"Happy" Chandler, Democratic nominee, and bitter foe of the state sales tax, won out over a bipartisan organization headed by King Swope to carry the state of Kentucky for the governorship by a Democratic majority ranging around 50,000, according to the returns received here today. Early in the morning Chandler swung into the lead despite the backing given the Republican nominee by the present Democratic governor, Ruby Laffoon.

With Chandler, a proposal that Kentucky repeal its prohibition amendment also held the lead as did a proposal to establish state

ROOSEVELT LEADS NATION WITH 61,428 TO 54,397 IN 'NEXT PRESIDENT' POLL

By JOHN THOMAS WILSON

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—126,012 ballots from 45 states have now been tabulated in the nation-wide "Next President" Poll. President Roosevelt maintains his lead in the field with a popular vote of 61,428 to 54,397 for all Republican choices. On a percentage basis, the Roosevelt popular vote lead was reduced during the week from 56 per cent to 53 per cent.

The state by state tabulations show Roosevelt leading in 17 states, and the Republican choices in 18. Eight states are in the doubtful column. Ballots for Third Party choices show but slight increase for the week with little indication that the average voter is giving thought to the possibility of a new party in the field next year.

Likewise have the ballots for Democratic choices other than Roosevelt, dropped off during the last week. In the Republican choices, Borah continues to lead the field with 15,333. In the electoral votes the Republican choices are leading 233 to 193 for Roosevelt.

After the delightful banquet dancing was enjoyed.

maintained old-age pensions, in complete returns revealed. Adding to the complexity of the state campaign, the New Deal issue was emphatically raised by some Democratic spokesmen, who appealed for Chandler votes as ballots in returns received here today. Early in the morning Chandler swung into the lead despite the backing given the Republican nominee by the present Democratic governor, Ruby Laffoon.

The feud between Laffoon and Chandler began when the lieutenant governor turned against the state sales tax which Laffoon had fathered, and then defeated a Laffoon-backed candidate for the Democratic nomination.

CLEAN-UP FULTON

There's no doubt that a clean town attracts the attention of visitors. The Woman's Club has appreciated this fact, and is making a concerted effort to beautify Fulton. Their efforts are praiseworthy and are deserving of the fullest co-operation of every citizen.

But the point we are driving at in this moment is that full needs of a general clean-up program. Our back alleys, streets and vacant lots are littered with trash, loose paper, and other foreign matter, which should not be allowed to exist. Yes, it has been noticed by local citizens—but most of all visitors to Fulton have criticized this condition.

The women of Fulton would be the logical ones to get behind a clean-up program. Co-operation of the city council could be obtained. Then after it is cleaned up, it should be kept clean. Everybody should collect their trash, keep it in containers to be taken up by the garbage department. All paper and loose materials should be burned and not left to be blown about, scattering over streets and side walks. The sooner a clean-up drive is started the sooner Fulton will be more attractive.

GREATER FULTON

Brighter days are ahead for Fulton.

Many plans are underway which, when carried out, will bring about decided improvement to the city.

Other improvements have already been made, such as the building of the new Woman's Club, installation of a new telephone system now underway, many business improvements and remodeling of many of the homes in Fulton.

Looking ahead we can see what an improvement will be brought about when Lake Street has been widened twenty feet, with a parking zone in the center; paving of Mears Street back of Lake Street, and opening of Third Street across the creek to connect with Lake Street at Baldridge's corner. These three changes in our downtown business district will relieve the serious traffic congestion which causes so much trouble today.

When the much needed improvements are made, Fulton will have made the greatest step toward future progress that has been made in the past decade.

There is another project which should be launched in Fulton, which would make Lake Street more beautiful. The sidewalk, now broken and irregular, should be laid anew, with proper drainage so the water would not stand upon them.

Have you ever noticed the pools of water that stands on these walks after a rain? Certainly you have cursed as well as discussed these bad walks.

Veteran Actor Turns Railway Magnate

WILLIAM GILLETTE, the veteran actor, is here seen riding on the railway line he has built on his estate at Hadlyme, Conn. The locomotive was designed by him and uses gasoline for fuel. The tracks are three miles long. Mr. Gillette's hobby is to meet his guests at the "Grand Central station" of his railroad and run them into his estate.

LIGHTFOOT AND PADDY BECOME PARTNERS

THE instant Lightfoot the Deer saw Paddy the Beaver he knew that for the time being at least, there was no danger. He knew that Paddy is one of the shyest of all the little people of the Green Forest and that when he is found working in the daytime it means that he has been undisturbed for a long time. Otherwise he would work only at night.

Paddy saw Lightfoot almost as soon as he stepped out on the bank. He kept right on swimming with the branch of a poplar tree until he reached his food pile, which, you know, is in the water. There he forced the branch down until it was held by other branches already sunken in the pond. This done, he swam over to where Lightfoot was watching. "Hello, Lightfoot," he exclaimed. "You are looking handsomer than ever. How are you feeling these fine autumn days?"

"Anxious," replied Lightfoot. "I am feeling terribly anxious. Do you know what day this is?"

"No," replied Paddy. "I don't know what day it is and I don't particularly care. It is enough for me that it is one of the finest days we've had for a long time."

"I wish I could feel that way," said Lightfoot wistfully. "I wish I could feel that way, Paddy, but I can't. No, sir, I can't. You see, this is the first of the most dreadful days in all the year for me. The hunters started looking for me before Mr. Sun was really out of bed. At least one hunter did and I don't doubt there are others. I fooled that one, but from now to the end of the hunting season there will not be a single moment of day-light when I will feel absolutely safe."

Paddy crouched on the bank and chewed a little twig of poplar thoughtfully. Paddy says he can always think better if he is chewing something. "That's bad news, Lightfoot. I'm sorry to hear it," said Paddy. "Why anybody wants to hunt such a handsome fellow as you are I cannot understand. My, but that's a beautiful head of horns you have!"

"They are the best I've ever had, but do you know, Paddy, I suspect that they may be one of the reasons I am hunted so," replied Lightfoot, a little sadly. "Good looks are not always to be desired. Have you seen any hunters around here lately?"

Paddy shook his head. "Not a single hunter," he replied. "I tell you what it is, Lightfoot, let's be partners for a while. You stay right around my pond. If I see or hear or smell anything suspicious I'll warn you. You do the same for me. Two sets of eyes, ears and noses are better than one. What do you say, Lightfoot?"

"I'll do it," replied Lightfoot. "I'll do it," replied Lightfoot.

Answer: Of course you have a perfect right to put your head out of the train window. The only reason the conductors say anything to you about it is that they want you to realize that in case the train passes over a bridge and your head is sticking out and your head damages any of the iron-work on the bridge you'll have to pay for it.

ANSWER: A crazy bone is a dollar spent foolishly.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am an artist. I entered a contest but my painting did not get a prize. The men who judged the paintings were not artists. Do you think it possible for men to tell a good or bad painting when they can't paint one themselves.

Answer: Sure, they can. I can tell a bad egg and I never laid one.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

Every time I take a railroad trip I have an argument with the train conductor about sticking my head out of

It's a Season of Glamor and Glitter

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

STYLE prophets predict a season of dazzling effects and sumptuous dress. According to the signs of the times women will sparkle from morning to night this fall and winter.

Their silk velvets will be embroidered with strass. Their wool-like silks will be elaborated with gilt braid. Sleeve ends and collars worked in a solid mass of huge sequins will challenge the supremacy of fur on evening coats. Silk chiffons will be headed and silk crepes pailletted for formal wear either in all-over patterning or confining their glitter to belts and angel sleeves or scarfs. Gorgeous silk lame lapels will adorn evening tailcoats with which matching lame turbans and blouses, bags and belts will be worn.

Jeweled ornaments will hold the drapes of harem skirts and clasp shirred and bloused bodices. Seed pearls will make chokers (new high collar fashion) and form passementerie embroidery—thus the story of glitter and glamor might run on ad infinitum. Fabrics weighted down with beading, embroideries, sequins and jeweled ornamentation must hold and not pull out of shape. Women want their crinkles to remain crinkled. They want to be assured that their taffetas will stay crisp, their chiffons and crepes not to grow sleazy and sloppy and so they are coming to realize more and more that care and discrimination must be exercised in choosing quality-kind fabrics. Which explains the reason why the demand for silks that are pure silk (the inherent elasticity of silk is important) is more insistent this season than it has been in many a previous year. So much for the practical side of the question and now let us turn to the models pictured with a view to studying each individually since they are so charmingly illustrative of the current trend to glitter, glamor and to dazzling effects in the silk parade of fall and winter fashions.

The beautiful model to the left is fashioned of rich silk lame in a delectable tone of blue, shot with silver. The square décolletage is set off by jeweled clips the like of which also form the buckle for the belt. The short sleeves are interestingly cut on kimono lines, giving fullness to sleeves and shoulders.

Eastern influence in evening fashions is most pronounced. Note the sari shawl of gold sequins which envelops head and shoulders, adding brilliance to the stately black gown pictured to the right, which is made of a hand-some silk velvety sheer. A tunie effect is simulated via an adroitly positioned ruffle on the skirt whose princess lines are slenderizing in a subtly sophisticated way. This ruffle ties at the back in a clever pose. The smartest dressed women record black with the glittering note as first in fashion this season.

Greatest enthusiasm is shown for the cocktail dress or suit that adopts street length, it being a new entrant in the formal realm. The girl seated is wearing such a suit, its formality attested in the silk metal cloy tunic jacket with the now-so-fashionable frog fastening at the waistline. The afternoon dress is of a grainy silk crepe in the same aqua blue shade as the metal cloy which fashions the jacket. A jeweled clip accents the draped neck. The peaked beret with its ornamental veil is high-style in its every detail.

TAILORED JERSEY

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Wool jersey comes into its own, in that leading style creators are using it for their practical daytime dresses. The vogue for gray is increasingly apparent. There is a new beige-gray tone which is especially good style. Color accents on gray is fashion's latest message. The gray-beige jersey two-piece frock here shown is contrasted with a gay green and multicolor scarf with belt in matching green tone. The one-piece tailleur buttons down the front. It is fashioned of fine jersey in natural beige tone with trim accents in deep wine.

Matching Gloves

Handbags and gloves that match exactly as far as color is concerned are a smart accessory note. Wine and pine green are two popular colors.

HIGH HAT THE WORD IN FALL MILLINERY

It's a high-hat season. One of the newest high hats in the fall parade is the domino crown turban, which has a rolled edge and a little square topknot that sticks straight up in the air exactly like an enlarged domino.

It's shown in velours and suede, with a small flyaway bow in front, and is a pretty trick with some of the new fur coats.

Another topknot idea is developed in a bonnet cap of black felt, with a big frout-frout bunch of black satin ribbon rising impudently from the top-front of the crown. Small scalloped loops of black satin edge the bonnet. The Tyrolean urge is still with us. In casual brimmed sports hats of velours or felt, with high, peaked crowns and perky quills.

Wool Dress Can Be Worn for Almost Any Occasion

Jean Paton has created one of those all-time dresses which can be worn for almost any occasion.

This dress is in brown wool with the back of the bodice and the sleeves of the taffeta in brown, green and red plaid. The accompanying jacket of brown wool has wide revers of brown caracul and turn-back cuffs of the same fur. The costume is completed by the Paton thinking hat in brown felt. The narrow brim turns way up in back and far down in front and a bright red quill is its only trimming.

Goldfish Used as Buttons

Tiny metal goldfish, with black-tipped fins and tails in approved goldfish style are used to button a knee-length tunic of a tea gown.

Narrow Braid Used

Narrow embroidered braid is set together with gold metal threads to form a colorful and unusual collar and cuff set worn on a black crepe frock.

Composition Feathers

Feathers of composition, in very vivid shades for velvet hats, are among novelties seen in the shops.

Russians Use Coal for Heat Without Ignition

Russian farmers have discovered a way to speed up the ripening of their cotton crops by a month or more. They use coal to warm the cotton plants without burning the coal. This somewhat paradox is being performed at Kazakstan. Obtaining heat from coal without burning is the application of a simple fact of physics that dark colors absorb the heat in the sun's rays better than light colors.

The Kazakstan farmers simply spread coal dust lightly over their fields; about 100 pounds to an acre. The darkened surface of the land is a better absorber of heat during the day and reradiates more of it as warmth during the night. The higher average temperature of the land during the growing season, therefore, shortens the time necessary for the crop to mature by over a month.

Corn-Hog Program Is Indorsed by Farmers

NEW DEALERS have scored a major victory, and are correspondingly elated. By a majority of something like 6 to 1, the corn-hog producers have voted for a continuance of the crop adjustment through another year. Incomplete returns from the referendum showed that the program was favored by a majority in every one of the 33 states from which votes were received.

It is only natural that we should be pleased with the apparent approval of adjustment given by corn and hog farmers," said Chester C. Davis, AAA administrator, as he watched the returns come in at Washington. "If the final results bear out present indications another voluntary contract will be offered for both corn and hogs."

In a formal statement Davis emphasized earlier assurances that the AAA would seek a 25 to 30 per cent increase in hog production next year, saying the need for increasing the present pork supply of the nation... will be kept in mind in plans for the next adjustment contract.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace gave out a statement commending the farmers for their decision. "The referendum means," said Mr. Wallace, "that corn-hog farmers of the country will be doing their best to increase hog production next year in such a way as will bring about excessive overproduction in subsequent years. They realize their triple duty: To the consumer, to the cause of soil conservation, and to the maintenance of a fair income for themselves."

Before the results of the voting were known President Roosevelt announced tentative plans for making the AAA over from an emergency to a permanent agency. Observers in Washington concluded that Mr. Roosevelt intends to make the AAA a major campaign issue next year and to rely for re-election largely on the voters in those western states that have received the largest cash payments in the carrying out of the crop adjustment program—taking it for granted that he will carry the solid South.

Uncle Sam Is Cautious Concerning Sanctions

WHILE the League of Nations was going forward with its plans for the imposition of sanctions against Italy, its officials asked the United States government to comment on this policy, for the attitude of this country is considered vital to the success of the program. Secretary of State Hull replied promptly but with extreme caution, avoiding comment on the action taken by the league powers and inferentially declining to cooperate in the sanctions.

The answer, whose tenor was dictated by President Roosevelt, was sent to Minister Hugh Wilson at Rome. It only set forth the moves made by the United States under the neutrality act and restated our government's hope for world peace. In press conferences Mr. Hull stressed the fact that this country will continue to move independently to keep free and untangled as President Roosevelt has promised.

League of Nations officials on reading the reply said it was "encouraging" and all that could be expected. They looked upon it as an important moral support of league efforts to end the warfare in Africa.

Prospects for Early Peace Are Faint

BRITISH diplomats were of the opinion that the chances for an early peace in east Africa were mighty small unless Italy could be stopped by the effective imposition of penalties. The Italians seemed to have dropped diplomatic negotiations with the other European powers and started another big drive from the northern front toward Makale and Addis Ababa. The first day's advance carried their central columns nine miles forward and was said to pave the way for a general movement ahead. So far as the uncertain news from the front shows, the Ethiopians were offering little resistance. To date there has been no battles of major importance, and until the Italians have chances to annihilate the Ethiopians in large numbers the latter have a good chance.

General Graziani's southern army, in three columns, was steadily advancing on Harrar, despite rains and boggy ground and the guerrilla warfare waged by the natives. The capture of the important town of Goralah was imminent.

In Rome Mussolini told a gathering of Fascists that Italy would respond with "heroism" to the sanctions which he termed "the most odious of injuries."

Hoare Tells British Stand on War

SIR SAMUEL HOARE, British foreign secretary, assured parliament and the world that Great Britain has no intention of fighting Italy and would not alone apply military sanctions against that nation. He held out strong hopes that the war in Africa could be settled without resort by the league to extreme measures. His speech was plainly an invitation to Italy to talk peace terms.

Denying that the government's policy is hostile to Fascism, Sir Samuel said: "We have not the least intention of interfering in the domestic affairs of other people."

"The unbroken solidarity of the empire is behind the government's policy," he said, "let those prophets of misfortune who have marked the empire down for decay and dissolution observe this fact of overwhelming importance."

Hoare hinted at British isolation from continental affairs if the league collapses. Next day Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin warmly endorsed all that had been done at Geneva. He deprecated even the use of the word war, but called for a rearming of the empire, saying: "In the interests of world peace it is essential our defensive services should be stronger than they are today."

Baldwin announced the adjournment of parliament on October 25 and the election of a new parliament on November 14. The campaign already is under way and is lively, with the international situation furnishing the main issues. The labor party accuses the government of delaying action in the Italy-Ethiopian imbroglio until too late to prove really effective, and imputes its motive in seeking rearmament.

Navy Day Is Celebrated by the Nation

NAVY DAY, which appropriately is the birthday of the late President Theodore Roosevelt, was celebrated throughout the United States. President Franklin D. Roosevelt gave it a good start with a letter to Secretary Swanson in which he declared himself in favor of building the navy up to the country's needs. He said:

"In the unsettled conditions existing throughout the world it is imperative that we should heed the needs of our navy. The passage of the Vinson-Trammell bill, which authorizes the rebuilding of the navy to the limits of existing treaties, our national legislature gave very definite expression of its purpose to increase the strength of the American navy to a degree commensurate with America's needs, interests and responsibilities."

Six thousand Boy Scouts, headed by Daniel Beard, the aged national scout commissioner, made the customary pilgrimage to the tomb of Theodore Roosevelt at Oyster Bay.

Prince Von Starbemberg May Be Made King

FASCISTS of Austria and leaders of the Heimwehr, all adherents of Prince Ernst von Starbemberg, now vice chancellor of the country, are contemplating the possibility of making the prince regent and later proclaiming him king. Actually the movement toward this end has been started. Von Starbemberg's attitude toward this movement was not revealed, but he indicated in a carefully worded address that he proposed to develop his Fascist ideas with greater vigor.

Friends of the prince hold that a Starbemberg dynasty in Austria would be greatly preferable to restoration of the Hapsburgs. They say the pretender to the throne, Archduke Otto, wants to establish a democratic kingdom, and this would not fit in with the ideas of the Fascists. Besides, the return of the Hapsburg dynasty would be bitterly opposed by the little emperors and probably by some of the great powers.

Hundreds of Haitians Perish in Hurricane

RELAYED reports told of the terrible hurricane that swept across the southern peninsula of Haiti and that was followed by devastating floods. There was no way of estimating the number of fatalities, but they were believed to be as many as two thousand. Entire populations of some valley villages were wiped out. Jeremie, near the western tip of the peninsula, suffered the most. Several hundred were hard hit and about one hundred bodies were recovered there. The hydro-electric plant at this place was destroyed.

WASHINGTON DIGEST

National Topics Interpreted
BY WILLIAM BRUCKART

NATIONAL PRESS BLDG.

WASHINGTON, D.C.

The African War

In his own mind about the hostilities between Italy and Ethiopia, the fighting is so far away, he said, and the nations involved are of such comparative insignificance in the whole world structure that he found no reason at all to do more than read the black-faced headlines about the trouble as they appeared from day to day in the great metropolitan newspapers.

We were, at the time, wending a rather slow way around the golf links of the Congressional Country club. The course is set in the midst of the farming country and my friend used the situation as a basis for his argument that there was little reason for any of us to take the Italian-Ethiopian trouble seriously.

"How can it make very much difference to us," he asked with a wave of his hand toward the fine farms and splendid homes within sight, "when we have a nation so admirably supplied with resources of which those are typical? We can live even if the trouble broadens. If necessary we can close our shores to foreigners and keep out of the trouble."

Unwittingly, my friend supplied a text. In fact, he supplied two of them.

The man in question is able, has a good brain and is doing his job satisfactorily, but it is his first connection with the government in an official capacity. He has not had training here before that fits him or equips him to deal with broad international questions. In time his views will change. Of that I have no doubt, but the fact remains that his attitude on the Italian-Ethiopian situation marks him as one of countless hundreds of government officials, past and present, who are brought in and given responsible posts without regard to their understanding of all of the problems which they must meet.

The other text which my friend's conversation suggested is "what interest do we have in the African war?"

Most individuals will agree that at the moment we are in no danger and that immediately there is no prospect of any kind of trouble insofar as the United States is concerned but it is not the immediate prospect that we must consider. It is not the immediate prospect that caused Secretary Hull of the State department to declare and to reiterate the objective of present American policy is to keep this country out of war. That was the reason congress enacted the so-called neutrality resolution and that was the reason President Roosevelt placed an embargo against the shipment of arms and munitions of war to the present belligerents. Again, it is not the present, but where we go from here that concerns us.

Undoubtedly congress did a popular thing when it adopted the resolution designed to prevent development of circumstances which may place us on the verge of the catastrophe. I say the action was popular because there has been no indication from any important quarter, except from traders whose business has been handicapped, against the official policy enacted in that resolution.

But the end is not yet. In the first instance, all of Europe is virtually a powder keg. Potential dynamite lies in the differences between Russians and Japanese. Their frontier can be the scene of the latest overt act at any moment. And while the hope is for settlement of all differences between the Japanese and the Russians in a peaceful manner, there is no assurance that these can be so settled.

Since the Italian dictator, Mussolini, brazenly announced that he wanted more territory for his people and proposed to get it at the expense of the black men in Ethiopia, tension between Great Britain and Italy has increased from day to day. Backing and filling between the British and the French have been the regular order because the British and the French have comparable interests in Africa. Further, a strengthened Italy means a menace of a continuing character to her neighbor, France.

The British have scores of battle ships in the Mediterranean sea. Those ships are at anchor from which they can be called into quick use. The British say the fleet is maintained there merely as a "precaution." Mussolini knows better. He knows and every one else will discover after a superficial examination of the situation that the British will brook no moves by Italy that threaten British control of the Argio-Egyptian Sudan nor will the British permit Mussolini to gain control of such Ethiopian territory as will jeopardize their super-vision over territory through which the waters of the blue Nile flow. These waters are essential to the British.

So it takes no stretch of the imagination to conclude that even a minor incident, accidental damage to a British boat or an injury to a British citizen—of such things and from such things comes war—will cause trouble. If by any chance one of those "incidents" comes, the British and the Italians will be at each other's throats. Next, should that break develop, every nation in Europe is compelled for one reason or another to align itself with one side or the other. Hitler, for example, would want nothing better than an opportunity to stir up some trouble among the other nations in order that he could spread his power over Austria and Hungary and maybe over some of the Balkan states. He wants more territory and if a free-for-all should get started Herr Hitler will lose no time in subjugating some of the neighboring countries.

Even if these conditions obtain, my friend's statement that the war is a long way off still is correct. It would be three or four thousand miles from American shores but the point of difference is that we are a commercial nation and the European powder keg explodes our commerce would be affected. Indeed, it would be virtually destroyed.

But, it will be asked, why not live within our own shell? The answer is, we cannot do so. Our ships, carrying the products of our farms and factories, would be plying the seas. Nations at war do not take the time always to learn the character of cargo aboard a ship at sea nor do they inquire its destination or the purpose for which it is to be used. Then, we hear of the overt act. An American ship with an American crew and an American cargo is sunk. Or, American-owned and manned business enterprises suffer from one of the various things that takes place during the war. It may be the act of some hot-headed foreign national or it may be a deliberate move by a government, but the result is the same. An American citizen is killed, an American flag is insulted. We are in it.

It seems to me, therefore, that we have every reason to watch closely those developments abroad. Our own people are not blameless for some of the conditions that develop. For instance, the following day after Mr. Roosevelt issued his proclamation prohibiting exports of arms and munitions, and by inference, prohibiting dealings of any kind with Italy and Ethiopia, New York exporters rose with a mighty howl and the Port Development Authority in New York protested. One group saw all opportunities for profitable business stricken out by the prohibition against exports and the other, with proper civic pride complained that the executive action would wreck New York city as a martime center. Their complaints were natural, quite human, but their refusal to accept the national policy simply represents one of the many things constituting an early step that may subsequently be one of the foundation stones of war.

I do not mean to say in these columns that we should become a peace-advancing union. On the contrary, I think that is a cowardly position for any nation to take. What I do emphasize, however, is that we are to have at international policy, we should adhere to it.

Now, let us consider the governmental problem. I said earlier that congress undoubtedly had acted in accordance with the views of a majority of our people. President Roosevelt has chosen to accept the neutrality resolution as a mandate from congress which gives him almost no discretion. His arms embargo his shipping prohibition and his warning to American citizens that if they travel on boats belonging to the belligerent powers they do so at their own risks was the narrowest construction possible to have been placed on the neutrality edict of congress.

Congress is not in session and will not be back here again until January. The President's hands are tied unless he decides to call congress into extra session and that, of course, will not be done unless sudden flames of war sweep over the whole world. Therefore, Mr. Roosevelt clings to the policy which he has adopted in narrowly constraining the neutrality resolution until the congressional session opens in January. Congress can do no more than commend him for following its dictates. But if any of the conditions enumerated above should place the American neutrality position where a test must be had, congress must accept the blame. So, as long as Mr. Roosevelt follows his present course and throws himself completely on the law, the President can make short answer to those who would enlist this country in international action. That position, of course, has its weaknesses because something may develop overnight with which he cannot deal under an inflexible law but, on the other hand, the fact that he can do little without calling congress back, certainly provides a cooling-off period during which the thoughts of a nation may crystallize.

The Bonus at Last?
A Little on Account
Teagle Will Sell Oil
The Oceans Are Closer

Washington reports "payment of the $3,000,000,000 soldiers' bonus before the end of the next session is virtually assured." Good news for soldiers.

Do you suppose the government will print more of its "inflation bonds," and insist on paying interest on its own money, instead of printing new money for the bonus, or do you believe there must be some limits to stupidity?

Arthur Brisbane The League of Nations wants us to "clarify our position." It would be made clear if the President would write to the League of Nations: "Our position is this: 'We are attending to our business, and advise you to do the same. Also, what about a little cash on account of $10,000,000,000 you owe us on the last war?'"

Walter Teagle, head of the Standard Oil of New Jersey, disposes sensibly of the suggestion that all Americans should refuse to sell oil to Italy. He says Standard Oil is not in the League of Nations and he will continue selling oil through his Italian subsidiary.

This is news. Important especially to California, where real estate prosperity grows with improved transcontinental trips.

The Santa Fe railroad, with a diesel engine, hauling nine steel cars and using 3,000 horsepower, has cut 15 hours from the running time between Los Angeles and Chicago.

Queer things happen in Ethiopia. The Daily Express says former War Minister Fitawry Berra, in disgrace with the emperor because he spent too much money, walked, as a penitent, into the presence of the emperor, carrying on his back a heavy grindstone, and knelt down in sign of submission. The emperor rolled the stone off his back, meaning forgiveness, and Fitawry Berra is off spending money again. Some of our baked potato and "little pig" ministers might try that.

Here is war news: England's soft-voiced Foreign Secretary Hoare begs, implores, beseeches Italy to make peace with Ethiopia while there is still time. "Sanctions" have not yet been applied. England and other countries are selling goods to Italy. "While the lamp holds out to burn, the vilest sinner may return."

You may see a long line of "Olympic game" with long-distance runners wearing gas masks. In future wars soldiers will wear masks and civilians will wear them. Ability to run in gas masks will be important.

Russia knows that, "training for the next war" eight men and women of the Osovlakhim (society for aviation and chemical defense) marched 31 miles in gas masks in 10 hours 47 minutes, a world record.

General Smuts, minister of justice in England's Union of South Africa, says: "Annexation of Ethiopia or its domination by a great European power will mean training one of the biggest, most dangerous black armies the world has ever seen."

General Smuts worries about the conquering power of such a gigantic "black army" unnecessarily.

One pale chemist inventing a better poison gas, or more destructive explosives, and a few first-class pilots could take care of any "black army" that Ethiopia might send forth.

The American Federation of Labor asks American athletes not to attend the 1936 Olympic games, if they are held in Germany. As a reason for "banning German Olympics," the federation says Hitler is crushing labor unions "with blood and fire."

There is a better reason for not holding the 1936 Olympics in Germany. The chief value of sport is in the fact that mainly exercise is supposed, primarily, to develop and inspire courage.

The spectacle of 60,000,000 Germans cruelly persecuting and suppressing 600,000 German Jews is not exactly a picture of courage.

President Roosevelt has said that he intends to keep out of European complications. He will not let Europe complicate our foreign business, making it impossible for American concerns to operate merely to oblige European competitors. In any case our European friends should at least start paying the ten thousand million dollars they borrowed before asking the United States to lose more money for their sweet sake.

DOCTORS KNOW

Mothers read this:

THREE STEPS TO RELIEVING CONSTIPATION

A cleansing dose today; a smaller quantity tomorrow; less each time, until bowels need no help at all.

Why do people come home from a hospital with bowels working like a well-regulated watch? The answer is simple, and it's the answer to all your bowel worries if you will only realize it: many doctors and hospitals use liquid laxatives.

If you knew what a doctor knows, you would use only the liquid form. A liquid can always be taken in gradually reduced doses. Reduced dosage is the secret of any real relief from constipation.

Ask a doctor about this. Ask your druggist how very popular liquid laxatives have become. They give the right kind of help, and right amount of help. The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara—both natural laxatives that can form no habit, even in children. So, try Syrup Pepsin. You just take regulated doses till Nature restores regularity.

Missed? Since bridge is so popular, there is no occasion for parlor tricks from any of the guests at a party.

MALARIA

Better still take it regularly during the Malaria season to ward off the disease. Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic is absolutely harmless and tastes good.

I decided to give me Cardui. I began to mend. That tired, aching feeling was gone and the pains disappeared. I can't praise Cardui too highly, because I know it helped me." If Cardui does not help YOU, consult a physician.

"I think I understand, child," she had said, in a voice that was all sadness. And it was Silver who had cried. By mid-afternoon the sky was a sullen, gray-white glare of heat, and the leaves of the Micheners' shade trees drooped like flakes of lead. A new and sinister stillness pervaded the air. A sort of hushed and unwholesome waiting. Although there was not a cloud in sight, low in the west there was a curious humid depth of blue, as though the paint from a water-color had run down and settled.

"It's going to storm!" Grandma Michener predicted.

Silver was preparing to leave for home when Phil Michener came back from Maynard. The incident at the Emerald Bay club had been the talk of the town during the day.

"Strikes me," Phil added, "Roddy ought to keep that pretty wife of his away from such places—though that's his business, not mine."

"Corinne wasn't over there last night?" Silver put in.

"She was there with the Richters," Phil told her.

Silver had a hurried farewell and started for home. As she spurred Rusty over the short-cut and through the fields, she found herself shivering with some nameless apprehensiveness that had no connection with the approaching storm. Here and there alongside the grassy, almost unused road, the cottonwood leaves rustled fitfully, as if in some secret agitation, for it could not be the glazed, dead air that stirred them.

The light was subtly changing. The effect of it was rather that of looking at an eclipse of the sun through a blue glass. And when Silver finally turned her horse into his own pasture, the western horizon had swollen into a blue-black, monstrous reef.

There was no one in the yard as she approached Roddy's house. Roddy and Steve, Silver knew, were cutting hay in the south field, almost a mile away. The whirr of the mower came faintly on the dead stillness of the later afternoon.

In the driveway, before the door of the big house, stood Roddy's car. As Silver passed it, she glanced into it and saw a large black suitcase lying across the seat. Could Corinne possibly be planning to go somewhere with the storm coming on?

She drew open the kitchen door and almost collided with Corinne—battered and gloved, and wearing a tailored dark silk dress suitable for traveling. In one hand she carried a small leather case and her purse. Under her other arm she carried a small red Pomeranian. These details Silver took in with alarmed comprehension.

"Where in the world are you going, Corinne?" she asked. "Don't you see there's a storm coming up?"

Corinne laughed nonchalantly, although her eyes flashed in reckless defiance. "I haven't time to tell you," she replied. "I have to hurry."

Her voice rose to a piercing shriek as Silver seized her and forced her violently into a chair.

"For God's sake, Corinne!" Silver panted. "Have you lost your senses completely?"

"Take your hands off me!" Corinne burst out. She had gone white with fury as she struggled to release her self.

Silver dropped Corinne's arms and stepped back from her, agast and bewildered. "Are you going away with Gerald Lucas?" she demanded.

"This is none of your business!" Corinne flamed as she sprang from the chair. "I know what I'm doing. I haven't time to talk to you—even if I wanted to!"

She started again toward the door, but Silver barred her way.

"How dare you interfere with me?" Corinne stammered, with something of her old imperious manner, which was to Silver merely pathetic now. "You must be crazy."

"It's you who are crazy," Silver interrupted coldly.

Corinne seemed to regain control of herself. "Think what you like," she said in a calmer tone. "I have never cared much about what you think of me, anyhow." She pushed back her sleeve with a trembling hand and glanced at her watch. "All I want now is to get away. That's all I've wanted from the first day I came here. I've left a note telling Roddy he can find the car in front of Haber's store. Let me pass, please!"

Silver did not move from her place before the door. "I can't let you go—like this."

"Have your own way, then," Corinne told her. "I'll go out by the front door."

Silver burst suddenly into tears and clung to Corinne.

"Corinne—I implore you! Don't do this to yourself! I know what life with Gerald will be. I've seen enough of it—I've been through it. Your life will be ruined. Corinne, darling, please—please—I won't let you go!"

Silver caught her arm, but Corinne, with a sharp little jerk of her body, disengaged herself. Her small, pliant new was frozen with determination.

She looked suddenly years older.

"I tell you—I don't care!" she cried desperately. Her head was proud and high. "I can't let him go away alone. I realized that last night when he told me he would have to leave. I love him—and he loves me." For an appalling moment her face became almost shrewish.

"If I don't like the way Gerald lives, perhaps I can make something worth while out of him—and I couldn't do that for Roddy Willard!"

Before Silver could reach her, Corinne had darted into the front room and out the door. Silver ran after her, sobbing, pleading, clutching at her in despair, but Corinne, in stony, inexorable silence, climbed into the car and drove away.

Silver looked wildly after her, and stood for a moment with her hand pressed frantically against her mouth. She was vaguely aware that it had grown much darker, that the earth seemed enclosed in an airless, suffocating sphere. Then she stamped her foot and brushed the tears impatiently from her eyes.

"Go, then—you d-d little idiot!" she said aloud as she saw the car pass through the gateway and gather speed in the open road.

Suddenly there came into her mind the clamorous necessity of finding Roddy. The distance to the hayfield seemed immeasurable as she went running, stumbling, plunging to no avail again and again over the entangling meshes of grass, over the familiar and treacherous ruts of a fallow field which was wavering strangely now with light patches of shadow. She paused and glanced over her shoulder to reassure herself that she had come at least half way, when there came a sound that was a shrill, demoniacal whine, followed by a roar that stunned all thought.

Then the rain came. The rain, the rain, the blessed rain! Silver threw her arms wide and laughed in sheer pagan joy as the rich, drowning flood of it descended upon her. It washed away all drought and hunger and defeat; it washed all error from the human heart and wrong thinking from the human mind.

The rain ceased as suddenly as it had begun. Presently, from the direction of the Willard hill, Silver saw a dark shape plunging toward her. It was Roddy.

"What the devil are you doing out here?" he demanded as he came within speaking distance.

"I started out to find you—when the rain came," she replied haltingly.

"We hit for the house when we saw it coming," he said.

"You've been home—you've found Corinne's letter?" she asked.

"I found it," he replied in a clipped tone.

"I tried to stop her, Roddy. I fought with her—but I couldn't do anything. Then I ran to get you—so that you could go after her—before it was too late."

Roddy smiled bitterly. "If—I, they've gone to Mexico!" he said. "That's too far away for me."

"You're going to let her go?"

"It isn't as bad as it looks, kid," he said slowly. "Corinne really left me—months ago. But—come along. Steve is out looking for you, and Phonie is having fits because you're not in the house."

He put his arm about her gently and they walked in silence toward the house. To the eastward, lightning strode across the sky, and all about them are air quaked with thunder.

"Don't you think too much about this, Silver," Roddy said steadily as they went across the field. "I'm giving Corinne a chance to live the life she wants to live. I've known what she wanted—but I've never been able to give it to her. I was a d-d fool, I guess. But there's something I want to tell you—Corinne is really in love with Lucas. I have suspected it all along, but when she came home last night—there was something about her—a sort of glory in her face that I've never seen there before. I asked her about Lucas and she told me she loved him. There wasn't anything I could do about it, kid. I told her she could go when she felt like it."

Silver's heart beat so rapidly that she could make no reply. They made their way across the field until they came parallel with Roddy's experimental tract of corn. The sky was lifting now as though the lid were being raised from a casket of glowing jewels. Green and gold and blue, in a cleansed and hallowed world—pave over the heart a spell of awe and wonder.

On this, the south side of the field, the locusts had done very little damage. And now, after the rain, the stalks stood tall and fine, the snug, firm ears glistened, and the leaves flowed with beauty.

Silver, her eyes upon the field, thought of Corinne. "How could she go away from this, Roddy—and take a chance on the life?"

Roddy smiled down at her. "Life's a gamble—wherever you live it, Silver," he said. "It's when you live it with someone you love that makes the difference."

He took her shoulders in his hands, turned her about and looked through almost a year of frustration, despair and defeat—into the serenity of Silver's eyes.

And across his shoulder, Silver saw a rainbow above the land.

Lesson for November 10

EZEKIEL TEACHES PERSONAL RESPONSIBILITY

LESSON TEXT—Ezekiel 33:7-16

GOLDEN TEXT—So then every one of us shall give account of himself to God.—Romans 14:12.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Prophet En-courages His People.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Watchman on Duty.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Does God Care What I Do?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Individuals Accountable to God.

Ezekiel prophesied in the land of the captivity. The purpose of his ministry was threefold: (1) To show the house of Israel that they were in captivity because of their sins (14:23).

(2) To show that God is righteous in his visitation of judgment upon them (7:8, 9). (3) To sustain their faith by assuring them of their national restoration, the punishment of their enemies and their final exaltation among the nations when Messiah shall reign.

I. God's Sovereign Right to the Souls of Men (18:1-4).

Every man is personally responsible to God.

II. The Moral Obligation of Sons to Their Father (Ezek. 18:14-20).

While the law of heredity gives the child a sinful nature and when the child arrives at the age of moral responsibility it begins to sin, God holds such responsible for their deeds.

III. Ezekiel's Responsibility (Ezek. 33:1-9).

As a prophet of God certain responsibilities were imposed upon him. There is a sense in which every disciple of Christ is a witness for him and therefore is responsible for the giving of his testimony to sinners. His responsibility is set forth under the figure of a watchman. Two things were required of a watchman.

1. To hear the words of God's mouth (v. 7). The source of the message of every minister and Sunday School teacher is God's holy Word. Just as the prophet did not originate his message but received it of God's mouth, so it should be with every minister and Sunday School teacher.

2. To sound the warning (v. 7). After hearing God's message he was to speak it out and proclaim it to the people. A watchman today is both to hear and to speak. The people are to be warned of the impending danger. Failure to sound the alarm makes the watchman guilty of the blood of the sinner.

IV. God's Attitude Toward the Sinner (vv. 10, 11).

God has declared in His Word that unfaithfulness on the part of his people would cause them to "perish among the heathen," that they would "pine away in their iniquity" (Lev. 26:38, 39).

In view of this pronouncement some are disposed to say that their case is hopeless. To meet this attitude of despair the prophet assured them that God had no pleasure in the death of the wicked, but that his sincere desire was for the wicked to turn from their way and live. Regardless of what their past had been, they were given the assurance that the future was bright if they heeded God's command and plea. No one need despair because of sin, for God's grace is greater than human sin.

V. The Sinner's Personal Responsibility (vv. 12-20).

God created the members of the race personal beings, giving them freedom of choice. They have moral discernment enabling them to distinguish between the right and the wrong. They choose, therefore, according to the quality of their being.

The following principles govern the sinner:

1. Past righteousness will not avail for present sins (v. 12). When a righteous man turns to iniquity, his past seeming righteousness will be of no avail.

2. Past sins do not make impossible present acceptance with God (vv. 12-13). By virtue of the operation of the law of habit, every sinful act makes it harder for the sinner to repent, but God's grace is such that if the sinner repents God will forgive and restore.

3. Restitution required (vv. 13, 16). The proof of penitence is that, so far as possible, the sinner makes amends for wrongs done.

4. God's ways are equal (vv. 17-20). God holds man responsible for his own deeds. The child is not condemned because of the deeds of his father, nor can it be said that the fathers have eaten sour grapes and the children's teeth are set on edge. This does not do away with the law of heredity. Regardless of what one's past life has been, God's grace in Jesus Christ blots out his record and he stands accepted in the Beloved.

Friends

Friends are as companions of a journey, who ought to aid each other, as preservers on the road to a happier life.—Pythagoras.

A Mother's Love

If they be aught surpassing human deed or word or thought, it is a mother's love.—De Spindola.

Force

The power that is supported by force alone will have cause often to tremble.—Kossuth.

CALLS FOR ACTIONS

Silence is effective as a form of contempt; but not a patching to a denunciation with 14 kinds of epithet.

EATS OATMEAL TO HELP KEEP FIT

It may be one of Nature's lowest cost foods, but lucky is the boy or girl who gets it for breakfast every morning.

Many are nervous, poor in appetite, system out of order, because their diets lack enough of the precious Vitamin B for keeping fit.

Few things keep them back like a lack of this protective food element.

So give everyone Quaker Oats every morning. Because in addition to its generous supply of Vitamin B for keeping fit, it furnishes food-energy, muscle and body-building ingredients. For about 1/2c per dish.

Start serving it tomorrow for a 2-weeks test. Quaker Oats has a wholesome, nut-like, luscious appeal to the appetite. Flavors, surpassingly good. All grocers supply it.

TO WRITE GUIDE TO U. S. AS RELIEF JOB

6,500 Writers and Research
Workers Employed.

Washington.—About 6,500 writers, research workers, architects, geologists, photographers, map makers and clerical workers are to be enlisted from the relief rolls to compile and write the American Guide—a set of American "Baedekers" which will enable Americans "to discover America," Harry L. Hopkins, W. P. A. administrator, announced.

The new guide book will be published in five volumes, corresponding to five natural regions of travel in the United States. Mr. Hopkins said it would furnish a wholly useful and hitherto unperformed service for the citizens of the country. The work will take ten months to complete.

Cover Five Regions.

Of the five volumes, one will comprise the northeastern region, extending from Maine and Massachusetts west to Illinois and Wisconsin. West of Chicago travelers normally take one of two routes, either through the north middle western states to the Pacific coast or through the southwestern states to Mexico and Arizona. Each of these sections will have its own guide. The Pacific coast states, including Nevada and Utah, will also comprise one region and the southeastern states another. Travelers going from New York to New Orleans or Florida will be able to obtain information of interest to them from one guide book.

Administration of the research and editorial preparation of the guide will head up in Washington. Control of the field force of writers and other workers will be vested in twelve regional supervisors, who will also direct the work in each of the states in which the regional offices are located. Every other state will have a supervisor and a staff of writers, taken from the relief rolls, working in every city having a population of over 10,000. Smaller localities and rural sections will be covered by field trips.

Real Travel Guide.

Routes of travel will be indicated not only for motorists but also for persons wishing to see America from its rivers, canals and small streams, and for hikers wishing to follow mountain trails. Points of interest in chief cities will be enumerated. Information will be provided on hunting and fishing seasons. Biographical notes will be compiled about noted citizens who have lived in various localities at one time or another. Unique library and museum items will be listed. Attention will be directed to churches and public buildings where distinctive architectural and art work may be studied. Experimental theaters and schools will be described briefly, and all manner of historical landmarks, national parks, hotels, mineral springs, geological wonders, irrigation projects, low-cost housing developments and model factories will be described.

Scanty Address Fails to Dismay Postal Men

Tower, Minn.—A letter written and posted in Finland and addressed only "Mrs. Sanni A. Harju, Route 1, Box 11, U. S. A." has been received by Mrs. Harju near here despite the fact that the city, county or state was not designated.

Post office authorities in New York, knowing of Scandinavian and Finnish settlements in Minnesota, forwarded the letter to Minneapolis. Authorities there recalled that a large Finnish settlement in the state is in Otter Tail county and addressed it to New York mills. The post office there happened to know that the Harjus reside near Tower, and the letter was sent there.

Russians Equip Plant for New Type Tractors

Moscow.—Five years ago the first Soviet made tractor left the conveyor of the Stalingrad tractor plant. Eleven months later a tractor plant with a capacity of 50,000 machines a year had been built in a country where the sickle, the wooden plow, and the flail represented the age old "equipment" of agriculture.

The tractor plant was the first plant to apply the American system of mass production. In the course of five years the plant has produced about 15,000 tractors. The cost of production has been greatly reduced. The cost of a tractor has dropped twice since the first year of work.

In addition to wheel tractors of 15 to 20 horse power, the plant will shortly start production of caterpillar tractors of a special design.

Change in Climate

A Swedish geologist concludes that the South island of New Zealand had a warm, almost sub-tropical climate no longer ago than about 1000 B. C., after which the climate became much colder for reasons not fully understood.

CALIFORNIA STATE HAS 85TH BIRTHDAY

Colorful Periods in U. S. History Are Recalled.

Washington, D. C.—America's first push of statehood to the Pacific, signified by California's admission to the Union in 1850, and marking one of the young nation's early steps toward becoming an ocean-to-ocean power, 85 years old.

"California has been celebrating the eighty-fifth year of its attainment of statehood with Admission day, a state holiday, but the occasion also recalls one of the most important and colorful periods in the history of the United States as a whole," says the National Geographic society.

"Gold rush days, the opening of the great West, and establishment of a full-fledged state government on the Pacific coast all belong to the era of 85 years ago.

"When California was admitted to the Union in 1850, it meant a long jump. The nearest state to California was Texas. California was a sort of outlying 'island' surrounded by vast territories which in some cases were not organized into states until as much as 60 years later.

"In fact California was believed to be an actual island or group of islands in early Spanish times before it had been much explored. Though its coast was touched in 1542-43 by Spanish navigators, California was not settled until 1769. Spain then added it to her Mexican territory to forestall occupation by England or Russia.

"Distance and sparseness of settlement kept California from ever developing close ties either to Spain or to Mexico. Many Americans went to California to settle, and there was strong sentiment for annexing California to the United States both among these immigrants and among Americans at home, where the doctrine of the 'manifest destiny' of American westward expansion was taking hold.

Gold and the Mexican War.

"Gold and the Mexican war made California a part of the United States. Not long after the declaration of war on Mexico, American forces in California hoisted the United States flag, and the area was formally ceded to this country on February 2, 1848, under the treaty of peace. Mexico also ceded territory that now includes Nevada, Utah, Arizona, New Mexico, and part of Colorado, receiving in return a cash payment of $10,000,000.

"Only a few days before California was ceded to the United States, James W. Marshall had made his famous discovery of gold at Sutter's mill on the American river near Coloma. In a few weeks the California gold rush was on. By the end of 1849 it is estimated that 80,000 men had flocked to California. The large majority of them were Americans, and the territory became American in fact as well as in name.

"Meanwhile the slavery question was coming to the fore. The Union had a balance of 15 slave states and 15 free. When California began preparing to seek statehood, there were strong efforts to make it a slave state, but when its constitution was framed slavery was prohibited. California was admitted to the Union September 9, 1850.

"California has made phenomenal progress since the days of '49, when red-shirted gold miners kept order by rough and ready methods and there were fewer people in the whole state than live today in the state's capital city, Sacramento.

"Oil and oranges now have an annual value greater than the gold that is dug each year from California mines. Recently, however, there has been a revival of interest in gold mining, and many of the unemployed have made a few dollars a day by primitive mining methods resembling those used by the 'Forty Niners.'

A State of Many 'Firsts.'

"Second in area among all the 48 states, California is first in many things. It has the highest mountain in the United States outside Alaska—Mt. Whitney—and the lowest point in the country—Death valley. Its motion picture industry leads the world. It has the world's largest telescope, the 100 inch instrument at Mt. Wilson observatory of the Carnegie institution. The new huge 200 inch telescope of the California Institute of Technology will be mounted on Mt. Palomar in the southern part of the state.

"Los Angeles, with its suburbs, covers more territory than any other city in the United States, though it is 17th in population. Many of California's famous big trees, the sequoias, are older than the pyramids.

"California leads all states in irrigation, which has turned vast areas of its arid land into rich fruit and vegetable farms. It produces all the borax used in the United States, and most of the grapes."
