Who For President?

Who shall be our next President? This is a much-mooted question throughout the nation now, and next year will mark a national election when we must go to the polls and choose our next President.

Just recently, in co-operation with a national hook-up thru a news service—with newspapers throughout the nation participating—The News introduced a ballot in which voters are asked to express their preference for President. Whether they favor re-election of Roosevelt, or some other Democrat, or do they believe a Republican or a third party candidate, will gain the presidential chair. A check mark on the ballot appearing in this issue will indicate your opinion.

So far, Roosevelt is way out in the lead, insofar as the ballots received by this paper are concerned. However, Barkley, Alfred Smith, Hoover and Huey P. Long (now deceased) have also come in for mention, indicating the trend of public opinion.

If you are interested in who shall be our next president you owe it to the man, and to yourself to express your preference. Just clip ballot from editorial page of this edition, check with (x) mark, send or bring to the News office. Final tabulations are to be sent to the national news bureau for careful compilation to gauge the nation's pulse on this important question.

Matthews Wins Easily Over Tarzen Leggett

Bobby Matthews, Fulton middleweight, won easily over Tarzen Leggett of Jackson, Tenn., by a technical knockout in the third round of a scheduled ten-frame event at Union City, Tuesday night. Although Leggett fought Matthews a good fight about two years ago, he was no match for the Fulton battler Tuesday night, and he failed to stand up to the terrific body punishment given out in a two-fisted attack by the Kentucky boy.

BULLDOGS TO OPEN SEASON HERE FRIDAY

The Bulldogs of Fulton High School will open the season's play here Friday night at 7:45 o'clock when they face the Hornbeak team. Football prospects are much brighter this year, Coach Powell believes. In the backfield, versatile Capt. Edwards will lead his teammates. Beedles, Cook, Weather or Scott will fill the other backfield positions. All these men are experienced players and will doubtless prove invaluable this season. Carver and Hummel are expected to do good work at ends. Hanby at guard.

Williams, who played center last year, has been shifted to tackle. Peoples and Williamson are timber for the pivot position. Campbell, Hays, Cantrell, Clapp and Jones seek berths at tackle. Lovelace, Snow, Donoho and Fields are trying for the other guard position.

The following incomplete schedule is announced by Coach Powell: Sept. 13—Hornbeak, here; Sept. 20, Open; Sept. 27, Union City, there; Oct. 4, Paducah, there; Oct. 11, Sharon, here; Oct. 18, Martin, here; Oct. 25, Dresden, there; Nov. 1, Murray, there; Nov. 8, Open; Nov. 15, Mayfield, here.

The Bulldogs face their first test tonight (Friday), and local fans are urged to turn out and give them support.

ROTARY CLUB PLANS INTER-CITY MEETING

Club service was the topic discussed by Paul Hornbeak at the regular meeting of the Rotary Club this week. Mr. Hornbeak, who was in charge of the program, showed that he had given much thought to the subject by the able manner in which he presented his talk.

Plans for the widening of Lake-at were discussed by Paul DeMyer. Among other speakers were Joe Davis and J. O. Lewis.

Mr. Lewis reported on arrangements for the inter-city Rotary meeting which is to be held in Fulton, Tuesday evening, September 24, at the Science Hall. The local club is preparing for about two hundred guests at this meeting, at which the ladies of the First Christian church will serve the banquet. Rotarians and their wives from the following surrounding towns have been invited: Paris and Martin, Tenn., Murray and Mayfield, Ky.

Murray Hill of Bowling Green, vice president of the Bowling Green Business University, will be present and will make a very interesting talk. Mr. Hill is a past director of the Rotary International and last winter he was sent as a special representative of the International to inspect the Rotary clubs in Egypt, Asia Minor, Rumania and Czechoslovakia. His talk at this meeting will be based on what he learned on this tour entitled, "Rotary Around the World."

A very enjoyable program is being arranged by Ernest Fall and Herschell Smith. The Rotary Club asks that all reservations be reported by September 20th.

Board of Education Met

The board of education met in regular session Monday night, September 9th, at the high school building. A financial report was given by the secretary and bills were passed for the coming month.

CROWD ATTENDS BIG TRADE DAY EVENT PURE-BRED EXHIBIT

Saturday was a great day for Fulton. It marked the opening of the first of a series of trade days to be held here this Fall. The ten fine pure-bred Jersey sires were on exhibition, preliminary to locating them in rural homes in this section.

Mayor Paul DeMyer and the committee who have devoted a great deal of effort and time toward the obtaining of these bulls to encourage better dairying in this section, deserve much credit for the program being carried out under the Chamber of Commerce.

The following business firms of Fulton backed the plan to purchase these bulls: Browder Milling Co., City National Bank, City Coal Co., Bob White Motor Co., P. H. Weeks Sons, Paul DeMyer, Fall & Fall, J. Kasnow, DeMyer & Scates, Little Clothing Co., W. S. Atkins, Boaz & Hester, Fred Robinson, Swift & Co., Kramer Lumber Co., Armour & Co., R. C. Peoples.

Interest in the trade day campaign is growing. Among the winners last Saturday were Judith Hill, Ruth Hommel, Mrs. Milton Baum.

'The Divorce Court Murder'

by Milton Propper

FIFTEENTH INSTALLMENT

SYNOPSIS: Barbara Keith, wife of a prominent Philadelphia business man, is murdered as she waits alone in a side room to testify in the divorce case of Rowland vs. Rowland. She was to have testified for the husband, a friend, who was defendant in the action. Detective Tommy Rankin is assigned to the case from police headquarters. His preliminary investigation disclosed that both Mr. and Mrs. Rowland had gathered evidence against the other of infidelity. The will of Mrs. Rowland's first husband directed her lawyer brother, Mr. Willard, to handle the estate until she remarried when the new husband was to come into control. Detective Rankin finds motives and the evidence of guilt for the murder of Mrs. Keith, leading to the doors of virtually all of the principals involved. These principals are, the two Rowlands, Mr. Willard, Mr. Keith, husband of the murdered woman, Hugh Campbell, paramour of Mrs. Rowland, and his underworld confederates—NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"Well, Rankin, here it all is," said the lieutenant. "You can have aid in going through it, if you need it. What are you particularly interested in?"

"Every bit of it," Rankin returned. "I'll want to make a thorough search. But first, have you found a picture of Dennis among his belongings?"

Becker shook his head. "There wasn't any, or our hunt for him might have been more successful."

"I suppose a description of Dennis will have to do then," Rankin observed. "Of course, you obtained, full details of his looks from Miss Trent."

"Yes, it's right here—as exact a picture of him as she could give us."

Disappointingly, however, the record was not overly practical for identification; it might have applied to thousands of similar youngish, attractive men.

"What about his fingerprints?" the detective queried. "He must have left plenty in his quarters on the articles he handled."

Lieutenant Becker produced an ink-smudged paper. "These are the ones we found on his furniture."

"I'd like a copy of these," Rankin requested.

The detective reached for a suitcase. "I'll start going through Dennis' things," he said. "If you'll get some one to open these other bags, lieutenant, and help me sort their contents, it won't take long."

Instead of summoning assistance, Becker lent Rankin a hand himself. There were three bags altogether, the examination being of brown leather, oblong and held together by straps. The second was a roomy black satchel, somewhat old and frayed, while the third was a patent-leather overnight case. None bore traveling tags and only the last a manufacturer's imprint; the rest, the detective examined the band of a crushed felt hat and a gray cap, both size 7 1-2 seeking a clue as to where they were bought. He also searched for hairs from Dennis' head that might cling to them. Similarly, he scrutinized his razor shaving kit, which was unmarked. The fugitive had three inexpensive but sporty suits. The miscellaneous contents of the pockets included a small revolver, loose change, a handkerchief, a ring of skeleton keys, and a flask.

"What do you make of this belt?" Rankin suddenly asked. "It's a fair leather belt, the slant for it in the service."

"Service?" Becker repeated, obviously startled by the suggestion. "You mean this is an army belt?" "Either that or a marine belt, lieutenant," Rankin directed his explanation more to Mr. Lewis than to the officer. "No doubt you've noticed service men in the winter particularly soldiers and marines wearing heavy khaki overcoats; they put these russet belts around them on the outside. They're something like the Sam Browne belts officers wear about their uniforms."

The lieutenant inspected it carefully. "But there's nothing on it to indicate that it's part of service equipment," he objected. "I always noticed the stuff was marked—either stamped with the name of the corps, or the initials of the army or navy punched on."

"You'll generally find the name of the depot that issued it," Rankin agreed. "But it's usually placed on a small leather label, on the inside, that connects the buckle with the loop for the end of the belt to keep it from flapping. And that's easily removed. If Dennis didn't want the fact known that he had been in the service, he could slip off that strip. I enlisted during the war, and from my training camp days I recall that much about my uniform."

The lawyer also examined it. "It's very likely this is a service belt," he then agreed. "Only you mustn't jump to conclusions. It is possible this didn't come from a post, but from an army and navy store; I understand they can be purchased there quite easily."

For an instant this idea took Rankin aback; then his confidence in his theory reasserted itself. "That's a chance. I'll have to take it," he replied. "But one thing is certain," he added with enthusiasm and excitement. "If Dennis was ever in either military branch, we'll be making genuine progress. They maintain a complete record of their men, and we should get valuable information about him."

Despite the optimism he expressed about the clue from Fred Dennis' suitcase, Tommy Rankin fully realized the slenderness of the thread on which he depended.

Nevertheless, having progressed as far as possible in his investigation at Fort Wayne, he looked hopefully toward his next step. Indeed, he had no other avenue of approach. In uncovering Dennis as a likely suspect, as the murderer of Barbara Keith, he had been favored.

The detective caught the Manhattan Limited, New York bound; that necessitated a change at Harrisburg, for the most direct route to Washington. In the nation's capital he knew were lodged the records of all enlisted men, as far back as the American Revolution, eager and alert, he nevertheless retired, and for the second night in succession, slept aboard a train. So far as he could predict, the pursuit of Fred Dennis had just begun; thru six years and in many places, because of the precarious life he led, he must trail the wanderings of the culprit. There was no judging how long the chase would take him or how far afield.

In the morning the detective disembarked at the Union Station in Washington. Off hand he could not be certain exactly which bureau housed the information he sought. Rankin decided first to cover the possibility of Dennis having been a marine, and instructed a taxi to drive him to the Navy building.

Within his official card speedily gained him the intelligence, at the information desk, that the records of enlisted men were in charge of the adjutant-inspector's office.

Once he proved his bona-fides, Rankin anticipated no difficulty in gaining access to the records he required.

Mr. Roche, a blond, dapper young man in a wing collar was, however, impressed with his own importance. Behind his cold politeness the detective sensed suspicion and antagonism. Rankin did not mention the murder, giving Mr. Roche to understand that he hunted Dennis as the ringleader of a robber organization. It was not until the latter realized the magnitude of his quarry's activities and, more important, that he had been out of the service more than six years, that he thawed into affability.

He nodded more graciously. "Yes, I think we should find the information you want in our files," he said. "What was the fellow's name, Mr. Rankin?"

"Fred Dennis," Rankin returned. "That doesn't mean, of course, then he enlisted under it; he has probably changed it a dozen times since. But I've also brought his fingerprints to compare with those on file. You take the men's fingerprints, I believe?"

"Oh, yes, that is included in the description," Mr. Roche extended his hand. "Give them to me and I'll arrange to have the record examined now."

"And what about photographs?" Rankin spoke a bit anxiously. "Have your pictures of your men as well?"

The detective produced the data he brought from Fort Wayne, and quickly scribbling a few notes, Mr. Roche rang a bell on his desk. To the orderly who answered it he passed both the papers and the message.

He was gone for more than a half hour, fraught for Rankin with intense suspense and anxiety. He had no other workable clue to Dennis' trail; so much depended on his uncovering facts about him in one of the two military divisions.

He sighed in relief when the orderly returned, with more papers than he had taken with him.

"There were several Fred Dennis in the files, sir," the man reported briskly, "but none of them answers the description of the chap you're after. On the other hand, I've also had the prints traced from their general pattern; Mr. Gorgas, in the Bureau, says they fit some one named Steve Harmon. So I've brought his record along."

Mr. Roche waved his hand. "Good Carson. Put them down on the desk and thank you."

He waited until the orderly left the office before inspecting the record with Rankin.

"Steve Harmon," he read aloud, "age twenty-two, height six feet, one inch, eyes blue, weight a hundred seventy, thin, broad-shouldered, hair dark—that appears to fit your description. I suppose there's no danger some one else has similar prints."

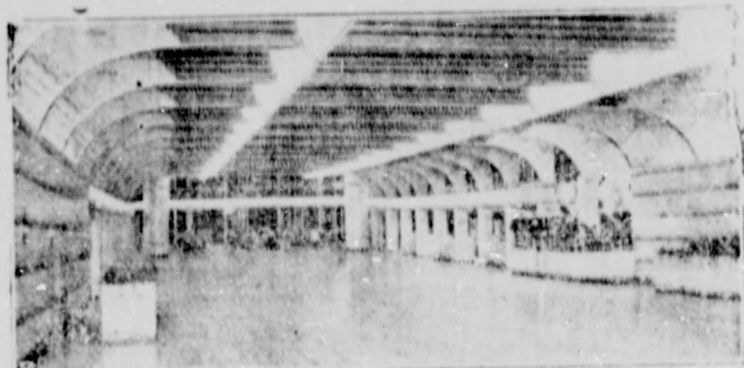

"Not a chance in ten million of their being duplicated," Rankin asserted. He bent over the inkmark eagerly. "Yes, these agree exactly with those the authorities have," he pointed out. "Those lines and that broken curve. And note the ovals along the upper ridge."

"Well, here is his complete history," The secretary opened a booklet and turned its pages. "He enlisted in April, 1925, at San Antonio, Texas, and was sent for preliminary training to the San Diego

Marine Barracks. Has no family ties or responsibilities. Was assigned to the U. S. S. Wyoming in June. Hmm, he was a pretty poor specimen of a marine and needed plenty of disciplining. Insubordination and petty theft of clothes; he was leniently let off with a month in the brig. And he ended by deserting in October."

WAR TOUCHES U.S. ALL

Nothing could more effectively demonstrate to everybody the fact that war or even the threat of war involving one of the major Western nations, touches the interest of every other nation and of all of their people, than the excitement and concern now being exhibited in all of the world's capitals over the questions which have been raised by the advance of Italy upon Ethiopia.

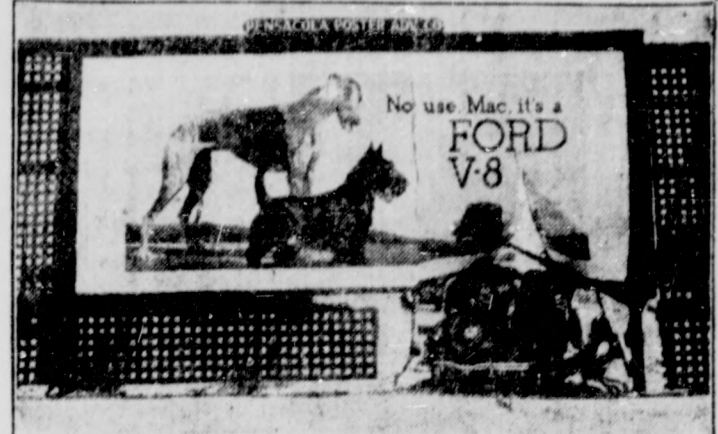

Italy is more than 3,000 miles from the United States and Ethiopia is still farther away, yet the question of our own neutrality and of what our Government should do toward co-operating to prevent the war is a vital and important one. It is one thing to talk about prohibiting the sale of war supplies to one or both belligerents in a war. It is quite another thing to make such prohibition effective.

What are war supplies? Canada has announced that she will not dump her wheat reserves on the market but will hold them in expectation of high prices, because of this war. Wheat is a war supply, no less than bullets or gunpowder.

We earnestly hope that our nation will not become involved in any way that will further strain our relations with Italy and the rest of the world, but we believe it would be in the interest of every American for our State Department to lend all the moral support possible to the efforts which the other great nations are making to avert this silly and senseless war.

Circle No. 4 of the First Baptist program on Stewardship was in Missionary Union met in regular charge of Mrs. M. L. Rhodes, assisted by Mrs. Hall and Mrs. T. S. Humphreys. At the close of the program the regular routine of business. The meeting was dismissed by prayer.

Stolen Auto Halts Parley of Pooches on Signboard

Pensacola—The conversation between a greyhound and a Scotch terrier on a signboard at the Frisco crossing in West Pensacola was interrupted when the automobile about which they were talking suddenly tore down the signboard. The greyhound had just repeated for the 1859596437th time: "It's no use, Mac, it's a Ford V-8" when the car, to which he referred at that particular time, suddenly left the highway and plunged straight at them. The particular portion of the signboard on which they rested tumbled to the ground while four negroes, who had taken the automobile without permission a few minutes before, piled out of it and ran away. The car, a 1935 model Ford V-8 sedan, de luxe, was already the object of a hunt by officers at the time it plunged through the signboard. While the automobile was being sought all over the city, reports were received it had interrupted the conversation between the greyhound and the Scotch terrier on the West Pensacola signboard.

FEDERAL GET THEIR MEN

In the federal case books there are no old mysteries: every federal crime is sooner or later cleared up. It is not fair to contrast their record with that of the average city police department, since the government men are not fretted by the great mass of petty crimes and misdemeanors which take up the time of the metropolitan detectives. Even the major crimes of violence are far less numerous against national laws than against state laws. (For instance, murder in itself is not a federal offense.) Federal penalties moreover, are severe, and federal judge stern and aloof. Only the most daring and resourceful criminals of the underworld care to break a lance, with Uncle Sam's man hunters.

But conceding that the federal detectives have fewer crime mysteries to solve and have unlimited resources behind them, still, the nation may well glory in their record. The federals are actually so few in number. The government's six principal detective offices—the ones that handle three thousand operatives in all. Only three thousand men to curb some of the most violent impulses of a mixed population of one hundred and twenty-two million.

POTATO CONTROL

As we understand the "Potato Control" amendment to the AAA Act, which was enacted by Congress last month, every farmer who raises and sells more than five bushels of potatoes anywhere in the United States will have to pack the potatoes in containers of a size and style prescribed by the Department of Agriculture, and attach to each container a stamp printed by the Government. The stamps will be either potato-tax stamps or tax-

Lovely Marion Davies will be at the Orpheum Theatre starting with a preview Saturday night at 11:30 and continuing through Sunday and Monday, in what is declared to be the film triumph of her career, "Page Miss Glory," her first Cosmopolitan picture for Warner Bros. Whether the stamp is a tax-exemption stamp or a tax stamp will depend upon whether the farmer has grown and offered for sale more or less than his quota of potatoes. Every farmer is to be given a quota—that is a specific number of bushels of potatoes which he may produce and sell without paying a special tax. If he grows more than his quota, he will have to pay a tax of 45 cents a bushel on every bushel in excess of the quota. Of course, every such restrictive law offers a temptation to violate it. So there is a provision in this potato control law intended to prevent bootlegging of potatoes. It provides that any person who knowingly offers for sale or offers to buy potatoes not properly packed, or packages not stamped, is liable to a fine up to $1,000, and for a second offence, to imprisonment up to one year.

According to the Department of Agriculture, there are somewhat under 3,000,000 farmers who raise potatoes for the market. Only a trifling fraction of these grow less than five bushels. How many potatoes the rest of them may grow and sell is still to be determined, but every farmer will be allotted his quota before the end of this year.

The idea of this potato control amendment, of course, is that of benefitting the farmer. Potatoes have lately been bringing the lowest prices in many years. One reason is said to be that many farmers who have been prohibited from growing their customary crops of wheat, corn and cotton have put their land to potatoes. At retail in the big city markets potatoes have lately sold at one cent a pound. That is 60 cents a bushel, including transportation and handling costs and profits of wholesalers and retailers, which doesn't leave very much for the farmer.

Consumers have been jubilant over the fact that the price of this important staple food has not climbed higher and faster than their incomes. There have been consumer strikes against meat products and other foods because of mounting prices. We wonder how long consumers will be happy when the price of potatoes also begins to climb.

More About The Constitution

The powers granted by the States to the Congress under the Constitution are strictly definite and limited. In brief, they include the following:

1. To lay and collect, taxes, duties, imposts and excises.
2. To lay the debt and provide for the common defence and general welfare of the United States.
3. To borrow money on the credit of the United States.
4. To regulate commerce with foreign nations and among the several States.
5. To coin money and fix standards of weight and measure.
6. To establish postoffices and post roads.
7. To grant patents to inventors and copyrights to authors.
8. To declare war, and to raise and support armies and navy and make rules for the government of its military forces.
9. To call out the militia in case of emergency.

In general, Congress has authority to make all ways necessary to carry into execution the powers granted to the Federal Government by the Constitution. But throughout the document of rights of the individual States are carefully safeguarded.

For example, each State has the sole right of appointing the officers and prescribing the training of its militia. Each State can determine

London High School Pupils Learn to Use Telephone as Business Aid

"Are you there?" these pupils in a London high school are saying, and then, according to the old joke, if you aren't there you say "no," and the conversation goes no further. Actually, these girls are using small portable dial telephone sets to familiarize themselves with the proper method of making and receiving calls, as part of their training for business positions after graduation.

for itself who constitutes its militia. In New York the militia consists of every able-bodied man between the ages of 18 and 45, whether enrolled in the National Guard or not. Congress has exclusive jurisdiction over military reservations, but has no power to establish them except by the consent of the States in which they are located.

Congress was given power to establish a uniform rule of naturalization, but the right to say whom to naturalize, but that does not carry with it the right to say who may vote in any given State. Each State sets up its own qualifications for voters and can change them at will. At the time of the adoption of the Constitution practically every State limited the franchise to taxpayers or property-holders.

Other important restrictions are placed upon the power of Congress by the Constitution. It cannot enact a law retroactive in its application—an "ex post facto" law. That is, it can not make illegal any act committed before the law prohibiting it was passed. It cannot impose taxes or duties on articles exported from any State. It cannot suspend the writ of habeas corpus. This does not sound so important today, but the framers of the Constitution had a vivid recollection of the custom of their British rulers of putting people in jail and refusing produce them in court.

The purpose of the constitution to vest supreme power in Congress, except for the rights reserved to the States, is indicated in the provision for the passage of laws over the veto of the Executive. An act of Congress does not become effective until it has been signed by the President, with the exception that if the President refuses to sign it, Congress, may by a two thirds vote, repass the bill. It thereupon becomes a law regardless of the President's veto.

It is also within the power of the Congress to dismiss from office any member of the Executive or Judicial branches of the government, including the president. This is done by the process of impeachment, in which the house of representatives has the sole power to impeach and the Senate the sole power to try any official indicted or impeached by the house. Numerous Federal Judges have been impeached and dismissed from the public service and one President, Andrew Jackson, was impeached by the house of representatives but was acquitted by the Senate.

RELIEF CLIENTS SAID TO HAVE BEEN INTIMIDATED DURING STATE PRIMARY

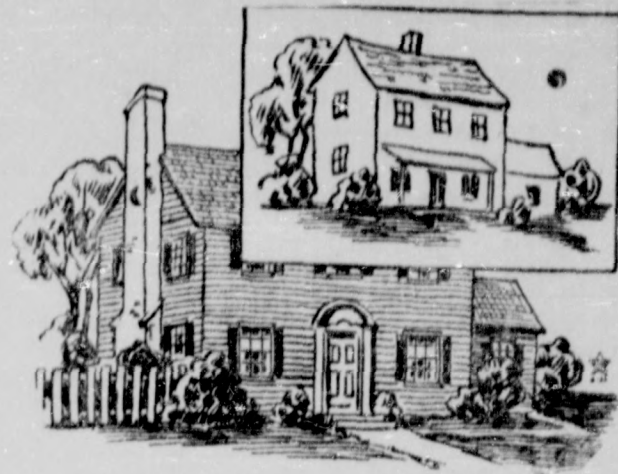

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 22—Charges and counter-charges of intimidation of relief clients in Kentucky to force them to vote one way or another in the recent primary were answered today by Geo. H. Goodman, Works Progress Administrator.

Mr. Goodman admitted charges had been made to him that in certain sections of the state candidates for office, or their agents had gone among relief clients and told them that unless the client voted a certain way his relief would be cut off. Still other charges, Mr. Goodman said, had been made that employees of the Relief Administration had been guilty of activity in recent primary.

"I shall not countenance any such practices for a single moment," Mr. Goodman said people on relief in this state can vote any way they see fit without the least fear of losing their relief status. And you can further say for me that if I find a single instance wherein I am satisfied anyone employed by me is taking an active part in politics, other than to cast his vote for whom he pleases, their connection with the Relief Organization will be severed forthwith."

Discussing the charges still further, Mr. Goodman said, "you cannot emphasize too strongly that there is one thing I will not stand for and that is politics in relief. President Roosevelt told me personally on a recent trip I made to Washington that politics and relief were alien and that he expected me to see to it that there was no such thing in Kentucky. As long as I am on this job I shall do just that."

Quoting from the 1935 Emergency Appropriation Act Mr. Goodman pointed out a clause which he quoted in substance as follows: "This Act, under which the Works Progress Administration is now operating, specifically says that political intimidation of employees and workers, and misrepresentation by per-

THE FUTURE FARMERS OF AMERICA.

Figures now available show about 9,000,000 boys and girls between the ages of 15 and 24 living in the rural areas of this country. Of this total number 5,800,000 are on farms, and from their number in all probability will come the future farm folk of the country in large majority. It is most interesting, then, to see the extent to which they are organizing themselves into various and sundry groups and organizations for the study of farming as a business and in its relation to the country as a whole.

One can think of 4-H clubs, Future Farmers of America and many other similar associations that are drawing increasingly large membership and interest from the ranks of the younger generation on the farm. Without exception, too, membership in these groups involves study of the problems of county, state and national governments, as well as the important matters of transportation, taxation and the like as they affect the farm population in its contacts and relationships with the rest of the country. All this, of course, is in addition to specialized study of the matters of farm procedure.

It all leads to the conclusion that the long used picture of a farmer as a fellow with hayseed in his hair, a straw in his mouth, and a firm belief that one had best plant potatoes by the phases of the moon will have to be materially revised in the very near future.

WEST KENTUCKY FOX HUNTERS ASSOCIATION SPONSORS ANNUAL CHASE OCTOBER 10, 11, 12

The annual fox chase will be held in Hickman County, Mob-loy's Camp Ground, three miles west of Water Valley, Ky. G. L. Robertson, president of West Kentucky Fox Hunters Association, stated here this week. The hunt this year is expected to attract larger crowds than ever before, with about one hundred of the finest fox dogs in the competition.

Judge L. L. Hindman of Clinton will give the welcome address on ladies day, which is expected to be the high point of the hunt with the attendance that day estimated to reach 1000 people. Fox will be released each day at 3:00 A. M.

until the hunt is declared off. Dr. Kelly of Water Valley, Miss., will act as master of the hounds. Out-of-the-state judges will award a beautiful loving cup valued at $75 to the winner.

A bench show will be held with a loving cup being awarded. Other prizes will be given second and third winners.

"Paducah has had the annual fox hunt for two years in succession," Mr. Robertson said, "but on account of the scarcity of fox Fulton gets it this year. This can be made an annual affair, and we ask the co-operation of the people of this section in keeping it going."

THE BOOK

THE CRITICISMS OF VOLTAIRE AND PAINE.

The newspapers of New York and London, of Paris and Rome, and of the universities in those and other countries, would charter ships to rush scholars and photographers and telegraphers to that place if any new book by a disciple of Jesus were found. They would run telegraphic lines and establish radio stations at the top of Mount Ararat or the heart of the Sahara. As fast as the book could be photographed and translated, it would be printed on the front page of every newspaper in the world and broadcast from the principal radio stations. It would appear in book form almost overnight, and would outsell all the best sellers.

In the eighteenth century that vitriolic genius, Voltaire, spoke of the Bible as a short-lived book.

The Scripture was his best-book whence he drew Bon mots to gall the Christian and the Jew.

He said that within a hundred years it would pass from common use. No! many people read Voltaire to-day, but his house has been packed with Bible as the depot of a Bible society.

Thomas Paine, a much abused man, said some good things which ought to be remembered to his Age of Reason, he left this foolish summary of what he thought he had accomplished:

I have now gone through the Bible, as a man would go through a wood with an axe, and felled trees. Here they lie, and the priests may replant them, but they will never make them grow.

Desperate efforts have been made to repudiate Paine's writings and give them again the influence which they were supposed once to have had. But if the Bible sells one single copy less for anything Paine ever wrote about or against it, the sales reports do not show it.

If a modern American author writes a book which has a moderately good sale in this country, and a London publisher takes over an edition and sells it in England, the author thinks well of his efforts. If his book is translated into German or Russian or Scandinavian, he has reason to be proud. He is not likely to do more than this, and he may well congratulate himself if his novel or text-book or scientific treatise appears in a half-dozen tongues. But the Bible is extant in full, from the first verse of Genesis to the end of Revelation, in one hundred and eight languages. Many other languages and dialects do not justify as yet the entire translation. New alphabets had to be made for types had to be cast; difficult sounds had to be classified; grammars and dictionaries had to be prepared, so as yet in many dialects and mixed languages only the New Testament and some portions of the Old are printed.

The Heavy Burden of Bureaucracy

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN

National Chairman

"... has erected a multitude of New Offices, and sent hither swarms of Officers to harass our people and eat out their substance."

Is that protest familiar to you? It should be. You've read it in the Declaration of Independence, among the array of grievances that drove the American colonies to the desperate lengths of the Revolution.

Thomas Jefferson, who wrote the famous document, and George Washington, who gave it reality, called that sort of thing Tyranny. Today it bears a softer name. We call it Bureaucracy. And we suffer it to a degree that would probably have aroused the colonists to a white heat of indignation.

For Bureaucracy is the enemy of that democracy for which the colonists fought. It is built up of bureaus, commissions and boards that usurp the power which, under the Constitution, is vested in the people. It is growing in scope and in influence. It has become one of the heaviest loads on the back of the American worker and earner. Why? Because Bureaucracy has increased the horde of minor officials and federal jobholders who now ferret into our personal affairs and consume so large a share of our taxes.

Because it is Bureaucracy that functions in the scores of alphabetic commissions which usurp Congressional and other authority and add so greatly to the complexities and burdens of government.

Because it is Bureaucracy that tries to tell you how many potatoes you can raise, and for what you must sell them.

Because it is Bureaucracy that boosts the cost of living—by loading on you not only the expense of its great army of jobholders, but also the waste involved in experimental juggling of prices and production and basic principles of government. Remember, under our Constitution, the American people never agreed to surrender such powers to appointed officials in whose selection they had no voice. They retained that authority for themselves and their elected public servants.

Bureaucracy, therefore, represents an invasion of the people's rights—a departure from the form of government under which America achieved a growth in area, in population and in resources unrivaled among nations. That's why Bureaucracy remains the foe not only of democracy, but of every citizen who retains the American spirit of self-reliant patriotism.

Heart Trouble Cured by Chiropractic

Newbern, Tenn. I had a very bad heart, and I was in a very weak and run down condition and much below normal weight when I learned of Chiropractic. After I started taking adjustments I was soon improving and soon entirely well. It is my honest opinion, people who are not investigating Chiropractic, are making a great mistake. I think nearly all troubles could be cured by this method. My trouble was corrected about three years ago.

RALPH WILLIAMS AND HIS ORCHESTRA ON STEAMER PRESIDENT, HICKMAN, SEPT. 19

Ralph Williams of Chicago and his Steamer President orchestra, who proved a sensation during the Streckfus queen's summer stand at St. Louis this season, will be aboard when the President comes here for an excursion en route to New Orleans.

Williams and his Oriental Village orchestra furnished the music at the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago, to which Sally Rand danced her way to international fame in her celebrated fan dance.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

THE POISON-VICTIM

I hope you may never be confronted with a poison emergency as I have many times been, the case of accidental (or suicidal) poisoning of a human being. It is one of the most serious moments of life when an unconscious and prostrate body is found demanding immediate effort.

Quick and accurate thinking is demanded and caution with it. Have some one summon the doctor. Don't waste time looking for evidence. Be quick to try to preserve life and look for evidence afterward. If the patient's lips are burned with carbolic acid, pour in heavy solutions of alkalines—sodas or epsom salts—or, diluted alcohol if it is at hand.

Do it plentifully and be sure it is enough. Let the doctor be the judge as to an emetic when he arrives. If the patient is in convulsions with violent contractions of the limbs and neck-muscles it indicates strychnine poisoning. Pour in warm mustard-water—anything that will produce vomit. Quiet those spasms if you can. Whiffs of chloroform if it can be had—anything to combat this quick-acting poison, until the doctor arrives.

With the patient that cannot be aroused it might be opium or morphine. Look at the pupil of the eyes. If they are contracted to pin-points and the sleep is profound and heavy, then give black coffee. Give all you can force down.

If you can get an emetic dose into the patient, do it. Stimulate. Do everything to keep up breathing, artificial respiration if you can perform. Keep the patient awake—or try strenuous methods to do so. We used to even "larrup" the morphine victim to keep him from sleeping off the mortal coil.

Children may get hold of acetonite—it produces excessive sweat, feeble, rapid pulse and great weakness. Give stimulants.

HUMAN EMOTIONS

It seems to me that the family doctor encounters almost all the phases of emotions of which the human mind is capable.

The doctor attends the victim of a blind and unreasoning wrath. He witnesses the human mind in tempests to delirium. In short, the humble family doctor is put up against most terrific tasks in his dealings with perverted, upset human mentalities. It would take a volume or more to record the experiences of each family doctor with "brainstorms" alone.

The nobler emotions? First of all sublime love, dignified by scriptural approval. This with human love fulfills all requirements of earth or heaven.

The family doctor sees the mother perish for her offspring. He sees her surrender her life for those nearest to her. What can be more sacred or approved of God than this?

The brute is incapable of love. The experienced family doctor can single out for you every human beast within his great circle of patients. He also encounters the numbskull without love of country, kinsmen, home or self. It is not difficult, it seems to me, to assess human souls as we come in contact with them.

My field widens in perspective. Love, this master-emotion sets apart for the highest among men and women. It may seem tedious repetition to repeat here, but, dear reader, love and nothing less can cure a sick and invalid world.

Do we wish to end war? I believe every sane person does. Love alone can do it. Remember that guns, bombing planes and deep-sea explosives will never end war. They cost billions of treasure, and shed oceans of blood.

Human love costs nothing and will end all wars, as asserted by the Man of Galilee.

Who Foots the Tax Bill?

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN

National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

They're spending a lot of the people's money at Washington these days. Experts report that federal appropriations for 1935-36 total twenty-four billion dollars. Count 'em—$24,000,000,000! That's as much money as all the combined administrations from Washington to Taft spent during the 124 years between 1789 and 1913.

Who's going to foot the bill? You saw part of the answer when you looked in the shaving mirror this morning. You saw more of it when your children gathered around the breakfast table. Whether you know it or not, you and they and probably their youngsters, too, will carry the load.

Some of the politicians are telling a different story. They say that the average voter is going to get a free ride on that money, while the rich manufacturers and big corporations pay the fare. What they haven't told is that no matter who gets the original bill, the cost is passed on to the ultimate consumer—which means you and your family.

That's what the politicians mean when they talk (among themselves) about "hidden" or "painless" taxes. Let's see how it works.

Is your own and your family's clothing costing more than it did two years ago? New and hidden taxes have been woven into the fabric and charged in the bill.

Is the family dinner basket more expensive—though no heavier—than it used to be? "Painless taxes" explain why.

But that isn't all. Hidden taxes lurk everywhere.

They hitch-hike in your automobile.

They intrude in your home.

They gnaw at your insurance policy.

They help the weeds choke the productive values of your farm.

They chisel down your pay check. And sometimes—when industry bows down under the burden—they crowd you out of your job.

You can't escape them—so long as Washington continues to waste the people's money. And no matter what the politicians may tell you, they can't lay the burden on one group or class, and expect it all to stay there. Tempting as it sounds, they can't "soak the rich" without a cruel and inescapable backlash at the door.

What the politicians can do is cut down the reckless expenditures which make high taxes necessary. What they should do is run the public business as intelligently and economically as they expect us to run our private affairs. Let them try that, and the tax problem is on its way to solution.

WARNING TO COTTON FARMERS.

A letter has just been received from County Agent J. B. Williams, stating that when cotton is sold the producer must keep a record of the sale showing the date of sale and price paid for the cotton. A record of this type must be kept in order for the government to make a payment to producers to make up the price and 12¢ per pound.

If the buyer does not have a receipt for the sale, the producer should keep this record in connection to present and establish their claim for this additional payment.

Another warning just in being issued at this time is in regard to the sale and purchase of hardwood certificates. Farmers will be paid 5 cents per pound for the certificates that they wish to sell when returned to the County Agents Office and sold by the agent at a certain price. The farmer will receive the same amount in cash for the certificates if they are sold to someone who does not enter this notice. The certificates have not arrived but the producers will be notified to come in as soon as the certificates are received.
