Hotel businesses boom during Homecoming time

By KRISTIN TAYLOR
Staff Writer

When finding a hotel room becomes a chore and restaurants are packed more than usual, something big must be going on at Murray State University.

Many university alumni will return this weekend to their alma mater for Homecoming.

"Obviously, a lot of Murray State alumni come back to town," said Lisa Satterwhite, assistant director at Murray-Calloway County Chamber of Commerce. "They stay in our hotels and eat in our restaurants. They shop while they are here."

Murray State's Homecoming includes many different activities, such as golf and tennis tournaments, reunions for different classes and organizations. The Racers football team will face Eastern Illinois at 3 p.m. Saturday at Stewart Stadium.

"It's a weekend full of activities," Satterwhite said.

Saturday also is the last day for the local farmer's market, which is downtown by the courthouse from 7:30 a.m. to noon. The annual Homecoming parade begins downtown at 9:30 a.m. Saturday. It ends at 15th and Main streets.

"The farmer's market will be going on while the parade is going downtown," Satterwhite said.

Traffic in Murray is more congested than usual when Murray State hosts significant events, such as Homecoming and graduation, and when college students move in and out.

"Murray State's activities highly affect the activities of Murray," she added. "Where would we be without Murray State?"

University alumni looking for a place to sleep this weekend may have a difficult time if they don't already have reservations.

"We are completely booked and have been for two months now," said Kristina

Berry, Holiday Inn Express front desk clerk. "We are still getting calls. We given then all sense of hope we can help them as far as people canceling, but right now we are having to turn people away."

Homecoming is one of the busiest weekends for area hotels, said Jennifer Futch, Amerihost Inn front desk clerk. She said Amerihost has had all its rooms reserved for this weekend for several months.

"Most of what we have here is affected by Murray State," Futch said. "The university brings a lot of business to us, and we really appreciate it."

Days Inn has been booked for at least six weeks, said general manager Ryan Rogers. He said for a busy weekend like Homecoming, the hotel prepares with more staff members on hand and has less walk in reservations.

"Homecoming is definitely toward the top," he said. "There is usually always something going on at the university that brings in business."

Johnny Rickman said he's been reserving rooms for patrons this weekend at Murray Plaza Court for six or eight months. While Murray State creates a substantial amount of

Comments, concerns heard about CATS

By JOHN WRIGHT
Staff Writer

The Calloway County Board of Education, as it has been known to do, took its act on the road Thursday night for what was expected to be a festive meeting at Southwest Calloway Elementary School.

Assistant superintendent Ronnie Walker gave a report that covered the CATS test Calloway's students took this past spring. While the results have been known for several days, Walker still wanted the audience, along with the board, to know exactly where the district's schools stood.

Most, he said, are in good shape. "We have three schools — North Elementary, Calloway High School and Calloway Middle — that have met their goals, while the other two (East and Southwest) are progressing, so that is good news for our district there," he said, adding further positive comments. "And for the first time, we were given a district-wide goal for this test (including all the schools) and we scored a 78, which was our goal exactly."

He also explained that there are places that need watching. Both Southwest and East are above what is known as the assistance line, meaning they currently fall in an area between their goal and being classified as needing state assistance. Because of that, they are still seen as making progress. However, they still were below their respective goals.

East Elementary fell nearly five points short, while Southwest was a little more than three shy, which had come as a surprise, especially after its glowing reviews from the CTBS tests where it ranked 12th in the state. It scored a whopping 91.8 in reading on the CATS, but showed a near 11-point drop in math to 61.9.

"And with reading and math taking up 15 percent of the total ac-

Nobody was injured when a dump truck carrying brush and logs overturned on Ky. 280 around eight miles south of Murray Thursday morning. David Brown of New Concord was traveling east at around 11:30 when a chipper the truck was pulling developed a flat tire, causing the chipper to fall off the shoulder and shifting the weight on the truck. The Calloway County Sheriff's Department responded. The Kentucky State Highway Department dispatched two units to handle the clean-up of gasoline that had spilled from the truck. The road was closed for a few hours.

ATC construction project on hold; new graduation requirements discussed

By BRANDI WILLIAMS
Staff Writer

The Murray Board of Education decided Thursday night to hold off on an upcoming construction project at the Area Technology Center.

Terry Blake of RBS Designs explained that to build the small building to house welding equipment on the ATC campus was more than the board expected.

"We've had a lot of regulations come in on this little building that isn't cheap," he said.

The small building, which was estimated to cost about $30,000, is now estimated around $60,000 or $70,000 with new regulations from the Kentucky Board of Education and Department of Housing. Blake said apparently the regulations play a part because the building will be storing chemicals.

The board agreed to hold off on the building construction until a less expensive way to build is found.

In other business, the board agreed to the contract drawings for the Murray Middle School expansion. Blake also gave the group an update on the construction timeline which calls for receiving bids for the project in mid-February and demolition of the Austin Building and site development from December 2005 to June 2006.

He also proposed the group to write a letter to the state Board of Education requesting permission to use Pella Windows for the project. Superintendent Dale Reid said there was a provision in which the local board cannot say it will use Pella, which has proposed to make an exact replica of the original windows, Reid said. He said the state Board must give permission.

Furthermore, the board agreed to a request to hold graduation for the class of 2004 on May 27 at 6:30 p.m., in order to restore graduation on the last day of school.

In other business, the board passed the first reading of possible new graduation requirements. The board addressed this issue earlier in the year because it wanted to develop requirements that would make the students better prepared for college, allow students who take advanced placement extra credit toward their average, and provide students with class rank.

"I think this is a necessary change," said board member Jean Masthay. However, the board agreed the regulations needed to be reviewed again before set into place and will be taken up at the next board meeting.

Transportation director Steve Kroehler presented the board with a plan to lease a new bus through the KISTA program. Kroehler said this was necessary because there was a 1986 bus that was being retired for parts, and the preschool needed a new bus for a new route.

The leased bus will cost $35,227 over a 10 year period, but by using the KISTA program the board is reimbursed a majority of the funds by the state.

"It is approximately $65 to $75 a month for a new bus," he said. "It is hardly something to turn down."

The deadline for the decision is Nov. 15.

Chandler courts minority votes

By JOE BIESK
Associated Press Writer
LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Democrat Ben Chandler on Thursday promised he would be a "loud voice" for minorities in Kentucky and said as governor he would work to "empower" all people in the state.

He said as governor he would push for equality and increase the number of minority businesses that get state contracts. He also said he would push issues particularly concerning the black and Hispanic communities, such as creating an office of minority health affairs for the state.

"I will fight for more jobs, for better health care, better schools, safer streets for all Kentuckians, no matter what neighborhood you call home, the size of your bank account or the color of your skin," Chandler said. "I believe in equal opportunity for all."

Chandler met with a group of supporters Thursday afternoon in a park at Dunbar Community Center in Lexington. He promised to bridge the "digital divide" and improve health care for Kentucky minorities.

Chandler also criticized his Republican opponent, U.S. Rep. Ernie Fletcher who was in Washington, and said the congressman "votes against" minority issues.

Fletcher spokesman Wes Irvin said the congressman has a record of reaching out to the minority community. Fletcher would be more

New Fletcher TV spot says Chandler 'slinging that mud again'

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Ernie Fletcher's gubernatorial campaign Thursday began airing a statewide television commercial to counter the first attack ad of his Democratic opponent, Attorney General Ben Chandler.

The 30-second spot accuses Chandler of "slinging that mud again." It shows a Jack Russell terrier furiously digging in dirt.

The Chandler campaign ad, which began airing Tuesday, claims Fletcher has a record of "voting with the drug companies" as the 6th District congressman. Chandler has frequently zeroed on a Fletcher vote against allowing U.S. consumers to import American-made prescription drugs from other countries in which the drugs sell for less.

Fletcher claims he has voted for "reimportation" of drugs from Canada and Mexico but that the legislation he voted against would have covered as many as 25 countries, raising a drug-safety issue.

Chandler claims the issue is reduced profits for pharmaceutical companies that donate to Republican causes, including the Republican Governors Association, which has paid for TV ads attacking him.

In the new Fletcher ad, which presumes the viewer is familiar with the issue, a narrator says "Chandler's drug ad is not true" and that Fletcher "voted four times to lower drug costs, every time it guaranteed safe prescriptions."

Asked about the "slinging mud" spot, Chandler said Fletcher "went negative first" in the campaign. "Not only did he go negative, he and his associates at the Republican Governors Association put up ads that were false," Chandler told reporters in Lexington.

Fletcher denies his campaign has coordinated with the RGA, which would be illegal under campaign finance laws.

responsive than Chandler to Kentucky's minority residents, Irvin said.

"Historically, Democrats over the past years have given nothing but empty promises to the minority community," Irvin said.

So far, Chandler said his campaign has done "a lot of things" to attract minority voters through minority campaign coordinators and by visiting groups throughout the state.

"We certainly want the African-American community in this state to understand how important we believe they are," Chandler said.

As governor, Chandler also said he would expand the Governor's Minority Student College Preparation program and help "bring safety and justice" to neighborhoods throughout the state.

Fletcher would also work to promote black-owned businesses, improve the handling of "minority contracts" and "focus on economic empowerment," Irvin said.

"It all goes back to two major areas for Ernie and that is making sure the education is accessible and available and there's access to quality health care," Irvin said.

business for Murray Plaza Court, so does Pascal Truck Lines.

"I work with PTL and hold rooms for them, but I could have been over-rented twice this weekend," Rickman said. "Murray State makes Murray and then the lakes down there help too."

While big events are sure to increase business in the community, even routine activities, such as basketball games, help the economy, said Thomas McWherter, Shoney's Inn desk clerk.

"We're booked solid and probably have been for six months or better," McWherter said of Homecoming weekend. "A lot of them book a year in advance if they know they are going to be here. But anytime there is a ball game or something like that, we are pretty booked on the weekends."

To avoid deficit, Kentucky may have to cut some services

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — A report to Gov. Paul Patton says state government services might have to be cut to avoid a budget deficit.

Otherwise, available cash might be only half enough, according to the report by Acting State Budget Director Mary Lassiter.

Patton on Monday asked for a report about any cash shortage state government would experience in implementing the enacted budget for the current fiscal year.

Economists who make the state's official revenue forecasts projected last week that the General Fund would take in $262 million less than the budget for fiscal 2004 requires.

But Lassiter's report said the "total budget problem" is $304 million when such things as unbudgeted "necessary government expenses" — fighting forest fires, for example — are factored in.

Lassiter's office identified at least $155 million that could be taken from various accounts, including $54.8 million from the "rainy day fund" — the budget's built-in reserve.

Still to be determined is the amount of money that might go unspent by state agencies and lapse to the General Fund, the report said.

Aside from lapses, if any, the state would have to find nearly $149 million more to avoid a deficit, the report said. If spread across state government, spending for other than debt service would have to be cut 2.1 percent.

Exempting elementary and secondary education would require the rest of state government to take a 3.8 percent cut. Exempting Medicaid in addition to education would require a 4.7 percent cut by everyone else, the report said.

In a letter to Patton, Lassiter said the report was "just identifying resources which could be applied to the potential shortfall," not advocating across-the-board cuts or raiding the rainy day fund.

demic index, that affects just about everything," Walker said. "I guarantee you (it's disappointing for Southwest faculty and staff) to hear this, but like the East matter, there's a reason for this, and we need to find out what is happening."

"That's what we're about (at the board office). We're going to work with these schools and find out what is it we need to change."

One method the district will utilize is a professional development day on Nov. 4 where each school's personnel will be trained on how to analyze the data from the CATS to better determine what areas might be lacking. Walker also mentioned a software program which can produce a database that details the history of every Calloway student each year.

Also, the district conducts its own CTBS exam every fall, though those results are not recognized by the state. "And we believe in being a data-driven district," said Walker, referring to the software method as a kind of check-up tool to find students' problems quickly and prevent them from becoming more threatening.

"These goals are set all through 2014, so for schools that are struggling, the bad part is, when you start slipping, it gets much harder to get back on track, especially with the goals being set so high."

Southwest did receive a pat on the back in the attendance report by director of pupil personnel Randy McCallon, noting that the campus' second, third and fourth-grade classes all had attendance rates of 98 percent or better for the month. The third grade led the way with a 99.6 percent effort.

Maintenance director Glenn Grubbs reported that workers are within days of erecting the steel frame for the common's area of CCHS, giving viewers a strong idea of how the structure will look once finished.

Two student disciplinary hearings were heard Thursday. In the first, which actually was a continuation from the third hearing from a special October meeting, an agreement was offered and accepted by the board. The result was not to be publicly revealed.

The second hearing ended with a no-decision. This matter will be heard again by the board in its next regularly-scheduled meeting.

101st members killed in clash

By The Associated Press

KARBALA, Iraq (AP) — Three American soldiers were killed and seven were wounded in a midnight clash at a Shiite Muslim cleric's headquarters in this shrine city, the U.S. military said today. Witnesses said at least eight Iraqis also died in the fighting.

The U.S. troops, who were not identified pending notification of relatives, were members of the 101st Airborne Division. Maj. Mike Escudie of U.S. Central Command in Tampa, Fla. said in a statement.

The 101st Airborne is based at Fort Campbell, Ky.

The statement also said two Iraqi security forces personnel were killed and five wounded in the attack near Imam Abbas Mosque in Karbala, 50 miles south of Baghdad.

"The engagement involved an exchange of small-arms fire and rocket-propelled grenades as Iraqi authorities and coalition military police were investigating reports of armed men congregating on a road near the mosque after curfew," the statement said.

Gunfire broke out again Friday morning in the same area in this restive city, where Thursday night's encounter may have signaled a new U.S. determination to disarm religious-based militias and enforce curfews.

An armored personnel carrier of the U.S.-led coalition appeared to be firing Friday morning as screaming men, women and children fled for cover. Shiite gunmen defiantly shouted, "Allahu Akbar!" — "God is great!" The gunfire soon ended, but young Shiites still manned rooftop and street positions with assault rifles and rocket-propelled grenades.

Malik Kazim, a gunman who said he was involved in the fighting, said it involved an apparent joint American-Polish patrol of armored vehicles and Humvees that passed by the offices of a local senior Shiite Muslim cleric, Mahmoud al-Hassani, which were guarded by at least 20 gunmen.

The international patrol ordered the gunmen inside the offices to comply with a 9 p.m. curfew, which has been in effect in Karbala since Tuesday, Kazim said.

Iraqi policemen who were at the scene said one fellow officer was killed in the firefight, and Kazim said seven of his comrades were killed.

Kazim said intense gunfire lasted about a half-hour. Dozens of bullet holes, some large-caliber, could be seen in walls in the area Friday morning.

Al-Hassani is one of Karbala's lesser-known ayatollahs — the highest clerical rank in Shiism.

Rivalries among Shiite factions have led to sporadic violence in recent weeks, as the sect, suppressed under deposed President Saddam Hussein, flexes its new political muscle as a majority in Iraq.

Thursday night's clash also appeared to reflect a determination by the U.S.-led coalition to minimize any challenge to its authority from armed religious militants.

Polish forces lead an international brigade responsible for postwar security in the Karbala area, 50 miles south of Baghdad, commanding some 9,500 peacekeepers from 21 nations, including 2,400 Poles.

The 31,000-square-mile area was handed over by American forces last month.

Separately, American soldiers in the northern Iraqi city of Kirkuk drove off attackers late Thursday in a hail of bullets after assailants fired a rocket-propelled grenade at a U.S. compound in an apparent assassination attempt on an Iraqi politician working with the coalition. U.S. and Iraqi officials said Friday.

The assailants apparently escaped but their bullet-riddled car crashed into a wall where it exploded, U.S. 2nd Lt. Casey Thoreen of the 173rd Airborne Brigade said.

No Americans were killed or injured.

Bush dealt setback with loan approval

By ALAN FRAM

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate defied President Bush on Thursday and voted to convert half his $20.3 billion Iraqi rebuilding plan into a loan, dealing the White House an embarrassing foreign policy setback.

Despite an administration lobbying blitz that in recent days involved Bush himself, Vice President Dick Cheney, Secretary of State Colin Powell and others, the Republican-run chamber voted 51-47 for a bipartisan proposal making $10 billion of the aid a loan.

"They rolled out all the heavy artillery they could find," said Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., a one-time Bush rival who sided with the White House.

"Back home, people were asking for loans," said Senate Majority Leader Bill Frist, R-Tenn. in explaining the vote.

But Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., said the roll call was a slap at Bush's policies in Iraq.

"The Senate sent a strong, bipartisan message to this administration: It must do more to ensure that America's troops and taxpayers don't have to go on shouldering this costly burden virtually alone," Daschle said.

The administration argued that loans would worsen Iraq's foreign debt, slow its recovery and hand a propaganda victory to America's enemies. But the vote underscored that with presidential and congressional elections 13 months away, many lawmakers were more worried about vast new spending for foreign aid at a time of record federal deficits at home.

"It's very hard for me to go home and explain that we have to give $20 billion to a country sitting on $1 trillion worth of oil," said one loan supporter, Sen. Lindsey Graham, R-S.C.

The vote came as the House and Senate edged toward approval of similar $87 billion measures to finance American military operations in Iraq and Afghanistan, as well as the reconstruction of both countries. The lion's share of both bills is about $66 billion for U.S. military operations in Iraq and Afghanistan, funds over which there was little controversy.

About two hours before the Senate roll call, the GOP-led House voted 226-200 to kill a similar loan proposal introduced by Democrats. The two chambers will have to negotiate compromise language before a final bill is sent to Bush for his signature — which congressional leaders hope to do before next week's conference of donor nations in Madrid, Spain.

Frist and other GOP leaders said they would try to restore the grants in House-Senate bargaining.

"They've counted him (Bush) down and out before. It's just another bump in the road," said Tom Korologos, a congressional lobbyist for the U.S.-led Coalition Provisional Authority now running Iraq.

Eight Republicans abandoned Bush and voted to change his plan: Sens. Sam Brownback of Kansas, Ben Nighthorse Campbell of Colorado, Saxby Chambliss of Georgia, Susan Collins and Olympia Snowe of Maine, John Ensign of Nevada, Lindsey Graham of South Carolina, and Lisa Murkowski of Alaska.

Democrats who opposed the loan proposal were Joseph Biden of Delaware, Maria Cantwell of Washington, Daniel Inouye of Hawaii, and Zell Miller of Georgia.

Under the bipartisan loan amendment, the money would be transformed into a grant if other countries agreed to forgive at least 90 percent of the debt they were owed by Iraq. That debt is usually estimated at between $90 billion and $127 billion.

The loan proposal was the most dramatic change lawmakers have made in the mammoth spending package that the president proposed on Sept. 7.

Its approval by the Senate marked the first congressional vote in opposition to Bush's policies in Iraq. It was also the latest of several setbacks that Congress has dealt him in recent months on issues including concentration of media ownership, new rules on overtime pay, and travel to Cuba.

While the Senate bill provided the full $20.3 billion for rebuilding that Bush sought, the House measure chopped it down to $18.6 billion. It did so by erasing politically fragile proposals: funds for buying $50,000 garbage trucks, creating Iraqi ZIP codes and restoring the country's marshlands.

The administration and its supporters wanted the rebuilding assistance to be entirely grants financed by U.S. taxpayers. They warned that loans would nurture Arab suspicions about the United States' true motivation in Iraq.

"The battle for the hearts and minds of the Iraqi people is not over by a long shot," said McCain. He said the amendment "will send a clear signal that the United States is really, really there for the oil."

Cheney called senators during the day hoping to block the loan plan, congressional aides said. And two senators — Arlen Specter, R-Pa., and Kay Bailey Hutchison, R-Texas, who had initially said they supported loans switched Thursday and said they had been persuaded to oppose them.

Career politicians

One of the reasons people hate politics is that truth is rarely a politician's objective. Election and power are.

Cal's Thoughts
By Cal Thomas
Syndicated Columnist

In the matter of the interim report prepared by David Kay and the Iraq Survey Group on whether Iraq had weapons of mass destruction, opponents of the war and President Bush have been trying to make it say things it does not. In a Washington Post op-ed column (Oct. 7),

Secretary of State Colin Powell summarized Kay's case: "...two things are abundantly clear: Saddam Hussein's Iraq was in material breach of its United Nations obligations before the Security Council passed Resolution 1441 last November, and Iraq went further into breach after the resolution was passed."

Most of the critics who want to use Kay's report to defeat the president's reelection also ignore some of the report's key findings. Among them are these little gems:

- "We have discovered dozens of WMD-related program activities and significant amounts of equipment that Iraq concealed from the United Nations during the inspections that began in late 2002."
- "The testimony we have obtained from Iraqi scientists and senior government officials" makes clear that "Saddam Hussein remained firmly committed to acquiring nuclear weapons."

A Wall Street Journal editorial (Oct. 6) said that critics have been talking about the failure to discover "stockpiles" of WMD. "But the Stockpile Standard," notes the Journal, "wasn't anyone's measure in agreeing to 1441 ... and what Mr. Kay has already found is ... enough proof that Saddam was attempting to deceive the world one more time about his dangerous intentions."

If Powell, Kay and the Wall Street Journal aren't enough to persuade the skeptics, what about Democrats? These aren't today's Democrats, who question everything the administration does.

These are the Democrats of just a few months ago who saw evil intent everywhere in Iraq. The Web page frontpagenag.com has conveniently chronicled the clear vision of some Democrats as recently as last December, before politics blinded them.

- "The threat of Saddam Hussein's weapons of mass destruction is real ..." — Sen. Bob Graham, D-Fla. (Dec. 8, 2002)

- "We are in possession of what I think to be compelling evidence that Saddam Hussein has, and has had for a number of years, a developing capacity for the production and storage of weapons of mass destruction." — Sen. Hillary Rodham Clinton, D-N.Y. (Oct. 10, 2002)

- "In the four years since the inspectors left, intelligence reports show that Saddam Hussein has worked to rebuild his chemical and biological weapons stock, his missile delivery capability and his nuclear program. He has also given aid, comfort and sanctuary to terrorists, including Al Qaeda members .... It is clear, however, that if left unchecked, Saddam Hussein will continue to increase his capacity to wage biological and chemical warfare and will keep trying to develop nuclear weapons." — Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif. (Oct. 10, 2002)

My personal favorite comes from Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., who now says the war was a "fraud." That's not what he said on Sept. 27, 2002: "We are confident that Saddam Hussein retains some stockpiles of chemical and biological weapons, and that he has since embarked on a crash course to build up his chemical and biological warfare capabilities. Intelligence reports indicate that he is seeking nuclear weapons ...."

So, which is it? Was Saddam Hussein obtaining weapons of mass destruction that could have brought violence and death to large numbers of people? Or did the Bush administration overstate the case for political reasons?

Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., one of the president's harshest post-war critics, said: "I believe that a deadly arsenal of weapons of mass destruction in (Saddam Hussein's) hands is a real and grave threat to our security." (Oct. 3, 2002)

The Democrats' patron saint, Bill Clinton, asserted: "If Saddam rejects peace and we have to use force, our purpose is clear. We want to seriously diminish the threat posed by Iraq's weapons of mass destruction." (Feb. 4, 1998)

It appears some Democrats have developed amnesia as the next election gets closer. But how can they be right then and wrong now? They would have to be incompetent, liars or political opportunists. Or career politicians.

Apathy prevailing feeling among local voters

The governor's election is rapidly approaching, but Calloway Countians don't really seem to care.

Democrat Ben Chandler's and Republican Ernie Fletcher's campaigns have traveled all over the state and have made appearances in Calloway County. Their campaign ads' mudslinging has brought much attention, but not a lot of support.

After taking to the streets and talking to people who live either in Murray or in the county, most polled said they were either undecided or weren't planning on voting at all.

Chuck Bonner of Pottertown Road said he was still waiting to make his decision.

"I need to know a little before I go into the voting booth," said Bonner. He said he doesn't really trust anything he sees on TV about the candidates and is talking to others about what they think.

Mitzi Parish of Hazel said she wasn't sure because there has been so much controversy around both candidates. "There has been a lot of people that are leaning toward Chandler but I still haven't decided yet," said

Parish.

Parish

Parish.

"I will probably vote Democrat," said Jennifer Polo of Murray. "I'm not real happy with either one of the candidates right now."

Some people were very passionate about their stance for or against voting, but wouldn't allow their names to be printed. One man said he seriously planned on not voting this year because he was fed up with politics while one woman, who said she worked for the state, told me I didn't want to know what she thought of the election.

So the question is, are the candidates really that bad, are people just tired of a system they feel has failed them, or have people just stopped caring? It seems locally, people have been more interested in the California recall election than their own state's election.

It is everyone's right to vote, or not to vote, but Calloway Countians have taken apathy to a new level. In the primary election this year, only 13 percent of registered voters actually came out to the polls. Each election we have another excuse for it, especially since for some reason it always rains on election days. So out of 22,713 voters, almost 3,000 of those sit at home when the first rain drop splatters?

There is even apathy in campaign contributions and volunteers. Tara Dennison, director of the Ernie Fletcher campaign in Calloway County, said only about 30 people have actively participated or contributed to the campaign. And Paul Randolph, chairman of the local Democratic Party, said they have about 45 people locally participating in the Chandler campaign.

Randolph sites apathy for the low amount of contributors and people being preoccupied with other things. Even so, out of 16,266 registered democrats in Calloway County, you would think there would be more than 45 people actively involved. That is barely 3 percent.

A majority of Calloway Countians are Democrats, which means most of the candidates in any election run on the Democratic ticket. To be able to actually choose who you want in a particular office, you have to be a registered Democrat.

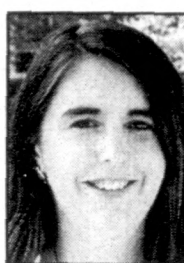

Tom Bogard, who lives on the east side of the county off Hwy 94, said the only way to be able to vote in all the elections was to be registered Democrat, but it doesn't matter because he doesn't vote anyway. "This party stuff," he said, "I don't go for it. I vote for the person, not the party."

Bogard is 68 years old. He said he had no intention of voting, but he also doesn't complain. He said when it comes to elections, people begin to take everything so personal. He said back when Louis Nunn was running for governor, he decided, as Nunn's campaign slogan stated, that it was "time for a change."

He decided not to support the Democratic candidate that year and supported Nunn by putting a campaign sticker on his truck. Bogard said he heard nothing but grief from anyone who saw that sticker. But soon after Nunn was elected, almost all the gravel roads in the county were suddenly paved.

He said that was something Democratic candidates had promised since he was a kid. It was time for a change.

Everyone complains about how dirty and crooked politics is, but no one wants to do anything about it.

Polo

Bogard

And they are so unaware of how important these politicians we choose are. All the grants and money that goes to the parks, programs and non-profit organizations, where do you think that money comes from? Do you really think anyone in state government is going to care about allotting funds to a county that so obviously cared so little about whether they were elected or not?

Being governor is such an important position. I have only lived in Kentucky under Patton's administration and in that time he has proposed programs to clean up illegal dumping, issued a highly controversial mandated pay raise for educators, and has been in the midst of a huge scandal. Each of these things, and many more, have had an impact on all of us. So why are we, as a county, looking at this election which will select our next governor so carelessly?

I, like many others, haven't decided how I am going to vote either. But I will spend that time from now until Election Day deciding.

Chandler has spoken about setting up an affiliate Governor's office in western Kentucky, which is good because it will keep this area of the state from being neglected, like many feel we are. On the other hand, Fletcher has a history in health care, which is also a hot topic right now. I still plan to vote and I will have made up my mind by election time.

I think we should all try to beat the puny 13 percent turnout from the primary. For a county who is so proud and active when it comes to sports, benevolent services, local politics or just plain gossip, then we should be ashamed of the low voter turnout.

Our Readers Write

To the Editor,

Below are excerpts taken from a poem written by a student in Bagdad, Arizona. It seems so fitting that I wanted to share.

THE NEW SCHOOL PRAYER

Now I sit me down in school
Where praying is against the rule,
For this great nation under God,
Finds mention of him very odd.
If scripture now the class recites,
It violates the Bill of Rights,
And anytime my head I bow,
Becomes a federal matter now.
Our hair can be purple, orange or green,
That's no offense, it's a freedom scene.
The law is specific; the law is precise,
Prayers spoken aloud are a serious vice,
For praying in a public hall,
Might offend someone with no faith at all.
In silence alone we must meditate,
God's name is prohibited by the state.
We're allowed to cuss and dress like freaks,
And pierce our noses, tongues and cheeks,
They've outlawed guns, but first the Bible,
To quote the good book makes us liable.
It's inappropriate to teach right from wrong;
We're taught that such judgments do not belong.
And the Ten Commandments are not allowed,
No word of God must reach this crowd.
It's scary here I must confess,
When chaos reigns, the school's a mess.
So Lord, the silent plea I make:
Should I die, My soul please take!
Amen.

New U.N. vote may help heal rift between U.S., those against Iraq war

By BARRY SCHWEID
AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.N. Security Council's approval of a new U.S. resolution on Iraq's future may ease some of the bitterness that surrounded the futile and highly emotional American drive earlier this year to line up key allies to support the war.

And Thursday's vote also may improve, slightly, the Bush administration's chances of persuading other countries to send peacekeeping troops or reconstruction aid to Iraq.

But what the surprise unanimous vote at the United Nations probably won't accomplish is what U.S. officials originally set out to do six weeks ago — gain large amounts of troops and money to help out with Iraq.

Nor does it accomplish, exactly, what France, Germany and Russia set out to do — get a firm commitment from the United States to return power to the Iraqis as soon as possible.

"It's a nice little bouquet from each side to the other — something we can all agree on," said Ruth Wedgwood, an expert on international law at the Council on Foreign Relations.

Beyond that, she and others said, the resolution may not do much.

Even while basking in his diplomatic triumph, Secretary of State Colin Powell observed, "It is not as if everything is behind us."

Unanimous passage of the U.S. resolution "certainly assists us" in trying to line up more peacekeeping troops and generous pledges of assistance at an international fund-raiser next week in Madrid, Powell said.

And yet, even while going along with the United States in the Council, France, Germany and Russia affirmed they would not send troops to supplement the U.S.-led force in Iraq, which has been suffering casualties almost daily since President Bush on May 1 declared major combat operations completed.

And the three countries said it was unlikely that additional aid contributions would be made to help U.S. taxpayers pay the increasingly high bill for occupying Iraq.

The three nations voted for the resolution because it was revised to reflect their concern about the pace of turning over control of Iraq to Iraqis, German Chancellor Gerhard Schroeder said after the vote. French officials said they wanted to show a unified front to blunt the spiraling violence in the region.

But, Schroeder pointed out, Germany, France and Russia are not "in a position to engage ourselves militarily" in Iraq.

And Powell said passage of the resolution did not change the number of potential candidates for contributing troops.

"Don't see this resolution as opening the door to troops," he told reporters. At best, he suggested, passage helps governments already disposed to making contributions to be able to seek support at home.

Turkey is a prime candidate, and the Turkish parliament has endorsed the government's decision to help. But many Iraqis, especially Kurds, are leery of having Turkish troops in the country. If dispatched, they are likely to be confined to certain areas.

Powell said the resolution "does assist as we go around and ask people to be generous."

Bush has been personally pressing world leaders to make contributions toward the reconstruction of Iraq and plans more of the same during his six-country visit to Asia and Australia that began Friday, said a senior administration official, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The Bush administration intends to spend $20.3 billion on Iraq's reconstruction. Japan has pledged $1.5 billion for next year, and Britain $439 million. Organizers of the Madrid conference have said they expected about $5 billion in contributions overall, far less than the $55 billion that is estimated Iraq needs.

Perhaps more important for the long term, key allies said they view this resolution as only the first step in negotiations with the United States on Iraq's future.

"This is a stage, a first step, one that we'd like to believe will be followed by others," French Foreign Minister Dominique de Villepin said in Belgium.

The resolution specifies that the U.N. mandate for a U.S.-led peacekeeping force would end once Iraqis took back political control of the country. If the force still were needed, the resolution says, the Security Council would be ready to consider an extension.

But that decision once again would lie in the hands of France, Germany and Russia, as well as the United States and other Council members.

And persuading that anti-war coalition to support keeping troops in Iraq at that point could be more difficult than securing their votes for this resolution.

Investigators probe role of pilot's prescription drugs in crash

NEW YORK (AP) — The Staten Island ferry that crashed, killing 10 people, was going at full speed as it hurtled into the pier, a federal investigator said Friday.

"It was not speeding up but ... it was under what we'd say full speed at the time," National Transportation Safety Board Chairwoman Ellen Engleman told ABC's "Good Morning America."

"What was happening is it was not slowing down," she said. She said the finding was based on evidence from the engine and other technical information. Some witnesses had said it seemed as if the boat could have been speeding up.

The ferry Andrew J. Barberi, carrying around 1,500 passengers from lower Manhattan to Staten Island, veered wildly off course Wednesday afternoon, crashing into a maintenance pier hundreds of feet from the slip where it normally docks at St. George Terminal. In addition to the 10 who died, 65 people were injured, including three who lost limbs.

Authorities were looking into whether a pilot's blood pressure medication caused him to slump at the controls and whether other crew members — who might have been able to take over for him — were out of position.

A high-ranking law enforcement source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said investigators were probing what part prescription drugs might have played in the accident.

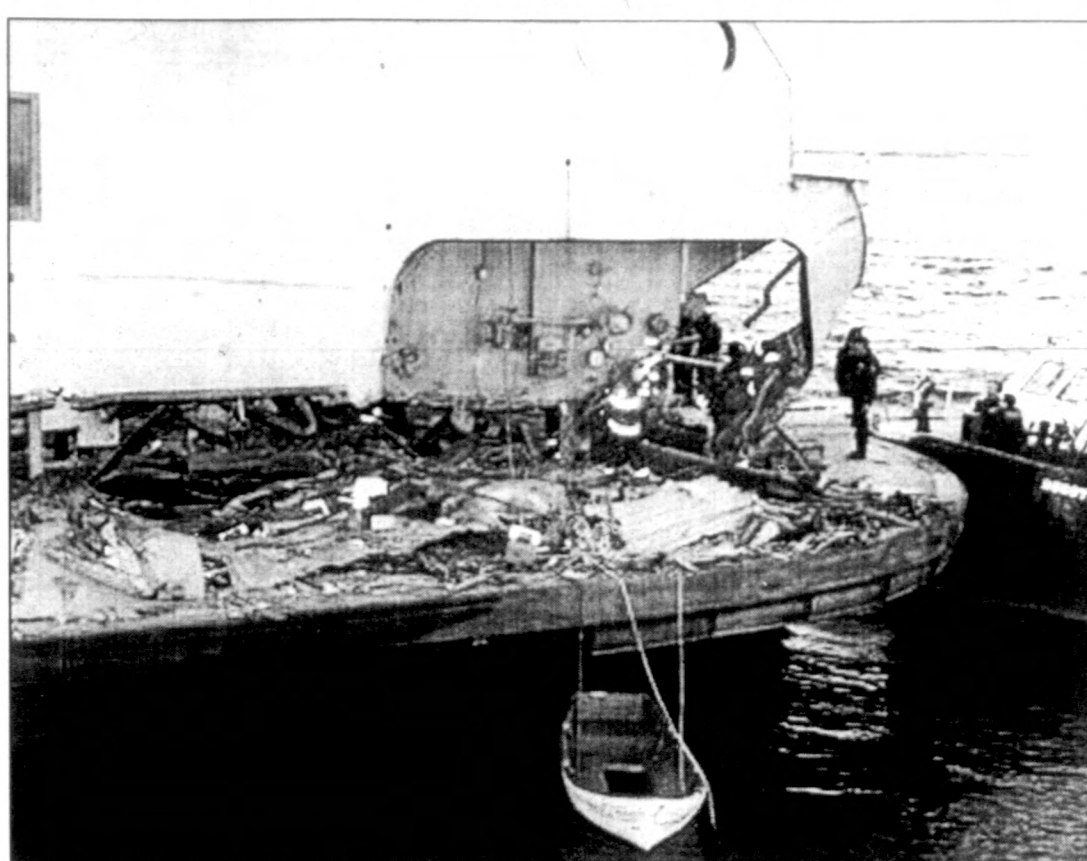

Early blood sample results from the pilot, Assistant Capt. Richard Smith, indicated alcohol was not a factor in the tragedy, the source said. Smith attempted suicide after the crash and was hospitalized in critical condition.

Investigators also were examining conflicting reports on the position of other crew members.

Under city Department of Transportation procedures, the pilot and captain are typically both in the pilot house as the vessel enters port. "If the policy ... was implemented at the time of the accident, we don't know," Engleman said earlier.

The NTSB, which is leading the probe, began interviewing deckhands and engineering crewmembers Thursday, as well as survivors of the crash and their families.

Investigators were gathering background information on the crew, including Smith, and were working to create a "72-hour history" leading up to the crash.

Capt. Mike Gansas is seen in this undated photo released by the New York City Department of Transportation Thursday. By usual ferry practice, Assistant Capt. Richard Smith would have been joined in the pilot house during a crossing by Gansas and a deckhand. Under city procedures, a ferry's captain and assistant captain are typically in the pilot house as the vessel enters port, although that is not a Coast Guard rule. Exactly what happened on the ferry to Staten Island Wednesday is not yet clear.

Smith, 55, remained hospitalized under police guard. Authorities said he bolted from the scene of the crash and twice attempted suicide at his home. He spoke with police Wednesday but was not interviewed in depth, Engleman said. Investigators will talk to him when it is "medically prudent," she said Friday.

Investigators confirmed that Smith also was at the helm of the Andrew J. Barberi when it crashed into the Staten Island dock in July 1995, injuring some passengers. That accident was blamed on a propeller failure.

The possible role of prescription drugs emerged in comments Thursday by City Councilman Michael McMahon, who represents part of Staten Island, after a briefing with city officials. He said Smith collapsed at the controls and appeared to have lost consciousness because of "health problems and medication" — reportedly for a blood pressure problem.

Recently retired special ops soldier dies trying to protect son

CLARKSVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A veteran just retired from 21 years with the Army died trying to protect his young son from a falling tree at their home, family members said.

As David Garrity, 43, was cutting down a tree in his back yard Sunday morning, his 5-year-old son, Charlie, wandered into the path of the falling timber. The tree crushed Garrity as he rushed to push the boy out of the way.

"Maybe another step and he could have made it," his wife Nedelia, 36, told The Leaf Chronicle.

Garrity died while he was being airlifted to Vanderbilt University Medical Center in Nashville.

He had retired Friday as a first sergeant with the Night Stalkers — the 160th Special Operations Aviation Regiment, based at Fort Campbell, Ky.

His mother, Gail Garrity, said her son was happy last week, working on his house and knowing he would get to be there with his family, instead of being deployed on short notice.

David Garrity was a Gulf War veteran and participated in the invasion of Panama. After 9-11, he was deployed to Afghanistan.

During his service, he rescued soldiers from a crashed helicopter while on a mission in Haiti and received the Soldier's Medal, said his father, Don.

"He was a hero at the end, and a hero at the beginning," the elder Garrity said.

Garrity and his wife met in 1990 in Panama, where she grew up. He didn't speak Spanish and she didn't speak English, but their attraction overcame the language barriers, his wife said.

YMCA offers activities, tips for Halloween

It's that time of year when spiders crawl and jack-o'-lanterns leer and the streets are filled with spooky figures hoping for candy of all kinds. The YMCA of Murray Calloway County will host a free, safe and imaginative Halloween party for children of all ages on Nov. 1 from 7-9 p.m.

Youth Energized is a group of local high school and college students who are actively involved in community service organizations. They are planning creative activities including a pumpkin catapult contest, pumpkin painting, and window painting.

"Halloween activities at our local Y will provide great fun and structured activities," said Executive Director Jean Masthay. "The students involved in this collaborative effort are working hard to provide safe, fun activities for all kids. I'm pleased with their desire to serve our community."

For more information on the Youth Energized Halloween party call the local YMCA at 759-9622.

For all young people intent on trick or treating, the YMCA offers these suggestions for a safer Halloween:

Never trick-or-treat alone, no matter how old you are. Have at least two friends with you at all times. Young children should only go door-to-door during designated hours, escorted by an adult or responsible older siblings.

Wear light-colored, flame-retardant costumes, and helmets should be above your shoes to prevent tripping. Use face make-up — no hoods or masks. You can be more creative with make-up, and it doesn't block your vision or hearing.

Only trick-or-treat within your own neighborhood. Only visit homes that you know, where the lights are on. Plan your route in advance and make sure your family knows it.

Never go inside a house. Accept treats on the porch or in the doorway, and be sure to say "thank you!"

Walk, don't run, from house to house. Use sidewalks and driveways and cross the street at the corner or at a crosswalk.

Carry a working flashlight, and wear a watch.

Parents or other adults should inspect candy and other edibles.

Librarian quotes parts of Thomas' book

"Historically, Kentuckians have felt comfortable and cooperative with each other only in four shared ideas or experiences.

Library News

By Ben Graves
Calloway County
Public Library
Director

The first has been common love of land, no matter how much its appearance or productivity varied. Second, from the outset Kentuckians have nurtured a nostalgia which has prompted them to appeal to the past without troubling to determine its factual foundations.

Third, from the moment conflict began to develop between Virginia settlers and the overlords at Boonesboro, a stream of "managed" politics has flowed out from the tiny rivulets of the magisterial districts, through a constantly expanding number of courthouses and rings to Frankfort.

Finally, with the commonwealth's economy based almost solely upon the land, there has prevailed an opposition to taxation, no matter what constructive common purpose it might support."

That's from Dr. Thomas Clark's 1977 book, "Agrarian Kentucky." Dr. Clark is Kentucky's Historian Laureate, and he knows his stuff. If you are going to talk sense about Kentucky, this ought to be on your reading list. The further you read in it, the more you realize that very little really changes about this place and the people that live here.

I had the pleasure of meeting Dr. Thomas D. Clark, Kentucky's Historian Laureate, several years ago. He's the person that actually set this library on the path of change that we've followed in the last 10 years. (Ask me about it later, but only if you're really interested.)

Speaking of talking sense, you'll want to add "Tobacco Culture" by John van Willigen and Susan C. Eastwood to your list.

We assume that people know about raising tobacco and what the crop means to the farmers that raise it. But more and more you meet folks who have no idea of what tobacco involves.

I grew up around tobacco and did every job there was except stripping (I am an incompetent tobacco stripper. Dad usually found me something else to do in its place.) It's well worth reading.

"Horse racing's Holy Grail: The Epic Quest for the Kentucky Derby" by Steve Haskin goes on the reading list too. Mine, at least.

Few events make their mark on the psychological landscape of a state and its people like the Derby.

If Haskin's book is less academic than the previous two, it's probably easier to read. It's a personal tour through the tortuous process of winning one of the most famous sporting events in the world.

What if's, might have been's, should have done's, and if only's abound. Racing's a heartbreaking business but it makes for great reading.

Most people write badly. I certainly do. My teachers (and I've had some of the best) taught me the mechanics of writing, but never showed how to make it really better.

Fortunately, we've gotten a copy of "Nonfiction Craft Lessons: Teaching Information Writing K-8" by Joann Portapuli and Ralph Fletcher. Check it out and use it, it will pay off later.

Our new padded mammogram is painless. And knowing you're getting the best technology in breast health doesn't hurt either.

The MammoPad® breast cushion was designed by a female breast surgeon to make getting a mammogram more comfortable than ever. We use it with a new mammogram machine that provides better imaging. The result is a unique combination of technology and comfort that represents the best that breast healthcare has to offer.

So does Stereotactic Breast Biopsy. This procedure is less invasive, less expensive, faster, offers fewer chances for complications, and leaves no scarring.

One in eight women have the possibility of developing breast cancer this year. Screening mammograms and accurate diagnostics can greatly reduce that number.

At Murray-Calloway County Hospital, we're making it as easy and comfortable as possible to get both.

Boone's homer lifts Yanks into Series

NEW YORK (AP) — As soon as the ball left Aaron Boone's bat, the end of this story was clear. It was the same as all the others.

The World Series has pinstripes and doom descended on Boston. "Like Derek (Jeter) told me, 'The ghosts will show up eventually,'" Boone said.

Did they ever. Boone set off bedlam in the Bronx with a leadoff home run in the 11th inning. The drive into the left-field seats gave the New York Yankees an incredible 6-5 victory over the Boston Red Sox in Game 7 of the American League championship series Thursday night, ending perhaps the best in a century of annual battles between these old foes.

"Wow. I can't even talk," Boone said. "It's unbelievable. Mo ... so many heroes today. Unbelievable. This is awesome."

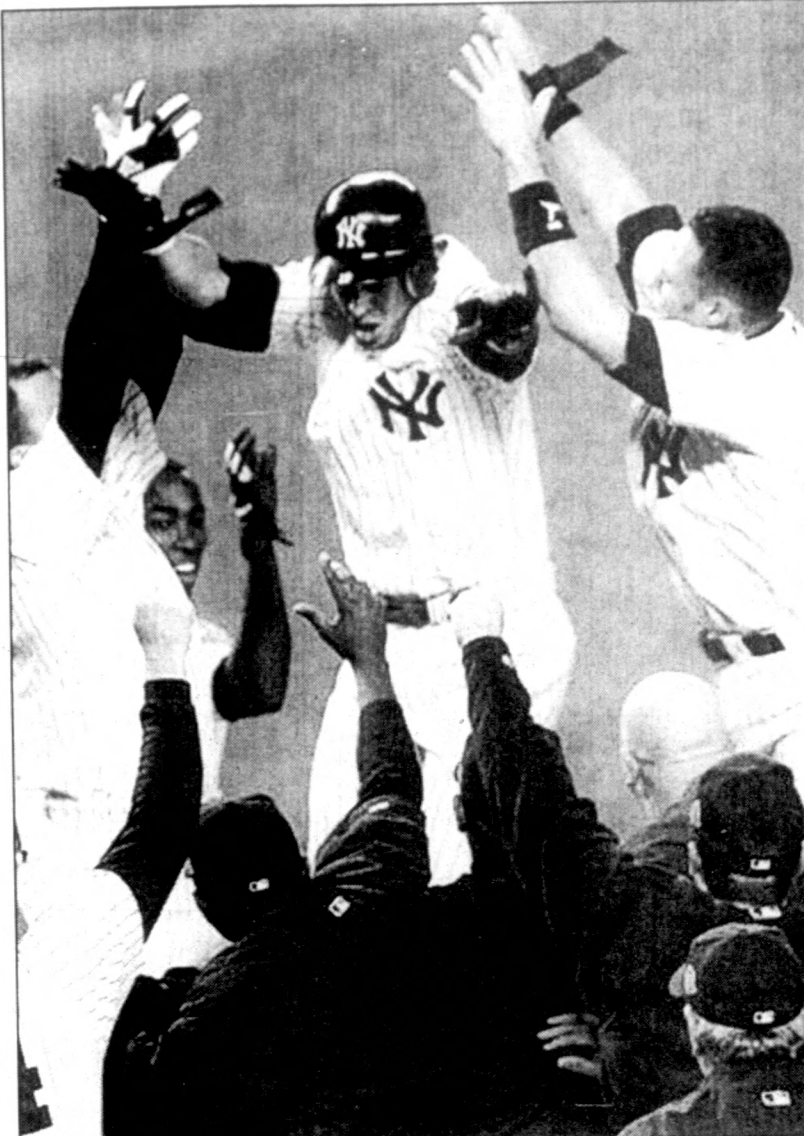

The Yankees, admired and hated but rarely ignored, overcame an awful start by Roger Clemens and deficits of 4-0 and 5-2 to win their 39th AL pennant, their fifth in six seasons. And like many New Yorkers, they'll be heading for Florida when the weather gets cold — the World Series opens at Yankee Stadium on Saturday night and, after two games this weekend, the Marlins and Yankees will go to Miami.

It will be hard for the 100th anniversary Series to top this ending — the first Game 7 in major league history won by an extraordinary home run.

"It couldn't be more satisfying," New York manager Joe Torre said. "This has to be the sweetest taste of all for me."

And, oh, how the memories of this autumn night will chill New England. The Red Sox were five outs from returning to the World Series for the first time in 17 years, from having a chance to win the title that has eluded them since 1918.

The Curse was about to be shucked.

KATHY WILLENS/AP
New York's Aaron Boone (center) celebrates with teammates his home run in the 11th inning to beat the Boston Red Sox in Game 7 of the American League Championship Series Thursday night. The Yankees won 6-5.

And then Pedro Martinez let the Yankees tie the score with a three-run eighth, when Jeter doubled to start the rally and Jorge Posada blooped a tying two-run double.

Boston's bullpen held tough, matching Mariano Rivera, who threw three scoreless innings for New York.

But then Boone, who entered as a pinch runner in the eighth inning, connected on the first pitch of the 11th off Tim Wakefield, the knuckleballer who had baffled the Yankees in winning Games 1 and 4.

As the ball dropped into the lower deck in left, up came all those painful memories that have haunted so many Red Sox fans — thoughts of Bucky Dent, Bill Buckner and decades of New York domination.

Cronin, Racers ready to begin

Staff Report
Murray Ledger & Times

After months of recruiting, scheduling and conditioning, Murray State's Mick Cronin will finally get to do the job he was hired to do last spring.

Cronin — hired as the Murray State men's basketball coach on April 5 — and the Racers will begin practicing in preparation for the 2003-04 season on Saturday, the first day Division I college basketball teams are allowed to practice under NCAA rules.

Cronin

"I'm anxious to get started, probably more so this year than any year in my career because it's my first as a head coach," said Cronin, who came to MSU after serving as an assistant coach at Louisville for two seasons. "I think our team is ready ... I'm sure they're ready to start playing basketball."

MSU will practice once on Saturday and twice on Sunday. Cronin said his primary focus early on will be getting his players to understand how he wants them to practice.

"I think it's important for them to know how we want to do things and what speed we want them to practice," noted Cronin. "We practice at a high tempo, and the players need to adjust to that so we can move forward and begin putting in our system."

Since late August, Racer players have been lifting weights three mornings a week and running on the Roy Stewart Stadium track in the afternoons, while also going through individual instruction with MSU coaches.

Murray fans will get their first look at the Racers on Oct. 28 when the men's and women's teams hold a public scrimmage.

MSU begins the season with a pair of exhibition games — the first coming on Nov. 3 against the Global All-Stars. The last exhibition game will be held on Nov. 15, before the team opens up the regular season against Wagner on Nov. 22.

Cub fans curse latest disappointment

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Cubs manager Dusty Baker insists there's no curse on his team.

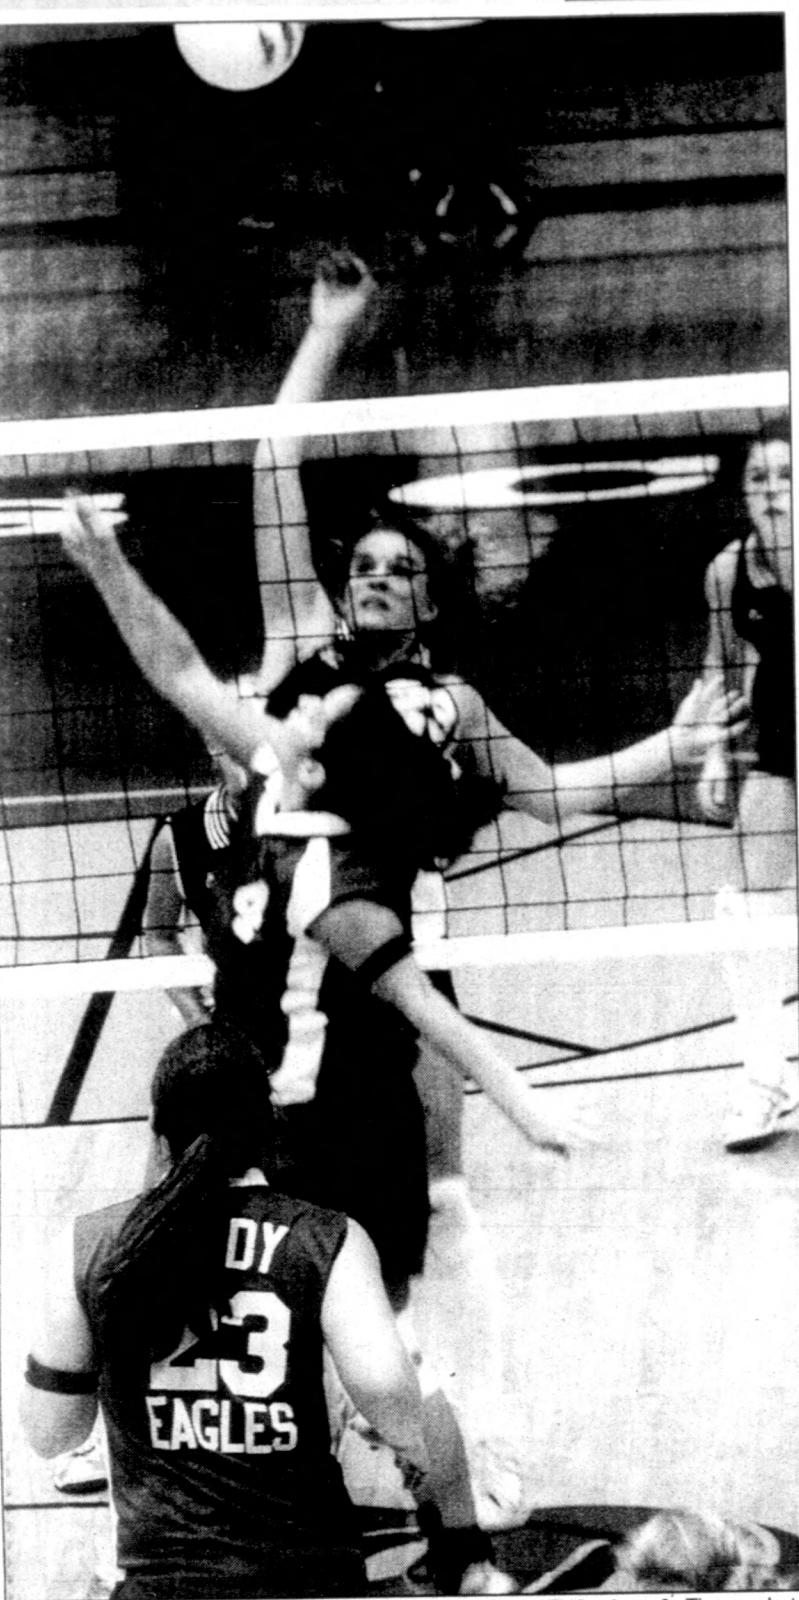

But 75-year-old Dorothy Stott has been around a lot longer than Baker, and her memory goes back further than Tuesday night, when a fan's hands got between Moises Alou's glove and a fly ball with the Cubs five outs from making it to the World Series.

She can tell you about the ground ball that rolled through Leon Durham's legs in 1984 and took the Cubs' hopes of getting to the World Series with it. Or the way the Cubs took an insurmountable lead in the 1969 pennant race and, well, surmounted it.

And she knows all that happened after a local tavern owner put a curse on the team in 1945 when he was not allowed to bring his pet goat into Wrigley Field during what turned out to be the last World Series the Cubs ever played.

"I never thought of a curse, but I always said they had bad luck," said Stott, who lives a few blocks from Wrigley. "Bad luck is a curse, so, yeah, there really must be something."

Others think so, too. "I think they're somehow jinxed, I really do," said fan Ian Mulford.

Experience helps CFS claim region title over Murray

By SCOTT NANNEY
Sports Editor

MAYFIELD, Ky. — There's no substitute for experience.

Christian Fellowship hadn't.

Murray did not. Playing in their first-ever region championship match, the Lady Tigers battled nervousness against the battle-tested Lady Eagles.

And that experience paid off as CFS claimed its first-ever First Region championship in any sport with a two-set victory (25-20, 25-15) over Murray in the First Region Volleyball Tournament championship match Thursday night at Graves County High School.

"Our girls were very nervous. It was a big game, and they were very excited and wanted to do well," said MHS head coach Sharon Dean, whose squad advanced to the region final in only its second season of play. "(CFS) has been in tournaments like this before, but this is something that's new to us. We're still learning about things like this."

First-year Christian Fellowship coach Chris Presswood admitted that experience was a big factor in his club's performance.

"A lot of it is mental preparation," said Presswood. "We've made it to the championship matches of some big tournaments. We've suffered some hard losses, and we've won some big matches. So we've been in those situations before, and I think that did help (Thursday)."

Murray shook off the nerves long enough to post a 4-2 lead in the opening game. But CFS scored four straight points to take a 6-4 lead. The Lady Tigers were in catch-up mode for the rest of the set.

After trailing 13-7, the Lady Tigers fought back with three straight points — taking advantage of two Lady Eagle mistakes — and a spike by Addie Courtney to trail just 13-10.

MHS rallied to within three points on three more occasions in the game, but came no closer as CFS closed out its first win with a spike from Brittany Donald and an error by the Lady Tigers.

The Lady Tigers rebounded to build a 3-0 lead in the second game, using a pair of well-placed volleys by Breanna Volp and a CFS mistake to claim the advantage.

However, the Lady Eagles quickly regained form to reel off six straight points for a 6-3 edge. Murray closed the gap to 11-9, but watched as CFS put together another scoring string with three straight points for a 14-9 lead.

Kelli Voorhies stopped the streak with a point for MHS. The Lady Tigers would remain close for the next few minutes, but the Lady Eagles used the serving of Teala Penick to open up an insurmountable 18-11 advantage.

The CFS lead hit its peak at 24-14. Lisa Thurman scored the next point off a serve, but Brittany Doland put Murray away with the decisive score to close out the match.

The Lady Tigers finished the season with a 24-8 record and a regional runner-up trophy, taking a big step forward from a 6-11 mark in their inaugural season of 2002.

Dean said her squad's run to the regional finals has set a high standard for future MHS teams.

"I think we'll be a lot tougher and a more experienced team next year," she noted. "A winning season is a plus — any way you can get it. But going from 6-11 to 24-8 was a big step for us ... If we put more of team effort into it, and I think we could get to the state tournament soon."

Junior setter Laura Mitchell was named to the all-tournament team, along with Donald, Lone Oak's Carly Marquess, Paducah Tilghman's Felicia Jachim, Graves County's Jordan Robertson and Fulton City's Samantha Taylor.

Marshall claims district crown over Lady Tigers

By MICHAEL DANN
Sports Writer

DRAFFENVILLE, Ky. — It was almost like time had stopped for a second during Thursday night's girls' Second District Championship match.

Haley Hart, the always reliable Murray High goalkeeper, was in position to prevent a Beth Babb shot just 30 seconds into the game, and a brief moment seemed frozen in time.

The feeling was partially because the Marshall County senior fired a rocket that ricocheted off Murray's Kim Culp in front of the net and no more than three feet in front of Hart.

It was Babb's goal — coupled with another one midway through the first half — that gave the Lady Marshals a 2-0 lead and the eventual 3-0 win over the Lady Tigers.

Time had not been kind to the Lady Tigers over the past week. Murray (7-6-4) played 290 minutes of grueling soccer on Monday — having to go to sudden death with Graves County — and 20 minutes of extra soccer with crosstown rival Calloway County on Wednesday night.

So Father Time and the Lady Marshals (15-1-2) did not make for a good combination.

Murray head coach Jared Rosa, who used a different starting lineup against Marshall Thursday, said both played a part in the loss.

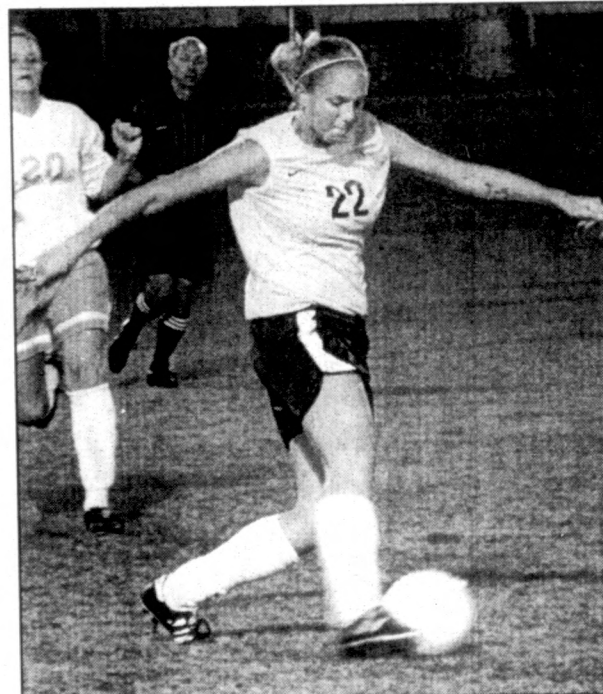

"I realize now what works and what doesn't, and to stay set in what I teach," noted Rosa. "Hopefully, we'll see them again after a couple of games in regionals."

Murray will return to Draffenville Tuesday night, where the Lady Tigers will face First District winner Paducah Tilghman in the first round of the regionals.

Tilghman knocked off Lone Oak 3-0 in last night's First District title game. The Lady Tornado has faced Murray once this season. That contest finished in a 1-1 tie.

"We were just trying out a new off-side trap, and we got them offside in double digits in the first half," Rosa said of the stingy defense Murray played against Tilghman. "They were getting frustrated, and we put one in right before the end of the first half."

Against the Lady Marshals, Murray could only muster six shots on goal, while MCHS' Laken Dirkes had four saves. Hart had 11 in goal for Murray High. Marshall County had 17 shots on goal.

Murray High junior Breanne Sykes moves the ball downfield during the Lady Tigers' 3-0 loss to rival Marshall County in Thursday's Second District Tournament final.

Rosa reassured his team after the game.

"I told them this is nothing to be upset about after making it through those first four hours of soccer, and then coming back out and giving it everything you have one more time," he said.

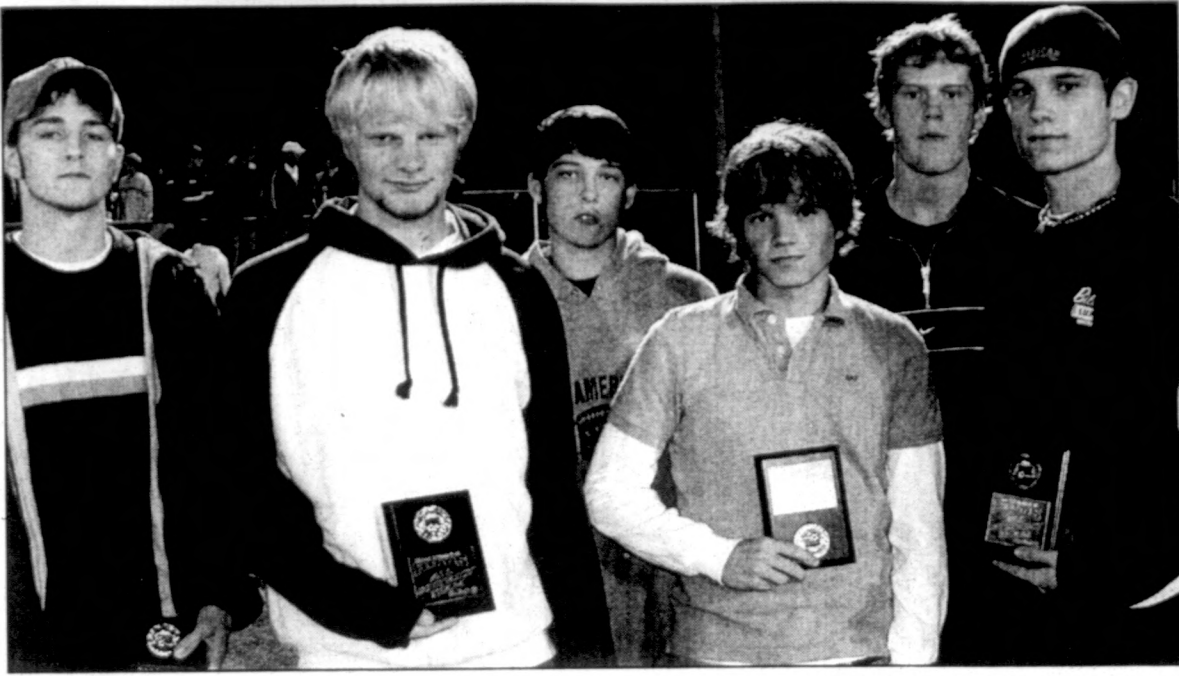

The MHS coach also threw a word of caution to his starters, who didn't exactly step up to the challenge like he would have hoped.

"I put the subs in with 15 to 10 minutes left to go in the half, and they started moving the ball around," Rosa noted. "If the starters weren't going to get it done, then I was going to leave the subs in because at least they were passing the ball."

"They came out and took possession in the second half, and we really should have won that second half ... We had a ton of opportunities. We'd link about five or six good passes together and then advance the ball. We'd get an opportunity and then lose our concentration when we would get down there."

All-District

Murray High's Tim Masthay, Lucas Mathis, Jordan Steiner and Nick Warner, along with Calloway players Wes Claiborne and Drew Jonas, were among five players who earned boys' All-District Team honors on Thursday night at Marshall County High School.

Eight local girls were honored Thursday night at Marshall County High School. Murray High's Lauren Clemson, Haley Hart and Emily Seay were named to the girls' All-District Team. From Calloway County High School, Chelsea Cleaver, Mallorie Esterlein, Lisa Hester, Jessica Johnson and Haley White were also named to the team.

Racer kickoff time changed

Staff Report

Murray State's home football game against Ohio Valley Conference rival Eastern Kentucky on Nov. 1 has been moved from the listed kickoff time of 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Originally set for 11 a.m. to accommodate a live telecast by Fox Sports Net South, the game time has been pushed back due to a change in the television schedule.

"When the schedule was first released, we listed the game at 11 a.m. because that's when Fox wanted to televise it," said MSU athletics director E.W. Dennison. "Since it's not on television, we decided to move the game to our normal afternoon start time of 1:30 p.m."

Pitino: Cardinals still a year away

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Next year, Louisville coach Rick Pitino said, the Cardinals will have the potential to be one of the nation's elite teams.

An already impressive 2004-05 recruiting class got another boost late Thursday, when Brooklyn prep star Sebastian Telfair verbally committed to play at Louisville.

As for this year, Pitino expects the Cardinals to look a lot like last year's team.

And that could be very good.

"I don't think you'll see greatness from a talent standpoint until next year. But I do think this team is capable of big things. How big? I don't know, because I haven't seen them practice," Pitino said at Louisville's annual media day.

The Cardinals went 25-7 last season, winning the Conference USA tournament and advancing to the second round of the NCAA tournament.

Two cornerstones of that team — Reece Gaines and Ellis Myles — won't be around this year. Gaines was a first-round NBA draft pick and Myles will redshirt as he rehabilitates a knee injury.

Pitino is confident that 6-foot-7 sophomore sharpshooter Francisco Garcia will blossom into the clutch performer Gaines became. Gaines was Louisville's best point guard last season, and Pitino will first look to sophomore Taquan Dean to fill that void. Dean played shooting guard last year.

Pitino met with Dean and Garcia recently to explain the pitfalls of the so-called "sophomore jinx."

"That's when someone gets a big head, they think they've arrived and they stop working at their trade and they don't improve," Pitino said. "I said, 'You guys have really got to get better because now you're known and people will play you differently.'"

"Both of those players have remained with that 'P-H-D,' being poor, hungry and driven," he said. "They both have an incredible work ethic. You could come out here before you go to work and see those guys shooting. That's a daily routine."

During my tenure in the county school system and currently in the city system, I have been impressed with the caliber of the marching band programs at both our local high schools. These students practice diligently, setting the highest expectations, toward the goal of earning the right to participate in the state marching band competition. As both local bands have received their distinguished rating, their next hurdle is to be selected as one of the top eight scoring bands at the Regional Competition. This year's competition occurs Saturday, October 18th - the same day Murray State's Homecoming Parade. It has always been the tradition of the Murray High Band to perform in this parade and support Murray State in their Homecoming Festivities. However, the Murray High Band will be performing in the KMEA Regional Marching Band competition in Owensboro, KY. In an effort to allow the students the opportunity to be at their best for their attempt to qualify for state semi-finals, the high school band will not be participating in this year's Homecoming Parade. The Murray Independent Schools will still be represented in the parade - by our middle school band. We would also like to take this opportunity to thank the community of Murray for their continued support of our students and to wish Murray State their best Homecoming ever. We would also like to wish the Calloway County Band and Murray High Band the best of luck at Saturday's Regional Competition.

Panthers At A Glance

EIU Offense

The Panthers were shut out last week and are last in the OVC in scoring offense. They have not put up more than 20 points in a game since Week 1 of the season ... EIU continues to struggle in the passing game, ranking next-to-last among OVC teams in pass offense, throwing for just 138 yards last week ... The Panthers rank last in the OVC in total offense after four games, averaging only 254.2 yards rushing per game.

EIU Defense

The Panthers, who entered last week allowing an average of just 22.2 points per game, gave up 41 points against Eastern Kentucky ... Eastern has one of the best linebacking corps in the nation. Senior Fred Miller is second in the OVC in tackles with 9.2 per game, while senior Nick Ricks is third with an average of nine stops per game. Ricks had a game-high 12 tackles last week ... EIU is minus-3 in turnover ratio ... George Love has two interceptions on the year ... EIU is tied for last in the conference with only two sacks.

MSU, Panthers share struggles

By SCOTT NANNEY
Sports Editor

Struggles with an inexperienced offensive line, adjusting to life with a new quarterback and facing the prospects of being a pretender in the Ohio Valley Conference race.

Those are all of the issues that the Murray State Racers have faced during the 2003 season.

But the Racers (2-5, 1-2 OVC) can take solace in the fact that they're not the only ones who have suffered a sudden fall from grace after the glory of a co-OVC championship in 2002.

The Eastern Illinois Panthers (1-5, 0-2) are facing those same exact concerns heading into Saturday's 3 p.m. tilt with the Racers at Roy Stewart Stadium on Homecoming at MSU.

EIU — which possessed one of the most explosive offenses in Division I-AA football in claiming back-to-back league titles in 2001 and 2002 — is searching for an identity after losing record-setting quarterback Tony Romo to graduation.

In six games this fall, the Panthers are averaging just 257.3 yards per game in total offense and only 10.8 points per game — well below the high-scoring units of the past two campaigns.

The lack of offensive production has left long-time EIU head coach Bob Spoo frantically searching for answers.

"It's hard to say where we're at as a team right now," Spoo said during a telephone interview from his office earlier this week. "We've not been playing well. But there's got to be an up-side, and I hope it happens quickly."

It will have to happen quickly for the Panthers, who are already two full games behind OVC leader Tennessee State heading into this

EIU and the Racers are both attempting to defy history, as no OVC champion has had more than one loss in league play since the 1962 season. That year, East Tennessee, Eastern Kentucky and Morehead State all tied for the top spot with identical 4-2 conference marks.

However, Spoo does see an opening for a sleeper team to emerge from a recently-expanded nine-team league that has just one unbeaten — TSU — and three others with 2-1 records after three weeks of play.

"I don't know if anyone can win it with two losses, but I do think that it's a well-balanced league," he explained. I just don't know that there is a real clear-cut favorite right now ... Whoever is going to win it, I think they will have to win a couple of games on the road."

If Saturday's matchup is an elimination game for a pair of two-loss teams, the Racers appear to have the advantage with their track record of success at home under head coach Joe Pannunzio.

MSU is 12-4 at home in Pannunzio's four years as coach, including last November's 37-35 victory over the Panthers.

"It's a huge game for both of us," Pannunzio said. "They're having the same problems we're having ... We both have to come out and play well, and hopefully we will."

Game Notes

The Game

The 2003 Homecoming game has taken an unexpected turn, as the Racers and Panthers have struggled this season. Although both teams are hardy in the thick of the OVC race, this is a rematch of last year's thrilling game in Murray. In 2002, MSU placekicker Shane Andrus drilled a 52-yard field goal as time expired to lift the Racers to a 37-35 win and a share of the OVC championship.

The Series

This is the 20th meeting between the two schools. Murray State owns an 11-7-1 edge in the all-time series. By virtue of its 37-35 win last season, the Racers have a one-game winning streak over the Panthers. MSU leads the series 6-3-0 in games played in Murray and have won three-straight against the Panthers in Murray. In fact, the home team has won four straight games in the series.

The Matchup

Two teams that battled for the OVC championship on the last week of the regular season in 2002 enter Saturday's game with a combined 3-10 record and are in sixth (MSU) and ninth-place (EIU) in the league race.

A year ago, the two teams came into the game with two of the best offenses in the OVC, averaging 35.3 ppg (EIU) and 31.8 ppg (MSU). This year, EIU is averaging 10.8 ppg and MSU is putting up 15.7 ppg.

The Power of Prayer

There is widespread opinion that prayer is unnecessary because God knows perfectly well what we need, and He has foreordained the course of events from the beginning of time. From this point of view, our prayers would appear unnecessary since God already knows what is in our hearts and minds, which makes perfect sense if we consider that God is omniscient, omnipotent and all-good. This is looking at prayer from the objective side, as if the object of prayer is to inform and persuade God, which is highly dubious. But, what if we look at prayer from the subjective side, from the perspective of the praying subject? In that case, we see that prayer is an expression of one's inward disposition. Sometimes we are disposed to ask for God's help, and at other times we are moved to praise God or thank Him. In all of these cases, the real power of prayer comes from its expressive power; that is, its power to express what we are thinking and feeling. Heartfelt prayer is essential to convey our love and appreciation to God. But what is equally important is its effect on the person who prays. Genuine prayer instills in one a devout and Godly disposition, and seen in that light, perhaps the best prayer is the self-fulfilling prayer that asks simply to grow in holiness and the love of God.

Rejoice always, pray constantly, give thanks in all circumstances; for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus for you.

Mother Teresa's surprising secret

Exemplar of saintliness often felt abandoned by God

By RICHARD N. OSTLING
AP Religion Writer

As the Roman Catholic world prepares for Sunday's beatification of Mother Teresa, she is being revered as a missionary to India's poorest of the poor, someone whose close relationship with God seemed obvious from her willingness to undergo incredible hardship.

"If we went to them (the poor) with a sad face, we would only make them much more depressed," she once explained. And following her own admonition, Mother Teresa's perpetual smile was as integral to her image as the weathered face and blue-trimmed white robe.

But exterior sunniness masked an astonishing secret — known to a handful of clergy counselors but no other close colleagues — that was revealed only through research for her sainthood candidacy.

Mother Teresa was afflicted with feelings of abandonment by God from the very start of her work among the homeless children and dying persons in Calcutta's slums. From all available evidence, this experience persisted until her death five decades later, except for a brief interlude in 1958.

Though ordinary Christians might assume the holiest people exist in continual divine ecstasy, the phenomenon of darkness — feeling keenly aware of God's silence or absence — has occurred among numerous saints and mystics through the ages. Specialists in spirituality emphasize that this should not be confused with loss of faith in God.

Paradoxical as it seems, confidants say that Mother Teresa came to understand such suffering was a necessary aspect of her heroic vocation.

Her interior struggle is known to us through surviving letters from the 1950s and 1960s to her spiritual directors, along with the priests' recollections about her later years.

In 2001, the Revs. Albert Huat and J. Neuner, Jesuits in India, discussed Mother Teresa's experience in the journals Review for Religious (of St. Louis) and Vidyajyoti (of New Delhi).

The Rome-based postulator, or chief advocate, of her sainthood cause, the Rev. Brian Kolodiejchuk of the Missionaries of Charity, also analyzed the material for the online Zenit News Agency late last year.

While bleak statements did not predominate in Mother Teresa's private writings, they occurred repeatedly:

"I am told God lives in me — and yet the reality of darkness and coldness and emptiness is so great that nothing touches my soul," she wrote.

At another point: "I want God with all the power of my soul — and yet between us there is terrible separation." And again: "Heaven from

Anglican leaders warn of split in church over U.S. gay bishop

By RACHEL ZOLL
AP Religion Writer

LONDON (AP) — Anglican leaders warned Thursday that U.S. Episcopalians will put the group "in jeopardy" if they consecrate their first openly gay bishop, saying such a move might break up the global Anglican association.

In a unanimous statement at the end of a two-day crisis meeting on their deep divisions over homosexuality, leaders of 37 national churches called on members not to react precipitately.

But they appeared to concede that some parts of the church would shun the New Hampshire diocese or the whole Episcopal Church, which has become more accepting of gay relationships.

They also called on Archbishop of Canterbury Rowan Williams to establish a commission to study the divisions and report within a year.

Williams called the emergency meeting immediately after the General Convention of the Episcopal Church confirmed the election of the Rev. V. Gene Robinson as the bishop of New Hampshire — over the loud objections of conservatives within the church.

"If his consecration proceeds, we recognize that we have reached a crucial and critical point in the life of the Anglican Communion and we have had to conclude that the future of the communion itself will be put in jeopardy," the leaders' final statement said.

"In this case, the ministry of this one bishop will not be recognized by most of the Anglican world, and many provinces are likely to consider themselves to be out of Communion with the Episcopal Church (USA). This will tear the fabric of our Communion at its deepest level, and may lead to further division on this and further issues as provinces have to decide in consequence whether they can remain in communion with provinces that choose not to break communion with the Episcopal Church (USA)," the statement said.

Robinson's consecration is scheduled for Nov. 2. He has repeatedly said that he will not back down from taking the post.

Responding to a question, the Episcopal Church's Presiding Bishop, Frank Griswold, indicated he intended to participate in Robinson's consecration.

"I stand fully behind the careful process used by the diocese of New Hampshire to discern who it wished to have as its next bishop, and I also fully respect the decision of the General Convention and the House of Bishops of the Episcopal Church," Griswold said.

The leaders' statement called on the national churches, called provinces, to "make adequate provision for episcopal oversight of dissenting minorities within their own area of pastoral care in consultation with the Archbishop of Canterbury."

It did not say what form such alternate oversight should take. In the Church of England, for example, traditionalist "flying bishops" were appointed to oversee parishes that refused to recognize the ordination of women.

Huge crowd marks pope's anniversary

VATICAN CITY (AP) — An ailing Pope John Paul II celebrated his 25 years as pontiff on Thursday, asking tens of thousands of pilgrims, his admiring Polish countrymen and the men who help run his church to pray for him, saying his future rested in the hands of God.

The festivities, made bittersweet by the pope's obvious ailments, highlighted John Paul's role as one of the most influential religious figures of the last century as he reached a milestone marked by only three of his predecessors.

At least 50,000 people packed St. Peter's Square for an anniversary Mass that began at 6 p.m. — about the same time a quarter-century ago that white smoke from a Vatican chimney signaled that a Polish cardinal named Karol Wojtyla had been elected the first non-Italian pope in 455 years.

As the sun set over the square, the crowd broke into applause when a weary-looking John Paul was wheeled to the altar, dressed in golden vestments and a jeweled miter, while a choir sang hymns.

He smiled after the greeting from the dean of the College of Cardinals, Cardinal Joseph Ratzinger, who praised the pope for his tireless work and his endurance of "criticism and insults."

"You turned to young and old, rich and poor, powerful and humble, and always showed, according to the example of Jesus Christ, a particular love for the poor and the defenseless," Ratzinger said.

The 83-year-old pope, who suffers from Parkinson's disease, read only portions of his prepared remarks, including a prayer, and appeared pained at times. He spoke in a strong voice during his homily, but began slurring his words later in the two-hour service.

"I renew, in the hands of Mary, beloved Mother, the gift of myself, of the present and the future: everything will be done according to your will. Supreme Pastor, stay among us so that we can proceed with you securely to the house of the Father."

And in a portion read by an aide,

John Paul said, "Help the pope and all those who want to serve Christ."

John Paul arrived on the world stage when the College of Cardinals gathered to name a successor to Pope John Paul I, who died after only 34 days in the papacy.

On that day, the first plumes of white smoke began pouring out of the Sistine Chapel chimney at 6:18 p.m., the sign that the cardinals had found their next pope. At 6:45 p.m., Cardinal Pericle Felici announced the news from the balcony of St. Peter's Basilica, and at 7:15 p.m. John Paul II made his first appearance to the world, asking for patience from Italians because he didn't speak their language perfectly.

Ratzinger recalled those moments in his opening greeting, saying John Paul had "conquered the hearts of Romans with an unforgettable speech."

Military newspaper survey finds low morale in third of Iraq troops

By PAULINE JELINEK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A third of U.S. troops surveyed in Iraq said their morale was low and half said they are unlikely to stay in the armed forces, the military newspaper Stars and Stripes reported.

Though the newspaper said its poll of some 2,000 troops was not a scientific sampling, the results raise anew worries that long deployments and the complex and dangerous mission in Iraq will prompt some to leave the military at re-enlistment time.

The findings also appear to contradict statements by the Bush administration portraying morale as high among occupation forces, which are trying to stabilize violent resistance from remnants of Saddam Hussein's fallen regime as well as restart the economy and government.

In a companion piece to its story Wednesday, the government-funded Stars and Stripes said the commander in Iraq challenged the poll results.

"There is no morale problem," Lt. Gen. Ricardo Sanchez told the paper.

"Are you going to find soldiers on any given day who are down on morale? Of course," he was quoted as saying. "There are days when I wake up and don't feel very good and I'd probably bite your head off. I walk around and talk to all sorts of soldiers also, and I honestly believe our soldiers are doing very, very well."

The newspaper said it sent three teams of reporters to Iraq in August after receiving letters through the summer in which some 60 percent complained about a range of subjects including living conditions and mail delivery.

The newspaper said it conducted a "convenience survey," meaning the questions were asked of those who happened to be available at the time rather than to a randomly selected cross-section.

Its reporters spent three weeks fanning across Iraq, visiting some 50 camps with the 17-part questionnaire on health, living conditions, mail delivery, whether they were sufficiently trained for their mission and so on. In some places reporters handed out the questionnaire for service members to fill out, though the Air Force did not allow the distribution of the questions on all bases. At one such base, reporters were allowed to interview the airmen about the questionnaire.

Asked about their personal morale, 34 percent rated it as "low" or "very low," 27 percent said it was "high" or "very high," and virtually all the rest called it "average."

Slightly more than a third of those responding to the questionnaire said their mission was for the most part "not clearly defined" or "not at all defined." Sixty-three percent said it was.

Sanchez also took issue with that.

"I guarantee you that if you ask a soldier if he's focused on his mission, does he understand the criticality of his mission, I think you find that a majority of them really do understand why we're here and the implications of us not succeeding," he was quoted as saying.

Some 49 percent of those questioned said it was "very unlikely" or "not likely" that they would stay in the military after completing their current obligation.

Experts inside and outside the Pentagon have been predicting a drop in re-enlistment, particularly in the reserve units heavily used in the global war on terrorism and in Iraq.

Military officials say it is not uncommon for enlistment rates to drop after conflicts. But the latest recruiting and retention figures among all the services don't yet reflect any notable dissatisfaction with the armed forces.

"Many Reserve and National Guard respondents said they were unhappy with a number of things ... often felt like second-class soldiers who don't receive the same equipment, support and treatment as their active-duty counterparts," the newspaper said.

Some soldiers suggested the congressional and other delegations visiting Iraq get a rosier view of the occupation because the people that they are allowed to talk to are hand-picked by officials, the newspapers said.

Sen. Mitch McConnell, R-Ky., asked about this at a Pentagon news conference, said he didn't think it was possible for military leadership to have scripted what he heard from soldiers on his recent visit.

"I thought the morale was extremely high," said McConnell. "And the only complaint I heard were from a few reservists ... who were concerned about when were they going home."

He spoke in the latest in a series of some half dozen news conferences the Pentagon has called to have members of Congress vouch for in Iraq.

every side is closed."

And this one remarkable cry from the heart: "I feel just that terrible pain of loss, of God not wanting me, of God not being God, of God not really existing."

Kolodiejchuk said in an interview that her words are only shocking if they are thought to be "a real doubt of faith," which he vigorously denies. And Neuner believes that the very words demonstrate faith in God's reality: "We cannot long for something that is not intimately close to us."

The divine silence was especially excruciating for Mother Teresa because she enjoyed vivid experiences of God's love and immediate presence in 1946, when she was called to enter the slums and leave behind the comforts and joys of teaching at a convent school.

She never wavered in the conviction that God in Jesus Christ directly commissioned her ministry. She said she distinctly heard his voice say, "I want to use you for my Glory. Wilt thou refuse?"

Mother Teresa asked her counselors never to reveal her inmost thoughts. Nonetheless, release of the quotations is justified, Huart wrote, because the experience of mystics "is meant not primarily for themselves but for the good of the whole church."

The revelations are unusual, however, because they came so soon after Mother Teresa's 1997 death, the result of Pope John Paul II putting her on a uniquely fast track to sainthood.

Carol Zaleski of Smith College noted in First Things magazine that "accounts of divine darkness" occur from Christianity's early centuries. In one version, God's light is so blazingly absolute that his glory is veiled in a dark "cloud of unknowing."

The "dark night of the soul" was famously depicted by St. John of the Cross, a 16th century Spaniard. But Zaleski likens Mother Teresa's experience to that of her namesake St. Therese of Lisieux, who died in 1897 at age 24 suffering a "night of nothingness" and yet trusting God amid doubt.

Sister Mary Frohlich, who teaches spirituality at Chicago's Catholic Theological Union, says feelings of divine abandonment sometimes signal depression that requires psychological counseling. But she says Mother Teresa obviously lacked such symptoms as inability to enter into relationships and activities.

To Frohlich, all human relationships, such as those of parents and spouses, include "great pain and disappointment" at times. The same is true for peoples' experience of God.

Those "who radically dedicate their lives to relationship with God have a more radical experience," she says.

After examining Mother Teresa's life, Kolodiejchuk says that she believed the worst poverty wasn't material but total abandonment by other people, the state of those she was called to reach.

Christianity teaches that Jesus endured crucifixion for the sins of all people, and that he cried from the cross about God's abandonment. Similarly, Kolodiejchuk says, for this woman who loved God above everything else, loss of the divine presence was the ultimate sacrifice that emptied her soul but mysteriously energized her mission.

Perhaps, he suggests, "Mother Teresa will become the patron saint of the lonely and those feeling unwanted and unloved."

DA says decision on Shumaker by end of Oct.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A prosecutor reviewing a state audit of former University of Tennessee President John Shumaker said he hopes to know by the end of October if he will pursue a criminal case.

"We hope to have some comment in the next couple of weeks," Knox County District Attorney Randy Nichols said Wednesday.

Nichols declined to discuss the report.

A state comptroller's report showed Shumaker may have violated state law by impeding an internal audit of his spending.

Shumaker, who resigned under fire in August after the internal audit found lavish and questionable spending, made several "misrepresentations" to auditors and reporters about his travel and expenditures, and he instructed his secretary to alter his calendar to hide what he had done, the report said.

Comptroller John Morgan forwarded the report to the state Attorney General's office and to Nichols, the chief prosecutor in the county where the university is based.

Kentucky state auditor wants to interview U of L auditors

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — State Auditor Ed Hatchett wants to review the work papers of University of Louisville auditors who looked into the travel and entertainment spending of former university President John Shumaker.

Hatchett also wants to interview the auditors. He wrote to university President James R. Ramsey on Tuesday citing a state law that requires the university to "keep its books and records available" to the state auditor, and Ramsey released the letter Thursday.

"We are hopeful that these procedures will allow us to determine if the work performed by the University of Louisville auditors was accurate and complete, and that the resulting reports are a fair representation of those efforts," Hatchett said in the letter.

Rae Goldsmith, a U of L spokeswoman, said Thursday that the university received the letter late Wednesday and that school officials were preparing their response.

"We certainly welcome the interest of the auditor," she said. "The president has just reviewed the letter today so we haven't been able to respond."

The U of L audit was in two parts, one involving public money and the other involving expenditures of donations to the university that were received and held by the U of L Foundation.

On Sept. 25, the trustees' audit committee accepted and released the part of the audit involving public funds. On the same day, Malcolm Chancey, the foundation chairman, released the audit involving foundation-held funds. He said that the foundation released the information voluntarily and that the university had no jurisdiction over that part of the audit.

Goldsmith said the university would comply with Hatchett's request regarding the part of the audit that deals with university funds. She said the school would have to discuss with the foundation Hatchett's request for the audit involving foundation-held funds.

Leslie Vidra, a foundation lawyer, said Thursday that Hatchett did not send her a letter and that she was not aware that he wanted to review the work of U of L auditors Dave Barker and Cheri Jones. She said she couldn't comment because she had not spoken with Chancey and other foundation board members.

Harold McKinney, a spokesman for Hatchett, said Hatchett would make no comment beyond the letter to Ramsey. But McKinney said, "We fully expect the University of Louisville to cooperate."

The state auditor's staff has already reviewed the U of L audit, which looked at the travel and entertainment expenses of Shumaker, U of L president between July 1995 and June 2002, McKinney said.

The staff has also read audits performed by the Connecticut State University System, which governs Central Connecticut State University, where Shumaker was president before coming to Louisville; the University of Tennessee, where Shumaker was president after he left U of L; and the Tennessee comptroller's office.

The U of L audit, which covered January 1999 through June 2002, found that Shumaker's travel and entertainment expenses were appropriate. But it found that he charged $36,000 on the foundation credit card even after a 1998 audit urged Shumaker to stop the practice. Of that amount, Shumaker paid back $34,000 while in office and $2,000 during the course of the audit.

In Connecticut, auditors reported that Shumaker took a trip to South Korea for a conference in June 1995, shortly before he left CCSU and joined U of L, but showed up after the conference concluded, when there was only a dinner left on the agenda. He then took a three-day trip to the Philippines, in part with public money.

UT auditors found that Shumaker, who resigned in August, had nearly $32,000 in questionable spending, including personal trips on the UT airplane. And the Tennessee comptroller's office said Shumaker may have broken the law by misleading state and UT investigators.

January. It represents students from eight southern Kentucky school districts.

Among other things, it contends that state laws for funding education conflict with the state's constitution. Last month, the Council for Better Education, a coalition of school districts, sued legislative leaders alleging that the General Assembly has failed to meet a constitutional mandate to adequately fund public education.

Attorney Theodore Lavit, of Lebanon, who is representing plaintiffs in the first case, said he would probably "sign off" on the idea. Lavit said he was hoping the case would head to trial this spring.

"I think it'll make our case stronger," Lavit said. "I think we'll have more firepower."

Graham told attorneys he would be "looking for any way possible to consolidate" the two cases.

Fast Hispanic growth to continue until 2020

WASHINGTON (AP) — The population surge that has made Hispanics America's largest minority shows no sign of slowing in the next 20 years, according to a study released Tuesday by a Latino research group.

The Pew Hispanic Center found that much of the growth will be from children born to parents who arrived during the immigration wave that began in the 1980s. Because they are native-born, many of those youngsters will have an easier time than their parents, freed of language barriers that made it harder to find work and fully assimilate into American society.

"There's much less adaptation for them," said Roberto Suro, director of the Pew Hispanic Center. Besides speaking English, many native-born children will be better educated than their immigrant parents, he said. That opens the door to better job opportunities, home ownership and other economic benefits.

The Hispanic population is expected to grow from 35.3 million in 2000, or about 13 percent of all U.S. residents, to about 60.4 million in 2020, or 18 percent, according to the Pew analysis. That means the Latino population would grow at a rate of about 1.2 million a year through 2020, about the same growth rate as during the 1990s.

Almost half the Latino growth during the next two decades is expected to come from second-generation Hispanics, those born in the United States of at least one foreign-born parent, and 25 percent will be immigrants. That reverses the trend between 1970 and 2000, when immigrants accounted for nearly half the growth.

The aging of the second generation is expected to help boost the number of Latinos in the labor market by 12.6 million between 2000 and 2020, 1 million more than growth forecast for the rest of the labor force.

The increased presence in the work force could boost Hispanics as a voting bloc, as more of their population becomes taxpaying, voting-age citizens, said Larry Gonzalez, director of the Washington office of the National Association of Latino Elected Officials Educational Fund.

Political clout could also rise if educational and income levels were to go up among second generation Hispanics, as has been the case in previous immigrant waves. For instance, earning more money could help more Latinos own homes, and generally homeowners, in turn, tend to be more active politically, Gonzalez said.

States suspend prepaid tuition plans

BY STEVE GIEGERICH
AP Education Writer

A combination of rising costs and plummeting investments has forced several states to suspend enrollment in prepaid tuition plans designed to protect families against spiraling expenses at public colleges.

Ohio announced last week it was suspending its program for a year because the state was losing money. West Virginia, Kentucky and Texas also have temporarily cut off new enrollment, and earlier this year Colorado halted enrollments in its plan completely.

Prepaid tuition plans allow families to purchase tuition credits — based on the current rates — in lump sums or monthly payments. A state then pools the money in long-term investments, hoping that earnings will match or exceed the cost of tuition years later when a child is ready to attend college.

Now, the problem is tuition is rising faster than investment earnings.

Charles Bockway, a spokesman for the West Virginia Prepaid Tuition Plan, said the confluence of tuition increases topping 10 percent and the slow economy, which hurt schools' investments, caught many financial experts by surprise.

"Our research shows this has never happened before," Bockway said. "Typically, when you had periods of high tuition growth you had periods of high inflation. And during high inflation times you earn a lot in bonds and the stock market is doing well."

Every state in the country offers programs that provide tax incentives for college investment, and — coming into this year — 20 also provided investment options tied to current tuition prices. The College Savings Network Plan, an affiliate of the National Association of State Treasurers, said 1.7 million Americans are invested in prepaid plans.

In places where programs have been suspended, states are allowing those with money already invested in prepaid plans to keep the funds there, although they also are being given other investment options.

Horoscopes

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, Oct. 18, 2003:

You discover that much goes on behind the scenes. You experience a rich personal life as well, where you might like spending more time at home or alone than in previous years. During these periods, your mind still works overtime, so developing a hobby or pastime that helps reduce stress could be significant. Don't feel challenged by those in control, or you could get upset. Know when to pull back and let others display their colors like a peacock. You will also become instrumental within a group or special group of friends. If you are single, a relationship could develop, though there might be a clandestine tone to it. Make sure this person is as emotionally available as you think. If you are attached, your relationship blossoms to a new level, especially if you develop a special time just for the two of you. LEO is a friend.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have:
5-Dynamic; 4-Positive;
3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

*** Stay anchored, even if someone makes an offer that seems impossible to say "no" to. In fact, you might want to say "yes" rather than "no." Good news surrounds you, especially as the day gets later. Obviously, someone cares. Tonight: Your treat.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

**** Speak your mind and share your thoughts, and another will jump to a new tune. Your caring does mean a lot to someone you care about. Don't do anything halfway right now. Family needs to become your highest priority. Tonight: Now, let the fun happen.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

**** Investigate possibilities that surround a money venture and real estate. You might like what you see coming down your path. Share more caring through calling and reaching out for others. Fun plans simply happen. Tonight: Out and about.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

**** You naturally say and do the right thing at the right time. Laugh and play along with a loved one, friend or neighbor. Before you know it, you could be hosting a potluck dinner. You might like to have all your friends and associates around you. Tonight: A smile goes a long way.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

*** Sit back and do some key thinking before you express what you really want. A family member might be more than ready to oblige. Be absolutely sure that this is what you want. Discussions move in a new direction. Tonight: Keep smiling.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

*** Be happy that you have so many people around you. A special friend goes out of her or his way for you. Caring conversations come from out of the blue. Be receptive to someone's ideas, especially someone who is very special to you. Tonight: Take some time to yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

**** You cannot get around a must appearance, no matter how hard you try. Don't fight the inevitable, but put your best foot forward. Investigate other styles by asking questions. A meeting easily could degenerate into a Friday-night celebration. Tonight: You are the party.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

**** You might want to carefully think through a decision that involves a special friendship and your long-term goals. Your ability to get past a problem through detaching comes out once more. Take your time when making decisions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

***** Others mean well, and they let you know it. Sometimes you feel pushed quite hard, but that might have much more to do with your own perspective than with reality. You have high expectations, and you follow them. Tonight: Take off ASAP. Try a different scenario.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

***** Others come to you with really wonderful suggestions. How can you say "no"? Or better yet, why would you want to say "no"? A partner might not quite agree with you, though that might not be important right now. Tonight: Dinner for two. Leave work at the office.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

**** Dig into work, and suddenly you'll find that everyone wants to chip in, in their own particular manner. Be open to other ideas as you clear your desk. You might be amazed by someone else's shortcut. Tonight: Say "yes" to an invitation.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

***** Your playfulness keeps the office rocking and rolling. You easily could be delighted by someone's sharing of ideas. A partner could be quite concerned about finances. Listen well, as this person might have a better grasp than you have. Tonight: Play away.

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT: I was recently prescribed a drug called Famvir and was surprised that 100 pills cost me more than $500. Are there mail-order pharmacies that would fill this prescription at less expense?

DEAR READER: I don't know. Perhaps ordering the medicine from Canada would be cheaper. Ask your pharmacist to supply you with the names of mail-order prescription outlets that might sell you Famvir at a lower cost.

Famvir is an effective anti-herpes drug that is marketed for treating certain viral infections, including shingles. If it is helping you and the medicine improves your quality of life, you may simply have to bite the bullet and consider the expense a necessary nuisance.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have an acquaintance who suffers from histoplasmosis. His therapy consists of IVs lasting several hours, several times a week. Since this causes inconvenience and hardship, is there any other method to treat this disease?

DEAR READER: Histoplasmosis is a chronic infectious disease caused by a type of fungus. It can affect any organ, most commonly the lungs, liver, intestine and lymph nodes.

In many instances, the infection is trivial and patients recover completely without therapy. For example, in certain parts of the country (chiefly the Ohio and Mississippi River valleys), inactive histoplasmosis is often discovered by accident on routine chest X-rays.

However, the disease is not universally benign. It can be fatal in persons with immune deficiencies, such as AIDS. In these cases, the infection leads to disabling lung disease and other serious consequences.

The generally accepted therapy for histoplasmosis is the intravenous anti-fungal drug amphotericin B. If your acquaintance has so-called "disseminated" (advanced) infection, IV amphotericin B treatment, although expensive and inconvenient, will offer the best chance of cure.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What is your opinion of avascular necrosis of the knee? Could it be caused by arthroscopy I had a year ago? I've been in pain for six months. My primary orthopedist recommended a new knee. I obtained a second opinion from another orthopedic surgeon, who advised me to wait because the damage involves only about one-fourth of the knee and might heal with time and rehab.

DEAR READER: Avascular necrosis of any organ means that some tissue has died because of inadequate blood supply. This can be serious and difficult to treat when it affects bone.

I do not know why you developed this condition in your knee, unless you have had major surgery on the joint. I don't believe arthroscopy is to blame. During this procedure, an orthopedic surgeon introduces a small tube into the knee joint and removes damaged tissue.

If the second specialist advises you to hold off on knee replacement, I'd do so. He may believe that the knee will recover its proper circulation over time. If it fails to do so, you can always opt for knee replacement in the future.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I am in middle school and have been helping my friend, "Heidi," with her schoolwork. When Heidi first asked for help, I didn't mind. But now she expects me to do all her assignments.

Yesterday after school, I tried to help Heidi with her homework in the library, but she kept wandering off to talk to friends. Abby, I don't want to help someone who doesn't make an effort, but I feel responsible because Heidi's grades are falling fast. What should I do?

BOY WITH A BIG PROBLEM ON HIS HANDS

DEAR BOY: First of all, stop shouldering burdens that are not your own. If your friend fails a subject because she has not completed her assignment, the responsibility is hers — not yours. It was kind of you to try to share your own good study habits with your friend. But the time has come for her to take what you have taught her and fly on her own.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to warn "Afraid in Calgary, Canada," about what she's in for: She's the woman who was scared because her husband is manufacturing an illegal drug.

Two years ago, my boyfriend, "Otis," and I were turned on to methamphetamine by an "old friend." It quickly consumed our lives. We suddenly became paranoid and no longer trusted each other. Soon we began selling it so we could get high for free. Selling led Otis to manufacturing it himself — all for free drugs and easy money.

I left Otis because I knew what he was doing was wrong. However, three months later — after he promised that he had quit using, selling and manufacturing — I returned. The temptation was too great. We both got hooked again. Otis was raking in the dough, and he kept kidding himself, saying he'd only make and sell it "one more time" or until he saved a big enough nest egg. It was never enough. I told him no amount of money would be worth it if we were caught, and I was right. It wasn't.

So far, we've paid our lawyer $16,000 plus $10,000 for my bail money. We've lost $13,000 in confiscated cash, and Otis' children refuse to speak to him or visit him in jail. Otis faces 120 years in prison. I was arrested just for being in his home. I'm charged with five felonies and could also get a long prison sentence.

Abby, it may seem hard to believe, but Otis and I are decent people. He is a wonderful father. But because of weakness and greed, we have lost everything, including the respect of friends and family. Otis' teenage daughter is now ridiculed and picked on every day at school.

"Afraid," if you are reading this, please insist that your husband stop manufacturing and selling drugs. If you need money, take a second job. You may not have all the money you think you need, but you'll still have your family, your life and your freedom. We don't.

IN A BIND/OUT ON BOND

DEAR OUT ON BOND: Thank you for an important letter. Drugs are prevalent. Temptation is great. I hope your experience will serve as a warning to those who need one. What happened to you can easily happen to them.

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

Ten years ago: Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, in a CBS interview, said he would offer legislation restricting President Clinton's authority to send troops to Haiti. The Philadelphia Phillies defeated the Toronto Blue Jays, 6-4, evening the World Series at one game each.

Five years ago: A pipeline explosion and fire in southwest Nigeria killed some 700 people. The New York Yankees won game one of the World Series, defeating the San Diego Padres 9-6.

One year ago: Ira Einhorn, the '70s hippie guru who had fled to Europe after being charged with murder, was convicted in Philadelphia of killing his girlfriend, Holly Maddux, and stuffing her corpse in his closet a quarter-century earlier. Einhorn was later sentenced to life without parole.

Bidding Quiz

You deal and open One Heart. Partner responds One Notrump. What would you bid now with each of the following four hands?

1. ♠AJ7 ♥KQ1082 ♦J94 ♣K9
2. ♠KQ9 ♥AQJ42 ♦AJ6 ♣103
3. ♠5 ♥KQ9874 ♦AK2 ♣KJ6
4. ♠AQ8 ♥KQJ63 ♦AKJ ♣106

1. Pass. Partner's notrump response shows six to 10 points, so you know immediately that the 26 points normally required for game are lacking. It might be tempting to bid two hearts, but that would not be the winning bid in the long run. This is a partscore hand, and the only question is whether one notrump will be easier to make than two hearts.

Granting that there are hands partner could hold where two hearts would prove safer than one notrump, the fact remains that such hands are in the minority. Partner's six to 10 points, added to your 14, should offer a good chance of producing seven tricks in notrump. The fact that you have an honor in every suit should also influence you to pass.

Tomorrow: Perfect management pays off.

2. Two notrump. This is an invitational bid showing 16 to 18 points. It asks partner to pass with six or seven points but to carry on to three notrump with nine or 10. With eight points, partner exercises his judgment.

3. Three hearts. This is also an invitational bid, but here the stress is on suit play rather than notrump. Partner might pass three hearts if he is in the lower half of the range for his notrump response. If he does pass, you are unlikely to miss a game.

4. Three notrump. With 20 high-card points facing at least six, you can't afford to simply invite a game by bidding two notrump, since partner might pass.

Given partner's failure to support hearts, three notrump is the obvious choice for game. An alternative possibility is to jump-shift to three diamonds (forcing to game), but this runs the risk of partner's raising diamonds and could lead to disaster. Three notrump is the natural choice, and that's what you should bid. Simplest is best.

Ky. boy finds two-headed snake at home

CENTERTOWN, Ky. (AP) — Hunter York was afraid of snakes, but he couldn't resist the two-headed reptile he found.

Hunter, 10, said he picked up the black king snake with a stick, then noticed it grabbed the stick with both heads.

"I ran in the house and said, 'Dad, this snake has two heads.' And he said, 'What?'" Hunter said.

Hunter said the snake "kind of freaked me out a little bit."

The 8 1/2-inch female reptile hasn't eaten since Hunter found it Oct. 4.

Hunter's father, Rodney York, loaned the snake Tuesday to Bowling Green snake hobbyist Scott Petty to see whether he could induce it to eat. "We couldn't force-feed it, because we don't know which head eats," York said.

York said he jokingly named the snake Mary-Kate and Ashley, because those were the first names of twins that came to mind.

York said he's considering a brief stint in show business for the snake once he learns more about it.

"If they're that rare, I'm going to hit up (talk-show hosts David) Letterman, (Jay) Leno and everybody I can think of," he said. "I'm going to milk it for all it's worth."

Ed Zimmerer, a Murray State University biology professor and herpetologist, estimated the occurrence of a two-headed snake at 1 in 10,000.

"They usually don't live too long," he said.

The snake might be unable to determine which is the dominant head or have some internal problems that interfere with eating, he said.

Henry retaining wall needs attention

By The Associated Press

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — A state review of highway retaining walls prompted after one collapsed in Nashville shows 11 others need attention, Department of Transportation officials said Wednesday.

A TDOT bridge inspection team reviewed records of more than 485 walls adjoining bridges and over-passes after the Sept. 10 collapse at the Jefferson Street onramp at Interstate 40 in Nashville.

Inspectors said the collapse of that 37-year-old wall was caused by water seeping into the base and corroding steel reinforcement bars. Corrosive resistant epoxy-coated bars have been used in the walls since 1975.

TDOT spokeswoman Kim

Keelor said inspectors determined that nine structures owned and operated by the state and two others require "further investigation."

Keelor said no problems were found with the bridges that adjoin the "bridge wing-walls."

Of 11 locations identified by the state, one is in Henry County on State Route 76-East Blythe Street.
