FARM BUREAU IN ANNUAL MEETING HERE THIS FRIDAY

The Fulton chapter of the Tennessee Farm Bureau will hold its annual meeting and business at the Fulton Chamber of Commerce building Friday morning, and an extensive program has been arranged for farmers and their families who will attend the meeting.

This is to be the first time in the state's history that farm bureaus in all the states will meet in one place. The annual meeting is being held in Fulton because of the large number of farm bureaus in the county.

The meeting will begin at 10 a.m. with speeches by local officials and officers of the state and national Farm Bureau organizations. The business meeting will follow, and after that the program will continue until noon.

The meeting will include discussions of various state and federal programs and legislation, and there will be a chance for the farmers to express their views on these matters.

The business meeting will last until about 3 p.m., and then the meeting will adjourn until Monday, when the business session will begin again at 10 a.m. The meeting will adjourn at 5 p.m.

The meeting will be open to the public, and all are welcome to attend.

WORK SELLOUT KILLS.

Every one was taught the importance of work. They were taught to be loyal to the working class. The work of the Red Cross was to provide food for the hungry, clothing for the homeless, and medical care for the sick. But the work was not just for the working class. It was for everyone. The work was to be done with a sense of purpose.

In the workplace, the work was to be done with a sense of purpose. The union was to be respected and the workers were to be treated with dignity. The work was to be done with a sense of pride and the workers were to be proud of their work.

In the home, the work was to be done with a sense of love. The family was to be supported and the children were to be nurtured. The work was to be done with a sense of joy and the children were to be happy.

In the community, the work was to be done with a sense of responsibility. The community was to be helped and the needs of the community were to be met. The work was to be done with a sense of compassion and the community was to be cared for.

In the world, the work was to be done with a sense of unity. The world was to be united and the people were to be united. The work was to be done with a sense of brotherhood and the people were to be brothers.

In the work of the Red Cross, the work was to be done with a sense of dedication. The dedication was to be to the ideals of the Red Cross and the work was to be done with a sense of purpose.

In the work of the Red Cross, the work was to be done with a sense of commitment. The commitment was to be to the ideals of the Red Cross and the work was to be done with a sense of purpose.

In the work of the Red Cross, the work was to be done with a sense of sacrifice. The sacrifice was to be to the ideals of the Red Cross and the work was to be done with a sense of purpose.

In the work of the Red Cross, the work was to be done with a sense of service. The service was to be to the ideals of the Red Cross and the work was to be done with a sense of purpose.

In the work of the Red Cross, the work was to be done with a sense of obligation. The obligation was to be to the ideals of the Red Cross and the work was to be done with a sense of purpose.

The divorce court murder

The detector could not understand what was so odd in his employer's face. He was actually staring blankly ahead. It was as if he were thinking of something else. The detector had to wonder if his employer had been doing any thinking at all.

The other shoulder had been shaved. The detector noted it. It was not a customary practice on his part to notice such details. But he was so used to seeing everything. He had seen so many things. It was like a second nature. He had learned to see everything.
