Conservation is the Best Insurance for Your Land

By HERBERT ANDERSON
Soil Conservation Service

Have you insured your farm? Maybe you have insured your buildings, your livestock and your machinery.

But have you insured your land?

Would you buy a "policy" that would assure you that your land will continue to produce as much or more for the next twenty years as it does today?

You can buy such a policy and buy it cheap. The major cost to you is making up your own mind. Making up your mind to farm the conservation way.

Your local Soil Conservation District stands ready and able to furnish you all of the assistance you need.

Local farmers, on becoming cooperators of the district, receive technical assistance in developing a conservation plan. This plan is based on a soils map for their individual farm.

The farmer also receives assistance in carrying out this plan as far as layout or engineering work is concerned. All of these services are free. The cost of actual establishment of any of these practices is paid for by the farmer.

The Production and Marketing Administration offers financial assistance on many of the conservation practices.

Farm people, however, are not the only ones who must become conscious of the necessity for conservation. It is a "rich man, poor man, beggar man, thief" job. All men, no matter what their station in life, have a definite personal stake in the problems of conservation of soil, water and all natural resources.

More people are becoming aware of the conservation needs each year. But many more people need this awareness.

Kentucky's SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT WEEK is becoming one of the most effective methods of bringing about this desirable change.

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Consecrated Genius

Lesson for August 8, 1958

ONCE IN A WHILE men are born who have more careers than one. Thomas Jefferson was architect, educator, lawyer, writer, executive; Samuel F. B. Morse was a painter and also the inventor of the telegraph. Theodore Roosevelt was a man so many-sided that some one has written an amusing article showing that several thousands of years from now scholars might easily conclude that T.
Roosevelt was not one man but several different men with the same name.

Many-Sided Man

SAMUEL WAS ONE of these many-sided men. We call him Samuel the prophet, but we could just as well call him judge, priest, preacher, general writer and kingmaker.

He was a prophet, for the people who knew him turned to him when they wanted to know what God thought. We can call him a preacher, for we know of one very successful revival which he conducted (I Sam. 7). He was also what we call a circuit judge, going from town to town to hold court. He was a successful general, for we know he not only advised military leaders but took the lead in raising an army himself and directing it in a successful campaign.

He was a priest, not only in a formal way, offering sacrifices at various places; but he also once said a memorable thing which marks him as a priest in the truest sense: "Ye have done all this wickedness, yet... God forbid that I should sin against you in ceasing to pray for you." (Chap. 12).

He was a writer, for though he could not have written both books that bear his name, he did write "the manner of the Kingdom"— perhaps a kind of constitution. And next week's study will show him as a king-maker.

No Dictator

THE MANY-SIDED MAN, the man of many talents, always has one great temptation: to be a dictator.
It isn't bad people who become dictators; it isn't the weak; it is the strong and able.

A very able president, for instance, will take it on himself to run the State department and any other departments that specially interest him; in a small town a many-sided man may be superintendent of the mill, chairman of the school board, chief deacon in the church, superintendent of the Sunday school, major and postmaster besides.

It is not alone in public that the dictator flourishes. Sometimes in home the father, or the mother, will be so energetic and brainy that he (or she) finds it much easier to do things than to wait for the children to do them, or to teach the children how it is done.

Now the prophet Samuel, who towered high above the average man of his country, must have been tempted to be a dictator.

Samuel perhaps could have done it all, but he knew when to retire from the foreground.

Public Spirit

SAMUEL himself is a model for all the many-sided men who reach and deserve positions of power. He never milked the people for his own benefit; he never used public office for private gain. (With one sad exception; he kept his worthless sons on the public payroll.) He was a man of true public spirit.

This means two things, and Samuel had them both. One is a wide vision; being able to see all sides of a question, and to see not only his own advantage, but how decisions and policies affect all kinds of persons.

Most politicians will have at heart the interests of their own little ballistics; how many have the interests of the nation at heart?

Public spirit means wide vision, it means a wide concern, not only seeing but caring. In an election year, when politicians are clamoring at us from all sides, we may well inquire about every candidate.
Does this man have any resemblance to God's man Samuel? Does he have a sense of responsibility to God? Does he have a wide vision, a wide concern? Whose side is he on? Is he out for himself, or for God and the whole people?

LATE GARDENS

It is time to start late gardens.
You should not have too many weeds this year to bother you.
Try to plant at least 10 vegetables in your garden — beans, sweet corn, Golden Cross or Bantam beets, carrots, Siberian kale, Southern-cured mustard, Blooms-dale Savoy spinach, turnip greens, and radishes.

Get your seed now for Chinese cabbage, leaf lettuce and head lettuce. Sow your seed for head lettuce in a shady place and transplant to a cold frame that can be shaded during the day. Try Bibb lettuce. I think you will enjoy the small green heads.

Chinese cabbage should be planted in August or September, preferably August.

Cabbage, tomatoes, and Brussels sprouts may be planted in the hill for late bearing and for storage. Use Wisconsin all-season cabbage.

FOOD FOR 2,100

Serving lunch to 2,100 people is no small task, but with efficient planning ahead of time and with excellent workers on the job it can be done in short order, as was demonstrated at the Farm Bureau - R.E.A. Picnic Saturday, July 12, at Kentucky Lake State Park.

The Marshall County Homemakers served, as is their custom under the leadership of Miss Sunshine Colley, Home Demonstration Agent.
