Industrial Survey of Retail Business For Fulton

Have you ever stopped to figure out how much it costs to feed, clothe and supply with the comforts of life the population of a city the size of Fulton?

Probably not. If you are married and confronted with the task of caring for your own family, you probably have a big enough job figuring out how to stretch the pocketbook and the annual income to supply their needs. You realize that shoes for the baby and silk stockings for your wife are quite an item, and you are ready to advise any lovelorn young man that "living on love" is an impossible task.

In a recent survey figures were compiled showing the amount of money spent by all the people of Fulton for the things needed by humans in their every day life. Although the survey was made for information of concerns contemplating coming into Fulton, it contains a collective picture of Fulton's economic life that is of interest to the layman confronted with the problem of living.

For instance, it is quite natural that the largest bill of any city should be for groceries, the rock bottom essential of life. Every person in the city, whether married or single, whether engaged in a gainful occupation or not, pays a proportion of the grocery bill, and if he is unable to pay it, some one pays it for him.

Probably not one person in a hundred could guess what item comes next in the list. Some would say automobiles, furniture or a hundred other commodities. As a matter of fact, Fulton people collectively spend more on clothing, which is second only to groceries insofar as the cost of living is concerned. Of the amount spent annually on wearing apparel, women spend more than men. The difference, however, does not justify the popular impression that mother gets fur coats and a new hat every month, while father goes out to make a living in a frowsy suit that is getting thin at the elbows and threadbare at the knees.

Fultonians spend a large amount annually on automobiles, gas and automobile supplies.

Cigars and tobaccos cost nearly as much as men's clothing, a large amount a year being spent on smokes.

The total amount spent by Fultonians on all commodities sold by retail establishments run into the millions.

It would be valuable data to industries desiring to locate here if the Chamber of Commerce could furnish a correct survey of the amount spent annually in the various lines already established here with the number of retailers represented.

Suppose a retailer of millinery wishes to locate an establishment in Fulton. He consults the survey sheet showing women spend a given amount on hats. He consults another sheet and discovers that there are a number of millinery stores in the town. By a little calculation he can ascertain whether it would be wise to open up a business here. This is only an example for all other lines.

Manufacturing industries should by all means be included in the survey and every effort made to locate other industries that are not already represented. A great future is before us. Let's take advantage of our opportunities.

THANKSGIVING SPECIALS

Merchants of Fulton Ready to Serve You With Money-
Saving Values

The merchants of Fulton invite you to visit the city and reap the benefits of some of the most wonderful values it has seen their pleasure to offer since before the war.

The advertisements in this paper tell the true story of what you may expect in the way of money-saving on your purchases of merchandise. It affords an opportunity of buying seasonable goods right at a time when they are in greatest demand. The winter season has just started.

The surprising values offered will elicit the praise of the most skeptical. Don't miss the opportunity to secure merchandise that you will need for winter at prices extremely low. You can make no mistake by buying now.

Fulton merchants are prepared to take care of everyone's needs with new stocks from America's foremost manufacturers.

The show windows reflect the change of the season with their gorgeous beauty. The ready-to-wear firms are displaying furs and heavy weight wearing apparel; the hardware stores are featuring stoves in their displays, and many of the grocery merchants have fresh oyster signs out. The furniture stores are advertising special bargains. In fact, the entire town, in business circles, await your coming to serve you courteously with values really worth while.

Avoid Disappointment.

Christmas will soon be here, and we urge all who contemplate having their names engraven on Christmas cards to place their order without further delay to avoid disappointment.

The same applies to engraven visiting card orders also.

MAKE YOUR CHRISTMAS CARD A TRULY PERSONAL GREETING

It's only a very short time until the busy Holiday season is here again. Before we realize it, all of us—old and young—will be counting the days until Christmas.

We want to suggest right now, while there is time to decide without haste, that you make your Christmas greeting decidedly personal this year.

Select from our display of beautiful designs and charming sentiments the card that exactly expresses your good wishes. Then permit us to print your name below the verse or seasonal greeting, and the message will be doubly personal.

Call at our office whenever convenient—but remember, those who come early will have first choice of a delightful assortment.

No extra charge for printing your name on Christmas cards purchased from us.

Thanksgiving

Proclamation

Know all men, women and children by these presents:

That, Whereas, the season has come for us to pause for a brief spell from our everyday activities and regular routine of business to render thanks and expression of gratitude for favors of mercies so graciously bestowed upon us.

Now, therefore, be it known that we observe Thursday, November 25, the day set apart for National Thanksgiving.

The nation, state and city have been generously blessed during the past year and this is an opportune time for us to reverently bow our heads in expressions of gratitude of a public acknowledgment for the thanksgiving and praise to God for the mercies of the year past.

W. O. SHANKLE,
Mayor.

Brieflets

Bishop Charles E. Woodcock, of the Episcopal Diocese of Kentucky, will visit Trinity church in Fulton, Sunday, November 21 and hold services at 11 o'clock, after which he will confirm a class on the following day. He will visit Wickliffe, Columbus, Clinton and Mayfield, returning to Fulton Tuesday night en route to Louisville.

Children of Fulton and vicinity will be delighted to learn that Santa Claus will arrive in Fulton, Friday, Nov. 26, and will be at Baldrige's Variety Store in the afternoon from 2:30 to 3:30 o'clock to distribute gifts to each boy and girl under ten years of age. Santa's annual visit to this store is always looked forward to with eager anticipation by the children. So don't forget the date, Friday, November 26.

From present indications Fulton county will have a county agent to direct the farmers for the next three years. Co-operative marketing and diversifying crops will be featured in his work.

At their meeting on Armistice Day, American Legion Post of Fulton launched a drive for new members. Teams were appointed under the leadership of two captains. At the close of the campaign the new members will be given a banquet. The American Legion Post has beautifully appointed club rooms on Lake street where members enjoy their leisure hours.

The gravel road between Fulton and Hickman will soon be completed to the delight of motorists traveling between the two cities.

By special arrangement with an eastern mill, L. Kasnow, the Lake Street, Fulton merchant, will sell Brown Domestic, 40 inches wide at 5c a yard during his Thanksgiving Sale, which starts Saturday morning, Nov. 20. It is said to be a regular 12c value. So you had better hurry to get your share.

Work on the Jeff Davis highway between Fulton and Union City is progressing nicely. W. M. Hill & Sons have completed the bridge work and grading is now within a few miles of the city. This road will be finished with a concrete surface, linking Fulton and Union City together with a delightful speedway of ten miles.

The Mayfield Cardinals were victorious over the Fulton Bulldogs by a score of 54 to 6 in a football game played in Mayfield last Friday.

Plans are being perfected by Fulton Methodists to build a handsome new Methodist church edifice on their lot formerly occupied by the Lewis Tobacco barn, corner Carr and Second Streets. It is said that the structure will cost around $100,000.

South Fulton will soon begin spending their $40,000 voted for sewer construction. They contemplate connecting with the Fulton sewer for their outlet.

Smith's Cafe is serving delicious waffles cooked on their new electric waffle irons. This service is only in keeping with their up-to-date cafe.

After reading the advertisements in this paper, take advantage of the splendid offerings.

Christmas is just around the corner. Do your shopping now and laugh at the people in the crowds later on. Do your buying early before the rush begins.

The scaffolding you see down at the water pumping station is not a derrick for an oil well. It was built so the smoke stack at the water plant could be repaired. About fifteen feet of new pipe will be added to the stack before the work is completed. The city dads are always watchful of needed repairs about the plant.

J. C. WIGGINS VISITS ST. LOUIS MARKETS

J. C. Wiggins, manager of the Reynolds Store, visited the St. Louis markets this week and made some big purchases for their Fulton trade. This was special sales week in St. Louis by the big wholesale dealers and Mr. Wiggins took advantage of the special values offered, so you may expect to reap the benefits of his extraordinary buying for the Reynolds store during their November sale. Among the wonderful purchases made were hundreds of new metallic hats—the very newest creations.

SPECIAL OFFER

For a short time we will accept subscriptions for this paper and the Memphis Weekly Commercial Appeal—both papers one year for only $1.25.

At High School Auditorium Saturday Night

TWO HOURS OF LAUGHTER
IN "THE MOLLUSC"

First Lyceum number to be given Saturday evening at the High school auditorium, under auspices of Parent-Teacher's Association.

"The Mollusc," the first number of the lyceum course, a popular three act comedy, will be played here by a professional cast Saturday evening at the High school.

"The Mollusc" is one of the best of modern dramas. Its appearance here may be regarded as a distinct contribution to the dramatic year.

The play sparkles with wit and the keenest satire. Some of America's most distinguished actors have starred in it: Mr. Kyrle Bellew, Mr. William Faversham, Mr. George Arliss, Miss Maxine Elliott, and Sir Charles Wyndham of England.

The plot, the dialogue, and the characterizations are very clever. This is the play that Dr. Woods Hutchinson, writing for the Saturday Evening Post, said that he wished everybody could see.

Mrs. Baxter, a pampered English wife, is visited by Tom Kemp, her brother, who returns from America to the village of his boyhood. He finds his sister, Dulcinea, spoiled and overindulged by a doting and somewhat henpecked husband, Mr. Baxter, and a too loyal governess, Miss Roberts. Tom Kemp names his sister, "The Mollusc."

He says that a mollusc is a person who spends all his energy in sticking instead of moving, one who clings to the rock and lets the tide go by, like the marine creature of that name.

Tom sets to work to cure his sister and is aided by her husband and Miss Roberts. Various and sundry tricks and schemes are tried, but Mrs. Baxter, being what she is, is not changed in a hurry.

Many funny situations are created. It is a wonderful role mostly nobly acted.

Saturday Evening, at High School Auditorium.

FULTON VS. MURRAY

The Fulton "Bulldogs" will play Murray on Thanksgiving day at 2:00 p. m. at the home grounds.

This is not the first time that Murray has played here, but so far has never won a game from the home team. Their team is as strong as usual and has a good chance to win this time. Murray does not belong to the little Ten Conference.

The Fulton team was weighed last week and only averaged 140 pounds per man, which is rather light, as almost without exception, the teams played have outweighed our boys 8 to 16 pounds.

The home boys have demonstrated the appropriateness of their name, for they have shown a bulldog tenacity in tackling much heavier teams, time after time, and always come up smiling. The boys are deserving of better support in the way of attendance here at home and we hope that on Thanksgiving day the audience will be a big and enthusiastic one.

POULTRY

FATTEN BROILERS FOR MARKETING

For the most part, farmers and poultry raisers who keep Leghorn chickens pay most attention to the production of eggs. They think of eggs as the chief end of poultry keeping. My experience has been that by paying a little more attention to the fattening and marketing of Leghorns, the income from this source can be considerably increased, says a writer in the Successful Farming. Especially is this true when marketing broilers. Leghorn broilers fatten easily when confined and force fed for about two weeks. They will consume about two pounds of feed during this time and should show a gain in weight of one half to three-fourths of a pound.

There are two methods which I have employed in fattening broilers. These are pen and crate fattening. The simplest and most logical method for farm conditions I have found is pen fattening.

Following this method, the birds are confined in small pens when about one and one-half pounds in weight and are fed the following mash: 25 pound cornmeal, 15 pounds middlings, 8 pounds meat scraps, and one half-pound salt. This is fed as a wet mash by adding sour milk, buttermilk, or skim milk. The birds are fed this mash three times a day and are permitted to eat for half an hour at a time when the uneaten portion is removed. It is important that the interval between the feedings should be as nearly equal as possible.

The object of feeding this wet mash is to get the birds to eat large amounts of food so they will make maximum gains in the shortest time.

Corn meal and milk in any form should be the foundation of any good fattening mash. It should also be remembered that when milk is used in fattening fowls, not a too large amount of meat scraps should be used.

One reason for the wide spread in prices paid for Leghorn broilers and those of the heavier breeds is because the Leghorn, being more active, will not take on flesh as readily as the heavier breeds when on free range.

Roosters Can Be Sold

Now, Says J. H. McAdams

Now that the incubation period is over there is no further need for roosters in the flock and all but one or two of the best male birds can be sold. J. H. McAdams, extension poultryman at the Kansas State Agricultural college. Every flock owner knows, according to McAdams, that the male bird is unnecessary so far as the production of market eggs is concerned. Male birds now represent just so many extra mouths to feed, he says.

The hitch to selling male birds comes largely from the price consideration, according to McAdams, who says that when these birds were purchased last fall or early winter they were valued from $2 up to possibly $10 each. Today with old roosters commanding 10 cents a pound an exceptionally high price prevails, but as soon as the old roosters start moving to market the price will drop probably to about 10 cents a pound.

"Even though old roosters were such a drag on the market that he could not sell them at all, no farmer could afford to keep them in his flock," McAdams warns. "To live, a rooster must eat and the feed bill on each individual one will be at least 10 cents a month making a total cost of at least 80 cents to hold the old birds over until February."

Poultry Hints

The results of chickens eating carrion or spoiled feed are limberneck or indigestion.

Egg eating is a vicious habit and the best method to combat it is the slaughter of the offending birds.

Convenience for both hens and caretaker should be considered—convenience means cleanliness and cleanliness means health.

A laying hen is about the only example of a going concern that can sit still and yet produce dividends.

The first quality that makes for success and profit in the poultry flock is vigor, vitality or constitution. Choose your own name for this quality.

A chicken that is liberally fed does not, as a rule, exercise enough to run off flesh but only enough to keep in good general health and to have a good appetite.

Eggs will remain fertile up to ten days after the male has been removed from the breeding pen.

Given a chance, poultry will return good profits on the investment. Cleanliness is one of the best guarantees of success.

Poultry diseases spread principally in four ways: By the birds eating dead diseased birds, by contaminated air, through drinking water, and through the droppings of diseased birds.

HERE'S SOME PUNKIN'

Little "movie" favorite holds a pumpkin on top of her head just to show how big it is. And all of it for a great big pie for herself on Thanksgiving day.

List Blessings That Call for Gratitude

Thanksgiving is a mental condition, and is not dependent upon the state of one's finances or one's larder. In fact, people are more apt to forget God and His benefits to us when they are enjoying prosperity than in adversity. The well man or woman is not as prone to thank God for health as the sick man or woman to thank Him for returning strength.

Farmers may be thankful this year that they probably have seen the worst of their hard times. When so many people are without work and without homes, the farmer still has his chores and his farm on which to hibernate. Whatever our troubles are, they might be worse. Most of us get more than we deserve. If we could see a daily balance sheet of our credits and debits as our Master sees them, we would undoubtedly feel sincere gratitude for what we have been spared.—Exchange.

THANKSGIVING DAY

Come, uncles and cousins and wives and aunts;
Come, nephews and brothers, no won'ts, no can'ts; a heart;
Put business and shopping and school books away,
The year has rolled 'round, it is Thanksgiving day.

The table is spread and the dinner is dressed;
The cooks and the mothers have all done their best;
No caliph of Bagdad e'er saw such display,
Or dreamed of a treat like this Thanksgiving day.

Now children revisit the darling old place,
Now brothers and sisters long parted embrace;
The family ring is united once more,
And the same voices shout at the old cottage door.

The grandfather smiles on the innocent myth,
And blesses the powers that have guarded his hearth;
He remembers no trouble, he feels no decay,
But thinks his whole life has been Thanksgiving day.

Then praise for the past and the present we'll sing,
And, trustful, await what the future may bring;
Let doubt and repining be vanished away,
And the whole of our lives be a Thanksgiving day. —Exchange.

WISE BIRD

Duck—My but you're thin, Mr. Turkey.
Gobbler—Yes, I'm on a diet. It's getting too close to Thanksgiving to take on any flesh!

Trinity Episcopal Church.

104 Washington St.

Dr. A. C. Boyd, Rector

Sunday next before Advent, 9:45 a. m. Church School, H. S. Stansbury, Superintendent.

11:00 a. m. Matins, confirmation and sermon by Bishop C. E. Woodcock. D. D. There will be no evening service.

Every one cordially invited to attend these services.

Church News

Bishop Woodcock will probably visit the church school at 9:45 a. m. and all pupils and teachers are requested to be present on this occasion.

The confirmation class has been preparing for some time and will be confirmed by Bishop Woodcock at the morning service.

Mr. J. B. Alexander, Executive Secretary of the church program spent Wednesday afternoon with the Woman's Guild and the evening with the members of the vestry. He instructed them in the church work and the duties of both organizations.

Dr. Boyd spent Tuesday of last week in Clinton on Church business, in connection with the visit of Bishop Woodcock to that town on Monday of next week, when he will hold service there in the afternoon.

Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of last week were spent by Dr. Boyd in visiting Columbus where he instructed a class of candidates for confirmation by the Bishop. Part of the time was spent at Belmont, and Thursday night at Wolf Island.

There is a fairly large class to be confirmed and final instructions were necessary to prepare these for the ceremony which will be held by Bishop Woodcock on Sunday night, November 21, at 7:30.

R. E. Hubbard has been quite ill for several days and was unable to visit his mother, who was ill at her home in Lula, Mississippi. He received word Sunday that his mother was convalescing.

Mr. R. C. Barber returned Saturday from a visit with her brother in Little Rock, Ark., and was in charge of her class Sunday morning.

Owing to the absence of several members, the meeting of the Mohawks was not held last week.

Because of the Rector having to accompany Bishop Woodcock to Columbus, to assist in the confirmation of a class there, there will be no service at Trinity on Sunday evening.

ONE IN TEN

Neglecting a little wound, cut or abrasion of the flesh may in nine cases out of ten cause no great suffering or inconvenience, but it is the one case in ten that causes blood poisoning, lockjaw or a chronic festering sore. The cheapest, safest and best course is to disinfect the wound with Iodol Borazone and apply the Borazone Powder to complete the healing process. Price (liquid) 30c, 60c and $1.20. Powder 30c and 60c. Sold by Bennett's Drug Store, Fulton, Ky.

IMPORTANT CHRISTMAS SUGGESTIONS

It may seem a little early to mention Christmas now but it is the earnest desire of every one connected with the U. S. Postal Service that Christmas mail will be prepared and mailed early in order that no one will be disappointed on the morning of December 25, 1926.

The first thing to be remembered is the fact that no mail will be delivered on December 25, and this fact is more than ever worth remembering this year on account of the fact that this date falls on Saturday and therefore if your Christmas mail is not mailed early enough for it to reach its destination by December 24, it will not be delivered until December 27.

In view of the above it is suggested that the following schedule be observed by patrons of this office: Mail for points near the Atlantic seaboard and all points west of Kansas, etc., be mailed by December 10; all points of such distances as New Orleans, Detroit, Chicago, Dallas, San Antonio, Detroit, Chicago, Dallas, San Antonio, Kansas City, Pittsburgh, etc., be mailed by December 15, and mail for all closer points should be in the mails by December 18 to 20.

Remember that all parcels and letters may have placed on them the words "Do not open until Christmas" or similar inscriptions. We also wish to remind you that you should not seal packages or put any kind of Christmas seals or stickers on the address side of the package other than those bearing the words state above or similar inscriptions.

ROSE BUSHES FOR SALE

We have some nice 2-year-old Rose Bushes (monthly bloomers) we are selling at $1.00 each or $10.00 dozen. Now is the time to plant. Give us your order at once. R. S. Williams, Fulton, Ky.

DETERMINED TO HAVE A COUNTY AGENT

The citizens of Hickman are determined to have a county agent if by their efforts that end can be effected, and in pursuance of that desire, thirty of the foremost merchants of that town gave a turkey dinner Monday night to thirty farmers of the neighborhood, at which the plan was thoroughly discussed.

During last week a number of local meetings were held throughout the west end of the county and numerous speakers were present to present the plans. E. J. Kilpatrick, representing the State College of Agriculture was present at all of these meetings and presented the subject from the standpoint of the State Government and how the cooperation of the counties was necessary to secure competent men to advise the farmers.

The county agent is not merely a theoretical farmer, but a practical one as well, being obliged to do actual farming before he can obtain a diploma or certificate to enable him to accept a position. His experience covers thoroughly every phase of farming from plowing to the care and breeding of chickens, and also includes a course on the home economics of the farm. Then such a man is given his certificate, he is competent to instruct any farmer in every line of the farming industry.

CHRISTMAS GREETING CARDS

FATHER CONFEDERATE VETERAN ANSWERS CALL

Shade Meacham, 80 years old, well known farmer residing five miles east of Fulton, was found unconscious in his woods lot near his home Friday morning, and expired shortly after being carried into the house.

Mr. Meacham served in the Confederate army and was well known throughout this entire section of country. He was highly esteemed by a large acquaintance and his death has caused general regret. Burial and funeral services were conducted at Boaz Chapel.

Mr. Meacham leaves his wife, two sons and one daughter, Boaz Meacham, of Detroit; and Wayne Meacham, of this community; and Mrs. Jeanette Stewart, of Central City, Ky. He is also survived by two brothers, J. G. and W. R. Meacham, and a sister, Mrs. Roberts, who reside in Memphis.

RAIDERS STILL BUSY

Federal Agent Allie Leigh, in company with Sheriff John Thompson and deputies of Fulton county, Sheriff Kimbro and deputies of Hickman county, and Joe Iverlett of Paducah, continued their warfare on moonshiners when they swooped down on Wolf Island located in Hickman county and captured four alleged shiners, C. E. Mays, J. T. Stacy, T. B. Williams and Guy Stacy, who were brought to Fulton and lodged in the local jail, and removed to Paducah Saturday morning and given a hearing before United States Commissioner Blackburn.

One large still was unearthed by the raiders, being buried in a 45-foot dugout near the head of the island, the size being 120 gallons, made of steel and on the premises were found and destroyed, 2,000 gallons of mash, a quantity of fermenters, whisky, sugar and meal.

Williams and Mays were found and arrested as they came from their still near the lower part of the island, where was found a 60-gallon still complete, 600 gallons of mash. One of the trophies of the raid brought to Fulton was a pet pig of the shiners whose antics attracted the attention of the officers to such an extent that they seized the animal and brought it back to exhibit.

Canning Factory for Fulton

Fulton will have a first class canning factory if the farmers will sign up to grow the vegetables in sufficient quantity to keep the plant running, and will receive cash for doing so.

Mr. W. C. Harward, of Halls, Tennessee, has been in Fulton looking the ground over and has decided that this point is most advantageously located for his business, both from a shipping outlook and also from the possibilities of growing all the various kinds of vegetables that are usually canned.

Mr. Harward has operated a canning factory in Halls for several years, and is thoroughly posted on the business, and in seeking for new fields, has, as stated above, settled on Fulton as the most advantageous place for locating.

Mr. Harward was in town some time back, and has written one of our best known business men that he will be here again shortly, when he will select a site for his plant and make arrangements for building his factory.

He is optimistic to a very great degree as to the possibilities of growing tomatoes in this section of the country, and it is seemingly only a question of getting enough farmers to agree to raise the required amount of them to secure the establishment of a plant.

There is no doubt as to the advantages to the farmer, as in every community where tomatoes have been grown for canning, the farmers have made good money, and Fulton should prove no exception to the rule.

4 SUITS FILED FOR $100,000.00

Mayfield, Ky., Nov. 13.—Four suits in which damages totaling $100,000 are sought, were filed in the Graves circuit court here today by election officers in Ward One, Precinct Two, Mayfield, in the August 7, Democratic Primary, against George H. Goodman, Mrs. M. E. Goodman and Marjorie C. Goodman, owners and publishers of The Paducah News-Democrat.

The four plaintiffs, who allege they were libeled by an article published "falsely and maliciously" in The News-Democrat relating to the Ferguson-Gregory contest hearing, are W. G. Lewis, Estelle Morehead, W. H. Wyman and J. Tom Pitman.

All four of the cases are docketed for the March, 1927, term of circuit court. Attorneys W. J. Webb and Aubrey Hester represented the plaintiffs in filing the suits.

The Ladies' Club meeting Thursday at Mrs. Finch's was quite a success.

Mrs. Warner, Miss Garrison, Mrs. Ellis and Dr. Moody were present.

Mrs. Warner gave a lecture in the morning on "Preventable Diseases, Their History, Cause and Cure."

The Brunswick stew, coffee, and cocoa supplemented by sandwiches, cakes and pies, brought by the ladies, provided a bountiful lunch for all.

After which Mrs. Warner made a talk on practical nursing in the home.

Miss Garrison demonstrated the proper arrangement of the bed, changing the clothing and sheets, one of the ladies serving as patient. Then Dr. Moody gave a talk on the duties, accomplishment and personnel of the county health unit in Weakley county. Answering quite a number of questions in regard to their work, their plans for the future, etc., thus giving us much needed information and insuring a more intelligent cooperation in the future.

About forty persons were present and all expressed themselves as very much pleased with the program for the day.

Mrs. Ellis proposed several interesting things for future club work, some of which will be discussed at the next meeting, which is announced for the second day of December, at the residence of Mrs. Robbie Sawyers.

Orchestra practiced at Mr. Omar Ray's last Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Ruth Vaughn is able to sit up a little now.

THE BEE'S STING

The bee suggests a sting. The first thought of the average person at the mention of the word is the consequences of coming in contact with one when it is out in quest of pollen to keep the homes fires burning.

Bees, however, should be judged by their accomplishments rather than undesirable traits. We should think of bees in terms of honey, the natural sweet that is so valuable to man.

A bee expert describes the traits of bees in a manner that shows they possess qualities that might well be emulated by people with great profit.

There are three kinds of bees—workers, queens and drones. The workers gather in the pollen to keep the wolf from the door, but the sad commentary is that their average life is only forty days. They work for the colony and never live to participate in the honey they help produce.

The worker sacrifices his life that the colony may live. The worker in human activities also meets the same fate often. In every community are men who sacrifice their health and happiness in the public service and never live to enjoy the fruits of their labor.

The great difficulty is that there are not enough workers. There are never enough men and women who are willing to co-operate for the community well being, who are willing to make the sacrifice of time and money that is required to be of real service to their fellowmen.

The burden falls on the shoulders of a few, just as the bee worker has to gather the raw material so that the colony may exist.

Communities would never prosper, would never get ahead if there were not sacrifices made by some individuals who are unselfish and who do not hesitate to incur the displeasure of those who should be the first to compliment and praise them.

(© 1924, Western Newspaper Union)

Lesson for November 21*JOSHUA RENEWING THE COVENANT

LESSON TEXT—Josh. 24:1-25.
GOLDEN TEXT—Choose you this day whom ye will serve;...but as for me and my house, we will serve the Lord.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Israelites Make a Promise

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Covenant at Shechem

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Taking a Stand for God

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Value of Covenants

I. Joshua Renewing the History of the Nation (vv. 1-13).

This was his farewell address, the last message to the people. He began with Abraham's breaking with his religion, homeland, relatives and friends, at the command of God, and traced their history in Egypt, their deliverance at the hands of Moses and Aaron through the wilderness journey and showed God's providential dealing in the crossing of the Jordan at flood tide, and their marvelous blessings now in the land solely by the favor of God.

II. The People Elect the Lord as Their God (vv. 14-24).

Joshua knew that the people were liable to lapse into idolatry, therefore he reviewed before them the history of God's goodness to them, and appealed to their sober choice as to whether they were going to remain faithful to him.

1. He appealed to them for a rational consideration and judgment (v. 15).

He placed before them four candidates upon which they could vote according to their relative merits.

- (1) The Lord.
- (2) The gods worshiped by their ancestors in Chaldea.
- (3) The Egyptian gods.
- (4) The gods of the Amorites.

Having placed before them these candidates, he urged them to make a rational choice.

2. His own example in the matter (v. 15).

He followed his appeal with his own example. He told them that his mind was already made up. He associated his household with himself. He knew just where they would stand. His decision was not a hasty one. It had been talked over at home, therefore he voiced the united sentiment of his family.

3. The response of the people (vv. 16-18).

Joshua's earnest appeal, accompanied by his own example had its desired effect. When they calmly considered the claims of the Lord as against the other gods, they saw the overwhelming evidence in favor of the God of their fathers.

They assigned the following reasons for their choice:

- (1) The Lord brought us out of Egypt (v. 17).
- (2) He did great signs in our sight (v. 17).
- (3) He preserved us in all the way we went (v. 17).
- (4) He drove from before us all the people (v. 18).

It would have been very foolish, not to say criminal, after they had experienced all this at His hands to have turned Him down.

4. Joshua reminds them of who God is (v. 19).

Wishing them to think more seriously and deeply upon the matter, Joshua drew a somewhat dark picture of God's attributes which were most unattractive to them.

(1) He showed them that God is a Holy God.

(2) That He is a jealous God. He could not therefore tolerate a rival.

(3) That He will not forgive. He did not mean by this that He was an unforgiving God, but that His nature was such that unless they followed Him fully, He would become the means of their destruction.

5. Joshua demands sincerity on their part (vv. 20-23).

He wished to have practical proof of their profession. He no doubt knew full well that some had idols yet in their possession.

6. The people's position (v. 24).

They cannot avoid their determination to serve God and obey His voice.

III. The People Enter Into a Solemn Covenant (vv. 25-28).

This is the climactic transaction of the meeting at Shechem. They entered into a formal covenant. Joshua wrote down their agreement in a book where it would remain a permanent witness against them. As a further help, he took a large stone and set it up as a witness. These would serve as barriers against their lapsing again into idolatry.

Lack of Faith

From lack of faith in Thy revelation of Thyself, from contempt of Thy promises, from readiness to think lightly of Thy holy commandments, and of that account of life which we all must render unto Thee, good Lord, deliver us!

SNAPPING!

No, it is NOT FROZEN PIPES. It is the GORGE OF HIGH PRICES IN FULTON BREAKING LOOSE. You don't have to put your ear to the ground to hear; your neighbors and friends will tell you about it. One man who looked over my stock yesterday and bought ten suits of UNDERWEAR, went out and told his neighbors "they have some warm prices at that Fulton Bargain House. I'll say they're warm." I make prices so close that I sure have to turn loose QUICK and turn my stock over fast. I am working on the edge of the gorge. The sound of my pike has been heard and echoes far around Fulton. Last Saturday was the biggest day I have yet had, and each week my sales grow larger. So don't growl and yet pay higher prices. If you don't make much—try saving.

For Boys, we have the famous "Buster Brown" line

The present season brings out many beautiful new effects in neckwear. We have a wonderful collection for you to select from.

Our line of furnishings is complete. Shirts, Hosiery, Gloves, Neckwear, Lumberjacks, Underwear, Belts, and everything to outfit men and boys for Winter.

The best advertisement we have is the kindly recommendation of our friends. One tells another and we witness every day the power of that influence. You never read an advertisement of poor clothing--strange, too, for there's more poor than good. Ours is as good as our best energies, ability, knowledge and experience can get. In reducing prices on our new winter stock at this time, it is simply to meet the issue squarely in the face of reductions of farm commodities, so our prices and their prices will be more equal. Our slogan is: "Treat your neighbor the same as you would like to be treated."

Thanksgiving Day
Thanksgiving Day does come,
No matter what the pain,
The anguish and the dread,
The loss or gain.
Thanksgiving Day does come
With banners flaming,
With song of praise and prayer,
Forever shaming
Our little doubts and fears,
Our halting speech and tears.
Thanksgiving Day does come,
And we who doubt it,
Can do the very least
Without it!
We need it more than they
Who meet the morrow,
Without a weary thought
Of blighting sorrow.

Old Paulina Dotson stood beside the spring welling out from between two boulders in her yard at the foot of Big Laurel mountain, and sighed lugubriously.

"David's a goin'—a goin', soon."

"Where's Davy goin'?"

"I didn't know you was around, Abigail Seal!" Paulina frowned a bit resentfully. "You always did have the softest steppin' pair of feet—for all the world like a cat's!"

"Or a thief's!" muttered the hard-visaged old man sitting near the spring, mending a bridle.

The blooming young girl, looking over the low stone fence, reddened at this covert thrust.

"Davy's goin' to take his $200 railroad tie money and go to the preacher college after Thanksgiving. I thought he was goin' to marry on it, but he says he ain't," went on Paulina.

"Oh, Paulina, I wasn't meant for David!" Abigail raised propitiating eyes to the old woman's censorious ones, then they deepened and darkened solemnly. "Folks has got a heap to think about besides marryin' these stirrin' thins, Paulina."

"David knows that," his grand-mother drawled defensively; "a hain't lame is all that's keepin' him from enlistin', but it won't hinder his preachin'."

"Two hundred dollars is a lot of money—I wish I had the half," observed Abby wistfully. "Where does Davy keep it, Paulina?"

"He's got it in my little braided sack a-hangin' in the loft. He's afraid of banks."

When the girl was gone the bride-mender, Cleophas, rebuked Paulina.

"Laws," Paulina tossed her head—"Abby's homester than you, Cleophas. You are a holdin' spite foolishly. Abby's got her woman's right to prefer Enoch Davy to our Davy!"

Abby, walking with light swiftness through the reddening woods, stopped when she came to a dead poplar, that, destitute of limbs and punctured by woodpeckers and ants, hung over the path.

"I'm goin' to ax that poplar! A cheerful voice sounded behind her, and a smug young man lifted her aside out of the way of the leaning tree. "It shan't fall on my girl while I'm fightin'! Yes, I'm goin', Abby. Something in me says: 'Enoch don't stay here takin' it easy makin' excuse your mammy's got but you.'"

She raised glowing eyes. "Oh, Enoch, I couldn't stand it if you didn't want to go! But I—oh, Enoch, you might not come back."

Enoch kissed her paling cheek.

"There's worse things could happen us, honey."

"I know," she whispered; "sin brings folks the worst griefs."

"I'm not goin' to enlist until Thanksgiving day, three weeks yet," the boy said presently; "I've got to get the corn in and leave things in shape for winter first for mammy."

The next morning when Enoch met Abby in the woodland path and bent joyously over her she seemed scarcely to sense that he was kissing her.

"My silver breastpin you gave me is gone," she told him nervously. "I could not find it anywhere this mornin'. I'm afraid losin' it'll bring us bad luck."

"Let's walk as far as Cleophas Dotson's and look for it," Enoch suggested.

Paulina ran out to meet them, her eyes wide with excitement. "David's money's gone. Stolen!"

Enoch felt Abby's fingers sink into the flesh of his arm. Then David came out, corroborating his mother's story.

"And nobody knew I kept the money in the loft," he observed mournfully.

"Only Abby," old Cleophas muttered. "Paulina told her but just yesterday."

"Here's the ladder settin' outside the window just like it's been all summer," David went on.

"Yes, and them that climbed that ladder and stole that hard-earned money ought to be made to suffer, be it man or woman!" Cleophas remarked, and Enoch felt that he knew what was in his suspicious old brain.

sent himself for enlistment, he met Bate Owens, a neighbor lad.

"Cleophas says he believes he knows who got Davy's $200," he remarked, "and wind and weather permittin', he's goin' up town Saturday and notify the sheriff. Who do you reckon the old cuss has fastened it on, Enoch?"

Enoch shook his head, but when Bate left him he sank on the fallen leaves and raised beseeching eyes to the November sky.

"Hear me, Lord!" he cried. "If she—if my girl never done that wrong, send me a sign and forgive me for thinkin' she might have! And if she did sin, show me what to do between now and Thursday!"

A woodpecker, tapping on the dead poplar, scolded fiercely as a crow alighted on the top. Enoch rose wearily and went to the Seal place.

"Bring me the ax, honey," he requested Abby. "I'm goin' to cut the old poplar. I was about to forget it and I'm goin' day after tomorrow—at least I ought to. Stand out of the way now."

Presently Enoch, examining the fallen tree's top, gave a joyous cry. On the ground lay some red string a door key, a safety pin and Paulina Dotson's little red and yellow beaded pouch.

Enoch opened the bag and took out David's four fifty dollar bills. "I saw a crow up there—a tame one, I reckon. He must have had a haid of goin' in houses around here, an' he faneled the beads on Paulina's pocketbook!"

Abby smiled in his radiant face.

"Your worried look's gone, Enoch. He threw his arms about her and held her so close she could scarcely breathe.

"Oh, Abby," he cried, "that little worry pressed me hard, but it's gone now forever!"

When he was alone again in the wood, he fell on his knees by the felled dead tree.

"O God!" he cried out, "day after tomorrow is the world's Thanksgiving day—but today is mine, today is mine, blessed God!"

"David's A Goin'—A Goin' Soon!"

Then, in the grass at the foot of the ladder, his troubled eyes fell on Abby's brooch. When his heart began to beat again, he set a cautious foot over the pin, and, unmolested, stooped and transferred the trinket to his pocket.

"I wish I could know where my pin is," she murmured on their way home. Enoch's hand, pressing his breast pocket, felt the uncomfortable roughness of the brooch within, but he grew cold at thought of restoring it to her. Had Abby been tempted to take David's money? He recalled that she had been unaccountably disturbed and reddened over the trivial loss of the brooch, and she had not wanted to go in the direction of Paulina's to look for it.

Enoch knew that once he were gone, leaving Abby with no men folk to defend her, old Cleophas would not hesitate to accuse her. But if he stayed, the cowardly old man would not make trouble. Could he stop his ears to the call of the flag and stay behind with Abby?

For three weeks Enoch worked and suffered. Two days before Thanksgiving day, the day he had set to pre-

Alben W. Barkley From Janitor to U. S. Senate

By Elliott C. Mitchell

When Alben W. Barkley, Democratic senator-elect from Kentucky, takes the place of Richard P. Ernst, Republican, in the United States Senate, March 4, he will probably feel that he has merely been "promoted," and without interruption, has served the people of the First Congressional District over 20 years as congressman for 14, and previous to that as his county's selection for two offices, county judge and county attorney of McCracken county.

He has been unsuccessful in his quest for political honors but once since his first effort, that when he ran against the late J. Campbell Cantrill for the Democratic nomination for governor. He was defeated by a scant margin, after a terrific primary battle, and even so the acquaintance he established with the voters of the state stood him in good stead in his senatorial race, for he carried the battle for senatorship in the rock-ribbed Republican districts and in one of these, the Tenth, made the most notable showing that a Democrat has ever made there, reducing a normal Republican majority of from 12,000 to 13,000 to a shallow more than 4,000.

Mr. Barkley's attainment of high political honors has been the story of a boy's determination and rugged ability to battle through under a handicap. The Barkley family was poor, almost desperately poor. John Barkley, his father, was among those who fought with little success to wrest a living from stubborn West Kentucky land. He was able to offer Alben no advantages and the lad was strictly "on his own" in seeking an education. He singled out the profession of law as his life's avocation and he worked toward that goal with the determination and energy that were to be his outstanding characteristics through later life, enduring hardships in attaining an education that many a boy of the later generation might well regard as insurmountable obstacles.

The traits he displayed then clung to him and the sobriquet of "iron man" has been fastened on him by political writers of Kentucky who have been assigned at various times to cover the Barkley campaign trail. Always an earnest campaigner, his feats in that direction, reached their zenith in the gubernatorial and senatorial battles. It was no uncommon thing for him to fill as high as four or five speaking engagements of length in a single day. Lack of transportation never worried him. He used trains, automobiles and horses and mules with equal zest, letting his selection be guided by the nature of the country to be traversed, and if any group of citizens desired a few words along the line of march, though not included in his itinerary, they got them, cheerfully and with a good will. Not a few correspondents went down under the gruelling work of the day, but never Barkley. It is yet to be recorded that a sore throat or any form of illness, so often fastening upon political candidates on tour, kept him from completing his schedule. The theory that it takes coal to get up steam applies in Mr. Barkley's case. If he displayed on habit that rivaled his speaking stamina, it was his appetite. He eats big meals, ship and upon defeat there was returned as usual to his congressional post.

grew national prestige brought pressure to bear on him from party associates to run against Senator Ernst this year after two Republicans in succession had been sent to the Senate from Kentucky, and he acceded to the request. He was unopposed for the nomination, and his race for election was as vigorous as any he ever made.

He talked in every district, and in 100 counties, and he reached every class of people. His effectiveness on the stump was apparent.

A challenge to Senator Ernst to meet him was declined so his continued single handed reaching of the Democratic doctrine until the very eve of the election.

Mr. Barkley's is a gracious and compelling personality. He is a big man with a ready and winning smile, a candid manner of speech, and a firm grip. There is no hesitancy reflected in any gesture and in 20 years of political service his popularity with the people of his district has never waned at any time.

He is in his forty-ninth year, with the carriage and vigor of a man ever younger. The senator-elect was married early in his career to Miss Dorothy Brower of Paducah. They have three charming children, David Murrell Barkley, Marion Frances Barkley, and Laura Louise Barkley.

THE ORAL BOOSTER

"I'll tell the world," was once a slang phrase in good standing. It has lost caste through too much use, but even yet it is expressive, and it fits the purpose of the booster who is really sincere about his regard for his home community.

There are two classes of boosters and one of knockers. Of the former, one class is silent and the other never loses a chance to praise his home town. The silent booster, the man who is at heart sincere but never says so, could be of much better service if he would voice his sentiments now and then.

He is a desirable citizen and a much valued citizen. He believes in his community to the extent that it is the best place in the world for him, but he never lets anyone know about it; he is never an aggressive force for the upbuilding of the place which he regards very highly.

The booster who possesses all these traits and in addition never hesitates to "tell the world" at every opportunity that he is proud to live in Fulton, is the man who is of most value to the community. This type of citizen believes that, regardless of what small grievances we have among ourselves, no one should be ashamed to speak up for home whenever the occasion presents itself.

He minimizes the shortcomings of the community, instead of magnifying them as the knocker does, and tries to correct them with some constructive effort. All the while he is repeating to the lukewarm citizen and the kicker encouraging things about his home that in time may open their eyes.

No place ever improves or grows by hiding its light under a bushel. The community that wishes to thrive must advertise itself and the boosting citizen is the most valuable citizen in this role.

Everyone who is convinced that he would rather live in Fulton than any place else has ever been, is little short of disloyal to home if the word is not spread among those who might appreciate the worth of the community.

Every citizen who makes Fulton his home should be loyal enough to help make it a better place, and he can accomplish this goal in no better way than by everlastingly calling attention to the community's good qualities.

THANKSGIVING

I'm thankful for the sunshine, and
I'm thankful for the showers.
I'm thankful for December's snows,
and thankful for May's flowers.
When I get up each morning, I'm a happy as can be;
And when I go to bed at night, the world looks good to me!
And on the day that's set apart for folks to hold Thanksgiving
I celebrate with all my heart, because I'm glad I'm living!

True Gratitude Goes Along With Humility

The giving of thanks implies two things—that there are things to be thankful for, and that there is a "Giver of every good and perfect gift" to whom the thanks are directed. It has been said that ingratitude is one of the basest of sins, as of course it is, and also that it is one of the commonest. Yet it is natural for men and women to be thankful, and few there are who have not some things for which to be thankful—perhaps many of them. This day is usually devoted to a consideration of material blessings—that is, when it is not given over to a discussion of issues and problems, sometimes helpful, but often not.

Material blessings are by no means to be despised. Indeed they are not to be despised at all. If men were properly grateful for them—grateful as the ancient Hebrews were—there would be no pride of wealth and no selfish use of it, or glorying in it. Against all this the truly thankful spirit, with its sense of dependence on a higher power, is the surest antidote. There is a certain humility in true gratitude—a sort of feeling that one has but more, perhaps much more, than one's deserts. That indeed is usually the case. So it is that out of material blessings may be born great spiritual strength.

TO PILGRIM FATHERS

A view of the Pilgrim Fathers' Memorial, unveiled at the Humber river, England, near Immingham creek, in honor of the party which left this very spot and sailed on September 6, 1620, from Southampton in the "Mayflower" to America, in search of religious freedom. Atop this shaft is a piece of stone from the famous Plymouth rock on which the voyagers landed when they arrived here. American, English and Dutch notables attended the unveiling.

Significance of Day of Thanks Unchanged

The idea of giving thanks for blessings and remembering our mercies is a noble one, for ingratitude in man or in nation grows into a sin. The significance of the day may have changed. A beautiful harvest to the pinched and troubled Pilgrims on their strip of barren land was, in every way, a blessing. To the modern farmer "a bumper crop" may mean low prices and glut which do anything but bless him. We know of one family in which the representatives of 40 years ago conducted a dairy farm with only their own strength and that of a yoke of cattle. Today the present working generation on the dairy farm uses a tractor, a milking machine, a car, a truck, power for sawing and grinding—on separate engines. This is typical of many modern farms and yet probably the older generation felt that they had more to be thankful for! But, anyway, no matter where we live and what our circumstances may be we all have much to be thankful for. On this Thanksgiving day let us forget our troubles and remember our mercies—Rural New Yorker.

GIVE THANKS

Over the river and through the wood,
To granddaddy's house we go;
The horse knows the way
To carry the sleigh
Through the white and drifted snow
Over the river and through the wood—
Now granddaddy's cup I spy!
Hurrah for the fun!
Is the pudding done?
Hurrah for the pumpkin pie!
—Lydia Maria Child

Thanksgiving

Thank God for His favors,
Abundant and deep—
The days for our striving,
The nights for our sleep.

The treasures He gives us
All through the hours,
The kindness of the sunlight,
The perfume of flowers.

The song of the wildbirds
In spring's lovely ways,
The beauties and wonders
We see through the days.

The laughter of childhood,
The home heart's bright glow,
The sweet ties of kinship,
Friends whom we know.

The harvest so bounteous
That grows in our field,
Filling our barns
With generous yield.

Thank God for His favors—
Today we bow low
And whisper our thanks
For the gifts that we know.

For the gifts that we know
For the gifts that we know
For the gifts that we know
For the gifts that we know.

Senour's FLOOR PAINT

"It Penetrates"

IN the word "penetration," is a secret manufacturing process that has made Senour's Floor Paint a popular favorite for over 40 years.

If a floor paint does not penetrate or grip into the wood it will soon begin to crack, chip and peel.

Senour's Floor Paint dries over night with a high gloss enamel-like finish, but at the same time it sinks into the pores of the wood and forms a film that will withstand the hardest usage and will withstand repeated washings without dimming the lustre.

Every can of Senour's Floor Paint is guaranteed to give satisfaction if directions printed on the can are followed or money back upon receipt of empty can.

A color card is yours for the asking.

KING OF THE FEAST

TIME TO ENUMERATE NATION'S BLESSINGS

Americans Have Every Reason to Give Thanks to the Creator.

It is in order at Thanksgiving time to pause to take account of the reasons why the nation should give thanks for blessings, in response to the President's proclamation. No perfunctory feeling of gratitude is adequate. The people of America should thoughtfully consider the circumstances of their life, the bounties they are enjoying, the opportunities they find in daily lives to advance and to justify themselves as members of society.

Yet enumeration of the blessings that have been bestowed upon us as a people is a trite recital at best. They are well known, often related. They are evident in the daily goings and comings of all the people. They are part of the very atmosphere of every-day existence. Prosperity, employment, security from aggression, a free choice of occupation, the chance for every man to rise to higher planes of social and business activity, a sound government based upon the highest principles of "self-determination," the administration of affairs entrusted to citizens of integrity and capacity—such are the fundamentals of American life.

To appreciate the blessings of American citizenship, especially in these times, it is but necessary to glance abroad, to other lands, where conditions are far less favorable to happiness and social development. Though scarred by the war, through the loss of a multitude of men, America has received no deep wounds. Prosperity prevails in all sections, among all classes of the people. Elsewhere this tale cannot be told. No grave anxieties beset this land. The prospect is fair, undimmed by clouds of doubt or fear.

A strong, healthy people, thrifty and happy, aspirant for learning, eager for service, gifted with the richest bounties of nature! Americans have indeed occasion to give thanks on this day, fervently and reverently, for their blessings.

Cardinals of pumpkins as yellow as gold,
Onions in silvery strings,
Shining red apples and clusters of grapes,
Nuts and a host of good things,
Chickens and turkeys, and fat little pigs—
These are what Thanksgiving brings.

Work is forgotten and playtime begins:
From office and schoolroom and hall,
Fathers and mothers and uncles and aunts,
Nieces and nephews and all
Speed away home as they hear from afar
The voice of old Thanksgiving call.

Now is the time to forget all your cares,
Cast every trouble away, remember
Think of your blessings, remember your joys,
Don't be afraid to be gay!
None are too old, and none are too young,
To frolic on Thanksgiving day.

December Thanksgiving

In 1863 Thanksgiving was celebrated December 7. Previous to 1864, the time of Thanksgiving day had varied often. In 1864 President Lincoln ordered a day of thanksgiving, the sixth of August, on account of the battle of Gettysburg, and again ordered a day of thanksgiving on the twenty-sixth of November of the same year. In 1865, after the death of Lincoln, no proclamation was made until a special delegation from the First Congregational church of Washington waited upon President Johnson to ask him to appoint a day of thanksgiving. He appointed December 7, 1865. Since this time Thanksgiving has been observed on the last Thursday in November.

BRINGING HOME THE TURKEY

When father brought the turkey home—
You must remember that?
The thrill—the wild excitement, too—
From mother down to call!
No circus day in all Youth's years,
No toy in Santa's pack,
Outrivalled Dad when he came home—
A gobble on his back!

When father brought the turkey home—
I see him smiling now,
Though neighbors, knowing our estate,
Looked on and wondered how.
We children did not understand,
But, since I've heard Dad say:
"Your mother joyed in sacrifice
To make Thanksgiving day!"

When father brought the turkey home—
Perplexities arose:
Where would we keep it? Mother said:
"The cellar, I suppose."
We made a prisoner of our prey,

Put stones against the door,
Then spent a sleepless night in fear
We'd see him nevermore!

When father brought the turkey home—
Dear mother used to say:
"I need the wings to dust the hearth
And brush the crumbs away."
All other feathers would be ours,
For Indians abhor
To go unfeathered down the trail
When counselling for war!
—William Herschell, in the Indianapolis News.

Not Easy to Trace Ancestry of Turkey

There are some who claim that the turkey which gets such a prominent place at Thanksgiving time, came from Mexico. Both the Mexican wild bird and our barnyard turkey have a creamy white on the tips of the tail feathers and on the feathers overlying the base of the tail. The wild turkey of the East is a decided chestnut brown. Very often a domesticated bird will appear very like its Mexican granddad, several times removed, except for a greater development of the fatty lobes of head and neck.

There are others who tell us that when the Spaniards made their conquest of Mexico they found at Montezuma a fine zoological garden. In it were nearly all the native birds and animals, with many gathered from afar. Strutting about were the ancestors of our domestic turkey. The zoo birds were domesticated. In the outlying country there were many wild brothers and sisters of these birds. Before the first quarter of a century was over some of the domestic birds had been transplanted to the West Indies and the Spanish main, where they were kept by colonists. By 1540 the turkey had made its way to England, and 30 years later was in high favor as the Christmas dish of the English farmer.

Harvest Home Feasts Old English Custom

The following lines were often sung in rural England at the celebration of Harvest Home:

Harvest-home, harvest-home,
We have ploughed, we have sowed,
We have reaped, we have mowed,
We have brought home every load,
Hip, hip, hip, harvest-home!

Nowadays the last day of "carrying the corn" is not marked by such hearty rejoicing and feasting as formerly. Most of the old harvest customs have been allowed to drop. In many parts of England, Harvest Home was the name given to the festival celebrated in honor of the corn-gathering. In Scotland the term was Kirt, Kirt-supper was the name given to the meal, which was the principal item in the rejoicing. The word probably comes from "churn," as a churn of cream was often part of the material entertainment. In the north of England the feast was called the Mall supper. Probably this term comes from the French metee (a scramble mixture, or mingling).

Efficient and Economical Home Heating

The Enterprise Automatic circulating warm air Heater will heat the entire home with a constant circulation of clean, warm air, insuring the same comfortable warmth in every room.

Finished in dark grained Mahogany enamel, it is in harmony with the other furnishings of the most refined taste. The fire door, ash door and all mechanical parts are concealed when the cabinet is closed.

The powerful heating unit makes it most economical in fuel consumption. The wide deep air ways from top to bottom of the cabinet permit free passage of air, which is quickly heated in passing over the heating unit, and out the top to circulate through the entire house.

The New ALLEN'S PARLOR FURNACE

ALLEN was first to successfully apply the scientific principle of heating by circulated warm air to "above-the-floor" furnaces. With this new type of heater, from 4 to 5 adjoining rooms are made comfortable by the natural circulation of the moist, warm air. The New ALLEN'S Parlor Furnace burns wood or coal. The fire-bowl is amply large enough for burning standard cut cordwood.

In the New ALLEN'S Parlor Furnace an exclusive design and construction has been developed. It is so beautiful that it harmonizes with the very latest furniture. The natural walnut effect is mechanically reproduced in porcelain, enamel finish.

Thanksgiving Day in New England

In Colonial times it was a day of homecoming giving thanks, turkey and pumpkin pie - It was the Puritan Christmas, the one day of merry-making and cheer.

Grandmother had no farther to go than the cellar or the turkey pen to obtain the material for her Thanksgiving spread.

But what about these luckless wights who had no ancestral farmhouse to which they might repair on Thanksgiving day? Were they left desolate? Not at all. The innkeeper to the rescue. It seems that the old Inns along the rock-bound coasts fairly rivaled the homesteads in making merry on Thanksgiving. Ezekiel Butterworth gives us a picture of that hospitable ordinary, the Inn of the Good Woman, that stood in the east end of Boston in the early part of the Eighteenth century.

The sign of the inn was a picture of a woman without a head, the suggestion being that the head is a dispensable part of a truly good woman, and that silence and service became the lady. It is said that the device set many a woman's tongue to wagging, that the sign became the topic during the dinner hour, and that it is probable the discussions led to the first woman's rights opinions formed in old Boston town. In describing the life at the Inn of the Good Woman, the author doubtless shows what was being enacted in many another old inn on Thanksgiving day. He says:

"The Inn of the Good Woman was famous for its humor and lively tales, and after-dinner stories on Thanksgiving days were a feature of the period of political expectancy. Thanksgiving was the Puritan Christmas. In Colonial times, the one day of merry-making and good cheer." After the morning sermon and the noon feast: Thanksgiving afternoon and evening were seasons of social enjoyment, given over to musician, riddler and story-teller. The wayfarer, the bachelor, the traveler, the immigrant, all who were without an established home, found happiness in front of the great fires of the inn and tasted the joys of "the jug, the beef, the turkey, the brown bread, the succotash, the pumpkin cake, the apple dumplings." The Inn of the Good Woman had an especially American cuisine on Thanksgiving, says the author. "There the savory sausages were browned for all in the morning; the apple dumplings with potato crusts and pandowdy were served as a dessert at noon, and the hot gingerbread with like liberality at the evening meal. There the best, the cleverest, the most thrilling of all the marvelous stories were told."

If one were a wayfarer, a bachelor, a traveler or an immigrant, and were permitted to take the trail of the yesterdays, would not one seek to join the company at the Inn of the Good Woman this Thanksgiving day? Would one not feast upon the food of reason and the flow of soul, and in so doing be there one who would refuse a second helping of that pumpkin "cake" or pumpkin pie which the hostess offered? No; more likely one would, as one crunched the brown crusts and yellow meat, echo in silence the children's "Hurrah for the pumpkin pie!"

-Kansas City Times.

HARD LUCK

"You seem worried, my boy."

"I am, mister; you see I've been to three newsboys' dinners and I'm afraid I can't git to the two others."

Early Proclamations

History records that in 1763 Halifax proclaimed a day of Thanksgiving to mark the peace that made Canada a British possession. Thirty-two years later, in 1795, Washington, first President of the United States, issued the first national Thanksgiving proclamation of that country. The day was more or less generally observed by a number of the States in succeeding years, and since President Lincoln's call for its observance in 1864, has grown in significance, and has attained standing as a national holiday in the Republic.
