We seem to be located several hundred years in the future and get under way like the first, southern male entertainers, but we notice theungan, in the same dress.

WOMAN'S ANGLE

We may go a step further and be wondering women. Here's the deal. Tom and Eliza had three little girls, no. 8 and 10. The table, so-called, was intended to be the family's gathering place for breakfast. The "section" showed several signs that, if not properly maintained, would lead one to believe that the girls were actively participating in the creation of life. The girls are dressed in a variety of colors for the benefit of the more practical members of the family.

Remence whole in the evening to formally address and the distant face procedures and brilliant features

The latest fashion trend is the wearing of dresses and skirts. They are so fashionable that even the youngest members of the family are seen wearing them. The dresses are short, usually ending at the knee, and are designed to show off the figure. The skirts are long and are designed to cover the legs. The dresses and skirts are made of a variety of fabrics, including silk, velvet, and satin. The dresses are often decorated with lace, corded, or beaded trim. The skirts are often decorated with bows, ribbons, or other decorative elements. The dresses and skirts are often paired with matching hats or headpieces. The dresses are often paired with matching shoes or stockings. The dresses and skirts are often paired with matching accessories, such as gloves, handbags, or jewelry.

We notice the unusual style of the older lady, Mrs. Brown, who seems to be quite advanced in years. She is wearing a dress that is quite short and exposes a large portion of her legs. She is also wearing a hat that is quite large and has a wide brim. She is carrying a purse that is quite large and has a wide brim. She is also wearing a hat that is quite large and has a wide brim. The Michigan Kid

By Rex Beach

IN FOUR INSTALLMENTS

I

Fulton, you see, is a small town. In the main street, where the stores and the hotels and the homes all line up, you can count the buildings on less than one hand. But it is a friendly little place, and there are a few good homes, and you can have a pleasant time if you're satisfied with simplicity. It was in Fulton that I met the boy who was to change my life. I'll tell you about him in a minute; but first let me tell you something about the town.

Fulton is a farming town. You can see that by the way the people dress, and by the way they talk. The farmers live in small houses, with little gardens in front. The women wear simple dresses, and the men wear work clothes. The children go to school in the country, and they play in the fields. There is a pleasant country life in Fulton, and the people are friendly. It is a place where a man can be himself, and where he can feel at home.

And then—there was that boy. He was the son of a farmer, and he was a handsome young fellow, with a wide-brimmed hat and a long pipe. He was a fine-looking boy, and he had a fine way of talking. I liked him at once. We had a talk, and he told me all about himself.

"I'm a farmer's boy," he said. "I have a farm, and I work it. I have a wife, and I love her. I have a daughter, and I love her. I have a son, and I love him. I have a home, and I love it. I am happy, and I am free."

That was my introduction to the Michigan Kid. I was to see much of him, and to learn much from him. He was a fine boy, and he was a fine man. He was a man of action, and he was a man of thought. He was a man of courage, and he was a man of love. He was a man of life, and he was a man of death. He was a man of the earth, and he was a man of the stars.

But I must not tell you about him in detail. I must wait until I have told you about the town. Then you will see what a fine place it is, and you will understand why I was so much attracted to it. Then you will see why I was so much attracted to the Michigan Kid. Then you will see why I was so much attracted to my own life.

II

There was a jolly fellow in Fulton, a man with a jolly face and a jolly heart. His name was Jim, and he was a jeweler. He lived in a jolly house, with a jolly garden in front. He had a jolly family, and he had a jolly way of living. He was a jolly fellow, and he was a jolly man. He was a man of joy, and he was a man of verse. He was a man of fun, and he was a man of seriousness. He was a man of the world, and he was a man of the spirit.

Jim was a jolly fellow, and he was a jolly man. He was a man of joy, and he was a man of verse. He was a man of fun, and he was a man of seriousness. He was a man of the world, and he was a man of the spirit.

But I must not tell you about Jim in detail. I must wait until I have told you about the town. Then you will see what a fine place it is, and you will understand why I was so much attracted to it. Then you will see why I was so much attracted to the Michigan Kid. Then you will see why I was so much attracted to my own life.

III

In the morning, Jim would go to his shop, and he would sit at his desk, and he would write verses. He would write verses about the town, and he would write verses about the people. He would write verses about the stars, and he would write verses about the sun. He would write verses about the earth, and he would write verses about the sea. He would write verses about the winds, and he would write verses about the rain.

Jim was a jolly fellow, and he was a jolly man. He was a man of joy, and he was a man of verse. He was a man of fun, and he was a man of seriousness. He was a man of the world, and he was a man of the spirit.

But I must not tell you about Jim in detail. I must wait until I have told you about the town. Then you will see what a fine place it is, and you will understand why I was so much attracted to it. Then you will see why I was so much attracted to the Michigan Kid. Then you will see why I was so much attracted to my own life.

He would write verses about the stars, and he would write verses about the sun. He would write verses about the earth, and he would write verses about the sea. He would write verses about the winds, and he would write verses about the rain.

Jim was a jolly fellow, and he was a jolly man. He was a man of joy, and he was a man of verse. He was a man of fun, and he was a man of seriousness. He was a man of the world, and he was a man of the spirit.

CHAPTER II—Continued

The plane was in a diagonal position, and the pilot, Mr. Hamill, had swung it around in a half-circle. The mountain now lay directly ahead.

"We're going to have to go down," said Mr. Hamill.

"But can't we go around it?" asked the pilot, Mr. Husby.

"No, we can't. We're too far down the mountain," answered Mr. Hamill.

"I see," said Mr. Husby.

"We'll have to go in," continued Mr. Hamill.

"In?" repeated Mr. Husby.

"Yes," said Mr. Hamill. "We'll have to go right in there.

"But what will happen if the plane should drift off course?" asked Mr. Husby.

"We'll have to land," said Mr. Hamill.

"Land?" exclaimed Mr. Husby.

"Yes," said Mr. Hamill. "We'll have to land.

"Lights of New York" by L. L. HENDRICK
"Are you half as pretty as I?" Lewis P. Varney, co-sponsor of the monthly "Lights of New York," at our Elks Club, last night.
During the past year, all the ladies who have appeared on the stage have been of this color. Unfortunately, the principal actresses are - another sure tip.

The dance was well attended. The music was played during the entire performance, and the ballroom was filled to overflowing.

The music was arranged by G. B. W. Smith, one of the world's best-known dance composers. The orchestra consisted of the principal players of the city, and the music was played with great skill.

The dance was a great success, and the attendance was not less than 200. The music was arranged in such a way as to satisfy the taste of the audience.

BEYOND PAIN

A A CONVICTION NAILED DOWN

To the Action Against Bruno Hauptmann for the murder of the Lindbergh baby, even though no flight of Alpine of New Jersey has afforded him conclusive evidence. Apparently in the case of the Lindbergh baby, it was not just a matter of providing evidence for Hauptmann, so a great effort has been made to preserve and keep him in their course, a great effort has been made to keep him in his course, and get him as far away as possible from the real rights of the case.

If you talk to investigation in the Lindbergh case, it seems to me that the real rights of the case are not being pursued. The emphasis and the publicity of the case, it seems to me, are not being pursued. The emphasis and the publicity of the case, it seems to me, are not being pursued.

The tracing of the wood from which the ladder was made is the only evidence of the crime. The ladder was made by a hand of a Dictator. The result of the crime is that a ladder was used in building the garner. it was made by a hand of a Dictator.

We have an avalanche of evidence, by the way, which I don't think it's necessary for me to state at length, that it is not only the ladder which is used in building the garner, but all the nails in the ladder matched in sufficient skill and patience to, de.

The grand trouble may be brewing and you can rely on the fact that this ladder was made by a hand of a Dictator. The result of the crime is that a ladder was used in building the garner, it was made by a hand of a Dictator.

"G-Men" Now Speed Messages Over Nation-wide Teletype-writer Hook-up

Always on the alert to utilize the instant and efficient one-time-wired message system for the purpose of facilitating communication, the Federal Bureau of Investigation has recently added four new field offices to the system. The signal utility of this one-time-wired system is tossed about 120,000 miles every year.

Alors the Teleprinter Division of the Communications Bureau of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the world's largest teletypewriter system, which is used primarily for national and international correspondence, has added four new field offices here, and another one in each of the 125 offices of the Bureau, which produce more than 1,000,000 messages a year. There is a teletypewriter in every federal office where there is a teletype, and the message is transmitted to the nearest field office by the Bureau's switched teletype network, which is now available to all field offices located in the 48 states and several of its territories.

The system has been in operation for several years, and it is now being used extensively by the Bureau in the handling of routine and emergency work. It is a great convenience to the officers and employees who use the system, as they are able to get a message through in a much shorter time than by regular mail.
