FULTON, KENTUCKY, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 25, 1935.

NUMBER THIRTY-SIX

DISTRICT P. T. A. MET IN FALL SESSION AT SMITHLAND TUESDAY

The Kentucky First District Seventy Annual Fall Conference of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers was held Tuesday, October 22, at the First Baptist Church of Smithland, Ky., with the district president Mrs. John Tully of Smithland, presiding. 129 were present which included four county superintendents, 22 local presidents, 48 delegates and the information secretary of the National Congress, Mrs. Frances Hays. The theme of discussion was "Adult Education." The principal speaker was Mrs. Hays, the national representative of Washington, D. C., whose topic was "The Meaning of the Parent-Teacher Movement." She also had charge of the very interesting panel discussion. Reports were made by the district secretary and treasurer Mesdames A. B. Roberts of Fulton and L. J. Ender of Paducah.

Others who took part on the program were Mrs. J. C. Ashbridge, Judge C. H. Wilson, Mrs. Mayne Ferguson, Mrs. V. E. Windsor, Grade School State President, State Chairman, and musical selections were presented by the Smithland high school quartet, Mrs. H. L. Dunn, soloist of Smithland, and Miss Lois Mante Bridges, pianist of Smithland.

Those from Fulton present were Mesdames John T. Price, W. O. Shankle, E. R. Bell, Doris Valentine, A. B. Roberts, E. E. Mount and E. M. Simon.

GAME WARDEN RELEASES QUAIL IN FIVE COUNTIES

Two hundred and fifty quail have been released in game refuges of Fulton, Ballard, Carlisle, McCracken and Graves counties, according to Game Warden J. O. Bugg. The quail came from the Harrodsburg hatchery in fine condition.

MOTORCADE TO SWING THROUGH DISTRICT NOV. 1

A motor tour of the Purchase (eight counties) in behalf of the Democratic ticket will be held Friday, November 1. The motorcade will start from Mayfield at 8 o'clock Friday morning, swing through all counties of this section and return to Mayfield for a rally that night.

A. B. Chandler, Democratic nominee for governor, will head the tour, which is being sponsored by young Democrats of the eight counties.

$18,750 COTTON RENTAL MONEY RECEIVED

Four hundred and twenty-nine second rental checks have been received by the County Agent of Fulton County. These checks are to be distributed at the Court House at Hickman, Ky., following a corn-hog and wheat meeting Saturday morning and at Fulton at the City Hall Saturday afternoon at 1:30 P. M.

COUNTY AGENT NOTES

All Fulton County farmers who raised corn and hogs in 1935 vote on the program Saturday, Oct. 26. Voting will be at the County Agents office at Hickman, Cayce School and the new Woman's Club building at Fulton. The vote will determine whether or not the program will be continued next year.

J. E. Humphrey, poultry specialist from Lexington, will be in the county Thursday, Oct. 31 for some community poultry meetings which will be held at the following places: Dorn Colley, 9:30 A. M.; Herman Roberts, 1:30 P. M.; Cecil Burnett, 2:30 P. M.; Malcolm Inman, 3:30 P. M. All poultrymen are invited.

Instructions from Lexington designate Nov. 15th as the deadline for acceptance of wheat applications. Forms are at the County Agent's office where applications may be made for wheat contracts for the coming four years.

Over $32,000 in cotton checks have been received at the County Agent's office during the past week. This includes all of the second rental payments except 35 cotton contract signers.

The drive is on for new and renewal membership for the Fulton County Farm Bureau. This was one of the best organizations in Western Kentucky in 1935 and a huge effort is being made to increase the membership so that it will be the outstanding county organization in the state for 1936. So when a rental check is received the owner should think for a minute about the improvement in farm conditions and increase in price of farm products that was largely caused by the combined efforts of county, state and national organizations working together for the benefit of agriculture.

WILLIAM D. UPSHAW TO SPEAK TONIGHT

William D. Upshaw, former Representative from the State of Georgia to the United States Congress, is scheduled to speak at the court house here tonight (Friday). Mr. Upshaw is one of the most outstanding and interesting temperance speakers in America today.

This "Georgia Cyclone" as he is commonly called is the possessor of a keen intellect and is a rare exponent of the famous Southern oratory.

Mr. Upshaw was a member of Congress for eight years. He is frail in body, but mighty in mind and voice. He will speak on the subject, "Building A New Kentucky."

The speaker says that he will give the opposition a chance to state their case to which he will reply. If some wet advocate will be bold enough to set up a case, perhaps a real debate could be had. A dollar bill will be offered to the man who goes to sleep. Wets and dries should hear this speaker, for he will do both groups much good.

U. S. W. VETERANS IN SOCIAL MEETING

The United Spanish War veterans and the Auxiliary met last Friday night in a pleasant social meeting at the American Legion Cabin, in celebration of the birthday of "Teddy" Roosevelt. George Hall acted as master of ceremonies, introducing the various speakers.

Will H. Farley of Paducah, senior vice department commander, gave a review of the "Life of Teddy Roosevelt." Past Commander Simmons told of the National Encampment held at San Antonio, Texas. Several vocal numbers were rendered by Misses Elaine Vaughn, Maurine Ketcham and Ruth Knight, accompanied by Miss Ivora Cantrell. Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the program.

LEGION TO CELEBRATE WITH ARMISTICE PROGRAM

Plans are being laid by the local American Legion Post for celebrating Armistice Day here on November 11. At a meeting of this organization last week a committee on arrangements was appointed. It is planned to make the Armistice program this year the biggest celebration ever sponsored by the Legion. A program of variety and fun will be arranged, and Legions from adjoining cities will be invited to participate and attend the banquet to be served by the Legion Auxiliary that evening.

PALESTINE HOMEMAERS

Club met in Mrs. Lewis Thompson's home Friday afternoon. The major project lesson was given by Mrs. Gus Donoho, assisted by Miss Cullen, the subject being "Constitution."

Miss Cullen also talked on "More Adequate Library Facilities." The club voted in favor of serving hot lunches to the pupils of Palestine school during the winter months and a committee was appointed to make plans for a Latvian folk song "The Fishermen," a stunt, "Bridal Wreath Dance" and a reading by Mrs. Gus Browder on "Federation of Ethiopian Country Women." Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess. Those present were Mrs. Melvin Edmondson of Union City, Tenn., Mrs. Ida Thompson, Mrs. Ernest Caldwell, Miss Catherine Cullen, Mrs. Roy Bard, Mrs. A. M. Browder, Mrs. Gus Browder, Mrs. Clarence Caldwell, Mrs. Morgan Davidson, Mrs. Milton Browder, Mrs. Ethel Browder, Mrs. Fannie Nugent, Mrs. Gus Donoho, Mrs. Mattie Grissom, Mrs. Tobe Wright, Mrs. Malcolm Inman, Mrs. Drury Inman, Mrs. Percy King, Mrs. E. A. Thompson, Mrs. Leslie Nugent, Mrs. Richard Mobley and Mrs. Lewis Thompson.

LEAVES FOR CALIFORNIA

Mrs. H. H. Perce and son, Tobe, left Fulton Wednesday for California where they will spend a few weeks vacation. They will visit other points of interest of the West. While there Tobe plans to study advanced ball room dancing.

F. H. Riddle spent Tuesday in Hickman on business.

NO LOCAL OPTION VOTE IN COUNTY

Despite a report circulated upstate, there will be no vote on local liquor option in Fulton County on November 5. The Court of Appeals ruled recently that liquor option elections planned in sixty counties of the state could not be held until after voters express their sentiment on repeal of the prohibition clause of the state constitution Nov. 5.

The local option question will not be on the ballot in Fulton county, but voters will be given a chance to vote "Yes" to repeal the State Prohibition Amendment or "No" to retain it, on November 5.

VOX POP

WHERE ELSE CAN WE GET $3,000,000 TAX REVENUE?

Where to find a new source for $3,000,000 or more in taxes every year—that is the problem which will face the State Legislature next year if Kentucky votes "No" on Repeal on November 5. During the past year, the distilling industry has paid eight different forms of taxes to the State of Kentucky, four different forms to counties and four to the cities and towns of this Commonwealth. The eight forms of taxes to the State alone totalled more than $3,000,000 last year, and will be appreciably greater during 1935, it is estimated.

In the event the distilling industry is driven from the State by an adverse vote in November, the Legislature will be forced to one of two alternatives: (1) To cut State expenses, including relief, by more than $10,000 per day; or (2) to raise an additional $3,000,000 per year by new levies on retail sales, real estate, or incomes.

Kentucky farmers, merchants, manufacturers and the population as a whole receive nearly 100 percent of the economic advantages of the distilling industry of this State—yet only about 2 percent of the product of Kentucky distilleries is consumed in this Commonwealth.

Several prominent economists of the State point out also that increases in city, town and county taxes can be expected unless the State votes for Repeal in November. Licenses issued to liquor dealers during 1934 and 1935 have provided a very welcome relief to county and city tax offices, which have been able to meet increasing demands only because of the revenue available from the liquor industry.

In addition, the state, county and city governments have, during the past two years, been largely freed from the expense of trying to enforce well-nigh unenforceable prohibition laws. If the State votes increased taxes will be necessary "No" in November, increased taxes will be necessary not only to make up for the loss of the legitimate distilling industry, but also to provide a small army of enforcement agents to control the bootlegger.

This is the picture facing the Commonwealth as the November election draws near—and one which admittedly, has the taxpayers somewhat worried.

HALLOWEEN PLANS FOR SOUTH FULTON, NOV. 1ST

An elaborate program of music, contests, spooks, decorations and wholesome fun is being planned for the South Fulton gymnasium on Friday night, November 1. A long list of prizes has been offered by local business men for first, second and third places in a number of events. There is an open invitation to all the old fiddlers, vocal quartets, string bands, husband callers, harmonica players, jig dancers, whistlers, vocal soloists, etc., both male and female, to bring along an instrument, a strong voice or just a homely face and take part in the fun and win a prize.

On that night the Queen of the Carnival will be chosen and properly crowned. A large cake will be presented to the favorite at the coronation ceremonies. The Halloween program is always a big event at South Fulton High School and the gymnasium building is expected to be crowded with fun seekers. This year will be no exception.

FULTON TO BECOME 'CITY OF RED ROSES'

Fulton is to become known as the "City of Red Roses" if the plans of the garden department of the Woman's Club are fully carried out. The city flower is to be the Paul Scarlet running rose.

A committee has been appointed to call upon every home and business in the city to obtain orders for these rose bushes at wholesale prices. The purpose of the plan proposed by the Garden Department is to make Fulton the city beautiful. It is hoped that citizens will co-operate wholeheartedly with the program, and plant these red rose bushes at their homes and in the business district.

NEWS BRIEFS

William Howard Barber, age 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben H. Barber, died Monday morning at their home on McDowell-st. William was born in Clinton County, Ill., December 16, 1922, but the family has resided in Fulton for several years. Funeral services were held Wednesday from the family residence conducted by Rev. E. M. Mathis. Interment followed in Gardner cemetery near Martin in charge of Hornbeak Funeral Home.

He is survived by his parents; two brothers, Frank of Nashville and Ben Jr., of Fulton; two sisters, Helen and Pansy also of this city.

In the regular meeting of the Lions Club last Friday, Steve Wiley was in charge of the program, and gave an interesting talk on the causes of war. The club has decided to sponsor the homecoming football game to be played here on November 15 between Fulton High and Mayfield High. The club expects to aid in the ticket sale, publicity and will attend the game in body.

On another page in this issue of The News appears the announcement of the formal opening of the new Grace's Beauty Salon on Commercial-av. Grace has installed a beautiful line of new furnishings and supplies. A harmonizing color scheme of blue and yellow is being cleverly carried out throughout the shop. The arrangement is unique and tastefully done.

Fire ravaged the Jones Auto Parts Co., in the old Meadows building Wednesday night, the alarm being turned in at 11:30. Several thousand dollars damage was done to building and stock, with water damage heavy. The bigger portion of this old building was destroyed by fire Feb. 2, 1931.

DR. SMITH TO VISIT FULTON AND HICKMAN COUNTIES

Dr. Smith from the State Tuberculosis Association is going to be in Fulton and Hickman counties with the County Home Demonstration Agent, Miss Catherine Cullen on Friday, October 25 to give Educational talks on tuberculosis. Tuberculosis killed 1238 people in the State of Kentucky last year, standing second as a destroyer among preventable diseases in Kentucky. The public is invited to hear these wonderful talks.

The schedule is as follows: Shiloh School Building 9:30; Clinton High School 10:30; Sassafras Ridge 1:30; Logeston School Building 3:30.

WEEK AT REELFOOT

A group of eighteen spent last week end at Reelfoot Lake, chartered by Mrs. Herman Roberts. Those included in the party were: Misses Mildred Roberts, Elizabeth Williamson, Ruth Graham, Louise Brown, Mable Williamson, Katherine Cullen and Louise King; Messrs. J. R. Powell, Henry Edwards, Craig Roberts, Reginald Williamson, Donald Mabry, Robert Thompson and Harold Muzzall.

ATTENDS EASTERN STAR IN LOUISVILLE, KY.

Mrs. Eunice Robinson left Fulton Saturday for Louisville, where she attended the Grand Chapter of the Eastern Star for several days. Before returning to Fulton she will visit in Nashville, Tenn., with her sister, Mrs. A. L. Martin.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Riddle and sons, Arton and Harold, spent Saturday in Paducah.

BALLOTING REACHES NEW HEIGHTS IN POLL

By John Thomas Wilson
New York, Oct. 23.—The war front broadens in the "Next President" poll. Reports of balloting in new sectors are every day being received at national headquarters here.

At the end of the third week of tabulating national, state by state returns, 33 states report lively action and a total of 40,886 ballots cast for favorite presidential choices.

From many of these 33 states, however, only first and widely scattered returns have been received. Early leads, at many points, are so meager that it would be vain to attempt to put the respective states in a definite column for either party.

Favorite sons and governors came in for scattered votes in most of the 33 states reporting so far with the result that the list of those receiving first, second and third votes were many.

STAGE SHOW AND GARBO AT ORPHEUM TONIGHT

"The Haunted House," a new idea in stage shows now appearing at the Orpheum, is said to be one of the latest in stage shows for laughs. On the same bill are Greta Garbo and Fredric March in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's thrilling love story written by Tolstoy, "Anna Karenina." This outstanding program is being presented at regular low prices.

Opening Sunday for a three-day run is the long-awaited musical, "Broadway Melody of 1936" with Jack Benny, Eleanor Powell, the new screen find of the year, Robert Taylor who climbs to stardom in this sensational picture and other outstanding stars of the stage, screen and radio.

CONGRESSMAN VINSON TO SPEAK AT CITY HALL

Congressman Fred Vinson will speak at the City Hall, Oct. 25 tonight (Friday) at 7:30 o'clock in interest of the election of A. B. Chandler, Democratic nominee for governor of Kentucky.

Senator A. O. Stanley will speak Monday night, October 28, at the Chamber in Hickman in interest of Chandler. Large crowds are expected at both speakings.

Mrs. Chuck Thompson returned to her home in Detroit Wednesday morning after a visit in Fulton. She was accompanied by her sister, Miss LaVerne Yates who will spend her week end guest at her home on Vine-st. Miss Elizabeth Leonard of Mayfield.

Mrs. R. V. Smith and little daughter, Bobbie Lou, of Gleason, spent Tuesday in Fulton with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Cochran and family at their home on Vine-st.

Murray, Ky.—Miss Christine Brown of Fulton, a senior in Murray State College and managing editor of the College News, was forced home Friday, October 18, because of a severe attack of influenza. Miss Brown, who is one of the most versatile art students Murray College has ever developed, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Brown of Fulton and is a graduate of the Fulton High School.

IRVIN GHOLSON RETURNS

Irvin Gholson left Fulton Monday night for the coast of California where he will return to Ship San Francisco. He has been spending the past several days with parents and friends in Fulton.

Thieves broke into Walker Cleaners some time Saturday night before midnight, and stole a few articles of clothing valued at about $30. Entrance was gained through a window by slipping the catch.

LOCAL TALENT IN 'MINSTREL FLASHES'

SCIENCE HALL, NOV. 4-5

"Minstrel Flashes," the new minstrel production being sponsored here under the auspices of the Fulton Elks Club, at the Science Hall on Monday and Tuesday nights, Nov. 4-5, promises to be a real stage treat for the people of this community. Rehearsals are being held nightly at the clubrooms under the direction of Miss Esther Sharp of the John B. Rogers Producing Co. Many of Fulton's outstanding local talent stage performers and musicians are in the cast. This minstrel production is one continuous riot of fun, laughter and enjoyable entertainment. Plenty of jokes, popular song numbers, and a chorus of thirty beautiful young ladies picked from Fulton and South Fulton high schools. Little Eileen Ragsdale (Fulton's Shirley Temple), will sing several numbers on the program in her pleasing, juvenile way.

HUNT IN GREAT TALK BEFORE ROTARY CLUB

Harold Hunt, superintendent of schools in Kalamazoo, Mich., was the honored guest and speaker at the regular meeting of the Fulton Rotary Club last Tuesday. He brought greetings from the 35th Rotary District, which is international because it includes clubs in the United States and Canada.

The speaker released the fourth of Rotary, begun by Paul Harris of Chicago, Ill., in 1905. He said that there were two ideals in mind. They were fellowship and self-interest.

Mr. Hunt spoke briefly of the club, craft, community, and cosmopolitan aspects of Rotary. He quoted frequently Samuel Johnson, Will Rogers and other famous thinkers. He climaxed his speech by saying: "Every man owes something to his community."

Mr. Hunt was brought to Fulton by Guthrie Coke, District Governor who was making his annual visit with the local club.

ART GARRETT TO PLAY IN FULTON

On Wednesday night, Nov. 26th, the Music Corporation of America is bringing to Fulton under the auspices of the Fulton Elks Charity Association the famous Art Garrett and his orchestra. This will be the opening dance for the Woman's Club building on Walnut-st. an ideal place for an occasion of this kind.

Not only does Art Garrett rank among the best soloists himself, but he carries with him, Miss Eleanor Holme, a former Olympic swimming champion, who will furnish entertainment throughout the evening with her well known singing and dancing.

At this time there will be beautiful decorations, balloons, confetti, which will make this the most colorful and entertaining occasion of the winter season. This orchestra has filled engagements at the Blackhawk of Chicago and at other popular hotels and night clubs. They stop off here for a dance while en route to Memphis. The largest crowd ever to attend a dance in Fulton is expected. Advance sale of tickets will be $2.00. At the door admission will be $2.50. Ticket for spectators will be $1.00. Hours will be from 10 until 2 p. m.

MILLER BURGESS RANKS AT UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY

Miller Burgess, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Burgess of Fulton, made a ranking grade among the upper ten in the annual classification tests given at the University of Kentucky. This test is given by the psychology department. Miller is a freshman at the university and is to be congratulated on this achievement.

STRAND HOST TO FULTON'S FIGHTING BULLDOGS

Coach Lee Powell and his football squad will be the invited guests of the Strand Theatre, Friday, when the season's greatest football picture, "Fighting Youth," comes to town. Charles Farrell heads the cast, supported by other well known stars and national football satellites.

A highly entertaining comedy starring ZaSu Pitts and Hugh O'Connell, "The Affair of Susan," a Universal production, will open at the Strand theatre, Tuesday and Wednesday, and it is even funnier than its predecessor, "She Gets Her Man."

...but, after all is said and done, it's the cigarette it-self that counts

... the question is, does it suit you?

Now, when it comes to a cigarette that will suit you . . . you want to think whether it's mild, you want to think about the taste

That Chesterfields are milder and taste better is no accident . . .

The farmer who grows the tobacco, the warehouseman who sells it at auction to the highest bidder, every man who knows about leaf tobacco will tell you that it takes mild, ripe tobaccos to make a good cigarette.

In making Chesterfields we use mild ripe home-grown and Turkish tobaccos.

Bedtime Story for Children

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

THE HUNTER WATCHES THE HUNTER

IT WAS so quiet and peaceful and altogether lovely there in the Green Forest where Lightfoot the Deer lay resting behind a pile of brush near the top of a little hill that it didn't seem possible such a thing as sudden death could be anywhere near. It didn't seem possible that there could be any need for watchfulness. But Lightfoot long ago learned that often danger is nearest when it seems least to be expected. So though he would have liked very much to take a nap, Lightfoot was too wise to do anything so foolish. He kept his beautiful great, soft eyes fixed in the direction from which the hunter with the terrible gun would come. He kept his great ears gently moving to catch every little sound.

It Was the Hunter and Across One Arm He Carried the Terrible Gun.

Lightfoot had about decided that the hunter had given up hunting for that day, but he didn't let this keep him from being any the less watchful. It was better to be overwatchful than the least bit careless. By and by Lightfoot's keen ears caught the sound of the snapping of a little stick in the distance. It was so faint a sound that you or I would have missed it altogether. But Lightfoot heard it and instantly he was doubly alert, watching in the direction from which that faint sound had come. After what seemed a long time he saw something moving and a moment later a man came into view. It was the hunter and across one arm he carried the terrible gun.

Lightfoot knew now that this hunter had patience and perseverance and had not yet given up hope of getting near enough to shoot him. The hunter moved forward slowly, setting each foot down with the greatest care so as not to snap a stick or rustle the leaves. He was watching sharply ahead, ready to shoot should he catch a glimpse of Lightfoot within range. Right along through the hollow at the foot of the little hill below Lightfoot the hunter passed. He was no longer studying the ground for Lightfoot had left no tracks. He was simply hunting in the direction from which the Merry Little Breezes were blowing because he knew that Lightfoot had gone in that direction and he also knew that if Lightfoot were still ahead of him his scent could not be carried to Lightfoot. He was doing what is called, "hunting up wind."

Lightfoot kept perfectly still and watched the hunter disappear among the trees. Then he silently got to his feet, shook himself lightly, and noiselessly stole away over the hilltop towards another part of the Green Forest. He felt sure that hunter would not find him again that day.

QUESTION BOX

by ED WYNN, The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn: I am taking an examination for a letter-carrier's position. One question seems to stick me. I know you will help me, so here's the question: "What has four legs and flies all around?" Truly yours, WILL I. PASS.

Answer: Well, it's a question which answers the government wants from you. Two canary birds have four legs and fly all around, but I think the answer you want is as follows: "A dead horse has four legs and flies all around!"

Dear Mr. Wynn: I have trouble in keeping my silverware clean. They say that whiskey is the best polish for silver. How is it used?

Sincerely, IMA HOUSEKEEPER.

Answer: Just drink the whiskey and then blow on the silver.

Sincerely, U. R. BRIGHT.

Answer: The greatest peace town I know of is Reno.

Dear Mr. Wynn: I just entered college this year. My father wants me to be a lawyer and I want to be a doctor. Can you tell me just what you think of these two professions, so I can choose?

Yours, COL. EDGE BOYE.

Answer: A doctor is a man who puts medicine, about which he knows little, into your stomach, about which he knows nothing, while a lawyer is a man who takes money from your purse and keeps it for himself.

Dear Mr. Wynn: I have been reading the pro and con discussions on "When a Man Is Drunk." Please tell me when a person can be absolutely sure that a man is drunk? Truly yours, Y. R. SOBER.

Answer: A man is absolutely "drunk" when he comes home late, puts the candle in bed, then blows himself out.

Mother's Cook Book

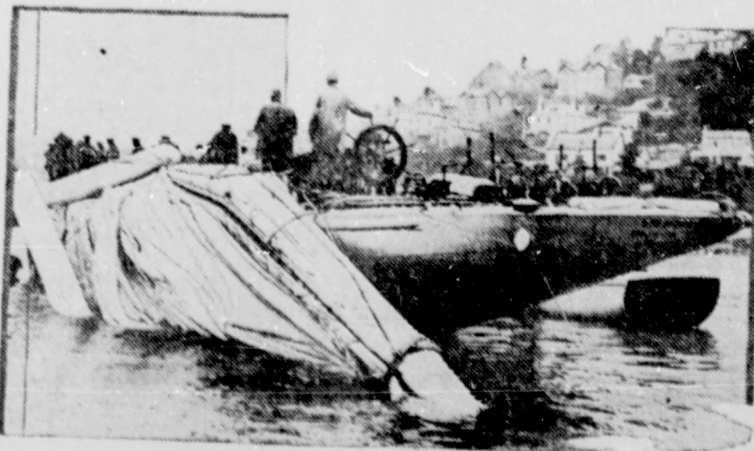

EVERYDAY DISHES

A GOOD ox tail soup is a favorite dish with many. The following stew is worth adding to the card index:

Ox Tail Stew. Wash the short lengths of ox tail and brown in its own fat. Cook two chopped onions in two tablespoons of butter, add to the meat with two and one-half quarts of water. Simmer until the meat is tender. A half hour before serving add four diced carrots, two diced turnips and one large potato, two teaspoonsful of Worcestershire sauce, two teaspoonsful of sugar, salt and pepper to taste. When the vegetables are soft thicken the stew with flour and water mixed to a paste. Cook until well thickened.

Pilaf. Fry one sliced onion in butter, using two tablespoonsful, when soft and yellow add two cupsful of barley, water, one cupful of uncooked rice, two cupsful of canned tomatoes, one cupful of round steak ground, two teaspoonsful of sugar, salt, pepper and grated

When the Yankee Came to Grief

THE once trim cup yacht Yankee was a sorry sight after her mast was blown clear during a race with the Shamrock, the Yelsheda and the Endeavor at the Dartmouth, England, regatta. The yacht came ashore but there were no casualties. The Yankee is shown being towed into Plymouth for repairs.

Do You Remember a Day in October?

By ANNE CAMPBELL

DO YOU remember an October day, A gold and crimson day of long ago, When for a little while you passed my way To touch the maples with a deeper glow?

Do you remember the New England hills, Where little trees reached up to autumn skies? Today June meets October and distills The roses borrowed from our Paradise.

Do you remember words we did not speak, Long silences that told us more than words, The joyous ripple of the silver creek, And the soft answer of the bright-eyed birds?

Do you remember an October day Far lovelier than this, when for an hour Bright blue October skies reached the gray, And blissful affection burgeoned into flower?

cheese to suit the taste. Cook in a covered dish until the rice is soft. Cover with the grated cheese and brown in a hot oven.

Banana Junket. Dissolve a junket tablet in a tablespoonful of water, add to a pint of warmed milk. Flavor to suit the taste. Slice bananas into sherbet cups and pour the junket over them. Let stand in a warm place until firm. Mash one banana and add a tablespoonful of lemon juice and beat the white of an egg until stiff, add one-half cupful of sugar and the banana; beat until thick. Add as a topping to the dessert.

Lemon Cheese Treat. Prepare a sponge by using one tablespoonful of gelatin dissolved in two tablespoonsful of cold water, add one and one-half cupsful of boiling water, one cupful of sugar, a few grains of salt and one-fourth cupful of lemon juice. When the jelly begins to thicken beat with a rotary egg beater until light and frothy, then fold in one cupful of cottage cheese. Put into molds and serve as a dessert or salad.

Do YOU Know—

That the jockey in gay colors is the idea of a British king? In Henry VII's private purse expenses for February (1530), appeared items of money paid to a tailor for making doublets "for the running boys of the stabul" and to the "mylanner (milliner) for ridding cappes of black satin."

Latest Millinery Style Trends

hoods are here to broadcast it to style-seeking enthusiasts who are looking for something "different."

In recording latest millinery style trends special highlights flash across the picture, such as the new braided effects done either in soutache or rattail. Gold cord and tassels, drum-major pompons bespeak the military influence which is so widely exploited.

As to the models illustrated, the little felt hat at the top to the left carries a Breton sailor's brim, for Bretons are even more popular than they were.

The crown is pressed in a novel way which is a characteristic feature of the newer hats. Note two ostrich tips. If you are the type that looks well in the new halo brims, it's your good fortune for they are "it" this season.

The one shown at the top to the right in the group, is velvet with bandeau of velvet ribbon. "How at the front" is a favorite theme among milliners at present.

Going to wear feathers on our hats? Three out of the half dozen models here pictured answer in the affirmative. A parrot with long tail feathers in brilliant red, yellow, blue and green graces the side of a black felt sports hat as centered in the picture. Feathers are pressed into the brim and crown.

The velvet hat in the lower left corner has gone military with its trimming of gold cord and tasseled semicircular crown. It has the new forward brim.

The Mercury hat as shown to right below, of pleated felt simulating a feathered wing, is extremely smart. It's wine-colored felt.

Comes last, but not least, in the inset below the new baby bonnet which makes youth look fresh, coy and demure all at once. It is of black velvet and fits like a skull cap. Curled ostrich tips crest the crown.

WOOL-SLEEVED FUR

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

FURS OUTSTANDING ON STYLE PROGRAM

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

According to early season predictions furs will be the outstanding fashion note of the season, whether it's just an ascot or a full-length mink. The American woman is beginning to realize that furs are no longer luxuries, but are absolutely necessary to her wardrobe. The demand this year is tending more towards higher priced furs rather than for inferior unreliable types.

According to latest reports, mink, caracul and Persian lamb will be the most popular dress furs this season with Hudson seal, kidskin, leopard and leopard cat leading in the sports furs.

Paris couturiers are outdoing themselves in a most beautiful working of furs. Notably in the early showings is a white broadtail evening wrap, also a silver fox cape employing 12 skins of feather weight. Velvet trimmed with chinchilla is another intriguing treatment exploited.

With Paris style leaders featuring fur in every conceivable manner America has accepted the challenge with the result that during national fur week set for the near future furs will be dramatized in a way that will outclass all previous showings.

Revival of "Dog Collar"

Heads New Autumn Ideas

Key-shaped bar pins and a revival in "dog collars" of the type worn by dowagers at the turn of the century head the list of new fall ideas in costume jewelry.

The key pins are shown in gold or silver hued metals of several styles. The 1935 version of the "dog collar" has a youthful air, with a definite appeal to the college girl without a sign of a double chin or wrinkled throat.

One style was of rhinestone strided links. Another was of three strands of pearls. The black velvet band in narrow or wide widths is back. One 2-inch velvet band had a large rhinestone ornament in front. A 4-inch band had a tiny rhinestone ornament in front and one in either side.

Flaring Collar. A charming display of black transparent velvet has wide flaring collar and cuffs of novelty white velvet. Fullness in the sleeves comes from shirring at the shoulders, and with shirring at the soft neckline.

Pretty Tweed Coat

Lovely woven tweed, in dark blue, wine and white, makes this long belted back coat that is worn over a dark blue one-piece dress. The shoulder yoke and pockets echo the rounded line of the collar.

IT'S NOT IN MANY CEREALS

Nothing anyone eats is more important than Vitamin B—the vitamin for keeping fit. Yet it isn't in many cereals, when cereals are supposed to be our best source of this food element.

Many are nervous, poor in appetite, system out of order, because their daily diets lack enough of the precious Vitamin B for keeping fit.

Few things keep them back like a lack of this protective food element.

So give everyone Quaker Oats every morning. Because in addition to its generous supply of Vitamin B for keeping fit, it furnishes food-energy, muscle and body-building ingredients. For about 1/2¢ per dish.

Start serving it tomorrow for a 2-weeks test. Quaker Oats has a wholesome, nutlike, luscious appeal to the appetite. Flavors, surpassingly good. All grocers supply it.

Mussolini at the Phone
Who Is the Man?
No Fear in Vatican City
A Shot at a Bird

Something new in war is Mussolini sitting in his office at the Palazzo Venezia in Rome, talking on a short-wave radio telephone with Gen. Emilio de Bono, his commander in chief in Ethiopia. Mussolini should have been photographed as he received the message. "We have just taken Addis Ababa, where 8,000 of our colonial troops, 6,000 of our Italian troops, were killed 40 years ago, and Italy humiliated."

That was a proud moment in Mussolini's life.

After Mussolini gets the news by radio-telephone he telephones it to the Italian king's summer residence.

For a change from war, consider this incident. Before the entrance to the "Recess club," frequented by Wall Street's "Who's Who," stood George C. Halgh, banker; Matthew S. Sloan, who used to run New York's electric light and now runs the "Katy" railroad, a learned friend of Mr. Sloan's and this writer.

Mr. Sloan said, with finality that marks greatness, "Mr. Blank," mentioning the name of a well-known Republican candidate, "will be elected in 1936." Your narrator buttonholed the first man passing, a Wall Street denizen, well-dressed, asked him "Who is Mr. Blank?" mentioning the name of Mr. Sloan's candidate.

"Never heard of him, don't know who he is. Who is he?" the pedestrian replied and went on. Of the next ten, nine would have said, similarly, "Never heard of him," but all ten would have heard of Franklin D. Roosevelt. Republicans must take somebody whose name is known if they can find him; failing that, they would do well to select him now and see to it that his name is known before election day comes around.

Despite possibilities of widespread bombing of cities if "that war in Europe" should come, Vatican City, ruled by the pope, does not consider anti-air defense necessary. Osservatore Romano, representing the Vatican, denies reports that shelters against air raids would be provided in Vatican City. It says:

"The Holy Father has reason to believe that the dome of St. Peter's, regardless of whatever the occasion might be, is the most inviolable defense, firstly, because of the celestial protection of the Prince of Apostles, for whom the dome is the sacred sign and symbol, and because its mass indicates so clearly the holy place, respected and venerated during the most obscure centuries."

That the magnificent building erected by Michelangelo, with his priceless statues and paintings within it, would be respected by even the most barbarous invader seems certain.

Little things start big things. Doctor Potter, formerly professor of political science in the University of Wisconsin, one of an international committee of four that tried to settle a quarrel between Italy and Ethiopia in 1934, says that Italy has good ground for complaint against Ethiopia, and that a soldier's casual shot at a bird probably caused the present trouble.

Mr. Joseph E. Uihlein, an able citizen of Milwaukee, who takes information with him on his travels and is therefore able to bring information back, returns from England with the impression that, despite greatly improved conditions in Britain, English and other Europeans are expecting something unpleasant to happen. What it is, where it will start, what will cause it, nobody is prepared to say, but there is a feeling of apprehension, a vague anticipation of some catastrophic event.

The President assures the nation that on this occasion America will not meddle with what does not concern it. What will the United States do about selling food to Italy, if, through "sanctions," the League of Nations tries to starve out the Italians, as Germany was starved?

If a chain is no stronger than its weakest link the chain that makes up the human race is not strong.

Authorities in Java report fifty natives of New Guinea, including seventeen children, arrested as "head-hunters." They got the heads of two native women and ate the two women.

Mussolini spoke to twenty million Italians gathered in Italy's public squares, and to the people of the world. You could not mistake the meaning of that voice.

Newspaper men, gathered near the radio, said: "His voice made the shivers run up and down our backs, although we could not understand a word of it." Shivers do not often run up and down those backs.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

By REV. P. H. FITZPATRICK, D. D., Member of Faculty, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for October 27

BELSHAZZAR'S FEAST (Temperance Lesson.)

LESSON TEXT—Daniel 5:1-31. GOLDEN TEXT—Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging; and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise. Proverbs 20:1.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Daniel Solves A Riddle. JUNIOR TOPIC—At the Feast of Belshazzar. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Drink Leads To. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Facts About Alcohol.

I. Belshazzar's Impious Feast (vv. 1-4).

1. Those in attendance (vv. 1, 2). Those present were Belshazzar, his wife and concubines, and one thousand of his lords.

2. Their behavior (vv. 3, 4). a. They drank wine and engaged in drunken revelry. b. They committed sacrilege. They drank wine from the sacred vessels taken out of the temple at Jerusalem. c. They worshiped idols.

II. The Handwriting on the Wall (vv. 5-16).

1. The time of (vv. 5). It occurred "in the same hour" in which they were engaged in their drunken debauchery.

2. The effect upon the king (v. 6). "The joints of his loins were loosed, and his knees smote one against another."

3. The king's behavior (vv. 7-16). a. He called for the astrologers and soothsayers, offering them rewards of gold and of position (vv. 7-9).

b. Daniel brought in at the suggestion of the queen (vv. 10-16). The queen was perhaps the wife of Nebuchadnezzar who remembered Daniel's service in interpreting the dream of her husband.

III. Daniel Interprets the Writing (vv. 17-28).

1. Daniel's address to the king (vv. 17-24). a. He brushes aside his promised gifts (v. 17). He would not have his speech limited by the king's gift. b. He reviewed before Belshazzar the history of Nebuchadnezzar (vv. 18-24). He showed clearly that Belshazzar should have profited by the experiences of his father.

2. The interpretation of the writing (vv. 25-28). a. "Mene" means "numbered" (v. 26). "God hath numbered thy kingdom and finished it."

b. "Tekel" means "weighed" (v. 27). "Thou art weighed in the balances and art found wanting."

c. "Peres" means "divided" (v. 28). "Thy kingdom is divided, and given to the Medes and Persians."

IV. The Judgment Executed (vv. 29-31).

So rapidly did the divine judgment fall that Belshazzar was slain and Darius the Median took the kingdom that same night. The Chaldean dynasty ended with Belshazzar. We may, therefore, interpret this whole scene as pointing to the conditions at the close of the time of the Gentiles, and as adumbrating their prevailing conditions. Let us note

1. The stupidity of men. Belshazzar, like people today, did not learn by example. Nebuchadnezzar's fate should have deterred Belshazzar.

2. The magnificent splendor. This great feast was characterized by pomp, display and parade. How characteristic of our own age!

3. Luxury. The famous hanging gardens of Babylon were a noteworthy example. Signs of luxury abound today on every hand.

4. The licentiousness of the king with his many wives and concubines. Licentiousness is likewise notoriously prevalent today.

5. Blasphemous sacrilege. The sacrilege of this day may be in excess of that of Belshazzar's day and expresses itself in a. A profession of religion for pecuniary gain, social and political preferment.

b. The use of the pulp of the Christian ministry for notoriety and even for the propagation of false doctrine.

c. Uniting with the church and attendance at the Lord's table so as to cover up secret sins.

d. The use of the Word of God to give point to a joke.

e. Denying that the Bible is God's Word, making it a book of errors, myths, and legends.

f. Sneering at the virgin birth, repudiating Christ's deity and setting aside his vicarious atonement.

6. Drunken carousals. The handwriting is on the wall. His judgments shall eventually fall. Conditions in the world indicate that the time is drawing near. Are you ready?

Typewriter 221 Years Old

The recent unveling in Vienna, Austria, of a bronze bust of Peter Mitterhofer, as the inventor of the modern typewriter has brought to light records of at least two "writing machines" previous to 1864, the date of Mitterhofer's invention. In 1859 G. A. Hughes, of Manchester, England, perfected a typewriter but patent records at London show that as early as 1714 a London engineer named Henry Mill received a patent for a "writing machine" for "impressing or transcribing of letters singly or progressively one after another, so neat and exact as not to be distinguished from print." There is nothing further to reveal how successful Mill's machine was but it antedates all other typewriters.

Is the old photograph album that graced every parlor table in the 1900s going to come back? A dealer in novelties on upper Broadway thinks that it is, but in a different form.

The old-timer brought up this very subject recently, telling how he found his family's album while rummaging in the attic. He said it was a revelation, as he had not looked through it for thirty years. He got acquainted again with his uncle, his cousin and his aunts, as well as his grandmother and grandfather, who had passed on so long ago.

"It brought back many memories," he told his fellow commuters. "I was again with old friends that had passed away, and I renewed my old friendship with them, seeing again the places where we visited and the plays that we enjoyed."

Today there is no such thing as a photograph album in our homes, but there is an album that is taking its place. It is, however, more of an amateur picture album—photos taken by members of the family with their own cameras. There are no dignified and serious portraits, but snap shots taken in the outdoors of children and members of the family. —New York Sun.

Smart Play Frock That's Easy to Sew

PATTERN 2382

Pleated for play, in a very new way, this child's frock gives her plenty of room for rope-skipping. Her mother will find this smart frock so easy to cut and put together, and a very economical pattern, since bloomers are included with the dress. You can make these up in the same material, or just plain white to wear with other frocks, and no child can have too many pairs. The buttoned closing of the frock takes a new slant, and don't worry about those four pleats! They're as easy a decoration as you've ever made. Colorful novelty cotton for that crisp look, and a choice of short or long sleeves. Pattern 2382 is available in sizes 2, 4, 6 and 8. Size 6 takes 2½ yards 36 inch fabric and ½ yard contrasting. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included. Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE. Address orders to the Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 243 West Seventeenth St., New York City.

Five Serial Fiction in a new form. . . . Three Prize Short Stories (of four instalments each) by a master story-teller. . . . They're Rex Beach at his best. © by Rex Beach

SYNOPSIS. Ben Furlong, a young but practical oil man, and driller from the Pennsylvania field, drifted into the Texas oil country, broke and looking for work. Finally he fetched up at the Durham home where live an elderly aunt, shortly widowed by the explosion of a powder wagon, and her niece, pretty Betty Durham. Perhaps because of his smile, Betty cooks some food for Ben and while he eats he learns the aunt, in town on business, has an oil man, Tiller Maddox, sinking an oil well for her. A short 6 inch bolt worked loose from the rigging and is in the bottom of the well. Work has been suspended for days as the crew "fish" for the bolt and operating funds dwindle away. Furlong offers to give a hand but Maddox objects. Betty insists and overrules Maddox so Furlong fastens a tool which brings up the bolt. On the order of Betty's aunt, Furlong is given a job. Maddox shows his dislike for the new hand, especially because Ben and Betty are so friendly. While the two are in town shopping one evening, Maddox calls upon the aunt, demanding she help his case with Betty or there will be no well. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

THIRD INSTALMENT

"Did you drop that bolt in the well?" Mrs. Durham bleated, in dismay.

"I ain't saying I did or didn't. But remember, if this well ain't a producer, you're blown up, and it ain't a-goin' to produce till there's a Mrs. Tiller Maddox to see it and to get her share! We bargained that out, long ago. Yes, an' I ain't afraid of you goin' back on our deal, either. You don't dast."

"I'll try again."

"You better do more'n try. I'll give you just one more chance. If she don't come across, I want you to go visit your folks Saturday evenin' an' leave her here. Understand?"

For a moment Mrs. Durham stared at the speaker, then she said:

"Tiller Maddox, you're a dirty dog!"

"Say, I've took all the back talk I can stand for one day. You heard me. You do like I tell you, an' you needn't to get back from your visit till Monday."

Not until Ben and Betty had finished their shopping and were on their way home did he tell her about the trouble he had had with Maddox that morning.

"He let on he was fooling, but of course he'll fire me the first chance he gets," Furlong predicted.

"Oh, Ben! Why did you do it?"

"We were bound to tie into each other sooner or later. You can't choose a time to get fighting mad, it's as much as you can do to pick good footing."

"Aunt Mary won't let him fire you. She doesn't trust him any more than I do."

"Say! What has he got on her?"

The girl did not look up from her driving. She fetched a deep breath as she said: "I'd dearly love to know. There's something queer about it—Uncle Joe was a sweet, easy-going man and she rode him with a Spanish bit. She never would have let him take me in, when my folks died, only I did all the work. But he sure loved me. When the oil excitement came they rowed and fought for months. When ever he got an offer she claimed he was trying to give the farm away and threatened to go law. I told you about that. He stood it as long as he could; then he up and announced that I'd been more of a daughter to him than she'd been a wife and he aimed to give most of his money to me anyhow, and then he made that lease with the Planet people. That's how Maddox came. I think she'd have poisoned me, if she dared, after what uncle said. When he was killed I supposed, of course, she'd throw me out, but she didn't. No use to do it, I suppose, inasmuch as he hadn't left any writing. As a matter of fact, she was better to me than she'd ever been. That's what makes me wonder sometimes—

"Wonder what?"

"If he didn't tell Tiller something—Something that makes her scared of him. Sometimes she acts like it's only because of him that she's nice to me. I don't know what I'd do if she sent me away. I have got a red cent. There isn't a living soul I could—

Ben passed his arm around the slim, girlish figure and drew it to him. "That's be about all for you!" He kissed the cheek next to his and Betty hungrily pressed her face closer. "Good thing you aren't an heiress—and me with less than a hundred dollars!"

"You behave yourself, or you'll wreck this car," the girl warned him.

Maddox carried out his intention. He discharged Furlong on Friday, explaining that the well was down, and the next morning Ben broke the news to his sweetheart. Betty was indignant. She was for appealing to her aunt, but he refused to permit her. He promised to let her hear from him in a day or so.

Betty's face was flushed, her eyes were shining, when she entered the house after he was gone. She was surprised to find her aunt awaiting her.

"Tiller came over the other night when you were in town," Mrs. Durham began.

"Did he?"

"He talked a lot about you. Tiller's a fine man, dearie—"

Betty broke out irritably: "Don't let's start that all over again."

"Oh, your head's full of Furlong. I suppose! But what's he got? Nothing. Not even a job. Now Tiller wants to marry you and—you better do it."

"You know very well I'll do nothing of the sort."

"Maybe you won't and maybe you will. If you got a smitch of sense you will. D'you want to be poor all your life or d'you want to be rich?"

"I tell you I won't! I won't!" declared the girl. "The big, black, greasy brute!"

"Now don't fly off the handle till I'm through. I've been pretty good to you—"

"I've earned my keep ever since I came. You'd have paid more for a hired girl than I cost."

"Oh, hush up and let me finish. We allus fight like this. Your Uncle Joe cured a lot for you and—and I want to respect his wishes. When that well comes in this farm'll be worth—I don't know what. Anyhow, my heart's set on seeing you get a good home and have everything. How'd you like to live in a fine house in Dallas?"

"What ails you? Are you losing your mind, Aunt Mary?"

"And you can have 'em if you marry Tiller. Marry Furlong and you'll spend your life over a cook stove."

"How can Tiller give me things like that?"

"I'll give 'em to you."

After a moment Betty inquired, curiously, "How much will you give?"

It was Mrs. Durham's time to hesitate, her words came with an effort. "I don't know—maybe a quarter interest."

"Humph!" The exclamation was one of scorn.

"There's the gratitude for you! Mebbe if it's a real big well I'll do better. You—you've got to do it, Betty!"

The widow cried in distraction, "If you don't he'll ruin everything. He said so. If that well don't come in the farm ain't worth—"

"So! That's why you're so generous. Now you listen to me. I would not marry Tiller Maddox, not for all the oil in Texas, not if it was to save your life."

"Wait! Don't make up your mind in a hurry. I—I'm going over to Cousin Anna's—"

"Right after dinner. You think it over while I'm gone, dearie. I feel like you was my own kin. I want to do right by you and—"

"Rate!" said the girl.

The town lay hot and gasping under the sun. There was no shade on the streets, not even grass; its cinder yards, its board walls and iron roofs radiated waves of heat like those from a stove.

Late in the afternoon Ben Furlong entered the skating rink, paid his admission at the turnstile, and went through. Here, at least, was a place to sit down out of the sun.

Out of the whirling throng upon the floor shot a figure; it was Ben's friend, the engineer of the Maddox rig. He rolled up to the bench where Furlong sat and collapsed upon it.

"Whew! It's hard work havin' a good time in this town," he panted.

"Landed a job yet?"

"I've got some prospects lined up. What's the matter? You fired, too?"

"Naw! Maddox laid us off for the day. Miz' Durham brought us in."

"Did Betty come with her; a grin spread over his face. "Say! You know how scared Tiller is of nitroglycerine? When we left he was hidin' out in the bush like a quail. The powder wagon came an' he took it on the run."

"Powder wagon? What's a powder wagon doing there?" Ben inquired.

"Why, he aims to shoot the well. He got a permit an' the stuff's on the ground, ready for the men."

"He's crazy if he shoots that well!" Furlong declared. "What's he thinkin' about?"

"So I told him. 'Leave her alone an' she'll blow herself in,' I says to him. She's coughin' now, an' I bet as many wells has been ruined by that stuff as they is wells that's been made."

"I'm going to see Mrs. Durham," Ben rose, but the other explained:

"She's gone away over Sunday to visit her kinsfolks."

Kentucky farmers, merchants, manufacturer, and the population as a whole receive nearly 100% of the economic advantages of the distilling industry of this State—yet only 2% of the product of Kentucky distilleries is consumed in this Commonwealth.

Unless the people of Kentucky vote "Yes" to repeal the State Prohibition Amendment on November 5, this amazing "balance of trade" will be lost to Kentucky—a blow which would set this State back to the depths of the depression of 1932.

"Who's looking out Betty?"
"I dunno, Tiller, I reckon."

Furlong frowned. For a while he listened inattentively to his companion, then he rose and left the room.

Conditions all over the oil fields, as he well knew, were unsettled, and he did not relish the thought of Betty out there alone in that farmhouse; but even more disturbing was the fact that Maddox proposed to shoot the Durham well. What ailed the man?

After some indecision Ben decided to warn Betty. It was none of his business, to be sure, but a word from her might induce the aunt to go slowly and perhaps save the cost of the well. It would be criminal to leave her in ignorance of the risks she ran. He tried to hire a car to run him back out to the farm but what few were for hire were out, and it was some time before he could discover a truck that was later going in that direction.

It was considerably after dark when Furlong left Opportunity; he had to walk the last three miles, so it was late bedtime when he finally arrived at the Durham homestead. Evidently Betty was asleep; at any rate, the farmhouse windows were dark and Ben wondered how he could best awaken her without causing alarm. Visitors in the country at this time of night were not common. He decided to call softly from outside her window, so he closed the gate quietly behind him and made his way around the house.

He paused in surprise when he had turned the corner of the building, for the kitchen door was open. A momentary panic swept over him; then he drew a breath of relief, for at that moment he heard the girl's muffled voice.

"Who's there?" she cried. He opened his lips to speak reassuringly, but the sound died in his throat, for inside Betty's room he heard a man's voice, then stir, a movement. This was followed by a crash, as if a chair had been overturned, then a scream.

Furlong uttered a shout; he leaped forward. Some marauder had entered the house just ahead of him. Incredible as it seemed, he had arrived barely in time.

"Betty!" he yelled. "Betty!" he made for the door beyond. That throaty clamor from the girl's room, meanwhile, continued. There were hasty movements, the sounds of a struggle.

Furlong had never been inside the front part of the house, but his plan was simple and he was guided by those shrieks of terror. The door to Betty's room was closed, but it opened when he found the knob. He glimpsed the dim square of a window opposite and shouted against it he saw the girl herself, then blackness engulfed him.

The next he knew Betty Durham was holding his head in her lap and splashing water into his face. It struck him as queer that the lamp should be burning when only the fraction of an instant before all had been darkness.

SOUTH FULTON NEWS

Hattie Lou Stubblefield, Reporter Stanley Mills, Everette Jolley and Hansel Brundige spent five days last week on a visit to places in Mississippi. The report was that they were enroute to Gulfport, but it developed that Jackson, Miss., was as far south as the boys got before turning back.

Those amazing Freshmen boys clicked off another basketball vicped the boys from Browder's Mill by a score of 23 to 13.

The girls are in the first week of basketball practice. More than two teams are out each day and there will be a merry scramble for positions on this year's sextette. There is a larger array of experienced talent out than usual. At the forward positions, Katie Margaret Allen, Irene Doran, Rosa Bell and Helen Maupin are showing up well.

Alice Ross, former All Weakley County Guard, Margaret Maynard, playing her last year, Irene Todd, Lillian Vaughan, Virginia Brooks, will insure good guarding. At center Hattie Lou Stubblefield, Elizabeth Ward, Dorothy Gafford, Dorothy Pickle, Captola Weaks, Ellen Alexander, are among the possibilities.

Coach Kent has the boys coming along each afternoon in search of a top flight combination. Men out for the team are James Dedmon, Robert Lee McKinney, Harry McKinney, Odell Britton, Husell Palsgrove, Ben Faulkner, Stanley Jones, Stanley Mills, Morgan Omar, A. J. Lowe, Prather Creason, Johnnie Lancaster, James Donald Hall and Norman Jonakin. Buster Johnson and Hansel Brundige are expected to report for practice shortly. Light duty Friday night when they top-draws have been the order and no casualties have been reported.

Several former students visited school last week. Marguerite Parker, Helen Sharp, Richard Ferguson, La Donna McClain, Katie Frazier, Eugene Owen and Jewel Covington came back for a visit.

Bro. J. R. Robinson, visiting in Fulton from South Carolina, was at assembly with his uncle, Rev. J. S. Robinson, one day last week.

The Sophomore class is going on a weiner roast this week if the weather will permit.

LeRoy Hastings seems to like the late study hall. He is staying in a week for eating candy in English class Monday.

Geneva Sharp is back in school after an absence of several days.

Mrs. Priestley has her long coveted blackboard, so the French students had better get those sentences.

The Junior Class is making frenzied preparations for the swiftly approaching Halloween Carnival. Various committees have been appointed and told to act on any feasible suggestions.

PARTY SATURDAY NIGHT

Mrs. Gid Willingham was hostess to a delightfully planned bridge party Saturday night at her beautiful home on Carr-st. The lovely home was attractively decorated with garden flowers arranged in vases and baskets. Progressive contract was played at seven tables.

At the end of the games of high score for the evening was held by Mrs. S. C. Smith. Mrs. Harvey Williams held second high score and Mrs. Ward McClellan cut consolation.

Beautiful prizes were presented each. Late in the evening a salad plate, cleverly decorated to carry out the Halloween motif was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Flemings spent last week end visiting relatives in Paducah.

$3,600,000 IN STATE TAXES

THE revenue from taxes on alcoholic beverages is now the State of Kentucky's fourth-largest single source of income. . . . In addition to eight forms of taxes paid to the State, the distilling industry in Kentucky now pays seven forms of taxes to the Federal Government, four forms to counties, and four to cities within the State. . . Unless you vote "Yes" on November 5, all this revenue will be lost, and the taxpayers of the State will be forced to make up the deficit.

What the Distilling Industry Does for Kentucky

COAL . . . Kentucky distillers bought over 200,000 tons of Kentucky coal last year. The mining of this coal provided an entire month's work for over 2000 Kentucky miners—work which may be lost forever if you vote "No" in November.

GRAIN . . . Kentucky distillers purchased 9,000,000 bushels of grain last year, at a cost of over $10,000,000. This market for grain will be lost to Kentucky farmers if the distilling industry is driven from Kentucky.

LUMBER and COOPERAGE . . . Kentucky barrel manufacturers sold 800,000 barrels to Kentucky distillers last year. These barrels were made from 80,000,000 feet of white oak lumber—at current prices, worth more than two and a half million dollars in cash.

OTHER INDUSTRIES . . . In addition to those mentioned above, dozens of other industries and occupations in Kentucky derive some if not all their business and income from the distilling industry in Kentucky. Railroads, hotels, equipment-manufacturers, bottle makers, printing houses, newspapers, merchants of all sorts, everybody in Kentucky owes some benefit to this $100,000,000 industry.

If you want the State to continue collecting $3,600,000 per year in taxes from the distilling industry instead of from you and your neighbors—if you want the State to retain all the other benefits of this $100,000,000 industry—

Italy Is Outlawed by the League of Nations

BECAUSE it was prosecuting an undeclared war on Ethiopia, Italy was condemned as a violator of the covenant of the League of Nations and virtually declared to be an outlaw against which economic and financial sanctions are to be applied. That was the decision of 52 members of the league in a memorable meeting of its assembly in Geneva. Three nations, Italy itself and Austria and Hungary, refused to attend the assembly's action. The Austrian and Hungarian representatives already had announced that they would not participate in any sanctions against Italy because of their political and economic relations with the Fascist government.

If any of the nations concurring in the league's decision wishes to declare war on Italy, it now has the legal right to do so. The nature of the penalties to be imposed and the manner of procedure was to be determined by a committee including all members of the league council, except Italy, and all Italy's neighbor nations except Austria and Hungary.

First of the sanctions announced by the league committee was an embargo on shipments of war materials to Italy, and at the same time the ban against such shipments to Ethiopia was lifted. This was followed by the adoption of six financial penalties against Italy designed to break all financial and credit relations of members of the league with Mussolini's government. Next, according to the plan of the big powers which were directing all this, was to be a trade boycott for the purpose of crippling Italy's imports and exports.

The meeting of the assembly half heard an eloquent speech on Italy's behalf by her chief delegate, Baron Pompeo Aloisi. He charged that the league had been unfair, that it had used "two weights and two scales" in its work, that it had acted against Italy where it did not act against Japan in the Manchurian crisis, that it did not even consider Italy's complaints against Ethiopia.

"Why not Japan?" he asked. "Why not Bolivia and Paraguay in the Chaco war? Why Italy?"

Before the decision nation after nation registered its adherence to the league covenant.

"I shall make only a brief declaration," said Pierre Laval of France. "France will face her obligations. I said this before the council. I repeat it before the assembly. The covenant is our international law."

"Action must now be taken," said Anthony Eden of Great Britain. "I declare the readiness of his majesty's government to take full part in such action."

Austria and Hungary cannot of themselves supply Mussolini with much in the way of raw materials for war; but there is the chance that he may receive, through those countries, materials from Germany if the neutrality proclaimed by Hitler does not prevent.

Recent reports from Addis Ababa said the Italian minister, whose departure had been requested by the emperor, announced that the Italian forces in the north sector had occupied the holy city of Aksum, the ancient capital of the queen of Sheba.

In the program outlined by King, in case he won, the great emphasis was laid on relieving unemployment and lowering tariffs back to 1930 levels. A reciprocal trade agreement with the United States was one of his strong arguments. Nationalization of the Bank of Canada, to control credit inflation and deflation was another plank.

Appeals Court Upholds Sentence of Hauptmann

UNANIMOUS decision of the New Jersey court of errors and appeals is that Bruno Richard Hauptmann was given a fair trial on the charge of murdering Col. Charles Lindbergh's baby son, that his conviction was in accordance with the evidence and that his death sentence was legal. Every contention raised by the defense was overruled. In its opinion the court said:

"Our conclusion is that the verdict is not only not contrary to the weight of the evidence, but one to which the evidence inescapably led. . . . From three different and, in the main, unrelated sources the proofs point unerringly to guilt—viz: (a) Possession and use of the ransom money. (b) The handwriting of the ransom notes. (c) The wood used in the construction of the ladder."

Hauptmann's attorneys immediately began preparations for an appeal to the Supreme court of the United States. Their only way is to ask that tribunal for a review of the New Jersey court's action.

Supreme Court to Decide Two Vital Cases

CONSTITUTIONALITY of two New Deal projects—the AAA processing taxes and the TVA operations in generating and selling power in competition with private power companies—will be determined by the Supreme court of the United States, and an early ruling on both is expected.

Among the court's negative rulings was a refusal to consider the latest habeas corpus proceedings brought in behalf of Thomas Mooney, California's most famous prisoner. The court also refused to hear an attack on a law which strengthened the political machine of the late Senator Huey P. Long of Louisiana.

Col. Roosevelt's Ideas on Campaign Issues

IN SOME quarters Col. Theodore Roosevelt is credited with considerable influence among the Republicans of the eastern states, and often he is mentioned as a possible presidential candidate. Another potential candidate, strong in the West, Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, recently wrote to Colonel Roosevelt proposing that the 1936 Republican campaign be based on a "trust-busting" issue. The colonel turned down the plan. He replied that, while he was in sympathy with the senator's attitude on monopolies, he felt there are many other issues as great or greater. Among these he named "scandalous waste of the people's money, government extravagance, multitudinous taxes, and attempts to subvert our type of government."

"I entirely agree," Colonel Roosevelt wrote, "that monopolies are evil, for I am a firm believer in the established American principle of competition. I have stated this over and over again during the last eighteen months."

"This is one of the reasons that I opposed so strenuously the NRA, for that organization gave governmental sanction to monopolies and upheld them by the police force of the nation. I believe in the Sherman antitrust laws."

"I believe that the Republican party should take a clear and unequivocal stand on this issue."

"I do not agree, however, that this will be the major issue of the campaign."

Carter Glass Won't Help Split His Party

SENATOR CARTER GLASS of Virginia has had his differences with the Roosevelt administration and is likely to have others, but he remains a loyal Democrat. He says he is "a constitutional Democrat within the Democratic party" and adds:

"I would not support any movement to split the party. I refused to join the Liberty league and have refused to join any organization whose aims run counter to the party."

Mr. Glass is convinced that President Roosevelt will be re-elected without serious opposition. "There is no organized opposition to his nomination in sight within the party," Glass says. "If he lives, he will be re-nominated by the Democratic party. Not to do so would be a confession of failure."

WASHINGTON DIGEST

Get Data for Relief Job

Washington.—The President and his two chief relief advisers, Harry L. Hopkins and Secretary E. A. Tamm, have just completed a cross-country tour and are now in possession of information on which to base the future course for management of the relief job this winter. What their plans are, beyond the use of the funds appropriated last winter, remain confidential but without doubt the country can expect to see some very definite changes in the practices that have been followed.

The New Deal was swept into the governmental control upon the twin arches of recovery and relief. The recovery arch seems to be holding up. The relief arch, I believe, can be said to be teetering. At least that is the conclusion that must be drawn on a set of circumstances in which billions have been spent to tide destitute persons over their distress only to leave millions of them still looking for governmental handouts.

It is quite apparent that Mr. Roosevelt took his two relief advisers on his western trip chiefly for the purpose, like the well-known bear, of going over the mountain to see what he could see. The word that has come back to Washington is that he saw some things that were not altogether encouraging. He found that his previous relief methods were not in high favor in the Middle West and on the Pacific coast. Hence there are some changes in prospect.

New Deal opposition has characterized the President's vacation trip westward as being in part, politics. Whether this be a fact or not, anyone can recall that there is an election in November, 1936, and that shrewd politicians begin many months in advance to oil the campaign machinery and see that the gears mesh. It is not at all unlikely, then, that while Mr. Roosevelt was sincerely examining the relief situation and attempting to ascertain for himself what should be done to make the going easier for those in distress, he probably had in the back of his mind thoughts of how those same people would react when they go to the polls a year hence and find his name as the Democratic Presidential nominee.

Courting Trouble

Some months ago Mr. Roosevelt announced with emphasis that the job of taking care of the destitute must be turned back to the states and private charity. It was, he said, no longer a federal proposition. A good many observers here felt at the time he made that announcement that he was courting trouble. Those who took that view have found their conclusions amply supported by the facts since developed. The President, indeed, has courted trouble and it is a species of trouble that is going to remain with him throughout a long, hard winter just ahead. Probably he will be able to find a way out of it, indeed, a way out not discovered while he and Messrs. Hopkins and E. A. Tamm were on their transcontinental tour. To the average person, however, the solution is not so apparent.

That brings us to a phase of federal administration, a new circumstance and problem, confronting the nation. I describe it as a new problem which in fact it is when considered in the light of developments since the New Deal took control.

It seems to me that it ought to be said the Roosevelt administration failed to profit by a knowledge of what has happened heretofore in the use of the dole. Just across the Atlantic has been available a splendid demonstration of what the dole can and will do to a population. The British government listened to the appeals of the professional relievers and humanitarians and adopted a dole. It has taken that nation four years to whittle away even a part of the situation it built up for itself.

Here is the crux of the problem: At any time a governmental agency begins to feed people, to clothe them and to provide them with the other necessities of life free, by that act it incites to those people—not all of them of course—a feeling that the world, and particularly their government owes them a living. A certain percentage of them immediately become convinced that while the dole may be smaller than their weekly pay check earned in industry, it comes without work. In fact, it breeds laziness.

They Don't Want Jobs

So, in this country now we have a certain percentage of the population who are wholly unwilling to work because they have found that the government will take care of them in times of stress. In consequence, this segment of the population is making no effort to obtain jobs and is quite vocal in its lambasting of a government that will not feed its people.

When they have taken back on the jobs, taken them off of relief rolls, are unwilling to do their jobs efficiently; they seek to fill in their time and just get by, and they resent any admonitions from foremen or bosses that a certain amount of work is required of them if they are to remain on the pay roll. Some instances have been reported even that workers of this type have replied to their employers' requests for honest labor: "We don't care. We can go back on relief."

It is a tragedy. Unfortunately, it is going to be with us for some years to come and when I make that statement I do not mean in any way to withhold praise from those men and women who, when they get a job, try to do an honest day's work for a day's wage. Obviously, most of the American people are of this latter type. But I believe it cannot be refuted that the American government's experiment with the dole has created several millions of new panhandlers.

See Expensive Year Ahead

President Roosevelt has introduced an innovation into federal administration by making public a preliminary summation of federal financial requirements. He ordered it compiled and released for publication at this early date, he said, in order that the country may know what confronts it in the way of expenditures for the fiscal year beginning last July 1, and ending next June 30.

A careful analysis of the summation and the revision of estimates of expenditures for the current fiscal year rather indicates that it will be the most expensive in New Deal history. This is true despite Mr. Roosevelt's declaration that a sharp upswing in business activity will result in a marked curtailment in relief expenditures. The budget statement by the President was regarded in the national capital as rather illusory. In fact, some of Mr. Roosevelt's own subordinates entertained a fear that the thing would be regarded as having a political purpose. They felt that there was no call for the action and that it might logically result in providing New Deal opposition with new ammunition which it can use in criticizing waste and misadministration particularly with respect to the relief programs.

The summation shows that the actual deficit for the current year to date is more than half again as large as was the deficit on the corresponding day last year, despite the business recovery about which Mr. Roosevelt lately has talked several times.

It showed further that even under the revised estimates submitted by the President, expenditures for the current year will be $400,000,000 more than last year and $600,000,000 more than in the first year of the New Deal. The President in his statement asserted that the deficit next June 30, will be $300,000,000 less than the last fiscal year, but if one digs into the mass of figures it can be seen that this $300,000,000 has been simply transferred to revised budget figures for the works relief program.

On this basis then, some observers persistently inquire where the substantial and sustained economy in government has been effected either by the administration or by the business improvement. It is difficult to answer. It is more difficult, in the opinion of Chairman Henry P. Fletcher of the Republican national committee, because of the frequent references which Mr. Roosevelt made during his 1932 campaign to a program of enforced economy in government.

Ever since the President began writing the New Deal budgets, capital observers have been awaiting the day when, under the pressure of political necessity or a sincere determination on his part to carry out his political promises, he would start squeezing the excess out of those budgets. I think it is fair to say that there has been an immense amount of water in the government budgets under the New Deal. Equally, I think it is fair to say that there has been a tremendous amount of waste. Thus, the time apparently has arrived when the President must start to trim down these costs if the national debt is not to get clear out of bounds. As a politician of the keenest type, Mr. Roosevelt recognizes better, perhaps, than anyone else that the American people do not like to see debts piled up, debts either private or public. Consequently, it is not an unsafe forecast to make that Mr. Roosevelt will be turning soon to curtailment of expenditures.

It has been interesting to compare the budgets under the Hoover administration with those of Mr. Roosevelt. Mr. Hoover always was optimistic about his budgets. In fact, they were always smaller than an honest estimate of requirements called for. Mr. Roosevelt has been as flagrantly pessimistic about his budgets as Mr. Hoover was optimistic. The result, of course, has been that the Roosevelt budgets were extraordinarily large and somewhat unjustified.

THE FULTON COUNTY NEWS, FULTON, KENTUCKY

There's Always Another Year

SYNOPSIS

To the little town of Heron River comes Anna ("Silver") Grenoble, daughter of "Grenoble Bros," formerly of the community, known as a family of whose murder in Chicago has reached the town. She is to live with Sophronia Willard, the Grenoble's sister. Sophronia's household consists of her husband, Willard, and his half brother, Duke Melbank, and stepsister, Corinne. Silver, the other half being Anna Grenoble's. On Silver's arrival Duke Melbank, shifts his youth, makes himself obnoxious. Silver is on the eve of marriage to Corinne Meader. Silver declares she wants to live on the farm, and will not sell her portion. Silver tells Sophronia "Phronie," by request something—but by means all-of her relations with Gerald Lucas, gambler friend of her father. Roddy marries Corinne. She has a maid, Paula, who seems to attract her will. Silver confides to Roddy the fact of her illicit relations with Lucas. Friendship between Lucas and Corinne develops. Duke Melbank insults Silver. Roddy's solicitude brings Silver to the realization that she loves him. Roddy is offered a position at the University farm, but to Corinne's dismay, he declines it. To break up the over-friendship of Lucas and Corinne, Silver tells Roddy she has decided to sell her portion of the farm. Not understanding, he reproaches her for her "treachery." Silver witnesses a meeting between Lucas and Corinne which convinces her Corinne is in danger. Corinne absents herself from Jason and Paula's wedding, going into the city, shopping. She returns, with purchases little suitable for farm life. Roddy's mild reproaches are met with contemptuous references to "counting pennies." He threatens if ever she "gets the chance," to go away. Roddy tells Silver he is sure Lucas and Corinne met in the city. While Silver is alone, Duke Melbank enters the house, drunk and abusive.

Silver looked around and saw Duke Melbank close the door behind him and lean against it, smiling.

"I've been peeking through the window," he chuckled. "I wouldn't 'a' had the nerve to come in if anybody was round."

Silver backed away from him, one hand feeling the way cautiously behind her.

"How dare you come in here!" she said quietly.

"I told you I was coming to see you some night, didn't I? Well, this is the night."

"Get out of this house!" Silver ordered him.

He came weaving toward her and Silver realized that he had been drinking.

"There's no use in you pretending to me, Silver," he said. "I seen you come out o' Lucas' place in the morning, didn't I? I'm a better man than him—and I've been thinking about you ever since that night I saw you in Chicago."

Silver was aware of only two things: Duke Melbank's inflated, greedy eyes were the eyes of all the men who had tried to stroke her hair or touch her bare arms during those years when she had been in desperate fear of them all, during those years of undercurrents of violence before her father had died; and somewhere, behind her, on Sophronia's sewing table, there lay a heavy crystal paperweight, a half-sphere that held magnified within it a scene of Niagara falls.

"You don't have to be afraid of me, Silver," Duke persisted. "I want to marry you."

"You're drunk!" Silver temporized, and moved back cautiously toward the sewing machine.

"Scre I am—drunk with thinking about you," Duke laughed. He lunged toward her. "You've got awful pretty shoulders, Silver."

He was perhaps ten feet away from her when she stretched her hand out behind her and took a firm hold of the heavy crystal sphere that stood on Sophronia's sewing table.

It was then that the kitchen screen door opened with a sharp twang from its creaking hinges. A footfall sounded at the rear of the house.

Duke drew back immediately, looked once toward the kitchen, then vanished cat-like through the front door.

Silver sank down upon the chair beside the sewing machine and buried her head in her arms.

A moment later, Roddy stood in the doorway to the kitchen. He looked at her for a moment, perplexed, then came and leaned over her.

"What's wrong, Silver?" he asked.

"What's wrong?—Just now." "Duke Melbank—he was here—just now."

"Duke Melbank? Where is he?" Silver made a gesture toward the open doorway. "He went—when he heard you coming."

Roddy hurried to the door and stepped out into the darkness. Presently he came back and stood silently beside her.

"Something will have to be done about that fellow," he said tersely. "I'll have to talk to him when I go to town tomorrow."

Silver looked at her hands. They were trembling as she clenched them in her lap. "I'm so glad you came, I might have killed him, Roddy."

"I came down to see if the folks were back," Roddy told her. His voice was uneven with the effort he was making to speak at all. "Jase and Paula are already expecting an addition to the family."

Silver raised her eyes and saw his face. For seconds they stared at each other, tense and motionless. Then, involuntarily, Silver lifted her trembling hands toward him. Roddy caught them and knelt swiftly beside her. With a soft cry she slipped into his arms.

"Silver—dear, dear Silver," Roddy breathed and held her fiercely close to him.

Silver sobbed against his throat. "Oh, Roddy—Roddy! I can't help it. I love you. I've known it from the very beginning."

He strained her slender body to him, then taking her tear-stained face into his hands, he kissed her mouth with hard and solemn vehemence.

"We've both known," he muttered at last, "—deep down, from the beginning."

Her hands moved helplessly along his shoulders.

"That's why I wanted to go away, Roddy."

"I should have known that, too," he said unsteadily. "Lord—what a fool I've been!"

They clung together for a moment in a desperate kind of joy. It was Silver who drew away.

"I'll leave," she said tonelessly. "I must, Roddy. There is no other way out for us."

He swung about and looked at her, his eyes darkening in a savage, trapped way. With a desolate feeling she watched him run his fingers agitatedly through his rough hair. But then suddenly a black and frosty sort of calm seemed to descend upon him. He came and stood before her, his arms folded, and stared down at her with a twisted smile of bitter resignation.

"You are right, of course," he said in a harsh voice. "You and I—we have to do the decent thing—by her. I don't know just why—but we have to."

Silver stood up very straight.

"And you will keep on working this land Roddy," she said swiftly, "until you buy it from me. You know now that I never really wanted you to leave it."

She stretched out her hand. He held it tightly in his own for a moment, then turned it, palm upwards, to his lips. In the next moment he was gone.

When Sophronia came home that night, she was suffering from a chill, and on the following evening, Doctor Woodward told old Roderick that she was threatened with pneumonia.

Weeks of illness had bitten deeply into the physical being of Sophronia Willard, but had not dimmed the fire of her spirit. As Silver arranged the cushions in the long chair in which Phronie reclined beneath the great oak, she glanced at the girl's face and said sharply, "By the looks of you, my girl, you need this balm more than I do. I'll be the death of you, if I don't get on my own feet soon. It does beat all what a wreck the lung-fever can make of a big bulk of a woman like me. But I'll be up again in a week—no matter what old Doc Woodward says."

"Don't get impatient, now," Silver rebuked her gently. "There's no hurry. You've done enough work in your life to deserve a little rest." She patted a pillow into place behind Sophronia's head. "There, now—lie back. You can read the paper for about fifteen minutes, then you must take a nap. No cheating, now—just fifteen minutes! Doctor Woodward's orders."

Sophronia looked up at Silver with narrowed eyes. "I don't like the way you're lookin' lately," she declared with emphasis. "You're peaked—white, and your eyes are entirely too big and dark around. What's worrying you?"

"Nothing, except you—and I haven't been worrying much about you since you started getting better," Silver assured her, but the faint flush that lay suddenly upon her smooth cheeks was not lost on Sophronia.

"That fool of a Duke Melbank hasn't been botherin' you again, has he?"

Silver's brow puckered into a little frown of laughing denial. "Certainly not! And you stop looking for trouble. You're ever so much better this morning. This sun is doing wonders for you."

"Yes," Phronie sighed, "wonders for me—but what is it doin' to the crops? It hasn't really rained since I got sick, has it?"

"Now, there you go," Silver rebuked her. "If it isn't one thing, it's another. Roddy says there's no real danger yet, so get your mind—"

"I've seen it go like this before, my girl. I know what I'm talkin' about. How does Roddy's corn look?"

Silver hesitated. "Well—he's been watering that plot he polinated by hand. He's been tending it as though it were a new-born babe."

Sophronia shifted herself to a more comfortable position in her chair. "I wish one of you would take a run up and see how Paula is," she said un- easily. "We haven't had a word from them in a week."

Silver looked at her and put her hands on her hips. "Will you stop talkin' and worrying about things! I have to go and fix up the house. I'll look out on you in fifteen minutes—and if you're not asleep, I'll call Doctor Woodward."

"Oh, dear!" Sophronia sighed, settling herself finally.

Silver stood with a hamper containing a coffee pot and a dish of buttered rolls, and listened at the screen door of Roddy's house. She was hoping that Corinne might go along with her down to the field where the men were at work, as she had done before. But there was no sound from within. Corinne was probably not yet awake. It was only a little after seven, and she had been at a dance last night at the Richter cottage on the lake.

Slowly, and with confused emotions, Silver moved through the yard and eastward toward the corn plot in the valley below where Roddy, with his father and Steve, was at work. It was not the first time she had watched Roddy creating, by his delicate, deft guiding of nature, the evolution of a new species of life. There had been enough talk lately among the men for her to gather the nature of that process, to surmise the infinite care and patience required in achieving the desired result. But since the night of Duke Melbank's visit to the old stone house, she and Roddy had been at pains never to be alone together. But seeing Roddy at work in the intimate task of fertilizing his corn had been like looking into his very heart, like counting the beat of his life's blood.

This morning, Roddy was working alone at the upper end of the plot. Silver came quietly up to the old wooden fence that surrounded it, stepping carefully over the ripe strawberries. Sophronia craved, and stood watching him scarcely drawing a breath.

Carefully, intently, Roddy exposed the silk of the vivid green sheath beneath the transparent sack in which it had been enclosed, and poured upon it the pollen from the tassels, which had been painstakingly collected in a similar sack to prevent its scattering elsewhere on the wind.

The corn plot, in the motionless blue and gold atmosphere of early morning, was fixed in the clean dark of earth and the glistering, vertical green stain of the stalks, viable and proud. It was almost as though some great emerald stood between the small field and the sun, shedding a lovely, calm, and vertiginous dew upon the fresh curve of the young leaved upon the purplish gloom of the furrow. But it was actually a dew of earth, before hot winds ran his fingers through his thick hair in a gesture of mortified anguish. "G—d—what a spectacle I am—standing here, talking like this! I have no right—" He broke off suddenly. "Of course—you must go away."

"As soon as Phronie gets a little stronger, I'll tell her. And we—you and I must not talk like this again, Roddy. It's too hard on us. I—I can't stand it."

"I know," he said flatly. "It's terrible! But I want you to know that I never had any idea what love was like—until this happened."

"Nobody will ever mean anything to me again, Roddy—after you," she told him. "You—"

She could not go on. Tears seemed to be running backward, down into her throat, choking her words. With a smothered oath, Roddy flung his arm across the fence, strained her down, peremptory to him for a moment, then released her and turned abruptly away, swept up the hamper and strode down the edge of the fields as though he were half blind.

Silver moved back into the grass pasture, knelt down and began picking berries for her mother, gathering leaves and flowers indiscriminately with hands that shook.

CHAPTER XIII

Day followed day, and the sky over the parched and livid land became like a dome of colorless metal, all the blue beaten out of it by the intense heat. Fears that had smoldered separately throughout the district, stole out, linked, and became flaming panic. But the drought was only a fore-runner of a graver evil.

In Ephraim's feed and implement store, Roddy Willard talked with Sven Erickson and John Michener. He struggled to conceal the alarm he felt as he spoke.

"The county agent can't be expected to do it all by himself," he said sharply. "It takes just one day for a good army of grasshoppers to eat the chimney of your house!"

Sven shook his head solemnly. "I hear they are so thick in Manitoba they stop the trains on the trucks," he observed with a cluck of his tongue.

"I was talking with the agent yesterday," Roddy continued. "Poison bran has been distributed to all the farmers west of here, right to the state line. But some of them don't give a d—n, the shiftless buns! Their farms are going to be seized for taxes anyhow, so they can't be bothered about saving their crops."

"Joe Fisher came through from Brookings yesterday," Michener observed, "and he had to put chains on his tires. That sounds like a tall one, but Joe swears it's the God's truth! He stopped at a place where a fellow said the hoppers ate the harness off a horse's back—for the salt in the leather. You can take that or leave it."

Roddy thoughtfully rolled a cigarette. "Well, I wouldn't believe Joe even if I knew he was telling the truth. But it's bad enough, anyhow. I disiked and harrowed last fall, and made a thorough inspection of my land this spring for locust eggs. My land is clean. But even poison bait won't keep them from doing a lot of damage before they die—if they begin coming in clouds."

"Course," Sven observed, "you can't blame the buns. It cost me ten to twenty cents an acre to spread de bait—and dat don't pay for de work, eder."

John Michener and Roddy fell to talking then of the comparative danger of the differential and the lesser migratory grasshoppers, and Sven, to whom a locust was merely a locust and a pest, listened eagerly.

"Darn it, anyhow," Michener said at last, his expiatory rather humorous in his deep voice. "If it would only rain! It gathered up fine yesterday, and then sailed off again to the north. A couple more days like this and there won't be enough left for a grasshopper's lunch."

"Well—I s'pose dey starve to death, den," Sven observed.

The searing heat continued and in a few days the earth, from the top of the Willard hill, looked like one great mottled leaf curled up at the edges, the dry atmosphere giving the horizon a scalloped effect. Silver, who had gone in the afternoon to the brush-wood above the farmstead in quest of a breath of air, gazed down into the shallow valley below with a sinking heart.

The door of the stone house opened and Sophronia came out, walking slowly, unsteadily still, up the slope toward the barns. Yesterday she had ventured as far as the chicken-house for the first time. Silver had made an effort to tell her, only last night, that she had written to Benjamin Hubbard in Chicago and that he had secured a position for her. By her act at the moment when she might have spoken, Sophronia's head had dropped forward over her crocheting and the gray exhaustion of her face had filled Silver with an alarm that prevented her uttering a word of her plans.

The Charter Oak

The Charter Oak was a white oak tree in Hartford, Conn., computed to be about a thousand years old when it was blown down in a heavy wind-storm August 21, 1856. A rough shell of stump was left standing about 10 feet from the ground. On the following day people crowded to see it, and a guard was placed to preserve it from "relle hunters." Colt's Armory band played dirges and patriotic music over the fallen monarch for two hours at noon. At sundown all the bells in the city were tolled. A few years later Charter Oak avenue was laid over the site. The remaining roots were dug up and a simple slab was placed in the retaining walls by the avenue.

JACK IS NEEDED IN PRESENT DAY, SAYS AUTHORITY

A Jack of all trades has usually been considered a handy fellow to have around. But it is the fashion to consider that such a general facility implies a lack of particular expertise, or to express it in simpler Anglo-Saxon, "Jack of all trades; master of none."

Now speaks up a vocational expert to protest at this belittling of Jack. In these days of hazardous employment and drastic occupational changes resulting from the rapid advance of the machine, the lack of all trades is needed, says Prof. Harry D. Kitson of Teachers college, Columbia. Even if Jack is master of no trade, he is much more master of his own destiny than the one-occupation man. Therefore, says Doctor Kitson, today's vocational guidance effort should endeavor at all costs "to avoid giving young people the impression that they are created for one occupation."

This, unfortunately, seems to be one result of relying too heavily on the aptitude tests and other methods of gauging ability which have been devised in great detail by the vocational guidance experts. Such tests have value; but they also have limitations. Doctor Kitson, one judges, is an expert with a saving sense of reasonableness. He recognizes there is a danger of not being able to see the woods for the trees.

The Jack of all trades was supposed to be an outstanding human product of the pioneer days. He who alone, or with a small isolated group, was battling the old frontier, had to be a Jack of all trades. And sometimes he was master of several. It is surprising now to see the modern industrial setup, the antithesis of the frontier, demanding the same qualifications.

SALMON RIVER AREA WILL BE EXPLORED

Gorge Surpasses Grand Canyon of the Colorado.

Washington, D. C.—The Salmon river canyon in Idaho, one of the largest primitive areas in the United States, with a gorge surpassing the Grand canyon of the Colorado in depth and steepness, will be explored and photographed soon by the Salmon river expedition of the National Geographic society, according to an announcement made by Vice President John Oliver La Gorce.

The expedition personnel includes Philip J. Shennon and John C. Reed of the U. S. Geological survey; Maynard Owen Williams, staff representative of the National Geographic society; Robert Marshall, naturalist; D. Worth Clark, and two local boatmen.

Travel Upstream Impossible

"The Salmon river, which winds through rugged central Idaho, has been truly designated the River of No Returns," the announcement continues. "The falls and roaring rapids of the swift stream, and the sheer cliffs and ruggedness of the canyon, make travel upstream impossible. Downstream navigation can be accomplished only in stout, flat-bottomed boats reinforced to withstand numerous collisions with boulders in the rapids and low falls."

"The source of the river is in the rugged Sawtooth mountain range of southeastern Idaho. For many miles it flows north. About 20 miles below the town of Salmon it turns westward to enter the main gorge. The Salmon river expedition will begin its exploration at Salmon early in October, working down the river through the main gorge to the lower gorge. The latter begins at Whitford and extends about 50 miles to the junction of the Salmon and Snake rivers."

"The wildly beautiful main gorge of the Salmon river is one of the loveliest regions in the country. For 150 miles along a deep, twisting canyon the only settlement is an occasional cabin. The rushing torrent has cut through several thousand feet of lava flows and deep into older formations beneath. The canyon's great depth, 6,000 feet in places, permits scientific study of formations more than a mile below the original surface of the main body of granite rock."

"The walls of the canyon itself are brilliantly colored. On Big Creek, in the canyon area, are extensive but little known prehistoric Indian picture writings that have not been studied."

"In addition, the forests and flowers of the region are expected to provide excellent subjects for the color camera. In the Salmon and the Clearwater mountains, bear, mountain goat, mountain sheep, deer, elk, and moose roam far from the usual haunts of man. In addition to salmon, there are several varieties of fish, including the rare red fish trout."

"The Salmon river area has an interesting historical background beginning with the Lewis and Clark expedition to the Northwest in 1805. Stories of Indian warfare, picturesque early settlers and exciting gold rushes lend glamour to the region. Scenes of earlier gold rush days are again being re-enacted in this section of Idaho. The granite rock, known as Idaho batholith, through which the Salmon river cuts its way, is similar to that of the Coast Range region, source of most of the state's mineral wealth."

Farmer Wins by a Cob in Corn-Eating Contest

Orionville, Minn.—Over a pile of 57 well-chewed cobs, George Simonsen, a local, middle-aged Stone county farmer, claimed the corn-eating championship of the world.

Simonsen defeated all comers in the annual Orionville corn festival, which each year decides the champion corn eater of the land. Ed Kottwitz, of South Dakota, for years the champion corn eater of the Northwest, was runner-up.

For seven hours and ten minutes Simonsen gnawed away at the golden yellow banquet, eating ear after ear until all competitors were eliminated. Standing up, with an effort, Simonsen wiped the last vestige of butter from his lips, patted his stomach approvingly and acknowledged the congratulations of the throng of western Minnesota farmers. Simonsen won by one cob.

All Readers "Go Blind" on Every Line of Type

Minneapolis.—The eye "goes blind" at least three times while reading a line of type. Tests made with a camera developed by Dr. M. A. Tinker, of the University of Minnesota, showed that the average person's eye made about five little hops over each line and that the eye was blind for a fifth of a second between the hops. The best readers make three or four stops twelve times in covering a line of type.

PLANES AID IN WAR UPON LIQUOR SHIPS

Rum Runners Now Transfer Cargoes at Sea.

Washington.—Customs officials are mapping plans for a decisive campaign against the latest rise of rum runners who have shifted their bases to the high seas.

Stripped of their former bases by co-operative moves of the United States, France, Newfoundland, British Honduras and Guatemala, smugglers are now chartering vessels to transport liquor cargoes from Europe for delivery to smaller ships at sea.

This was disclosed in reports from customs officials to executives of the Treasury department.

A large fleet of planes is operating from seven scattered coastal points, spotting doubtful vessels 50 miles out at sea. These planes are in constant touch with revenue cutters and land stations.

Tightened restrictions on Atlantic islands which previously had based large numbers of rum running boats, have driven the smugglers to bold measures. Some in recent months have even run small liquor vessels into large American ports, on the chance they would slip by.

One by one, the choicest operating bases of the rum runners have vanished. Mariel, Cuba; Belize in British Honduras; Puerto Barrios in Guatemala; St. John's island in Newfoundland and the French colony, St. Pierre et Miquelon, each has been closed under agreements with their governments.

Within the next two months, it was indicated, the drive against the chartered ships is expected to be felt. Though the campaign may later be extended to Pacific ports, rum smuggling on that coast does not appear so heavy.

Cattle Men Are Aroused as Rustling Increases

Des Moines.—Iowa cattle men, faced with the loss of valuable stock from increasing night raids by modern cattle rustlers, are contemplating formation of bands of vigilantes to combat the thieves.

Rustling—on a larger scale than Iowa has experienced since the turn of the century—has broken out recently and appears to be on the increase. Records at the state bureau of investigation disclosed that 133 head of cattle have been purloined from Iowa farms during the first eight months of the year.

In the pioneer days of the state, the cattle rustler was a daring figure who operated on horseback in large bands.

The modern rustler uses a light fast truck and takes a minimum of chance. His booty, aided by processing taxes and scarcity of beef, daily grows more valuable.

Operating with a "finger man," the modern rustling crew spots herds which graze in pastures far away from the farm house.

In the night stillness the crew, usually composed of only two or three men, slip an opening in barbed wire fences and drive their truck through. Then they herd the cattle into their truck and speed away.

As yet no offender has been lynched and it is not believed such an extreme would be resorted to if a vigilante organization were formed. But if the menace continues, Glen Schmidt, chief of the investigation bureau, said, there is a "distinct possibility farmers will take the law into their own hands and mete out some kind of punishment."

Tribesmen Drive Naked Reds Into Troops' Lines

Chengtu, China.—The spectacle of 600 Communists, unarmed and stripped of all clothing, being driven toward the government lines by a shouting, laughing mob of Lolo tribesmen had the effect of almost prostrating the government forces.

These 600 Communists located themselves in the Lolo district, near Menningsun, and began the spreading of propaganda. One of the most popular slogans of the Chinese Reds is "Down with modesty!" This apparently so outraged the sense of propriety of the aborigines that they rounded up the Reds, stripped them and then headed the naked mob toward the government troops.

Court's Job Is to Find Definition for Rubbish

Bucyrus, Ohio.—When is rubbish rubbish is the controversial question before the courts here.

For ten years there has been a pile of bricks and stones half a block off the main street in downtown Bucyrus. It belongs to Attorney Alfred S. Leuthold. The city council ordered him to move it or show cause why. Leuthold promised he would, and then changed his mind.

When the city fathers learned, they ordered city trucks to remove the pile. Leuthold stepped that with a temporary injunction, and now the court must decide when rubbish is rubbish.

Mr. Eaton Browder and Mr. F. H. Riddle were hosts to a delightfully planned weiner roast Thursday night, entertaining the entire personnel of the Southern Bell Telephone Company and their families. About fifty-five were present and motored to the home of Mr. Browder on West State Line.

The home and lawn were beautifully decorated in Halloween style. Colorful jack-o-lanterns, singing kettles, black cats, and witches made a very attractive setting for the occasion. A weiner roast was enjoyed on the lawn, after which the remainder of the evening was spent in playing games and stunts.

CELEBRATES FOURTH BIRTHDAY

Little Miss Martha Marie Sisson was honored on her fourth birthday Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock when her mother entertained a number of her friends at their home on Maple-av. The home was attractively decorated with witches jack-o-lanterns, black cats, which cleverly carried out the Halloween motif.

The afternoon was spent in playing games and stunts. At a late hour delicious refreshments were served to the following little guests: Joan King, Joan McCullom, Peggy Valentine, Buddy and Bobby Capps, Billy Gregory, Dorothy Cox, Sue Crawford, Otha Webb Linton, Oger Wade, Joe Workman, Patsy Workman, Billy and Mary Jane Lanzer, Bobby Kimbro and James Sisson. The little honoree received many lovely gifts.

FIELDS-RUSSELL

Miss Evelyn Fields was united in marriage to Mr. Samuel Russell of Bowling Green, Sunday afternoon at two o'clock at the home of the bride on the Hickman highway with the Rev. E. M. Mathis reading the single ring ceremony. They were married in the presence of Miss Theresa Whitman of Bowling Green and one Gerard also of Bowling Green.

The bride was attractively dressed in a traveling suit of green and wore a shoulder corsage of white carnations. Miss Whitman was lovely in a creation of green, wearing a corsage of pink roses. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Fields of this city. She is a graduate of Fulton High School in the class of 1931, and later attended Western State Teachers College at Bowling Green, Ky. She graduated from that college in the class of 1934-35.

The groom is also a graduate of Western State Teachers College and is connected with a grocery in Bowling Green, where they will make their future home upon return from a trip to Florida and other points of the South. They have many friends here who wish them much happiness.

BUSINESS WOMAN'S CIRCLE

The Business Woman's Circle of the First Baptist church met Tuesday night at seven-thirty o'clock with Miss Myra Seearce at her home on Pearl-st. The meeting was opened with prayer by Mrs. A. T. Homphill. The president, Miss Annie Lee Cochran, presided over the meeting. Routine business was attended to. The roll was called and twenty-two regular members answered. Two new members were present. They are Mrs. Leon Hutchens and Miss Violet Barnes. At the close of the business session an interesting Missionary program was presented. This group is studying a mission book which was taught at this meeting by Mrs. Woodrow Fuller. At the close of the program a delightful social hour was enjoyed during which the hostess served a very attractive party plate, with decorations cleverly carrying out the Halloween motif.

MRS. UEL OLIVE HONORED AT BRIDGE PARTY

Mrs. Uel Olive, a recent bride, was complimented Monday night with a delightful bridge party given by Miss Jeanette Garrison of Humboldt and Mrs. Lowell Beauchamp at the home of Mrs. Beauchamp on East Church-st., Union City.

The rooms of the home were attractively decorated throughout with gift bouquets of dahlias and roses. The honoree was lovely in a model of green crepe with gray accessories. Nine tables of guests were present, who enjoyed games of progressive bridge throughout the evening. The honoree was presented a pair of gold trimmed vases. High score for the evening was held by Miss Miriam Chandler who received lingerie. Mrs. Ames Rippe held second high score and was presented a mirror, plaque and novelty ship. Mrs. Charles Sedberry Jr., cut consolation and was awarded a novelty gold necklace and Mrs. G. B. White Jr. was awarded low score prize, a linen breakfast set. At the end of the games a delicious salad course was served.

LUNCHEON CLUB MEETS

Mrs. Ernest Fall was hostess to her luncheon club Tuesday at her home on Vine-st. At one o'clock a lovely luncheon was served to the guests. Two tables of players were present which included club members and one visitor, Mrs. Earl Karmire. Several games of progressive contract were played at the end of which high score for the afternoon was held by Mrs. Abe Olley. She received a lovely handkerchief as prize. The next meeting of this club will be with Mrs. T. M. Franklin at her home on Third-st.
