JOE E. BROWN IN "ALBI IKE" OPENS AT ORPHEUM TUESDAY

Joe E. Brown is coming to town. He appears at the Orpheum Theatre in "Albi Ike" Warner Bros. home run comedy, based on the popular story by Ring Lardner. Joe, in the title role, is both a crack pitcher and the best batter of his club. He has an alibi for everything—not just for mistakes—but for plays any other player would have been proud of. Joe falls in love with the sister of the Captain's wife, but when he alibis on his romance, the girl hears him and turns him down cold. Thrills follow in which Joe is kidnapped by a bunch of crooks, but he escapes, and the romance is patched up by the players in one of the most comical climaxes imaginable. Olivia de Havilland, the stunning eighteen year old girl who made such a hit in Max Reinhardt's "A Midsummer Night's Dream," is the leading feminine role opposite Joe. Others in the cast include Ruth Donnelly, Roscoe Karns, William Frawley, Eddie Shubert, Paul Harvey, Joseph King, Joseph Crehan, Adrian Rosley and a score of expert baseball players of national reputation.

Louisville, Ky. (Special)—State Fair Secretary, Garth K. Ferguson, announces that the Louisville Retail Merchants' Association would sponsor the State-wide Beauty Contest to be held at the State Fair this year on the night of September 10, and would also award the rich cash and merchandise prizes to the winners of which there will be more than ever. GOOD MEETING AT CHESTNUT GLADE

About thirty-five members of the Fulton Chamber of Commerce went to Chestnut Glade Friday night, July 12, to attend another one of the good will meetings. The Rawls made the welcoming address after which Paul Hornbeak was in charge of the program. The principal speakers of the evening were Paul Meeks, Executive Officer of the Martin U. T. Junior College and Ray DeMoss, Professor of animal husbandry of that college. After the meeting a bountiful dinner was served.

LEGION SETS UP FUND FOR HOSPITAL CASES

Final arrangements were completed this week by the local post of the American Legion, in which this organization has set up an emergency hospital fund, in order that hospitalization may be provided for those who are unable to pay for such services because of unemployment or because their salary is too small to take care of such an emergency, according to the Legion committee in charge of this fund. Plans have been carried out whereby regular cash contributions will be made monthly into the hospital fund for these emergency measures. Dr. Horace Luten, Jess Jordan, commander of the Legion Post, and Earle Taylor compose the committee which will conduct activities along this line.

Rules and regulations governing this emergency hospital fund are as follows:

Families on relief rolls will be entitled to free hospitalization; the head of any family making less than $10 a week without other means of support, will be eligible for free hospitalization for himself and his family; and the head of any family who is making more than $10 weekly and not over $15 may borrow money to hospitalize any member of his family. He must pay the money back but not one cent of interest is charged.

This emergency fund is provided for only residents of Fulton, Ky., and that part of Fulton county which lies east of the M. & O. Railroad. Any emergency case first and treatment and hospitalization may be rushed to the hospital for 24 hours free of charge until their case may be investigated to determine whether they are eligible for hospitalization through the fund set up by the American Legion.

There has long been a need for emergency cases where they or such services here to take care of their families are unable to afford it. It is believed that the Legion has solved a problem which will mean much to the community.

"We have quite a number of refund checks on car licenses bought before February 23rd, that are uncalled for and the most of them live around Fulton and I was wondering if you would make a list of short news items of this in your paper, as I feel sure you have a large circulation in the country around Fulton."

Will appreciate it. Yours very truly,

J. F. Semones, Jr.,

County Clerk,

Obion County.

SEASON'S BIGGEST FISH STORY TOLD BY SAWYER

Fishermen may come and fishermen stories this or tops them all. Fred Sawyer, one of Fulton's inveterate hunters, told a NEWS reporter the other day that he had been fishing on Reelfoot Lake at least fifty times in the past few years and has fished from 6 to 18 hours each time, but to this day he has never caught a fish out of this lake.

He declares he has fished between men who would catch them one after another; fished where other men fished; and where other men have not fished, but as yet he has never caught a fish out of Reelfoot.

Just imagine 600 hours or 36,000 minutes spent in fishing—enough to catch at least 2,000 fish—and nary a fish yet for Fred. We'd like to know what Fred has done to deserve such an attitude toward his hook by all the fish in Reelfoot.

HENRY ELBERT NEWTON BURIED IN FAIRVIEW

Funeral services were held from the First Baptist Church Wednesday afternoon by Rev. Woodrow Fuller for Henry Elbert Newton, 69, who died Monday of heart failure at Chattanooga, Tenn. Burial followed at Fairview cemetery. Mr. Newton, who was born May 14, 1866, in Dukedom, Tenn., the son of George and Elizabeth Ann Newton, is survived by his wife, one daughter, Mrs. Charles E. Holt, Nashville; two sons, L. B. Newton, Old Hickory, A. B. Newton, Washington, D. C.; one brother, P. J. Newton, Union City; one sister, Mrs. Florrie McGuire, Springfield, Mo.; four grandchildren and other relatives.

Mr. Newton was a resident of Fulton for many years, until he moved to Chattanooga, in 1917. In 1888 he married Miss Lilla Dale Valentine to which union five children were born, two of which died in infancy. His first wife preceded him in death. He joined the First Baptist Church in this city 35 years ago and was a faithful member. He leaves many friends in this community who will extend sympathy to the bereaved family.

Burial in charge of Hornbeak.

HEPBURN AND BOYER HAVE TENSE ROMANCE IN "BREAK OF HEARTS"

Really soul-stirring love scenes have been enacted for the camera between Katherine Hepburn and Chas. Boyer in "Break of Hearts." While Boyer, idol of the French stage and screen, has been hailed as one of the great lovers of films, Hepburn never before has been cast in a role that offered her so great an opportunity to display her talent for romantic love. "Break of Hearts" tells the story of a young composer who marries a famous maestro but leaves him when she believes that her love is no longer necessary to him. His plunge to the depths of despair and his regeneration through her love make an enthralling picture, which comes to the Orpheum Theatre next Thursday for two days.

TUESDAY NIGHT CLUB

Miss Mary Swann Bushart entertained her Tuesday night bridge club Tuesday night at her home on Third-st. Three tables of guests were present including two tables of club members and one table of visitors. After several games of bridge high score among the club members was held by Mrs. Glynn Wiseman. Mrs. B. A. Micheal held high score among the visitors. Both received lovely prizes.

After a delightful evening of bridge a delicious iced salad course was served.

The Three Lucky Strikes, local colored harmony trio, entertained the Lions Club last Friday with several vocal numbers. Warren Graham, who had charge of the program, was responsible for the unique performance.

No meeting will be held this Friday by the club, but a picnic will be enjoyed at Smith Atkins' camp on the Middle Road. Ladies will be invited guests for this affair.

GRAND OLE OPRY WILL DRAW RECORD
CROWD AT BRADFORD, FRIDAY, JULY 26

Unless all signs fail, there will be more cars through Bradford on Friday, July 26, than ever before on any day. The reason for this widespread pilgrimage is the personal appearance of WSM's "Grand Ole Opry" and their popular announcer, George D. Hay, in Dowland Grove that day. "The Solemn Old Judge" will bring his entourage down the day before, so that the program may start promptly at sun-up and last until sun-down, he himself acting as chief master of ceremonies throughout the day. Rev. Gowers will be local master of ceremonies.

People have learned by experience during the last several years that "Dowland Grove" really puts on what they advertise, and that is one of many reasons why the crowds continue to grow each year coming from all between Dyersburg to Paris, Jackson to Fulton, Huntington to Brownsville, Union City to Humboldt, and many come from West Kentucky. Practically all this territory is less than one hour drive from Bradford, on Highway 45 East between Milan and Martin.

The very latest in sound equipment has been contracted to arrive the day before, be installed and tested to insure that nothing goes wrong on the big day, and so the "Barn Dancers" can start without

FLAVIOUS B. MARTIN
TALKS ON POLITICS AT CITY HALL HERE

Flavious B. Martin, Commonwealth Attorney for the First Judicial District, spoke before a good audience at the City Hall here Tuesday night, in interest of Thos. S. Rhea, Democratic candidate for governor of Kentucky. C. J. Bowers, magistrate of this district, introduced Mr. Martin. In explanation of his reason for coming to Fulton to address the people, Mr. Martin said he came in response to a request of his friends to give his reasons for supporting Rhea for governor, and opposing A. B. Chandler. Martin charged that Ben Johnson and Dan Talbot had by their political power controlled the last state convention and forced the nomination of Governor Laffoon and other state officials now at Frankfort.

Mr. Martin paid high tribute to Rhea, stating that every merchant in his home town of Russellville closed their stores and attended the opening speech of Rhea at Owensboro.

In discussing the sales tax, Mr. Martin declared it was an act of necessity to prevent the closing of schools and the withdrawal of federal relief aid from this state. He said the present sales tax was unfair to the people and the merchants but would be a law only until June 30, 1936, when it automatically becomes dead unless re-enacted by the Legislature. Mr. Rhea favors the elimination of food stuff and other necessities from the provision of the bill, and advocates exemption from taxation of homesteads to the amount of $7,500, which Mr. Martin declared would help 80 percent of the people of Fulton County.

In conclusion, Mr. Martin announced a rally for Rhea at Mayfield Saturday, July 20, 1:30 p. m.

KEEPING OUR DOLLARS

There is a lesson in the circulation of your blood. As long as your heart works normally, and the blood stream flows smoothly through your body you are a normal, healthy person. But interrupt the action of your heart, or allow a blood stream to become punctured and permit the blood to leak out of your body and you will grow weaker and die.

Your community is like your body, only it depends upon the circulation of payrolls or money from one person to another. Every dollar taken away from Fulton is gone for good, and is no longer an integral working part for building this community. Remember that—and when you go to buy anything, buy it at home. The community and yourself will benefit.

DOING THINGS

While Rome burned, Nero played away on his violin. He loved a good time—regardless of the neglect to affairs worth while to the growth and progress of his kingdom.

Rome fell because of its wickedness, and its unbusiness-like rulers. There are many countries, states and cities like that today. Too much time is devoted to the unnecessary things of life. Too much feasting, too much drinking, too much pleasure-seeking—and not enough of DOING THINGS really worth while.

A man or a community is judged by the things they do, and it is up to us all to do our best.

THE WAR CLOUDS GATHER
The war clouds are gathering thickly over Europe, Asia and Africa. All of the efforts in behalf of peace on the part of nations who have already got a satisfactory slice of Mother Earth seem to have no effect upon the nations which are bent upon grabbing off more territory for themselves.

Japan continues its incursions into Chinese territory. Germany is speeding up its rearmament plans. Italy seems determined to make its invasion of Africa as vigorous as any of the campaigns of the old Roman Empire.

England has signally failed as a peace-maker. Mussolini has turned the British advances and practically defied the English to do anything about his attempt to seize Abyssinia. By her efforts to bring about a peaceful understanding with Germany, Great Britain seems to have reopened the scars of the ancient enmity of France. Russia's protests against Japan's activities on the continent of Asia go on unabated.

All the instrumentalities set up to insure world peace seem to have failed. The League of Nations seems to be letting Ethiopia, one of its members, go to its doom without more than a feeble protest. The famous Kellogg Pact, America's scheme for insuring world peace,

WE ARE DRINKING LESS
The population of the United States is 26 million more persons in 1935 than in 1917. In the fiscal year ending June 30, 1937, the people of the United States consumed 85,242,000 gallons of whiskey. In the fiscal year just ended, a population more than one-fifth larger drank a third less whiskey—only 55,500,000 gallons.

The Government's Internal Revenue statistics, from which those figures are taken, tell a similar story in regard to beer and wine. We drank the 26 million more of us, 322 million fewer gallons of beer as compared with 15 years ago, and 15 million fewer gallons of wine.

We have no comment to make at this time on the moral aspects of the repeal of the Prohibition amendment and the laws enacted under it, but we do think it pertinent to put the disproof of the oft-heard assertion that the habit of drinking intoxicating liquors was greatly increased under Prohibition. If that were true, then certainly the volume of alcoholic drinks consumed now, by a much larger population, would not show a decline, but a increase.

There probably is a considerable volume of bootleg liquor still being peddled. That would not show, of course, in the Government's revenue tax figures. But it is hardly likely that such illicit traffic can be larger enough to account for the wide gap between the figures of the fiscal year since Repeal, the year just ended.

The plain fact seems to us to be that the American people are doing less drink than they used to do. Moreover, we believe that the use of alcohol will continue to decline, as the younger generation begins to discover for itself that booze and motoring, liquor and athletics, don't mix.

GARTH FERGUSON GAINS HEADWAY

Louisville, Ky. (Special)—While the principal interest at State political headquarters in Louisville is centered around the leaders in the gubernatorial race, the pot is beginning to boil in the minor State contests. This is particularly true in the race for Commissioner of Agriculture, wherein Secretary of the Kentucky State Fair, former State Senator, Garth K. Ferguson, from all reports, is making considerable headway despite the fact that his heavy duties at the State Fair prevents his making an intensive personal campaign throughout the State.

Mr. Ferguson says that the Fair program this year means so much to the agricultural interests of Kentucky that his duty to the State Fair must necessarily come first, and that he will have to leave the big end of the efforts in behalf of his candidacy to his friends, who, in great numbers from all over the State, says he, are daily assuring him of sufficient support to make his nomination a practical certainty.

'The Divorce Court Murder'

By Milton Propper

SEVENTH INSTALLMENT
SYNOPSIS—Six persons are in an inner office of the law firm of Dawson, McQuire and Locke at Philadelphia. A bitter hearing in the divorce case of Rowland vs. Rowland is under way. Mrs. Rowland, represented by her lawyer brother, Mr. Willard; Mr. Rowland, the defendant, and his attorney, Mr. Trumbull; the court clerk and Mr. Dawson, the master, are the six persons. There is a new development in the case. After failing to defend himself against the charge of adultery in earlier hearings, Mr. Rowland digs up evidence and asks the court's permission to produce witnesses and resist the heated objections of Mr. Willard, and orders the witness brought in. Rowland's lawyer goes to get the witness but finds her dead—chloroformed. Mrs. Rowland, a business woman, Judge Dawson, who is assigned to the case, is now questioning all of the parties involved in the case. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

According to the court reporter's record, that was all he said, namely, that at 11:30, a stranger, who was Mortimer Keith, husband of the murdered woman, appeared unexpectedly from the jail, looked about as though puzzled, and then left quickly without a word.

To Rankin, now, the incident was of utmost significance. Months before it could even have been conjectured that his murdered wife would be a leading witness to Mrs. Rowland's own infidelities. Mr. Keith had been present at the scene of Rowland's apprehension. How was he apprised of the rendezvous at the inn, and what did he expect to find there? What could his interest in that intrigue possibly have been?

Instantly, Rankin perceived that an immediate answer to these questions was essential to the solution of the crime. Going to the office door, he called Jenkins to summon Miss Edmond.

When the secretary appeared, he motioned her to a seat and returned to the lawyer's private chair.

"Sit down, Miss Edmond," he said brusquely. "You know, of course, that I have charge of the investigation of this crime. I am questioning everyone connected with it. I am the respondent, I believe; I suspect then that you recall all that happened the night of Wednesday, February first, at the Sunset Inn."

Perfectly composed, the girl smiled quietly. "Yes, quite clearly," she admitted freely. "I could hardly have got it as I was unfortunately involved."

"You've also been told," the detective pursued, "that the dead woman is Mrs. Keith—Mrs. Mortimer Keith. Are you acquainted with her or her husband?"

Though Jill Edmond's tone did not change, he caught an expression of wariness in her gaze before she could veil it.

"No, not personally, Mr. Rankin. As Mrs. Rowland's secretary, I never had occasion to deal with them. Of course, I've vaguely heard of them as people prominent in Philadelphia society."

"I have here the complete story of the escape at the Inn," Rankin tapped Mr. Simpson's stenographic report. "Among other facts, it states that at 11:30, just after Mrs. Rowland invited the bedroom Mr. Keith arrived and entered her room. At least, you remember that?"

As he paused, the girl merely nodded, her very silence an indication of her vigilance.

"What I want to learn, Miss Edmond, is why he appeared like that? How was he connected with this affair between you and the Rowlands?"

The secretary shook her head. "I don't think I can tell you that, sir," she answered. "I don't know why he came. In fact, he was a total stranger to me until some time later when Mr. Rowland identified him as Mortimer Keith."

"Surely he must have offered some explanation for his intrusion into an embarrassing domestic scene in which he had no concern," Rankin pressed.

"I don't believe he said a word," Miss Edmond returned. "He didn't remain over a minute; he just came in from the hall and looked about, then he seemed to realize he was meddling and turned and went out silently."

Rankin sensed that she chose her words carefully. "You have no idea what brought him to that particular place at that time?"

Imperturbably the secretary hesitated, but her reply was positive and direct.

"Not the least, Mr. Rankin. He probably had no reason. If he happened to be in the inn that night, he couldn't help coming forward when he heard the commotion."

The detective placed small stock in this idea.

He retired to the library where present his report and get away. His examination of the body confirmed Dr. Clark's original diagnosis.

"Thanks, very much, doctor," Rankin said, when the physician completed his summary. "Now, I appreciate it if you'd do one more service for me before you leave. Attend to shipping the body to the morgue."

Grumbling, Dr. Sackett nevertheless proceeded to supervise the disposal of the corpse. Hardly had he gone when Johnson appeared from 1505, tying his fingerprint kit together.

"I'm just about finished in there, Tommy," he said. "I've located plenty of prints. And practically every visitor who entered fifteen-fifty is here too. Get Jerks to help you with that." He paused. "How about marks on the door and windows, Johnson? Did any come from there?"

The expert shook his head. "Nothing doing. I'm sorry to say, I examined the sills and knobs thoroughly but they were as clean as a whistle."

"And the chloroform bottle? Were there any prints on that?"

Again Johnson shook his head and the detective pursed his lips in disappointment.

The expert raised a hand and smiled quizzically. "One moment, Tommy, not so fast. Have you searched the office that held the body at all?"

"No, I haven't had time," Rankin replied.

"I made a pretty complete canvass of the place while collecting my prints; and I located something I supposed you had missed. These were stuffed away down in the bottom of the wastebasket under the desk—out of sight."

Johnson produced a pair of yellow sport shoe gloves, of expensive quality. Turning back the cuff, the detective disclosed the label of an exclusive haberdashery on Chestnut Street. They were clean and little worn, and he eagerly noted their size, 7 1/2.

The expert started to leave. "All right, Tommy, I'll do the best I can," he promised. "I rather expected you'd be interested in my find."

Now he returned to Mr. Dawson's office, switched on the central light and summoned Allen Rowland.

He motioned the young man to a chair. "Now I'm ready to discuss more important matters with you," he said; "primarily about your evidence of your wife's infidelity with Campbell."

Rowland made himself comfortable, lit a cigarette and offered Rankin one.

"My lawyer doesn't know anything about it personally," he returned easily. "Only what Mrs. Marshall and I were lucky enough to discover two weeks ago; we both went to him and gave him the details."

"Well, exactly what was this occurrence that gave you the chance to defend? And how did Mrs. Keith happen to be a witness to it?"

"Only accidentally; when I needed some one to lend me my story, she was fortunately in a position to help me." Rowland plunged into his account. "But long before my affair with Miss Edmond, my wife and I disagreed because of her friendships with other men. I knew she had many admirers; but I had no reason to believe she was misbehaving with any of them. After she brought suit, however, I moved into my own apartment and began to watch her closely. What was sauce for the goose, I decided, was sauce for the gander, and I hoped, in the end, to get evidence that she was being unfaithful. I was my own detective. First, I paid her chauffeur, Donald Finley, to keep me posted as to when she went out in the evening, and when she dismissed him, I came some one else was taking her. On those nights, for the last two months, I waited outside the estate for her. When she and her visitor left, I would follow them all over town—to parties, theaters and dinners. And Hugh Campbell was her most frequent companion."

"How long has he been acquainted with your wife?" Rankin asked. "Where did they meet?"

"At Saratoga last summer. Adele bets on the races regularly, and Campbell had a couple of horses entered on which she placed bets. They won, and afterward mutual acquaintances introduced them; that was the beginning. Then, last winter, we were at Palm Beach where he had taken a villa; she attended his parties and they saw much of each other at the casino and on the beach. He visited Philadelphia fairly regularly and has been a guest at the Willard home."

"Was the divorce entirely Mrs. Rowland's wish? You opposed it and would have done all in your power to prevent it?"

The young man spread his hands. "Certainly I opposed it," he declared vehemently. "I had everything to lose by it—the income Adele relied on for her living, and I was trustee of my wife's first husband's estate; that was most important. For that, I was anxious to stay married as long as I could."

Rankin's voice took a note of fresh interest. "Mr. Willard? How did it affect him? Had he a personal concern in the divorce?"

Rankin's professional desire to win the case?

"He benefited by it decidedly," Rowland gave a short, scornful laugh. "The minute Adele was single, the executorship of Tom Marshall's estate—and with it the power to manage its income—reverted to him. But as long as the marriage lasted, I had charge. It was all part of Marshall's clever arrangement to make it difficult for Adele to marry a second time."

"Difficult?" The detective frowned at his perplexity. "You'll have to explain, Mr. Rowland. How did he expect to accomplish such a purpose?"

The other shrugged. "Quite simply, through his will, Rankin. You see, Tom Marshall was a smart man and understood his wife as well as I did. And a jealous husband. It seemed probable that at his death she would marry again and he intended to forestall that. So in his will, he fixed it that whoever she married next would be independent of her. In fact, he would actually manage her financial affairs and, through them, her, at least with regard to his property."

"Exactly what did the terms of the will provide?" Rankin inquired.

"In the first place, he made her brother executor of his estate so long as Adele remained single after his death," Rowland elaborated. "He was to direct all investments for both their benefits and turn over to her at least seventy percent of the actual income. Or, if she married again and was then divorced, the control reverted to him. Naturally, it was to Willard's advantage to keep her a widow; and if she should remarry, induce her to separate."

JESSIE MAE REEVES BOWLIN

A large crowd assembled at Oak Grove to pay the last tribute of respect to Mrs. Jessie Mae Reeves Bowlin on Sunday, July 14, 1935. These friends with tear-dimmed eyes and hearts overflowing with compassion for all of the sorrowing ones portrayed the fact that her life had been one of beauty and love.

She was taken ill on Sunday preceding her death on Saturday, July 13, 1935. Every possible step was taken to comfort her and to save her life. Death, the inescapable and a siamese twin to birth, cannot be understood; the Rev. Foster, who had charge of the services, spoke of this fact. Bro. Homer Royster also made a few brief remarks besides conducting the beautiful songs honoring the deceased. The pretty flowers, in their purity, were a token of love expressing sympathy to the entire grieving family.

Jessie Mae being energetic, methodical and systematic will be remembered as an immaculate housekeeper. She was jovial and likable in disposition.

Palbearers and flower girls were selected from among her relatives and bosom friends. The prayer of all is that God may comfort and bless the bereaved husband; may he experience only happiness throughout life. The obituary as was read Sunday follows:

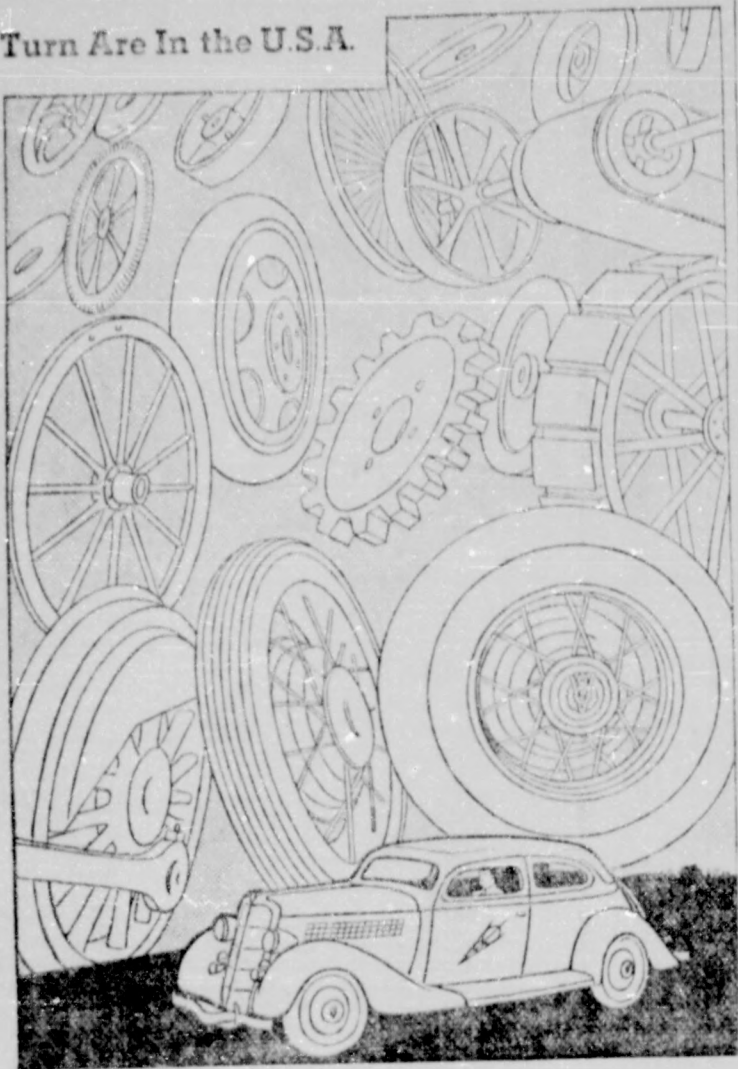

Jessie Mae Reeves Bowlin, born

September 8, 1906, died July 13, 1935. On January 9, 1926 she married Jeter Bowlin. During the year 1921 Jessie Mae obeyed the gospel at Oak Grove and was baptized by Bro. A. D. Colley.

Besides her husband she leaves her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Reeves, one brother, Edgar of St. Louis; two sisters, Mrs. Lillian Rhodes and Mrs. Obert Wall, who are residents of this community; also many other relatives and loyal friends.

The city council of South Fulton in regular session last week named Kelly Jenkins as chief of police to fill the vacancy caused by the recent resignation of D. M. Sanders.

Five-Sixths of the World's Wheels That Turn Are In the U.S.A.

The wheel has been called the greatest invention of man. Modern industrial civilization revolves with the wheel. In clocks, on railway tracks, on automobile highways, in factories, in farm machinery, the wheel is the foremost instrument of progress. Ford dealers alone have put more than 101,000,000 wheels on the road. These Ford wheels have been the greatest factor in the good roads and rural development of the south and of the nation.

America Leads World In Wheels

Wheels Measure Progress

Five-sixths of all the wheels that turn on this earth are in the United States. Whether we think of wheels in clocks, or wheels on railway tracks, on automobile highways, in factories or in farm machinery, that proportion holds. Where the rest of the world has one wheel of any sort, this country has five. The fact is rather startling, because no sign of the wheel has ever been found among the aboriginal American races. They built pyramids and temples. They made a calendar. Their decorative art is appreciated and even imitated by moderns. They had some of the practical sciences. They built towering cities of mystery which archaeological exploration is uncovering. Their roads rank with the best. But, with all their culture, they never came upon the idea of the wheel. When chariots and military wagons were common in the ancient East, only beasts and men and beasts were the carriers of America—the wheeled vehicle was as little known as radio was. Yet, on this once wheelless continent, more wheels are turning today than anywhere in the world.

The wheel has reduced miles to minutes, destroyed the barriers of distance. In George Washington's time, New York was six days distant from Boston and three days from Philadelphia. A motor car skims these distances in as many hours. Old men now living remember when California was 25 days distant from St. Louis, Missouri. The tragedy of the great pioneer trek to the West lay largely in the fact that twelve miles a day was the "covered wagon's" average progress. Motorists now cross the continent and return in a brief summer vacation. In George Washington's day it cost $249 to transport a ton of goods from Philadelphia to Erie by pack horse. Along came the wheel—the great wheels of the Conestoga wagon—and carried six tons for $40. You could buy a fleet of the powerful 1935 Ford V-8's today for the cost of a Conestoga wagon and its ten mules, and each car would deliver 85 mule power or horsepower.

Ford dealers alone have put more than 101,000,000 wheels on the road, which must have been a considerable factor in the development of the South and the nation.

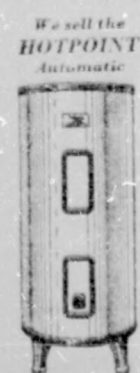

The South, great in resources and ideal in climate, is rising to claim its rightful heritage of abundant life for all. Ford dealers help the South in its progress. Each 20,000 Ford V-8's sold in the South contribute as much horsepower as one Niagara Falls. In the first four months of 1935 Ford dealers delivered in the South approximately 20,000 new Ford V-8's. The total available horsepower of these cars is equal to five Niagara Falls.

WORK RELIEF HELD UP FOR NEW PROGRAM

Louisville, Ky., July 13—Work relief projects carried on under the Kentucky Emergency Relief Administration were stopped Thursday, July 11, pending transfer of such projects as are considered worth while to the Works Progress Administration. It is estimated several weeks will be required for the transition.

Mr. Goodman expressed the hope that there would be no unnecessary delay in transfer of some 3,000 projects in the State giving employment to nearly 70,000 men. Funds for relief in July, he pointed out, already have been cut approximately 30 per cent with prospects for a more severe cut in August.

The starting of projects under the Works Progress Administration, George H. Goodman, administrator said, will be exactly in proportion to the energy and co-operation of the various local governmental units in filing the necessary applications.

The government, Mr. Goodman said, is setting itself up under the new Works Progress Administration solely as an employer. If projects are slow in coming in from the various counties and towns it natural will fall the lot of local governmental unit to meet needs for relief he said, until such time as projects are approved to care for the workables in a given locality.

The whole thing, according to Mr. Goodman's statement, narrows down to the bare fact that no Works Progress Administration projects means, in time, relief.

Local governmental units, under the new program are expected to assist in financing projects of a highly constructive and permanent nature. Sworn financial statements are required with the filing of projects that no community may shirk its duty. This does not mean, Mr. Goodman said, that pauper counties will be penalized in any way. In that instance the government will assume full responsibility for all approved projects.

Applications for projects must be filled out on forms now available in each of the KERA offices over the state. Such applications should reach the Louisville office not later than Monday noon of each week for consideration and approval at Washington the following Monday.

When the new program swings fully into motion, Mr. Goodman said, the government will be interested only in workable men. Non-workables and indigents, when direct relief cases, will become the charges of the State and local governmental units, will offer employment at a fair rate of pay, for which a man either works or he does not. A worker will receive the pay for which he has worked and the government establishes no supervision as to how he spends it.

BRADFORD DAY, JULY 26.

delay that morning.

The amazing part of the whole thing is how this little community can afford to bring practically the whole organization of one of the richest and most powerful broadcasting stations in the world from distant Nashville to Bradford without losing money for, obviously, the expense must be great, just the transportation costs alone being quite sizeable. Yet the small admission is less than for a mere tent show, fair, or even a movie. Furthermore, the "Grand Ole Opry" is not the whole program by any means, for they always have the very best in male quartets, jokesters, sports, baseball or wrestling and boxing. Among many new features this year will be included the following old favorites: Uncle Dave Macon, the Dixie Dewdrop and King of all hillbilly showmen; Curt Poulton; Delmore Brothers the nationally famous "Dixie Four" quartet with unusual bass; those lovable mountain girls, "Sarie and Sallie"; the Solemn Old Judge, himself, as master of ceremonies; Paul and Burt; Black face comedy; Hawaiian music; the Gully Jumpers band and DeFord Bailey with that famous Pan-American harmonica.

Announcements of the program at Bradford can be heard Saturday nights at 8 o'clock over WSM, and WTJS at Jackson will also make occasional announcements. There will be free parking space for 10,000 cars.

Boxing will also be on the program. Young Leonard, 147 lbs. of Jack, Miss, vs. Red King, 145 lbs. of Jackson, Tenn., will fight the main bout. Elam Richardson 131 lbs. of Paducah, vs. Eamon Pitts, 129 lbs. of Jackson, Tenn., are carded for the semi-windup.

Katherine Osborn, juvenile champion tumbler, and Warner Guy Perkins III have been booked. Another last minute addition is Irvin Goodman, vaudeville artist in blackface tap dancing.
