LETTER FROM THE EDITOR

Caroline Winnenberg
Murray State University

Welcome to Volume 6, Issue 2 of Steeplechase: an ORCA Student Journal, Murray State University's very own publication of student research and creative activity. This issue includes the finalists of our "Images of Research" contest and a Snapshot from an ORCA Research Grant recipient.

This is my second and final publication as Editor-in-Chief of Steeplechase, and I am very excited to pass the torch. I have been a member of this amazing team since my first semester at Murray State University. My Associate Editor, Audra Spellman, will be taking on my role as Editor-in-Chief for Steeplechase following this publication. The Office of Research and Creative Activity is currently looking for more team members to join in the process of sharing post-secondary research.

On behalf of the Steeplechase team, I would like to thank the Murray State community for their continued support of ORCA. We would not be the journal we are without their work. I would also like to thank you, our readers, for your patience and grace as we push forward through the difficult times we have faced these past few years. It is because of you that we can continue to proudly offer experience and opportunity to our students. From me personally, thank you for your readership. It has been an absolute pleasure to bring you such amazing academic work over the last four years.

Thank you for reading,

Caroline Winnenberg
Editor-in-Chief
