Aging Courthouse Gets New Look — Three New Doors

Marshall County's aging courthouse had a few wrinkles removed last week. New doors now help modernize and beautify the three entrances to the building.

Jim Barnes, who helped put up the original doors 37 years ago (in 1915), also helped put up the new doors.

The new doors were ordered by fiscal court and cost approximately $300 in installed.

The doors will be varnished as soon as possible, County Judge Leonard Jones said.

Rain Aids Pastures In County

Pasture-reviving rains fell on Marshall County Monday night and Tuesday, bring new hope to farmers of this drought-stricken section.

County Agent Homer Miller reported .85 of an inch of rain registered in his official gauge Monday night. A drizzle all of Tuesday added to the moisture.

The rainfall was general over the county.

County Agent Miller urged farmers to start seeding pastures. He said the grasses will respond fast to the moisture and will be furnishing pasture before long.

The county agent reported E. T. Inman seeded fescue the first of the week.

"If you must reduce the number of cattle because of a feed shortage, don't sell your factory," the county agent advised cattle raisers. "Remember the cow produces the calves and gives the milk. If you must sell some, cull the low producers and old cows and calves," he added.

Miller reported more hay and feed are being found in the county and that corn is being cut and put in trench silos. Corn also is being cut and shocked and is being fed to livestock.

The agent reported there are several hundred acres of soy beans in the county to be cut. He urged farmers to contact their neighbors that have been fields.

Where corn, tobacco or beans have been cut, he said, a seed bed can be made with little trouble. Liberal use of fertilizer is urged.

The U. S. government has set the price of hay to be shipped into the county at $36, $32 and $28; clover being the highest, mixed hay next and grass hay the cheapest. These are FOB the railroad terminal in the county.

Orders for hay and feed are being taken by the county War Mobilization Board, of which Everett Treas is chairman.

HELP WANTED

Marshall County farmers have been extremely hard hit by the drouth. Ninety-five percent of the hay is gone; 90 percent of the pastures, and 60 percent of the tobacco.

The farmers have actually seen their entire year's work burn up in the fields.
And they were powerless to do anything about it.

It is a situation similar to a man watching his house burn up and with out a dollar's worth of insurance.

It is a terrific blow, economically and socially.

Some of the farmers have lost more than a year's work. They have lost their good start toward economic security in their old age.

Federal and state governments, we feel, cannot be too generous with help for the stricken farmers. Neither can federal and state governments be too fast in providing that help.

This is a great emergency—just as floods and forest fires are great emergencies.

We are glad to see that government forces are being marshaled to help the farmers. We just hope that it will not be another case of "too little and too late."

And we feel that in a time like this everybody can help some—the banker, the implement dealer, the clothing merchant, the grocery owner and so on. By being lenient and helpful, all of us can help the stricken farmer back to his feet.

The law of common decency forbids us from hitting a man when he is down.
That is a time when a man needs help.

It is our duty, rather, to help a man get back on his feet. That is the way, the only way, to build better citizenship.

Therefore, we call upon all the good citizens of Marshall County to pitch in and do their bit toward helping our fellow citizens get back on their feet.

We know the farmers of Marshall County are men of courage. We know they will fight their way back if given a chance.

Let's give them that chance. Let's all pitch in and help.

Buying at home is a good way to make Benton properous, whether you believe it or not.

The use of ordinary courtesy on the highways might some day save your life; why not practice it?

Your worst enemy won't do you nearly as much harm as you might do to yourself.

The less an individual knows, the more positive are his convictions.

Spend less than you earn and you can have social security of your own.

SOIL CONSERVATION

By Herbert Anderson

George Sirls, David Ross, and Sol Henson, last week, cleaned some of the gravel out of a drainage ditch which crosses their farms east of Benton. This was the second time the gravel had been cleaned out of the ditch since it was dug.

"Where does so much gravel come from?"
asked Henson. "I can remember we did not get this much gravel!"

"Erosion has removed the soil from the upland in the watershed leaving the gravel exposed in gullies," I replied. "Now everytime there comes a hard rain the water gushing down from the hills brings the gravel by the tons."

This damage can only be stopped by applying a complete soil and water conservation program to the land. The Marshall County Soil Conservation District advocates this kind of long range program.

Arthur Harris and Charlie Darnell, Lakeview Church community, dug farm ponds last Saturday and Monday. The ponds are deep and large enough to furnish water for 20 to 30 cows during a long period of dry weather. The ponds were surveyed and checked by the Soil Conservation Service.

Harris said, as we looked at his white-face cattle, "I am going to sow most of my land to permanent pasture. If I have plenty of stock water, I can manage to feed them during a drought when the grass stops growing."

Most farmers, who have stopped by the SCS office in Benton and seen the fine bale of sericea lespedza hay on display, say, "I wish my barn was full of that kind of hay."

Sericea has produced one cutting and in many cases two cuttings of hay since May 15 for some lucky farmers. Once established, sericea can take a lot of punishment from the dry weather and still grow.

R. L. Dun, Calvert City; Raymond Gordon, Fairdealing; Ona Mullinax and James Angle, west of Palma; and Henry Lecky, Sharpe, dug farm ponds last week.

Most farmers who have had to sell valuable livestock at a loss were those whose farm ponds went dry. Water conservation is beginning to be as important as soil conservation.

Green Pastures

Meeting is Aug. 26

IT'S ROCKY! - Bert Sydney Stoner, who came to Kentucky from Washington, D. C., this summer to join the Pioneer Playhouse at Danville, finds the rocky bed of a Blue Grass stream rougher than expected. The Playhouse will present a four week-series of plays at Kentucky Dam Village State Park beginning Aug. 14.

Berthal C. Elsdon, dairy farmer in Ballard County and 1951 District Master Pastureman, will be host at a District Green Pasture meeting to be held on Tuesday Aug. 26, according to Ballard County Agent R. K. Kelley.

Kelley said that farmers in all counties in West Kentucky are invited to visit the Elsdon farm on that date to inspect the outstanding work that has been done on pasture development in recent years. The Elsdon farm is located one mile north of Bandana.

Eldson purchased the 140-acre farm in the fall of 1949 and since then has seeded the entire farm to permanent pasture, using liberal applications of fertilizer. He has at the present time a 25-cow dairy herd and plans to increase to 50 head in the near future.

The program for the day is as follows: Inspection of the farm. Discussion by Vernon Piers, Secretary of Graded Milk Producers Association; Jerry Satola, Armour and Company; Bob Webb, Superintendent Illinois Dixon Springs Experiment Station and W. C. Johnston, Kentucky Bankers Association.

Dinner will be served at noon by the Ballard Homemakers Association. Also on the farm that day will be an exhibit of several new pasture tools now available on the market.

Kelley said that any West Kentucky farmer interested in pasture farming can profit by visiting this outstanding Pasture Farm and hearing the discussion which will be presented that day.
