Fulton County Fair This Year

Promises to Outclass All Former Meets—Splendid Program Being Arranged

Officers of the Fulton County Fair Association are now working overtime to make the 1927 Fair the best and biggest event on record.

The fair this year will open the latter part of August and will continue for five days.

Great interest is being manifested, not only by the several hundred stockholders scattered over five counties adjoining Fulton, but by the entire population of surrounding towns.

The premium list this year will be exceedingly attractive. Its purses and prizes are attracting the attention of the horsemen and many others all over the country.

Fulton can truly boast of one of the prettiest fair grounds and best half-mile race tracks in the State. All who attend our fairs fully appreciate this fact and are in attendance each meet.

There will not be a dull moment during the entire five days this year. The day programs will be augmented by a splendid night program so those who cannot attend during the day will be entertained at night.

All who contemplate competing for prizes and premiums this year should begin at once to prepare their exhibits so they will be a credit to the fair and exhibitors. Let's all cooperate to make the 1927 fair meet outclass all former records. Fulton enjoys an enviable reputation for entertaining her guests, so let's keep up our reputation this year and see that all visitors have the time of their lives.

Trade In Fulton Where Your Dollars Buy the Most.

The merchants of Fulton invite you to visit the city and reap the benefits of one of the most profitable Trade Day Campaigns ever attempted in a town of this size.

Practically every business firm here has joined in the campaign to make this year's Trade Days more profitable to the shoppers than that of last year. The campaign is now on and the first big Trade Day will be held on Wednesday, June 15.

It will be conducted along the same lines as that of last year when thousands of visitors came to Fulton to do their shopping and returned home happy with their purchases and courteous treatment received.

A more opportune time could not have been selected for a Trade Day campaign when "every penny saved is a penny made." And Fulton merchants are splendidly prepared to take care of everyone's needs with new stocks from America's foremost manufacturers.

The show windows reflect the change of the season with their gorgeous beauty expressive of warmer days to come. The ready-to-wear firms are displaying Palm Beach suits, straws and light weight apparel; the hardware stores are featuring ice cream freezers, refrigerators and summer goods; the drug firms are specializing toilet articles and lotions; the grocery merchants are displaying luscious fruits with their staples, while the restaurants are serving fresh vegetables with regular dinners. The furniture store displays are attractive, including everything for the home beautiful. The auto dealers are displaying the latest model cars, and stand ready to furnish gas at lowest prices. In fact, the entire town in business circles, await your coming to serve you, courteously with values worth while.

PIANO STUDENTS IN RECITAL FRIDAY EVENING, MAY 27

"Music touches every day of memory and stirs all the hidden springs of sorrow and joy. We love it for what it makes us forget and for what it makes us remember."

The recital Friday evening, of Miss Loretta Nix's piano pupils at the spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Beadles, was a very successful one.

Mrs. Hardeman Howard, soprano, and Miss Julia Frances Beadles, reader, assisted the pupils and added quite a bit of charm.

The program was varied, with piano, dance and saxophone numbers, each one showing splendid training, and Fulton is very proud to claim Miss Nix as one of its successful and accomplished teachers.

MISS HUDDLESTON GIVES STUDENT RECITAL

That Miss Doris Huddleston's student recitals are musical events worth while was attested at the ensemble program Friday night at the spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. W.

R. Batt. The capable performers, ranging from youngster to large girls and boys evinced excellent training.

The pupils were assisted by Miss Annie Lucille Goldsby, soprano, who possesses a splendid voice. Miss Huddleston gracefully and capably played the accompaniments.

Miss Huddleston is one of Fulton's most prominent teachers and will leave soon for Chautauqua, N. Y., where she will do special work with master teachers.

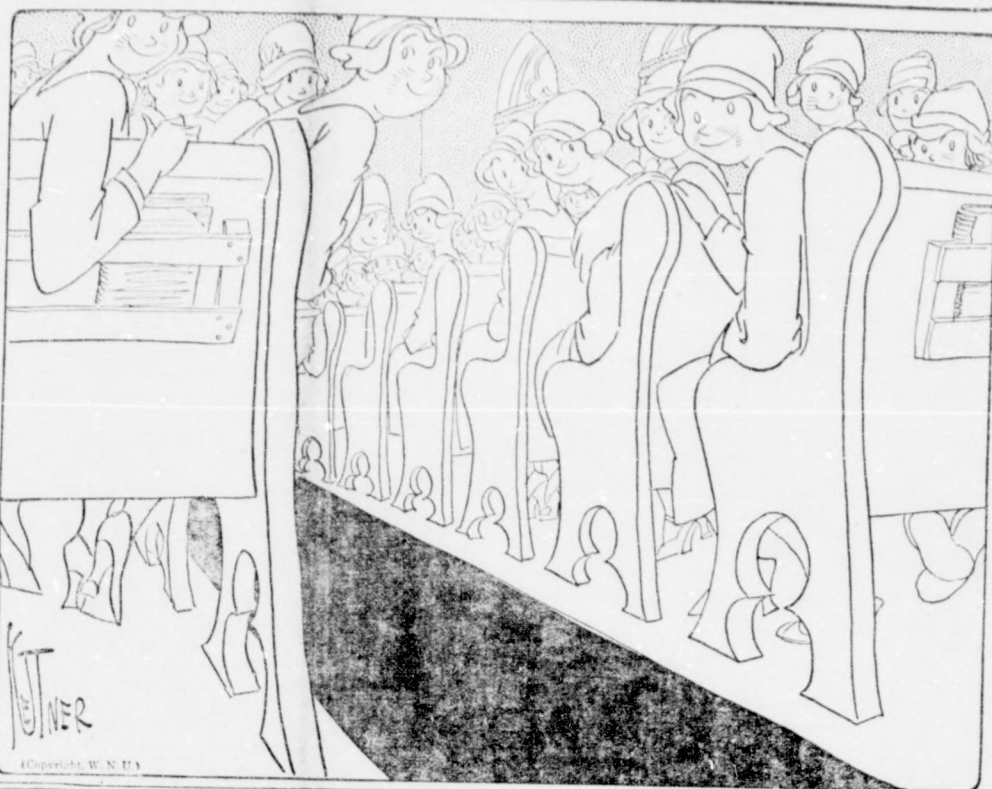

RECITAL OF PIANO AND EXPRESSION PUPILS OF MRS. MADDOX AND MRS. NALL

Among the season's outstanding artistic events was the joint recital of Mrs. Clarence Maddox, piano pupils and Mrs. Will Nall, expression pupils at the Chamber of Commerce, Monday evening.

Each number on the program delighted those present and brought hearty applause.

These talented teachers won high praise from the large audience who heard the excellent program and are to be congratulated on the successful work they have accomplished.

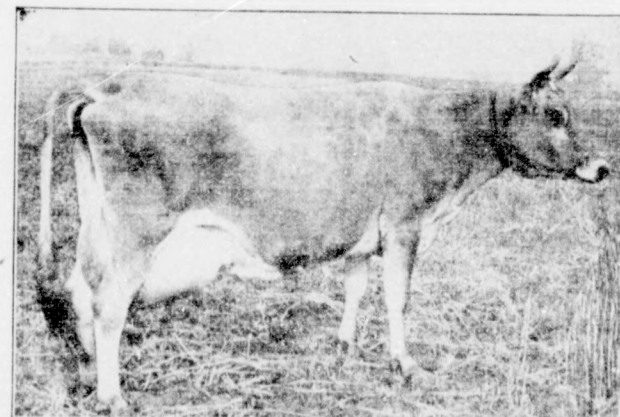

Here Comes the Bride

The Dairy Cow Is Man's Greatest Friend of the Animal Kingdom.

Since the auto has replaced the horse in many ways, and the hog because of the we have to kill the beef cow and the hog before we can realize its value, we must admit that the dairy cow is man's greatest friend. She is kind and humble in her characteristics, she has a remarkably high intellect and a fairly clear understanding of her duties and purpose in the world.

She provides us with one of our most wholesome and essential foods which cannot be substituted by art of man, she is the mother of 70 per cent of the babies of our nation, who owe their rosy and dimpled cheeks to her existence. She contributes more than her share to make rural life more tolerable, her kind and humble disposition, coupled with her great commercial value, creates within her good master, a great love for the animal kingdom, this love has a direct tendency upon the finer elements of man and stimulates in him a more refined love and human sympathy for his fellowman.

Jersey Cow, the Foster-mother of 70 per cent of our babies.

AGRICULTURAL CAMPAIGN FOR RURAL FULTON A DECIDED SUCCESS

Secretary Motley reports that the agricultural campaign which was carried on all of last week, was a splendid success. He states that he and his staff of agricultural experts talked to approximately one thousand of our good citizens and farmers during the campaign, who showed a keen have been milking a few cows and selling a small amount of cream for several years, but they are seriously contemplating expansion in this line of farming, believing that dairying and poultry production is now of the most encouraging fields for the West Kentucky farmer.

We believe that Mr. Motley has taken the right position in his efforts because we realize that we have a surplus of land now laying idle because our previous farm program has not been remunerative to the farmer and he has, in many cases, completely abandoned the farm and gone to the industrial centers for his livelihood and our farms are being half farmed and growing into gulches which mar the surface beauty of our countryside, the cow, hen and hog will bring these farms back to their usual producing capacities if properly handled and will put our farmers upon more independent basis and will also provide a heritage for our future generation in the form of natural resource, but unless something is done to replenish and preserve the fertility of our farms, West Kentucky will soon become a desolate and barren field and our future generation will have to take up the march like the children of Israel.

Secretary Motley is proving himself to be a real booster and business getter, and we believe that if the business men will stay with him and work as hard for Fulton as he does, we will soon see a bigger and better Fulton. His ideas are always of the modern and effective type and will surely prove to be winners if properly carried out and followed up.

Not until we lost Doc Paris and his excellent family, did we fully realize our misfortune and West Plains' good luck in capturing them.

A Double Wedding

Miss Bonnie Fite and Mr. Charles Stephenson, and Miss Ludean Bryan and Mr. Harry Fite surprised their friends Sunday when they were united in marriage, Esq. S. A. McDade officiated at his home on State Line street.

Miss Bryan is the talented daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Bryan. Mr. and Miss Fite are the children of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Fite of Beelerston. Mr. Stephenson is one of Fulton's promising young business men, associated with the grocery business. All are popular young people who have a large circle of admiring friends to wish them a long and happy wedded life.

REV. ADAMS AT HIS BEST

Baptist Meeting Attracting People from Far and Near

The meeting now in progress at the First Baptist church continues to attract large crowds. Sunday night the seating capacity was taxed to the limit, and those who heard Dr. Adams said his talk was the best delivered during the series of sermons. However, the same remarks are heard after each service and it is hard to tell which sermon is the best as the they are all good. It has been a long time since Fulton was so thoroughly awakened to its lost condition and the greatest good will be the result of the earnest and forceful exhortations of Dr. Adams and the pastor.

The soul stirring song service is a pleasing part of the worship and Rev. Warren is leading a choir of well trained voices.

This is the second week of the meeting and many have professed faith and united with the church, also a number by letter.

Services are being held at 10:45 in the morning and 7:45 at night. If you are not attending, you do not know what you are missing. A warm welcome and cordial invitation is extended to all.

Many are attending services from the country and nearby towns.

DOC PARIS AT HIS OLD TRICKS

In reading over the West Plains Quill, a daily newspaper published at West Plains, Mo., we see that Doc Paris is at his old tricks, "boosting" his home town just the same as he did Fulton when he was a citizen here. During his residence at West Plains, Doctor Paris has identified himself with every progressive movement for the betterment of the town and enjoys an excellent business.

West Plains has recently installed a sewer system at a cost of $100,000, officially turned over to the city last week. The Chamber of Commerce last week sponsored a cross-country trip to neighboring towns, accompanied by thirty members of the West Plains Boys' Band, and a large delegation of citizens. This trip was inaugurated to more closely cement friendships with their neighbors. Here we found Doc Paris in the zenith of his glory, distinguishing himself as an excellent leader, the same as he did in Fulton.

Not until we lost Doc Paris and his excellent family, did we fully realize our misfortune and West Plains' good luck in capturing them.

Attracting Attention

The new Secretary of the Fulton Chamber of Commerce has gone right after the work in Fulton county by refusing to confine his efforts to an office at headquarters of that live organization, but is putting on meetings in various parts of the county that is enlisting the cooperation of citizens of other communities.

Recently we had the pleasure of hearing Mr. Motley express some views along lines of development that will appeal to his constituency to the extent that he will get action in that county. Mr. Motley is a trained man for his work, and we predict that the city of Fulton will keep him on the job, as Fulton is a city of progressive citizens. — W. P. Scott in The Bulletin.

Church News

Word from Columbus says that the water during the flood was eight feet deep in the church there. The action of the water caused all of the pews
but five to fall to pieces and the altar was also badly damaged. Due to the thoughtful-ness of one of the parishoners,
who opened all the windows,
allowing floating debris to pass through, none of the glass
was broken.

As soon as the altar, pews
and other damage have been repaired, the regular fourth Sunday services will be resumed.

Mrs. Boyd left Monday for Memphis to enter the hospital
where she will receive treatment.

Miss Virginia Cole was called to St. Louis last week by the serious illness of her mother, Mrs. B. T. Cole.

Marie Lewis presided at the

of Virginia Cole.

MISS LORRAINE BRUCE, FORMERLY OF FULTON, PASSES AWAY

Society Editor of Burbank Daily Tribune at Time of Death

Friends and relatives in Fulton were shocked and deeply grieved, Sunday, when a message was received from Glendale, California, announcing the death of Miss Lorraine Bruce, 22, oldest daughter of Mrs. Bessie Bruce, formerly of this city.

Miss Bruce was born and reared in Fulton, but some years ago removed to Paducah with her mother and sisters. Having a liking for newspaper work, she accepted a position on the editorial staff of the Paducah Sun, where she distinguished herself as a brilliant young society writer and general favorite in the smart set.

About a year ago Miss Bruce resigned in Paducah and accepted a position on the editorial staff of the Daily Tribune, Burbank, Calif. Here she soon won deserved promotion and at the time of her death was pronounced one of the most fluent and charming writers in the Golden West. Not only did she reach the topmost rung in newspaper work in Burbank, but by her courteous and gentle disposition, won the love and admiration of the entire citizenship, who were fortunate enough to know her. Burbank and Glendale are suburbs of Los Angeles.

Miss Bruce had cultivated a beautiful soprano voice and was often featured on the programs in her home town. Her paper was installing a radio when she passed away.

Miss Bruce was given her early newspaper training in Fulton, under the supervision of her aunt, Miss Hunter (Jet) Browder.

The deceased is survived by her mother, Mrs. Bessie Bruce and three sisters, Anita, Mildred and Margaret, of Glendale, Calif.; an aunt, Miss Hunter Browder, of Los Angeles, Calif., and a great aunt, Mrs. Ella Anderson, of Fulton.

Funeral services were conducted Monday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, at Forest Lawn Memorial Park, Glendale, California, near Miss Bruce's home.

Miss Nell Lorraine Bruce (Paducah News-Democrat)

Friends and relatives in this city have received word of the death Saturday in Burbank, California, of Miss Nell Lorraine Bruce, 21 years of age, a former resident of this city and for three years a member of the editorial staff of the Paducah Evening Sun. Miss Bruce's death which comes as a shock to her many friends here, resulted from a short illness of quinsy and occurred Saturday morning at 11 o'clock at her Burbank home where she resided with her mother and sister.

Miss Bruce was born and reared in Fulton, Ky., and came to Paducah at an early age and attended the Paducah high school, where she made a high scholastic record. At the close of her junior year she joined the staff of The Evening Sun. Early last May she left for California, where she became affiliated with the Glendale Daily Press as Burbank editor, later becoming society editor of the Burbank Tribune, where her charming personality won her many friends. She was joined last July by her mother, Mrs. Bessie Bruce, and three sisters, Anita, Margaret and Mildred Bruce, who established a residence there.

Miss Bruce was one of the most popular young women of this city and was an active member of the Paducah Business and Professional Women's club, serving as publicity chairman of that club for two years. She was a prominent member of the Fountain Avenue Methodist church and a member of the church choir. She was captain in the Girl Scout organization of Paducah and served as leader of the Fountain Avenue church troop, where her efficient management and untiring efforts made her troop one of the largest in the city.

All Records Broken For Strawberry Shipments.

The McCracken County Growers association has broken records for strawberry shipments. The season closed Wednesday with shipments totaling 361 cars for the 1927 crop. The wet season was unusually bad for the harvest but thousands of pickers faced weather conditions to gather the luscious fruit for the market. Had favorable weather conditions prevailed during the season no telling what the total shipment would have been.

ALONG LIFE'S TRAIL

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

IMPROVIDENT YOUTH

I CAME upon the old man suddenly as I hurried down Midland avenue blinded by the snow that was clinging to my face, chilled by the wind that cut through my heavy coat like a knife. He was sitting in a protected corner of the passageway in front of the Straus building wiping his watery eyes with one bony hand and with the other holding out a battered hat for alms. A few cheap pencils in his lap saved him from the charge of being wholly a mendicant.

He was far past the allotted three score years and ten, his face seamed, his form bent, his thin white beard falling over his scantily clad breast, and the wind tossing his hair like a plaything. It was a hopeless face that he turned to me.

Poverty is in many cases a stimulus; it drives a young man often on to greater endeavor; it may quicken his ambition; it may be a challenge to his courage; but helpless and hopeless old age and poverty are pitiful. I suppose that sixty years ago when life was all before him and the hot blood of youth coursed in his veins, the boy had no thought that old age would find him sitting on the curbside begging for the necessities of life. And yet it is likely that opportunity more than once knocked at his door. Youth is proverbially improvident, and old age seems a long way in the future. Why think of it until one has to do so?

"What are you going to do when you are old?" I asked a young fellow forty years ago—a man who had had a good salary for years and yet who had not saved anything—who was in debt in that time," he replied, "and anyway I have a good many years before I shall be old."

He is a feeble old man now, his strength spent through indulgence, his job gone, his money wasted through extravagance, and no one interested in whether he lives or dies. His clothing is worn threadbare, he is uncertain where his next meal is coming from, and his lodging place is quite bare of even the simplest comforts. And yet if when he was young he had given even a little thought to the future, if he had saved a little every year no matter how modest the sum might have been, he could now be living in comfort if not in luxury, and in doing this he would have sacrificed nothing that was really of importance to his comfort and happiness.

If youth would only be provident, how peaceful and comfortable old age might be!

Lesson for June 5

PETER PREACHING TO GENTILES

LESSON TEXT—Acts 10:1-11:18.
GOLDEN TEXT—For there is no difference between the Jew and the Greek: for the same Lord over all is rich unto all that call upon Him.—Rom. 10:12.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Peter Tells a Foreigner About Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Peter Takes the Gospel to Gentiles.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Taking the Gospel to All Races.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How the Gospel Overcomes Race Prejudice.

The missionary program of the church having broadened to include the Samaritans, we see in this lesson it still widening and embracing the Gentiles. Through the conversion of Cornelius, the "middle wall of partition" was broken down (Eph. 2:14).

I. Cornelius (10:1, 2).

1. His official position (v. 1).

He was a Roman officer over a company of 100 soldiers.

2. His character (v. 2).

(1) A devout, pious man. (2) He was a praying man. (3) He was charitable. He gave much alms. (4) He was respected by his family.

II. The Supernatural Preparation for the Transition of the Gospel to the Gentiles (10:3-33).

This was of divine arrangement. No barrier is too great to prevent the coming together of persons whom the Lord desires to meet. In order to bring this about:

1. Two visions were given.

(1) The vision of Cornelius (vv. 3-8).

While engaged in prayer, an angel of God announced that his prayer and alms had come before God as a memorial, and instructed him to send to Joppa for Peter who would tell him what to do.

(2) The vision of Peter (vv. 9-16).

This took place while Peter was praying (v. 9). He saw a certain vessel containing clean and unclean animals let down from heaven, and heard the command, "Rise, Peter, kill and eat." Peter protested that he had never eaten any unclean thing. God replied, "What God hath cleansed, that call not thou common."

2. A messenger sent from Cornelius (vv. 17-22).

Peter was greatly perplexed over what he had seen, but not for long, for messengers from Cornelius made inquiry at the gate for him. The spirit informed Peter of the matter and bade him go, nothing doubting.

3. The meeting of Cornelius and Peter (vv. 23-33).

(1) Peter took six witnesses along (v. 23).

(2) Cornelius waiting for Peter (v. 24).

He called together his kinsmen and near friends.

(3) Cornelius about to worship Peter (vv. 25, 26).

Peter repudiated his act and protested that he was but a man.

(4) The reciprocal explanation (vv. 27-33).

III. Peter's Sermon (vv. 34-43).

1. The introduction (vv. 34, 35).

He showed that God is no respecter of persons. This does not mean that Cornelius was already in a state of grace, thereby saved, but that he was eligible to hear the gospel and accept the terms of salvation.

2. His discourse (vv. 36-43).

In the discourse he touches briefly upon the mission of Jesus, showing that by means of His baptism and anointing with the Holy Spirit, He was qualified for His work as mediator. He then exhibited the work of Christ:

(1) In His life (vv. 36-39).

It was one of beneficence. He went about doing good, even casting out demons as a proof that God was with Him (v. 38).

(2) In His death (v. 39).

The just suffered for the unjust that He might bring us to God (1 Pet. 3:18).

(3) In His resurrection (vv. 40, 41).

In this discourse is set forth:

(a) The basis of salvation—the crucifixion of Christ.

(b) The scope of salvation—who-soever believeth in Him.

(c) The method of appropriating salvation—believing on Him.

IV. The Holy Spirit Poured Out (vv. 44-45).

This was a new Pentecost.

V. Peter Vindicates His Ministry to the Gentiles (11:1-18).

Being called to account for visiting and eating with Gentiles, Peter rehearsed the whole story in such a way that his narrative took the form of logical argument, and showed how God had set His seal upon the work by the miraculous gift of the Spirit.

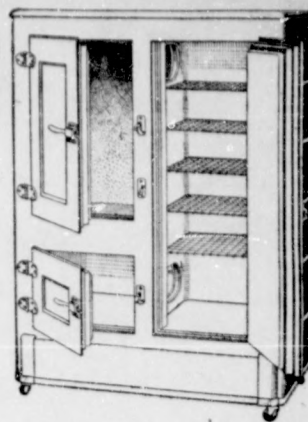

Closing the Day

Says Dr. R. A. Torrey: "No bank ever closes its business day until its balance is found to be absolutely correct. And no Christian should close a single day until his accounts with God for that day have been perfectly adjusted along with Him."

PEDDLERS

The United States supreme court lately has ruled that a municipal corporation cannot restrict the right of a salesman
to solicit business for a firm outside the state because it is an unreasonable restraint upon interstate commerce.

This in effect throws down
the bars to the itinerant peddler and the unethical and irresponsible salesman and places upon the people the responsibility for deciding whether they shall be swindled and humbugged.

Practically every city and town of any size has an ordinance requiring that peddlers
and others soliciting business
at homes shall have a license.
This requirement is not for the revenue derived, but to discourage the itinerant for the protection of the people against the sharp practices of the stranger. Moreover, such a policy on the part of any community is just because the peddler pays no taxes, does nothing
for the welfare of the community and assumes none of the responsibilities of an establishment with a reputation to be upheld.

The itinerant makes glittering promises and his interests are wholly selfish. As a general thing, he is annoying and refuses to take no for an answer. He expects the prospective customer to believe him,
but it is the other way around when the sale is closed. He requires a down payment and sends the goods C. O. D., or collects when he delivers. He doesn't trust the buyer but the buyer is expected to trust him.

—a person wholly unknown
and without recommendation.
The buyer takes all the chances. If the merchandise is not as represented, there is no recourse.

Contrast this treatment with what the local merchant offers—Goods of standard quality, immediate delivery, return privileges, attractive and money-saving prices, a neigh-borly interest in serving you conscientiously and readiness and willingness to make good on every representation he makes.

Close the door on the irresponsible itinerant salesman
and trade with dependable
home merchants whose word
is their bond.

ANYTHING IS POSSIBLE

Any community can become whatever it wishes to become.
That is an abstract statement,
but it has been proved true so many times by cities and towns
which have prospered, that it is accepted as truth. With the community, as with the individual, wishing is valueless without action and action in community affairs is impossible without cooperation.

This is the reason for civic and commercial organizations.
Combined action to bring about a desired end is not possible without organization, and organizations can't function without the whole-hearted support of a large majority of the people.

Communities improve industrially by supporting and encouraging industries they already have, and building this sort of a reputation invites others to come.

It has been demonstrated in many instances to be a fallacious policy to offer a large bonus in cash or favorable sites to draw industrial establishments away from other places. Industries thus won are usually of no value. There should be a good reason for a manufacturing plant to change location.
An alert community that wishes to grow industrially will advertise itself, emphasizing its claim to being a good location for a certain type of industries, and always be awake
to the needs of the industries already established, helping them to extend and enlarge their business.

I. C. Conductor Killed By Train at Paducah.

Walking into the path of passenger train in the Illinois Central south yards at Paducah Monday morning at 8:25 o'clock caused the instant death of J. F.
Bost, Illinois Central freight train conductor, of Memphis, and well known in Fulton. Mr. Bost was struck by the pilot of the locomotive and thrown clear the tracks.
He was dead when aid reached him.

According to witnesses, Mr.
Bost had started across the tracks from the east to the west side to return to the south yards office after leaving a neighboring boarding house where he had gone for breakfast. He apparently wanted to reach the other side of the track to retrieve a bundle of newspaper which the baggageman on passenger train No. 122 customerly threw off for him. He mis-judged the distance and was struck.

The train was the Fulton-Louisville passenger train, headed toward Union station. The train was moving into the yards at Paducah at a good speed and was due at the station at 8:30 o'clock.
W. O. Chrisman, Paducah, was the engineer.

Community Building

Courtesy of Tourist

Stressed by Mobile

The hospitality of the old South, a more or less abstract quantity with the many busy southern cities today, will be put into immediate greater use by the automotive committee of the chamber of commerce, which has decided that the tourist is the guest of the city, the Mobile (Ala.) Register recently announced.

Labeled as a guest, the tourist will be treated as one by the city, and every attention will be made by the city to entertain and accommodate the visitor.

The tourist in all probability will come in contact with the gasoline station operator first of all. It was thought, and the operator will direct
him to the chamber of commerce,
where he will register and receive a guest card and a guest marker. The guest card will entitle him to certain advantages that the native has not, while the guest marker will fit on his radiator and announce to the city at large that he is a stranger
within the gates.

The city in turn, recognizing him as a guest, will seek to serve him hospitably and the traffic officer will give him the courteous co-operation a stranger always needs among unfamiliar traffic regulations.

In addition to the guest designation
the visiting tourist will be given accurate and detailed information concerning the city.

The automotive merchants agreed unanimously that their employees must be familiar with the city in order that they will be able to supply tourists with information.

The proper use of hands in signaling when driving was discussed by the committee. The arm extended at a 45-degree angle upward should indicate a turn to the right, and straight out a turn to the left. The arm pointing downward, palm forward, should mean a stop, and the same signal with the palm backward a reverse.

Men of High Vision

Are City Builders

"Location, transportation facilities,
automobile manufacture, world-wide advertising, progressiveness, many lines of industries, and so on, are all prime factors in the growth of a city," said B. E. Taylor, realtor, telling his ideas as to why Detroit goes ahead.

"Detroit is just filled, way beyond
the average proportion, with brainy,
experienced, successful men,
resources behind them, and broad,
practical vision to carry them ahead—
that is the main reason for Detroit's success."

"There are living in Detroit today
a number of men trained up to big things; they know the game; they love to play it, and, notice—the bigger they grow, the easier it is for them to keep on growing!"

"These men are, in general, not the inheritors of wealth! They are mostly self-made. And that, too, is a great thing for the future of Detroit—because the man who makes $10,000 to $50,000 himself, has grown so seasoned and experienced that he has a better vision than the man who inherits money. He knows when to put his money into a new thing."

"The man who has gone right out with his own fists and fought the battle for success—knows how!"

Trees Require Food

There is a tree in your yard which is hungry, and, though it cannot tell you so in as many words, you can bet
it is just as hungry as though it stood on some street corner and cried out its woes.

That's the great fault with trees;
they cannot tell you they are hungry.
They just stand out and starve until their clothes—their bark—get too big for their body and fall off.

Mr. Homeowner, that tree in your yard is worth a heap of money. It's a mighty big asset when you want to sell your place, and it's a lot of comfort these hot days. Get busy and give it something to eat.

If you don't know what to give it call in a doctor, not a man's doctor or a child's specialist, but a tree doctor and let him prescribe a diet for that tree.

Zoning Law Upheld

A decision of interest to all members of the National Association of Real Estate boards is that just handed down by the Supreme court of Minnesota upholding the validity of the Minneapolis zoning ordinance which excludes flat buildings from certain areas zoned for single family residences. The decision reverses a former opinion of the court.

Benefit of Home-Ownership

"More than one-half the homes in the United States are owned by men who make less than $2,000 a year," declared W. D. Carter, "It is estimated that approximately 90 per cent of those who build or buy a home do not pay for it outright at the start.
Habit of thrift, economy, and self denial established and practiced in saving to meet the monthly payments by which the home is paid for are among the greatest benefits of owning a home."

Money Saving Facts About Concrete Highway Pavements

Concrete is durable.

It will not shove, roll or rut. It remains as true and even as built.

Concrete pavement is now satisfying taxpayers in many counties
and every state in the Union.

Maintenance cost is low. It does not require periodic resurfacing.

Wet or dry, concrete provides the safest surface for traffic.

Oil drippings will not cause concrete to disintegrate.

Concrete pavements are clean,
smooth, dustless, free from stickiness
and usable twelve months in the year.

6,000 miles of concrete pavement were placed on highways in the United States in 1926.

Concrete gives you more road surface value for each dollar invested than any other type.

The Recreant Lover

By H. IRVING KING

(Copyright.)

THE fond parents of Ethel Bancroft had selected Rodney Spencer as a suitable husband for their daughter. Ethel's father had money and it was a maxim in the Bancroft family that in order to insure a happy and contented posterity money should marry money. But the young man himself must come up to specifications. Mr. and Mrs. Bancroft were judicious. They gave Rodney and his fortune the acid test and pronounced him all right. Then they made the tactical mistake that most parents in like situations make of continually praising Rodney to Ethel and hinting at what a good husband he would make. Ethel liked Rodney well enough.

But marry him? Nay, nay. He was entirely too prosaic a proposition for Ethel to consider in the light of a lover and a husband. He was a good fellow, if you like—but oh so common-place! What a contrast was his unimaginative talk to the glittering conversation of Herbert Chilton. Herbert had no money to speak of. That, Ethel told herself, was why her parents disliked him.

As to Rodney she guessed he was not very deeply in love with her—if he was at all. He would readily be consoled. Heaps of girls were after Rodney and his money. "I'll make a confidant of him," thought Ethel. The opportunity came when they were sitting out a dance at the Hunttons. "Rodney," said she, "I am going to tell you a secret. I have made up my mind to marry Herbert Chilton in spite of the objections of my parents. But you and I will always be friends, will we not?"

"I suppose so," replied Rodney wearily. "Here comes Chilton now. I'll leave you, Ethel—if you don't mind." And he was gone.

"There," thought Ethel, "I'm glad that is over." But, away down in her heart, she knew that she was not entirely glad—she was going to miss the companionship of Rodney Spencer after all. But there came the brilliant Herbert, the loving and the loved. In another minute she was completely under the spell of his fascination. And Herbert "talked turkey" that night when they got upon the subject of a speedy marriage. He insisted that his happiness be no longer delayed. Ethel saw with a pang of jealousy the attention he bestowed upon Rose Barstow, who, like herself, was an heiress. "She'd have him in a minute if he'd ask her," she thought. "But he's mine." Upon her arrival home she wrote a note to Herbert.

He was anxiously waiting for it. In it she agreed to the plan upon which he had so insisted. Yes, it was an elopement. At four o'clock in the afternoon Herbert met her at a designated place with his roadster. They were to drive out into the next county and be married. "This is the happiest day of my life," said Herbert as they bowed along. "Once we are married your father will forget his unreasonable prejudices."

"You don't know father if you think he is going to act the forgiving parent," replied Ethel. "He has sworn I shall never have a cent of his money if I marry you. But what do we care? We have each other—that is enough."

Herbert's face was a study. For a minute he did not speak. Then he said slowly, "Of course, we have each other, and that is the main point. As to your father's money, as far as I myself am concerned it signifies nothing to me. But would it be quite doing you justice for me, a poor man, to take you from the luxurious surroundings to which you have been accustomed and force you to share my poverty-stricken existence? Perhaps we had better wait until your father is in a more agreeable mood." Ethel knew that she ought to feel heart-broken. But indignation and a feeling of relief that she had found Herbert Chilton out in time overcame all other emotions. "Yes," she managed to say evenly, "perhaps that would be more prudent. There is the Clearville Golf Club. Let's stop there. I know a lot of people who belong to the club. Perhaps I can find a friend who will give us tea."

On the piazza of the clubhouse they found several little tea parties in progress and in one party was Rodney. Ethel knew almost everybody there. The newcomers were warmly welcomed. Ethel assumed a forced gaiety and laughed and chattered vivaciously. Rodney and Herbert scowled at each other. Managing to get aside with Rodney, Ethel said: "Did you drive out?"

"Yes," replied Rodney. "Ethel, drive me back to the city. I won't have Herbert Chilton drive me back if I have to walk."

Rodney led Ethel to where his car was waiting; they jumped in and were off.

"Hello, Chilton," said someone, "your fair companion has been carried off. What does that mean?"

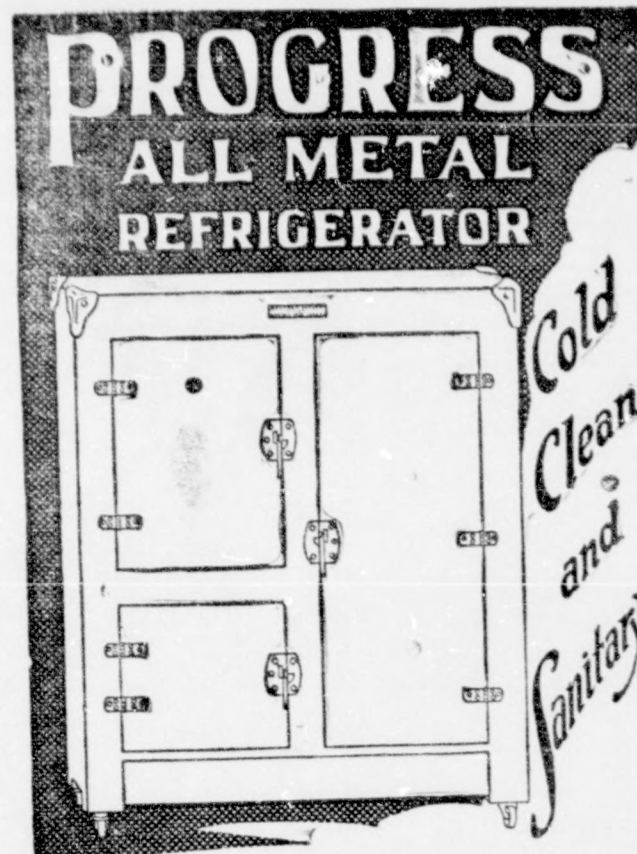

"Oh," replied Herbert nonchalantly, "I just brought Ethel out to meet Rodney—they had arranged it. I am only Cupid's chauffeur, as it were."

As for Ethel, when Rodney's car was fairly on its way she broke down and cried. Then she told Rodney the whole story.

"I suppose you will never want to speak to me after this," sighed Ethel. "If I didn't have to keep my hands on the wheel in this congested traffic I'd show you," replied Rodney.

WHAT TRAFFIC WILL BEAR

The rates charged by the railroads for transportation of freight are influenced by many considerations. One of the most important to business generally is the principle embodied in the familiar expression, "what the traffic will bear," yet few railway principles are so widely misunderstood.

The adjustment of freight rates to what the traffic will bear is not, as many persons assume, a matter of increasing those rates wherever possible. The purpose is not to force the last penny out of each item of traffic handled. Rates are tempered to what the traffic will bear in order to develop the maximum volume of all kinds of traffic by a fair and equitable distribution of charges. Both in theory and in application, the principle is not one of extortion, but one of moderation. Perhaps a clearer statement of it would be "what will attract or develop traffic."

The simplest method of determining freight rates would be to have them all conform strictly to one pattern, such as the length of haul, the value of the commodity and the character of service. These elements are considered, of course, but they are subject to many exceptions. If no exception were allowed, a good many commodities now in general use would be barred from commerce because of disadvantages of location or other reasons. The largest possible volume of commerce is obtained only by adjusting rates so they will develop every kind of potential traffic.

A variation in rates for comparable services is not always the injustice that it may sometimes seem to be. For example, by handling some commodities at relatively low rates, the railroads obtain a great deal of traffic which otherwise would not move. The volume of business thus obtained obviously benefits the railroads and those who produce, distribute and use the commodities concerned. Not so obviously, but no less truly, it also benefits those concerned in the movement of commodities which can and do pay the higher rates. This is because the revenue provided by the low-rate traffic helps to bear the general overhead cost of railway service, which otherwise the high-rate traffic would have to bear unaided. Moreover, the increased volume of traffic resulting from this practice is of benefit to railway patrons generally through the improved efficiency of railway operation made possible by a heavier loading of trains, a greater per centage of car movement under load, and so on.

The present structure of railway freight rates is the result of many years of study and experience. That it is effective is indicated by the widespread and unhampered flow of commerce. Whenever rates fail to stimulate commerce to the maximum extent possible, railway managers themselves are among the first to urge their readjustment.

It is to the interest of the public as well as to the interest of the railroads to keep rates at levels that will both stimulate traffic and provide revenue sufficient to pay all the costs of providing railway service. The future of this highly important service can be assured in no other way.

TWO DUKES HAVE KING AS LANDLORD

Make Annual Gift in Return for Estates.

Woodstock, England.—In spite of housing shortages and rising rents there are two persons in England who can live without fear of waking up some morning to find that their rents have been doubled. They are the duke of Marlborough and duke of Wellington and their landlord is the king of England.

Both noblemen hold their great estates as grants of royal favor from the crown. But the gift is not outright. Some return must be made and so it is that each of these noble lords must go once each year on a solemn pilgrimage to the king of England at Buckingham palace to make some gift which will insure his tenure for the following year.

The selection of the gift is by no means left to the personal fancy of the giver. It is carefully set down in Blackstone's "Commentaries" that the two tenants must render to the king annually "some small implement of war as a bow, a sword, a lance, an arrow, or the like."

The duke of Marlborough's estate, Blenheim palace, at Woodstock, was given to the first duke of Marlborough as a reward for his victory at the battle of Blenheim in the War of the Spanish Succession in 1704. It was begun in 1704 and completed in 1722. The total cost of the palace was £308,000, of which £250,000 was defrayed by parliament.

Similarly, Stratford Saye house, near Reading, was presented to the first duke of Wellington by the nation. In 1815, following his victory over Napoleon at the battle of Waterloo.

Soviet to Preserve

Chapel of Virgin

Moscow.—Cathedrals, churches, mosques and synagogues of definite historical or architectural interest are to be preserved intact by the Soviet government.

This was indicated by the commissariat of education in refusing the petition of a Moscow borough government seeking the demolition of the famous chapel of the Iberian Virgin, which the devout consider the most sacred spot in Russia. The borough claimed it impeded traffic.

"This precious sixteenth century structure," said the commissariat, "has every claim to be preserved with the rest of Russia's monuments, because it represents a definite historical, artistic period in the life of the country."

Standing at the entrance to Red Square, the diminutive edifice was made famous by its icon of the Iberian Virgin, reputed to have miraculous powers, and by the fact that all emperors during the last 300 years invariably went there for inspiration and blessing before ascending the throne.

'Get Thee Gone,' Divorce Decree in Turkestan

Tashkent, U. S. S. R.—Turkestan is one of the few remaining Moslem countries where the system of temporary marriages prevails.

As in the new Turkey, a man may divorce his wife by saying in substance: "Get thee gone." He is then free to try matrimony with another. But the woman, under Islamic law, cannot remarry until 100 days have elapsed after her divorce. If she does so, she is cast out from Moslem society as a sinner.

Among the natives of Turkestan the penalty for infidelity in a wife is both severe and humiliating. To show her guilt, her face is blackened and she is placed on a donkey, with her face toward its tail, and led through the bazaar of the town.

Judge Insists

White Plains, N. Y.—Would a wife refuse alimony? Asked by Justice Morschauer how much she wanted, Mrs. Wilhelmina Lehmann said: "I don't want any." "Oh, yes, you do," said the justice. "I will make your husband pay $100 a month and you must take it."

Shoshones 'Bury' Beds of Dead Warriors

Fort Washakie, Wyo.—Modern customs and ancient beliefs have clashed with weird results in the Wind River burial ground near here.

The old idea that the Shoshone Indian should have his personal effects buried with him was workable in the days when he slept on a buffalo robe, but these modern beds present a problem which is generally solved by leaving the bed above ground.

The burial place was established 43 years ago by Rev. John Roberts adjoining his log mission, which still stands. At that time the funeral ceremony consisted of placing the body of the deceased on the back of a pony which was led, followed by a cortege, up long trails to a mountain top. There burial was made in the crevices of a rocky point.

A Shoshone legend says the tribe is descended from a big coyote.

ALONG LIFE'S TRAIL

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

LOOKING BACK

I've always been sorry for Lot's wife. She'd never had a first-rate chance. Her neighbors weren't what they should have been, and the town as a whole was no place for a decent woman. And now when it looked as if she were going to have an opportunity to make something of herself and redeem her past, she lost her nerve, perhaps; the lure of the old life made her hesitate, and she stopped and looked back. Then it was too late. Her opportunity was gone forever.

We were climbing Long's peak, and Crosby was one of the most enthusiastic members of the party at the outset. It is a stiff, steady pull of several miles over the long trail up to the higher fields, and then the trail ends and the way leads across irregular masses of sharp rock, where one must often pick his way cautiously and laboriously to the Keyhole. The view is tremendous from this point if the day is clear, a wide vista of mountain ranges opening up for a hundred miles or more, but the summit of the mountain is still a thousand feet above, and the more hazardous part of the ascent is yet to be traversed.

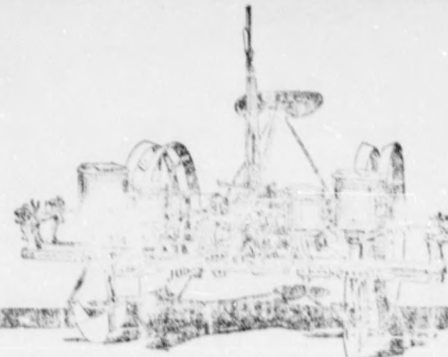

Crosby's enthusiasm had begun to wane, his courage ebbed as he looked over the precipice to the yawning abyss below; his body was weary. Like Lot's wife, he hesitated and looked back.

"I think I won't try it any farther," he said; "I don't believe I can make it, and I'm not sure it's worth the struggle." He didn't exactly turn to a pillar of salt, but he sat down and waited for our return, and for want of a little effort and a little nerve missed the most glorious view in the world.

I've seen many like him, young and old. They start upon a task with interest and enthusiasm. Something else attracts their attention, difficulties arise, the uninteresting or the unpleasant is to be met, and courage fails them. They look back upon the sordid and commonplace things of the life they have essayed to leave, and opportunity vanishes, and they give up, and they miss some of the most wonderful and beautiful things in life.

Plants Cow Peas or Soy Beans and Corn at the Same Time

Cow peas and soy beans enrich the soil. Both are valuable as stock food, and when either is fed with corn, it makes a balanced ration which puts meat on the stock more rapidly than when corn only is fed. You can plant either cow peas or soy beans in the corn hill or drill them with the corn by using a
