Memorial weekend motorists urged to buckle up

FRANKFORT, Ky. — Memorial Day weekend, which begins at 6 p.m. today and ends at 11:59 p.m. on Monday, traditionally marks the beginning of the summer driving season, and the Kentucky State Police expects a significant increase in traffic on the state's roadways during this time period.

Motorists throughout the state can help make the roads safer this holiday weekend by remembering two words: buckle up.

Last year, six people lost their lives in three separate crashes during this time period. One of the fatalities involved alcohol and only one of the six victims was wearing a seat belt.

"As of May 27, there have been 316 fatalities and 16,457 injuries due to crashes on Kentucky's roadways in 2004," notes KSP Commissioner Mark L. Miller. "Many of these injuries and fatalities could have been lessened or avoided if the drivers and passengers had simply used their seat belts. Seat belts are the single most effective action you can take to protect yourself in a vehicle crash."

According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, using seat belts reduces the risk of sustaining a fatal injury by 45 percent in a car and 60 percent in a light truck. The agency also reports that 60 percent of passengers killed in traffic crashes are not wearing seat belts.

Kentucky State Police troopers will be working overtime during the Memorial Day holiday to target impaired drivers, speeders and those not wearing seat belts. They'll be conducting increased saturation patrols and traffic safety checkpoints in high crash, high traffic locations. They'll also be coordinating their enforcement activities with local police and sheriff's departments for maximum coverage.

As part of Operation C.A.R.E. (Combined Accident Reduction Effort), a nationwide program aimed at reducing crashes on interstates and parkways, KSP troopers will also be concentrating on speeding and impaired driving violations. Combined with seat belt violations, these factors account for the three leading causes of highway fatalities.

Kentucky has a zero tolerance policy regarding driving while impaired by alcohol. Operating a vehicle with a blood alcohol level of .08 will result in an immediate arrest even for first time offenders. To maximize their visibility, KSP troopers will be using daytime running lights on their vehicles during the enforcement period.

Murray budget passes 1st read

By KRISTIN TAYLOR
Staff Writer

Mayor Tom Rushing called Murray's budget effective and efficient because even in tight fiscal times the city will not reduce any of its services.

"This has been well done," Rushing said of the budget process. "We've been able to face the crisis."

The Murray City Council approved the 2004-05 budget on its first reading Thursday night. The city's expenses total $29.1 million. The budget will become official after a second reading is approved. That's scheduled to be on the agenda at the council's June 10 meeting.

Thirty-five percent of the budget — or $10,523,900 — is designated for natural gas costs, which the mayor said increased significantly. The general fund totals $7,647,506 and pays for police and fire expenses among other things. Other portions of the budget include capital expenses, sanitation, storm water, sewer, municipal tax aid and cemetery.

Council member Jane Brandon did not vote on the budget ordinance. Brandon had some questions concerning the city's financial support of community-based organizations such as Playhouse in the Park and the Murray Art Guild.

Church Demolition

A track hoe smashes bricks, concrete and other materials that had been removed in the early stages of the demolition of the old University Church of Christ on 15th Street Thursday. The building had housed Murray State University offices for several years after the church had moved its operations to its current location at the intersection of U.S. 641 and Ky. 121.

Oral health to be addressed through funding

By KRISTIN TAYLOR
Staff Writer

Congressman Ed Whitfield knows federal funding can help improve rural health care, especially the lack of dental care for children. But he also knows local leadership is necessary to make the best use of the money.

Whitfield praised Purchase Area Health Education Center Director Loretta Maldaner for her persistence and dedication to western Kentucky as he presented her a check for $187,150 Thursday to initiate funding for the West Kentucky Dental Health Project.

The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services will help AHEC address oral health, targeting children and families of the Women, Infants and Children program, Head Start and first and second graders through education, prevention and activities. Contingent on federal funding and completion of grant objectives, two more years of funding may be available, making about $500,000 possible through the three-year period.

"These grants are never successful unless you have someone at the local level providing the leadership," Whitfield, R-Ky., said during the presentation Murray State University's Murray Room at the Regional Special Events Center. The project was one of 11 grants funding nationally out of 197 applicants.

Whitfield has heard concerns from health care providers about the lack of dental care because oral health affects people's overall health.

"This is your tax dollars coming back to provide health care in your community ..."

— U.S. Rep. Ed Whitfield
R-Ky.

"Unfortunately, one area Kentucky leads the nation in is the lack of care, especially among children," he said. "This is your tax dollars coming back to provide health care in your community, in these 12 counties."

AHEC, which was established in 1988 in conjunction with the University of Louisville Health Sciences Center, serves children in Ballard, Calloway, Carlisle, Crittenden, Fulton, Graves, Hickman, Livingston, Lyon, Marshall, McCracken and Trigg counties.

Maldaner originally applied for the grant in 2002, but she did not receive funding at that time. She resubmitted the application in 2003. "It's a great day in western Kentucky and for the children in the area," she said.

For eight years, AHEC has provided a free dental clinic each month. From 1998 to 2002, 617 people who don't have dental insurance have been served by that clinic, according to information presented by the group. In 2001, AHEC

Attorneys have to wait for traffic stop ruling

By KRISTIN TAYLOR
Staff Writer

The attorneys for two Murray State University athletes will have to wait about a month before they learn whether a traffic stop is appropriate evidence in a drug-related case.

Attorney Rick Lamkin said the Murray Police Department officer who arrested Racer basketball player Preston "Trey" Pearson III on April 1 did not make any first-hand observations of impaired driving. Pearson, who sat out the 2003-04 season after transferring from Ole Miss, was charged with underage driving under the influence, possession of marijuana, having no insurance, failure to wear a seat belt and driving without his license in possession after a communication chain of events led to a traffic stop on Robertson Road North.

"The arresting officer saw no bad driving," Lamkin said in an interview after a suppression hearing in Calloway District Court on Thursday. "The stop was made based on what other people saw and was not corroborated by the arresting officer."

Pearson was driving a black Ford Explorer when Richard Edwards, a Fulton firefighter, was driving behind him north of Fulton to near Murray's city limits and noticed erratic driving behavior, according to Edwards' testimony in district court Thursday. He said the SUV swerved into the oncoming lane and the shoulder of the road and was traveling at fluctuating speeds.

Edwards said he made three calls to the Kentucky State Police post in Mayfield before eventually talking to dispatcher Chris Hendrix at the Calloway County Sheriff's Department. While on the phone with Hendrix, Edwards said he followed Pearson's vehicle east on Ky. 94, then south on Crossland Road before turning around and backtracking north on Crossland Road.

Hendrix forwarded the complaint of a possible drunk driver to the Murray Police Department. "I called the city because I didn't think any of my officers would be able to make contact," said Hendrix, who added he dispatched a deputy to the area.

The sheriff's department often receives complaints like Edwards' call, Hendrix testified.

"In essence, he said the vehicle was not doing a good job driving and he had followed it for some distance," he said.

When Green located Pearson's vehicle, the sophomore guard from South Fulton, Tenn., failed field sobriety tests and refused a blood test, according to police. Marijuana seeds and leaves were found on the driver's and passenger's sides of the vehicle, according to Pearson's arrest citation.

A football walk-on — William Michael Waycaster — was a passenger in Pearson's vehicle and was arrested on possession of marijuana and possession of drug paraphernalia charges, according to MPD. He is listed on last season's roster as a sophomore wide receiver from South Fulton.

Benton attorney Robert Prince is representing Waycaster and participated in the suppression hearing Thursday.

The county attorney's office, which is prosecuting the case, has until June 4 to file its summary of the facts. Lamkin and Prince then have until June 11 to respond after reading the county attorney's brief. District Judge Jeanné Carroll is expected to make a ruling about the evidence June 15, a court spokeswoman said.

"It'll be about a month before we have a ruling, but we couldn't ask for it to come in any better than it did today," Lamkin said.

State recanvass yields same results

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Recanvassing efforts for two candidates seeking Democratic nominations for General Assembly contests finished Thursday with essentially the same results as last week's primary election.

Results found Sen. Johnny Ray Turner, D-Drift and Rep. Charlie Geveden, D-Wickliffe, both won their respective primary contests, according to the Kentucky Secretary of State's office.

In a close race, Turner defeated challenger Eric Shane Hamilton by 24 votes to win the nomination for the 29th District Senate seat in eastern Kentucky. Hamilton picked up one vote in Knott County to finish with 7,927 votes, compared to Turner's 7,951.

The district includes Breathitt, Floyd, Knott and Letcher counties.

Meanwhile, Geveden defeated opponent Robert "Dan" Voegeli by 27 votes for the 1st District House seat in far western Kentucky. Geveden finished with 1,911 votes, compared to Voegeli's 1,884 votes.

The district includes Ballard, Carlisle, Fulton, Hickman and McCracken counties.

Geveden had picked up an extra vote in Ballard County, while Voegeli lost a vote there.

A recanvassing is a double checking of all voting machines.

Voegeli said he would not pose any further challenge to the vote totals.

organized the Western Kentucky Children's Health Coalition, which involves 60 area organizations and focuses on oral health.

"We have really brought attention to the people in Frankfort and the University of Louisville School of Dentistry to a concern we have in western Kentucky," Maldaner said.

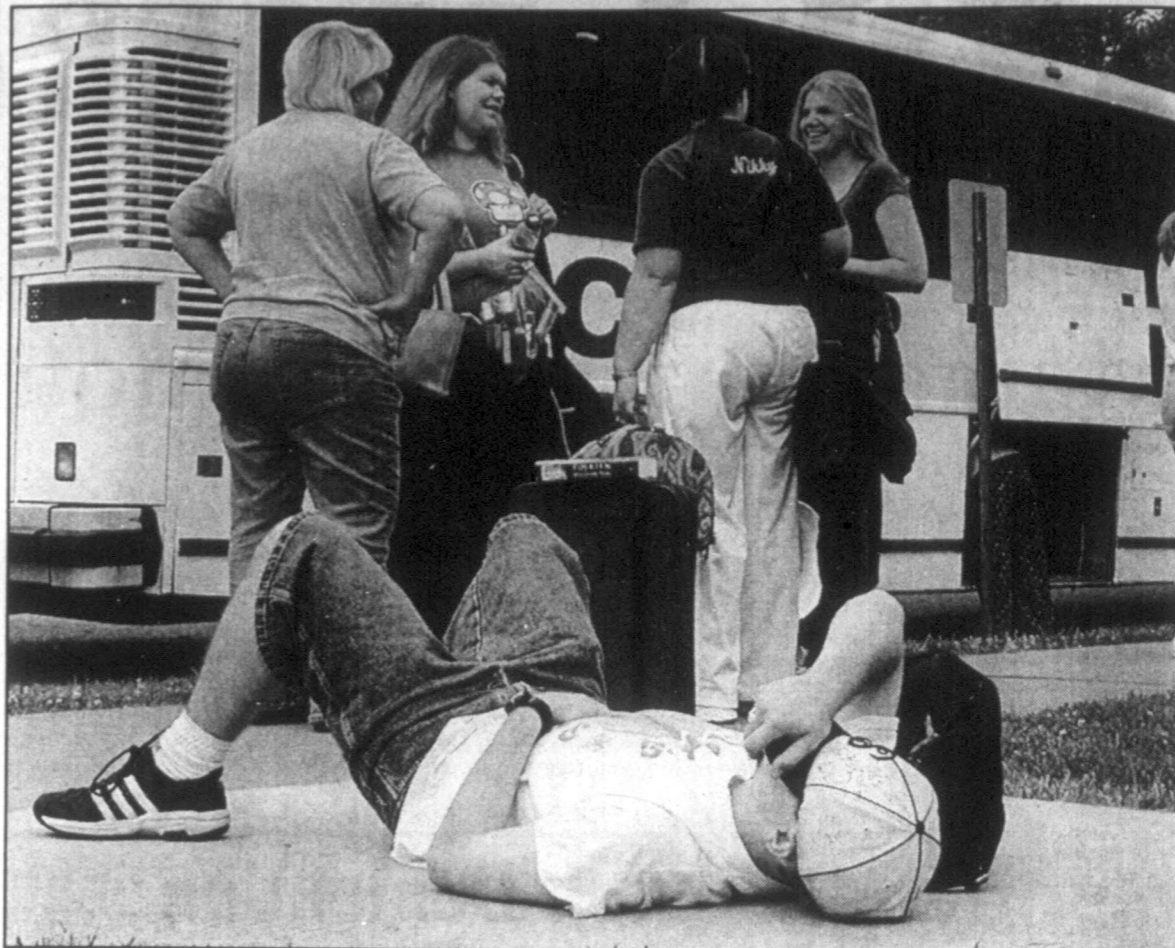

AHEC is housed on Murray State's campus. MSU President Dr. F. King Alexander said grants and programs like Thursday's announcement built the regional community together.

"It helps get research and teaching out — getting what we do out so we can improve the social and economic welfare of our community," he said.

Statistics show tooth decay is a significant public health problem, especially among children from low socioeconomic status. For every child without medical insurance, there are 2.6 kids without dental insurance, according to information presented Thursday at the press conference.

In 1987, 28 percent of Kentucky's pre-schoolers had untreated caries, better known as tooth decay. That figure rose to 43 percent 14 years later, according to the 2001 Kentucky Children's Oral Health Survey, which was compiled by the University of Kentucky.

Apparently the excitement of the Murray State University choir's venture to Ireland Thursday was a bit too much for member Chris O'Neal. Here, O'Neal, who reportedly did not sleep too well Wednesday night, takes a rest on the sidewalk along Olive Street, while other members talk about their plans before boarding a charter bus that took them to the Nashville, Tenn., airport. The choir will be in Ireland nine days.

"Why does the city give money to the Playhouse and the art guild?" Brandon asked. "I'm not against either one but don't they have ticket sales and other fund-raisers to support themselves?"

Supporting organizations beyond traditional municipal services helps the city bring in new businesses, council member Tommy Sanders said. The budget allocates $4,500 to Playhouse and $2,000 to the art guild.

"One thing that attracted Pella is the art activities," he said. "It's a recruiting tool for companies."

Council member Rita Henley explained that Murray wasn't alone in supporting organizations outside of city government. "It's common for cities to give money to agencies," she said. "Some give more, some give less, but it's more common than you think."

Danny Hudspeth pointed out that regardless of what other cities do, the final decision on Murray's budget comes down to him and his council colleagues. "They are both eligible organizations we can give to," Hudspeth said. "Whether we do is the decision of this board."

The council also approved two budget amendments.

The city will allocate $8,300 as half of the cost to resurface five tennis courts at Murray High School. The school district will fund the other portion. A 1974 ordinance established the tennis courts as a joint project.

Murray Independent Schools

Superintendent Dale Reid said the tennis courts are in such poor condition that the high school teams have had to play some matches at Murray State University.

"We will get those tennis courts to a playable condition not only for students at Murray High and Murray Middle but also for the community," Reid said.

City Administrator Don Elias also told about an additional request from Jeff Steen, director of emergency management. Operating on an $8,000 budget, Steen's responsibilities have increased with homeland security training and such since Sept. 11, 2001, Elias said. Steen's office also works with weather, FEMA grants, rescue efforts and emergency response.

"We were the first city and county in the Purchase recognized as being 'storm ready,'" Mayor Rushing said, "... and it's through Jeff Steen's efforts."

The city agreed to give $2,500 to emergency management, which also receives state and county money. Elias said he hopes the city can benefit from some of the $36 million available in state homeland security grants.

In other business, the council learned city attorney Don Overbey has resigned his position after working with Murray for 20 years, including under five mayors. Chip Adams will serve as the interim city attorney for 90 days until someone else is hired.

Overbey is retiring because of health reasons after practicing law for 42 years.

Storms hit northern Kentucky

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A tornado touched down in Henry County on Thursday night, as harsh winds and rain moved east through the Louisville area to eastern Kentucky, the National Weather Service reported.

"All evidence points to that fact" that a tornado touched down in Eminence in Henry County, said Norm Reitmeyer, a meteorologist with the National Weather Service in Louisville.

Kentucky State Police in Henry County said the damage in the area was heavy and more expected as the rough weather continued moving east.

Henry County Judge-executive John Brent declared a state of emergency Thursday night.

Eminence resident Cynthia Siler said a large tree was uprooted by the storms, knocking down power lines. The high winds also destroyed part of her roof and uprooted apple and peach trees in her backyard and damaged neighboring homes.

"It was just a fluke," said Siler, who lives on Jackson Road. "This is not normal. Even my kitchen was freaking out."

Neighbors are using generators for electricity and candles for light, Siler said.

"This little town was smashed hard," Siler said Thursday night.

Firefighters were going door to door late Thursday night in Eminence, checking on residents.

"As far as you can see, there are trees in the road," another Eminence resident, Ann Foster, told WHAS-TV Thursday night. She described the sound of the storm as it approached her home.

"It was more than a roar, it was like a thousand freight cars going by."

Jefferson County and surrounding counties, including Henry County, were hit with winds up to 70 miles per hour Thursday night. The storm system moved into the northwestern portion of Lexington just after 11 p.m. EDT Thursday night, the weather service reported.

Reitmeyer said information on the storms was coming in slowly Thursday night.

"It's hard to tell. We're still dealing with it," Reitmeyer said. He said parts of southern Indiana north of Louisville were the hardest hit areas.

He said another set of storms would be moving into the region around midnight, but those would be slightly less harsh.

AP Photo
Lexington-Fayette Urban County Government Building Inspector Jim Piper walks from a home which was destroyed during a heavy storm Thursday in northwestern Lexington, Ky. At least five recently constructed homes were destroyed.

In Henry County, wind and tree damage forced people into their basements as high water flooded roads and trees blocked access to homes, said state police Trooper Greg Larimore.

Larimore said some officers went home to pick up personal chain saws to cut through downed trees blocking homes and roadways.

"We're still trying to get people into places," Larimore said Thursday night.

Troopers had not yet been able to assess damage from a reported tornado near Campbellsburg. Larimore said there were reports of only minor injuries and no fatalities.

Emergency dispatchers in Jefferson County said they received calls about power lines and tree and tree branches down around the county, but they had no reports of injuries.

The weather service also issued flash flood warnings for a group of counties in eastern Kentucky Thursday night.

Two Louisville residents said lightning hit an old tree just after 9:20 p.m. and fell on their car.

Heather Goldberg, who lives in the 1400 block of St. James Court near downtown Louisville, said the tree completely destroyed her friend's car parked outside their town home.

"Our neighbor came running up to our door and said 'Your car is totaled,'" Goldberg said.

Goldberg said wind and rain could be heard pounding her windows and door throughout the evening.

About 25,000 homes were without electric power as of 11:15 p.m. EDT Thursday night, said Debbie Shobe, a spokeswoman for LG&E Energy. Shobe said the hardest hit areas were in Oldham County, Prospect in eastern Jefferson County, downtown Louisville, western and southwestern Jefferson County, Shobe said.

A number of telephone poles were broken in Goshen in Oldham County, Shobe added.

AG files suit over budget

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Attorney General Greg Stumbo filed a lawsuit Thursday asking a judge to decide what budgetary powers the governor has without a budget approved by the General Assembly.

The suit filed in Franklin County Circuit Court is not intended to be adversarial, Stumbo said. Rather, it is aimed at making sure state government continues if the legislature does not return to Frankfort and pass a budget by July 1.

"The litigation cannot wait," Stumbo said. "We will avoid a multitude of lawsuits challenging the legality of the governor's plan by obtaining this declaration of rights."

Meanwhile, a bipartisan group of House lawmakers gathered across from the Capitol, calling for resumed budget talks and a special session to pass a budget.

Stumbo said he has identified 153 statutes in Gov. Ernie Fletcher's originally proposed budget that would have been suspended if the General Assembly passed it. Typical budgets suspend certain statutes, for reasons including making it possible to transfer funds into other accounts. However, there is no clear consensus on the governor's authority to do that in an executive spending plan, without an approved state budget, Stumbo said.

The state constitution gives only the General Assembly authority to suspend statutes. Stumbo said he is not asking a judge to decide what government services are considered essential.

Fletcher said Stumbo's lawsuit wasn't "ripe" and was inconsistent.

Stumbo "doesn't want to stop government services," Fletcher said. "But on the other hand, he says that we wouldn't be able to suspend certain things that would allow us to operate normally."

Fletcher, a Republican, has said he's crafting an executive spending plan to operate state government if no budget is passed. But a court ruling could tie his hands, forcing a government shutdown, Fletcher said. By preventing him from suspending statutes, which historically has been done through budget language, the state could be forced to do things like eliminate 5,000 state workers, Fletcher said.

"Our plan is just to suspend only the necessary (statutes), with the primary focus on making sure that we balance the budget and that we provide necessary government services," Fletcher said.

State police figure arson started Lexington-area castle fire

VERSAILLES, Ky. (AP) — The fire that damaged a central Kentucky landmark earlier this month was likely intentionally set, Kentucky State Police said Thursday.

A preliminary investigation shows a "high probability" that arson started the May 10 fire that damaged a turreted castle in Versailles, state police said in a news release. Sgt. Phil Crumpton would not elaborate on why police believe it was arson.

The blaze did extensive damage inside the walls of the castle in Woodford County. Miami lawyer and real-estate investor Thomas Post bought the castle in November for nearly $1.8 million. Post could not immediately be reached for comment.

Motorists ...

From Front

Motorists should also remember that Kentucky law requires them to slow down and use caution when they see a law enforcement or emergency vehicle stopped alongside the road with its lights flashing.

"Failure to wear a safety belt is a secondary violation," explains Miller. "A citation may be issued only if a motorist is stopped for reasons other than violation of the seat belt law. However, no warnings will be issued to those drivers found not wearing a safety belt as a secondary violation. They will receive a citation. Protecting yourself, your children and your passengers is your responsibility and it's law enforcement's duty."

According to Kentucky law, all children 40 inches in height or less, must be buckled into a child safety restraint seat that meets federal standards. Children over 40 inches tall must wear a seat belt. Violation of this law will result in a $50 fine with an additional $10 fine donated to the Traumatic Brain Injury Trust Fund.

Motorists should also be aware that the back seat is the safest place for children to sit, especially in vehicles equipped with passenger-side airbags. Infants and toddlers should never ride in the front seat of a vehicle with a passenger-side air bag.

Citizens can further contribute to highway safety during the holiday period by reporting erratic drivers to the KSP toll-free hotline at 1-800-222-5555. Callers will remain anonymous and should give a description of the vehicle, location, direction of travel and license number, if possible.

Honoring Teachers

The inspirational first lady Eleanor Roosevelt persuaded the 81st Congress in 1953 to proclaim a National Teacher Day, knew of the importance of teaching and valuing our teachers and their contributions. In keeping with National Teacher Appreciation Month and the anniversary of the landmark school desegregation decision — Brown vs. Board of Education — I would like to recognize all of our teachers in Kentucky and for us to shower them with well-deserved thanks for the great job they do.

The teacher who had the greatest impact on my life was Mrs. Mary Bailey, my fifth- and sixth-grade teacher at Mt. Carmel Elementary School in Fleming County. For her 32 years of teacher, she impressed upon me, and each of her students, the power of perseverance. She said, "Don't give up until you make it — keep on trying."

This indomitable attitude was impressed upon her by her mother. She instilled this philosophy in every one of her of her students. In a recent conversation with Mrs. Bailey, she said that if she had it to do all over again, she would still choose to teach. She shared stories of how rewarding it was to see her students go on to college and succeed in their careers. She treated all of her students equally. She was proud of all of her students and she made each of us feel important.

Mrs. Bailey has continued to support her students long after they left her classroom and many of her students have let her know how important she was to them in fundamentally changing their lives. Now, decades later, she continues to send me notes of encouragement.

Few other professionals touch as many people as teachers do. Let us take the time to honor the dedication, passion and caring nature of teachers. Not only are teachers the backbone of our nation's education system, they are a guiding force in helping our children develop into healthy, happy and successful adults. So much is expected of them; their responsibility is great. They shape and mold our tomorrows by guiding the children they teach today.

Our teachers need to be recognized and appreciated for the significant role they play in our lives and in the well being of our nation.

Benjamin Franklin said about education, "Genius without education is like silver in the mine." Let us all do our part to support our teachers as they help to mine the silver and golden resources within our children so we will all reap the educational bounties of tomorrow.

I ask that you let those special teachers know just how you feel and how they have changed your life for the better. Let's take time to say "thanks" to the teachers, not only from our community, but also throughout the entire expanse of our great commonwealth.

Addressing the Iraq Panic Attack

Whatever one thinks of President Bush, no one can say that he lacks a vision or the ability to think big.

When he decided to oust Saddam Hussein and attempt to build an Iraq that is neither a threat to its neighbors nor to America as a base for terrorism, he started something that, if not successful, will multiply the number of terrorist demons and leave America and the world in even greater danger.

In his address Monday night (May 24) to the U.S. Army War College in Carlisle, Pa., the president laid out his five-point plan to reshape Iraq and the entire Middle East. In doing so, he did not acknowledge the panic and fear sweeping Washington like the late spring heat wave. Instead, he listed the steps directed at establishing freedom and some form of representative government in Iraq.

Bush reminded the country (at least those watching on cable TV; the broadcast networks declined to carry it, preferring to put their own spin on the speech the next day) that this conflict is neither brief nor easy. He warned that "terrorism is likely to become more active and brutal" as the June 30 deadline approaches for the establishment of a sovereign Iraqi government. In fact, he said, terrorism is likely to continue after June 30. If there is to be success — and the president entertains no public doubt he will eventually achieve his goals — there must be security in the country. American forces have had difficulty properly training and equipping Iraqi military forces. This has resulted in extending the tour of large numbers of American forces, something the president acknowledged in his speech. No one wants to see a repeat of Vietnam where American-trained South Vietnamese soldiers were overwhelmed by their Communist enemies.

Ultimately, the president said, Americans will slowly withdraw but be available as part of an anticipated U.N. contingent, to support the new Iraqi government against terrorists who want it to fail.

I wonder if those who have switched from approval to disapproval of President Bush in the polls fully understand what is at stake in Iraq. Failure is not an option. If the United States fails to achieve its objectives, we might as well issue printed invitations for the terrorists to turn up the heat. They will surely gain new recruits and be emboldened to stage more outrageous attacks.

It is important for some of those nations that have carped and lobbed rhetorical missiles from the sidelines at U.S. policy in Iraq to participate in rebuilding that country. Terrorism is a threat to every nation, including the surrender monkeys who think they can buy off the killers through appeasement. No free nation is safe from them, and if they aren't coming after certain nations now, they will later unless they are stopped.

Great nations are called to do great and grand things. Freeing Iraq from her imprisonment while striking a mortal blow to terrorists is about as great and grand as it gets.

The public wants to be sure the president knows where he is going and how he intends to get there. The War College speech showed that he does. The question is, will it work? The answer is that it had better work for the alternative is too terrible to contemplate.

My guess is that it will work for one important reason. Our terrorist enemies do not have the power to defeat us in open war. Their power comes from promoting fear that leads to withdrawal and surrender. If we don't panic, they lose. If we withstand even homicide bombers in our country, they lose. If we fight fear with faith and confidence, they lose. Recall Franklin Roosevelt's brilliant line: "The only thing we have to fear is fear itself." They cannot defeat us any other way.

The president's five-point plan for Iraq depends not only on the Iraqi people. It also depends on the American people. While World War II was the testing moment of the 20th century; this generation's test is Iraq and the war against terror. The Greatest Generation is watching to see if we have what they had. We'll know soon. It's up to the president to keep our resolve strong. The Monday-night speech was a good start.

Honoring Our Fallen

Since May of 1868 Americans have honored those brave men and women who made the supreme sacrifice in protecting our freedoms. Memorial Day did not become a national holiday until 1971, when

On The Hill
By Sen. Jim Bunning

Congress set aside the last Monday in May as a day of remembrance for our nation's fallen airmen, soldiers, sailors, and marines. As we celebrate on this year's Memorial Day, we are engaged in a Global War on Terrorism to protect the freedoms we all love and cherish.

On September 11, 2001, nearly 3,000 Americans lost their lives when terrorist thugs who had no respect for human life attacked our homeland. That night from the Oval Office, President Bush declared a Global War on Terrorism. As with past conflicts, when the American way of life was threatened the United States Armed Forces answered the call to duty.

Eleven Kentuckians have lost their lives fighting for our way of life during the War on Terrorism in Operation Enduring Freedom and Operation Iraqi Freedom. They are all heroes who have made the ultimate sacrifice, so that you and I can live in a country where democracy prevails. Below are the names of the eleven Kentuckians who have made the ultimate sacrifice in Afghanistan and Iraq by hostile fire. Please say a prayer for them and the loved ones they left behind.

■ Michael Dewayne Arklin II,

- Age 25, from Louisville.
- Gary Brent Coleman, Age 24, from Pikeville
- Nicholas James Dieruf, Age 21, from Versailles.
- Jeffrey Carl Graham, Age 24, from Elizabethtown.
- James William Harlan, Age 44, from Owensboro
- Robert Lewis Henderson II, Age 33, from Alvaton.
- James Thomas Hoffman, Age 41, from Whitesburg
- Darrin Keith Potter, Age 24, from Louisville.
- James Edward Powell, Age 26, from Radcliff.
- George Scott Rentschler, Age 31, from Louisville.
- Justin Andrew Scott, Age 22, from Bellevue.

I ask my fellow Kentuckians to take time from their long weekend to remember the sacrifices made by these brave men and their loving families. Kentuckians owe a debt of gratitude to these eleven men as well as the thousands of Kentuckians who have died for our country in previous wars to preserve the values and ideals that we all hold deeply.

As the War on Terrorism continues their will undoubtedly be more casualties. America must stay the course in our current struggle to bring a true democracy to the Middle East. We must bring the fight to the terrorists and not let them bring the fight to America's shores.

For over 200 years, America has stood as the beacon of hope for those who are less fortunate. The eleven soldiers who have perished are the light in that beacon. May God bless America and God bless those who sacrificed so much in the name of freedom and democracy.

Making Sausage

Nobody likes to watch sausage being made but we love it when it's finished. We cook it, we embrace it, and we eat it. And we forget the revolting process that produced it.

Watching developments in the war on terrorism and the current Iraq situation as reported by the media is a lot like watching sausage being made. Thanks to the media we see everything that's going on, at least as it is seen through the media's essentially anti-war prism. It gives us 20/20 hindsight that informs us that everybody could do a better job of handling things than the Bush administration and the military are handling them.

All the experts trotted out by the media tell us how much better a job they could do if they were running things — that they would be able to provide sausage without ever having to go through the ugly business of making it. But they never explain exactly how, resorting to their rear view mirrors to point out where the President went wrong and if they'd been in charge they would have done it right.

Wars are not pretty things to watch. They are waged in confusion, drenched in blood, and often won or lost by the want of a nail on one side or another. They are the equivalent of sausage making. Only when they are over and we have won, do we appreciate the result.

None of us want to see our loved ones sent off to distant places possibly to suffer or die. We don't want our economy to be dislocated or our attention distracted by disturbing scenes of warfare, especially when we have reached a point far enough away from 9/11 that we have forgotten why we're fighting.

The media, largely anti-Bush and anti-war, are taking a huge delight in describing every grisly part of the sausage making process — they can't wait to tell the American people how this administration policy went wrong or which general made this or that mistake. And it's all done from hindsight, after the fact when everything is suddenly clear.

For months now, the media and the Democrats have been insisting that the Iraq situation is a muddle and that the President has no real plans to deal with it and get us out of there. Over and over the networks and big media continued to demand that he explain his policy to the nation.

But when President Bush spoke to the nation Monday night, and explained his policy, where were the networks? Where were NBC, CBS or ABC? Running sitcoms and the other drivelt they peddle as entertainment.

In that speech the President laid out his plan, told us what he wants to do, and explained his goals — how we'll reach the end of the sausage making.

Here was the explanation they couldn't wait to hear, but when they got it they weren't there to hear it, nor were their millions of listeners. And when they finally got around to reporting on the speech, they had nothing but criticisms to offer. Their excuse? The White House never asked for network time. That's probably because they knew they wouldn't have gotten it. This was a major news event, one they had been asking for. If they were genuine news outlets one would have thought they didn't need to be asked.

But they have no problem in finding the time to allow their so-called experts to heap criticism and abuse on the President — a wartime president they don't like in the midst of a war they don't like. So they set out to show us the ugly results of this war while they protect us from seeing the President explain what he is trying to do, and spelling out how he plans to do it. They also want to protect us from seeing the horror of the beheading of Nick Berg but they can't wait to show us, day after day, pictures of the abuse of Iraqi prisoners by a tiny handful of decadent soldiers.

They want us to see the sausage being made — but they won't show us what it will be like after it's made.

Like the Democrats, the media want to make sure that President Bush will not be re-elected in November and they are willing to undermine the war effort if that's what it takes. They have launched a full court press against George Bush, and they have driven down his poll ratings and created a sense of unease and war weariness among the American people. They are trying to do what they did in Vietnam — help the other side win.

Nice people.

Soldiers escorting prisoners take fire

By The Associated Press
NAJAF, Iraq (AP) — Gunmen opened fire on a U.S. Army vehicle today in Najaf's twin city, wounding two American soldiers and raising fears over the agreement struck the day before to end the bloody standoff around this Shiite holy city. Mortars fell on the main U.S. garrison but caused no injuries.

Armed members of Muqtada al-Sadr's militia — some of them masked and brandishing rocket-propelled grenade launchers and Kalashnikov rifles — roamed the streets of Kufa on Friday. Most of the shops were closed and the streets were largely deserted. Three people were killed and eight injured in armed clashes, hospital workers said.

Elsewhere, U.S. troops escorting a convoy of inmates released from the Abu Ghraib prison briefly exchanged fire with assailants Friday. It was the third major release from the facility since the scandal broke over the abuse of detainees last month.

On Thursday, Shiite leaders announced a deal with radical Shiite leader Muqtada al-Sadr to halt the fighting between U.S. troops and his radical militia, the al-Mahdi Army. The U.S.-led coalition said it was not a party to the agreement but would suspend offensive operations.

Despite the agreement, nine mortar shells hit the main U.S. camp in the Najaf area on Friday morning, according to CNN, which has a correspondent embedded there. U.S. soldiers detained four suspected militia members who said they were unaware of the truce, CNN said.

The U.S. command in Baghdad said gunmen fired on a U.S. Humvee on a street in Kufa, which adjoins Najaf. The command confirmed two Americans were wounded but provided no further details.

Later Friday, explosions were heard in the Kufa area but it was unclear what caused them. U.S. forces blocked the highways leading to the city. Gunmen from al-Sadr's militia could be seen in Kufa's streets.

During the seven-week standoff with the coalition, al-Sadr had appeared every Friday in a mosque in Kufa to deliver the traditional sermon. He did not show up Friday, however, and it was unclear why.

An al-Mahdi fighter told an Associated Press reporter that U.S.

Relatives of Abu Ghraib detainees react as buses with freed prisoners leave the Abu Ghraib prison in Baghdad, Iraq, Friday.

armored vehicles approached the mosque early Friday and the militia-men opened fire. He said three militia-men were killed but it was unclear if they were the same casualties reported by the hospital.

The truce deal announced Thursday provides the Americans a way out of a standoff that threatened to alienate Iraq's Shiites — the largest religious community. But U.S. demands for al-Sadr's arrest and disbanding his militia were unmet — and the deal opens the door for a political role for a figure that President Bush had branded a "thug." The deal also allows for discussions of al-Sadr's future, talks that will certainly stretch past the June 30 handover.

Baltimore children found decapitated

BALTIMORE (AP) — It was a scene that horrified even veteran police officers: three children decapitated.

The two 9-year-old girls and 10-year-old boy were found by their mother when she returned to their apartment late Thursday afternoon.

"I've been around for 35 years and I've seen, unfortunately, my share of murders, but I've never seen something as bad as this," said Deputy Police Commissioner Kenneth Blackwell.

The first officer on the scene "couldn't handle it" and had to give the call to another officer, Blackwell said.

Late Thursday, homicide detectives were questioning an unidentified "person of interest" in connection with the crime.

The children had returned home from school about 3:30 p.m., Blackwell said. A weapon was found outside the apartment.

The mother, who speaks Spanish and little English, notified a neighbor when she made the discovery about 5:45 p.m. The neighbor called 911.

The mother gave police information about where to find the man being questioned. Officers found the man a few blocks away from the crime scene.

Two unidentified people grieve at the scene of a triple slaying Thursday in Baltimore.

First human West Nile case of 2004 reported

PHOENIX (AP) — Arizona and New Mexico have reported this year's first human cases of the mosquito-borne West Nile virus, health officials said.

On Wednesday, New Mexico reported its first human case. At a news conference Thursday, Dr.

Jonathan Weisbuch, director of the Maricopa County Department of Public Health, said an adult from the county developed symptoms May 8 and was admitted to a hospital. Weisbuch said that person has now fully recovered.

In all, eight residents from Maricopa County, which includes Phoenix, contracted the virus last year, but only one was infected within the county, Weisbuch said. That case — a person who became ill in September and has now recovered — was confirmed by the CDC as West Nile virus this month.

Screenings will be given

Glaucoma is the leading cause of blindness in the United States with approximately two million people having some degree of visual loss from glaucoma. Osteoporosis is responsible for more than 1.5 million fractures annually in the United States including 300,000 hip fractures, 700,000 vertebral fractures and 250,000 wrist fractures. It is important to be screened for glaucoma and osteoporosis so you do not become one of these statistics. To make these screenings more accessible to the community, the Center for Health & Wellness will be offering them during the month of June. Both screenings for June will be Tuesday, June 22, from 8 a.m. to noon and 1 to 3 p.m. The screenings are free, but those participating in the screenings must make an appointment by calling the Center for Health & Wellness. For more information or to schedule an appointment for the screenings, contact, Allison Lan-

Learn a Second Language

Because there is a large Hispanic community in my city, and since I occasionally run into Spanish-speaking people who don't speak English, I have recently been brushing up on my Spanish. Three years of high school Spanish didn't exactly make me fluent, but the benefit of being able to speak to people, even with rudimentary phrases of fractured grammar, more than makes up for the minor difficulty. Recently, while at a mall, I asked a man for directions to a particular store. He responded, "No English," so I turned and began to walk away, but then I decided to turn back and ask him if he spoke Spanish. "Habra espanol?" I asked. "Si," he responded, and so I asked him - in Spanish - if he knew where the store was located. He smiled as he pointed the way, explaining that it was on the right - "a la derecha." I thanked him - "muchas gracias" - and as I walked away, I wondered how much of this good man's day was spent in silence because he doesn't speak English. This simple interaction made me feel that the many hours of listening to Spanish while driving in my car was indeed, time well spent, and I believe this man was happy to know that he had helped me. I'll keep working on my Spanish, and perhaps my less-than-perfect Spanish convinced him that he might learn my language too.

Therefore its name was called Babel, because there the Lord confused the language of all the earth; and from there the Lord scatter them abroad over the face of all the earth.

St. Louis Cardinals' Scott Rolen, right, is congratulated by teammate Albert Pujols following his three-run home run that scored Pujols and Jim Edmonds during the third inning against the Pittsburgh Pirates Thursday.

St. Louis stops Pirates, 6-3

Cardinals end skid behind Rolen's four RBIs

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Scott Rolen did everything right, except remember that it was get-away day.

Rolen homered and drove in four runs, giving him a major league-leading 49 RBIs, in the St. Louis Cardinals' 6-3 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates on Thursday. He left Busch Stadium without speaking to reporters because he had to hurriedly pack for the team's seven-game trip that begins Friday in Houston, so his teammates spoke for him.

"The guy is amazing," catcher Mike Matheny said. "He's been carrying us for a while. We can't rely on only him."

Jeff Suppan (4-4) worked six solid innings to help the Cardinals end a three-game losing streak and split an abbreviated two-game series with the Pirates. Tuesday's game was postponed because of rain and spot flooding.

Pittsburgh's Daryle Ward, who hit for the cycle and tied his career best with six RBIs Wednesday night, singled in his first at-bat.

But he didn't get the ball out of the infield after that in a 1-for-4 day.

Rolen's 11th homer was a three-run shot off a hanging breaking ball from Ryan Vogelsong (1-4) in the third.

Rolen added a sacrifice fly in the fourth to make it 6-0. Rolen drove in six runs in the two games, and has eight RBIs in his last three games.

"He's been the MVP, I'll put it that way," St. Louis right fielder Reggie Sanders said.

Albert Pujols had a first-inning sacrifice fly and drew a career-high four walks for the Cardinals. John Mabry was 2-for-3 with a double, making him 4-for-7 with two doubles and two walks in two games since being promoted from Triple-A Memphis.

Mabry will get his third straight start Friday at Houston.

"That's the kind of lift a club can use," manager Tony La Russa said. "So he'll have Mr. Clemens tomorrow."

Vogelsong struggled on the mound in his first appearance against St. Louis, but was the hitting star for the Pirates. He was 2-for-3 with an RBI double, but gave up six runs on five hits in five innings with five walks and five strikeouts.

"Anytime you walk guys it isn't any good," Vogelsong said. "I really paid the price for it. I've got to find a way, that's what I keep saying, and that's the bottom line."

Vogelsong is 0-4 in eight starts since winning in his season debut April 8 against the Phillies. This month he has a 6.43 ERA.

"It's been a tough go for him," manager Lloyd McClendon said. "We just need to continue to encourage this young man and work on his command and get him feeling good about himself, and I think he's going to be a quality pitcher for us."

Suppan won for the first time at home, giving up three runs in six innings. He played most of last season for the Pirates.

Watson shines in soggy start at Valhalla

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — What Tom Watson termed a poor final practice session for the Senior PGA Championship gave him no indication of the breakthrough he'd make in the first round.

After stewing overnight about his swing, Watson tweaked it ever so slightly. That minor change helped him shoot a 4-under 67 Thursday on a Valhalla Golf Club course made soggy by persistent rain earlier in the week.

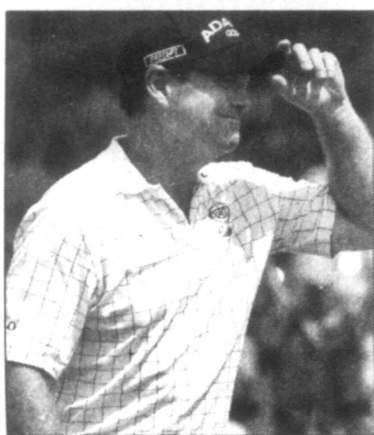

Watson, the 2001 Senior PGA winner, shared the lead in the suspended first round with Hale Irwin, a three-time champion in the event. Irwin birdied three of his final four holes.

The start of the tournament was delayed two hours after overnight rain drenched the course. Play was suspended because of lightning and 72 players were due back at 7:30 a.m. Friday to complete the opening round.

Gil Morgan was 3 under through 15 holes, and Jay Haas, making his first Champions Tour start, was 2 under — also through 15.

Haas, a nine-time PGA Tour winner, turned 50 in December, but has remained on the regular tour. He has four top-10 finishes this year and is 25th on the PGA Tour money list with $1,082,757.

Most players said that, because of the wet conditions, the course seemed longer than its listed 6,990 yards. Because of the conditions, players were allowed to lift, clean, and place their balls in the fairways.

Tom Watson acknowledges the crowd on the ninth green as he finishes his first round in Senior PGA Championship at Valhalla Golf Club in Louisville, Thursday.

"This golf course was a little different than what we have seen in the last few days," Irwin said.

Watson, who started on No. 10, also birdied three of his final four holes and had only one bogey. Watson called the 6-foot putt for bogey on No. 2 "the most critical putt I made today" because it kept his confidence high.

Watson closed with a 10-foot birdie putt on No. 6, a two-putt from 50 feet for birdie on No. 7 and a 16-foot birdie putt on No. 9.

Watson called his round "somewhat unexpected" because he said he struggled Wednesday.

"I worried about it all night," he said.

Lakers on brink of Finals

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Kobe Bryant drove the baseline, hung in the air a while to draw contact from Minnesota's Michael Olowokandi, then finally flipped the ball over his head toward the basket.

Somehow, it banked in. Without changing expression, Bryant shook his head from side to side.

It was like: "Stop me? Are you kidding?"

Bryant missed the ensuing free throw, but it hardly mattered. The spectacular reverse layup was part of Bryant's 16-point output in the last 6:12 of the third quarter that helped expand the Los Angeles Lakers' two-point lead to 15.

The Lakers went on to beat the Timberwolves 92-85 Thursday night for a 3-1 lead in the Western Conference finals.

Game 5 is Saturday night in Minnesota.

Bryant finished with 31 points, eight rebounds and four assists in his third courtroom-to-court game of the playoffs and fifth overall.

The Lakers won all five games, and Bryant was brilliant in all five.

"I don't think there's anyone in the game who makes more tough shots than he does," Timberwolves coach Flip Saunders said.

AP Photo
The Los Angeles Lakers' Kobe Bryant, left, drives under the basket for two points against the Minnesota Timberwolves' Michael Olowokandi in the third quarter of Game 4 of the Western Conference Finals in Los Angeles, Thursday.

"He's one of those guys that when he gets one or two shots, he gets things going, the energy gets going, and he really feeds off (the crowd)."

"He has an uncanny ability to take over games at different periods of time."

Shaquille O'Neal added 19 points and 19 rebounds; Derek Fisher scored 15, and Karl Malone had 12 points, 11 rebounds and eight assists for the Lakers, who moved within one win of their fourth trip to the NBA Finals in five seasons.

Only seven teams in league history have won best-of-seven series after trailing 3-1, and teams coached by the Lakers' Phil Jackson are 43-0 in series when they've led.

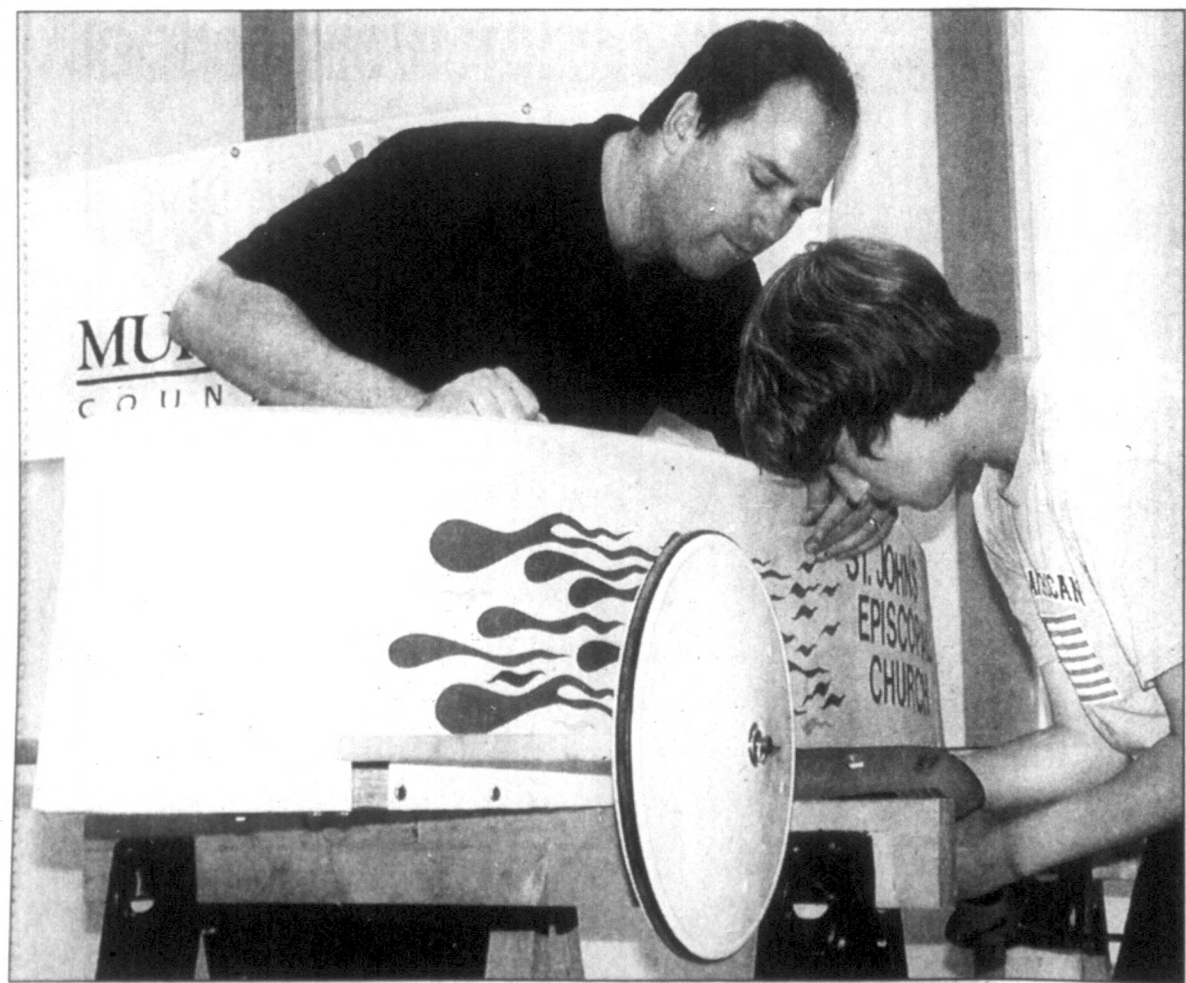

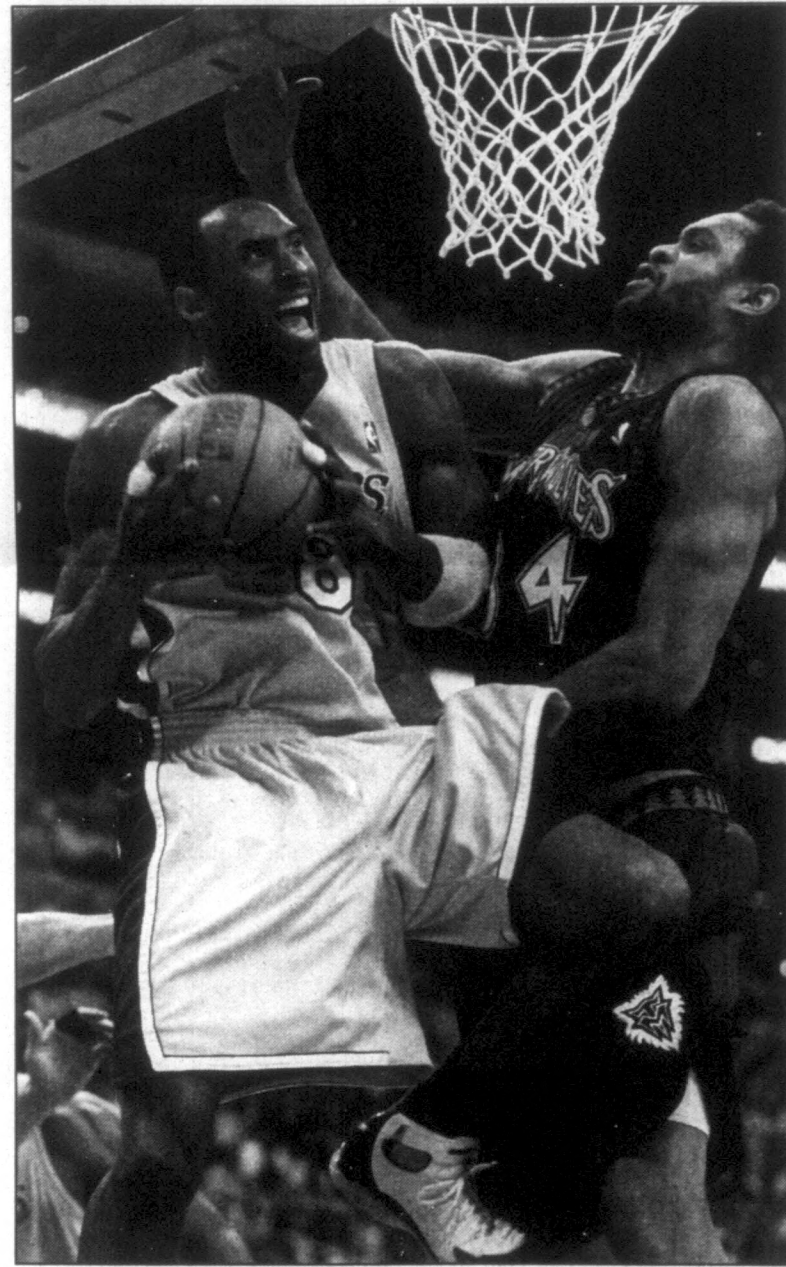

In addition, Jackson-coached teams are 9-0 in conference finals.

So where does that leave the Timberwolves?

In deep trouble.

"We have to embrace this. I know that guys like Spree and KG are embracing this, because right now people are writing us off," said Minnesota's Mark Madson, referring to teammates Latrell Sprewell and Kevin Garnett. "But we're not writing ourselves off."

Bryant arrived at Staples Center more than an hour before the opening tipoff after spending the day at a pretrial hearing in Eagle, Colo.

Eighth annual Memorial Tourism Shootout tournament begins today

Staff Report
Murray Ledger & Times

The eighth annual USSSA Memorial Tourism Shootout returns to the region, beginning today as a record 70 teams participate in the youth baseball travel and all-star team extravaganza.

The USSSA World Series qualifier event was originally hosted by Mayfield but has grown now to include Murray and Draffenville. Preliminary pool play was scheduled to begin tonight and will continue through Saturday.

On Sunday the championships will be decided as the various age divisions dwindle down their respective fields based on Friday-Saturday records. The Memorial Tourism Shootout has teams from 7-under through 16-under participating.

"The tournament is really a well-established event in this region," said USSSA State Director Pat Powers. "Even with the addition of two more holiday weekend events within two hours, the Tourism Shootout has continued to grow."

The tournament grew from Mayfield only last year in a trade-off move that was made possible when Murray tournament officials agreed to share their Freedom Fest event with Mayfield.

Now both holiday tournaments has enough fields to become even bigger. And, all of the participating communities now benefit from having teams stay overnight for two weekends, instead of just one.

Tourism grants from the Murray Tourism Commission and the Mayfield-Graves Co. Tourism Commission help underwrite a portion of the tournament.

Six local teams will be playing in this weekend's Shootout. The Murray Bucs are entered among nine clubs in the 8-under field. The Dirty Dawgs are among 12 teams in the 10-under division.

The Murray Thunder will vie for honors in the 12-under field of nine.

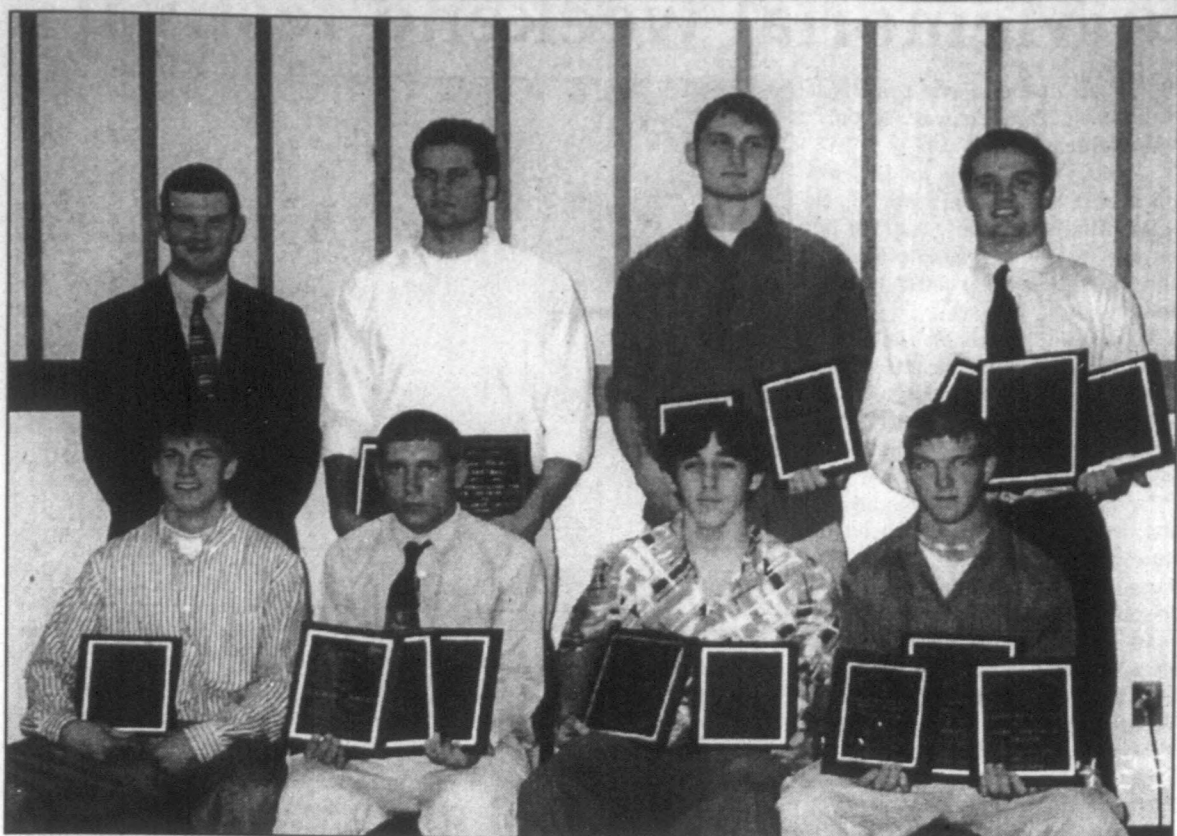

The Murray Lightning plays in the 13-under division, while the Murray Bandits carry the local flag in the 14-under group. Calloway County will take the field in the 16-under group.

The Bucs start at 11:15 Saturday morning at Mike Miller Park in Draffenville. The Dirty Dawgs' first game is at 10:45 Saturday morning in Murray. The Thunder takes the field today at 7 p.m. in Murray.

The Lightning will open play at 7 tonight in Mayfield, while the Bandits play a doubleheader tonight, beginning at 7 in Murray. Calloway will also play tonight at 7 Miller Park.

In all, over 140 games will be played through championship Sunday. Monday will be make-up day in the event of inclement weather.

Admission for the tournament is $5 for the weekend. Kids 8-under are free. Complete schedule information can be viewed at www.teamworkevents.com.

Smarty Jones gives a kick-start to horse racing

By BETH HARRIS
AP Sports Writer

Smarty Jones is the people's horse. He has an undefeated record, modest pedigree and a trainer, jockey and owners who are regular Joes.

His victories in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness sent the sport's often anemic TV ratings soaring. His workouts at tiny Philadelphia Park attracted about 5,000 people. And Smarty was the first horse on Sports Illustrated's cover in 21 years.

The small chestnut colt with the long bangs is giving the sport another high-profile boost a year after Funny Cide and "Seabiscuit" captivated fans.

"It's a joy for me to see people come out and flock around this horse like they do," said John Servis, Smarty Jones' trainer. "It's great for the whole industry, and I hope it carries on."

On June 5, horse racing's next "Smarty Party" may be triple the fun. The colt will try to win the Belmont Stakes and become the first Triple Crown champion since Affirmed in 1978.

"People aren't coming to see a horse race — they're coming to see a coronation," said Bill Nader, senior vice president of the New York Racing Association.

Smarty Jones' success has non-racing people talking excitedly about a sport that struggles to maintain its fan base beyond the Triple Crown and Breeders' Cup.

"It's reaching a lot of people that would have never got involved in the sport. If we could just get a handful that we didn't have before, it would help," said Hall of Fame jockey Mike Smith, who rode Lion Heart in losing efforts against Smarty Jones in the Derby and Preakness.

Nobody is counting on Smarty Jones to restore racing to its glory days of the 1930s and '40s, when thousands packed the grandstands from New York's Belmont Park to California's Santa Anita. Back then, a day at the races was a diversion from life's hardships.

Routs for Tigers, Yanks and A's

By The Associated Press

Detroit, New York and Oakland put together remarkable offensive performances on a day when batters beat up pitchers across the American League.

The Tigers smacked 27 hits to tie a Detroit record, with Carlos Pena going 6-for-6 with two home runs in a 17-7 victory over the Kansas City Royals on Thursday.

In Baltimore, Alex Rodriguez homered and Hideki Matsui had two hits during an eight-run fifth as New York piled up a season-high 21 hits in an 18-5 victory over the Orioles that completed a three-game sweep.

And at Fenway Park, Eric Chavez and Scott Hatteberg homered in the Oakland Athletics' 15-2 rout of the Boston Red Sox.

"We got so many base hits, I just couldn't believe it," Pena said.

He tied the Detroit mark for hits in a game, sharing the accomplishment with Ty Cobb and two others. The Tigers had not gotten 27 hits since Sept. 29, 1928, against the Yankees.

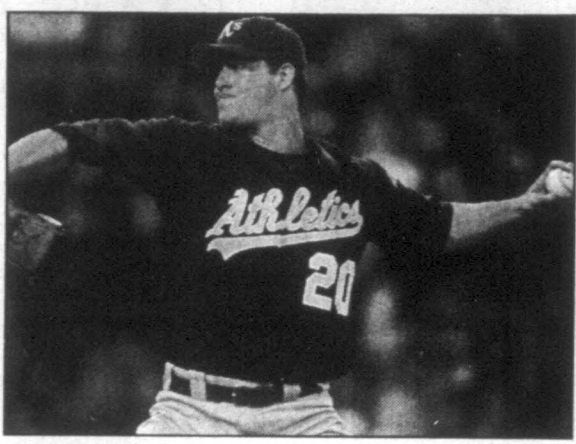

Detroit clubbed eight doubles, getting the most hits in the majors since Boston's 28 in a 25-8 rout of Florida at Fenway Park last June 27.

"Things like this never happen. Very, very seldom do they happen," Pena said.

In other AL games, it was: Toronto 3, Anaheim 2; Tampa Bay 5, Minnesota 4; and Cleveland 9, Seattle 5.

At Kansas City, Nate Robertson (4-3) pitched five innings for the victory. Brian Anderson (1-7), who had been 5-0 against the Tigers, leads the league in losses.

Detroit improved to 22-24. Last year, the Tigers did not win No. 22 until July 8 and finished with an AL-record 119 losses, one shy of the post-1900 major league record.

Athletics 15, Red Sox 2
 Boston, which had won five straight and nine of 11, allowed a season-high 17 hits and its most runs since a 15-9 loss to Tampa Bay on July 24.

Mark Mulder (6-2) allowed two runs and four hits in 5 2-3 innings, issuing a career-high seven walks.

Bronson Arroyo (2-2) gave up nine runs — six earned — and seven hits in 3 1-3 innings.

"It's tough to forget about a game like this," he said.

Barnett stays as Colorado's head coach

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — The football coach is reinstated and the athletics director stays, but an overhaul of the University of Colorado athletics department is planned after a bruising, four-month recruiting scandal.

University President Elizabeth Hoffman and Richard Byyny, the chancellor of the flagship Boulder campus, unveiled a major shake-up of athletics intended to boost oversight.

Nine women since 1997 have accused Colorado football players or recruits of sexual assault. Three of the women have sued Colorado in federal court, saying the school fostered a hostile environment that contributed to their assaults.

Neighborhood gathering grows to Memorial weekend festival

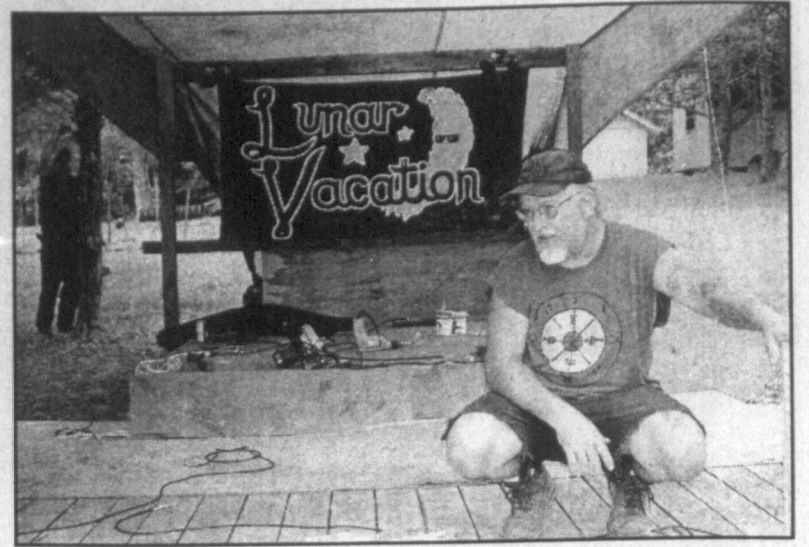

By JOHN WRIGHT
Staff Writer

It started out as a favor to neighbors. (At least that is all Calloway County's Steve Hoskie was doing four years ago when, as a way of giving families around his home near Pottertown something to do for Memorial Day Weekend, he invited them to his place for a get-together. That first year, several people came for what amounted to a potluck social. Saturday, food will still be a big part of his latest gathering that, through maturity, word of mouth and the power of music, has grown into the Third Annual Pottertown Music Festival.

"We've got five bands coming and most of them are from Calloway County," said Hoskie, whose own rock trio Lunar Vacation will headline the bill. "Over the years, this has grown. Last year, we had probably 150 people here. This year, if things go right, I'm thinking we're going to have upwards of 300." "It looks kind of like Woodstock. Last year, we had all kinds of tents lined up on a hill and we'll have more of that this year." The main idea, though, is still the same for this event as it was when it had no name four years ago. Hoskie is hoping to attract neighbors he has not come to know just yet to come for a full day of entertainment that will also include games for young and old alike, including a horseshoe pit for both age groups. Hoskie, who distributes flyers to his neighbors announcing the festival each year said he has managed to convince some of those to come for the first time this Saturday. Food is also still featured. Many visitors still bring their own dishes; one person reportedly is bringing five pounds of potato salad. Those items will now mix, though, with 80 pounds of chicken and five whole deer shoulders, courtesy of a hunting buddy of Hoskie's. What has changed, though, is the importance of the music. Until this year, Lunar Vacation was the only live band featured. "What I'm wanting to do with this is offer these bands a way to get heard. Many of these guys will be playing in front of people for the first time this weekend," Hoskie said. Hoskie, 46, probably knows a good band when he hears one. A drummer professionally since 15, he has worked with some big names in the music business, including country legend Lefty Frizzell. "I like variety, and the people that come to this do have a lot of variety," he said, noting that while the majority of Saturday's performers have a classic rock sound, one band prefers country, while another drifts toward heavy metal. "That's the great part about this. You've got different cultures, different ages, but everybody has a great time with it," Hoskie added. The festival location is at 4595

Dockside Is Open Great Food and Music on Tap at Eagle Nest

by Barry Raidt

Next to boating, my favorite thing about warm weather is the annual re-opening of the Dockside Restaurant & Bar. Beginning Friday we're open daily from lunch until dark and we're already rocking.

Along with the best food on the lake, our little oasis has an enticing outdoor bar with ice cold beer! There's patio seating for sun-lovers, and indoor tables if you need to cool down.

We're proud to introduce an all-new wait staff this season, managed by Dawn Hasz of Murray. Dawn has tremendous restaurant experience, and we're happy to welcome her aboard, along with our other new associates.

As in the past, weekends mean live, dockside music. Over Memorial Day weekend the popular band, Nightfish, will be on deck. These guys pound out a hearty dose of the blues and your favorite oldies. They jam under the parachute Sunday afternoon.

A special thanks to all the veterans and soldiers serving around the world this Memorial Day from all of us at Eagle Nest Marina and Dockside Restaurant!

See ya dockside!

A Summer of SUPERHEROES & Sorcerers

By DAVID GERMAIN
AP Movie Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A boy wizard, a student superhero and a newlywed ogre walk into a movie theater ...

No matter the punch line, Hollywood studios hope to laugh all the way to the ticket counter on the strength of those characters, lead players in the summer movie season's big three: "Harry Potter and the Prisoner of Azkaban" and "Spider-Man 2."

Daniel Radcliffe returns as the young sorcerer, this time sought by a murderous wizard who escapes from a prison for conjurers.

And for Fourth of July weekend comes "Spider-Man 2," the film that has the best chance of catching "The Passion of the Christ" as 2004's biggest moneymaker. "Spider-Man" shattered box-office records with a $114.8 million opening weekend in 2002 and went to become the year's top movie with $404 million.

The sequel pits Spider-Man against villain Doc Ock (Alfred Molina). Complicating matters, while moonlighting as a superhero, Tobey Maguire's Peter Parker is coping with life as a frazzled college kid, working two jobs and pining over girl-next-door Mary Jane Watson (Kirsten Dunst).

"He's a relatable superhero. He's a normal kid or human being who happens to be bitten by a spider," said Maguire of the gawky teen whose encounter with an irradiated arachnid gives him awesome powers. "He's a kid who goes through the usual stuff. Girl problems. ... His own selfish desires versus a greater responsibility. Questions we might all ask ourselves if we were in his position."

The third "Harry Potter" reunites key cast members, including Radcliffe as the title wizard and Rupert Grint and Emma Watson as his chums at Hogwarts School. Michael Gambon signs on as school patriarch Dumbledore, inheriting the role from the late Richard Harris, while Gary Oldman plays the escaped wizard.

Alfonso Cuaron took over as director from Chris Columbus, who oversaw the first two movies and remained a producer on the third. At two hours and 15 minutes, "Prisoner of Azkaban" is by far the shortest yet in the series, troubling news to young fans who want every stitch of action from J.K. Rowling's books translated to the screen.

With the first two films setting the stage, though, Cuaron was able to leap right into the action for the third, Columbus said.

"It's always a double-edged sword. Every kid who saw the movies wanted them to be longer and almost every adult wanted them shorter," Columbus said. "But I think this movie is so good that I don't think you'll get a lot of gripes."

Other action adventures for summer include "Troy," a tale of the ancient siege starring Brad Pitt as Greek warrior Achilles; the global-disaster flick "The Day After Tomorrow," with Dennis Quaid; Halle Berry's "Catwoman," featuring the DC Comics character; an update of "The Manchurian Candidate," starring Denzel Washington; "Collateral," with Tom Cruise in the story of a hit man on a killing spree; Jackie Chan's "Around the World in 80 Days," a reprise of the Jules Verne classic, featuring a bit part by Arnold Schwarzenegger; and "I, Robot," with Will Smith in an adaptation of Isaac Asimov's tales.

Smith plays a detective in 2035, when robots have taken over trash-collecting, working mines and other grunt jobs to free humanity for higher pursuits. A man who mistrusts technology, Smith's character is on the trail of a robot he thinks committed a murder, an impossibility under Asimov's robot rules.

"We took the basic gist of the stories, that there are three laws of behavior that prevent robots from injuring human beings or allowing human beings to be injured," Smith said. "Because my character's had a bad experience with robots, he doesn't trust the three laws. Something intuitively in his mind tells him that the three laws don't work."

While "I, Robot" depicts a world SPIDER-MAN moving toward technological perfection, "The Day After Tomorrow" presents a planet wracked by global warming, which causes cyclones, deep freezes, squalls and other catastrophes.

"This is the ultimate disaster movie," said Quaid, who plays a climatologist trying to save the world. "It's got everything. Tornadoes, floods, tidal waves, blizzards, hail storms with hail the size of bowling balls."

Also coming this summer: "King Arthur," starring Clive Owen as the legendary English ruler and Keira Knightley as Guinevere; "The Village," the latest creepfest from M. Night Shyamalan ("The Sixth Sense," "Signs"), starring Joaquin Phoenix, Sigourney Weaver, Adrien Brody and William Hurt; the monster smackdown "Alien Vs. Predator," featuring the two extraterrestrial beasts; "The Chronicles of Riddick," with Vin Diesel back as the sci-fi anti-hero from "Pitch Black"; "Thunderbirds," starring Bill Paxton in a live-action update of the cult TV puppet series about future rescue pilots; and "The Bourne Supremacy," with Matt Damon returning as the amnesiac spy from "The Bourne Identity."

Damon's Jason Bourne this time is framed for murder and on the run, and though his memories remain cloudy, he continues to find he possesses just the right skills to get out of any scrape.

"One of the hurdles we had on the first one was just the way I look. I don't look like your classic action guy," Damon said.

"What we decided is, the more things I could do, the more believable and credible the character would be and the better the ride would be for the audience. So we just wanted to put me in as many situations as possible."

Lighthearted summer films include: "Princess Diaries 2: Royal Engagement," starring Anne Hathaway and Julie Andrews in a follow-up to their 2001 summer hit; "The Stepford Wives," with Nicole Kidman, Matthew Broderick, Bette Midler and Christopher Walken in a black-comedy remake of the 1970s hit; "Garfield," a live-action and computer-animated adaptation of the comic strip, with Bill Murray providing the fat cat's voice; "Shall We Dance?" starring Richard Gere, Jennifer Lopez and Susan Sarandon in a remake of the Japanese film about a businessman who falls in love with formal dancing; "A Cinderella Story," with Hilary Duff giving a contemporary spin to the fairy-tale romance; and "Anchorman: The Legend of Ron Burgundy," featuring Will Ferrell as a '70s newsman facing off against a feminist colleague (Christina Applegate). Still, summer is not all action and laughs.

A few classy films will be mixed in among the popcorn flicks.

Tom Hanks and Steven Spielberg reunite for "The Terminal," the story of an Eastern European visitor who becomes a man without a country, stuck in the arrivals area at Kennedy airport after a coup in his home land leaves him without a valid passport. Catherine Zeta-Jones co-stars.

Robert Redford plays a kidnapped tycoon engaged in a socioeconomic debate with his abductor (Willem Dafoe) in "The Clearing," which co-stars Helen Mirren.

Kevin Kline and Ashley Judd star in "De-Lovely," an elegant portrait of Cole Porter's hedonistic life. The film features a superstar musical lineup, with cameos by Elvis Costello, Sheryl Crow, Alanis Morissette, Diana Krall and Natalie Cole singing Porter tunes.

"De-Lovely" opens on Porter as a dying old man suddenly transported to a theater where long-gone loved ones are the cast in a stage musical of his life. The action then flits from more conventional film biography to fanciful musical sequences, including one in which Kline's Porter and legendary studio boss Louis B. Mayer break out in song on the MGM lot.

"It's sort of like that split second before you die," Kline said. "Only Cole Porter would have his life flash before him as a musical. The sheer theatricality of that. How better for his life story to play out?"

Know how to transfer your car

Buying and selling cars. It is practically a hobby for some people in Calloway County. In fact, numerous automobiles are transferred each year in Calloway County. Many of those transfers are

Letter of the Law
By David Harrington
County Attorney

incomplete or incorrect.

There is a misconception that if a seller or buyer get the automobile title notarized, then the auto is officially transferred. That is not the case.

The official transfer can only be performed by the county clerk.

When a title is not officially transferred, many problems can arise for both the seller and buyer.

Some of the complications may include:

■ The seller could continue to be billed for the vehicle's taxes.

■ The seller still could be the owner of record, therefore, responsible for any damage caused by the vehicle. If the buyer causes an accident while driving the vehicle, the seller could be held responsible for any damages to the vehicles or people involved.

■ The seller could cancel the vehicle registration for transfer.

■ The seller could file a complaint for the buyer's failure to transfer the title. A fine of up to $2000 can be charged to the negligent party.

To ensure that titles are transferred properly and legally, the following is recommended:

■ Both the buyer and seller should go the Calloway County Clerk's office.

■ Both should bring photo identification (preferably a driver's license) and their Social Security cards.

■ The buyer must bring proof of insurance for the vehicle being purchased.

■ The seller must bring the title, which has an affidavit on the back that must be completed.

■ The buyer should be prepared to pay the transfer tax, which is 6 percent of the selling price of the vehicle.

■ In addition, the buyer must pay a $10 transfer fee. The vehicle needs a license plate, or if plates need to be renewed, the buyer must pay an additional $15.

■ It is also recommended that the county clerk notarize the title, and an additional charge could be added for that service. (If the notarization comes from a source other than the county clerk, then the seller and buyer are responsible for any incorrect information.)

■ Any delinquent tax on the vehicles owned by the seller or buyer must be paid before the transfer can be completed.

Once these procedures are finished, the transfer is made automatically by computer, and both the buyer's and seller's tax information is changed. The buyer should receive the new title within two to three weeks. If a lien has been filed on the vehicle, it may take up to five weeks to receive the title.

Most problems could be avoided if both the buyer and seller would call or go to the Calloway County Clerk's office first.

Failing to transfer a vehicle is a violation of Kentucky law.

The law says that no one can sell or purchase a vehicle without first going to the county's clerk's office and getting the title transferred. The law protects both the seller and buyer and helps avoid complications later on.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, May 29, 2004.

You have an unusual sense of creativity and fun this year, which emerges this fall in particular. You are able to intellectualize and find solutions. Your mind always seems to toss you in the proper direction. Be careful with funds, as often those you care for might ask for more than you can give. You will also tend toward risk-taking. You will find that you need to maintain a tight rein on your spending. If you are single, flirting is one of your natural sports. You are likely to meet someone significant this year. This relationship develops as you would like it to. If you are attached, the two of you make decisions that add much more caring to your bond. Let the warmth begin. LIBRA makes you smile.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
 You might want to throw a party or get together with friends. Know that you could be doing a good deal of the work. Why not ask each person to bring something with them? Lessen your load. You cannot get around a serious talk. Tonight: Expect to pitch in.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
 Romance breaks loose this weekend. You start this unofficial first weekend of summer with fun, flirtation and romance. Just realize your limits. Don't stretch your budget too far. Realize that you don't need to impress others. Tonight: Go for what would make you happy.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
* You might want to stay close to home today. In fact, make it OK to vanish, as you often push yourself so hard. Be more in touch with your feelings. You don't always have to give the party or cater to others. Tonight: Do your thing.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
 You naturally draw others to you. Plan an outing or visit with friends. Inviting others for a picnic fills the bill. Make time for those you haven't visited with in a while. Get together and celebrate. Give up worrying. Tonight: Out and about.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
 Work with others, even if you want to take off and do your own thing. Others need your feedback. Make calls and catch up on friends' and family's news. Reaching out makes a big difference to others. Don't allow a family member to rain on your parade. Tonight: Accept one of your many invitations.

Washing eggs will not obliterate salmonella

DEAR DR. GOTT: I raise my own chickens for eggs and the consumption of poultry. I wash the eggs I gather in the kitchen sink. I've begun using a tablespoon of Clorox bleach in the water in an attempt to avoid a salmonella infection, yet I wonder if this is adequate prevention. Am I at any more (or less) risk for the disease because I raise my own birds?

DEAR READER: The bacteria called salmonella, a type of ubiquitous microorganism, are actually introduced into the interior of the egg during development and maturation, before it is laid. Therefore, washing an intact egg will only clean the outer shell; it won't affect any bacteria that may be present within the egg. The Clorox is not necessary.

Salmonella seems to be fairly uncommon in home-raised poultry. The major problem appears to exist in eggs obtained from large, commercial egg producers.

Infection with salmonella — which causes fever, abdominal cramps and diarrhea — can easily be prevented by cooking any eggs before they are eaten. In other words, if you're concerned about salmonella don't consume raw eggs, including those used in many traditional eggnog recipes.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I suffer from chronic pain but am unable to obtain the relief I need, so I go to numerous doctors. None of them knows about the others. I am presently on Oxycontin, Percocet, MS Contin, Demerol, Dilaudid, methadone, Duragesic patches, Vicodin and codeine, along with Xanax, Valium, Ativan, Halcion and Restoril. I would like your opinion on my use of drugs. What are they doing to my health?

DEAR READER: They are killing you. Your drug dependence needs to be addressed without delay. In all likelihood, you will need a detoxification program, followed by pain-management therapy.

(On the other hand, if this correspondence is the product of another prank from my friends at what I call Smartmouth College in Hangover, N.H., you need to do nothing — but please stop sending me letters!) Just to be safe, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Managing Chronic Pain." Other readers who would like a copy should send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and $2 to Newsletter, P.O. Box 167, Wickliffe, OH 44092. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: About 15 years ago, I was placed on Synthroid for an underactive thyroid gland. What would cause the fluctuation in blood tests that I take every six months?

DEAR READER: The answer to your question depends on how extreme the fluctuations are. Ordinarily, once an appropriate dosage has been achieved (as judged by blood tests), few, if any, modifications are required. However, minor test-to-test alterations are common. In contrast, large variations may indicate that you are inconsistently absorbing the medicine, or the lab values may be incorrect. Ask your doctor about these fluctuations.

Office supervisor is blind to worker's bad habits

DEAR ABBY: I work in a large, open office with five other people. We all collaborate on the same projects. When our office was recarpeted, we rearranged our desks. I now sit next to a woman I'll call Ginger, who has one of the worst work ethics I have ever seen.

Ginger spends much of the day on personal e-mail, playing computer solitaire, taking frequent smoke breaks, sometimes even paying her bills and answering personal correspondence on company time. Our new supervisor is clueless about it.

On top of that, I recently heard Ginger lie to the supervisor about how she had so much work she couldn't complete an assignment. Should I tell our supervisor about Ginger's work habits? Should I say something to Ginger? Thanks for your help, Abby — it's been an awful burden. — OLD-FASHIONED IN BOULDER

DEAR OLD-FASHIONED: Talk to the supervisor privately and tell him or her what you have told me. Say nothing to Ginger, because that's the supervisor's job — and it will only cause resentment if you do. Many companies, as a matter of policy, check what their workers are doing online — so your story can be verified. When one member of a team is a slacker, it places an unfair burden on co-workers.

DEAR ABBY: When my 11-year-old daughter takes her bath, my husband sits on the toilet and eats his dinner in the bathroom with her. I find his behavior questionable and have asked him repeatedly to allow her some privacy. Nonetheless, he continues to "assist her" in bathing by adding bath oil to the water, etc.

Neither my husband nor my daughter thinks anything is wrong with this behavior — so what can I do?

He also strokes her backside to lull her to sleep at night, although she is now in sixth grade.

Please advise quickly before this gets out of hand. — UNEASY ABOUT MY DAUGHTER(S)

P.S. I have another daughter who is younger.

DEAR UNEASY: Your husband's behavior is inappropriate. Your daughter is old enough to bathe without supervision and should do so. You didn't mention how physically developed she is, but she will soon be a young woman. Your husband's method of "lulling" her to sleep is also too stimulating for both of them.

DEAR ABBY: I have three children. My oldest child is only 10. My parents remember leaving me home alone at that age, but that was 24 years ago. I feel things are too dangerous these days.

Is there an age when I can leave them home alone and know that all is OK? — CAUTIOUS MOM IN KANSAS

DEAR CAUTIOUS MOM: I'm sad to say that times have changed, and 10 is still too young. No child should be left alone unless he or she is big enough and sophisticated enough to fight off or elude an intruder, or handle other emergencies that might arise. If the children must be left, someone — a teenage baby sitter, for instance — should supervise.

Today in History

By The Associated Press
Today is Friday, May 28, the 149th day of 2004. There are 217 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
On May 28, 1934, the Dionne quintuplets — Annette, Cecile, Emilie, Marie and Yvonne — were born to Elzire Dionne at the family farm in Ontario, Canada.

On this date:
In 1533, England's Archbishop declared the marriage of King Henry VIII to Anne Boleyn valid.

In 1863, the first black regiment from the North left Boston to fight in the Civil War.

In 1892, the Sierra Club was organized in San Francisco.

In 1929, the first all-color talking picture, "On with the Show," opened in New York.

In 1937, President Franklin D. Roosevelt pushed a button in Washington, D.C., signaling that vehicular traffic could cross the just-opened Golden Gate Bridge in California.

In 1937, Neville Chamberlain became prime minister of Britain.

In 1972, the Duke of Windsor, who had abdicated the English throne to marry Wallis Warfield Simpson, died in Paris at age 77.

In 1977, 165 people were killed when fire raced through the Beverly Hills Supper Club in Southgate, Ky.

In 1984, President Reagan led a state funeral at Arlington National Cemetery for an unidentified American soldier killed in the Vietnam War.

Bidding Quiz

You are South, neither side vulnerable, and the bidding has gone:
North East South West
1♦ Pass 1♥ Pass
2♥ Pass ?
What would you bid now with each of the following four hands?
1. ♠ AJ9 ♥ QJ95 ♦ Q7 ♣ K984
2. ♠ K54 ♥ KJ872 ♦ 95 ♣ Q63
3. ♠ 10 ♥ K97632 ♦ Q83 ♣ A95
4. ♠ J8 ♥ KJ73 ♦ K962 ♣ KQ7

1. Three notrump. Since you have an opening bid facing an opening bid, there is no question about reaching game. Only two game contracts are feasible — three notrump or four hearts — and the best way of reaching for one of them is by jumping to three notrump. It would be wrong to bid only two notrump, which partner might pass.

If North's heart raise was based on four trumps, he will almost surely remove three notrump to four hearts, but if he raised with only three trumps, which is possible, he will no doubt pass and leave you in a contract you're a heavy favorite to make.

2. Pass. Partner has 13 to 15 points, part of which might be distributional in value. You are therefore unlikely to miss a game by passing.

and will often wind up with a plus score instead of the minus that might result from bidding, say, three hearts. It is true that you have a king more than you might have had for your one-heart response, but that is not a good-enough reason for continuing to bid when game is unlikely.

3. Four hearts. The strength of this hand lies as much in its distribution as in its high cards. Granting that you have only nine high-card points, the fact is that you have lots of tricks — and that's the bottom line in bridge.

Another way of assessing your prospects is to ask yourself: "Am I likely to lose four tricks with this hand after partner opens one diamond and raises hearts?" If the answer is no, as it ought to be, you should go directly to game.

4. Three clubs. You are on the verge of a game but can't tell whether to play in hearts, diamonds or notrump. Three diamonds (also forcing) might seem a more truthful bid, but it is not as helpful as three clubs in reaching for a notrump game — if that is the right contract. Partner might have spade strength, club weakness and only three hearts and be unable to bid three notrump over three diamonds.
