prayer book revision in 1979 when church leaders changed the Elizabethan language to a modern translation and the ordination of women in the 1970s.

"This is a big issue. I'm not going to try to play it down," said Simmons, 32, who has been pastor at St. John's for six months. "The question becomes rather is it better to stay together and disagree or split. Both staying together and splitting are possible."

The American Anglican Council will meet next week to decide whether to break from the denomination because of Robinson. A conservation group, the council was formed when the Episcopal Church was debating whether women should be ordained in the denomination, Simmons said, adding it is not an official body of the church.

Later in the month, the Anglican Communion will meet in London to prevent their association from splitting over the gay bishop and other homosexuality-related issues. The Anglican Communion represents churches that trace their roots to the Church of England. The Episcopal Church is the

Effort started to protect Ky. military bases

FRANKFORT — Legislative leaders today announced that the General Assembly will retain the services of a Washington D.C.-based consulting team to offer recommendations designed to protect Kentucky's military installations from the U.S. military's next round of base closures in 2005.

Senate President David L. Williams, R-Burkesville, stated, "The continued presence of military bases in Kentucky is not only culturally important but economically necessary. We must do everything in our power to continue the long tradition of Kentucky military bases and families."

House Speaker Jody Richards, D-Bowling Green, stated, "Kentucky has a long and valued history serving as home to key military bases. That relationship has mutually benefited our state and our country. It is of the utmost importance that we maintain that on-going relationship through the next round of base closures."

Rhoads/Weber Shandwick Government Relations & Public Private Solutions Group, Inc. will report military base assessments to state leaders as they attempt to ensure that the Base Realignment and Closure (BRAC) round that Congress approved for 2005 does not affect Kentucky disproportionately hard.

BRAC 2005 is aimed at cutting excess capacity in military installations across the nation. The next couple years will be a critical time for states and communities to make clear the military value of their installations. By moving early and enlisting expert help, state lawmakers hope to protect one of the main players in Kentucky's economy. The state's military installations represent a $4 billion business. The military is the fifth largest payroll among Kentucky industries and is considered the largest employer in the commonwealth that has the option of moving its operations elsewhere.

Decisions made in BRAC 2005 could have serious repercussions for Kentucky. In the four previous rounds of BRAC, 451 military installations, including two in Kentucky, were closed, representing a 21 percent reduction in base structure. Previous Kentucky force reductions and closures resulted in direct losses of 13,500 positions and $235 million in payroll since 1988.

There are indications that the next round of BRAC could be the most significant yet. Some say the easier decisions on base closings were made during the previous BRAC rounds. And there are signs that the next BRAC round could be roughly as large as the prior four BRAC rounds combined.

That is one reason lawmakers decided to take proactive steps to ensure that the military value of Kentucky's bases can be clearly demonstrated. Rhoads | Weber Shandwick Government Relations & Public Private Solutions Group, Inc. was chosen for the $189,975 contract due to the team's significant BRAC expertise and experience in working with Kentucky installations.

Bunning pushes legislation for preservation of Calloway fort

WASHINGTON — During a hearing Thursday in the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee's National Parks Subcommittee, U.S. Sen. Jim Bunning, R-Ky., discussed his bill, S.524, to preserve Fort Heiman.

Deby Spencer, Vice President of West Kentucky Corporation in Bowling Green, testified at the hearing in support of the Bunning bill. Also attending the hearing in support of the legislation was Judge Executive Larry Whitaker from McLean County.

"Fort Heiman, along with its sister forts, Fort Henry and Fort Donelson, played an integral role in the conclusion of the Civil War," Bunning told the subcommittee. "Sited on the Tennessee and Cumberland rivers, Fort Heiman controlled the flow of materials and supplies from the South. When General Ulysses S. Grant and the Union forces captured and occupied the fort in February of 1862, the two major transportation routes for the Confederacy, the Tennessee and Cumberland rivers, became Union highways for the movement of supplies and troops into the South."

"Yet despite this considerable role, Fort Heiman is rarely noted or remembered for its historical significance in the Civil War. Additionally, parts of Fort Heiman are in danger of being lost to real estate development, road construction, and environmental damage," Bunning added. "Without the protections this bill will afford, the United States will lose an integral part of its history and culture."

"Aside from the economic and tourism boon the preservation of Fort Heiman will bring to Kentucky, I believe that the preservation of Fort Heiman as a historical and cultural artifact is essential to the preservation of our heritage and sense of pride in our community. It is my hope this bill will encourage just that."

Similar efforts are underway in the House of Representatives, led by First District Congressman Ed Whitfield, R-Ky.

U.S. branch of the communion with about 77 million members.

"For some people — a small number of people — this homosexuality issue has been a crisis," Simmons said. "But for most people as Episcopalians, it's just secondary. We unite in the teachings of Jesus Christ. The Episcopal Church has always allowed us to disagree as long as we agree on core teaching."

The Episcopal Church outlines scripture readings for priests to use in their homilies throughout the denomination, so Simmons said he does not have much choice about what topics to discuss.

Recently, readings have been from the gospel of Mark, which Simmons said gives him an opportunity to emphasize the value of doctrine.

"In those readings, Jesus is saying 'I am the way, don't put stumbling blocks in front of my children,'" Simmons said.

St. John's Episcopal Church is part of the Kentucky Diocese, which includes this part of the state is headquartered in Louisville. The other diocese in the state is based in Lexington. While Robinson was elected by Episcopalians in New Hampshire, the local diocese's bishop and six deputies voted for his confirmation.

Simmons said the church's confirmation process is more like a jury than a legislative body with bishops and the clergy and lay deputies voting their conscience, not necessarily as representatives of the local congregations.

"Those who voted no had to believe with all doubt the confirmation would be a mistake," he said.

While the heart of the controversy remains in New Hampshire, some Episcopalians locally have been affected. Simmons said some St. John's church members have found other places to worship while other people in the community have been attracted to the church's open stance.

"It's hard to tell at this point what the ramifications will be," he said. "We're divided on the issue. It's not just our denomination. This struggle is going on elsewhere in the Catholic Church and even evangelical churches whether they want to admit it."

Simmons said he remains hopeful people will remember being a Christian goes beyond policies within a denomination. "For some people, this is a challenge to their faith. It is part of their core beliefs," he said. "For others they believe the church will work it out."

he added. "We feel like we've got a good relationship with those other districts, so we didn't want anything getting in the way of that."

Calloway has an agreement the Murray Independent, Graves County and Marshall County districts, pertaining to students who live in those areas and come to Calloway schools and vice versa. During last month's board meeting, the discussion covered the students who live in those other districts and attend at Calloway. Contracts must be handled before daily attendance money for the appropriate district can be released.

Only one incident caused the student disciplinary hearings to be necessary but due to an unusually large amount of testimony, they lasted longer than usual. The board did not adjourn until around 11 p.m.

In the first case, no decision was reached by the board Thursday. That hearing will be continued during the Oct. 16 meeting at Southwest Calloway Elementary School. In Case No. 2, the discipline administered by the principal was affirmed; no further action was taken. In Case No. 3, the student was placed in the alternative center for a specified time.

In Case No. 4, the recommendation of the school was affirmed, and the student was assigned to the day treatment program and will stay there until the conclusion of day treatment's school year or the completion of the program, whichever is longer.

A fifth case was not heard because the student has moved out of the district. If that student returns to the Calloway district, the student will be placed in day treatment until the board has a chance to hear the case.

Fletcher campaign to respond to Chandler Web site's 'negativity'

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Democrat Ben Chandler's new Internet site, which pokes fun of Republican nominee Ernie Fletcher, upset the congressman's campaign Thursday, and a spokesman called it "the first shot" of campaign negativity.

Fletcher spokesman Wes Irvin said the site goes too far and goes against Chandler's promise to run a positive campaign.

Fletcher

"The whole site is negative. It's got Ernie portrayed in negative ways," Irvin said. "It's everything that Ben Chandler is used to doing. It's the typical negative campaign style, and he's back at it."

The Web site was going to be formally announced next week, Chandler spokesman Mark Nickolas said. However, it points out Fletcher's congressional voting record and is not negative, Nickolas said.

"Clearly the Fletcher campaign has been craving an opportunity to attack Ben Chandler, and unfortunately they have used a factual assessment of his voting record as some motivation to go negative," Nickolas said. "If the Fletcher campaign thinks that pointing out in a matter-of-fact way the voting record of a congressman is negative, then it puzzles me what we're supposed to talk about."

Both candidates have criticized each others' political performances for weeks.

Irvin said Fletcher "is prepared" to respond.

internal investigation of the program.

Conner said that, in preparing for trial, her attorneys obtained government documents showing Patton and Codell refused to cooperate with investigators and that Codell invoked the Fifth Amendment.

Clay, her lead attorney, later said Codell was never called to a grand jury because his attorney told investigators that he would invoke the Fifth Amendment, a constitutional right to avoid self-incrimination.

Codell's attorney, William E. Johnson of Frankfort, confirmed that a subpoena was issued but that Codell never testified.

He declined further comment.

At the time of their affair, Conner, a nurse by training, was among Patton's political and patronage contacts in western Kentucky.

She had multiple business interests, including Birchtree Healthcare, a nursing home at Clinton that later went bankrupt. Conner claimed Patton turned state inspectors loose against Birchtree in retaliation for her ending their relationship.

Conner wanted to make a statement during the 25-minute arraignment, but Hood, the judge, would not permit it. He said she could make a statement at sentencing.

Conner told reporters she "simply wanted to take responsibility and tell the judge that I truly feel remorseful."

Patton declined comment on Conner's guilty plea Thursday. He has not been charged with a crime and has said he does not expect to be. But he does face administrative charges by the Executive Branch Ethics Commission, which accuses him of misusing his power.

The commission says Patton improperly intervened with the Transportation Cabinet to get a promotion for a vehicle-enforcement officer, Monty Clark, at Conner's request. A hearing on the ethics charge is scheduled Nov. 17, three weeks before Patton's term ends. Conner said she would testify in the ethics case.

Conner sued Patton last year in Franklin County Circuit Court on sexual harassment and other charges. A judge dismissed all the allegations but one — that Patton engaged in outrageous conduct — and the charge is pending.

Clay said he would expand that lawsuit or file a new suit to press Conner's claim that Patton caused state inspectors to run her nursing home out of business.

Iraq search turns up no weapons of mass destruction so far

WASHINGTON (AP) — The initial report of U.S. weapons hunter David Kay, which says he found no weapons of mass destruction in Iraq but possible evidence of covert programs to make them, drew immediate criticism from those who question whether the war was justified.

Kay insisted he needed another six months to nine months of searching before he would feel confident enough to issue any conclusions about Iraq's weapons program. The Bush administration is asking for $600 million to continue the search, according to congressional officials.

"We have not found at this point actual weapons," Kay said after briefing lawmakers behind closed doors. "It does not mean we've concluded there are no actual weapons."

In a statement to several congressional committees Thursday, he only made one strong finding, that the regime of Iraqi President Saddam Hussein was actively developing missiles that exceeded range limits imposed by the United Nations.

"In addition to intent, we have found a large body of continuing activities and equipment that were not declared to the U.N. inspectors when they returned in November of last year," Kay said.

Taken together, Kay's findings do not validate most of President Bush's prewar assertions that Saddam had widespread chemical and biological weapons and programs to make more, and was developing a nuclear weapon. Kay did not address U.S. assertions about Saddam's ties to terrorist groups, particularly al-Qaida.

Critics have contended that the U.S. intelligence community made serious errors in its analysis of the threat posed by Iraq or the administration exaggerated what intelligence information it did have to persuade a skeptical world to support an invasion.

"Did we misread it, or did they simply get it wrong? Whatever the answer is, it's not a good answer," said Sen. Jay Rockefeller, D-W.Va., vice chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee.

"I'm not pleased by what I heard today," said Sen. Pat Roberts, R-Kan., the committee's chairman, "but we should be willing to adopt a wait-and-see attitude — and that's the only alternative we really have."

White House spokesman Scott McClellan said the administration was pleased with Kay's report. "This detailed interim report documents how Saddam Hussein's regime was in clear violation of U.N. Security Council Resolution 1441."

The resolution, which led to the U.S.-led invasion in March, threatened Iraq with "serious consequences" if it failed to show it had handed over or destroyed its weapons of mass destruction.

Kay said no completed missiles were found. Long-range missiles, while a bona fide threat to Saddam's neighbors, are not the sort of devices Saddam could secretly pass to a terrorist organization, as Bush so publicly feared.

Of that class of weapons — chemical, biological and nuclear — the hundreds of hunters working for Kay's Iraq Survey Group have found none. Evidence of programs to research and develop nuclear and chemical weapons is limited and uncertain.

However, Kay did say there was evidence that Iraq "focused on maintaining small, covert capabilities that could be activated quickly to surge the production of (biological weapons) agents."

To that end, he described "a clandestine network of laboratories and safehouses within the Iraqi Intelligence Service that contained equipment ... suitable for continuing (chemical and biological weapon) research." Whether the equipment was actually utilized for that purpose, Kay's report does not say.

One scientist had a single vial of botulinum toxin that could be used to make a biological weapon. Other scientists say they conducted veiled biological weapons research using benign substances and organisms as substitutes for weapons material.

Kay said the information on trailers alleged to be mobile biological weapons labs was inconclusive. Some at the CIA and Defense Intelligence Agency had previously concluded that two trailers found in Iraq were indeed part of a weapons production system; others have disputed that finding.

Kay did not directly offer an explanation of why postwar discoveries have not generally matched up with prewar assertions by the U.S. intelligence community and the Bush administration.

But he noted that Iraq was a large and dangerous country and that Saddam was skilled at hiding his weapons programs.

Around Iraq, there was plenty of evidence Saddam was hiding something, Kay said. Search teams have found smashed computers and burned documents at suspected weapons sites.

"From the information uncovered to date, it is clear that the threat Saddam presented to the region and to the world was real, growing and grave," said Rep. Porter Goss, R-Fla., chairman of the House Intelligence Committee.

Sen. Evan Bayh, D-Ind., said there were various possibilities about why weapons have not been uncovered. They included that weapons were well hidden, that they had been taken out of the country, that they had already been produced somewhere else, that Saddam had been lied to about the weapons program, or that they had been broken down.

Meanwhile, CIA Director George Tenet rejected congressional criticism that U.S. intelligence agencies used flawed methods to reach their prewar conclusions on Iraq's weapons programs.

Tenet said the intelligence findings were "honest and professional" in a letter, dated Wednesday, to Goss and Rep. Jane Harman of California, the ranking Democrat on the intelligence panel.

Tenet was responding to a Sept. 25 letter from Goss and Harman that cited "significant deficiencies" in U.S. intelligence efforts to learn about, analyze and describe Iraq's weapons programs and ties to terrorism.

The speakings will be held at 9:30 a.m. and 11 a.m. in room BB 404 on the MSU campus.

Crawford received his master's degree from the Army's School of Advanced Military Studies in Fort Leavenworth, Kan., in 1989, and served in the Army for 20 years in Hawaii, Bosnia, Kuwait, Germany, Fort Campbell, and in both Operations Desert Shield and Desert Storm before retiring in 1996.

He was recently called for service as a civilian in Iraq.

U.S. commander: Iraqi guerrillas claiming three to six American lives

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Each week in Iraq, an average of three to six Americans are dying and another 40 wounded by a foe that has become more lethal and sophisticated since the fall of Baghdad in April, the commander of coalition forces said Thursday.

U.S. soldiers are facing 15-20 attacks a day, including roadside bombs, Lt. Gen. Ricardo Sanchez said. Seven to 10 attacks a day involve small groups of fighters.

Most attacks occur in Baghdad and the surrounding Sunni Muslim stronghold to the west and north of the capital, although it's unclear whether Iraqi or foreign forces account for the majority.

"The enemy has evolved — a little bit more lethal, a little more complex, a little more sophisticated, and in some cases, a little bit more tenacious," Sanchez said.

Since May 1, when President Bush declared the end of major combat operations, 90 American soldiers have been killed by hostile fire in a low-level, guerrilla-style insurgency. A total of 314 Americans have died since the war began March 20, according to the Pentagon.

On Wednesday alone, three Americans were killed: a soldier from the 1st Armored Division who was shot while on patrol in the al-Mansour district of Baghdad; a female soldier from the 4th Infantry Division who died when a roadside bomb exploded about 300 yards from the main U.S. base in Tikrit, Saddam's hometown; and another soldier from the 4th ID, who died after a rocket-propelled grenade attack on a convoy near Samara, 60 miles north of the Iraqi capital.

While most wounded Americans are treated at two military hospitals in Iraq, those with more serious injuries are evacuated to the U.S. military hospital in Landstuhl, Germany.

Landstuhl has been receiving an average of 40 to 44 patients a day from Iraq, about 10 to 12 percent of whom are classified as having "battle injuries," said hospital spokeswoman Marie Shaw.

Since the start of the war, the hospital has treated 6,684 patients — 5,377 after May 1, she said.

Another Opinion

The following are editorials published by various newspapers in Kentucky and provided by the Associated Press. These editorials are not to be mistaken as representing a position taken by The Associated Press or the Murray Ledger & Times:

■ The Courier-Journal

Kentucky Educational Television's Bill Goodman recently urged voters to learn more about the candidates in this fall's elections:

"Attend a rally, study a candidate's Web site, volunteer to stuff envelopes," he wrote. "And if that's too tough, occasionally read the newspaper or watch a debate on television."

KET's candidate forum recently presented the three candidates for attorney general, and the advice of Goodman proved most helpful.

Two of the three candidates — Republican Jack Wood and Independent Gatewood Galbraith — stunningly advocated disregard for the laws of the nation and the state.

Galbraith, long an advocate of legalized marijuana, admitted that he routinely smokes pot, allegedly under a doctor's prescription for emphysema. Voters must wonder what kind of a doctor he sees.

Meanwhile, Wood, who alarmed leaders of his own party when he upset a better qualified candidate in the GOP primary, shamelessly attacked the laws that apply to abortion rights, posting of the Ten Commandments and capital punishment.

Wood refused to disavow a connection with right-wing zealot Frank Simon. And he showered praise on Alabama Chief Justice Roy Moore, now suspended for refusing to follow the law and remove a Ten Commandments monument he put in the court building in Montgomery.

Can Wood believe that is a model for an attorney general who is elected to defend the laws of the commonwealth and see that they are enforced?

A third candidate in the race, Democrat Greg Stumbo, made a sensible distinction on the issue of abortion, which he personally opposes. The Supreme Court says it is a woman's right, he noted, and it would not be his role to alter that.

Neither Wood nor Galbraith seems to understand the difference between the rule of law and shameless demagoguery.

Thanks to KET's forum, however, we all could watch them say it — in strikingly unforgettable words.

■ Lexington Herald-Leader

Whoever first uttered the phrase "public servant" must have known Joe Clarke or someone remarkably like him.

For 28 years as state representative, as chairman of the House Appropriations and Revenue Committee and briefly, at a time when the post demanded a person of impeccable integrity, as House speaker, Clarke served the people of Kentucky as ably as anyone in the state's history.

The respect he earned during those 28 years was reflected in the words spoken by former colleagues and friends when they learned he died last Sunday night at the age of 70. ...

House Majority Leader Greg Stumbo recalled that he once told new legislators, "If you're torn and you want to do the right thing, what's right for Kentucky, what's probably best for the state, if you want to be a statesman, then you should vote with Joe Clarke."

Clarke was all those things. He was also the person who led the legislature to assert control over the state budget process that, prior to his tenure on A&R, had been dominated by governors, and who was instrumental in passage of the Kentucky Education Reform Act and the tax increase that helped pay for it.

When a federal investigation resulted in convictions of a score of lawmakers and lobbyists, including then-House Speaker Don Blandford, his fellow representatives turned to Clarke to restore honor and integrity to the speaker's post.

Ultimately, though, this "apolitical politician" proved ill-suited for playing the political games that come with the territory of the House speaker's job and was voted out after one term.

That one setback doesn't diminish a record of outstanding service to the people of this state. He served not himself, not his district, not any special interest, but all the people of Kentucky, and he served them well for 28 years.

■ The Kentucky Post, Covington

There's a story they tell at the Kentucky National Guard Headquarters in Frankfort, and it goes like this:

Back during the winter, when a severe ice storm devastated Lexington, leaving the city without power and leaving its tree-lined streets lined with downed limbs, the Guard responded, as it does during natural disasters.

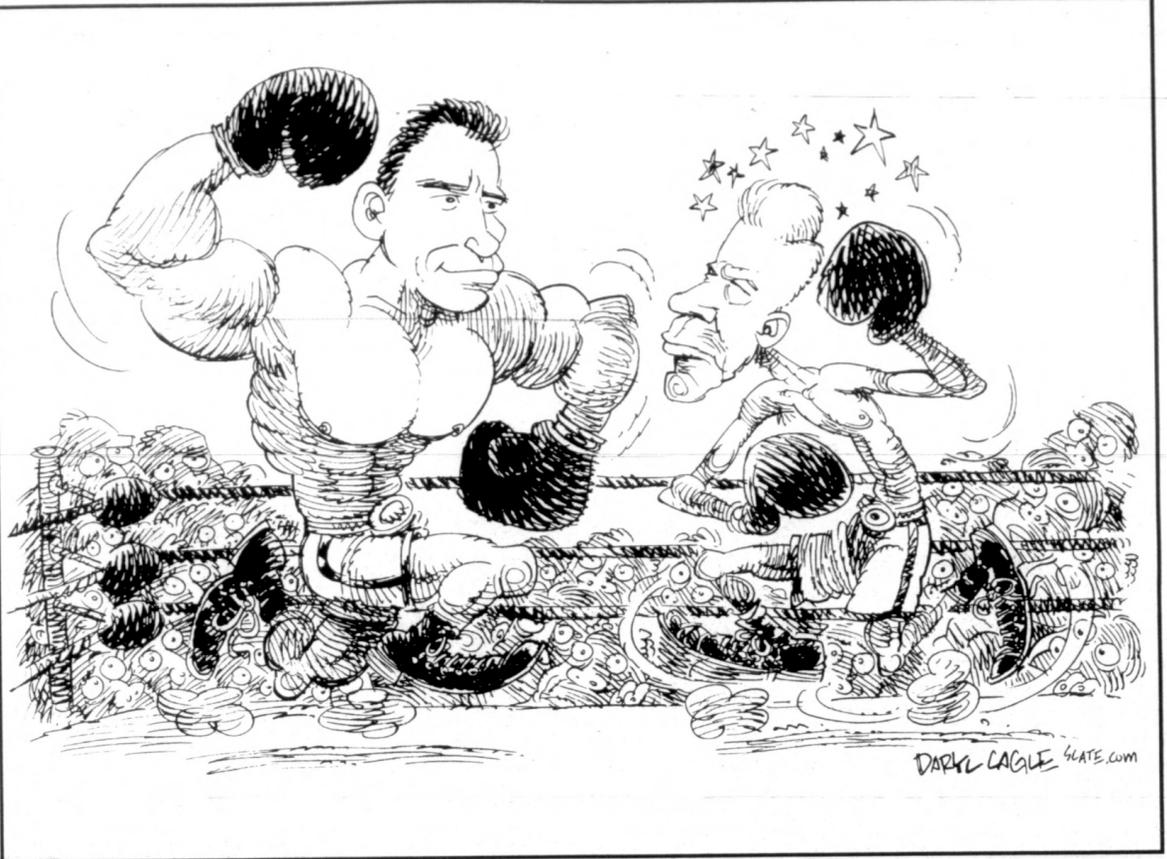

Appreciative, the residents of Lexington responded, too, bringing baked goods to the troops. Mindful that the nation was concluding one war and contemplating another, the gracious residents typically delivered their gifts with a wish, "I hope you don't have to go to Afghanistan or Iraq after this." And the typical response? "Already been."

Therein lies a fact few Kentuckians realize. Our state's contribution to the war effort has been early, extensive and, for some troops, extended. Consider:

- The Guard's commanders estimate that more than half of the 7,500 men and women in Kentucky's Air and Army National Guard have been on duty somewhere since Sept. 11, 2001.
  - The deployment is the Guard's largest since World War II.
  - Units continue to deploy, one as recently as this month.
- Remember those harsh, barren mountains in Afghanistan? Our volunteers were in harm's way there. Remember those early days of the war in Iraq, with the succession of intense firefights? Our volunteers were in harm's way there.
- Other volunteers have been to Bosnia, where stability is far from fully achieved; to other parts of Europe to provide security and support; and to military bases across the United States to keep them going strong while regular troops are away for war.
- Some have been on one deployment, only to come home for a while, then go on another.
- It's impressive dedication and sacrifice. ...

Recall an obsession for TV

By LYNN ELBER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The California recall — a combination of star vehicle, peep show and political game of chicken — has gotten unprecedented national TV coverage for a statewide election, receiving more airtime on the Big Three networks than the White House race.

From Aug. 1 through Sept. 25, the nightly newscasts on NBC, ABC and CBS devoted a total of 127 minutes to the recall, said Andrew Tyndall, who monitors TV news for his Tyndall Report newsletter. In that same period, the Democratic presidential contenders received a total of 36 minutes.

That represents unprecedented national airtime for a statewide election, Tyndall said. In 2002, the networks gave all gubernatorial races nationwide a combined 40 minutes of attention for the year.

The world is watching, too, fascinated with Austrian-born Arnold Schwarzenegger's metamorphosis from Hollywood action star to politician. "It's all people wanted to talk about," said Joel Aberbach, a political science professor at the University of California at Los Angeles who found interest high during a recent European trip.

Other elements of the race are contributing to television's fascination, including the possibility that Gov. Gray Davis could be only the second U.S. governor in more than 80 years to be recalled from office. The ballot also includes a made-for-TV cast of characters among the 135 replacement candidates, including Hustler publisher Larry Flynt, former child actor Gary Coleman and a porn star wants to tax breast implants.

"There's also a general fascination across the country and the world with California — the culture, its strange ways and its position, in some sense, as the leading edge of change, for good or ill," Aberbach said.

TV host Chris Matthews has relentlessly tracked the recall campaign on his daily MSNBC show "Hardball" and on the syndicated "The Chris Matthews Show," even temporarily relocating from East Coast to West Coast.

Such coverage is necessary because of the national and worldwide interest, he said. If Schwarzenegger wins the governorship on Oct. 7, "on Oct. 8 every newspaper — in Santiago, in Rangoon, in Islamabad — is going to have it as an item on the front page or in the front section," Matthews said.

ABC anchorman Peter Jennings, in introducing yet another recall story recently, said he was not sure "everybody in the country is quite as fascinated with what's going on in California in this recall election as we are."

They are, at least according to ratings for one key event.

When the only debate including Schwarzenegger was carried live on cable Sept. 24, the ratings shot up on Fox News and MSNBC. Fox saw an 88 percent increase for the 9-11 p.m. EDT block, compared with a year ago, while MSNBC had an 85 percent rise. CNN recorded a more modest increase, 14 percent.

In a CNN-USA Today-Gallup poll conducted Sept. 19-21, respondents were asked if they were paying more attention to the 2004 presidential election or to the recall. The recall was cited by 44 percent, the national election by 37 percent, said CNN senior political analyst Bill Schneider.

People are more attracted to a "circus than a seminar," Schneider said, contrasting the recall with the Democratic debates.

But also, "it's an intriguing notion that if a politician isn't doing his or her job, they can be fired long before they face voters for re-election," he said. "That's captured the public's attention."

The recall has even made it onto California's local TV news, which typically shows scant interest in politics. "You'd have to have a debate on the freeway with two cars chasing each other," Schneider said.

In a 1998 study, Martin Kaplan, associate dean of the University of Southern California's Annenberg School for Communication, found that TV stations in California's major media markets devoted a total of 37 hours over 11 weeks to the gubernatorial race in which Davis was first elected.

Kaplan has not compiled figures for the recall, but he speculated that it probably took "about 20 minutes" for the local stations to exceed their 1998 total.

Whether the extensive coverage is illuminating events or just wallowing in them is a matter of debate.

Television, the major source of news for most Americans, has not provided detailed reports on the origins of California's budget crisis and how candidates intend to respond, Aberbach and Kaplan said.

The coverage "has contributed shockingly little to advancing the debate about what they face in Sacramento," Aberbach said.

Doubting America's intentions

WashingtonToday

by George Gedda

WASHINGTON (AP) — When Saudi Arabia asked the United States earlier this year to dismantle U.S. military bases in that country, the response could be summed up as follows: "OK, when?"

Serious empires don't pack up and leave. They stay until they are toppled.

In a similar circumstance, any self-respecting Roman emperor would have said, "Hey, we're an empire. Get used to us."

In a message to the Iraqi people on April 4, President Bush said: "The government of Iraq, and the future of your country, will soon belong to you."

"We are not imperialistic and we never have been," Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld said a few days later.

Such statements are rarely challenged in this country. Empire building simply is not in the American scheme of things — or so most Americans believe. Foreigners are often less sanguine about American intentions.

And now, almost six months after the Iraqi regime of Saddam Hussein was deposed, unrest about continued American domination of Iraq is widespread internationally and is taking root at home as well.

Words like "empire" and "hegemony" are being used more and more to describe the American role. There is the perception that the United States is exerting its power in Iraq for reasons that go well beyond altruism. The unease even extends to some Iraqis who are members of the governing council chosen in July by the U.S. authorities in Iraq.

Few countries have been more outspoken than France about continued American domination of Iraq.

"France insists on the implementation of a rapid transfer of power ... within several months," Foreign Minister Dominique de Villepan said Monday.

Secretary of State Colin Powell predicts "total chaos" if political control were to be turned over to Iraqis before they were ready. Embracing the French approach would mean sacrificing President Bush's vision of a democratic Iraq, he believes.

Since the invasion of Iraq in March, the administration has been relentlessly multi-lateralist in response to troublesome situations elsewhere.

It allowed a group of West African nations to take the lead in bringing about stability in Liberia. It is relying on the United Nations nuclear watchdog agency to call Iran to account for its nuclear activities. It is seeking a regional approach to resolving the impasse over North Korea's nuclear weapons programs.

The U.S. approach to dealing with Iran and North Korea and produced little objection internationally. But there is no sign of relief for the administration on the subject of Iraq.

"Empire never works over the long-term," says Chris Preble, foreign policy director of the libertarian Cato Institute.

And echoing the concerns of some Democrats about the administration's Iraq policy, Preble said empires usually wind up defending client state interests rather than their own people.

The administration, of course, does not see Iraq as an empire-client situation. It is prepared to turn over full political control to Iraq once national elections are held based on a new constitution.

But most of the rest of a world, still smarting over the administration's perceived go-it-alone policy last March at the time of the invasion, is not willing to give Bush the benefit of the doubt. Few countries are willing to provide the United States with more than token troop or reconstruction support.

"The administration bit off a bit more than it could chew in Iraq," says Ivo Daalder of the Brookings Institution, pointing to the $166 billion price tag over two years and the deployment of a substantial portion of the U.S. military.

He says the United States has the power to get the job done in Iraq but he wonders whether the benefits would outweigh the costs.

At least Bush still has the support of British Prime Minister Tony Blair, who has not gone wobbly on Iraq despite an Iraq-related nose dive in the polls.

Defending his Iraq policies before Labor Party faithful on Tuesday, Blair said: "I do not at all disrespect anyone who disagrees with me. I ask just one thing: Attack my decision, but at least understand why I took it and why I would take the same decision again."

George Gedda has covered foreign affairs for The Associated Press since 1968.

Government will need appeals court to restore Sept. 11 evidence

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — Prosecutors will need an appeals court or military tribunal to restore the heart of their case against Zacarias Moussaoui, now that a judge has banned from the al-Qaida loyalist's trial evidence related to the Sept. 11 attacks.

Exact punishment for disobeying her orders, U.S. District Judge Leonie Brinkema on Thursday barred the government from introducing any "evidence or argument that the defendant was involved in, or had knowledge of" the suicide hijackings.

She also eliminated the death penalty in the only U.S. case spawned by Sept. 11, thereby knocking out some of the government's most poignant evidence planned for the trial: photographs of victims and the cockpit voice recordings from United Flight 93, the jetliner that crashed in Shanksville, Pa.

For months, the government has argued it could win a conviction against Moussaoui by proving his role in a broad al-Qaida conspiracy, without showing he was part of the Sept. 11, 2001, attacks that killed more than 3,000 people in Pennsylvania, at New York's World Trade Center and at the Pentagon.

The judge essentially told the government Thursday to go ahead and try, because its refusal to make available three al-Qaida witnesses in U.S. custody meant prosecutors had forfeited the right to present Sept. 11 evidence. That's because Moussaoui won't have the opportunity to call witnesses who might have supported his contention that he was not part of the aircraft hijacking plot, she concluded.

Brinkema was responding to government defiance of her rulings in January and August, which granted Moussaoui the right to question the prisoners through a satellite connection. Their testimony also could have been used during his trial.

Frank Dunham Jr., one of the court-appointed lawyers representing Moussaoui's interests while he serves as his own lawyer, issued a statement that said the government was now relieved of a major burden.

"The government has said before the dispute that access to these witnesses put it to a... choice of compromising national security or allowing an accused terrorist to go free. Today's opinion allows the government to avoid that dilemma entirely."

The government basically has three options. It could: —Ask the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va., to restore the prosecution's full case.

—Move the trial from a civilian court to a military tribunal, where rules might help the prosecution.

—Proceed in Brinkema's court without the Sept. 11 evidence.

Robert Precht, assistant dean for public service at the University of Michigan Law School, predicted the government would lose an appeal to restore its Sept. 11 evidence.

Judge orders injunction to block band's suicide show

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — The leader of a shock rock band promising an onstage suicide during a Webcast performance this week didn't show up in court Thursday to contest an order aimed at blocking the event.

St. Petersburg leaders had asked Circuit Judge John C. Lenderman for the injunction after Billy Tourtelot, leader of the Tampa-based band Hell on Earth, announced that a terminally ill person would commit suicide during the show to raise awareness of right-to-die issues.

City officials said they never located Tourtelot to serve him with an order to appear in court.

No one showed up on his behalf for the brief hearing Thursday, during which Lenderman issued the order prohibiting the band from featuring a suicide in the city for commercial or entertainment purposes — including its broadcast on the band's Web site.

Tourtelot, 33, the son of a prominent St. Petersburg real estate agent, did not respond to messages left for him by The Associated Press Thursday.

According to the order, Tourtelot has said that the performance and suicide parts of the Webcast could take place in two different locations within the city. A time for the event has not been announced.

"We think it's the correct legal decision, and it's also the right thing to do," Mayor Rick Baker said afterward. "Using a suicide as part of a concert for purposes of entertainment value or for purposes of profiting is a sick concept. It's just not one we wish to tolerate in our community."

On Monday, the city council met to pass an emergency ordinance to try to block the band's plan. The city attorney's office then sought the injunction to make sure band members could also face contempt of court charges if they went ahead with it.

Violation of the city ordinance could bring up to a $500 fine and 60 days in jail. Additionally, a state law against assisting in a suicide is a second-degree felony punishable by up to 15 years in prison.

Baker said city police will be monitoring the Web site Saturday to see how the event plays out.

Florida Attorney General Charlie Crist got involved in the city's efforts, sending a staff member to the hearing Thursday.

"Preventing a despicable violation of both the law and common decency is the goal of today's action," Crist said.

Tourtelot has said he wanted to feature the suicide to raise awareness that physician-assisted suicide should be legal.

Burman to hold recital at Murray State October 8

Sandip Burman, an Indian tabla player, will present a recital of Indian music at 8 p.m. Oct. 8 on Murray State University's campus.

The program will be held in the Performing Arts Hall of the Fine Arts Annex. Burman has performed tabla with Ravi Shankar and has toured Europe and the United States extensively, including appearances at the Monterey World One Festival, the Kennedy Center for Performing Arts, the Ravinia Festival and the Telluride Bluegrass Festival.

Burman is a native of Durgapur,

India. His love and dedication for tabla began at the age of 6, when Pandit Shyamal Bose of Calcutta, one of India's most distinguished tabla maestros, accepted him as his disciple. Critics say Burman's performances are marked with spontaneous innovation and tonal purity even when he is delivering complex rhythmic patterns at dazzling speeds. His vast repertoire includes both commonly and rarely played rhythms.

The concert is free and open to the public. The program is identified as a Passport to Success event for Murray State students. For more information, call Scott Locke, assistant professor of music, at 762-6444.

Attendants for the bride were Austin Thomas and Abigail Thomas. The groom's attendants were Jay Clark, Ryan Clark and Shawn Clark. Serving as flower girl was Abigail Thomas, daughter of the bride.

The ring bearers were Austin Thomas, son of the bride, and Jay Clark, son of the groom.

The bride is a 1996 graduate of Calloway County High School. The groom is employed at Forever Green Lawn Service.

Mrs. Clark is the daughter of Leamon and Carol Lee. Parents of Mr. Clark are Teresa and Mike Fowler and Wade Wake.

Postage stamps: Grand art on a small scale

Stamps are colorful, miniature works of art that inspire people of all ages. These diminutive masterpieces are prized possessions to avid collectors.

In the early 1900s, one such philatelist (stamp collector), Giacomo Tarro, began his hobby while still a boy. When the Italian sailor began sailing the seven seas, he found it impractical to take his collection with him because the damp surroundings curled the stamps. Rather than give up his collection completely, he had his entire body covered with tattooed designs of stamps.

During the 1930s, fashion designers in Paris introduced a line of apparel featuring patterns taken from designs on postage stamps.

Postal annals also include the story of Wyoming businessman Ed Hadley, who gathered 10,700 stamps and pasted them on the body of his automobile. It took six weeks to complete the job.

These postal oddities illustrate how ingenious stamp collectors have taken advantage of the many unique designs and colors of postage stamps and used them to create unusual works of art. In recent years, more practical uses have been found for the art of postage stamps. Products bearing stamp designs include laminated, lapel pins, refrigerator magnets, earrings, necklaces and key chains, to name a few.

With the introduction of the Elvis stamp in 1993, the public's overall interest in stamps increased dramatically.

In 1994, the Postal Service co-sponsored a nationwide stamp design contest, just for kids, based on the theme of helping the environment. Four designs were selected to appear on new stamps and these stamps became a popular issue.

With their fine attention to detail and richness in design, stamps are indeed miniature works of art. Their popularity has stood the test of time and will continue to be a rich part of American heritage.

Stop by your local post office for the latest stamps and stamp products or visit www.usps.com/shop.

MHS volleyball tops CFS

Staff Report

Murray Ledger & Times

DRAFFENVILLE, Ky. — There would have been no shame had the Murray High volleyball team lost to Christian Fellowship Thursday night. After all, CFS has established itself as a power in western Kentucky. Meanwhile, the Murray program is in only its second year.

Murray — not reflecting its youth — knocked off Christian Fellowship 25-23, 21-25 and 15-9 in the last game of the regular season for both clubs.

The Lady Tigers must now return to Draffenville and the site of last night's contest to take on the Lade Eagles one more time in the first match of the double-elimination Third District Tournament.

Facing Christian Fellowship for a third time doesn't hurt, but then again doesn't hurt, says Murray High head coach Sharon Dean.

"At this point it doesn't matter, the regular season is over," she explained. "We are a good team, they are a good team. We have to go in with the right attitude on Monday and do it again. I think we have their attention, though."

Dean and the Lady Tigers gave the Marshall County-based school both of its losses this season in district play. Murray finishes the season at 19-5.

The Third District tournament will showcase not only Murray and Christian Fellowship, but also Marshall County and Calloway County. Should Murray win on Monday, it would play the winner of the Lady Marshals and Lady Lakers on Tuesday night.

Dean knows that their is now a huge bullseye on the back of her players.

"It will be important for us to have our team together Monday and throughout the rest of the week," Dean noted. "We have to approach every game like it's our last. When we play our best is when we play on our strengths and ride that momentum factor."

Breanna Volp led the Lady Tigers Thursday with a total of 18 serves — eight of which went for aces. Volp also had four kills and two spikes with five blocks.

Lisa Thurman was good for five serves and one ace, adding four kills and seven spikes. Addie Courtney had two blocks and two serves. She also had an ace to go with three assists. Laura Mitchell provided four kills and two blocks. Sarah Polivick and Haley Thomason finished with 8-plus serves.

Monday's game between Murray and Christian Fellowship will begin at 6 p.m. Should Murray win, it would play at 6 p.m. on Tuesday. A loss Monday would mean the Lady Tigers would play again at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday.

Calloway Volleyball

The Calloway County Lady Lakers fell to visiting Paducah Tilghman 25-19, 25-17 on Thursday night at Jeffrey Gymnasium.

No other details on the match were available at press time.

Calloway soccer splits Thursday

Staff Report

Murray Ledger & Times

The Calloway County Lady Lakers erased an early 1-0 deficit with two first-half goals and added a third one in the second half to down Second District rival Mayfield 3-1 in prep soccer action Thursday night at CCHS.

Mayfield took a quick lead with a goal in the first two minutes of play, but Brittany Green responded with a goal off an assist from Malorie Esterlein to pull Calloway (9-3-1) even.

Later in the half, freshman Katelyn Smith put the Lady Lakers ahead for good with a goal from the corner flag. CCHS led 2-1 at the halftime break.

Sophomore Lisa Hester gave Calloway some insurance in the second half on an unassisted goal with about 15 minutes left in the match.

CCHS head coach Kristy Provine was pleased with her team's comeback ability.

"The girls played well," said Provine. "We came out pretty slow, and it took us a while to get in the swing of the game. But we came together and got the win ... Our girls are coming together here at the end of the season like I hoped we would."

The Lady Lakers outshot Mayfield by a 22-11 count. Sophomore goalkeeper Katie Bogard recorded five saves.

Calloway returns to action on Saturday with a home match against Paducah Tilghman before playing at Crosstown rival Murray High on Tuesday. The regular-season finale is Thursday night at home against Hickman County.

Graves Co. 3, Lakers 2

MAYFIELD, Ky. — Homes-tanding Graves County rallied from a 1-0 halftime deficit to defeat Calloway County in boys' prep soccer action Thursday night.

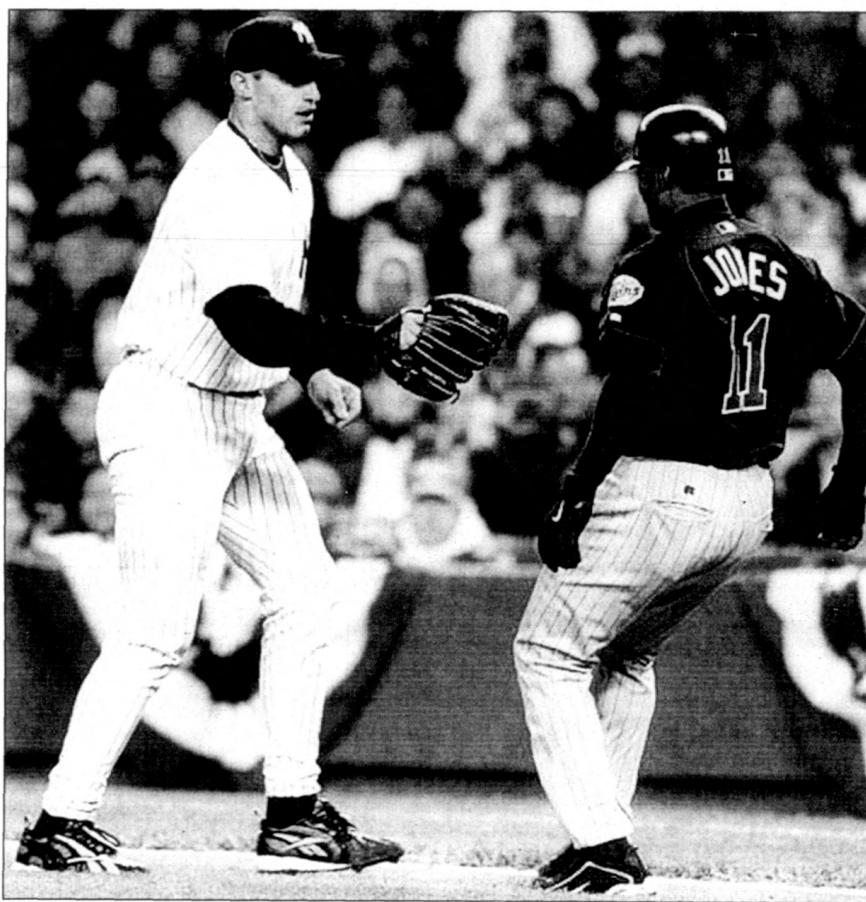

Brian Robertson put the Lakers (6-7-2) on the board with an unassisted goal in the first half. The score remained 1-0 until the second half.

Jaimie King tied the match on a goal off an assist from Jake Elliott. Zach Sims then put Graves ahead for good with an unassisted goal. Dustin Curtsinger later found the back of the net off an assist from Alex Nelson to put the Eagles up 3-1.

Wes Claiborne drew Calloway to within one on an unassisted goal, but that's as close as the Lakers would get.

Graves County outshot CCHS 21-15. Calloway goalkeepers Jason Stubblefield (14) and Monte Kennedy (2) combined for 16 saves in the match. The Eagles' Barrett Wilson was credited with 12.

The Lakers return to the field on Tuesday against rival Murray High.

TAG, YOU'RE OUT ... New York Yankees pitcher Andy Pettitte tags out the Minnesota Twins Jacque Jones during the second inning of Game 2 of the American League Division Series Thursday night at Yankee Stadium.

Yanks get even with Twins

NEW YORK (AP) — Jason Giambi and Andy Pettitte got Yankee Stadium rocking again. Now New York fans have reason to believe their team will be back next week.

Giambi turned boos to cheers with a two-run single. Pettitte pitched another gem under pressure and the Yankees beat the Minnesota Twins 4-1 Thursday night to even the best-of-five AL playoff series at a game apiece.

"We showed the caliber of team that we are," closer Mariano Rivera said.

The series now shifts to the Metrodome, where Roger Clemens makes what could be the final start of his Hall of Fame career Saturday afternoon in Game 3. Kyle Lohse goes for Minnesota.

"I don't want to think about it being my last start," Clemens said. "Hopefully, it won't be."

The next two games are in Minnesota, and Game 5 would be back at Yankee Stadium on Monday night if necessary.

After a sloppy loss during the day in Game 1, the Yankees finally put their fans in a frenzy with a three-run seventh inning that snapped a 1-1 tie. Alfonso Soriano hit a go-ahead single off LaTroy Hawkins, and this time it was the Twins who made defensive errors that opened the door.

"Something about a night game here at Yankee Stadium, almost like it just comes alive out there," Pettitte said.

Yankees manager Joe Torre took no chances, bringing in a well-rested Rivera for a six-out save. It was the reliever's 26th career postseason save.

"When you take Andy Pettitte out with the kind of courage he showed tonight, it would have been tough to replace him with anybody but Rivera. ... I don't think I can trust anybody more than I trust Andy," Torre said.

A's grab commanding 2-0 lead over Sox

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — In less than 21 hours, the Oakland Athletics got one dramatic victory, one easy win and a commanding lead in their division series.

Such haste was only appropriate. With a talented young roster that soon will become too expensive to stay together, the A's are a team in a hurry — and so far, not even the Boston Red Sox's powerful lineup has been able to slow them down.

Barry Zito struck out nine over seven dominant innings, and Oakland pushed the Red Sox to the brink of elimination with a 5-1 victory in Game 2 Thursday.

After spending a restless evening in bed while his teammates eked out a 12-inning victory in the series opener, Zito allowed five hits and two walks for the A's, who have lost in the first round in each of the past three seasons.

Oakland finally can advance to its first league championship series since 1992 with one more victory.

"I think we definitely have something to prove," Zito said. "We realize our guys are not going to be coming back every year. We lost Jason (Giambi), and the whole (Miguel) Tejada thing, we don't know what's going to happen with that."

"We don't have a lot more years to say, 'Oh, we'll get them next year.' We have to really bear down and get this series as soon as we can."

So far, the AL's toughest pitching staff is beating baseball's most potent lineup. Boston, which broke the major league record for slugging percentage this season, is hitting .228 with just five runs after two games.

Game 3 is Saturday at Fenway Park. Derek Lowe, the losing pitcher in the opener, will start against Ted Lilly.

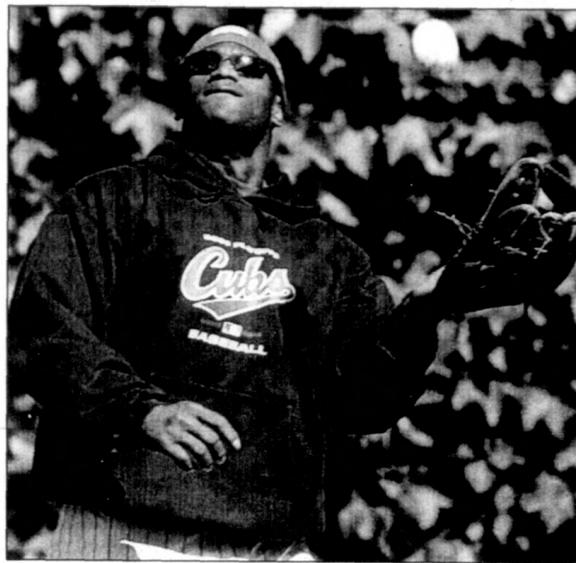

"Zito pitched a great game," said Nomar Garciaparra, who went 1-for-3. "He put us against the wall, but we've been there before."

Garciaparra is among the Boston veterans who led a comeback from an 0-2 deficit in the 1999 division series against Cleveland. Oakland also has been in this situation before: The A's won the first two games of their 2001 division series against the New York Yankees, only to lose the final three.

The teams took the field for batting practice Thursday slightly more than 10 hours after Eric Chavez scored the winning run in Game 1 on Ramon Hernandez's daring bases-loaded bunt. Zito, sent home early to rest up, caught the final moments on the radio.

Cubs' past vs. future: Maddux to face Prior

CHICAGO (AP) — More than a decade after Greg Maddux fled for Atlanta, his presence still casts a long shadow over the Chicago Cubs.

For 10 years the Cubs have searched for another ace, a youngster with a golden arm they could build a team around. Every young pitcher was subjected to the same burden, faced the same unreasonable expectations.

Will YOU be the one who finally replaces Maddux?

With Maddux in the twilight of his career, Chicago appears to have found a worthy heir in Mark Prior. The Cubs' past and future will meet face-to-face Friday night, giving added spice to Game 3 of the NL playoff series between Atlanta and Chicago at Wrigley Field.

The series is tied at one game apiece.

"You have the new young lion on our side, and you have the veteran-of-many-wars lion on that side," Cubs manager Dusty Baker said Thursday. "That's intriguing in itself. Power versus finesse. Baseball intellect in Maddux and you got power and rising baseball intellect in Prior."

Maddux, 37, is one of those rare talents who comes along once in a generation.

The cornerstone for Atlanta's 12 straight divisional championships, Maddux is the first pitcher in major league history to win at least 15 games in 16 straight seasons, a streak he started with the Cubs back in 1988.

He also was the first pitcher to win four straight Cy Young Awards, the first coming when he was still with the Cubs in 1992. But Maddux bolted to the Braves as a free agent after that season, and Chicago has never quite gotten over the breakup.

"I'm sure I will get called a few things," Maddux said. "I would be very surprised if things weren't said to me before the game."

He doesn't bear any grudges, though. After all this time in Atlanta, Wrigley doesn't even feel like home anymore.

"It's been over a decade since I pitched here," Maddux said. "But I do know the ballpark probably as well as any road park in the league."

Just as Maddux has put Chicago behind him, Prior has never felt the need to fill the veteran's spikes. He was only 12 when Maddux won his first Cy Young, far more concerned with his Little League team than his future one in the big leagues.

"I don't remember a whole lot at 12," Prior admitted. "Obviously, I know what he's done with the Braves and I hear about what he's done with the Cubs. He's had a great career."

And Prior is on his way to a great career of his own. Not even a month past his 23rd birthday and in his first full season in the major leagues, he's already established himself as one of baseball's best.

He won 18 games this season with a 2.43 ERA, and was second to teammate Kerry Wood in strikeouts with 245. Even more impressive were his numbers after a nasty July collision on the basepaths with Braves second baseman Marcus Giles.

In 11 starts after returning from the disabled list Aug. 4, Prior went 10-1 with a 1.52 ERA and helped lead the Cubs to their first division title since 1989 — the year Maddux won 19 games and the Cubs lost to the Giants in the NLCS.

"Mark knows exactly what he wants to do when he's out there: How he wants to approach the game, how he wants to face each hitter," Cubs closer Joe Borowski said. "He has a game plan, he sticks with it and executes it. That's why he's effective very time out there."

Peattie sets school record in win over Mountaineers

MIAMI (AP) — Freshman Jon Peattie kicked a 23-yard field goal with 11 seconds remaining as No. 2 Miami staved off an upset with a 22-20 victory over West Virginia on Thursday night.

Peattie finished with a school-record five field goals, his biggest coming after Miami drove 66 yards with two minutes remaining.

Brock Berlin needed a fourth-down completion to Kellen Winslow to keep the drive alive. On fourth-and-13 from the Miami 25, Berlin hit Winslow over the middle. The tight end made a leaping catch for an 18-yard gain.

Berlin finished 37-of-54 for 352 yards with a touchdown and two interceptions. Winslow caught 10 passes for 104 yards.

The Mountaineers had one final chance with five seconds to play, but Sean Taylor intercepted Rasheed Marshall's deep pass. Taylor started to run, then dropped to a knee, jumped up and heaved the ball into the air.

Miami (5-0, 2-0 Big East) won its 37th straight regular season game and remained unbeaten heading into a showdown at No. 6 Florida State next Saturday.

Barely.

The Mountaineers (1-4, 0-1) were poised to pull off the biggest upset in a season of upsets when Quincy Wilson ran around and over Miami's defense for a 33-yard touchdown with two minutes remaining.

Wilson took a screen pass from Marshall on third-and-13, juked Vince Wilfork behind the line of scrimmage, broke a tackle and then bowled over and jumped over safety Brandon Meriweather at the 10 and scored to give the Mountaineers a 20-19 lead.

Wilson finished with 142 total yards, 99 rushing and 43 receiving. His last reception dampened a strong defensive performance for Miami.

Peattie's other field goals were 22, 32, 43 and 30 yards.

WKU to play Louisville, SEC teams

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. (AP) — Games against two Southeastern Conference teams and a matchup against Louisville on a neutral court will highlight Western Kentucky's first season under basketball coach Darrin Horn.

The Hilltoppers will open the regular season with road games at Auburn on Nov. 21 and Virginia Commonwealth on Nov. 25 before returning home to face Mississippi State on Nov. 29.

Western then plays Louisville on Dec. 4 at the Gaylord Entertainment Center in Nashville, Tenn.

"It's going to be a challenge," Horn said Thursday as the school released its schedule. "We're going to accept it and look forward to it."

The Hilltoppers will play home games against Ohio Valley Conference teams Murray State on Dec. 7 and Austin Peay on Dec. 13. Western will play host to Kentucky State before opening its Sun Belt Conference schedule with games at Arkansas State on Jan. 7 and South Alabama on Jan. 10.

The Sun Belt Conference tournament will again be played at Diddle Arena.

Bandwagon forming for surprising Marlins

MIAMI (AP) — As the 1997 Florida Marlins can attest, Miami loves a winner.

It's been six years since the Marlins fit that category, but their surprising charge into the NL playoffs has South Florida excited about baseball again. More than 58,000 fans were expected Friday for Game 3 of Florida's NL division series matchup against San Francisco.

The teams split the first two games in San Francisco. Now they'll play before the Marlins' largest home crowd since the 1997 World Series, when four games in Miami drew more than 67,000 each.

"The guys love the fans coming out supporting us," said Mark Redman, Florida's starting pitcher Friday. "I don't know if the fans understand that when they do get loud, it's tough for the opposing pitcher to concentrate, especially if it goes ball one, ball two, with the crowd getting louder and louder."

Our hitters get pumped up. It's great."

Florida averaged just 16,290 fans at Pro Player Stadium this season, ahead of only Montreal in the NL, and attendance was barely 10,000 per game a month ago.

But a late-season surge to earn the wild-card berth shook fans from years of apathy. Crowds topped 25,000 for each of the final six home games, and a total of more than 115,000 are expected for the two playoff games.

Former UofL player now is a waffle-and-chicken man

By MICHAEL GRANT
 The Courier-Journal
 LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Twiams Chicken & Waffles isn't the place where everyone knows your name, but many customers know the owner's name.

The average Louisvillian can deduce it from the signs and photos. Inside the front entrance to the right are side-by-side pictures of former University of Louisville basketball players Keith Williams (uncle) and Tony Williams (nephew). To the far left is the Cardinals' logo. Farther back are large framed pictures of Italy, where Tony Williams plays eight months of the year.

Williams liked his visit to Gladys Knight and Ron Winans' Chicken & Waffles in Atlanta that he began dreaming of opening his own chicken-and-waffles joint.

It came to fruition when he bought the building that used to house Sandy's, a longtime family restaurant, in February. Twiams opened for business on June 27.

"I finally had the opportunity," Williams, 25, said. "This place, this location opened up. This idea has been on my mind. This is a small city that likes new things."

Crowe leery of 1-4 Racers

By SCOTT NANNEY
 Sports Editor

As a first-time opponent of Murray State, Jack Crowe admits he has a limited knowledge of his new Ohio Valley Conference rivals. However, the fourth-year Jacksonville State head coach is confident he knows at least one thing: The Racers are a better team than their 1-4 record suggests, or than they showed in last weekend's 49-24 loss at Tennessee Tech.

GAMECOCK SANDWICH ... Two Jacksonville State defenders join forces to bring down an Eastern Kentucky runner during the Gamecocks' 49-14 pasting of the Colonels last Saturday. The JSU defense is allowing its opponents an average of just 144.8 yards per game in four outings.

contender at home, and now we're playing a traditional OVC contender in Murray State on the road. I think we're going to find out a lot about ourselves," added Crowe. The Gamecocks kicked off their inaugural season in the OVC in grand fashion, blasting perennial power ECU 49-14 in Jacksonville. JSU began the season with a 9-3 triumph over in-state rival Alabama A&M before dropping back-to-back contests to North Alabama (28-16) and Kansas (41-6). In four outings, the Gamecocks are averaging 299.5 yards per game in total offense. Jacksonville is last in the OVC in passing with an average of just 133.5 yards per game, but is second in the conference in rushing at 166 yards per outing. Senior tailback Kory Chapman leads the JSU ground game with 239 yards and three touchdowns on 51 carries for an average of 4.7 yards per attempt. Chapman transferred to Jacksonville State from Northwest (Miss.) Community College in 2001 after a brief stop at Murray State. The 6-1, 202-pounder appeared on the MSU roster in the Racers' 2001 media guide, but never took the field for head coach Joe Panunzio's second Murray squad.

Game Notes

The Series

This is the first-ever meeting between Murray State and Jacksonville State in football. It's also the first-ever OVC meeting between the two schools. The Gamecocks are in their first season in the OVC after playing in the Southland Football League since 1997. Saturday's game will be televised live on Fox Sports Net South. Last season, in the Racers' only appearance on Fox, MSU defeated Southeast Missouri State 38-31 at Roy Stewart Stadium.

Gamecock Report

Jacksonville State comes into the game as perhaps the hottest team in the OVC, largely because of their play last Saturday. After going 1-2 in non-conference play, the Gamecocks went 1-0 in the OVC after dismantling Eastern Kentucky 49-14 at home last Saturday. Head coach Jack Crowe is 16-20 in his fourth season at Jacksonville State. Jacksonville State is the second-ranked rushing offense in the OVC. The Gamecocks are led by two players who are familiar to the Racers — Kory Chapman, who signed with the Racers in 2001, averages 59.8 ypg, while former Tennessee Tech tailback Oscar Bonds averages 53.3 ypg. Both are in the top 10 in the OVC.

Ohio Valley Success

Murray State has won five of the last seven OVC games, dating back to last season when the Racers won a share of the league title.

Jax. State At A Glance

Traditional Program
 Jacksonville State may be a newcomer to the Ohio Valley Conference, but it is far from a newcomer to the college football ranks.

The Gamecocks' program, which began in 1903, is celebrating its 100th anniversary this fall.

A former member of the Division II Gulf South Conference, Jacksonville won nine league championships from 1971 to 1992.

The Gamecocks won the 1992 Division II national championship 17-13 over Pittsburgh State, completing a 12-1-1 season.

In the same year, JSU left the Gulf South to move up to the Division I-AA ranks, where they have played as a member of the Southland Conference.

In Division I-AA play, the Gamecocks have compiled a 40-71 record — including a 2-2 mark so far during the 2003 campaign.

JSU was 5-6 a year ago.

"There are an enormous amount of unknowns when you face a team for the first time," said Crowe, whose Gamecocks face MSU on Saturday at 2:30 p.m. at Roy Stewart Stadium. "But I don't think their second half against Tennessee Tech is a statement on how good a team Murray State is ... We have tremendous respect for their program."

The Racers looked like anything but the defending OVC champions in giving up 42 second-half points to the Golden Eagles — a team they led 17-14 at the halftime break, only to allow 446 yards in total offense and a whopping 35 unanswered points in a span of 16 minutes.

"I think everybody in this league is still trying to find themselves right now," Crowe said. "But I know that we have a challenge ahead of us this week."

Crowe points to the Racers' recent success at home as a basis for his theory.

Before a Sept. 20 loss to Gateway Conference member Indiana State, Murray had won eight straight home games and has won five straight OVC contests inside the friendly confines of Stewart Stadium.

The Racers' last OVC home loss was a 21-13 setback to rival Eastern Kentucky in October of 2001.

"Murray State is 28-8, I'm told, in the last 36 home football games, and that's a great record," he explained. "We will be playing a team that has the second-most OVC championships, at least in recent years."

"Last week, we played a traditional OVC

In today's air-tight homes, Indoor Air Quality is a growing concern. Most household dust contains dust mites, mold, mildew, pollen, and animal dander. Many of these contaminants are circulated through the central air systems in most homes and can aggravate the symptoms of asthma and allergies.

God Helps Those Who Help Themselves

We should pray as if we are sure that our own efforts will come to nothing, and work as if our prayers will be unanswered. This means that in prayer, we should trust completely in God and realize that even with our best efforts, things may not always work out as we wish; God may have other plans for us. However, we should work diligently to realize our goals and not assume that God will do the work for us. As Saint Ignatius, the founder of the Jesuit Order explained, we should use human means as though divine ones didn't exist, and divine means as though there were no human means. Our Lord wants us to pray and seek His help in all things. However, He also expects us to use our God-given talents to help ourselves. Blessings come to those who work, not to those who merely wait. Faith without works is empty and works without faith are blind. The ideal is to combine our good works with a strong faith, for God does indeed help those who help themselves.

For as the body apart from the spirit is dead, so faith apart from works is dead.
James 2:26

Band psyched up for Shoutfest event Sunday

By EDWARD SHERIDAN Staff Writer

Lonnie Chapin is psyched up these days about playing in a rock 'n' roll band. He may be even more excited, though, about a traveling music festival with extreme games, outdoor activities and concession stands in tow.

Chapin is the bass player for the Christian contemporary band Tait, one of the headliners of Shoutfest '03: Let the Walls Fall Down. The festival, which features fellow headliners ZOEgirl and Skillet, is touring across the country through next month, mixing contemporary Christian music with youth-oriented activities and evangelism efforts.

"If you've got a friend who would never, ever set foot in a church, you can bring them to this thing," Chapin said in a telephone interview. "It's just a blast. It's just totally different from the whole concert-going experience."

Shoutfest will be held at Murray State University's Roy Stewart Stadium Oct. 5 at 4 p.m. In addition to the three headlining acts, seven other contemporary Christian artists will take the stage that day.

Shoutfest is usually a weekend event, which is welcome news for performers like Chapin, who spend several days away from home at a time.

"This Shoutfest thing has been going about every Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and then we get the rest of the week off," said Chapin, who resides in Nashville. "That is such a blessing, because in November we only have one day off."

Tait is fronted by singer Michael Tait, best known as one-third of Christian rap/hip hop pioneers dc Talk. The band, including Michael Tait himself, has been reluctant to call itself "Michael Tait's band," though, preferring instead to collaborate as a collective unit of Tait, Chapin, guitarist Pete Stewart and Chapin's brother, Chad, on drums.

"Michael always enjoyed having friends and people around him," Chapin said. "It's been different trying to get out from under the show of dc Talk, (but) we're a new band. It's just like anything where you try to break in."

Chapin said Tait, which is actually named in honor of Michael Tait's late father, Nathaniel "Papa" Tait, is currently wrapping up its second album, "Lose This Life." The purpose of the new album, Chapin said, is to bring people together in much the same way festivals such as Shoutfest do.

"I think there's a few more extremes on this record," he said. "It's the kind of record we wanted to make, to connect with people. We just wanted to be a band that could relate to people wherever they were at."

Chapin said one of the advantages of Shoutfest for the performers involved is the relationships they form while on tour together.

"We're there pretty much the whole day rubbing shoulders," he said. "We're all in this together. We just love kids."

And love, Chapin said, is what Jesus Christ and the message behind Shoutfest is all about.

"It's just bringing people together who normally wouldn't come together," he said. "It's not about trying to drag somebody by the hair kicking and screaming to hear the gospel."

Tickets for Shoutfest are $20 in advance for general admission, $25 the day of the show and $18 dollars for groups of ten or more. For more information on Shoutfest, call (270) 753-6695.

UK hoops coach to welcome Baptists next month

LOUISVILLE — University of Kentucky Coach Tubby Smith is set to welcome Baptists to his home court when they converge on Rupp Arena Nov. 11 to appoint more than 70 new international missionaries.

Smith will speak to an expected crowd of more than 7,000 Kentucky Baptists to the missionary appointment service, which will be held from 7-9 p.m. The event will also feature testimonies from the new missionaries and music from a 200-piece orchestra and 1,200-member mass choir.

The new missionaries will be appointed by the Southern Baptist Convention's International Mission Board oversees the recruitment, training and support of Southern Baptist missionaries serving outside North America. The IMB's president, Dr. Jerry Rankin, will also present a message during the appointment service.

Since taking the helm of the program in 1997, Smith has led the Wildcats to one national championship (1998), four SEC championships and five Sweet Sixteens.

The appointment service is being held in conjunction with the Kentucky Baptist Convention's annual meeting, which is scheduled for Nov. 11-12. The other sessions of the KBC annual meeting (all day Tuesday and Wednesday morning) will be held at Immanuel Baptist Church in Lexington.

No registration is necessary to attend the appointment service, and free parking passes for buses and vans are available upon request at <http://www.kybaptist.org/imbappointment>.

Women's Conference scheduled for Nov. 1

Dr. RoseAnne Coleman, nationally known speaker from Nashville, Tenn., will be the featured speaker for the Women's Conference to be held on Saturday, Nov. 1 at Memorial Baptist Church, 10th & Main Streets in Murray.

Dr. Coleman, a native of Alabama, is aptly described as a "little Southern fireball" who captures any audience immediately with her lightning wit and Southern-flavored observations of everyday life.

She has her doctorate in English from Middle Tennessee State University and is able to implement into her programs many of the communication skills she learned through years in the classroom, of traveling with a speaking/singing ministry, and through the experience that can come only from being a part of a minister's family.

"By being a preacher's kid and by having taught school, I can find things to laugh about with just about any crowd," Coleman grins. And her humor is a big part of the way she communicates.

In 1985 Dr. Coleman established the Nashville Bible Study, initially established with the purpose of exalting Jesus Christ by teaching His Word to women through weekly Bible studies.

Director Pamela Wurgler says, "the choir always plans a special musical event in the fall. This year our theme is sharing the faith: what we believe and what we share with those who came before and will come after us." The music will include hymn-tune arrangements for choir and congregation and anthems performed by choir and instruments. The choir will be accompanied by organist Joan Bowker, pianist Tracy Leslie, percussionist Kevin Suiter and a Brass Ensemble including Eric Swisher and Amy Fuller, trumpets, Scott Gibbs and Joseph Alexander, trombones. Oboist Scott Erickson will play with the choir on one number. Kim and Randall Black

"We are so fortunate to have a congregation that appreciates the role of music in worship, a choir that has so much talent, and the resources of Murray State University music faculty and students which we can bring together for this glorious music worship," says director Wurgler. "This service is our gift to the congregation and our vision of what worship can be." The church is located at 503 Maple St. in downtown Murray.

The balance of proper parenting

QUESTION: I like your idea of balancing love with discipline, but I'm not sure I can do it. My parents were extremely rigid with us, and I'm determined not to make that mistake with my kids. But I don't want to be a pushover, either. Can you give me some help in finding the middle ground between extremes?

DR. DOBSON: Maybe it would clarify your overall disciplining goal to state it in the negative. It is not to produce perfect kids. Even if you implement a flawless system of discipline at home, which no one in history has done, your children will still be children. At times they will be silly, lazy, selfish and, yes, disrespectful. Such is the nature of the human species. We as adults have the same weaknesses. Furthermore, when it comes to kids, that's how it should be. Boys and girls are like clocks; you have to let them run. My point is that the purpose of parental discipline is not to produce obedient little robots who can sit with their hands folded in the parlor thinking patriotic and noble thoughts! Even if we could pull that off, it wouldn't be wise to try.

The objective, as I see it, is to take the raw material with which our babies arrive on this Earth, and then gradually mold them into mature, responsible and God-fearing adults. It is a 20-year process that will bring progress, setbacks, successes and failures. When the child turns 13, you'll swear that he's missed everything you thought you had taught ... manners, kindness, grace and style.

But then, maturity begins to take over, and the little green shoots from your former plantings start to emerge. One of the richest experiences in life is to watch that blossoming at the latter end of childhood.

QUESTION: You place great emphasis on instilling respect during the developmental years. Why is that so important? Do you just want adults to feel powerful and in control of these little people?

DR. DOBSON: Certainly not. Respect is important for several very specific reasons. First, the child's relationship with his parents provides the basis for his attitude toward every other form of authority he will encounter. It becomes the cornerstone for his later outlook on school officials, law enforcement officers, future employers and the people with whom he will eventually live and work. Teachers, for example, can tell very quickly when a boy or girl has been allowed to be defiant at home — because those attitudes are brought straight into the classroom.

Again, relationships at home are the first and most important social encounters a youngster will have, and the problems experienced there often carry over into adult life.

Second, if you want your child to accept your values when she reaches her teen years, then you must be worthy of her respect during her younger days. When a child can successfully defy your authority during her first 15 years, laughing in your face and stubbornly flouting your leadership, she develops a natural contempt for everything you stand for.

"Stupid old Mom and Dad!" she thinks. "I've got them wound around my little finger. Sure they love me, but I really think they're afraid of me." A child may not utter these words, but she feels them each time she wins the confrontations with her mom or dad.

Third, and related to the second, respect is critical to the transmission of faith from one generation to the next. The child who disdains his mother and father is less likely to emulate them on the things that matter most. If Mom and Dad are not worthy of respect, then neither are their morals, their country, or even their most deeply held convictions.

YOUTH CHOIR...Four youth from Calloway County participated in the 14th annual Kentucky Baptist All-State Youth Choir this summer, rehearsing with the 74-member group at Campbellsville University. Coleman has participated in many events, such as speaking for the women's session of the Southern Baptist Evangelism Conference, the Coral Ridge Presbyterian Women's Retreat, the Southern Baptist Convention's Single Adult Getaway at Glorieta, N.M., Heritage Keepers Women's Conferences as well as other retreats, seminars, conferences and Christian ministries throughout the United States.

"Her presentations emphasize essentials of loving and obeying Jesus Christ and developing an intimate, moment-by-moment walk with the Lord — complete with RoseAnne's special touch that leaves her audiences with the good feeling that love and humor bring," said Kathy Farley, co-chair for the event.

In addition to a day of inspiring presentations, there will be music led by Debbie Bushart, and a mini-concert by recording artists Dee and Kathy Lipford.

The conference will begin with registration at 8 a.m. and conclude at 3 p.m. Lunch will be provided and door prizes will be awarded.

Tickets must be purchased in advance, and are available at the office of Memorial Baptist Church or at the New Life Christian Bookstore in downtown Murray. The cost is $20 for the day, including all materials and lunch.

Farley said "a limited number of tickets will be available, so ladies are urged to get their tickets early for a great day of interdenominational inspiration, fellowship, worship and praise."

IN MEMORY
In Loving Memory!
At the table is a empty place,
No one is there to fill your space.
Your laughter cannot be heard,
Your smiling picture speaks not a word.
Words of wisdom your son's no longer hear,
Sometimes it's hard not to shed a tear.
Your grandson speaks of you often,
You were his hero, you'll not be forgotten.
Your mother still misses her baby boy,
In you was so much of her joy.
I, your wife, miss your voice, your touch,
Your companionship, we shared so much.
But God needed you much more than us,
He called you home in such a rush.
You left behind riches untold,
Of love and sweet memories, worth more than gold!
We love and miss you!

Dr.Gott

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Is it true that hot tea with lemon consumed from plastic cups may be harmful?

DEAR READER: Tobacco, alcohol, bacon, sugar and — seemingly — almost every delectable dietary treat has been found to be hazardous, for one reason or another, to our continuing good health. Even lemon in tea, if you please, has been reported to produce some rather unsavory effects when drunk from polystyrene cups. Is nothing sacred?

Apparently the oil from citrus juice dissolves the cups. In scientific terms, here is what happens when you, the unwitting consumer, enjoy a serving of nice hot tea in a plastic cup.

The reaction takes place only in foamed polystyrene (Styrofoam) containers of the type commonly used for warm beverages. Being a good insulating material, the polystyrene is not only hydrophobic (water-repellent), but is also thermodynamically unstable (it's affected by extreme heat). Although boiling water softens the plastic, no real changes occur until the villainous lemon is added to the brew.

In conjunction with the heat, the lemon oil readily penetrates between the beads of styrene. The beads then shrivel and become "plasticized." In essence, they return to a more stable form of plastic. Because the lemon-plasticizer can migrate with the styrene polymer, it can cause a cascading collapse of other beads. Styrene monomer is thereby released into the tea from the pitted cup and is ingested as part of the beverage.

The bad news is that you are drinking more in your tea than you bargained for. The good news is that nobody has yet decisively proved that styrene is harmful to humans. In fact, it does not appear to affect rats that are fed large quantities of the substance. Still, a diet of styrene and tea is a bit off-putting, especially if one considers other tests that purport to show cancer in the progeny of mice treated with styrene.

I suspect that the basic problem is that we are not coping very well with the interface between Old and New: Lemon-tea and polystyrene. Perhaps, like adolescents and automobiles, these two factors should not be combined without first investigating the potential for harm.

Let's see now. Tea contains cancerous tannic acid, caffeine and many unspecified compounds. Milk has been shown to be laced with radioactive strontium, depending on which nuclear reactor blew up last week. Lemon juice plasticizes styrene cups and, God knows, maybe even our stomachs. Drinking water may contain pesticides and horrendous amounts of organic solvents. Some ocean fish contain enough mercury to be hazardous for children and pregnant women to eat.

As far as I know, glass and China cups are safe — but in our strange new world of consumer-advocated unpleasant surprises, who knows? For the time being, it might be wise for us to steep and drink tea in non-plastic containers. Or, at least, if you like lemon in your tea, avoid polystyrene cups. On the other hand, if melted plastic suits your palate, good luck and bon appetite.

DearAbby

DEAR ABBY: I need your help. I am 28 years old and have two great parents. Their marriage has not always been the best.

My mom confided to me the other night that she has been seeing a man who works with her. I couldn't believe it. Mom is a recovering alcoholic, sober for 12 years — and since she met this man, she goes out with him several times a week for drinks and dinner.

I am ready to fall apart. My teenage sister is in drug rehab, and now my mother starts drinking again, cheats on my father and asks me not to tell. On top of that, I have a child with disabilities. What am I to do?

I love my parents dearly. Should I tell my dad about the other man? I have asked my mom to stop, but she says this man "treats her like a queen."

STRESSED TO THE MAX IN THE SOUTH

DEAR STRESSED: For your sanity, take yourself out of the middle. As much as you love them, you are not responsible for saving your parents' marriage. Your father must be aware on some level that your mother is drinking again.

"Queens" have been known to lose their heads, and it appears your mother has lost hers. The next time she confides in you about her Prince Charming, tell her you refuse to be her confidante. Silence makes you an accomplice. Give your mother a deadline to come clean with your father, and tell her if she doesn't tell him what's going on by then, you will. Between your mother and your sister, your father has enough problems. He doesn't need a sexually transmitted disease on top of everything else.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 20-year-old college student living at home. I recently met a guy I'll call "Sandy" over the Internet. I found his e-mail address on an e-pals site and wrote to him. We have been chatting online almost every night and have fallen in love.

Sandy and I are serious about each other, and he is who he says he is, because I have done some background checks on him. I am planning on traveling to see him as soon as I earn the money. (He lives in Australia.)

My problem is my parents. They are very protective and refuse to accept how I feel about Sandy. They worry because I met him on the Internet.

How should Sandy and I approach my parents? We thought about Sandy writing them a letter, but I don't know if that would work. Please help.

IN LOVE IN THE U.S.A.

DEAR IN LOVE: I understand your parents' concern, because people are not always what they represent themselves to be on the Internet. However, many people have found true love via the information superhighway, so the fact that you met Sandy online should not automatically rule him out. Ask him to visit you and your family, rather than you making that first move. It would prove his sincerity and give your parents a chance to ease their concerns by giving him the traditional "once-over." I wish you the best of luck.

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

Good advice for everyone — teens to seniors — is in "The Anger in All of Us and How to Deal With It." To order, send a business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $5 (U.S. funds only) to: Dear Abby, Anger Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, IL 61054-0447. (Postage is included.)

ContractBridge

Amusing incidents occasionally occur in major tournaments. For example, there was a time some years ago when a young Polish pair, representing their country for the first time in the annual world championship, arrived at a dreadful grand-slam contract. After the opening lead was made and dummy appeared, declarer could see that his partner had overbid his values by at least two tricks. Declarer looked at the dummy, then looked at his partner and said: "That dummy is an insult to Poland!"

If you were West on the hand below, you might have similar feelings if you reached Six Spades due to partner's over-optimism after you opened two notrump. However, they don't allow you to back up and change the contract, so the question is how to play the hand after North leads the ten of clubs (assume the missing trumps divide 3-1 or 2-2).

West
 ♠ K Q 10 9
 ♥ A K 3
 ♦ A 10 2
 ♣ A 3 2

East
 ♠ A J 8 7 6
 ♥ 7 6
 ♦ Q 5
 ♣ J 6 5 4

The only genuine chance for the slam is to find South with the doubleton K-Q of clubs, as well as the king of diamonds. Accordingly, you play a low club for dummy, and South, luckily for you, produces the queen.

Schwarzenegger begins damage control

By The Associated Press
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Entering his final campaign push, Arnold Schwarzenegger shifted into damage-control mode, apologizing for "bad behavior" toward women and saying he couldn't imagine ever telling an interviewer that he admired Adolf Hitler.

New reports that the former bodybuilder had groped women and once said he admired the Nazi leader surfaced Thursday as he began a four-day campaign bus tour. Schwarzenegger's popularity had surged in the polls, and his entourage was met by cheering crowds, but the focus had shifted to his past.

Stories by ABC News and The New York Times said the actor told an interviewer during the filming of the bodybuilding documentary "Pumping Iron" in 1975 that he admired Hitler's rise to power from humble beginnings.

Schwarzenegger, with wife Maria Shriver at his side, told a late-night news conference Thursday that he didn't recall making the remarks.

"I don't remember any of those comments because I always despise everything that Hitler stood for," Schwarzenegger said, calling the Nazi leader a "disgusting villain."

Sen. Dianne Feinstein, a Democrat who opposes the effort to recall Gov. Gray Davis, said of the reported comment, "I think it's appalling."

"Your personal behavior does affect you in public office," Feinstein said on NBC's "Today" show. "I like to believe and hope that we elect the best among us, not some of the least among us."

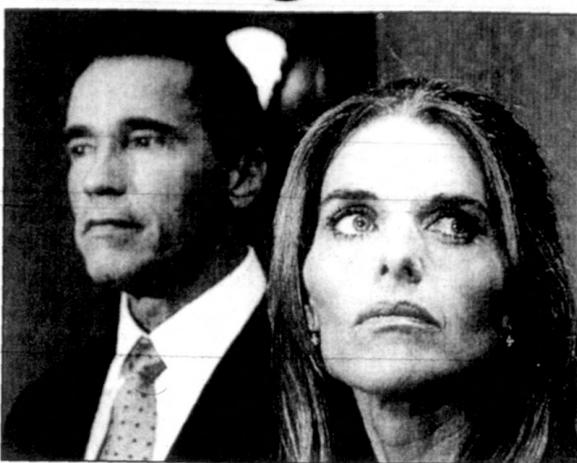

Earlier in the day in San Diego, Schwarzenegger addressed allegations in the Los Angeles Times, which reported the claims of six women who accused him of sexually harassing and groping them between 1975 and 2000.

"Yes, it is true that I was on rowdy movie sets and I have done things that were not right, which I thought then was playful but now I recognize that I offended people," Schwarzenegger said. "Those people that I have offended, I want to say to them I am deeply sorry."

Asked about the groping allegations, Shriver referred her to husband's remarks: "As I say to my children, it always takes great courage to stand before anybody and apologize, and I think that's what Arnold did today," Shriver said.

Recent polls have shown a majority of voters ready to oust Davis in the Oct. 7 recall election, with Schwarzenegger as the front-runner to replace him, followed by Democratic Lt. Gov. Cruz Bustamante.

obtained copies of an unpublished book proposal with quotes from a transcript of the 1975 interview, in which Schwarzenegger allegedly said, "I admired Hitler, for instance, because he came from being a little man with almost no formal education, up to power."

He also allegedly said he wished he could experience addressing a crowd at a huge political rally.

"The feeling like Kennedy had, you know, to speak to maybe 50,000 people at one time and having them cheer, or like Hitler in the Nuremberg stadium," he said, according to the transcript. "And have all those people scream."

Drug questions arise as Limbaugh resigns from sports job

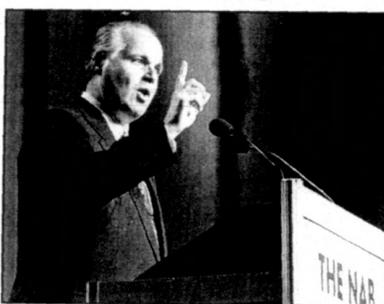

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Rush Limbaugh is being investigated for illegally buying prescription drugs, Florida investigators said Thursday, hours after the conservative commentator gave up his job as an ESPN sports analyst over reaction to comments he made about a black quarterback.

Law enforcement sources who spoke on condition of anonymity confirmed to The Associated Press that Limbaugh is being investigated by the Palm Beach County state attorney's office.

The allegations were first reported by the National Enquirer. CNN reported Thursday that sources close to the investigation said Limbaugh had turned up as a buyer of powerful painkillers but that he was not the target of the investigation.

Premiere Radio Networks, which syndicates the politically focused "Rush Limbaugh Show" to more than 650 markets, issued a statement from Limbaugh on Thursday saying: "I am unaware of any investigation by any authority involving me. No government representative has contacted me directly or indirectly. If my assistance is required, I will, of course, cooperate fully."

Limbaugh left his ESPN job late Wednesday, three days after saying on the sports network's "Sunday NFL Countdown" that Philadelphia Eagles quarterback Donovan McNabb was overrated because the media wanted to see a black quarterback succeed.

"I think what we've had here is a little social concern in the NFL. The media has been very desirous that a black quarterback do well,"

Limbaugh said on the show. "There is a little hope invested in McNabb, and he got a lot of credit for the performance of this team that he didn't deserve. The defense carried this team."

McNabb said he didn't mind criticism of his performance but was upset that Limbaugh made his race an issue. Eagles owner Jeffrey Lurie on Thursday accused ESPN of "institutional racism" for hiring Limbaugh in the first place.

Limbaugh said Thursday that he resigned so network employees would be spared the uproar over his comments.

"The great people at ESPN did not want to deal with this kind of reaction," Limbaugh told the National Association of Broadcasters at its convention in Philadelphia. "The path of least resistance became for me to resign."

George Bodenheimer, president of ESPN and ABC Sports, accepted Limbaugh's resignation, saying: "We believe that he took the appropriate action to resolve this matter expeditiously."

Limbaugh did not address the drug investigation reports in his speech.

The Enquirer had interviewed Wilma Cline, who said she became Limbaugh's drug connection after working as his maid. She said Limbaugh had abused OxyContin and other painkillers.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, Oct. 4, 2003:

You seem to have your own personal muse this year, someone who inspires you beyond the norm. If you are in any creative form of work, you will discover that your imagination seems endless, feeding your endeavors. If you are a writer or in any artistic field at all, your work flows like a fountain. If you are single, a very special relationship will enter your life, taking you in a new direction. However, be aware that this person might not be as emotionally free as you would like. You gain through this bond, but perhaps not in the traditional manner. Around your birthday in 2004, you are likely to meet that very special person. If attached, you will discover that a new-found romance exists between you. For those who are young enough, a child might be in the offing. AQUARIUS also is fun.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

***** Let your hair down and make the most of today and what goes on. A friend might be full of ideas, but more importantly, you like being with this person. Do what comes naturally: Surround yourself with music. Tonight: The party goes on and on.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

***** A parent knows what he or she wants without question. Your imagination helps you walk in this person's shoes. Together you can create solutions to what seems like a real logjam. Do something totally relaxing, perhaps involving music or water. Tonight: A must show.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

***** Reach out to a loved one at a distance. You give this person enormous emotional satisfaction. Make plans together for a vacation in the near future. Or you might decide to meet halfway on an impulse this weekend. Buy a new CD. Tonight: Opt for something different.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

***** For once, you don't need to make plans or have all the action surrounding your home. Someone close decides to run with the ball and do the entertaining. What started as a casual conversation becomes more meaningful. Tonight: Togetherness counts.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

***** What starts out as just another Saturday could develop into an exciting happening. The way to enjoyment is to willingly lose control and let another run with the ball. You could be delighted by the outcome. Tonight: Let go of your reservations.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

*** Pace yourself. If you think a situation is redeemable, do whatever you need to do in order to make it work. You often see only the best in others, which at times could become a distinct problem. Not everyone is as innocent as you might want to believe. Tonight: Easy does it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

***** Share your euphoria with others, as it could quite possibly be contagious. You also might not be seeing someone as clearly as you think. But you also might not care. Be open to trying something totally different and new. Tonight: Let magic happen.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

*** You could be more in touch with your libido energies than you have been for a while. Let your creativity flow, allowing more self-expression in your family life or your personal bond with a loved one or child. Tonight: You don't have to go far to find the action.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

***** Respond to an invitation that seems fun but might not take you far from your neighborhood. Meet at your favorite deli or hangout. Someone's news startles you. Tonight: You don't have to go far.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

*** You offer far more than others think. Perhaps you need to sit down and look at some of your innate talents. You might opt to develop some of these gifts in the near future, perhaps not to make money, but for your own pleasure. Tonight: Your treat.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

***** Allow your imagination to lead, and although you might get into some trouble, you could have a great time. Acknowledge what is happening within as well. Everyone needs to let off steam once in a while — you, perhaps, more often. Tonight: The world is your oyster.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

*** Examine what might be going on behind the scenes. A hunch could be far more right-on than you're aware of. You might not want to take action, but rather sit on your feelings. You gather information fairly quickly as a result. Tonight: Whatever it is, keep it mysterious!
