About 100 Ky. soldiers are eligible for recall overseas

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) - Just over 100 Kentucky soldiers could be involuntarily recalled to active duty in Iraq or Afghanistan next week, the Army said Friday.

Andrea Wales, a spokeswoman for the Army's Human Resources Command, said 101 former soldiers in the Individual Ready Reserve who list a Kentucky hometown are eligible for the call-up. Not everyone would receive the formal notifications due to begin arriving in mailboxes on Tuesday, she said.

The Army said it will call up more than 5,600 soldiers nationwide, mostly truck drivers, mechanics, supply clerks, administrative clerks or combat engineers. They will be kept on active duty for at least 18 months but not longer than two years.

The call-up will be done in three increments from July to December.

FBI urges vigilance for Fourth holiday

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) - A constant stream of intelligence indicating that al-Qaida wants to strike the United States this summer or fall has led federal officials to urge increased vigilance during the Independence Day weekend, but there is no specific threat of an attack timed to the holiday.

In a bulletin sent to law enforcement agencies nationwide Thursday, the FBI said police should step up patrols and watch for signs of terrorist activity, including surveillance of potential targets. The FBI also listed advice on how to spot possible suicide bombers.

"We know the U.S. homeland remains a top al-Qaida target," the

"The information that the FBI put out is just a reminder," he said Friday on NBC's "Today" show. "There are some lessons we've learned from observing the al-Qaida and other terrorist organizations conduct their attacks around the world."

The FBI said police should increase patrols this holiday weekend, vary the timing, size and routes of the patrols, and make sure all vehicles illegally parked in key areas are approached and their drivers questioned.

The Homeland Security Department had no plans to raise the nation's color-coded terror alert level above its current midpoint status of yellow, or elevated. Last week, the agency sent a bulletin urging tighter security to state and local officials and those that operate power and chemical plants and key transportation facilities. The government's approach to this major U.S. holiday was muted in comparison to Memorial Day, when the FBI and Attorney General John Ashcroft issued high-profile warnings that terrorists were nearly ready to strike. In Florida this week, Ashcroft repeated his contention that al-Qaida was between 75 percent and 90 percent ready to attack again.

MCCH to be up front about outof-pocket expenses

By KRISTIN TAYLOR Staff Writer

Jon O'Shaughnessy wants Murray-Calloway County Hospital to live up to its community responsibility, and part of being a good neighbor is estimating out-of-pocket costs for patients.

Historically, the hospital's patients wait to pay deductibles or co-payments for health care services until they received a bill. Sometimes the amount owed comes as a surprise, according to O'Shaughnessy, the hospital's CEO who is trying to restructure the not-for-profit organization to be fiscally responsible.

In efforts to be fair to patients and more efficient as a business, MCCH employees are being frained to estimate services and procedures, including what patients' insurance policies cover, so more payments can be made up front. O'Shaughnessy said he hopes to implement the new payment process within the next month

"We want to be extremely cautious about this process and ease into it, but I think we've been doing them a disservice by providing service then billing them and they don't know what they'll have to pay out of pocket," he said.

In an evaluation of MCCH's debt, nearly 60 percent of unpaid bills came from out-patient services, including laborstory work and radiology treatment. O'Shaughnessy told the governing Board of Trustees during its regular meeting Wednesday afternoon. He said the hospital administration expected the largest debt to come FBI said in the bulletin, sent weekly to 18,000 state and local law enforcement agencies.

Fourth of July celebrations are among the symbolic events that U.S. officials say could present an inviting target to al-Qaida, which intelligence reports indicate will attempt an attack during summer or fall. An attack also could be timed to coincide with the national political conventions or the November elections, plus the Olympics in August in Athens, Greece.

Homeland Security Secretary Tom Ridge said the warnings were not issued because of a specific KRIS ADAMS/Ledger & Times photo

Collecting fees at the time of service is becoming a national trend. O'Shaughnessy provided board members with a Wall Street Journal article from June 2 that documents the trend. In 2002, the cost of out-standing payments for care totaled $22.3 billion at 4,927. U.S. hospitals, according to the American Hospital Association.

Nashville, Tenn.-based HCA Inc., the nation's largest hospital chain, recently began asking patients to pay co-payments before non-emergency treatment. In cases of patients not being able to afford services at the time, the hospitals ask for at least a down payment, according to the Wall Street Journal article. One-fourth of the $2.2 million in bad debt at HCA's 191 hospitals in fiscal year 2003 was because of uncollected co-payments for insured patients, the article says

At Murray-Calloway County Hospital, O'Shaughnessy said there is an opportunity to reduce debt - both for patients and the hospital - because employees are going to be more forward with financial statements when patients register for treatment or procedures. Technology advancements also make pre-certifying patients through insurance companies easi-

Presbyterians reject OK for homosexual ordination

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) - The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) legislative assembly narrowly rejected a measure Friday to allow individual presbyteries to ordain gay clergy and lay officers.

Under the 259-255 vote, the current interpretation of church law forbidding the ordination of gay clergy will remain binding on the church, including on the regional bodies, known as presbyteries.

Immediately after the vote, about 300 Presbyterians who supported allowing the ordination of gay clergy gathered in a courtyard where they prayed and sang "We Shall Not Be Moved." Many wept and embraced.

"Tonight is another 'no' to us." the Rev. Jane Spahr, a lesbian min-ister from San Rafael, Calif., told the group. "All we wanted to do is walk beside you and serve beside you. We want the 'yes,' and we will return every year until the 'yes' is ours.

The church has looked the other way when some of its clergy and lay leaders professed their homosexuality, and Michael Adee, a gay elder in the First Presbyterian Church of Sante Fe, N.M., said this seemed like the year for change.

"I'm deeply saddened by the vote," Adee said in an interview. But he said he is optimistic that the denomination eventually will welcome gays in leadership positions.

"Hearts and minds are changing all around the country," said Adee, a national field organizer for the gay-rights group "More Light Presbyterians."

Conservative Presbyterians had warned that a vote for gay ordination at the denomination's national assembly could cause the largest rift in the church since Northern and Southern churches split over slavery at the start of the Civil War.

Automated Direct Mail wins national award for newsletter

Murray recently won third place nationally for their external newsletter, Direct Dimensions. This was awarded from the Mailing mail publication, PostScripts. and Fulfillment Service Association (MFSA).

This national graphic design award is entitled the "MFSA Award for Excellence". Winning entries were based mostly on original creations of art from the designer pertaining to graphic content and layout & design for a direct mail campaign. Other factors in judging were: copy content, budget & circulation, objective, process of creation, implementation, effectiveness & response rate (ADM had almost a 40% response rate).

To accept the award, owners of ADM, Jeff and LaDonna Sparks, as well as the creative director and creator of Direct Dimensions, Justin Kimbro, traveled to Seattle, WA. The award was given out dur-

Little to cheer from conservatives

WASHINGTON (AP) — Justice Antonin Scalia ended the Supreme Court term with some harsh words for his colleagues.

'This court seems incapable of admitting that some matters - any matters - are none of its business," he wrote on the court's final day.

Only fellow conservative Clarence Thomas wrote more dissents than Scalia in the nine-month term that ended this week. In the final days, Scalia complained about a misguided court that "seems to view it as its mission to Make Everything Come Out Right," even with wrong rulings.

In some of his sharpest criticism, Scalia called the court irresponsible in ruling that foreign terror suspects held in Cuba may chalfenge their treatment in U.S. courts.

It was one in a line of decisions by the justices this year that found American courts open to lawsuits over such things as international human rights abuses, on-the-job sexual harassment, World War IIera disputes over looted property, claims that states aren't accommodating disabled citizens and allegations of unconstitutional partisan gerrymandering in legislative boundary drawing.

Justices also said that U.S. courts and their protections were available to Americans accused by the president of being enemy combatants, another defeat for the Bush administration

Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist, who has generally steered a conservative course for the court, settled for a more moderate year.

"I can't think of a major conservative victory," said John McGinnis, a conservative law professor at Northwestern "They may be running out of steam. The terrorism ruling that Scalia criticized as irresponsible, clumsy and strange was written by John Paul Stevens, the court's oldest justice and its longest-serving liberal. Usually known as the maverick for his dissents, Stevens showed his adept ability to form alliances and was on the winning side in 16 of the court's 20 most significant cases. When he was on the losing side, he wrote to explain why. Stevens said that a Nevada cattle rancher "acted well within his rights when he opted to stand mute' when a police officer asked his name. The court, however, ruled that police can demand the names of people they suspect of wrongdoing and arrest those who don't comply Stevens, an 84-year-old veteran of World War II, filed a dissent when the court said that a U.S. terrorism suspect arrested and detained in America without legal rights would have refile his lawsuit in a different court. Stevens said that even at war a country cannot "be justified by the naked interest in using unlawful procedures to extract information.

Once again, Justices Sandra Day O'Connor and Anthony M. Kennedy, two moderate conservatives put on the court by President Reagan, were key swing voters who wrote the fewest dissents.

Several potential blockbuster cases sputtered, including cases involving religion. Justices ruled narrowly, in a Rehnquist opinion, that states don't have to underwrite the religious training of students planning careers in the ministry. Stevens crafted a ruling that dodged a decision on whether the Pledge of Allegiance and its reference to God in public schools is constitutional. The court found that a California atheist could not challenge the patriotic oath because he did not have legal authority to speak for his 10-year-old daughter.

The justices backed off another case about White House secrecy, leaving for another day the question of whether Vice President Dick Cheney must reveal the inner workings of his energy task force.

In some instances, the court showed it does not have all the answers. In others, it seemed to say the court will get back to us later, said Washington lawyer Thomas Goldstein.

In the terrorism cases especially,

The Strange 50th Fourth of July

From studying American history or from watching Jeopardy games, we can learn that two of the framers of the Declaration of Independence, later political rivals and the second and third presidents of the United Statesi.e., John Adams and Thomas Jefferson-both died within hours of one another on the 50th anniversary of their Declaration, July the Fourth, 1826

We used to ponder the

ed by Jefferson in 1800. Jefferson served two terms as president. Adams was a Federalist and strongly pro-Britain; Jefferson was a Republican and strongly pro-France. Adams favored a strong executive and central government; Jefferson inclined toward dispersed executive powers and placing more responsibility upon the states. Adams favored anti-sedition laws and curtailment of the press; Jefferson was an outspoken defender of freedom of expression. Adams was from the North (Massachusetts), Jefferson the South (Virginia).

But after both were out of office, in those years from 1809 to 1829, the two enemies patched up their ruptured relationship. The Adams-Jefferson letters from those years are amazing testimony to the greatness of both men.

Politics and partisanship were overcome by patriotism and patriarch-ism. They became elder statesmen, relishing the reliving of their many mutual victories and battles to found a nation and determined to find some way to nurture in their successors the optimism, determination, and wisdom from the Declaration days to make a democracy.

They worried that the bright torch of liberty they had lit would dim as the nation grew in size and complexity and moved in time away from the dynamic enthusiasm of its beginnings. They were concerned, together, about unfinished agendas they had left hanging, especially problems of slavery and tariffs and education, issues which threatened the health and welfare of the new nation. They mused about American isolationism and the proper role and size of standing armies and England-to see what constitutions should achieve and how to balance powers. They critiqued the work of their presidential successors. They discussed farming and weather and gardening and family, and shared reading lists and reviews.

Other presidents learned bipartisanship from the Adams-Jefferson reconciliation. Abraham Lincoln made use of Stephen Douglas after he was elected; Franklin Roosevelt made use of Wendell Wilkie and Herbert Hoover after his elections; and John Kennedy made use of Henry Cabot Lodge after his.

Ex-presidents Carter and Ford have co-sponsored many civic enterprises since leaving office, and seem especially close.

At the recent Reagan funeral in National Cathedral, all of the living ex-presidents of this great country sat together in the row behind the current president. There together, enjoying each other's company and understanding deeply the dilemmas that make democracy-tending a daily duty, were Presidents Ford, Carter, Bush, and Clinton. There was a reverence about their fraternity that day as they paid their respects to the fraternity member they had just lost, a man who in his career had been both a Democrat and a Republican.

"Binding up the nation," to use Lincoln's term, demands that at some stage the broken parts of the nation transcend their differences and transform themselves from pieces into a mended whole. Adams and Jefferson learned that -- albeit after they were both out of sight and out of power. It is a lesson worth passing on, eless. We are Americans before we ar

what they said is significant, but it's not the whole story. It's like giving people one chapter of a book at a time," Goldstein said.

Erwin Chemerinsky, a law professor at University of Southern California, said that the surprise ruling of the year was a victory for criminal defendants written by Scalia. The complicated 5-4 decision called into doubt the legality of federal and state sentencing systems

But even that ruling left questions about what it means for other cases

"This term, things were left open and unresolved," Chemerinsky said. There are going to be major issues litigated for years.

Recently, I attended a luncheon meeting where Rep. Robert "Buddy" Buckingham (5th House District) was a guest speaker. I have never listened to a more thought-provoking speech, and the longer I thought about his words, the more I appreciated their significance. After the meeting, I got permission from him to use parts of his speech in a letter to the editor.

He begin by saying, "There are a ton of reasons why we can be proud to be a Democrat" and he spoke of the many things Democrats have done in the past to make Kentucky a better place to live.

I learned that the first post-WWII governor, Democrat Earle Clements, led the effort to build the rood system and the park system; and western Kentucky's own Democrat Vice President Albert Barkley (under President Harry Truman) brought the plant now known as USEC to Paducah.

. In the last 35 years, Democrats have created a state that is envied by many others:

The community college system was created under Democrat Govs. Bert Combs and Ned Breathitt. Kentucky had the largest increase of any state in the percentage of residents 25 to 34 years old with a high school diploma. Democrats made Kentucky one of the very first states to allow 18 year olds to vote, when under Democrat Gov. Lawrence Weatherby in 1955 the state adopted an amendment some 16 years before the national Constitutional amendment.

Democratic leadership created a modem academic health care facility and improved health care for many Kentuckians with the University of Kentucky Chandler Medical Center, which helped lead the way for improving rural health care as well.

These are a few of the many ways Kentucky Democrats have contributed to the betterment of Kentuckians, along with being committed to the children, veterans, seniors, sick and forgotten people, and I can think of no form of achievement that would be more gratifying.

I wish everyone reading this could have heard Rep. Buckingham's excellent speech. It made me more aware of the obligations imposed on those who have power over the lives of others (elected officials) to be just and fair to those at their mercy.

Like Rep. Buckingham, I will vote Democrat this fall and proudly support the party that can honestly answer yes to the age-old question, "Am I my brother's keeper?"

Be proud; be a Democrat.

Sincerely, Norma Bell Paducah, Ky.

Holiday weekend events asset to Independence Day

www.murrayledger.com

Independence Day is being celebrated in Murray and Calloway County with the many special events of Freedom Fest. This is a wonderful asset to' the city and county in its 17th year of operation by the Murray Tourism Commission, Murray-Calloway County Chamber of Commerce and the many other sponsors.

This day honors the adoption of the Declaration of Independence on July 4, 1776, which was signed by the Continental Congress declaring the American Colonies free and independent states.

Staff Report Murray Ledger & Times

Former Tennessee Tech standout Misty Garrett was selected by Murray State women's basketball head coach Joi Williams to be an assistant coach with the Lady Racers program.

PHOENIX (AP) - The Arizona Diamondbacks fired manager Bob Brenly on Friday in the midst of their worst season since their expansion campaign of 1998.

Third-base coach Al Pedrique was named manager for the remainder of the season.

Hall of Famer Robin Yount, the team's bench coach, resigned out of loyalty to Brenly, general manager Joe Garagiola Jr. said. Pitching coach Chuck Kniffin also was fired.

Pedrique, who played parts of four seasons with the New York Mets, was a manager in the minors for eight seasons. He managed Arizona's Triple-A Tucson Sidewinders in 2002 and '03:

In a coaching shuffle, Mark Davis moves from bullpen coach to pitching coach, and Glen Sherlock from first base to third. Tommy Jones, the organization's director of player development, takes over as first-base coach.

Lorenzo Bundy, the hitting coach for Tucson, will become bench coach.

A former major league catcher and television analyst, Brenly was the second manager in the franchise's six-year history. He took over from fired Buck Showalter in 2001 and directed the team to a dramatic World Series triumph ing As a player, Garrett ranks ninth on TTU's career free-throw percentage list (.747). She earned All-Ohio Valley Conference Second Team honors in 2000-01 and was named to the All-OVC Tournament Team that same year.

Tennessee Tech won or shared the OVC titles in each of her four years there. The Golden Eaglettes went 58-10 (.853) in OVC play in her four seasons, winning the 2000 and 2001 regular-season titles outright and sharing the 1999 and 2002 crowns. TTU won the OVC Tournament in 1999 and 2000, earning berths in the NCAA Tournament in those seasons and facing Old Dominion and Texas Tech, respectively, on their home courts.

"I am very excited about Misty joining our staff," Williams said. 'She brings a wealth of knowledge about the OVC, and her playing experience speaks for itself. She will work with our guards as well as handle a lot of administrative duties, such as film exchange, scouting and recruiting." Garrett, a native of Livingston, Tenn., earned her bachelor of science degree in health and physical education from Tennessee Tech. in December 2002. She earned her master's degree in instructional leadership from TTU last May.

She was a member of this year's American Collegiate Intramural Championships national champion team, consisting mostly of former Tennessee Tech players. The team, called Tennessee Tech Woulda Coulda Shoulda, was one of 17 to qualify for the national tournament, beating Wisconsin-LaCrosse 45-39 in the title game in Orlando, Fla., in April.

"I was very excited when Coach Williams called me," Garrett said. "This is a very good opportunity for me. Murray State is a great place to play basketball; there are a lot of opportunities there with recruiting. I think Murray State has a bright future."

The Lady Racers open their 2004-05 campaign with an exhibition game on Nov. 6 against St. Louis Goldstar. Murray State opens its regular-season schedule on Nov. 19 at the Moran Realty Classic at DePaul in Chicago, III.

St. Louis slaps Seattle arou

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Woody Williams came back stronger after a 2-hour rain delay, combining with three relievers on a six-hitter Friday night in the St. Louis Cardinals' 11-2 victory over the Seattle Mariners.

Williams also doubled and scored for the Cardinals, who stopped a three-game losing streak. The NL Central leader, which has the league's best record at 47-32, has not lost more than three in a row all season. The Cardinals improved to 9-1 in interleague play.

Reggie Sanders homered and had an RBI double, and Albert Pujols drove in three runs and scored three times. John Mabry had a threerun homer in the sixth, and Scott Rolen drove in his major leagueleading 77th run.

Ichiro Suzuki had two hits in Seattle's first regular-season game at St. Louis. The Mariners lost for the eighth time in 11 games.

Williams (6-6) gave up a run in the first when Suzuki got a leadoff single, stole second, advanced on a groundout and scored on Jolbert Cabrera's sacrifice fly. After Suzuki's hit retired his next 13 batters in order, interrupted by a rain delay with one out in the top of the third.

Williams, who has lost five of his first six decisions, is 3-0 with a 1.67 ERA in his last four starts. He allowed three hits, struck out four and walked none.

Two of the Mariners' first five batters broke their bats against Williams, who also barehanded Cabrera's broken-bat soft liner in the fourth Kiko Calero, Ray King and Cal Eldred combined for three-hit relief.

Sanders' second-inning homer, his 14th of the season and second in two games, was the only hit allowed by Jamie Moyer, who left after the delay, having pitched two innings.

St. Louis scored five runs in 2 1-3 innings against his replacement, rookie Matt Thornton (0-1).

Thornton, who pitched four scoreless innings against San Diego in his debut Sunday, gave up five hits and walked five.

St. Louis Cardinals' Edgar Renteria scores as Seattle Mariners catcher Dan Wilson, right, waits for the late throw to the plate in the third inning in St. Louis, Friday night.

LEMONT, Ill. (AP) - Tiger Woods watched as his ball clipped the top of a large willow tree and fell 30 yards in front of him. Another swing moved the ball a measly few feet. Finally, on the third try, he punched out to the fairway, still 40 yards shy of the pin.

If ever there was a day when his extraordinary cut streak was going to end, this was it. But as isn't out of this thing, either. Howell (67), Gogel he's done time and again, Woods wriggled his way out of danger Friday, holing a 60-foot putt for the first of back-to-back birdies that kept his weekend plans at the Western Open intact. "It's just a matter of always playing hard," he said. "The old saying goes, 'You can't have the switch on and off.' You've got to have it always on, and that's how I've always played."

would be near impossible, and the guy finds a way to do it," said Charles Howell III, who shares the lead with Matt Gogel and Steve Lowery.

"I honestly think he can tie one of his hands behind his back and make him play left-handed, and he would still make the cut."

As rocky as his first two rounds were, Woods

Brenly was the first to win a World Series in his first season as a major league manager since Ralph Houk of the Yankees in 1961.

Name Game Keeping up with the Jones'

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) Smarty Jones is having an impact on the horse-naming game, too.

In recent weeks, a bunch of owners and breeders have used the Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner as inspiration for naming their own horses.

For openers, there's Party Jones, a 2004 colt by Smarty Jones' sire, Elusive Quality. Since May 14 a day before the Preakness ----The Jockey Club's registry has approved eight Smarty Jones-like names.

The others are Sleepy Jones, Smarty Me, Like Smarty, Smarty Who, Smarty Dee, Smarty Joe and Smarty Brown.

Some owners have even renamed their horses, perhaps hoping a little of Smarty Jones' good fortune will come their way.

It's already happened for the filly formerly known as Hastalavista Baby. The 3-year-old filly, also by Elusive Quality, was renamed Smarty Me by owners Robert and Mary Ellen McKee in May, and won in her debut June 15 - by 8 1/4 lengths at Prairie Meadows.

When he is retired, Smarty Jones will stand at stud at Three Chimneys Farm near Midway, Ky.

Smarty Jones is back in training after falling short in his Triple Crown bid with a runner-up finish in the Belmont Stakes on June 5

AP Photo Tiger Woods hits out of a bunker on the 16th hole during the first round of the Western Open Thursday at Cog Hill Golf Club in Lemont, III. Woods finished the day 1-under par 70.

He finished with a 73 that put him at 1-over 143 for two rounds - right on the projected cut line. But with the wind already starting to blow, Woods knew he was safe.

Sure enough, when play was completed 6 1/2 hours later, the line was 2 over and Woods had made his 126th consecutive cut, the longest streak in PGA Tour history.

"You would think surely there would come a situation where he was so far against the wall that it (64) and Lowery (68) are only seven strokes ahead, at 6-under 136. First-round leader Loren Roberts is three strokes back after a 4-over 75.

"Loren has a chance to run away with this thing if he wants to," Woods said. "If he doesn't do that, there are a lot of guys right there with a chance."

Woods has gone from flirting with the cut to kissing the trophy before, winning the 2000 Canadian Open after being one shot better than the cut with four holes to play. But this isn't the way to quiet the talk about his slumping game, especially with the British Open looming.

Sure, he has three top-5 finishes in his last four starts and is fourth in scoring average. But he's 0for-8 in the majors, has won just twice since his victory at last year's Western and is doing things on the course that make him look like a mere mortal

Mayflies provide anglers' best bait

I had the pleasure of fishing with Bill Barton - the owner of Red Oak Farm in Murray - and his good friends, Jim and Matt Arrigan, from Oxford, Ohio.

www.murrayledger.com

They were ready to fish for anything that was biting. As we approached the first shoreline, I knew there would be a lot of action on this day. The trees, bushes and rocky banks were black with freshly-hatched mayflies! There isn't a better live bait Fishing for all species of Line our fish in Ken-distance of the shore, the trees and the bushes so that when our lures struck the water, they would be attacked immediately.

They were ready for us. As the tiny black roostertail spinner touched the water, they struck! One must be ready to set they hooks quickly because something will strike the lure!

Most of the sunfish families have completed their spawning. They are now locating these fly hatchings to restore their muscles and increase their body size.

In fact, all known species of fish in both Barkley and Kentucky lakes will eat as many of these willow flies as they can catch. I use the name willow fly because many years ago each bay had a neat grove or population of willow trees that stood in the shallow waters of the shoreline.

Many anglers didn't know the proper name of the flies. Most of these trees were filled with them, and that's how they got their name.

The flies live two years under water, along the bottoms. The eggs hatch as worm-like forms with legs that propel the flies around to feed in the depths.

After the water reaches 80 degrees, these bodies come to the surface and emerge at night as a winged fly going to the closest shore. They mate and mature within a 24-hour period. They will drop their fully-fertilized eggs back into the waters after darkness approaches.

The new eggs will settle to the bottom in preparation of continuing the species as food for other living beings.

The numbers of these flies without mouths are unbelievable. One must see them to fully understand exactly what they mean to a lake. Three words express exactly what they are to the fish, birds and other insects - food, food and food!

Bill Barto and Jim and Matt Arrigon were in for a treat just looking at the action going on around them. The constant surface feeding made it easy to find a place to cast and catch a fish of some kind.

I worked my boat along the shores where the guys could cast easily. Most of the time, they were rewarded with a strike. Bill began to talk the fish into striking his lure before the other two. It worked with Jim, but not with Matt.

Matt was up front with me. He was catching some great smallmouth bass on ultralight tackle, as well as some huge bluegill. He wasn't about to be deterred from catching fish.

We had a cooler full of soft drinks and water, but the action was so fast that we only had about one drink apiece.

Cole and Sam Hatcher hold up the gar they took while on a recent fishing outing with Ledger & Times columnist Jerry Maupin.

a bag of ice in my Coleman, which was sitting behind the driver's seat. In traveling from place to place, we encountered numerous other boats and their waves.

At one point, we hit some rough water. After a few bounces, we traveled on smoothly. Jim then called my attention to the missing cooler. It had bounced over the back and out of my boat.

I turned around and went back to look for it. Suddenly, I became very thirsty just thinking about all of those lost drinks.

We saw the white top of the cooler in the distance. It was sitting at a tilted angle, apparently empty. I slid in to pick up the empty cooler. To our great surprise, all of its contents were still nside and the lid was still tightly clamped shut!

On down the lake, we found a bank where a huge school of tiny shad had just come out of a bay Speaking of coolers, we had and into a massive cloud of fish.

almost a full case of drinks plus Practically all species of gamefish and the bluegill were attacking these pods of shad.

> They were relentless in their attacks. We could see that their bodies were so full that they couldn't possibly eat anything else.

The largemouth, smallmouth and Kentucky spotted bass and the shellcrackers, yellow stripers and white stripers were all there after that fresh food.

I quickly switched the guys lures over to a roostertail or a slab spoon. They began to catch the stripers under the baitfish school. It was fast and furious fishing, but we didn't keep any to eat!

I thought we would see a rockfish or two, and I was hoping that the guys would hang into a good 10-pounder!

Bille had made fun of Matt's blue-sided lure on several occasions, but he came to regret it. Matt caught several more fish than the other two put together. Suddenly, it was quiet in the middle of the boat as Matt continued to catch good stripers.

There were a few strikes that could have been the large rockfish. But, as you may have guessed, they didn't stay around very long!

Bill Barton is a pretty savvy guy. He called some of his casts before making them. He constantly caught fish. He has a great sense of humor for sure!

Jeanne and I took a day off to sit in the midst of yet another mayfly hatch. We truly love to use lightspinning tackle to catch the big bluegill and shellcrackers while they_ are surfacing on the flies.

There wasn't any reason to switch from the black roostertail, so we tied them on and began to laugh and really enjoy it.

There were so many fish feeding on the new mayflies that one could cast with their eyes closed. It usually takes a few days for the fish to realize that the flies are hatching and that there is a 20-mile buffet in progress.

It truly is a sight to behold, even if you don't fish. Just anchor off-shore and watch the action before you!

Jeanne and I were very careful to release the smaller bluegill so that they could return to their eating and growing.

We knew this was a good opportunity to put some fillets into the freezer, so we kept casting until the time frame changed. They quit biting at 10:30 in the morning. We only kept 77, but we knew also that we had caught over 100!

I suppose a person could stay and catch more, but there's no need. There are a few other things to do when exploring the lake.

I know it's warm weather, but put those life vests on yourself and the kids. Believe me, you'll be glad that you did! Happy Fishing!

The price of freedom for Americans cheap 1S never

"These are the times that try men's souls. The summer soldier and the sunshine patriot will, in this crisis, shrink from the service of their country, but he that stands it now, deserves the love and thanks of man and woman. Tyranny, like hell, is not easily conquered; yet we have this consolation with us, that the harder the conflict, the more glori-

Instead of insuring peace and tranquility, Jay's treaty with Great Britain resulted in increased hostilities with France and provided no relief from the original grievances. In 1812, the U.S. declared war again on Great Britain to counter the piracy against American shipping and to quell the insurgency of the Indians who were being provoked by the British policy that prevented the Soviets from extending their grasp in the Pacific.

Only after the United States entered the fray did hostilities cease.

But, again, President Wilson sought "peace without victory" in the form of an armistice (cease-fire) based on his "Fourteen Points" rather than demanding the unconditional surrender of the aggressors.

President Carter is still lauded for his diplomacy in the Camp David Accord that is credited even to this day for bringing peace to the Middle East. At exactly what time since Carter or Camp David has there been peace

The men and women who fight today in Iran and Afghanistan also, realize, the price of freedom and liberty. All the diplomacy the world has known did not prevent the Sept.11 attack on the United States.

But the sacrifice of blood by America's true natriots has su ther attack on American soil. For those of this country who have borne no costs for the freedom they richly enjoy to express embar rassment at the efforts of these true patriots is to cheapen and reject their ultimate sacri fice.

ous the triumph." - Thomas Paine The history of our nation is fraught with the folly of "sunshine patriots." From the early days of the Republic, leaders have sought to avoid conflict Britain went to war shortly after the colonies had gained their independence?

Columnist high seas and forced them into duty for the Crown.

When John Jay reached a negotiated "peace" with Great Britain, the French redoubled their efforts to snub America's claims of sovereignty and continued to attack shipping and to occupy American ports.

Only after a series of naval encounters where American warships won decisive battles against their French counterparts did Napoleon reconsider his strategy toward the new country.

by remaining "neutral."

America tried to stay out of the fray by not choosing sides. The policy resulted in attacks on American shipping by both France and Great Britain - the later of which kidnaped American sailors on the

Referred to as "the Second War For Independence," the War of 1812 served to establish the fledgling republic as a rightful player among the powers of the world.

Secretary of the Treasury Albert Gallatin observed that "the war has renewed and reinstated the national feeling and character which the Revolution had given, and which were daily lessening. The people have now more general objects of attachment with which their pride and political opinions are connected.

"They are more Americans; they feel and act more as a nation; and I hope that the permanency of the Union is thereby better secured."

The cost to better secure the permanency of the Union was over 50,000 American lives.

Early in the 20th Century, Germany threw the entire continent of Europe into conflict and used submarine warfare to the destruction of any and all shipping in the Atlantic.

Again, the United States believed that peace could be obtained by merely sitting on the sidelines and executing treaties.

After receiving Germany's solemn pledge to greatly restrict their submarine warfare, President Woodrow Wilson declared that he had obtained "peace without victory," proclaiming such as the "only lasting peace." Nine days later, Germany resumed its attacks on American shipping with renewed vigor.

history has shown, the rise of Hitler and the Second World War began with the signing of the treaty at Versailles to end the "War to End All Wars."

During the late 1930s, America tried to remain neutral as Japan ravaged the south Pacific after a period of extreme military. build-up. FDR was still committed to diplomacy with the militaristic leaders of Japan and had issued an appeal for a "peaceful understanding" as late December 6, 1941.

The "peaceful understanding" was well understood the following morning as the Japanese launched a surprise attack on Pearl Harbor.

In our own time, we have seen the result of misguided diplomacy time and time again. Who can forget British Prime Minister Chamberlain's statement following his conference in Berlin with Hitler: "My good friends this is the second time in our history that there has come back from Germany to Downing Street peace with honor. I believe it is peace in our time."

While the Prime Minister promised peace for the citizens of London, Hitler was at work planning the invasion of the British Isles.

Following the defeat of Germany and the Axis powers in Europe, the diplomacy of Clement Attlee, the new British Prime Minister allowed the Soviet Union to clamp its iron control over much of Europe - in stark contrast to MacArthur's Japanese occupation in the Middle East

But as the newly united Colonies learned in 1812, diplomacy without the will to take action is useless, as summarized by Theodore' Roosevelt's admonition to "speak softly but carry a big stick."

Only through the application of the "stick" did America finally assume her "separate and equal station" among the powers of the earth.

Fortunately, not all advice of "sunshine patriots" is heeded as when then Ambassador to England, Joseph Kennedy, patriarch of the Kennedy clan, argued for the appeasement of Hitler at the onset of the Second World War.

Reliance on diplomacy and appeasement has been more costly to America than war. Beginning with the struggle for independence. diplomacy has neither aided nor advanced the cause of liberty

The freedom and liberty that we enjoy to this day is still purchased with the blood oftrue patriots. The 56 patriots who signed the Declaration of Independence knew that they would pay with their lives for the freedom and liberty that they themselves might never see.

The citizen's militia of New Hampshire who repulsed the Hessian attack that turned the War of 1812 were willing to pay the price for freedom, as were the millions who joined the military following the attack on Pearl Harbor, or the thousands who died on the beaches of Normandy.

To denounce the leadership of this country for their "failures" in the war against terror is to ignore the facts and dishonor those patriots. Where are the terrorists who once attacked Americans with impunity? Where is the fearsome Al-Qaeda?

The sunshine patriots on one hand point to the inability to capture Bin Laden as a glaring failure, then on the other hand find the capture of Saddam to somehow be an equal failure.

Those who contend that President Bush "failed so miserably" at diplomacy totally ignore the fact that there have been no attacks on American soil since the World Trade Center disaster. The same cannot be said for those countries who have chosen the way of diplomacy and appeasement.

Diplomacy and appeasement will not huv freedom and liberty. Only the blood of true patriots will insure that our unalienable rights are preserved. And that is a very high price to pay to secure the life and liberty of peo ple like Michael Moore.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 33-yearold single mother of two, in the process of moving to a new state to be near my family. My older sister is my boyfriend, Van Buren "Pete." He doesn't understand how I can do it, and why I didn't ask his permission before deciding.

Although I am excited about being a surrogate for my sister, Pete is making me feel guilty about it. He insists he is just worried about me. I love Pete, but I don't want to feel guilty about the wonderful choice I have made. What should I do? --SURROGATE SISTER

DEAR SISTER: Arrange an evening with your sister, brother-inlaw and Pete. Perhaps if he hears firsthand from them about the pain of not being able to conceive a child, he will better understand what you have decided to do. However, if it failst, you may have to choose between your wish to be a surrogate and your current boyfriend.

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago I got involved with a man who was going through a divorce. I'll call him Tom. Our relationship was great. We got along well and enjoyed each other's company.

Shortly after I learned I was pregnant, he left me to go back to his wife. It has been a constant game of back-and-forth ever since.

Our son arrived in June, but Tom has made no effort to help support me or the baby. However, he has made an attempt to see his son.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Marlon Brando, who revolutionized American acting with his Method performances in "A Streetcar Named Desire" and "On the Waterfront" and went on to create the iconic character of Don Vito Corleone in "The Godfather," has died. He was 80.

Brando died at an undisclosed Los Angeles hospital Thursday, attorney David J. Seeley said Friday. The cause of death was being withheld, Seeley said, noting the actor "was a very private man."

Brando, whose unpredictable behavior made him equally fascinating off the screen, was acclaimed the greatest actor of his generation, a two-time winner of the Academy Award who influenced some of the best actors of the generation that followed, among them Al Pacino, Robert De Niro and Jack Nicholson.

"Marlon would hate the idea of people chiming in to give their comments about his death. All I'll say is that it makes me sad he's gone," said Francis Ford Coppola, who directed "The Godfather."

Brando was the unforgettable embodiment of the brutish Stanley

Godfather." But his private life may best be defined by a line from "The Wild One," in which Brando, playing a motorcycle gang leader, is asked what he's rebelling against.

"Whattaya got?" was his famous reply.

His image was a studio's nightmare. Millions of words were written about his weight, his many romances and three marriages, his tireless — and, for some, tiresome - support of the American Indian and other causes, his battles with film producers and directors, his refuge on a Tahitian isle.

His most famous act of rebellion was his refusal in 1973 to accept the best actor Oscar for "The Godfather." Instead, he sent a woman who called herself Sasheen Littlefeather to read a diatribe about Hollywood's treatment of Native Americans.

It was roundly booed.

Brando's private life turned tragic years later with his son's conviction for killing the boyfriend of his half sister, Cheyenne Brando, in

"I am myself," he once declared, (which won him "and if I have to hit my head against his first Oscar) a brick wall to remain true to and the wily myself, I will do it." of

Nothing could diminish his reputation as an actor of startling power and invention.

Starting with Kowalski in the stage version of "A Streetcar Named Desire" and a startling series of screen portrayals, Brando changed the nature of American acting.

Schooled at the Actors Studio in New York, he created a naturalism that was sometimes derided for its mumbling, grungy attitudes. But audiences were electrified, and a new generation of actors adopted his style.

"He influenced more young actors of my generation than any longime friend and actor." "Godfather" co-star James Caan said Friday through his publicist. "Anyone who denies this never understood what it was all about."

Marlon Brando Jr. came from the American heartland, born in Omaha, Neb., on April 3, 1924. He was a distant, conservative man of French, English and Irish stock; the original family name was Brandeau.

His mother, the former Dorothy Pennebaker, was small, willowy, compassionate and filled with creative energy. Her ambitions often love money."

were unrealized, and she underwent periods of problem drinking. She had given birth to two daughters, Frances and Jocelyn, before Marlon was born.

He grew up a pudgy, mischievous boy who was called Bud to distinguish him from his father. Jocelyn was charged with getting Bud to kindergarten, a difficult task. She solved it by leading him on a leash.

Young Marlon first became exposed to the theater through his mother, who became a leader and occasional actress in the Omaha Community Playhouse. When a leading man dropped out of a play, she pleaded with a young neighbor just home from college to take the role. Henry Fonda reluctantly agreed. Mrs. Brando also encouraged another young Omaha native, Dorothy McGuire.

His impact on screen acting was demonstrated by Academy nominations as best actor in four successive years: as Kowalski in "A Streetcar Named Desire" (1951); as the Mexican revolutionary in "Viva Zapata!"~(1952); as Marc Anthony in "Julius Caesar" (1953); and as Terry Malloy in "On the Waterfront" (1954).

Although he remained in Hollywood, he refused to be part of it. "Hollywood is ruled by fear and love of money," he told a reporter. "But it can't rule me because I'm not afraid of anything and I don't

Nearly $3.5M invested into university research

Ernie Fletcher announced today that the state has invested $3,497,637 in Kentucky technology companies and university and small business research programs. This is the latest round of awards issued by the Kentucky Science and Technology Corporation (KSTC) with funding provided by the Commonwealth through the Council on Postsecondary Education in support of Kentucky's New Economy. All projects undergo rigorous peer review and due diligence and fall within the state's five priority research focus areas: biosciences, environmental technologies, human health, information technology, and materials science and advanced manufacturing.

"We must ensure that Kentucky is competitive in the New Economy by providing the funding necessary to create jobs and opportunity here in the Commonwealth," stated Governor Ernie Fletcher. "It is essential that Kentucky enhance itself in the global market by pro-FRANKFORT, Ky. - Governor stimulates growth and entrepreneurial innovation. These awards will foster an environment that encourages economic development and promotes Kentucky's standing in the Knowledge Economy." This includes new awards totaling $1.8 million to 38 technology start-up companies, including 22 from rural areas, under the various investment funds managed by The Innovation Group at KSTC. The Commercialization Investment Fund (CIF) is a series of state sponsored seed capital investment funds focused on early stage technologies research to the next stage of discovin Kentucky and filling the gap between founder's and angel/venture capital. The funded CIF projects range in diversity from the development of new pharmaceuticals derived from tobacco plants to medical devices. Investment amounts range from $7,500 to $200,000 and come from the Rural Innovation Fund, Kentucky Commercialization Fund, and R&D Voucher Fund.
