Excellent Service Cause Comment

Fulton Postoffice Renders Perfect Service During Holiday Rush.

Service has always been a feature of the Fulton post office, but the service rendered during the Christmas holidays has caused more comment than ever before. The volume of business was enormous, but like a Seth Thomas clock, the entire postoffice force was wound up to keep time to the second and never did run down. The Fulton postoffice comes in touch with every home and every class of business in the city and surrounding country, and not one single complaint have we heard, but we have heard many nice things said. And the employees know it is not all "hot air," as they "delivered the goods."

We are not exaggerating when we say that Fulton has the most popular and efficient postmaster and assistants in the United States.

POSSIBILITIES WITHIN OUR GRASP

As we stand on the thresholds of 1927, it is an opportune time to consider the possibilities within our grasp if we but reach out after them. This vicinity offers exceptional opportunities for the stock raiser to produce milk, pork and beef at a low cost compared with less favored sections. The development of the poultry industry is particularly worthy of comment. More attention should be directed to fruit growing and diversified crops instead of tobacco. Our soil is especially adapted for growing most anything we want to plant, so why not produce crops money can be realized from?

We Greet THE NEW YEAR

Another year has swung slowly through its twelve months' span, has matured and declined while this old world worked and built and prospered. And as it moves grandly into the eternity from whence it came, we show no false regrets but welcome its successor, the infant 1927. Another year—and it will be a year of achievement. Another year—and science, culture, and commercial prosperity will have moved our old world a step farther toward ultimate perfection. May it be a year of success and happiness for all.

1927, we welcome you!
W. O. SHANKLE, Mayor.

BRILLIANT YOUNG WRITER GAINING NATIONAL REPUTATION

It is a delightful pleasure for the Fulton friends of Miss Lorraine Bruce to learn that she is gaining a national reputation as a newspaper woman. Miss Bruce first started her newspaper work in Fulton under her aunt, Miss Jett Browder. After leaving Fulton she held a responsible position on the Paducah Daily Sun. Now she is news representative and special writer for The Burbank Daily Tribune, Burbank, California. In speaking of Miss Bruce, the editor of the Burbank paper said: "It is quite becoming to acknowledge that congratulations are due this publication by reason of her association therewith, for she has quite established herself in the city by her personality and ability."

SPECIAL OFFER

For a short time we will accept subscriptions for this paper and the Memphis Weekly Commercial Appeal—both papers one year for only $1.25.

PRESIDENT JOHN J. PELLEY OF THE CENTRAL OF GEORGIA RAILWAY

In the Sunday edition of the Atlanta American, December 19, is a splendid likeness of John J. Pelley, former Fulton citizen, who succeeded L. A. Downs, president of the Central of Georgia Railway, when Mr. Downs was promoted president of the Illinois Central, the parent company of the Central of Georgia.

In the same edition is printed an intensely interesting article by Mr. Pelley in which he said, "I am doubtful if Georgians are fully awake to the wonderful progress that has been made during the last ten years and to unparalleled possibilities the future holds." He also says our railroads handled three times as much manufactured goods in 1925 as in 1915, and continues with a "boost" for development of Georgia products and his road's future program.

BOB FIGUE FEATURING SPORTS FOR MEMPHIS APPEAL

Bob Figue, former Fulton boy, who has won national fame for writing sports is now prominently connected with the Memphis Evening Appeal. For years Bob has featured sport news and is an artist on the job. In fact, he is a natural born writer and his write-ups are always read with pleasure.

SANTA CLAUS SHOWERS EDITOR WITH GIFTS

The editor of The Advertiser was the recipient of many beautiful, useful and enjoyable gifts during the holidays. Some coming from Texas, California, Tennessee and the folks at home. The territory old Santa Claus covered almost encircled the United States. Words fail to express our appreciation, but we heartily wish for each of our thoughtful and generous friends a cup running over of happiness and prosperity in 1927 and the years to follow.

NEEDY MADE HAPPY REGARDLESS OF WEATHER CONDITIONS

The heaviest sleet storm in 25 years visited Fulton and vicinity Christmas day doing heavy damage to telephone and telegraph wires. Weather conditions, however, did not stop the various committees assigned to charity work. The Lions, Elks and various churches delivered baskets to the homes of the needy and many were made happy during the early morning hours.

Brieflets

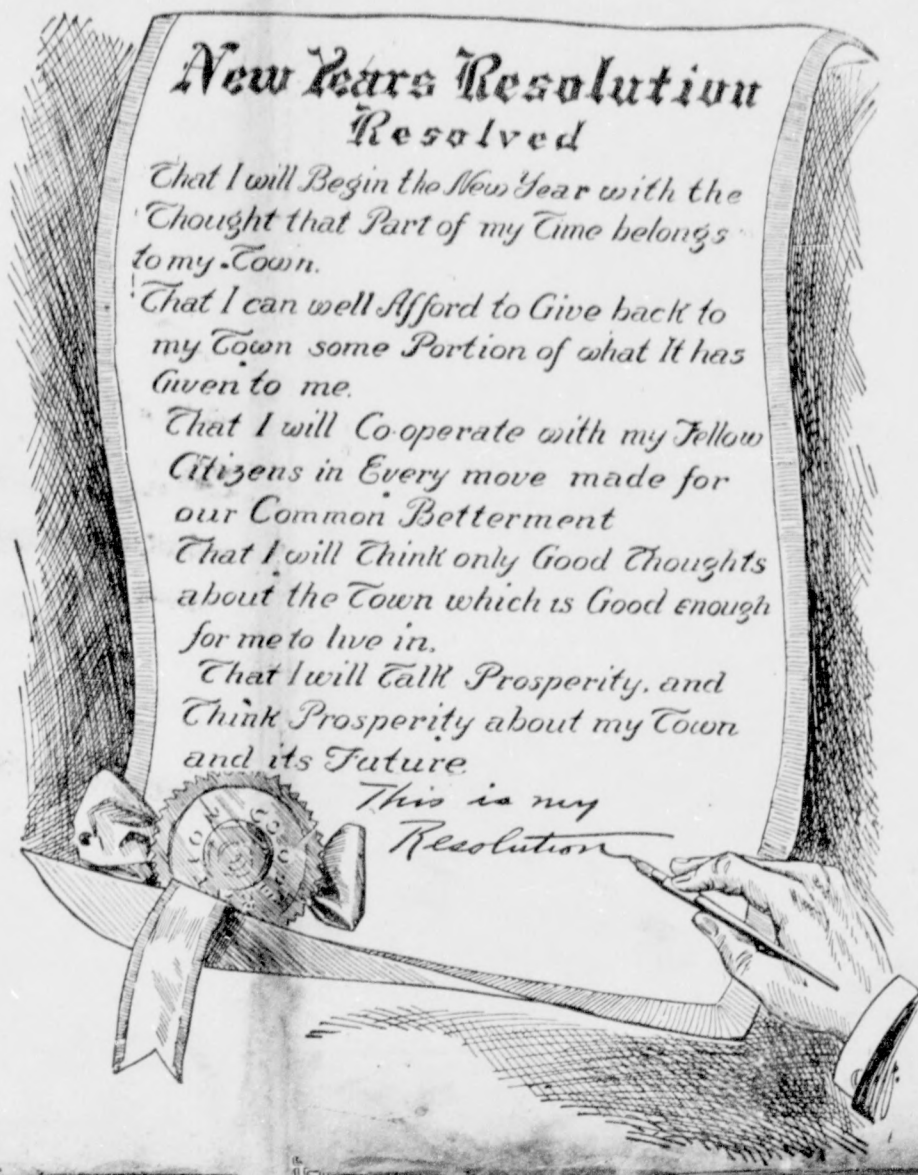

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Bugg, of Clinton, spent part of the holidays with Mr. and Mrs. Guy Gingles.

Mayor and Mrs. W. O. Shankle were hosts for a lovely four course Christmas dinner Saturday, December 25, honoring their daughter, Miss Odessa, who is at home from State University for the holidays.

Mrs. J. F. Travis is spending the holidays with Mr. and Mrs. Russell Travis in Amarilla, Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Whitley of Union City were guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Williams for the holidays.

Bethlehem was related to children as they sat in a circle around their parents. The patron saint of Yuletide and the bringer of joy to childish hearts, Santa Claus, was accorded honors by those whose stockings were filled.

Family reunions were the order of the day and many families had been absent for months gathered around the table at home for Christmas dinner.

There were very few empty places at the Christmas table in Fulton Saturday. A number of dinner parties were given and several other social events featured the celebration.

GOOD WORK

Congratulations are due the city "dads" on the splendid improvement of laying a new water main under the viaduct with a great saving to the taxpayers in the future. Much credit is also due Lee Roberts, Bob Cawardin and their assistants in doing the job so quickly.

The old main, which was laid when the plant was first built had sprung a leak near the railroad division office and was causing much annoyance to the railroad as well as to the city.

The leak has been repaired once before at considerable cost and to eliminate future trouble and cost at this point the water works committee and all the city officers thought best to lay a new main and change its course so it would run under the railroad viaduct. The work was started only a few days ago and water is now going through the new connection.

MRS. JAKE HUDDLESTON HOSTESS SATURDAY

A beautifully arranged affair of Saturday afternoon was the bridge party given by Mrs. Jake Huddleston at her home on Eddings street. Christmas decorations of poinsettias, mistletoe and holly were used in creating a lovely effect. Pottery bowls filled with flowers, brass candlesticks holding tall red tapers, adorned the mantles, tally cards and red nut cups, suggestive of the Yuletide season, added a note of completion to the setting.

Six tables were arranged for the game of bridge. Mrs. Ben Evans and Mrs. L. O. Bradford held high scores and were given beautiful bed light and Japanese telephone screen. Miss Beth Huddleston cut consolation, pretty lingerie.

A beautiful and delicious salad course was served, followed with an ice course of frozen Santa Claus, with fruit cake.

In doing the hospitality honors the hostess was assisted by little Miss Almedia Huddleston, and Mrs. Arch Huddleston.

ROOKER-PIERCE

The marriage of Miss Alice Rooker to R. E. Pierce was solemnized at the home of Mrs. A. J. Kirkland on Carr street, Thursday morning, with Rev. J. V. Freeman of the Methodist church performing the ceremony. Mrs. Pierce is a teacher in the city schools in Fulton while Mr. Pierce is prominently connected with the Illinois Central at this point. After a bridal tour through the south they will be at home in Fulton after January 1.

GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Cheek celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary Tuesday, Dec. 21st keeping open house from three till five o'clock in the afternoon, and from seven till nine o'clock in the evening.

Despite the inclement weather many friends called to extend felicitations and best wishes.

In the hall where Mesdames J. C. Culver, R. M. Redfern and Ed Thomas admitted the callers, red carnations, mistletoe, and holly were clustered in tall baskets and floor vases carried out effectively the red and green color scheme.

In the living room big shaggy chrysanthemums in shades of yellow were used in gorgeous clusters with vases of yellow roses dotted here and there.

Seated on a throne with a huge yellow wedding bell suspended over them Mr. and Mrs. Cheek received their guests while their charming daughters, Mesdames J. C. Brann and Norman Terry, received with them.

Mrs. Cheek wearing a smart model of lavender georgette with a handsome shawl of white, with a corsage of sunburst roses, and lilies of the valley.

Others in line were the Rev. and Mrs. J. V. Freeman, Mrs. C. H. Warren, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Fields.

The dining room was a scene of beauty, the color motif of yellow being emphasized in the festooning of the yellow hearts and the shaded lights of yellow. The tea table was beautiful with the huge tiered wedding cake. The first tier holding 50 yellow candles with cupid on either side, while the second tier was beautifully decorated in lilies of the valley and yellow chrysanthemums with a miniature bride and groom; this was flanked with silver sticks holding yellow tapers; quantities of yellow roses drank in the "glow" of lights and were richly effective.

Mesdames Olivia Weaks, and H. T. Smith dispensed tea from beautiful silver service at each end of the table. Yellow mints were served with the delicious salad course by Misses Katherine Ried, Ruth Wade, Norma Brann, Sara Butt, Cordelia Brann, Mary Niel Carr, each one charming in their girlish frocks.

The sitting room was radiantly beautiful for the occasion with the glossy-leaved holly mistletoe trailing from the chandeliers, and about the mantel, with deep red carnations in vases about the room. It was here the guests registered in a pretty book, hand painted in wedding bells and forget-me-nots, presided over by Mrs. J. W. Sheppard in the afternoon and Mrs. R. E. Goldsby in the evening.

With the fragrance of the flowers, music floated through the house from a Victrola presided over by Misses Martha Craig Rucker, Hattie Mai Godfrey, Katherine Terry, and adding a further touch of elegance was the lovely attire of the house party.

Others assisting and adding so much to the hospitality of the occasion were Mesdames Brooks Henderson, Curtis Ledford, Mozell Terry Smith, Vodie Hardin, Luke Clements and Mr. H. T. Smith.

CHRISTMAS DAY IN FULTON

An atmosphere of holiday stillness hovered over the city during Christmas day and the silence was broken only by the popping of children's fireworks.

It was in the homes, however that the celebration centered. Christmas trees elaborately decorated with tinsel and colored lights, and gifts carefully wrapped in holiday paper were the outward symbols of celebration.

The age-old story of the infant Christ in the manger of shut down for a brief period until Martin could render assistance. Therefore, the brief inconvenience experienced by lack of water and lights should be forgotten and all join in congratulations for the splendid work accomplished.

What to Put Down?

Thoughtful Ephraim

By Christopher G. Hazard

EPHRAIM DUSTIN was certainly a thoughtful man. The meals in his house were eaten in thoughtful silence, while he fed his brains, also, upon papers and books. He couldn't get through the pantry until he had read the newspapers that covered the shelves. When the spring cleaning freshet struck the home and he was given the task of dusting the library, he was found in the midst of a heap of books, sitting on the floor and finishing a perfect afternoon of meditative reflection. Ephraim also would gaze out of the window in the evening and get so lost in watching the automobile lights that dashed about the view like fireflies that he would forget his supper. On New Year's Eve the evening star seemed to rest upon a tree twig like a candle-light, and this involved verse for the village paper, beginning thus: Far, fair light, in the heavens so bright, and ending no matter where. In every family exigency, whether of sickness or financial complexion, Ephraim would give himself to thought. He had nearly thought himself to death. Mrs. Almira Dustin was different. She was not exactly thoughtful, but she was different. It became helpfully apparent to her poorer half that something had been taking place in her mind, also; and that she was determined to have a change New Year's whether happy or not; as she not only imparted a piece of her mind, but also set certain measures in motion. She provided enough conversation to make the mealtimes lively, turned all the pantry papers up side down, cleaned the library herself, invented enough errands to occupy her spare time, bustled meditations into attention, began to look after household and business matters with interference and advice, until the miserable man was fairly goaded into practicality. When they wished him a happy New Year he had expected to have it, but he failed to get it. It could not be denied, however, that at its end he felt that it had been the most useful and prosperous year of his experience. The neighbors had been observing and had accounted for things by saying that a shiftless dreamer and useless theorist had been cured by a sensible wife. After a year or two more Ephraim thought so himself.

THE NEW YEAR

By KATHERINE EDELMAN

ANOTHER year has passed into the great sea of time. Twelve short months ago it was mine to do with as I chose—to mold into the kind of a structure that I would make—but to day it is gone from me, and the thing that I have made of it shall remain for aye. I cannot even chide that I have stamped on the writing that I cannot win back even one moment of it for my own.

But though the old year is past and gone, though its mistakes and its weakness are no longer mine to rectify, there is today another year opening before me, a new and shining year that is all my own. Every page of it gleams snowy white, there is not a blot or stain anywhere, it is all mine to do with as I will. All through its hours there will be opportunity for me to do deeds of loving service, to speak words of cheer and kindness, to knit more closely the ties of love and friendship that are now mine. There will be opportunity, too, to forge a little bit ahead in life's race, to do my allotted tasks a little better than I did them last year, to keep my eyes and ears open for anything that would lead to my happiness and benefit.

I know that I will pass by many of these opportunities and aids for happiness if my heart is filled with ceaseless repinings for the mistakes of the past, with continued murmurings on what the present is giving me or with dread and fear of what the future might hold. These things would surely dull my vision so that I would be unable to see or hear many of the good things that might be awaiting me; they would close my heart so tightly that all the best of pleasures that love and friendship bring would be denied to me.

Therefore, I shall go into this year as if it were indeed a new life. I shall leave behind me all that keeps me fretful and complaining, all that keeps me dissatisfied and unhappy. I shall believe and know that this New Year holds many precious gifts for me and that I shall surely find them if I keep my heart and mind open for their reception.

Time to Think

By Florence Harris Wells

WELL, Sis, I suppose you put in a gay night last night with your bayberry candle. Bob Stevens dropped into a comfortable chair before the open fireplace on the morning of the first day of the year.

"A bayberry candle, you know, 'burned to the socket' on New Year's Eve, 'brings health to the body, joy to the heart, and gold to the pocket.' Isn't that what you quoted to me as I was leaving for the dance? Score one for my fine memory! But I expected to find you capering joyously about with your cold all gone and here you sit all choked up same as ever. If it's any comfort, everybody missed you at the party—asked me to tell you how sorry they were you couldn't come and—oh, you knew all the rest of the bunk. I didn't tell them you were seeking consolation in a bayberry candle."

"Well, if you've run down, Bob, I'll begin. That bayberry candle act wasn't so bad after all. You remember what grandmother said when she went upstairs just before you left?"

"Something about not taking the verse too literally. But one couldn't help but get something out of watching a candle burn to the socket. Yes, I remember now. At the time I wondered what she was getting at but promptly forgot it again."

"That's just it exactly, Bob. We rush from one thing to another so fast, we forget everything that's worth while. We don't take time to think. That's what I learned watching that candle for an hour and that's what grandmother meant. She didn't know, though, that a good deal of my thinking would be about her. She is gracious and gentle and sheds a sort of restfulness over us. Don't we like mother's dinner parties best when she uses candles? Don't we now?"

"We sure do," Bob acquiesced.
"There you are. We're sort of harsh and glaring like the electric lights and we'll always be that way if we don't stop ourselves from running from one thing to another. We need the electric lights, but the glare must be softened with shades and made more like the candles' light; just so we must tone down our lives somewhat. I don't want to be noisy and harsh when I'm old, neither do I want to snap out quick like an electric bulb. I'm going to take time to think."

Bob looked soberly into the fire:
"I'd say you got something out of that bayberry candle, Sis; guess I'd better try the thinking stunt a little this year, too."

NEW YEAR'S DAY
WHAT IT MEANS
BY FRANCES MARSHALL MORGAN

NEW YEAR'S resolutions continue to be the inspiration of the folk who write our "funny stuff," and the artists who do the newspaper comic strips, indeed, would be at a loss without them, as they serve as a target for some of their best and most humorous work. We simple folk who "follow the funnies" would feel we had been cheated if the New Year's antics of our favorites did not include a few hundred broken resolutions. But with all the fun that habitually is poked at them, if for no reason other than the existence of these resolutions New Year's is a worth while institution. It is a great thing the knowledge that whatever our mis takes in the past the New Year offers us a fresh beginning. Knowing this we hold our heads a little higher and life is vested with a new thrill. We straighten our shoulders, so to speak, and go forward with briskee step. There is new encouragement in our hearts and renewed faith in our capabilities. The fact that the custom persists is proof that it is, in some measure, efficacious.

Of all our special days New Year's is one of the oldest and one of the most universally celebrated. Through some forty centuries the celebration has persisted and as far back as 1491 R. C. the Jewish New Year was changed so that the Passover succeeded it.

Rome, undoubtedly, observed the New Year from the beginning of that place, but a definite form was given the observance when Numa instituted a feast and dedicated it to Janus, god of the New Year. This was about 753 before Christ. A cake of new meat mixed with incense, salt and wine was offered the pagan deity and on this day craftsmen started some special work and the philosophers began recording their theories. And on this day the census assumed office.

It is said that the custom of making New Year's gifts originated with Tattus Marcellus, king of the Sabines.

INSTRUCTION IN RED CROSS FIRST AID SAFETY FACTOR

Its Industrial and Educational Service Spreads Throughout the United States.

Signs that the United States is awake to the menace of its increasing accident toll are apparent in the growing interest in first aid instruction as offered by experts of the American Red Cross.

Approximately 20,000 juniors and seniors completed the First Aid course during the fiscal year, passed rigid examinations and received Red Cross First Aid certificates. This represents an increase of 2,500 over the preceding year, and this gain is attributed to the emphasis on health education by various public bodies including not alone the American Red Cross and Government agencies, but life and accident insurance companies, and athletic and recreational groups.

In Dallas, Texas, playground supervisors are required to hold First Aid certificates. In many high schools the subject is included in the regular curriculum. In order to assist in training instructors for this phase of the work, special courses have been conducted in the summer schools of such leading institutions as the University of Maryland and the University of Virginia. Instruction was continued during the year at Loyola University, New Orleans; University of California, San Francisco; University of Kentucky; Temple University, Philadelphia; Peabody Teachers' College and similar educational centers.

Work with the public utilities group has shown an exceptional increase during the year. Classes conducted by fourteen of the associated Bell Telephone companies were continued with increased interest and a number of the companies sponsored intensive courses in First Aid for instructors.

The First Aid Instruction Card of the Red Cross was busy throughout the year. In the 125 cities visited by the car 900 meetings were held with an aggregate attendance of 94,999 persons.

Membership of the people in the American Red Cross makes such services possible, the annual opportunity of pledging support through membership being offered in the Roll Call from November 11 to 25 this year.

Educators Give Junior Red Cross High Praise

Growing recognition by leading educators all over the world has been an achievement of the Junior Red Cross in the last fiscal year.

Included in those which have taken especially favorable cognizance of Junior Red Cross efforts are the World Federation of Education Associations at Edinburgh, Scotland, in 1925, the Department of Superintendence of the National Education Association, at Washington, 1926, and the National Education Association in Philadelphia, June, 1926. Various State educational bodies have confirmed this approval, the report adds.

As a phase of their work, the Juniors have developed contacts through exchange of correspondence, with similar Junior organizations in virtually every part of the world, and through the development of this medium many leaders see a better chance for world peace in future.

An especially notable development of Junior organization has occurred in Porto Rico, with an enrollment of 137,000, and the Philippines, with 912,000.

More than 5,000,000 American Juniors are at work in this organization of the American Red Cross. Their example is held out by the American Red Cross during the Tenth Annual Roll Call for membership, as one for all Americans to endorse by joining the parent organization during the period November 11 to 25 this year.

Senour's FLOOR PAINT

"It Penetrates"

IN the word "penetration," is a secret manufacturing process that has made Senour's Floor Paint a popular favorite for over 40 years.

If a floor paint does not penetrate or grip into the wood it will soon begin to crack, chip and peel.

Senour's Floor Paint dries overnight with a high gloss enamel-like finish, but at the same time it sinks into the pores of the wood and forms a film that will withstand the hardest usage and will withstand repeated washings without dimming the luster.

Every can of Senour's Floor Paint is guaranteed to give satisfaction if directions printed on the can are followed or money back upon receipt of empty can.

"Happy New Year to You!" the Cheery Salutation.

One year that king received a present of branches cut in a wood dedicated to Strenia, the goddess of strength. The king was pleased and set his seal of approval upon the idea and forthwith established the custom of making gifts at New Year's and called these gifts, "strenae."

The bestowal of remembrances upon our loved ones and friends on New Year's Day is still a custom observed by many people and a very charming custom, at that. The giving of a potted plant, a favorite book, a graceful basket of fruit or other simple remembrance is a pretty compliment and one sure to please the recipient of the gift.

The old-time custom of making New Year's calls is not now as widely observed as was formerly the case. In some localities however, the New Year's call is still considered an important social obligation. It is a fine custom and one that deserves to be kept alive. It keeps one in touch with one's acquaintances, the ties of friendship are closer drawn and those among us who for one cause or another are inclined to drop out of the old circle, are again drawn within its blessed bonds.

There are many folk who do not follow the custom of bestowing gifts at New Year's nor is a formal call upon friends a pleasure that is convenient for everybody—yet for all of us there remains the cheery salutation of friend to friend on January 1.

What a world of good will is tucked away in these simple, time-honored words! They are the equivalent of saying, "I wish for you health and prosperity and commend you to God's care for twelve long months to come, dear friend!"

Yes, New Year's is a splendid observance from whatever angle we view it, and without doubt this world is a finer, better place because of some of its customs.

War Over, But Red Cross Nurses Are Ever On Duty

Has the romantic picture of the Red Cross Nurse faded with the war days? It has been more than 12 years since that first contingent of brave women to go to the war zone sailed from America to make an undying record of service behind every battle front.

For an answer to their whereabouts today, it is only necessary to refer to any large disaster of recent years in which the Red Cross rendered relief. Wherever there was injury and suffering the Red Cross nurse will be found to have been on active duty.

These nurses are enrolled under the American Red Cross as a reserve of the Army, Navy and U. S. Public Health Service, at all times ready to serve in war or peace. This reserve of Red Cross nurses aggregates 13,503 women who have met the highest standard in the nursing profession.

The Roll Call for membership in the Red Cross this year is November 11 to 25, when the American people identify themselves with the broad services of the organization by joining its ranks.

Join the Red Cross November 11 to 25.

From very ancient times the first day of the year has been observed as a holy festival.

The 1927 Program

THE last day of the old year was always so solemn. It was such a solemn thing to tear off the very last page of every calendar and know that the calendars were no longer of any use.

There was such a solemnity about feeling that this year would never return again—that it would retire to the land of memories where all the old years retired.

But as soon as the New Year came, and there was a new calendar to look at, and you wrote the first date of a new year upon a letter, there was a feeling of newness and pleasure and freshness and youth about it all.

So it was that Daisy felt every year since she had been very young.

But Daisy, in spite of her youthful, out-of-door, summery kind of name, was no longer so very young.

She wished she had a different name. Somehow a person, she thought, should have a name that would not sound a little out of keeping as one grew older.

For years now she had been working. It had been almost a joke in the office when she had taken the chair. She was so much, much older than any of the other girls.

In fact there were too many gray hairs in her head now to suffer to pull them out. It would be too endless.

Yes, she knew they had laughed, even if not unkindly when they gave her that chair in the office. It had been occupied by four different girls within the past four years. Each of them had been married before the year was up. They had called it the "lucky chair."

Each girl wanted to work at that desk because it was such a lucky chair, but they offered it to Daisy.

After all that had been unselfish on their part. They had all more or less wanted it.

And then that New Year's Day, after she had been sitting in the office chair only for the past two months, there came news of a friend of hers who had gone away to sea when Daisy had been a young girl. Daisy had been full of romance about him in those days, but she had heard since that he had been married, and now she wanted to be married, too. The romance of her life had gone, she felt. But she wanted, along with the daily arrival of additional gray hairs, a house, rather than a room of her own.

But that New Year's Day she heard from him. He had never been married. He was coming back to her. He had traveled everywhere and he still thought of her. He supposed she didn't look quite as she had, but then, he explained, neither did he. Oh, that was comforting and understanding.

Daisy felt young, young and like the new, New Year.

That blessed, blessed "lucky chair!" How wonderful the girls had been to let her have it.

The Watch Night

By FRANK L. STANTON
in Atlanta Constitution

A HAPPY time 'twas round about
With peace and joy to win
We watched the Old Year go
The New Year comin' in.

A glad experience meetin'
A hallelujah throng,
Amazin' grace was in the place,
The shingles shook with song!

We saw the Old Year goin',
And gave it heart and hand,
And told the old, sweet story
Of home and Promised Land.

The troubles and the trials—
That tried us through the year,
Twas good to tell 'em over,
And shout the victory there!

To meet, and know each other
There with the lifted load,
To feel that friend and brother
Traveled the self-same road.

We told it in the singer,
And in the joyful word,
And as the song went ringin'
I know the angels heard.

Oh, there the New Year found us—
We heard his glad bells toll,
But the light that shone around us
Was the light of soul to soul!

There was Land of Promise;
We heard the New Year say:
"It isn't far to heaven,
To hearts that know the way!"

A New Year's Resolution

by H. Lucius Cook

I DIDN'T recognize the slapper young man whose pleasant voice offered me a holiday greeting. I thanked him, admitting ignorance of his identity. By way of answer he offered me a new ten-dollar note. "Your help at a critical time saved my life and has made it possible for this year to be a very happy one for me," he said. Then after some difficulty I remembered. For it was indeed difficult to believe that the well-groomed young man before me was the unkempt, dirty, sallow and not a little repulsive beggar who had told me the year before of his pitiable condition. It was something in the dark, honest eyes and a tone in the musical voice that had prompted me to listen in spite of my aversion for looting beggars. He had been ill—a friend had given him medicine which had brought the boon of sleep. He had not known that the sleep-giving tablets had contained morphia until it was too late. The drug habit had fastened its hold on him, until he had lost position, friends, self-respect. Then when he saw the full horror of the depths to which he had sunk he had determined to climb back. The wan, drawn face had told the agony of that struggle. He was then penniless and nearly starving, but firm. I gave him ten dollars which was more than I could easily spare at the time. I recalled that he promised to repay me at the first opportunity, but had almost forgotten the incident.

"Your timely loan," he said now, "tided me over from death to life, for a day or two later I landed the position I was hoping to get, and I am on my feet once more with every good prospect for the New Year, thanks to you, sir."

As he wished me a heartfelt happy New Year upon leaving me I could not help pondering over the significance of what sometimes seem the most simple acts.

Happy New Year

As we stand on the thresholds of the New Year, and as 1926 passes into history, we pause for a moment to think seriously of life, of what it means to us, of its joys and of its sorrows.

One of the great joys of life, as we see it, is its friendships. A true friend is an invaluable possession.

What is true of our personal lives is also true of our business lives. We like to feel that there is a spirit of friendship underlying each business transaction.

We like to think of our customers as our friends. We like to value our business friendships as we value our personal friendships.

Nineteen hundred and twenty-six has been good to us and you through your friendship, your loyalty, your confidence, have contributed no small part to its success.

As an expression, therefore, of our genuine appreciation of your friendship and all that it has meant to us, we wish you and those whom you love a New Year brimful of prosperity and happiness.

HAPPY NEW YEAR

We do well to wish one another a happy New Year, but happiness cannot be guaranteed, perhaps ought not to be expected. But it is within the power of any man, within his own sphere, to make it a noble New Year, which is much better. It is the old question of "redeeming evil." As men march out of the past, through the present and into the future, they ought to reach higher ground, and breathe a purer air. It is a truism to say that the future will be just what mankind makes it. But though this is a truism, many people act and live as though it were not true—and that is the trouble.

The future is only another name for opportunity, and opportunity carries with it responsibilities. It is not a time for trifling, but then neither is it a time for hopeless gloom, or surrender in the face of difficulties. So the needed message at this season seems to be one of hope.

Strength may be had—and hope, too—from the sacred memories which all lives have, and so it is impossible to think wisely of the future, or to face it as it should be faced, except as related to the past, and having a vital connection with it.

A happy New Year? Yes, surely but better yet a New Year consecrated to truth, and to the service of man, for that will bring, if not happiness, blessedness. The old and the new unite, the present and past merge in each other and in the present, and life is one and continuous. What sort of old year will the new year on which we are about to enter, be?

Why Bill Turned Over a New Leaf

Presented Heart to Wrong
Darling at New Year's Eve Party.

By MARION R. REAGAN

NOT since the day of his early youth had Bill Johnson experienced such a thrill at the thought of a party. The New Year's Eve costume ball at the Palace hotel was to offer, besides the usual gaiety, a surprise in the way of a novelty dance. At twelve o'clock the lights would go out, the gentlemen would be asked to find the one woman they loved, and present her with one of the small hearts which would be distributed earlier in the evening. Johnson had secured two of the hearts which were to be given out. And therein is involved the story which was occasioning Bill a great thrill.

He had become very fond of Miss Jenkins, the new teacher at the school.

Miss Jenkins was to be at the ball New Year's Eve, dressed in a shepherdess' costume. Bill had it all planned carefully in advance. When the lights went out he would be as near Miss Jenkins as possible, give her one of the hearts, showing that she was the woman he loved, then quickly before the lights again went on, get back to his wife, make some excuse about the difficulty in finding her in the dark, present her with the other heart, and so keep peace in the family.

Nothing could have worked out more perfectly, even despite the fact that Mrs. Johnson had chosen to wear a shepherdess' costume also.

At twelve Bill found himself in the most advantageous position possible, with Miss Jenkins on one side and his wife on the other. Only an instant and the lights would be turned out. A beating of the drums, a brief announcement, and then darkness. Quickly Bill grasped for the shepherdess look of Miss Jenkins, took her hand—"My darling," he whispered softly—when—(something had gone wrong with the signaling of the electrician)—the lights came on suddenly, to the embarrassment of many a couple, and particularly to our friend Bill, who was too confused even to look at the lady beside him.

The lady, however, was beaming with pleasure. "Why Bill, you old dear, I didn't think you were so affectionate," she said, and laid a tender hand on his arm. He turned quickly to greet his wife.

"Saved," he thought, and the consciousness of the predicament he had been so narrowly saved from, made him so grateful to the gods he slid an affectionate arm around his wife's waist. "You really don't know me so well, after all, dear," he said aloud, with more truth than Mrs. Johnson realized, and to himself he said: "From this out if I am to die I shall never do another indiscreet thing."

FLORIDA LEADS RELIEF RECORDS

Heads Major Disasters of 1926. Red Cross Active in 62 Emergencies in Year.

ALSO SERVES FOREIGN LANDS

Preparedness to Cope with Great Disturbances Gives Good Results in Action.

Facing one of the largest rehabilitation efforts of its whole history, as a result of the Florida hurricane, the American Red Cross already had behind it a record of service in 62 disasters at home, up to the close of the fiscal year, June 30, 1926.

When the hurricane struck Florida with such devastation and loss of life, the Red Cross National Headquarters was just congratulating itself that a year had passed without a major disaster within the borders of the country. The destruction in Florida has been tentatively estimated by Director of Disaster Relief Henry L. Baker, of the American Red Cross, in terms of relief work ahead of the organization. This takes into account all sufferers who must be cared for.

Careful surveys by experienced authorities place the injured at 4,000, exclusive of the stricken Gulf Coast cities of Moorehaven and Clewiston. Of the 1,200 injured sent to Miami hospitals, 500 were suffering with major fractures. In two other east coast communities the injured numbered nearly 1,000. The homeless were conservatively estimated at 50,000. Such figures sketch only vaguely the human and material problem which the American Red Cross is still doing its utmost to solve.

For comparison the other outstanding recent disaster, the Midwest tornado of March 18, 1925, can be described in more detail. In that catastrophe the final check showed 800 dead, 3,000 injured and 6,817 families of approximately 20,000 men, women and children rendered homeless. The final relief operations of the Red Cross were brought to a close March 18, 1925, exactly a year from the day the tornado struck five states.

So terrible did the death and destruction impress itself on the experienced Red Cross forces rushed into Florida that Chairman John Barton Payne did not hesitate to call for a relief fund from the whole country of $5,000,000. The Red Cross concentrated every resource in trained personnel on the stricken region.

The New Jersey munitions explosion, in July, while terrible as a spectacle, could not compare with either of these other two disasters in final destructiveness. It gave the Red Cross an opportunity for service in which Red Cross nurses treated 86 injured, and during the height of the emergency fed between 700 and 800 people driven from their homes. More than 400 cases were registered with the Red Cross after the explosions for assistance in regaining their hold on life through rehabilitation work. This latter is a regular part of the Red Cross relief operations in all disasters, and means a task continued long after the country has ceased to think of the occurrence itself.

The year has seen a new measure of disaster relief preparedness inaugurated by the Red Cross, under which a trained reserve of medical and other relief experts is constantly on call for any service. This preparedness justified itself in both the New Jersey explosion, and in the Florida hurricane. In the latter the Red Cross had at call more than 300 experienced disaster workers with a network of prepared Chapters all over the country. This preparedness, constantly demonstrated, is cited as material assurance that the country is better protected today than ever before from the suffering such misfortunes engender.

Bad as were domestic disasters in both the last fiscal year and recent months, some of those abroad in the same time have been comparable, especially a flood in Mexico. Altogether the American Red Cross served in the name of the American people in more than 15 foreign catastrophes.

The Tenth Annual Roll Call for membership to maintain such activities will be held from November 11 to 25, and is an opportunity for all to enroll themselves in the American Red Cross.

Their Anniversary on New Year's Eve

Company of Others Does Not Always Give Satisfaction Desired.

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

IT HAD been three years since they were married. Three years ago this New Year's Day, what a clear, vigorous New Year's Day it had been. The air crisp and cold, and the happiness of the season embodied in everything. They had started out with high resolves, resolved that they would always be just as happy as on this first day. It was to be a New Year for them, but every year would mark an anniversary just as significant of fresh, unspooled romance.

Not that they expected life to be all pleasure. But it would be deeply fraught with happiness because of the depth and the eternal youth of their love.

But had it been that way? Not quite. And somehow, with the approach of this anniversary each felt a slight falling.

They were as happy, happier than most couples. But that was not what they had meant to be. They had not meant to settle down to any routine of affectionate regard toward each other.

They had meant to settle down to complete, ideal happiness.

It was New Year's Eve, and he had planned to work late and then attend

He Had Planned to Work Late.

a dinner where a number of his business friends would be gathered. It was not an important dinner, but it was something he had been urged to do, and why not?

Why go home to a dinner that was unimportant instead of going to another which was a little different?

Yet it was the first time he would be doing such a thing. The year before they had had their New Year's Eve dinner together. It had been all right, but one couldn't keep up little things like that indefinitely.

Besides, he had been a little hurt. She had come home late. She had been out at an afternoon gathering of a number of her friends, and she had been late, and neither of them had been any too pleasant.

They had been discussing husbands that afternoon where she had been, and exchanging complaints. Even she had joined in, though not as much as some of the others. But it made her feel ashamed. And in feeling ashamed she had become irritable.

They had both felt sheepish, as in the morning they opened each other's gifts, with the tender, written messages which accompanied them.

"He went to the dinner," the conversation turned on business. A young man, the youngest of the group, seemed a little out of the setting.

"Why," he asked during a pause, "do you all work so hard?"

"For our wives and our children," came every answer.

And yet, the husband of three years thought, I am leaving mine alone on the eve of our anniversary to make that speech to others. This, he decided, was the time to recall his earlier resolves.

He left a little abruptly and went home. His wife was there. She had no dinner ready. She had been busy thinking.

"My dear," she cried, "you've come home so early. What is the matter? Don't you feel well?"

He gathered her in his arms.

"It's New Year's Eve," he said, "and the eve of our anniversary. I wanted to be with you. We've let some things get just a little out of reach—but we'll reach for them and we'll have them again. It will be really a New Year for us."

And she understood.

His words were answering the questions and the thoughts that had been in her heart.

For New Year
Standing at the portal
Of the opening year,
Words of comfort meet us,
Hushing every fear,
Spoken through the silence
By our Father's voice,
Tender, strong and faithful,
He will never fail us;
He will not forsake;
His eternal covenant
He will never break.
Resting on His promise,
What have we to fear?
God is all-sufficient
For the coming year.

The orchestra met at the home of W. H. Finch last Sunday. Quite an audience gathered to enjoy the music, after which a short business meeting was held. Malcom Johns was elected leader. He has been doing some good work in perfecting the organization, getting them together for practice, arranging programs, etc.

Mrs. Orr has invited the orchestra to help entertain her Sunday school class, the evening of New Year's eve.

The school board has been enlarging the music, expression and domestic science building. The partition being removed and another room added.

Miss McGehee, of Mississippi has been employed to teach music and expression beginning with the New Year. She comes well recommended and we bespeak for her, your hearty cooperation.

We greatly sympathize with Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Butts in the loss of their little son, born Sunday night. A short service was conducted at the home by W. H. Finch, interment at Mt. Moriah cemetery, Monday afternoon. Mrs. Brown, of St. Louis, Mrs. Butt's mother, is with the family at present.

Mr. Priestly Breden is very low. Dr. Little of Martin and Dr. Counce, attending physicians are assisting relatives and friends in the battle against the disease with which he has been long afflicted.

Schools closed last Friday with a flurry of Christmas trees, exodus of teachers for the holidays at home and happy youngsters on a week's vacation. Also a flurry of wind and rain from the north which made the family gathering about the fireside doubly pleasant this Christmas eve.

Mrs. T. D. Butts has been very low since the above was written. The doctor was called Sunday and it is hoped she will soon be better.

Mr. Andie Yates visited W. H. Finch and Calvin Orr a few days last week.

Mr. Dean Lee is seriously ill with pneumonia.

Miss Serrilla Phillips spent Sunday as the guest of Miss Mary Haynes.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Hicks of Beelerton, Mr. and Mrs. Cleatus Binford, of Crutchfield, Mr. and Mrs. John Howell and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Howell spent Christmas Day with Mr. and Mrs. John W. Howell.

Mrs. T. B. Watkins spent Christmas Day with Mr. and Mrs. Lon Clark and family.

Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Latta and family, Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Latta and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Pitman visited Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Latta, Sunday.

Among the holiday weddings of interest was that of Miss Sarah Howell and Mr. William Barkley on Christmas Day. The bride is the charming young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Howell and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barkley and a prominent young farmer of the Croley community. Best wishes are extended to them for their future happiness.

NEW YEAR RULES

By KATHERINE EDELMAN

BE OF Good Cheer. A merry heart is a thing to be desired more than riches—for out of it grows many of earth's greatest gifts and blessings.

Be Helpful. Lend a hand to the other fellow's need, help him to his feet again. It may take money, and it may take only a smile or a kind word. Whoever you are you possess one or all of these gifts.

Be at Peace. It is good for all of us to be at peace. If there is something in your life that keeps you from enjoying the blessedness of this great gift root it out if you can, even though it hurts pride and self to do it. If the something is beyond helping, then try like a man to make the best of it to put it behind you, as it were. You will be surprised to see that you can do this if you will, and that peace will come.

Be Courageous. Drive fear and all its kindred ills out of your heart. Look the world in the face, unflinching, unafraid; convince yourself that you are as good as the next man and that you can do the things he does. Do not carry an inferiority complex with you through the days. The world usually rates us with the measure we have put upon ourselves.

Be Content. Thank the Lord for the many gifts that are yours, and do not envy your neighbor. Perhaps if you but knew it he is thinking how much more you have, for wealth is not measured in things that money can buy. All of us have much for which to be grateful, and if the truth were really known things are evened out pretty well in this world. Remember, however, that being content does not mean that we must not strive to get ahead, for doing and achieving is one of the best means in the world to bring content to man.

Be Kind. The man who is kind in his home and abroad is a man among men. No one can gauge or fathom what kindness has done for the world. It has brightened more lives and uplifted more human beings than any other one thing. It makes homes happier, business relations more pleasant, and shows him who gives as well as him who receives. To be kind at heart is to be all things.

Lesson for January 2

THE CHRISTIAN A FOLLOWER OF JESUS

LESSON TEXT—Mark 1:16-20, 2:13-17; 1 John 2:6.

OLDEN TEXT—And said unto him "Follow me," and he arose and followed Him.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Learning from Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Enlightening with Jesus.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What It Means to Follow Jesus.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Receiving Jesus as Saviour and Lord.

I. Jesus Calls Four Men to Follow Him.

1. Who they were (vv. 16, 19).

Simon and Andrew, John and James, two pairs of brothers. It is usually wise to engage in the Lord's service in fellowship—in pairs. This is not only necessary for effective testimony, but for needed fellowship on the part of workers and protection of the witnesses.

2. From what they were called (vv. 16, 20).

They were called from positions of definite service. God always chooses His servants from the ranks of the employed.

3. To what they were called (v. 17).

"To become fishers of men." These men no doubt had been successful as fishers. The qualities which made them good fishermen, namely, patience, bravery to face the storm at night and perseverance, which led them to toil all night, though no fish were caught, would make them good fishers of men. Winning souls for Christ requires great patience, bravery and perseverance. Becoming fishers of men is the most important business in the world. It is the hardest work in the world to do.

4. The cost of obedience to Christ's call (vv. 18, 20).

Obedience to Christ's call meant sacrifice, painful separation, to give up all business interests and leave their father behind. Regardless of the cost they yielded prompt obedience. They put their trust in Him who called them, believing that He was able to supply all their needs.

5. Their reward (v. 17).

These four men have wielded wondrous influence in the world. Their names have become immortalized. Had they remained at their business they would only have been humble fishermen.

II. Matthew Becomes a Follower of Jesus (Mk. 2:13-17).

Matthew was a despised tax gatherer under the Roman government. For a Jew to fill such a position was to become unpopular. Since they regarded taxes paid to the Roman government as unlawful extortion, a member of their race engaging in the business of tax collection was to be exposed to shame and contempt.

1. Observe the abruptness of this call (v. 14).

While sitting at his place of business he heard the call of Jesus.

2. The definiteness of the call (v. 14).

It was to follow Jesus. To follow Jesus means to learn of Him and to engage in service for Him.

3. His instant decision (v. 14).

Matthew did not stop to reason on the question, but rendered definite and instant obedience. He openly gave up his business and identified himself with the Lord. Happy is the man who has the good judgment to instantly respond to the call of the Lord even though it may be costly. Matthew made a feast and invited many of his publican friends to meet his newly found Saviour. This had a twofold objective:

(1) An expression of grateful appreciation to the Lord for His saving grace.

(2) To bring his former friends and associates into touch with his newly found Saviour. It is natural for those who have found the Lord to desire to bring their friends into touch with Him.

III. Walking as Jesus Walked. The Supreme Test of Abiding in Him. (1 John 2:6).

Abiding in Christ means to have experienced the life of God in Christ, to have come into contact with Christ's personality and to be consciously living in fellowship with Him. Christ's oneness with the Father and His devotion to His will is the supreme and grand example. Anyone who pretends to abide in Christ, who is not walking as He walked, is not entitled to the claim of Christian. The walk of the Christian implies the whole of his life. The reality of our profession is determined by the consistency of our walk.

"Ye Must Be Born Again"

Wesley, who, it is said, preached three hundred times from the words, "Ye must be born again," was asked, "Wesley, why do you preach so often on 'Ye must be born again'?" Because," said Wesley, "ye must be born again!"—King's Business.

Forgiving

And be ye kind to one another, tender-hearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you.—Paul.

VETERANS STILL NEED RED CROSS

Aid to Disabled Men Increases as Problems and Legislation Bring Complications.

20,000 MEN DIE EACH YEAR

Many Entitled to Benefits Still Uninformed of Just Claims to Compensation.

Eight years after the World War ends service to disabled veterans still a major responsibility of the American Red Cross.

This situation is due to the increasing problems involved and the complex character of veteran legislation. There is also an increase in numbers of "death cases" handled, as compared with claims for living veterans, though the work for the latter remains heavy. About 20,000 ex-service men are dying each year, a considerable percentage of these having service-connected disabilities.

In a majority of cases, Red Cross Chapters find their assistance is needed in helping dependents present their claims for death compensation, insurance payments, bonus, burial allowances, and other government benefits due them. An episode of the past year illustrates the difficulties frequently encountered by the Red Cross experts in rendering such assistance. A veteran dying from service-connected disease, was trying from his bedside to establish at that late time his claim for Government aid to his family, and the necessary proofs were in a physician's records across the continent from him. To obtain the needed affidavits before it was too late, a cross-continent airplane flight was necessary, then a Red Cross Chapter in Pennsylvania hurried the investigation, sending the papers back to the veteran and his Red Cross helpers in Oregon, by air-mail it reached there in time.

Another discovery in Red Cross assistance to veterans and their families is that many dependents of these men unquestionably entitled to Government aid, have struggled along, ignorant of their rights.

Approximately 2,686 Red Cross Chapters carry on Home Service work, in assistance to veterans and their families. The Chapters also conduct campaigns among veterans for reinstatement and conversion of their other discharges. Among its other duties, the Red Cross assumed at the request of the Canadian Government the administration of a fund allotted to the care of Canadian disabled veterans living in the United States.

In the United States the Red Cross assisted an average of about 80,000 disabled veterans and their families every month in the past fiscal year. Indicating the size of this undertaking, National Headquarters of the Red Cross expended $1,611,178.18 on disabled veterans alone, and $509,451.72 on assistance to men on active duty with the Army, Navy and Marine Corps, while Red Cross local Chapters expended a total of $1,987,000. Red Cross assistance to service men overshadowed every other phase of its program, even its disaster relief, until the Florida hurricane.

Help for veterans covers many demands, from temporary aid until Government claims are adjusted or until the ex-soldier is properly hospitalized, to extending capital loans to rehabilitated veterans endeavoring to become self-supporting in business. Several such capital loans were to blind veterans.

Contact with veterans in hospitals is maintained by Red Cross personnel which doctors agree influences the veteran's welfare and improvement. The Veterans' Bureau was planned to carry on social work in its hospitals for mental cases, and in many cases the Government and the Red Cross are co-operating for the welfare of the men suffering war disabilities. The public is invited to assist this work by joining the Red Cross during the Annual Roll Call, November 11 to 25.

ALWAYS AT WORK TO RELIEVE DISTRESS

Since 1905 the American Red Cross has given relief to 354 disasters in the United States alone. A year seldom passes without a major calamity due to tornado, earthquake, fire or flood. The Red Cross in each case has remained on the job until relief was completed.

Last year the Midwest tornado which struck five states was the outstanding relief operation by the Red Cross. The Florida hurricane in September created a problem which exceeded in proportions any disaster since the San Francisco fire.

By joining the American Red Cross every American can do his part to make its services continuously effective. The Annual Roll Call from November 11 to 25, this year, is your opportunity.

More than 43,000 nurses are enrolled in the American Red Cross. They are ever ready for emergency duty. Every American can do his share for humanity by joining the American Red Cross during the Tenth Annual Roll Call, November 11 to 25.

Special attention is called to the Fourth Quarter business meeting of Union No. 5, of the

B. Y. P. U. Monday evening at 7:30 at the home of the chairman, Mrs. M. L. Rhoads on Holman Ave. All officers and members of this Union will please arrange to attend. Visitors will be welcome. This meeting and women sing for us of its record during the last quarter of 1926. It has met all the requirements for an A-1

Standard Union, making two quarters in succession this Union has reached this high standard of efficiency. We hope that is possible both morning and evening this coming year to report other Unions in this same class for the first quarter of 1927.

Sunday marks the beginning of a new year for all of our church and Sunday school officers. Practically all the old officers are remaining in office, while quite a few new ones are being added to take care of the newly created offices in the various departments.
