MEARS STREET IS TO BE USED FOR BUS STOP HERE

COUNCIL IN SPECIAL SESSION: WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON TO DISCUSS BUSINESS

The mayor and city council met in special session at the City Hall Wednesday afternoon, with all members present with the exception of Councilman Lowe who was absent on account of illness.

Clyde Stephenson, who has been employed to make a survey of the water minor repairs on leaks, asked the council to purchase a reamer for resealing valves of hydrants. The council ordered this tool to be purchased.

A letter was read from the Illinois Central System, in reply to a request from the city council asking their well man, Mr. Meyers, be allowed to repair the well at the city water works here. The letter expressed regret that Mr. Meyers was unavailable at this time and suggested that some well supply house be consulted.

The city engineer was authorized to proceed with the paving of Mears-st, from Commercial-av to Second-st as soon as possible. Paving has been laid from Fourth-st to Commercial-av.

Stopping of the buses on the city streets was discussed at length, following the recent action by the council in which an ordinance was approved forbidding passengers carrying vehicles for hire to stop on city streets. Councilman DeMyer suggested that the bus be allowed to stop on Mears-st, and following discussion, made a motion that this street be used for bus stop. Councilmen Boaz, DeMyer, Melbilly and Newland voted in favor, with Councilman Peoples objecting on the grounds that this would tie-up traffic on the street back of Lake-st, which has recently been paved to open a better lane of traffic and relieve traffic congestion on Lake-st.

Councilman Peoples brought a criticism being made by citizens of Fulton in regard to traffic regulations and their enforcement. He called attention to recent letters appearing in local papers, in which citizens have expressed dissatisfaction with traffic conditions. Speeding near the schools and in the downtown business district were pointed out. Parking on the Fourth-st bridge, and on Commercial-av, between Lake-st and Carr-st, was discussed. Councilman Peoples urged that something be done to properly supervise traffic and parking. He objected to limiting parking just on this bridge, unless action was taken generally upon traffic regulation, with emphasis placed upon narrow Commercial-av. The council failed to take any action in the matter of further traffic control.

Hi-Y News

The Hi-Y will entertain the Junior and Senior High classes with a program of hilarious fun. The program starts with a laugh and ends with a roar. It consists of a one-act play in which all characters are negroes. Abe Jolley, the natural comedian, has the leading part.

Suggestions for Hi-Y projects are few and far between. The club would appreciate suggestions for projects from any member of the faculty or any student.

Plans are under way for starting the annual Hi-Y play. The play has not yet been selected but it is probable that the title will be "George in a Jam."

Florence Counce is back in school after a minor operation. We are glad to have her back. Mignon Peimmon, a transfer from Woodland Hills entered school here Monday. Thus the Freshman class has gained another member. Welcome Mignon!

ADVENTURERS' CLUB
Hello, Everybody!

"Death in a Bottle"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter.

YOU know, it's the simplest things that make the most thrilling adventures. You, yourself, although you probably don't know it, have something around your house that you've been looking at and handling for years, which will one day form the fodder for your life's most thrilling experience. Watch that electric flat-iron, Mom. One of these days it's liable to give you a scare. And Pop, don't monkey with that garden hose, either. There'll come a time when it rears up on its haunches and bounces you right into a hair-raising situation. You don't believe me? Well, ask Caroline Rebhan what she thinks of those simple little household items. Caroline never got scared of the bottles in her medicine cabinet, either. There wasn't any poison in any of them and she thought they were perfectly safe. But there came a time when those same medicine bottles furnished a terrifying five minutes for the whole Rebhan family.

It happened on a Sunday morning in July, 1912. Caroline was just a young bride then. She had only been married a couple months. She and her husband had moved into a new house. There were rugs to be laid and furniture to be moved and a million other things that had to be done all at once. Caroline was so confused that a lot of things slipped her mind. And among them were those bottles she had taken from the medicine cabinet in their last home.

That particular home they had moved into was a small flat, and one of the troubles with it was that there was no medicine cabinet. What to do with the medicine bottles? Well—there was an old coal-burning stove in the kitchen, and, since it was never used in the summertime, Caroline stowed those bottles away in the oven until such time as she could arrange a better place for them. Then, in the general mix-up, she forgot all about them.

It Was All the Fault of Apprentice's Housekeeping.

All that happened in June. It was a month later, in the middle of July, when the adventure really took place. Then, one Sunday morning, Caroline's husband, with nothing else to do, decided that he ought to try that stove out and see if it was any good.

Out It Came and Then—BANG—It Burst!

Bill—that's Caroline's husband—lit the fire. For an hour the old stove heated up, and then they heard a bang that seemed to come from somewhere inside it. Both Bill and Caroline laughed at that, and Bill said, "Gee, there must be dynamite in that coal." Then followed another bang—and another. "And still," says Caroline, "it didn't dawn on me that it might be the medicine. It wasn't until later, when Bill decided to shave, that I remembered those bottles."

When Bill started to shave he remembered an old razor strop that he hadn't seen since they moved from the old home, and asked Caroline if she knew what had happened to it. "When Bill asked me that," Caroline says, "my face went white. 'No,' I told him, 'but your razor strop is in that oven.' Then, in a few words as possible, I told him what I had done. He laughed at first, but—

Deadly Explosives—in a Lighted Stove!

Yes, Bill laughed at first, but not after Caroline had told him the whole story. For among those medicine bottles was one containing alcohol and another—a large one—that was full of benzine. Either one of those bottles could produce an explosion that would have blown the old stove to pieces. And the wonder of it all was why they had not already exploded.

Bill's face was as white as Caroline's when he got the whole story. Any minute one of those bottles might go up, wreck the kitchen and set fire to the house. There was no time to call the fire department—not a second to spare at all. He ran outside, got a long-handled shovel and opened the oven door.

Caroline stood in the kitchen doorway while he did it—her hands over her face, expecting any moment to see flame streak out of that oven and engulf poor Bill.

Removing Potential Death by the Shovelful.

Bill pushed the shovel into the oven and picked up a bottle. Out it came, and then—BANG—it burst, scattering glass all over the kitchen. Bill thrust the shovel in again and picked up another bottle. That, too, exploded as soon as it hit the cold air outside the oven. Glass showered over Bill—even went down his collar and got under his clothes—but he held his ground. The worst was still to come. Way back in the rear of the oven were those deadly bottles of benzine and alcohol. If they burst coming out, as the others had done—well—neither Bill nor Caroline wanted to think of that.

One by one the bottles came out—and one by one they burst as soon as they left the oven. Then they came to the alcohol and the benzine.

Says Caroline: "We stood looking at each other for a second, and then Bill said, 'Stand over by the window and pray.' I did. He reached into the oven and out came the bottle of benzine. Nothing happened, and I gave a sob of relief. He set the benzine bottle in a pail and reached in after the alcohol, and this time the sweat was pouring down his face. It had to be done slowly—carefully, and his hand shook so that I was sure that he would drop it. But the second bottle came out like the first, and Bill put it in the pail with the bottle of benzine.

"And what I can't understand," says Caroline, "is how those two bottles stayed whole when all the others exploded."

Well, maybe, it was the prayer, Caroline.

4-H Club an Educational

Movement for Boys, Girls

The 4-H club is a rural educational movement for boys and girls between the ages of ten and twenty years. Inclusive, each project of which is designed to stimulate interest in more home activities, whether it be raising a garden, raising pets, keeping personal accounts, making a dress, or refurbishing a room.

The movement had its origin in certain of the farmers' institutions and the public schools of Ohio, Illinois and Iowa in 1890, relates a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer, and is now a part of the co-operative extension system of the United States Department of Agriculture and state agricultural colleges. Dr. S. A. Knapp of the federal Department of Agriculture gave it impetus at the time of the coming of the boll weevil by stressing the demonstration work of boys and girls in the South as a means of improving rural

JESUS DECLARES HIS PURPOSE

LESSON TEXT—Luke 4:14-20.
GOLDEN TEXT—The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor; he hath sent me to heal the broken-hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised, to preach the acceptable year of the Lord.—Luke 4:18, 19.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Preaches to His Home Folks.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus' First Sermon.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Choosing a Life Purpose.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What Jesus Came to Do.

I. Jesus in the Synagogue (v. 16).
On the Sabbath he went into the Synagogue according to his custom. He no doubt went that day with a new and definite purpose, but how refreshing to know that it was according to his habit. Many young people have been safeguarded from the pitfalls of the world because of the habit of reading the Bible, praying and going to church.

II. Jesus Reading the Scriptures (v. 17-19).

1. The book handed to him (v. 17). It was not only his custom to attend the place of worship, but to take part in it. This privilege was not confined to the rabbis (Acts 13:15). Jesus, therefore, used the liberty accorded him.

2. The passage read (Isa. 61:1-2). It is not entirely clear as to whether this was, provisionally, the Scripture reading for the day, or whether it was specifically chosen by him for that occasion.

3. The content of the passage (vv. 18, 19).
a. The mission of the Messiah (v. 18).
(1) To preach the gospel to the poor. The good tidings which Jesus proclaimed are peculiarly welcome to the common people. By "poor" in this case is primarily meant those who were poor in spirit (Matt. 5:3).

(2) To heal the broken-hearted. The gospel of Christ meets the needs of those whose hearts are crushed by the weight of their own sins or by a burden of sorrow and disappointment.

(3) To preach deliverance to the captives. This meant deliverance from the bondage of the Devil (John 8:36).
(4) Recovering of sight to the blind. Christ did actually make those who were physically blind to see (John 9:6, 7) and also opened the eyes of those who were spiritually blind (1 John 5:20).

(5) To set at liberty them that are bruised. The power of Christ can free the most utterly hopeless ones.

(6) To preach the acceptable year of the Lord. The primary allusion is to the year of jubilee (Lev. 25:10).

b. The special endowment of the Messiah (v. 18). He was the anointed one predicted by Isaiah, the Messiah.

III. Jesus Expounding the Scriptures (v. 20, 21).

1. He closed the book and sat down. It seems to have been the custom of the Jewish teachers to sit while teaching.

2. "This day is this scripture fulfilled." This statement is no doubt but the gist of what he said. He thus declared that he was the Messiah.

IV. Jesus' Reception by the People (v. 22-29).

The critical hour had come. The people were amazed. They admitted his gracious words but were unable to admit his claims. His reception was characterized by

1. Ignorant prejudice (v. 22). They said, "Is not this Joseph's son?" as if to say, "This is our fellow townsman with whom we have been acquainted for years. Surely, he cannot be the Messiah."

2. Unbelief as to his supernatural power (v. 23). They challenged him to exhibit examples of divine power.

3. Personal jealousy (v. 24). Jealousy often prevents us from seeing the essential worth of men in our midst.

Jesus adduced two outstanding examples of the willingness of foreigners to believe God.

a. Elijah was sent to a widow at Serepta (vv. 25, 26). Many widows of Israel were passed by, doubtless because they would not have received the prophet.

b. Naaman, the foreigner, of the many lepers, was the one cleansed. (v. 27).

4. Violent hatred (v. 28-30). This comparison of the Jews with foreigners so offended their pride that they tried to kill him. He showed them that just as Elijah had brought blessing to one who lived in Sidon, and Elisha to one in Syria, while the people of Israel went on suffering, even so the Gentiles would receive the blessing of his saving power, while they, the chosen nation, would suffer in unbelief.

Pity

Pity and forbearance, and long-sufferance, and passing the gentlest sentence, are as certainly our duty, and owing to every person that does offend and can repent, as calling to account can be owing to the law; and he that does not so is an unjust person.—Jeremy Taylor.

Hurt by Little Things

Little minds are too much hurt by little things. Great minds perceive them all, and consequently are not touched by them.

Formal Velvets in High Color Mood

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

FASHIONABLE velvet, and fashionable indeed it is, has gone high-color. Not that the style prestige of black velvet is challenged, not at all. To defend the supremacy of handsome black velvet in the mode never a need will there be. Its claim to sovereignty among formal weaves in the fabric realm will go unchallenged through the ages.

However, many of the new velvets are gorgeously colorful. They abound in rich reds, purples, greens, sapphire and golden hues.

The message of color is eloquently told in the trio of formal velvet modes pictured. Each is a Paris creation, for French couturiers are most enthusiastic in regard to the importance of velvet in the mid-winter style picture. For the striking evening ensemble as worn by the smartly costumed lady of fashion seated, Bruyere employs a magnificent stiff velvet in deep blue. The jacket is decorated with motifs cut from the wide gold galon such as bands the sleeves. The blouse is of gold lame, likewise the chic and youthful off-face hat.

Dramatically colorful is the gown to the right in the picture. Dark green cellophane-shot silk velvet fashions this molded-to-figure evening dress. The shoulder straps and large bow on the corsage are of red velvet. Clashed in the hands of this dark-haired beauty is a floor-length cape which Molyneux styles of velvet striped in green and red shades to complete the ensemble color scheme.

In the mode to the left, also by Molyneux, the new formal evening cape with its long graceful and stately trailing lines interprets the very latest silhouette at its best. This voluminous wrap is of sapphire blue double-faced velvet. Its color tones beautifully to the gown which is done in periwinkle blue and silver lame.

SILK MILITAIRE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The military trend in fashions is increasingly apparent. The afternoon gown pictured interprets the theme in a novel and attractive way. It is fashioned of high-grade black silk crepe as is also the laced cardigan. The blouse is likewise in matching crepe, overwoven, however, with silver threads to simulate a coat of mail in keeping with the military movement. The off-face black felt hat is up to the moment in "lines."

Lastex Materials Popular

Lastex materials are being used for everything from sports suits, ski suits and underwear to upholstery.

Speaking of the color glory of the new velvets calls to mind a superb evening ensemble (not illustrated) which belongs to the realm of velvet, which is the case of the same dull-surfaced bagheera. Its lack luster surface and the fact that it is so sheer one can see through it almost as if it were chiffon, add infinitely to its charm. The dress is fashioned with utmost simplicity—sophisticated simplicity according to modern interpretation. It has one of the new inch-high hand collars and buttons demurely down the front to below the waistline. Decidedly form-revealing is this dress so surely it is fitted to the figure. The piece de resistance is its cape of the same dull-surfaced velvet, the majestic foot-trailing lines of which are that imposing they quite overawe one. Capes of generous flowing lines such as this stand for all that is smartest and newest in way of the formal evening wrap. We almost forgot to tell you about the collar of precious brown fur that completes this costume. It is ingeniously attached to the dress although it appears to be part of the cape.

Now that we are talking about smart evening wraps, here is something worth stretching your budget to acquire. Every woman who loves to dress will be wanting one. It's the enchanting little velvet jacket with revers embroidered in colored stones which have only just recently made their debut. They are fascinating.

ITALIAN INFLUENCE IN SLEEVE STYLES

The style of sleeve has been noticeably affected by the exhibition of Italian art in Paris. Very full sleeves have the preference, with a few close-fitted ones, often detachable and shaped like those in Italian portraits, which resemble a long mitten reaching above the elbow. These mitten sleeves are often in velvet that contrasts in material and color with the rest of the dress.

Some of the models are made entirely of vivid colored transparent plastic materials, such as sequin on a dull black rayon velvet dress with matching band at the round neckline. The art exhibition has also inspired Bouffant sleeves, slashed over contrasting colored fabric, as well as very long medieval sleeves that fall to the hem of the skirt in panel style.

Dead White Most Popular

Color for Evening Clothes
Top hats, gleaming white shirt fronts, glittering gold and silver lame, that's the fashion picture by night, according to Carmel Snow, editor of Harper's Bazaar.

"People are dressing up as they haven't in years," she says. "It has been suggested that the jubilee in London last June is responsible for all this dressing and this splendor. Certainly it has taught us all to dress in the grand style."

"To get back to what we are wearing in America, in the evening, after late, the most important color is dead white—as pure as marble. The draped dresses that Vionnet made her great success with this autumn are many of them marble white."

Snow Suits

For fun in the snow, two-piece suits for youngsters from four to eight will be smart this winter. Plaid double-breasted jackets have attached scarf collars for warm protection and knitted cuffs. Plain color jackets with tri-color round yokes close with zippers up to snug little collars. The plain trousers in brown, green or navy for both jackets have reinforced knees and knitted cuffs. A little matching hat with cuff brim goes with each suit.

HEALTHY PERSONS LESS LIKELY TO LOSE THEIR JOBS

Persons in good health who keep themselves as free as possible from physical handicaps are less likely to join the ranks of the unemployed than those handicapped by physical defects.

This is the conclusion of a study of the physical condition of unemployed persons carried on by the Employment Stabilization Research Institute of the University of Minnesota. The study is reported by Dr. Harold S. Diehl, director of the Students' Health Service at the University, to the United States Public Health Service.

Other conclusions include:

1. Those who lost their jobs early in the depression had more physical defects and handicaps than those who were "let out" later on.
2. Overweight is a handicap for women in holding and finding jobs, but is not for men.
3. More men 10 per cent or more underweight were found in the unemployed of the professional and white collar groups.
4. Major defects or diseases having relation to unemployment include:
 - a. Defective vision.
 - b. Impairment of hearing.
 - c. Dental decay.
 - d. Impaired locomotion.
 - e. Suspicious chest findings.

Being dropped from the payroll was seldom based on physical condition, Doctor Diehl pointed out. Employers merely dropped the least efficient workers first. While poor health handicaps ability the conclusion can also be drawn that a person who neglects his health is likely to be careless and inefficient on the job.—Science Service.

KERA MAKES STUDY OF INDIGENTS IN STATE

LOUISVILLE, Ky. Jan. 10.—The first comprehensive study and analysis of indigency to be made in any state in the United States since suspension of direct relief by the Federal Government December 1, has been completed by The Kentucky Emergency Relief Administration. The survey was made at the instance of George H. Goodman, administrator, under the direct supervision of Edgar C. Turney, statistician and director of finance, and Miss Vera Lee, general auditor. Information contained in the survey becomes pertinent and is timely, in view of proposed National and State legislation seeking to care for this particular type of needy person other than by old age pensions or otherwise.

The survey takes into consideration a total of 15,494 cases in Kentucky, now State charges but cared for by the Federal Government prior to December 1. Since December 1, indigents in Kentucky have been cared for by means of $250,000 in State funds made available by former Governor Ruby Laffoon and $250,000 made available for the month of January by Governor Albert B. Chandler. These two sums were disbursed by a skeleton organization of the Kentucky Emergency Administration, tendered to the State by Mr. Goodman without cost, pending such time as the General Assembly makes permanent arrangements to assume this responsibility.

That the total number of indigents in Kentucky is variable is indicated by the fact that of the case figure of 15,494 a total of 237 cases died, moved or disappeared from the field of study from December 1 to December 31, the period covered. The term case is defined as a family group containing one or more individuals, but in case of this study the head of a case is the only person tabulated. To arrive at the number of individuals involved the multiplying factor is approximately 3.4.

Of the total number of indigent cases in Kentucky 13,070, or 84.4 per cent are white while 2,424 or 15.6 per cent are colored. Eight thousand and seventy-seven, or 52.1 per cent of the total are 65 years of age or older. Fourteen hundred and eighteen, or 9.2 per cent range from 55 to 65 years of age. The blind are represented by 427 cases, or 2.8 per cent of the total. Mental debility accounts for 495 cases, or 3.2 per cent. Physically handicapped cases number 1,164 or 7.5 per cent. Widows with children and deserted mothers number 1,516, or 9.8 per cent. Cases classified as chronically ill and diseased number 2,397 or 15.4 per cent of the total.

In no instance did the survey take into consideration persons in State Institutions, such as insane asylums, homes for the blind, feeble minded institutes or home for the aged. Each case represents a destitute home, the head of which is unemployed and for whom the State is expected to provide in the future.

Looking to the future responsibilities of the State, as indicated by the Kentucky Emergency Relief Survey, Governor A. B. Chandler recently urged the General Assembly to make quick and adequate provisions for the State's indigent aged and needy. While the people of the State have passed favorably upon old age pensions it is to be expected the Legislature will pass further and more far reaching social service legislation at an early date.

Recognizing the importance of the Kentucky Emergency Relief Administration's survey, its uses and bearing upon pending and proposed legislation in the various States, the Federal Government has indicated to Mr. Goodman and Mr. Turney that several experts soon will be sent into Kentucky under the direction of K. E. R. A. officials, to further break down and study the causes for indigency. With Kentucky leading the way Washington has further indicated like surveys will be made in all other States.

In Fulton county there were white indigents and forty-three colored. Seventy-six are over 65 years of age; 28 from 55 to 65 years old.

FARM BUREAU WAGES FIGHT FOR THE AAA BLASTS COURT'S ACT

Don't believe for once that the American farmer is going to give up and watch his program of equality and parity for which he has fought for so long, swept into the discard.

This program, launched by organized agriculture, will continue to press forward, as the American farmer is going to continue to fight for economic parity. We are looking to Congress to take the necessary steps, by which agricultural parity is to be continued, and they can and will. I am most certain, provide legislation within the bounds of the Constitution to do this.

Quoting the careful chosen words of our President to the American Farm Bureau Federation, Edward A. O'Neal, who said: "The laws of this country must protect equally all groups and classes. The day of special privilege for certain groups is over. The program which has just been overthrown by the courts is the farmers' own program. It was written by the farmers, and by no one else. I eagerly subscribe to the dissenting opinion delivered by Justice Stone in which he said: 'For the appeal from an unwieldy law the recourse is not to the Court but to the ballot.'"

After this decision was handed down by the Supreme Court, Mr. O'Neal called together the entire Board of Directors of the A. F. B. F. for a meeting to be held in Washington, and since then, mass meetings of farmers were held under the leadership of the American Farm Bureau Federation in 37 States, 1300 counties and in thousands upon thousands of rural communities.

Farmers! Wake Up! We need to be organized more now than ever before in history. Give your local Farm Bureau your moral and financial support. It will in turn, be stronger to do its share towards the State and National Organizations.

At the present time we have secured 217 members for 1936. We only like two members having as many signed up by the 1st of May last year. Why not make this 300 members for 1936? Can it be done? I say it can if ever member would make the effort to sign up one of his neighbors that is not now a member.

At our last directors' meeting the following delegates were selected to attend the convention of the Farm Bureau Federation at Louisville on January 15-16, Cecil Burnett, President; J. B. Williams, County Agent; Ed Thompson, W. C. Sowell and J. A. Lattus, Directors.

THE FULTON COUNTY NEWS, FULTON, KENTUCKY

Bruce Barton Says

No Jobs Good By Themselves

We had a couple of college girls to dinner the other night, and one of them said: "The college offers a vocational course to its seniors, consisting of lectures from prominent alumni. I started to attend but dropped because it was too discouraging. Each speaker spent her time telling us that her chosen work is peculiarly hard and unremunerative, and advising us by all means to try something else."

Your heart probably will warm to this young lady because you can recall how the family doctor said: "For heavens' sake don't try medicine," the family lawyer counseled: "Only one lawyer in a thousand makes a decent living," and newsmen pleaded: "Stay away. It means living a dog's life working at night and being always broke." We were all advised that all the jobs are bad jobs, and all over-encumbered. Yet somehow we managed to get a toe-hold and push our way up a little, and we are still alive and eating.

For myself, I never discourage young people about my business which is advertising. I tell them it is a very interesting business and almost every man and woman I know seems to have got in a different way. Few grow rich in it, but hardly any one wants to leave. Another business which I almost entered still has its appeal, and that is college teaching. I have also a lingering love for the life of a locomotive engineer.

I sometimes suspect that the importance of the fateful "choice of a life work" is probably over-rated. All jobs are exciting, and all are dull; all consist pretty much in doing the same thing over and over, but all have their high points, too. With a little imagination and good health, it seems to me one could be reasonably amused in the foundry business, or hides and leather, or clay, grain and cement.

Shoes Pinch Only Wearer
Two women were applying the verbal lash to one of their sisters who had obtained a divorce and was about to become a bride again. They had nothing but praise for the cast-off husband and nothing but condemnation for the wife. He was successful in business, handsome, and, if the women who were concerning themselves in the collapse of his matrimonial venture were right, a noble character in all respects. Any woman must have been crazy to discard such a man.

Plutarch, whose writings seem to cover the whole range of human tors, Rev. E. S. Hicks and C. P. Mabry, vice president were selected as alternates.

This is one of the most important conventions we have ever had in our state, and I am sure our delegates will bring back a fine report. At a later announced date we will have our Fulton County Farm Bureau Annual Convention and banquet, which will be held at Hickman this year.

J. B. McGEHEE

experience, says in one of his moral essays: "The Roman who was taken to task by his friends for repudiating his chaste, wealthy, and handsome wife, showed them his shoe, and said: 'Although this is new and handsome, none of you know where it pinches me.'"

People waste more words and do more profitless guessing in connection with the marital misadventures of their fellow human beings than on any other subject. For starting the tongues to wagging, nothing equals a divorce. Wives are despised for leaving men who seem to be blameless, and husbands are despised for turning from wives who are presumed to possess all the virtues. But what can the critics really know?

The same sort of meddling officialdom goes on in the lesser affairs of life. If Brown's wife decides to go to Europe, her friends wonder how she can afford it, and pity Brown who is a hard working man and likes as if he, instead of his wife, should be having a vacation. Let Williamson make changes in his office force, and plenty to people discover motives that probably are miles away from the facts.

In one sense there is no unemployment in this country. You and I and a few more are busy tending to our own affairs, while tens of millions are equally busy tending to each other's affairs. Just a grand lot of volunteer shoe-surveys, knowing all about every shoe except where it pinches.

FARMERS HOME JOURNAL CRITICIZES SUPREME COURT

Following is a statement issued this week by the Farmers Home Journal, Kentucky's only farm paper, concerning AAA decision by the Supreme Court.

"The recent Supreme Court decision strikes at the very heart of the present increasing prosperity of American Agriculture."

"The Farmers' Home Journal stands militantly ready to battle whatever force may be necessary in order to assure for the American farmer his share of the wealth he has so deservedly created."

"This Nation has now accepted the fact that our present interwoven social and economic structure cannot stand on the foundation of a bankrupt agriculture."

"The mansprings of the Nation, agriculture, is assailed. Unless something is done to check the rampant stampede of uncontrolled markets and production, we fear the worst."

"Farmers of Kentucky, we call upon you to pick up again the battle cry of permanent prosperity and join with us in a crusade to see to it that justice for agriculture may be continued, either thru a resuscitation of our fallen adjustment act, or through some similarly workable plan yet unconceived."

"Our faith in the fundamental principles of our Government has not been shaken, but the Farmers' Home Journal is horrified to see that our Federal Government can be so effectively hamstringing in carrying out a program of national welfare."

Carloads of Diamonds

A SEVERE and unexpected cold wave emptied the fuel bins of a great city hospital.

Coal was to be had at the mines, hundreds of miles away. Could it be delivered in time?

The question was put to the Illinois Central. Instant was the response. A passing train was stopped at the mine. Soon across the snow-swept prairies sped the carloads of precious black diamonds.

It was a welcome avalanche that thundered into the hospital's bins, just in time.

COAL isn't a perishable commodity, but there are times when it has to be handled as last freight. It is the pride of the Illinois Central that it can—and does—provide the type of service needed to meet an emergency.

PROMENADE DECK

by Ishbel Ross

SYNOPSIS—A luxurious 5-month cruise around the world aboard the "Marenia" brings together a group of passengers for adventures, romance, entertainment—and tragedy. Like in "Grand Hotel" these passengers offer a study in human actions and reactions which unconsciously base their souls. These characters are aboard the ship: Macduff, dour Scotchman, single, of middle age; Miss Mudge, school teacher, spending the savings of 20 years; Angela, faithful wife of Lovat, gigolo; Dick Charlton, first officer; Clare, a person of experience; Joan, a dissipated flapper; Jenny, run-away wife, and Peter; Captain Baring, master of the ship—and his soul—NOW. GO ON WITH THE STORY!

FOURTH INSTALLMENT

The Red Sea stretched like a velvet carpet under a sky studded with stars. "Venus!" said Jenny, looking upward. I always know it because of its translucence, and it seems so much closer to the earth than the others. I used to watch it over the river at Little Oaks and now I'm seeing it near Aden with you!"

She clung to the rail, her figure enveloped in a dim blue haze. She listened to the swish of the boat through the water, and watched its trail of foam. The funnels rose like black towers, pouring a stream of smoke into the night. It was hot in a smooth and milky way. She threw off her wrap and clutched at her throat. Peter slid his hand along the rail and caught her fingers.

"Strange, isn't it?" Jenny whispered. "Why strange?"

"I feel as if we're all alone in the night and very far from everywhere. I'm rather afraid."

"Afraid of what?"

She shuddered and pressed closer to his side. There were moments when one was alone in all the universe, when there was no aid, no communion, anywhere, but how could one convey his sense of isolation, even to the man one loved? She sank to a deck chair and lay looking up at the stars. For an hour they seemed to be racing through foam under a canopy that reached to infinity.

"What a fine sense of exhilaration one gets on the top deck!" said Peter, turning from the rail to look at the silent Jenny. "But I wish we were having a roaring storm; this is so tame. I like the fury of the sea. You've never been in a real storm, have you, Jenny?"

"No, never. I wonder if I should mind."

"I think you wouldn't like it, for you're not attuned to wildness. Your mind and your body are passive."

He bent over her till her hair drifted across his mouth with a sharp fragrance. Her face was part of the night. For a moment he thought her a perfect stranger—so shadowy and remote! What did she dream of all the time? Why could he never reach the core of Jenny's thoughts? Why did she shut him out? He looked down the dim corridors of the future and wondered if he had made a mistake in taking her from her husband and home. Half of the time he was forced to comfort and reassure her, and she paid for a moment of rapture with hours of futile regret.

She turned to him suddenly, her voice edged with pain. "You're thinking of the future, aren't you, Peter?"

"I was thinking of you."

"I know—the two of us together. How do you think it will be—afterwards, when all this is over?"

"This won't come to a sudden stop, Jenny. Our happiness will continue."

"It's peaceful here tonight, but I'm afraid of what time will do to us, Peter."

"Rubbish! You're carrying your troubles self too far from home."

Clare and Johnny went pacing by. Peter turned his head to watch the sweep of the figure in violet chiffon. Her shoulders swayed as she moved; she held her chin like a bird in flight. He was now abstracted, puffing at his cigarette. Jenny's voice was crossing his thoughts.

"I'm hypnotized by the sea, Peter. It's like a song in my heart, rhythmic and never-ending. Look at the queer glow on the horizon!"

"You never know what you are going to encounter in this region. I've seen the Red Sea churned like a mass of foaming devils, and again as calm as a pane of glass. But it's not a patch on the China Sea, which is always an ugly sight."

They went down to their stateroom, and Jenny emerged slowly from her taffeta.

"You make me think of a white peony," said Peter, as her ruffled frock fell to her feet, "so pale, so dreamy, so fragile, as if each petal would drop off with a breath." He kissed her neck and behind her ears; he ran his fingers down her slender wrists. "And your skin is as soft as a peony petal, and your eyes are as blue as the sea at noon-day, and I love you very much!"

He caught her in his arms and Jenny's head dropped against his chest with fluttering eagerness. He kissed her throat and the blue lids of her eyes and then her mouth. The colour stirred slowly in her creamy cheeks and her lips grew scarlet and full.

"Peter, I adore you," she whispered, dragging herself from a deep abyss to meet his love with her own pale ardour.

"But, my dear, you're so far away," Peter's lips were against her mouth. "It's like calling a ghost back to my embrace. I feel, when I possess you, that you're perched on a distant mountain, looking on. Darling, wake up! Love me as I love you."

Jenny heard his words in a dream. Why did he bother to talk? It was true what he was saying—she was remote, alone on a mountain-top. She could see the bluish line of his half-closed eyes, and his hair damp on his brow. Why did she feel so soothed instead of the stinging pain of love? She was drifting now on calm waters. It seemed as if she were back in the dhow on the Nile, and she felt that she must be swooning. "Jenny! Jenny darling! Where are you? Oh, my love!" Peter was calling to her from a long distance, pain in his voice. She could hear the swish of the water outside the porthole. The light of the moon lay wan on the floor of their stateroom. Jenny's eyelids lifted. She was back from the distant places and was holding Peter in her arms. How she adored him! He was breathing gently and dropping off to sleep. She stroked his face like a mother with a child. "Jenny, darling!" he murmured through sleepy lips. She lay in a trance, hour after hour, her eyes fixed on the pencil of moonlight that pierced the porthole.

Five days later the Marenia steamed into the wide, flat harbour of Bombay. The Apollo Bunder, gateway to India, rose magnificent against a fleckless stretch of blue.

KENTUCKY UTILITIES COMPANY

Incorporated in Kentucky
E. C. HARDESTY, Mgr.

A heat haze shimmered over the waters, and small craft sped like white-winged birds to their destinations. Angela stood on the top deck and watched the city taking shape at the water's edge. Far to the left she could see a fringe of green—Malabar Hill, overhanging Bombay.

The ship heaved and turned to a peaceful anchorage. A tender came puffing importantly to her side. When the boat ceased throbbing at last, Angela's ears continued to drum, a faint echo that would not leave her.

The chief officer came strolling up to her side.

"Good morning, Mrs. Wynant."

"Good morning, Mr. Charlton."

"Well, it's India at last. I must confess I like it as little as any country I know."

"I like it, nevertheless."

"You should see it in a typhoon with the water breaking against the Bunder."

"Perhaps we shall."

"Not a chance at this time of the year. Well, I've got to be going about my business."

Dick swung off and Angela went down to the lower deck to get into the tender. Her fellow passengers were tired and sulky today. There had been a dance the night before. She stepped ashore, and the first of the fakirs crossed her path with his snake and mongoose already in action. It amused her to watch him though she saw at once that it was the old game. The snake was not killed, but was popped surreptitiously into the sack for further use.

Angela sauntered under her parasol, alive to the drama around her. When she had had enough she took a car and drove to the Towers of Silence. There, from the Hanging Gardens, she could see the roofs of Bombay, flat and white, stretching along the ocean front. The Marenia was a dot in the distance.

Angela thought of Lovat. What could she get him that would interest him at all? Something for his own adornment would please him most, although it was difficult to pick up suitable gifts for a smart young man about-town. She sighed and noticed that Peter had walked into the lounge with Clare. He looked more bronzed than ever in his white rajah suit. She was radiant in cream-coloured silk, few shades lighter than her tanned skin. There was no sign of Jenny. They found a quiet corner under the palms and ordered drinks. Peter leaned over the table and flaked hard to Clare, whose lashes fluttered as she listened to what he said. He was so absorbed that he had no eyes for anyone else in the lounge.

Johnny walked into the lounge and glanced in the direction of Peter and Clare. He seemed aggrieved, and Angela, watching him, felt a little sympathetic as he stood uncertainly at the door. At last he came over to her table and drowned his pique in one cocktail after another. A flush crept up his face as he kept his gaze on Clare, who was chatting in the most intimate way with Peter.

"Where's the lovely Mrs. Rumford today?" he enquired, like one who must torment himself. "I haven't seen her at all." Angela told him, "I was the only one of our lot to come ashore on the tender."

"Perhaps she overslept—like me."

"Oh, cheer up, Johnny! Things are not so bad," Angela remarked, staring at his clouded face. Her attention wandered around the room. There was Macduff, staring into space, and high-hatting the world with the aid of a stiff drink. And here came Jenny, straying into the room with her usual lost air. Her expression in a mirror as her glance rested on Peter and Clare, was tinged with a flush of surprise, and she looked like a bird that has been winged. She moved straight over to the table, dragging a long white scarf behind her.

"Peter, I overslept. I'm sorry you didn't wake me."

He sprang to his feet. "You looked so exhausted, Jenny, so I just let you sleep. You didn't mind my coming on without you, did you? I was going back to get you for luncheon."

"Not a scrap, Peter. Good morning, Mrs. Langford."

Hello, Mrs. Rumford! What a gorgeous shade of green you're wearing! It's just like turt, and of the world."

suggests a lawn in this dusty part. Clare's voice was flattering, but Jenny shrunk from the personal note. She regarded her as an absolute stranger.

"Well, I'm lunching with Johnny," said Clare, lightly. "I must be getting along." Then, turning to Peter, "You win."

"We'll have to discuss it again," he said, freezing his voice, but Jenny was inattentive.

Clare strolled over to the other table. "I'm famished for lunch," she announced. "I want some curry, Johnny. We're entering the area of starvation now."

"Sorry, I'm lunching here with others."

He was staring at her with a tragic air. Secretly Clare hoped that he wouldn't cut his throat or jump into the ocean. Stupid infant she'd teach him a lesson. She leaned over and purred: "All right, Johnny; it doesn't matter a bit. I want to go back to the boat in any event, and look up Mr. Charlton. So long. Hope you enjoy your curry."

"Damn!" muttered Johnny and let her go.

All afternoon the Marenia lay peacefully at anchor, with most of her passengers ashore. They were shopping and seeing the sights.

Joan had slept all day, and awakened just in time to have her cocktails before dinner. She was going to remain behind because she knew that Dick would not be leaving the boat.

Three hours later she was coming out of the bar when she saw him making for his stateroom. She knew that she was not supposed to go near his quarters; that nothing would offend him more. It was hard to forget the sizzling words he had tossed at her for breaking in on him the night she had been so drunk that she had tried to rip off her frock in the bar-room.

AAA Is No More
Who Will Pay Now?
Only 11 Can Run Fast
The State of the Union

The Supreme court decision rejecting AAA, the "agricultural adjustment act," affects every American directly. Issued just as the President announced his program to balance the national budget within one thousand million dollars, the decision upsets that administration program.

Men with large incomes, of whom few survive, may worry, for the decision takes from the government seven hundred million a year of processing taxes that will have to be made good elsewhere. The manufacturers, or processors, tax, handed along to the little people, was, in reality, a sales tax on life's necessities—cotton cloth, flour, meat.

The question is, Who will provide cash promised the farmers, since the Supreme court will not sanction the sales tax, disguised as a "processors' tax"? Whence will come the hundreds of millions the government owes to farmers under its AAA promises and has not yet paid? The farmers did their part, the government could hardly fail to do its part by paying.

International News Service sports department shows that out of about 1,800,000,000 human beings on earth only 11 are known that can run a mile at really high speed. Of these not more than four would have any chance of beating an individual named Glenn Cunningham of Kansas.

You would think that the billion unknown uncounted among the so-called "backward races," many with native energy, free of civilization's handicaps, could easily be trained to beat the 11 fast ones, but it is not probable.

The President's address "on the state of the Union" was, like nearly all Presidential speeches, an address on the state of the administration.

Discussing danger of war, if it is true that 95 or 99 per cent of all the people in the world are content with the territorial limits of their respective nations, that would leave only 10 or 15 per cent of the aggressive type.

Lloyd George, playing a little politics with his friend Prime Minister Baldwin, exults in the noble moral uprising of the British, rejecting the terrible, immoral plan to divide Ethiopia and placate Italy. Something "without precedent," Lloyd George calls it.

Where England is concerned, "dividing up" is, indeed, almost without precedent. England's custom as a rule is to swallow things whole, as she did with the Transvaal, India, and other territories that have kept her old fighting flag always in the sunshine.

The Methodist Episcopal church is proud to announce in Nashville, Tenn., that it begins 1936 with 2,783,269 regularly enrolled members, an increase over the preceding year of 31,298, with 21,361 baptized infants not included. This is the reply of the Methodist Episcopalians to the "high church" Episcopalians of the English church that suggests giving up Protestantism altogether as a failure.

Children will learn with pleasure that it is not necessary to eat spinach unless you like it. Other vegetables take the place of spinach with a menacing person called "Pop Eye."

The government, through WPA, will print a book on what to eat and how to eat it. One well known New York physician ventures the opinion that spinach contains an objectionable amount of "vegetable uric acid."

The English, horrified by Italian bombing in Ethiopia, would be interested, if they have forgotten about it, to see photographs of one big Egyptian city after British warships had finished its bombardment. It was an exceptionally complete job, nothing left standing.

A twenty-year-old Poughkeepsie girl, "from the other side of the tracks," working for $6 a week, was invited by a young man to get into his automobile. "Want to go somewhere for a drink, baby?" was the invitation formula. In the morning the unfortunate girl was found in the man's car in a garage, dead, horribly mistreated and beaten to death. The excuse for mentioning so dreadful a crime is that it ought to warn all girls foolish enough to accept invitations from unknown men.

New Jersey says the execution of Hauptmann, close at hand, will be no theatrical show. No woman reporter will be allowed to witness Hauptmann's death, an excellent idea, although some young ladies will not think so. Female reporters, let us hope, will have babies later on. Watching a miserable creature writhing in the electric chair would not be good for the babies, although science no longer believes in prenatal influences, as Voltaire did.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

THE HUNTER IS DISAPPOINTED

HOW he knew he was safe, Lightfoot the Deer couldn't have told you. He just knew it, that was all. He couldn't understand a word said by the man in whose yard he found himself when he climbed the bank after his long swim across the Big River. But he didn't have to understand words to know that he had found a friend. So he allowed the man to gently drive him over to an open shed where there was a pile of soft hay, and there he lay down, so tired that it seemed to him he couldn't move another step.

It was only a few minutes later that the hunter who had followed Lightfoot across the river reached the bank and scrambled out of his boat. Lightfoot's friend was waiting just at the top of the bank. Of course the hunter saw him at once.

"Hello, friend," cried the hunter. "Did you see a deer pass this way a few minutes ago? He swam across the river, and if I know anything about it, he's too tired to travel far now. I've been hunting that fellow several days, and if I have any luck at all I ought to get him this time."

"I'm afraid you won't have any luck at all," said Lightfoot's friend. "You see, I don't allow any hunting on my land."

The hunter looked surprised, and then his surprise gave way to anger. "You mean," said he, "that you intend to get that deer yourself?"

Lightfoot's friend shook his head. "No," said he. "I don't mean anything of the kind. I mean that that deer is not to be killed if I can prevent it, and while he is on my land, I think I can. The best thing for you to do, my friend, is to get into your boat and row back where you came from. Are those your hounds barking over there?"

"No," replied the hunter promptly. "I know the law just as well as you do, and it is against the law to hunt deer with dogs. I don't even know who owns those two hounds over there."

"That may be true," replied Lightfoot's friend. "I don't doubt it is true. But you are willing to take advantage of the fact that some one else's dogs have broken the law. You knew that those dogs had driven that deer into the Big River, and you promptly took advantage of the fact to try to reach that deer before he could get across. You are not hunting for the pleasure of hunting but just to kill. You don't know the meaning of justice or fairness. Now get off my land! Get back into your boat and off my land as quickly as you can! That deer is not very far from here and so tired that he cannot move. Just as long as he will stay here, he will be safe, and I hope he will stay until this miserable hunting season is ended. Now go!"

Muttering angrily, the hunter got back into his boat and pushed off. But he didn't row back across the Big River.

MOTHER'S COOK BOOK

FRUIT SOUPS

COCKTAILS are more popular as a fruit beginner for the dinner than soups, though in Europe the soups are enjoyed by prince and peasant, summer or winter; chilled with shaved ice they make a most nourishing dish. With fruit soups the ingredients used, as with other soups. Prunes, raisins, figs, bananas, persimmons and pawpaws have more food value in themselves, though lacking in other things. With the addition of stock, milk and egg, the food value is increased. Dried or canned fruits are used as well as the fresh fruits.

Strawberry and Orange Soup.

Sprinkle a pint of strawberries with sugar and let stand on ice for one hour. Make a sirup of one and one-half quarts of water and a pound of sugar, cook for ten minutes, add a quart of fresh berries with the juice of one lemon. Mash and strain, adding a cupful of orange juice with the berries, which have been leed. Serve cold.

Apple and Rice Soup.

Core and slice thin eight unpeeled apples. Cook them with one-half cupful of rice until both are soft, using two quarts of boiling water. Put through a sieve, add spices and one-half cupful of orange juice or grapefruit marmalade. Serve hot.

A very appetizing salad may be made by stuffing well plumped and stewed prunes with cream cheese and finely minced celery. Serve on lettuce with a spoonful of french dressing, or any other kind preferred.

Prune and Peach Soup.

Take one-third of a pound of dried prunes and two-thirds of a pound of dried peaches, soak overnight. In the

MAGIC NUMBERS

THIS is a mystic prediction. The magician writes something on a slip of paper which he seals in an envelope. A person is asked to write a number of three figures—all figures different. For instance, 193.

The magician does not see the number. He merely tells the person to reverse it and subtract the smaller from the larger. Example: 193, reversed, is 391. The subtraction leaves 198.

That, too, is kept from the wizard. And 198, reversed, is 891. The two, added, produce 1089. The envelope is opened. On the paper is the number 1089.

Whatever the original number used, the final total will be 1,089. That is the secret of the trick. One point: always mention that a zero must be placed in front if the subtraction brings a two-figure number. Thus, 99 (which sometimes arrives) is treated as 099. Reversed, it is 990.

News Review of Current Events the World Over

Supreme Court Finds AAA Unconstitutional—Democrats Pick Philadelphia for Convention—Bonus Measure Is Pushed Through House.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD © Western Newspaper Union.

SIX justices of the United States Supreme court, including Chief Justice Hughes, joined in an opinion that killed the Agricultural Adjustment act. Three associate justices, Stone, Brandeis and Cardozo, dissented. The majority decision, read by Associate Justice Owen J. Roberts, held that the AAA was wholly unconstitutional because it invaded the rights of the states in seeking to control farm production, the whole system of processing taxes imposed to finance the program was swept into disarray.

Not only are the processing taxes illegal but the court apparently declared the farm benefit contracts void and put up bars against any attempt of the federal government to regulate farm production by whatever means.

Senators and representatives who immediately began planning legislation to continue benefit payments to farmers and to balance agricultural output did not seem to grasp the full significance of this part of the decision. The court said flatly that regulation of farm production is not within the scope of the federal government and of its powers to accomplish this, nor can it purchase adherence to a control scheme by federal payments.

The decision destroyed not only the original AAA but also the amended act of the last session of congress.

The dissenting opinion held that the AAA was a legitimate employment of the power to tax for the general welfare. It attacked the theory that the preservation of our institutions is the exclusive concern of the Supreme court and suggested that under the majority decision the unemployment work relief act is unconstitutional.

In his budget message President Roosevelt included revenue from processing taxes, so the Supreme court decision had the effect of throwing the 1937 budget still further out of balance by something like a billion dollars.

IN HIS speech at the $50 a plate Jackson day dinner in Washington, President Roosevelt declined to comment on the Supreme court decision killing the AAA. "It is enough to say," he said, "that the attainment of justice and prosperity for American agriculture remains an immediate and constant objective of my administration."

Secretary Wallace called into consultation at Washington about 100 representatives of farm organizations to try to formulate some plan for speedy legislation to supplant the discarded law. Assurance that farmers who have fulfilled contract agreements would be paid was given by President Roosevelt when he addressed administration leaders in congress to push through a $250,000,000 appropriation.

Clarification of the status of $1,200,000,000 paid in taxes by processors was expected when the court decides the eight rice processing tax cases argued recently. Legal experts in congress said an act of congress would be required if the $979,000,000 in processing taxes paid into the treasury are to be refunded.

AUCTIONED off to the highest bidder, the Democratic national convention of 1938 was sold to Philadelphia by the party's national committee. The price was $200,000, plus some prizes and concessions. Chicago and San Francisco also bid for the convention. The former offered a certified check for $150,000. The California city made the same bid and later raised it to $202,500.

During a brief recess Chairman Farley telephoned, presumably to the White House, and Vice President Garner moved among the members of the committee urging the selection of Philadelphia. Therefore the City of Brotherly Love won the prize. The opening of the convention was set for June 27, two weeks after the Republican convention in Cleveland.

NO TIME was lost in putting through the house the bonus measure that had been agreed upon by veterans' organizations and approved by the wars and means committee. It carries the name of the Vinson-Patman-McCormack bill and is a compromise that authorizes immediate payment of the bonus but offers no definite plan for raising the money. It would provide 3 per cent interest until 1945 for veterans refraining from cashing their adjusted service certificates at once, and cancel all interest still due on loans on the certificates.

NEUTRALITY legislation desired by the administration does not meet with the approval of Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois who, though a loyal Democrat, is sometimes opposed to measures fostered by the President. He says the law under consideration in senate and house committees would close the markets of the Middle West to world commerce, and has asked the Illinois Manufacturers association and the Chicago Association of Commerce to support his opposition to it.

As a substitute for the general neutrality law proposed by the President, Senator Lewis advocates enactments granting the chief executive authority to issue regulations placing embargoes upon shipments of commodities which would threaten American neutrality, but stipulating that these regulations should be submitted to the senate for acceptance or amendments.

WITH the obvious intention of building up public sentiment in favor of the special brand of neutrality legislation he desires, Senator Nye had before his senate munitions committee for several days J. P. Morgan, Thomas W. Lamont and other members of the great Morgan banking company. Nye and Stephen Rauschenbusch, investigator for the committee, sought to prove that the United States was drawn into the World war by the loans made to the allies by Morgan & Co. and its associates. The testimony concerning these loans and their implications was long and complicated. The financiers were well prepared for the inquiry and were armed with a great quantity of documents, and though there was a good deal of acrimonious talk, Mr. Morgan appeared entirely unperturbed.

WHEN the delegates to the naval conference in London resumed their deliberations Admiral Osami Nagano, chief representative of Japan, firmly repeated his demand that Great Britain and the United States concede the parity claims of Japan as preliminary to any agreement. This attitude stopped all discussion of the British, French and Italian proposal for exchange of information about naval building plans and threatened the conference with early collapse. The crisis was so serious that Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden himself took a part in the affair, calling the Japanese to his office in an attempt to induce them to adopt a more conciliatory attitude.

Japanese spokesmen declared they were interested first and last in the total tonnage question—under which they demand equality—and were not at all interested in other aspects of naval limitations.

SURROUNDED by klieg lights, microphones and movie cameras, President Roosevelt stood before the senate and house in night joint session and delivered what was nominally his annual message on the state of the nation. Actually it was not that at all, but a statement concerning the warfare and international disturbances on the other continents, followed by what the press generally considered an eloquent and militant political speech addressed to the people of the United States, who by the millions were listening in on their radios. Partisan opinion of his message is perhaps worthless. Of course his supporters praised it highly, and his opponents were equally emphatic in derogation.

Democrats and Republicans alike commended the President's opening paragraphs in which he boldly condemned the aggression of Italy and Japan, though without naming those nations; and there was little dissent from his assertion that the United States must maintain its neutrality while seeking to "discourage the use by belligerent nations of any and all American products calculated to facilitate the prosecution of a war in quantities over and above our normal exports to them in time of peace."

The remainder of the message, devoted chiefly to a belligerently worded defense of the New Deal measures of the administration, an attack on those who oppose them and a spirited passage in which Mr. Roosevelt defied and dared his critics to move for the repeal of those measures instead of "hiding their dissent in a cowardly cloak of generality." In only two paragraphs did the President dwell on "the state of the nation." In these he said that after nearly three years of the New Deal national income is increasing, agriculture and industry are "returning to full activity," and "we approach a balance of the national budget."

One passage in the message was interpreted by some as a threat to close the lower courts to suits attacking the constitutionality of federal laws. The President told congress that its enactments require "protection until final adjudication by the highest tribunal," and added that congress "has the right and can find the means to protect its own prerogatives."

JAPANESE military commanders in the North China area are evidently preparing for further encroachments. Their latest complaint is that two Japanese stores in Tientsin were looted and a Japanese flag trampled on by soldiers of Gen. Sung Chuyuan, chairman of the Hoped-Chuhai political council. While Japanese airplanes flew threateningly over Peiping and Tientsin, the Japanese commanders filed a demand for an apology for the incident, an indemnity, punishment of the culprits, complete elimination of anti-Japanese sentiment against its repetition, and the appointment of Japanese advisers in the Chinese police departments.

THROUGH the rainy season that will check his campaign in fast approaching, Mussolini continued to send fresh troops by the thousands to Ethiopia. It was estimated that Italy's East African forces already numbered more than 250,000, and there were reports that 100,000 more would be sent in the near future.

The Ethiopian government, accusing Italy of continued employment of poison gas in a policy of "merciless extermination" of the Ethiopian people, urged the League of Nations to dispatch a commission of inquiry to the scene of strife. League officials announced that the request would be handled by the league council, which meets January 20.

SECRETARY of Labor Frances Perkins found in the developments of the last year much of benefit for the American workingman. In her annual report she cited these five great advances for labor:

1. Unemployment compensation, accomplished through the social security act.
2. Old-age security, brought about also by the social security act.
3. Establishment of boards for settling industrial disputes locally.
4. Greater co-operation between the states and the Labor department, through regional conferences.
5. Development of the United States employment service.

Even the large number of strikes during 1935 could be viewed with some satisfaction by her, for she said they were "due in part to the natural expectation of labor to share in the early fruits of business improvement."

IN HIS message to congress submitting his approved budget for the 1937 fiscal year, beginning July 1 next, President Roosevelt followed the double system of accounting his administration has always employed—one set of books for regular expenditures and income and another set for emergency spending and appropriations. He asserted that receipts from all sources in the next fiscal year will aggregate an estimated $5,654,000,000. Expenditures for all regular government departments are estimated at $5,649,000,000. So the "regular" budget will be in balance, with a surplus of $5,000,000.

But the message went on to say, after explaining that the regular government books will show fiscal affairs in the black, as to income and outgo, they will show red to the extent of $1,103,000,000 in works relief spending, less the $500,000,000 "surplus," this leaving the new appropriation for further works relief open for at least two months.

That figure of $1,103,000,000 represents the President's estimate of unexpended balances on July 1 from the $4,880,000,000, and previous emergency appropriations. It does not take into account probable new appropriations for similar purposes yet to be determined.

HAROLD L. ICKES, in his capacity of administrator of the PWA, went to Brooklyn to take part in the ceremony of breaking ground for the $12,500,000 Williamsburg slum clearance project, and took the opportunity to speak very harshly about those who oppose the New Deal, dubbing them "the coupon clipping gentry," "the Lord Flaubert of the club windows," and "reactionists" who "sneer that enlightened progress is unconstitutional."

"The slum is but one vicious product of that old order whose passing, we hope, is at hand," Mr. Ickes said. "I refer to the old order of special privilege, the creator and upholder of a social system containing vicious contrasts of opulence and squalor that have shamed the democracy of our own times. Its day in America is facing the western sun, but the harsh cracklings of its senile prophecies are still heard in opposition to every progressive proposal; predicting disaster for every humanitarian attempt to ameliorate the lot of the least fortunate of our people."

"There are those who take an almost sadistic delight in dashing the hopes of our underprivileged citizens by ill-advisedly proclaiming that the public housing program of PWA is a failure. The facts prove the contrary. Somewhere a housing program had to be started."

"We have 47 active projects on our demonstration program, all under construction. Eleven thousand persons are already enjoying the splendid modern accommodations of limited dividend housing projects financed by PWA, and the first federal developments will be occupied early in the spring."

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted By WILLIAM BRUCKART
NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington.—President Roosevelt has told congress that he wants it to finish its labors and adjourn in short order. He has figured that about three months ought to give the members sufficient time to mull over the problems that confront them and that they then should return to their several homes. But the President is doomed to disappointment if he sincerely believes that he can get congress out of the Capital by the end of March. The best guess right now is that the congress will be in session at least four months and, it is well within the range of possibilities that it will remain in session almost to the time of the national conventions.

There are a number of factors that make realization of the President's early adjournment wish impossible of realization. Probably the most influential of these is the fact that this is a campaign year. Every member of the house and one-third of the senate, along with Mr. Roosevelt himself, are affected by the election date and politics must have its turn. Every four years this same condition obtains and every four years politicians do about the same things in furtherance of their own political interests. The bulk of the legislation to be considered has its political time. Politics even creep into the annual appropriation bills—and usually the result is a swelling of the totals in order that some gears of individual political machines may be oiled just a bit for smooth running in the campaign.

While the appropriation bills are important from a political standpoint, their weight in this session of congress sinks rather below par because there are such things as the bonus for the World war veterans, the Townsend old age pension plan, various New Deal reform measures and such replacement legislation as may be necessary since the Supreme court kicked over New Deal propositions like the Agricultural Adjustment act and its processing taxes and sundry other schemes. However the Roosevelt leaders in congress may desire to act, the machinery of legislation can be run only so fast in an election year.

One of the chief reasons why a congressional session in an election year drags on longer than usual is because of the publicity value the sessions have for individual representatives and senators. Members of congress discovered a hundred years ago that the chambers of the house and senate constituted splendid sounding boards for the dissemination of political views. There has been increasing use of this potentiality as the years have gone by until now the older members of the house and senate have become very adept in capitalizing on this factor. It takes no stretch of the imagination to discover that a senator or representative speaking from the floor of his respective chamber, gets much more publicity than his opponent back home who talks only as a private citizen. It is perfectly natural, therefore, that members seeking re-election want to take full advantage of the publicity vehicle available to them in Washington.

The use of this publicity weapon is available to opponents of the New Deal as well as to its supporters. While the approaching election may be expected to knit the house Democrats more closely into a unified front for the November election, the same condition is not true in the senate. In that body, there are a number of so-called Democrats who do not like the New Deal and who are going to utilize every available opportunity to make their record as Democrats as complete as it is possible to do before they must speak to the home folks in person. It is obvious that such men as Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, cannot desert the Democratic ticket and run for re-election independently. So it is to be expected that men of this type will establish for themselves a comprehensive outline of their political beliefs as Democrats while distinguishing their position from that known as the New Deal. They must look to the future when, according to all indications, they feel the party machinery will again be controlled by the Jeffersonian type of Democrat headed by the reform type of Democrat headed by men and women with the New Deal outlook.

An additional factor operating in the senate is the presence of two Republican Presidential possibilities in the persons of Senator William E. Borah of Idaho and Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan. Senator Borah is actively seeking pledged delegates to the Republican national convention. Senator Vandenberg says he is not a candidate, but the well-known bee is buzzing around and there are many observers who think that Senator Vandenberg is hoping that, in case of a convention stalemate, the assembled delegates may riot and turn to him as the nominee.

Such a condition means, as it has meant before, that these two men will desire to see all of the political issues aired in congressional debates. It is only natural and logical as well that the Republican minority in the house and senate will seek to foment as much debate as possible in order to obtain a record of what the majority party thinks or proposes to do if returned to power.

In all respects, the session will be the most political, therefore, since Mr. Roosevelt took office. His Presidential message on the state of the Union already is being kicked back and forth and picked to pieces in the preliminary campaign gunfire. There is simply no way by which this situation can be avoided. The opening of congress was the opening of the 1936 campaign.

In an earlier letter, I reported to you concerning the question of a neutrality policy and declared at that time that it was the most important item to come before the current session. It remains so. I believe the situation is even more delicate than in my earlier analysis of this problem and it may well be that congress will stall along in reaching a decision on this policy in order to give foreign developments an opportunity to manifest themselves further. The administration apparently is willing to let congress work out the legislation without much interference, but the leaders realize that a decision will be difficult as long as foreign maneuvers continue to present an almost daily change in the scenery.

Reference is made to the neutrality question here because it is one of the things entering into the combination that will cause a longer session than the President wishes.

There seems to be no doubt that passage of a bill to pay the soldiers' bonus at an early date will be accomplished in this session. Likewise, there is hardly the shadow of a doubt that if congress passes such legislation and Mr. Roosevelt vetoes it, the bill will be passed over the veto. It is a campaign year and it is not a good time for politicians to antagonize an organization with the vast membership of the American Legion or the other groups of ex-service men. This legislation will not contribute much to the length of the session but in all such cases representatives and senators must make their speeches and be on record as to why they voted for or against a bill.

The Townsend plan cannot get anywhere in the current session. I do not mean that it will be dodged as a subject of discussion. This is impossible. There will be plenty of debate on it. In the end, however, it will be sidetracked.

Then, there was a flock of inflationary schemes due to horn in on the parade as the session moves forward. Farm mortgage refinancing is one of them. It is unfortunate that the inflationists—those who are willing to prostitute the currency in any manner—are leading in this fight.

In all probability, also, the current session of congress will be called upon to meet some problems resulting from adverse decisions by the Supreme Court of the United States. The court has before it any number of cases involving New Deal policies, including such as the AAA, the TVA with its Tennessee Valley power yardstick, the attempt to regulate wages and hours of labor under the Guffey coal bill known as the Little NRA, and a half dozen other policy propositions. It seems unlikely, although no one can guess, that all of these measures will be held constitutional. If any are held invalid, naturally the President will ask congress to draft new legislation.

As a sample of the political aspect of the current session, one can sight the furor that was stirred up when President Roosevelt delivered his message on the state of the Union to a night session of congress. Except for one instance, Presidents always have delivered or sent their message to congress at noon of a day after the session has had two or three meetings. Mr. Roosevelt chose to get his message to congress on the very first day of the current session but in order to do it and allow for consummation of the usual routine of the opening day, it was necessary to hold a joint session at night.

A MYSTERY
Why would the average man rather be charged with malice than with making a blunder?

DOCTORS KNOW

Mothers read this:

THREE STEPS TO RELIEVING CONSTIPATION
I. A cleansing dose today; a smaller quantity tomorrow; less each time, until bowels need no help at all.

Why do people come home from a hospital with bowels working like a well-regulated watch?

The answer is simple, and it's the answer to all your bowel worries if you will only realize it: many doctors and hospitals use liquid laxatives.

If you knew what a doctor knows, you would use only the liquid form. A liquid can always be taken in gradually reduced doses. Reduced dosage is the secret of any real relief from constipation.

Ask a doctor about this. Ask your druggist how very popular liquid laxatives have become. They give the right kind of help, and right amount of help. The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara—both natural laxatives that can form no habit, even in children. So, try Syrup Pepsin. You just take regulated doses till Nature restores regularity.

Lady Took Cardui When Weak, Nervous

"I can't say enough for Cardui if I talked all day," enthusiastically writes Mrs. L. H. Caldwell, of Statesville, N. C. "I have used Cardui at intervals for twenty-five years," she adds. "My trouble in the beginning was weakness and nervousness. I read of Cardui in a newspaper and decided right then to try it. It seemed before I had taken half a bottle of Cardui I was stronger and was soon up and around."

Thousands of women testify Cardui has helped them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

"Morning sickness"—is caused by an acid condition. To avoid it, acid must be offset by alkali—such as magnesia.

Why Physicians Recommend
Milnesia Wafers

These mint flavored, candy-like wafers are pure milk of magnesia in solid form—the most pleasant way to take it. Each wafer is approximately equal to a full adult dose of liquid milk of magnesia. Chewed thoroughly, then swallowed, they correct acidity in the mouth and throughout the digestive system and insure quick, complete elimination of the waste matter that causes gas, headaches, bloated feelings and a dozen other discomforts.

Milnesia Wafers come in bottles of 20 and 48, at 35c and 60c respectively, and in convenient tins for your handbag containing 12 at 25c. Each wafer is approximately one adult dose of milk of magnesia. All good drug stores sell and recommend them.

INHUMAN TORTURE OF YOUNG GIRL IS BARED IN VIENNA

Middle-Aged Woman and Two Men Held in Strange Criminal Case.

Vienna, Austria.—A middle-aged wife and two men await trial in one of Austria's most sensational criminal cases. The defendants, Mary Gruberth, thirty-six, Adolf Oile, twenty-three, locksmith, and Johann Schloeglbauer, twenty-six, itinerant worker, are accused of kidnapping and torturing pretty eighteen-year-old Ernestine Podlipnik. Details of the crime with which they are charged would rival the imagination of Edgar Wallace or a Poe.

Police believe that Oile planned the crime. They suspect that he also contemplated poisoning Mary Gruberth and her husband, John, to obtain possession of their villa near Moedling.

Married Life Unhappy.

The Gruberths, parents of two children, did not lead a happy married life. In recent months Gruberth rarely entered his home, which he previously had turned over to his wife. Mrs. Gruberth is said to have consoled herself by close friendship with Oile, who lived at the house. Police say she signed over the house to Oile even if her relations with him should cease before her death.

Gruberth, while planning to divorce his wife, met Miss Podlipnik in a Vienna moving picture house. He promised to marry her. Police believe his intentions became known to his wife and Oile, and they charge that the latter suggested to Mrs. Gruberth a devilish scheme for revenge.

Investigators learned that Oile and Schloeglbauer bought men's clothing for Mrs. Gruberth as the first step in wreaking vengeance on the young girl. Late one night the three drove to Ernestine's home. The two men, police charge, knocked on the girl's window and told her that her brother John, who was seriously ill, demanded immediate attention.

Girl Enters Trap.

The girl, unsuspecting, entered a motor car where she was searched by the two men and Mrs. Gruberth. It was charged that the woman brutally tore a diamond ring from the girl's finger. It was a present to Ernestine from Gruberth.

Then, in reconstructing events that occurred, investigators say the girl was driven to Mrs. Gruberth's villa near Moedling, where preparations had been made for holding her prisoner. Servants had been dismissed to eliminate unwanted witnesses to the abduction, police say.

The girl was kept prisoner in the villa. She charged that she was forced to take part in orgies; that her picture was taken in compromising positions, and that she was forced to send these with a letter to Gruberth saying she had been untrue to him and did not want to marry him.

Ernestine charged other tortures. She told police Mrs. Gruberth had her stripped and then poured hot and cold water on her body.

Gives Undertakers Bad

Checks—Gravest Mistake

Toronto, Ont.—Rubber checks just can't displace the corpus delicti in the affections of an undertaker.

That seemed to be the feeling of Magistrate Browne recently in remanding for mental examination Robert Gledhill, Jr., who had a right merry time with local undertakers.

Police said Gledhill would approach morticians with a sorrowful tale of a comrade who had died in another town and arrange for the funeral, paying for the latter with a bad check and getting cash from the undertaker on another.

"The checks would come back," the detective said, "but nary a corpse showed up."

Hole-in-One Hero Adds

Grand Slam to Feats

Atlanta, Ga.—Two years ago Stanley Hastings saw his tee shot drop on the green, dribble slowly toward the cup and then plunk in for his first hole in one.

Until a few weeks ago he thought life held no other thrills for him. But he was mistaken.

He was playing bridge at the home of a friend. After the cards were dealt Hastings bluffed three times before realizing he held 13 spades. The grand slam bid was doubled and redoubled and he made 2,900 points.

Stroller Catches Salmon

Hooked by Some One Else

Seattle, Wash.—Fred Johnson tells how he caught a salmon without tackle. As he walked along the beach, he spied the fish swimming in shallow water, a flasher with a long piece of line attached trailing from its mouth. He waded into the water, grabbed the line and pulled in the salmon.

SCOTLAND POLICE SOLVE MYSTERY AS "YARD" IS STUMPED

England's Famed Sleuths Are Balked: Rival Force Clears Up Torso Deaths.

London.—Britain's long chain of gruesome torso murders, unsolved during 16 months, appears to have broken at last.

The weird case of the dismembered bodies found in a Scottish ravine gave the opportunity to the Scottish criminal investigation department to succeed where England's "Scotland Yard," supposedly the "crack" detective unit of the world, failed.

The canny Scots unraveled the mystery surrounding finding of two expertly dissected bodies and the disappearance of a doctor's wife and her nursemaid. Now Dr. Buck Ruxton of Lancaster, England, faces trial on the charge of murder, though he steadfastly asserts his innocence.

The Ruxton case, however, has not brought Scotland Yard any nearer to erasing similar mysteries from its own records.

The Scottish secret service, however, claims to be far superior to the English and their record in the Ruxton case supports their contention.

Solved by Scots.

By systematic investigation within a few days of finding of the bodies, backed so small it was difficult for scientists to tell if they were bodies of men or women, Scottish police arrested Doctor Ruxton, thirty-six-year-old gynecologist of French-East Indian ancestry. They had learned that a few days prior to the discovery of the 80 parcels containing human flesh Mrs. Isabel Ruxton, the doctor's thirty-five-year-old wife, and Mary Jane Rogerson, twenty-year-old nursemaid, had disappeared.

Doctor Ruxton readily admitted his wife and the nursemaid of the three Ruxton children had disappeared, but said he did not know where they had gone.

It was June, 1934, that the Yard uncovered its first modern torso murder, when a trunk in the Brighton railway station emitted the legless, armless and headless torso of a woman whose identity never was discovered. A pair of legs were found under a seat in a train at Waterloo station, London, which might have belonged to the torso, but after a few months the Yard gave the case up as hopeless.

Second Torso Found.

A month later a second torso was found in the Grand Union canal near Brentford. The Yard tried to find a connection with the Brighton case, and failed. For a time the Yard worked closely with New York police trying to determine whether the body was that of Agnes Tuterson, New York woman lawyer, who vanished two weeks after her marriage to Capt. Ivan Poderza, now serving time in Sing Sing prison for bigamy. But the dead woman was fifteen years younger than Miss Tuterson.

With two and possibly three torso murders unsolved, the Yard bumped right into Brighton Trunk Murder Number Two. This time the victim was identified as Violet Kaye and her admirer, Tony Mancini, an Italian waiter, was arrested. At his trial Mancini proved an alibi.

The Yard remains baffled. It is not as though its men had never been faced with two torso murders before. Besides the Mahon case there was the Charing Cross murder of 1927, when a woman's torso was found in the checkroom—and the case solved.

300 Lions Are Bagged by Dogs in Arizona

Prescott, Ariz.—Successful lion hunting, if you believe Giles Goswick, depends on having good "hounds."

Goswick's opinion on anything connected with mountain lions is regarded as gospel in Arizona.

For ten years, Goswick has made his living by killing mountain lions first as a United States biological survey hunter and now as a state-employed predatory game hunter charged with ridding this section of the fierce killers which destroy tens of thousands of dollars' worth of live stock each year.

Goswick's pack of "lion dogs" are descended from a hound brought to Arizona 35 years ago by his father. Through successive generations of training, they have lion hunting bred into them.

According to the hunter, he and his pack have killed or captured 300 mountain lions, including a 9-foot male which was believed to be the largest ever killed in the Southwest. This particular lion, he said, was trailed for three days by the dogs before they frightened it into a tree.

POULTRY RAISING ON INCREASE HERE

Swift & Company have recently installed a new 35,000 egg capacity Robbins mammoth incubator. No one will doubt, after visiting and inspecting this new unit, that the installation of this modern equipment, indicates a great forward stride in quality poultry production in Western Kentucky and Tennessee.

Four years ago Swift & Company began the operation of a hatchery unit at Fulton with the primary purpose of making available a better type of baby chicks to the farmers of this community. For many years Swift & Co. have been noted for their processing and selling of high class meats and products to the public. The plan of developing a better grade of poultry in this section, through supervised hatchery operations, is a distinct outgrowth of this large organization's plan of merchandising a better quality product, according to W. R. Donigan, manager of Swift & Co. plant of Fulton. They have been able to buy back a large amount of the chicks sold when they become available for market and this has helped considerably in creating a better consumer demand for dressed poultry from this section.

Many farmers have built up splendid flocks of poultry as a result of Swift's co-operation and assistance in conjunction with their hatchery development. For many years many farmers have overlooked the fact that their poultry flocks provided a splendid source of cash revenue and could form a large percentage of the total farm income. With improvement in poultry and egg prices in the past year the outlook for profitable poultry operations is better than it has been during the past four years.

The expansion of Swift's hatchery business outgrew the capacity of the old hatchery unit and they were not able to supply the demand for chicks. The new Robbins unit is double the former capacity of the old hatchery equipment and they hope to take care of all orders this year.

W. R. Donigan, manager of Swift & Co., states that this year he plans to have available two hatchery field service men to properly take care of the many requests from farmers for assistance with their poultry problems. Previously they have only had one service man to carry on this work.

No doubt there are many who would be very much interested in seeing the new hatchery unit and Swift & Co. cordially invites you to inspect the new hatchery.

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION

Friday, January 17th, was a delightful occasion at the home of Mrs. Sallie Tate, 309 State Line-st.
The house, always pretty and attractive, had donned a gala attire in honor of the birthday of the hostess. Friends and relatives assembled near the noon hour, laden with tempting dishes which, when added to those already prepared,
made a feast "fit for the gods."
Many brought dainty and appropriate gifts, tokens of love for she who so richly deserved them. A few of the desirable presents presented. When the squares were spread together, they formed a riot of gargantuan flowers: a garden resplendent in full dress. Each square had the donor's name embroidered in colors matching the blossoms. In future years the quilt will be a valuable asset, to memory's storehouse and, when in a reminiscent mood, each name will recall happy hours spent together and especially the day of presentation.

At the noon hour the guests assembled in the dining room and were invited to "help" themselves to the bountiful lunch. Small tables had been arranged in the spacious room and souvenir place cards directed each one to a seat where she could leisurely partake of the delicious menu and visit with friends while doing so.

A lovely birthday cake was on the table of the hostess. The significant dates, 1867-1935, were woven into the decorations.

An informal reception was held for several hours after lunch. When leaving each guest felt she had visited with congenial friends in a home noted for its gracious hospitality. I am hoping Mrs. Tate will have many more birthdays, keep open house and have my name on her "invite" or list.

SATURDAY JANUARY 25th AT ELEVEN P. M.

FULTON'S new, common battery telephone system will be placed in service at eleven P. M., January 25th.
At that hour all telephones will be connected with the handsome new switchboard, and service will go ahead without interruption.

To make a call on the new system you merely lift the receiver from the hook and, when the operator answers, give her the number of the telephone desired. It is important to first consult the new directory because many familiar numbers have been changed.

After you have given the operator the number you will hear the ringing signal, which is a "burring" sound. This informs you that the bell of the called telephone is ringing. If, after hearing this signal for a reasonable time, you obtain no answer, it indicates that there is no one within hearing distance to answer. You should hang up and call again later.

To recall the operator on a connection, move the receiver hook up and down slowly five or six times at intervals until the operator answers. If you jiggle the hook the operator cannot see the signal.

Do not hang up the receiver until you have finished with the connection, as this gives the operator a signal to disconnect.

If the person or firm you wish to call is not listed in the directory, call "Information."

If you are a party line subscriber and wish to call another party on your line, do not give the operator the complete number of the telephone wanted.
Just say, "I want to talk to 'J' on this line," or M, R or W, as the case may be. As soon as the operator has acknowledged your request, hang up the receiver long enough for the operator to ring the other telephone. Then remove the receiver and wait for the other telephone to answer.

Your co-operation in consulting the directory before calling and in using the service properly, will enable us to render the best possible service.
