BRISBANE THIS WEEK

If Russia Joined Japan
Not Heroic Action
Lloyd George Hopeful
England Still Safe

Editors talk about Asia, led by Japan, conquering the world. They might speculate on a union between Japan and Russia.

Impossible, you will say, truly, but if Russian-Japanese hostility could be changed into Russian-Japanese agreement a new world chapter might open.

You hear of Russia's "red army," 1,300,000 men, thoroughly armed, and 7,000,000 reserves.

You see photographs of Russia's amphibian tanks, mounted with machine guns, rolling over the land and swimming rivers; you read about intensive training of tens of thousands of Russian air pilots, parachute jumpers, etc., and see even the broad-shouldered young Russian women drilling with rifles. Western Europe may have a problem closer at hand than Japan.

Our British cousins in the Revolution cheerfully let loose howling, scolding Indians on their cousins in the American colonies, and bolshevism might cheerfully turn Asiatic killing efficiency against western "capitalism."

You remember how cheerfully the great historian Gibbon predicted that, in the American war, "with firmness all may go well," because "Scotch Highlanders, Irish, Hanoverians, Canadians, Indians, etc., will all in various shapes be employed."

There is no reason why Russia of 1936 should be more squeamish now than England at the end of the Eighteenth century.

Lloyd George, who ought to know about Europe and war since he and old Clemenceau won the big war, tells Universal Service this present war is "off." France having learned that "even her most ardent friends in Europe shrink from war."

Lloyd George declares that peace "without derogating from the dignity of any of the powers" will be preserved. If France does not make it impossible.

Lloyd George says not 1 per cent of Englishmen would vote for war, and not 10 per cent for employing sanctions against Germany.

If enough rich Americans go to England to "escape kidnappers" the kidnappers may move over after them, as professional gamblers follow on big ships. London police arrested Alfred Molyneux, thirty-one, trying to extort $1,000 from the Countess Barbara Hutton Haugwitz-Reventlow, offering to reveal a plot to kidnap her baby. Police knew by the moderate price it could not be an American "snatcher" or confederate. Easily caught, the young man confessed he had invented the plot.

With "visibility cut to zero," street lights burning by day, not visible across the street, dust storms are blowing over parts of Oklahoma, Kansas, Colorado and New Mexico.

By such displays of nature's power, for which man's foolishness is responsible, fertile areas of the world have been changed to deserts.

A bill that would have limited work to five working days of six hours each, or thirty hours a week, is dead in congress for the time being. It would have given workers twenty-four hours off on Saturday and Sunday, eighteen hours off on every other day—eight hours for sleep, "ten hours for what we will." All that will come some day, but not by discouraging improved machinery.

An intelligent young man who fought well in the big war speaks of "the 2-to-1" advantage which modern methods give the defense over the attack. To let the other man or nation come at you, if you are prepared, has been wise in the past.

It might be different in future wars. If the attacker, with a couple of thousand airplanes, dropping explosive bombs and poison gas, should surprise the enemy, "Defense" would have no 2-to-1 advantage over that sort of attack.

Lloyds, the great English insurance concern, at first refused to insure against war at any price. Now Lloyds will insure, otherwise "bet," nine and a half to one against war within six months. Wall Street wanted that news and of course cheered up.

A mother of Fort Worth, Texas, offered her body to Chicago's Cook County hospital for dissection after natural death, if the hospital would provide a free operation for her son. The hospital declined the body, performed the free operation. Now twenty, all women but one, offer to sell their bodies, "delivered after death."

The governor of Campeche in Mexico, after keeping all churches in his state closed for more than a year and a half, now permits all to reopen.

A fight against religion often starts violently, to wind up feebly.

Cottons and Linens Go Style-High

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

COMES spring! By the signs of the times in fashion's realm you know it. When the new cottons and linens announce their arrival and when to celebrate the event, merchants and style creators hold high carnival in the way of style-revealing previews, then be assured that spring is here no matter what the calendar and the calendar and the elements at large may have to say.

As a tonic that will revive faded and winter-weary spirits like magic we know of none better than the new spring and summer fashions, created of refreshing, crisp and dainty wash fabrics—the new prints, sheer and otherwise, the gloriously colorful rough cottons that tailor so beautifully and the exotic printed linens that bespeak India, Tahiti, and picturesque Tyrolean peasantry.

In the advance showings there is a cotton or linen for every occasion, sporty, tailored, formal or otherwise. Dresses, suits, ensembles for morning, for street, for afternoon wear, for dinner, dancing, active and spectator sports, all are included in the spring and summer parade of stylish cottons and linens. Children's fashions play a big part in the displays of spring and summer cottons and linens.

Front page news in regard to linens and cottons is they have gone that highbrow they have entered society in the form of lovely gowns as pretentiously styled as finest of silks and wools. Then, too, as media for smart tailored suits, cottons that are as handsome-looking as woolsens and linens (the new non-crush and non-wrinkle kind) are featuring big this season.

PADLOCK AND KEY

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Here is the frock of your day dreams, a fitting theme for a happy spring-song. It is of rose colored linen with dark stitched linen belt. Despite the fact that it's leap year the young lady in the picture is taking no chances with her affections and so she puts a decorative padlock above her heart (see it on the clever pocket) and another on the corresponding pocket on her skirt. Then she tucks the key in her belt, as she models this smart frock in a preview of spring and summer styles introduced during a cotton and linen carnival held recently in Chicago at the Merchandise Mart.

Printed Slip

A gay printed slip to wear under a dark dress is just feminine enough to delight any woman. The print shows bright flowers on a black ground.

Outstanding among the new widely heralded fabrics are shantung, hand-blocked linens, printed piques, lace that lends itself to tailoring, banded sheers, and rough cottons and countless other attractive washable weaves. Plaids, stripes, checks, gorgeous floral patternings and interesting geometric motifs often of leaf influence, go to make up vast print collections.

Color is literally on the rampage with the primary hues strongly evident and pastels retaining their importance. Designers express enthusiasm for dark monochromes with high-contrast. Brown, black, the darker greens and wine shades, are especially promoted as key colors. Two-piece suits with black skirts topped by bright colored or white jackets are expected to enjoy wide vogue during the coming months.

The attractive models pictured are positive proof that cottons and linens are going style high this season. This stunning suit of rough surfaced plaid cotton and the frock of printed linen called forth much admiration from an enthusiastic audience who witnessed a most brilliant and dramatically staged style revue and cotton carnival held recently in Chicago in the famous Merchandise Mart where it is claimed more floor space is devoted to merchandise and fashion interests than any other building in the world.

A dark blouse is worn with the plaid suit. The charming linen frock in navy with red and white checkings is enlivened with heavy bright red braided fasteners on the blouse, thus sounding a vaguely military note.

SPRING MILLINERY OF MANY PERIODS

New French millinery for advance spring fashions shows the influence of various period styles, according to recent reports from the Paris office of the Du Pont Style News Service. Hats reflecting the French air are seen at several of the houses, the style being interpreted in different ways by leading designers.

The Chinese art and costume is especially apparent in creations by Agnes, who also favors the Alcyonian trend, finding inspiration for her triangular and pointed crowns in the Negus culture.

The strong influence of the Meifid period and coiffure of the Reine Margot are themes which have been developed by Marie Alphonsine.

8 Basic Colors Adopted for Women's Fall Shoes

Eight basic colors for women's shoes have been officially adopted for fall, 1936, by the joint committee of tanners, shoe manufacturers and retailers in cooperation with the Textile Color Card association. It was announced by Margaret Hayden Rorke, managing director of the association. High style shoe and leather colors will be selected later, it was stated.

Five of the colors have been repeated from recent seasons. They are: maroon, marine blue, chardonnay, Oriental oxblood and Araby green. The three new colors, which have not been named as yet, consist of a ginger type of brown, a russet brown and a dark gray.

Paris Accessory Ideas

Paris is sending over grand accessory ideas, little things that can do so much for a costume. Mainbocher has colored bead flower bouquets trimming the waistline of sheer black woolen frocks, while another house features frogs of supple metal in silver or gilt. Chessmen in metal dangle from the neckline of a smart frock, and Schiaparelli uses gold chains to hold up the trains of evening gowns when dancing.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

Institute of Chicago,

Lesson for April 5

JESUS INVITES ALL PEOPLE

LESSON TEXT—Luke 14:15-24.
GOLDEN TEXT—Come; for all things are now ready—Luke 14:17.

PRIMARY TOPIC—How Jesus Kept the Sabbath.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Great Invitation.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Excuses We Make.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Our Response to Christ's Invitation.

In this chapter Luke pictures Jesus freely mingling with his fellowmen in worship and social intercourse. While thus freely mingling with his fellowmen, he was aware of their inner hostility to him and set forth under the parable of the great supper the sinful folly of men who reject his gracious offer of salvation.

I. The Great Supper (v. 15).

This great supper represents God's gracious provision of salvation through the vicarious atonement of Jesus Christ. Christ himself declared that he was the bread of life. As bread is to the physical body, so is Jesus Christ to the soul. It is called a supper because it is the last meal of the day. Jesus Christ's sacrificial death is God's last effort for the salvation of men. The one who misses supper goes hungry through the night; the one who neglects and rejects the gracious offer of salvation in Jesus Christ shall forever perish. It is a great supper because its provision was made in the councils of the eternal Godhead. It was wrought out by the Son of God and avails for the salvation of all races and kindred and tongues. There is no one whose sinful condition debars him from this precious feast.

II. The Gracious and Urgent Invitation (v. 16, 17).

These words, "Come; for all things are now ready," reveal the attitude of God toward a sinning race. Truly it is not the will of God that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance. His servants have been going up and down the world for thousands of years saying to men dead in trespasses and sins, perishing for want of the bread of life, "Come; for all things are now ready." God is never behind time. There is absolutely nothing lacking in his provision for needy souls. The only thing demanded of the hungry and dying world is that it accept his urgent invitation. Man's responsibility is to receive Jesus Christ. All who accept his invitation are assured of a welcome at his table.

III. Men's Attitude Toward God's Gracious Invitation (v. 18-20).

"They all with one accord began to make excuse." They feigned a willingness to come, but their excuses showed that they were completely absorbed in selfish interests and, therefore, disregarded the invitation of the divine Host. This is a vivid picture of the reception which men are everywhere giving the gospel.

1. The first excuse was taken up with the buying of land. On this account he begged to be excused. Supper time is a poor time to go to see a piece of ground. Besides, he had already bought the ground and, therefore, he was under no necessity of going to see it at supper time.

2. The second man desired to be excused in order that he might test a yoke of oxen which he had bought. Supper time is not a proper time to test oxen. Then, too, he had already bought them; therefore, there was no urgency in testing them.

3. The third excuse was perhaps the flimsiest of all. In all probability his wife would have been glad to accompany him. It is to be noted that the excuses made are plausible, as they concern things that are right in themselves. It is right for a man to have land, have oxen, and live with a wife, but when these legitimate interests crowd out God and the things of the Spirit, they are to be ignored.

IV. Guests From the Highways and Hedges (v. 21-24).

1. The anger of the master of the house (v. 21). It should not be forgotten that God, while great in mercy, is capable of anger toward those who reject his mercy. It is a great mistake to remove anger from the character of God. To reject his mercy exposes to his fierce anger.

2. The Lord's house filled (v. 21-23). The places of the very ones who were first bidden were filled with other guests, some of them poor and helpless, from the lanes and streets of the city and others the vagrants from the highways.

3. The awful condition of those first bidden (v. 24). The master of the house declares that none of them shall taste of his supper. Since the supper represents the free grace and mercy of Jesus Christ, to refuse him is to be eternally deprived of the high privilege of sitting at the Master's table.

Why We Are Lonely

Loneliness is often our own fault. We have not brought others enough into our own life, or we have repelled others by making too many claims upon them, or by seeking too much sympathy for ourselves.—Stopford A. Brooke.

Goodness

As the presence of salt is not so noticeable as its absence, so the good are most appreciated when they are gone.

Distinctive Dress With Scalloped Collar for the Charming Little Girl

1833-B

Any little girl from two to six will look simply charming in this distinctive tiny frock which has a high waist finished off with a dainty scalloped collar, and three little buttons.

The shape of the collar gives the dress a fetching demure look that is adorable on all little girls. Notice the soft flare of the skirt and the loose short sleeves—simplicity is the keynote. This design requires a minimum of time and effort to make. Try it in gingham, wool challis, muslin or a silk with a wee little flower design. You can also make this version in a simple crepe which is used in party frocks.

Getting It Right

A grubby urchin walked into the men's outfitting department of a large store.

Addressing an assistant, he said: "A soft man's collar, please!"

The other assistants tittered and the one addressed said wittily: "You mean a man's soft collar, my boy?"

Pointing to his own collar, he asked: "Do you mean one like this?"

The boy eyed it momentarily. Then he replied: "No! A clean one!"

HOW ARE YOU TODAY

Talks About

Synthetic Exercise

MANY overweight individuals state that the reason they do not take exercise to lose weight is because the exercise so increases their appetite that they eat really more food than ever and do not lose any weight. In fact, some state that exercise increases their weight.

There is no question, of course, but that exercise, particularly outdoor exercise, does stimulate the appetite, but on the other hand the greater amount of oxygen in the outdoor air is a great factor in burning up the fat in the body and thus decreasing the weight. The idea of the exercise is to increase the speed of the circulation of the blood. As the muscles are worked by exercise, they use up an increased amount of oxygen and make an increased amount of wastes including carbon dioxide. The blood then is anxious to get back as quickly as possible to the lungs in order to get more oxygen and get rid of some of the excess load of carbon dioxide. During the exercise, as with other chemical changes, there is an increased amount of heat, and this tends to melt some of the fat in the body including, of course, the region where the muscles are working.

Exercise Is Ideal Reducer

You can thus see that exercise is an ideal way of reducing weight in those for whom it is safe to exercise. And the big point is that the individual grows so much stronger physically that he or she can use or handle the body so much more easily that exercise instead of being a burden, becomes almost a pleasure. Some of the proudest individuals you meet are those who by regular exercise have not only regained their figure, but have entered into various games and sports. It is because the drug dinitrophenol acts very much upon the body as does exercise that it has become so popular everywhere in reducing weight. The use of the 18-day diet not only called for great strength of will in trying to live on such a small amount of food daily, but it was so weakening that a great many women became invalids and many others died. Similarly with the thyroid extract which made the body processes work so fast that permanent damage was done to the heart in a number of cases.

Use on Mental Patients.

Dr. H. Freeman, Worcester, Mass., gave dinitrophenol in the regular dosage to nine male dementia praecox patients (patients who live in a permanent dream state) but who had no organic disease of the body. The drug was given for a period of seven weeks. The dinitrophenol greatly increased the amount of oxygen used by the body, and decreased the length of time it takes for the blood to circulate throughout the body. This means then that the dinitrophenol by making the body require more oxygen actually heats the tissues to the point where the fat will melt, and by making the blood travel faster it would be back to the lungs for more oxygen and to give off its carbon dioxide in much less time than normal.

If this is the case why should not this drug be used instead of reducing the diet?

From all over the country reports are coming to hand regarding the harmful effects of dinitrophenol—skin ailments, collapse, and some deaths.

It would seem that just as some individuals are sensitive to the pollen of plants and so suffer with hay fever or asthma, and others are sensitive to certain drugs like quinine, so also are some individuals sensitive to dinitrophenol.

Until some very reliable tests can be made to learn whether those wishing to reduce weight can use it safely, it is recommended by those who did the original research work on dinitrophenol that it be used only under the close supervision of the physician.

High Blood Pressure

IT IS generally known that overweight is a cause of high blood pressure and yet many thin individuals have high blood pressure also.

In the case of overweight it is simply that the fat so interferes with the proper working of the blood vessels that the heart has to pump the blood harder through these vessels. If the weight is reduced the blood pressure becomes lower. Thus the overweight individual is more likely to have high blood pressure than the underweight.

However there are many individuals whose very personality actually keeps their blood pressure above normal. These individuals are easily excited emotionally and under these emotional disturbances the blood pressure immediately goes up a number of points.

Dr. D. Ayman in the American Journal of Medical Science states that in regard to the effect of personality on high blood pressure it is important to modify or lessen this so-called high blood pressure personality and to lessen the emotional and mental responses of the patient because these are accompanied by a marked rise in the blood pressure.

SEEK TVA POWER

Officials of the twin-cities of Fulton and South Fulton are seeking to obtain TVA power. Several copies of a resolution passed at the co-operative meeting in Martin last Friday night have been received here this week. The resolution delegates authority to the Gibson County Electric Membership Corporation to negotiate with the Kentucky-Tennessee utility company to purchase their system in West Tennessee, for use in distribution of TVA power in that area. If this deal cannot be made, plans call for construction of new lines to compete with the utility company.

Thirty-four cities in West Tennessee are working jointly to bring TVA to that section of Tennessee, and South Fulton is one of them. To start the ball rolling, the governing bodies of these various communities must endorse these resolutions and return to the Gibson county corporation.

A BRIGHT WHITE WAY

A well lighted town always attracts attention, Fulton—being on the hub of two national highways, with thousands of people passing through here weekly—should by all means be well lighted, in the opinion of our city councilmen.

The other night, one councilman expressed the opinion that TVA power would make it possible to have a better lighted city, mean sharp savings to electric users and promote rural electrification. Another pertinent point brought out in discussion recently was a proposal to install a dynamo at the water works, which could be put into service to supply current to light a beautiful white way in the downtown section of Fulton.

Accurate WORKMANSHIP At Low Cost

GO FORWARD WITH 1936

This year will bring many noteworthy changes to our community, our state and our nation. After we have gone to the polls and voted for men to represent us in Congress and Legislature, there is little more to be done from a state and national standpoint. But the welfare and development of our own community depends upon what we as citizens do to encourage and stimulate its growth.

Here are a few things that have been suggested as needing attention in Fulton and vicinity:

1. Finish plans for widening of Lake Street.
2. Continue to encourage improvement of poultry flocks, dairy herds and raising of livestock.
3. Start efforts immediately to obtain factory units to employ idle people who need work and salaries to spend in order to make this a better community.
4. Push forward the plan inaugurated by the Woman's Club to beautify the city.
5. Provide more hitching and parking space for visitors shopping in Fulton.
6. Property Owners should improve and modernize buildings while material and labor costs are down.
7. Merchants inaugurate regular and planned advertising programs to build their business and encourage the growth of the community. This is of prime importance to meet outside competition.
8. Establish and maintain an annual celebration, when people of surrounding territory can gather and enjoy themselves. These events always stimulate the growth of a community.
9. Provide for a better lighted city, by innovating a brilliant white-way.
10. Last, but not least, co-ordinate our efforts, and co-operate wholeheartedly to build Fulton.

The Human Touch

THE CONDUCTOR COULD SEE from her look of bewilderment as he handed her the telegram, that she was unused to traveling alone.

It was a message from home. She must return at once. But how? The train back on the line she was using had already passed.

Her anxiety vanished as the conductor explained.

Half an hour later she stepped from the train. The station agent was waiting. Miles away on another line was a returning train. The agent took her in his automobile and saw her aboard.

Then he wired the family that she was safely on the way.

THIS sort of thing is all in a day's work with Illinois Central employees. They are more than skilled technicians, making train travel safely and on time. They have a tradition of warm-hearted friendliness that distinguishes the service they render.

Mussolini Abolishes Chamber of Deputies

Benito
Mussolini

BENITO MUSSOLINI evidently expects another European war, and in preparation for it he announced several drastic measures on the seven-teenth anniversary of the founding of the Fascist party. He abolished the chamber of deputies, substituting for it a council of guilds; and he also eliminated the country's large industries, leaving the medium and small private industries in existence. This latter move, he told the council of the 22 guilds of the cor-porative state, was to increase the nation's economic self-sufficiency. "When and how war will come, one does not know," he said, "but the wheel of fate turns fast."

Mussolini asserted the large industries, particularly those working for the defense of the nation, would be formed into organizations called "key industries." These, he said, "will be run directly or indirectly by the government. Some will have mixed organization."

He drew tremendous cheers from the audience, rising in the gorgeous Julius Caesar hall of the capitol building, on Capitoline hill, when he declared that with this reform, the Fascist party reached fulfillment of its purposes.

Russia and Poland Don't Trust Negotiations

EASTERN Europe, especially soviet Russia and Poland, is distrustful of the negotiations among the Locarno powers. Russia, according to Karl Radek, authoritative writer in Moscow, is convinced she must rely for her safety mainly on her own resources for defense, and accordingly will strengthen her armed forces already numbering 1,300,000 men. He described commitments of the four Locarno powers in regard to future action as "no uncertainty that they can be discounted as not existing at all."

Suggestions offered in London for the summoning of an international conference to discuss new agreements Radek found to be "so vague" as to apply the world to know we will never capitulate before the resolutions and for which Hitler has expressed no particular love.

The Polish government was decidedly worried by reports of secret negotiations in London behind the scenes of the conference of the Locarno powers. These reports were forwarded by Col. Josef Beck, the foreign minister, who wanted a plot to secure peace in western Europe at the expense of eastern Europe by granting Germany a free hand in the latter region. Beck thought there were possibilities of revision of the Versailles and other treaties. The information he sent to Warsaw led the press there to publish bitter attacks on the course Great Britain apparently was pursuing.

Hitler Considers Reply to Peace Proposals

REICHSFUHRER HITLER recalled Joachim von Ribbentrop from London, where that diplomat had heard Germany condemned as a treaty violator by the council of the League of Nations, and with him spent several days carefully planning his response to the proposals of the other four Locarno powers.

Others of his advisers participated in the conferences, but there was no doubt that Hitler himself would determine the course of the peace, and from the demonstrations in his honor over the weekend it appeared certain the German people would sustain him in his decision. Going to Breslau, still accompanied by Van Ribbentrop, Hitler told a big gathering of citizens: "We will not make a single compromise in internal or external politics. We want the world to know we will never capitulate before the resolutions and formulations of others."

Declaring the world is getting itself entangled in military alliances, Hitler promised: "We Germans will not allow ourselves to be entangled because we have reconquered our sovereignty and intend to keep it."

The Fuehrer answered charges that his peace proposals were merely a gesture by saying: "I make no empty gestures. These were proposals to insure the peace of the world for 25 years. Let other statesmen ask their peoples to express their opinion in votes as to whether they want war or peace. Maybe then the nations will come to agreement. May God show us the right way."

Parts of the peace plan offered by the four Locarno powers that were most objectionable to the Germans were the creation of an international police zone 12 miles wide along the Rhine frontier, and the submis-

Three Powers Agree to Limit Battleship Size

GREAT BRITAIN, the United States and France, the only nations remaining in the London naval conference, accepted the final draft of a new treaty limiting the size of battleships to 35,000 tons, retaining 10,000 tons as the maximum for cruisers and providing that none of that size shall be built for six years.

Norman H. Davis, chief of the American delegation, served notice that the United States would consider itself free from the large cruiser limit if Great Britain should build more than 70 cruisers.

Unsuccessful in keeping Japan and Italy pledged to naval limitations, the conferees wrote escape clauses in the treaty which would permit them to disregard the limits if Japan and other nonsigners exceeded them.

National Topics Interpreted
By WILLIAM BRUCKART
NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington — Overshadowing all else in the national capital at this writing is the controversy that is boiling and surging around the head of Alabama's Democratic Senator Black, who is the chairman of the senate's lobby investigating committee. As an off- shoot of this controversy, the federal communications commission is in wa- ter much too hot for bathing and it begins to appear that when the steam blows off the communications commis- sion is likely to be a thoroughly discredited federal agency because of the part it played in Senator Black's unprecedented seizure of private tele- grams from the Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies.

Need Curb on Inquiries

Speaking generally, it has been seldom that a United States senator has ever attempted to assert the authority that Senator Black has used and it is equally unprecedented that a federal agency has gone to the extremes that characterized the action of the communications commission in connection with the seizure of the messages.

But some good may come from the police court prosecution tactics employed by Senator Black and some good may come from the accusations leveled at the communications commission because that body helped Senator Black carry out his plans.

The country-wide indignation that has arisen from Senator Black's usurpation of power has brought to the front a question that needs public attention and needs it badly.

I refer, in this connection, to the steadily expanding efforts of congressional investigators, especially senatorial investigators, to take over, as their own, powers that always have been regarded as reserved exclusively to the courts. The consensus among Washington observers certainly is that the legislative inquiries have developed to a point where the most humble requirements of justice have been and are being completely ignored.

Whether they are so intended, those inquiries which include investigations conducted by committees not only of congress but of state legislatures and even city councils, are approaching the point where they are almost tyrannical.

It goes without saying, then, that the time has arrived for citizens to assert themselves. These inquiries will not proceed when the elected legislators, state or national, learn that the people do not approve of such high-handed tactics.

In order to have an understanding of the latest of these escapades, it is necessary to review briefly what has happened in the case of the senate's lobby investigating committee. Almost a year ago the committee sought the aid of the federal communications commission which had the color of authority in law for investigating the business of the telegraph companies. Senator Black issued a broad subpoena, directing the telegraph companies to make available any and all messages his committee desired. Communications commission agents then went into the telegraph company files, read everything they could find and made copies of all of the messages which those agents, under guidance of Black's investigators, thought would be helpful to the Black committee in exposing operations of private individuals.

The purpose of this, as outlined by Senator Black, was to locate clues to the machinations of business interests who were seeking passage or defeat for legislation pending in congress. The Alabama senator wanted to "show up" lobbyists. He contended and has maintained consistently that "these malefactors of great wealth" could not accomplish any influence in congress unless it were done secretly and "in the dark."

In other words, Senator Black persuaded members of the communications commission to help him in his fishing expedition. He persuaded that organization that it should become a party to an unprecedented effort designed as a dragnet, a movement to snare anybody and everybody who had used telegraphic service.

The Black plan was carried out in secret. Senders and receivers of messages which those agencies copied knew nothing about it. The operation was just as much "in the dark" as any of the lobbying about which Senator Black complained, even more so. It was only by accident that the facts became known but when they did become known, the lid was promptly blown off.

The end is not yet, nor is it even in sight. One federal judge has issued a restraining order against such tactics and a bill down other applications for similar orders are pending. Undoubtedly, the questions, whatever the rulings may be, will find their way eventually to the Supreme court of the United States.

The senate itself is looking into the situation. It has, by resolution, asked the federal communications commission to make a report stating the facts and by what authority it acted.

So there is much hubbub about the whole thing and if one may judge from the line of conversation generally heard around Washington, Senator Black is on the hot spot, and the spot thus far has shown no indications of entering a cooling stage.

Charge Unfairness

Senate investigations long have been considered by many people as a modus operandi that creek with unfairness. Unbiased observers frequently have criticized them because of the methods employed. It seems absolutely necessary that the senate should have power to call witnesses, to ask legitimate and proper questions and to force answers. If it is going to enact legislation to correct evils, it must be equipped with such powers. But the point is that in seeking such information, the senate has consistently permitted its committees to act in a fashion that can be described by no other word than outrageous. I have watched them over a period of nearly twenty years and seldom, if ever, has there been an important investigation that did not degenerate sooner or later into a condition that savored of police court practices.

Respectable citizens have been subpoenaed, have gone before the committees willing to tell their complete story, anxious to co-operate and have found themselves treated as outlaws and criminals. This situation has become so prevalent in senate investigations that when any citizen is subpoenaed to appear before a senate investigation these days, his neighbors and friends begin to ask each other what crookedness is involved. In other words, the psychology of the senate investigation, as it has developed through the last fifteen or twenty years, has become one that reverses the constitutional right of an individual that he is innocent until he is proved guilty.

For several years, there has been a bill pending in congress designed to prevent, or at least reduce, lynchings. The theory back of it is that many times innocent persons have been lynched and that every one has a right to a trial by jury in a properly constituted court. Over across the Atlantic ocean, dictators have operated and have employed the "blood purge," the summary death sentence or the execution without granting the accused the right of defense. Undoubtedly some persons guilty of murder or rape have been lynched; undoubtedly the "blood purge" by the Nazi rulers destroyed some bad characters and undoubtedly the summary executions by the Soviet or the Fascists of Italy have provided death for individuals who were festering sores to humanity, but there can be no doubt that in the case of the lynchings or in the case of the "blood purge" or the summary executions, many innocent persons have had their lives snuffed out.

So it is with senate investigations. Undoubtedly they have uncovered some dirty crooked dealings. Undoubtedly they have brought to public attention activities and conditions that ought to have been exposed. Yet, the fact remains that nearly all of our people are decent people, law abiding and self-respecting. And when senate investigations go beyond proper limits they approach, if they do not wholly become, tyranny.

In defense of Senator Black's action in the lobby investigation, I think it can fairly be said that he is not wholly to blame if he has gone further than any other in the program of inquiry and prosecution upon which he has launched. Little by little, bit by bit, the senate has arrogated to itself authority hitherto not used by it. Little by little, it has encroached upon what many believe to be the jurisdiction of the courts and in a like manner it has taken unto itself powers hitherto supposed to have been exclusively reserved to the executive department of government.

It would seem, then, that if other senate committees had established the precedent, Senator Black could properly use the same methods. The trouble in his case is that he did not stop at limits previously set, discreditable as those limits were, but went beyond them.

To repeat, there is every indication that some good will come out of this circumstance. Important men and brilliant lawyers and great organizations like the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, the National Association of Manufacturers and the American Liberty league have taken note of the steadily expanding power claimed by the senate. This means that the questions involved will get into the courts. It is to be hoped that they will be presented to the courts in such a manner that the questions may be finally and lastingly answered, that the powers of the legislators may be delimited and that a definite expression may come from the judiciary that will determine whether members of the house and the senate can serve at once as legislators, judges and prosecutors.

TALLEST STRUCTURE

Until New York's Chrysler building came along in 1930, with its height of 1,046 feet, the Eiffel Tower in Paris, 984 feet, was the world's tallest structure. Later, of course, the Empire State building topped both with 1,248 feet.

Cardui Helps When Nerves Seem "On Edge" Every Month

Women who find themselves in a painful, nervous fix, suffering every month, may have some functional trouble which Cardui should benefit. At times, I felt like I must scream if a door slammed or there was an unusual noise, writes Mrs. P. A. Odum, of Haines City, Fla. "I did not feel like doing my housework, and as I had other work besides, I felt more like lying down. A friend of mine asked me to try Cardui, which I did. After my first bottle, I felt much better. I continued taking it until I had taken six or seven bottles. By the time I was so much improved I was able to leave it off."

If not benefited by Cardui, consult a physician.

CONCENTRATED SUN
RAYS MELT STEEL
4,000 Degrees of Heat Produced by Invention.

Los Angeles, Calif.—H. E. McCoy, bald Los Angeles inventor, gingerly held a steel plate in front of a beam of his "concentrated sunlight" and chuckled as the ray promptly melted a hole through the plate, the molten metal dripping down like melted butter. He waved triumphantly at a huge revolving battery of 60 mirrors which was focusing the bright California noonday sun into a beam some 4,000 degrees Fahrenheit in temperature. "We'll run all our factories with 'sun power' through outlets like this some day," he declared. "Give me the capital to build one eight times as big as this one, and I'll make the sun generate enough electricity to light a city of 80,000 population."

Uses Three Panels.
McCoy's invention consists of three panels, each holding 20 curved slabs of silvered window glass. They tip up or down and run on a circular track, following the sun's path from east to west. The sun's rays are kept aimed constantly on a fire-brick over 15 feet away.

All the sunlight striking 60 square feet of mirror is concentrated on the small target, raising the temperature to approximately half the terrific heat of the surface of the sun itself.

McCoy says he has melted, among other metals, tungsten carbide, indicating the furnace develops well over 4,000 degrees Fahrenheit.

Confident of Adoption.
He is confident the apparatus will be adopted by industry to replace coal and oil for heating factory boilers. He says that for $25,000 he can build an ore-smelting plant equivalent to present-day smelters costing $100,000.

"It sounds fantastic," he said, "but I think the motorist of the future may drive up to a service station and, instead of buying gasoline, exchange the battery of his electric automobile for one that has just been charged by a solar furnace generating plant."

Underwriters are already consulting the inventor on the possibilities of using the device for cremation of bodies, their idea being that cremation by sunlight has a certain poetic appeal.

As a test, he placed a two-pound rabbit on the "hot spot." It vanished in smoke after two minutes under the concentrated sunbeam.

Intelligence Tests Fair
Only After Some Practice

Ann Arbor—Intelligence tests are fair in determining the comparative "I. Q.'s" of individuals only when those individuals have had equal amounts of practice in taking the tests. Dr. Edward B. Green, University of Michigan psychologist, has concluded, after repeating four times a series of 25 standard tests among 253 of his sophomore students.

In taking the tests over and over again the pupils showed improvement in performance which ranged from zero to 1,000 per cent, which led Doctor Green to assert that the "prediction of success in vocational and educational activities would be greatly improved if individuals could be compared at known levels of efficiency. It is seldom useful to compare individuals when it is known that one of them has had considerably more practice than the other," he says. "Only those tests which show from none to 25 per cent improvement may be used as a comparison between individuals."

In easy comparisons, including the speed of easy reading and easy pencil mazes, and in hard comparisons, study of difficult maze designs, improvements ranging from 25 to 75 per cent were shown. In medium comparisons the improvement ranged up to 290 per cent and in solution of such puzzles as can be remembered the improvement was 300 per cent.

Co-Eds Firmer Than Men in Holding to Studies

Lewisburg, Pa.—Women are sturdier than men, according to conclusions drawn by the "Backneller," student newspaper at the Bucknell university.

The paper conducted a survey of the number of students who changed courses after the opening of the term and found that 225 men switched classes, while only 129 coeds changed their programs. It was concluded that women in general may change their minds more frequently than men, but coeds exhibited more steady convictions.

Sensations of Taste

Sensations of taste vary enormously among different persons, and the same individual, because of some unexplained bodily changes, is unable to taste at one time 100 times as much of a substance as he previously succeeded in detecting.

Lights of New York
by L. L. STEVENSON

Unsavory was the old city penitentiary now being demolished by WPA workers on Welfare island. Built almost a century ago, with cells only three feet wide and the only light that from a small hole in the door of each, through the years it gathered grime and germs. It held only petty offenders but the walls are of limestone four and five feet thick and the stone partitions between cells are two feet thick while the bars and grill works are set firmly. So the workmen are having a tough time in demolishing it. They are razing the south wing now. That south wing figured largely in the news several years ago. Prisoners with political connections ruled the penitentiary. Austin H. McCormack, appointed commissioner of corrections under the Fusion administration, staged a "raid" and the city thus "recaptured" its own prison. The south wing was the dwelling place of the prison aristocracy. The cells had silk curtains. There were pieces of fine furniture and curtained wardrobes contained outfits of evening clothes.

Black as is the old prison, its history is still blacker. Within its walls have been unspeakable cruelties and many crimes of violence. There have been rebellions in which blood was shed. How many lives were wrecked completely because of it is beyond computation. Hardened, professional criminals, caught in some minor offense, were sent there. So were desperate men to whom law or human life meant nothing. Drug addicts and degenerates formed part of the motley, ugly company of felons. With them were young boys convicted of their first offenses—and ripe for further instruction in crime. The prison became obsolete as a penal institution 30 years ago. Engineers condemned the interior as unfit for human beings 15 years ago.

The island on which the prison stands is in East river. The Indians called it Minnabonock, or Long Island. Capt. John Manning acquired it in 1664 and the name became Manning's island. His stepdaughter married William Blackwell and lived on the island and in time, it became Blackwell's island. The Blackwell mansion still stands, being used as quarters for doctors connected with the hospital on the island. When the city bought the island for $25,000 in 1828, one of the provisions was that the Blackwell mansion, built in 1760 or 1768—there is conflict as to the date—be allowed to stand. To take away some of the blackness of the prison on the island, the name was changed to Welfare in 1921.

Prisoners formerly confined in the Welfare island prison have been sent to the new penitentiary on Rikers island. Rikers island for years was a city dump. In fact, the island was practically built from city refuse. Occasionally it catches fire and the smoke is no perfume. Also, Rikers island is the home of the biggest rats known to mankind—rats that chase hell dogs into East river. But the new penitentiary is far superior to the old.

That recent survey which shows that the well-known "Boston accent" seems to be on the road to extinction brings to mind the fact that "Brooklynese" is heard less frequently in New York than it was when I first arrived. In those days it seemed as if most of New York believed that "world" was spelled "wold," and that "oil" was "eul." One night at graduation exercises of one of the uptown public schools, I heard a Supreme court justice say "foist" and a little later, he used the word "moulder." That one of the members of that graduating class should remark to another, "Don't do that, Holby, you make me noivus," seemed perfectly proper after such an example. "Avenge" also had a peculiar pronunciation, which I can't reproduce and in many instances, "voice" was "verse." Christopher Morley's rhyme about "Anne stirred an erder stew" was an excellent example.

With the passing of the years, I thought my ear had become dulled to the idiom. But after consulting various sources, I have reached the conclusion that there is less "Brooklynese" than there was in those years past. It crops out occasionally even in the utterances of Alfred E. Smith, however. Then, at Christmas time, a young woman in a Forty-second street drug store, directed me to the "terlet goods counter." With many, "Pennsylvania" is still "Ponnylvania" and "idea" is given a final "e." Ah, yes, the man in a change booth of the municipal subway Forty-second street station last night turned back a quarter on the ground that it was a "untilated"—he made the first syllable rhyme with "but"—"kern." Brooklynese hasn't really passed but is passing.

CALL FOR BUILDING PLANS ON INCREASE

The College of Agriculture at the University of Kentucky at Lexington, reports continued heavy demands for farm building plans, particularly for tobacco barns. Approximately 250 sets of plans have been sent out this year, upon request from farmers. Nearly a fourth of them were for tobacco barns.

The increased call for building plans began last year, when 86 per cent more plans were distributed than in 1934. A total of 660 plans were distributed upon request to farmers in 93 Kentucky counties and 96 sets sent to farmers in 17 other states last year.

While major interest appears to be in the building of tobacco barns, Prof. J. B. Kelly, head of the agricultural engineering department, reports activity in all kinds of farm building. Large numbers of poultry houses, dairy barns, hog houses, storage houses, general barns and dwellings are under construction throughout the state, he said. Much remodeling also is being done.

Part of the interest in constructing and remodeling tobacco barns is said to be due to the fact that leaf cured in modern barns and according to the latest practices has been selling much higher in recent years.

More farmers are equipping barns with ridge ventilators, using artificial heat and otherwise controlling curing so well that they are able to market a higher quality of tobacco than they did in former years, it is said.

BROOD MARES FOR MULES

tail. The bray of the jack goes over almost unmodified to the mule. The dam controls the contour of the barrel and the hips. She also controls the natural activity of her mule offspring. Because the brood mare transmits these two essential traits to the mule the type of mare becomes important.

The mare with draft blood is inclined to produce large mules, more of the show mule type, but a hybrid that has a decided tendency to be sluggish and to be a voracious eater. Large draft mares will often produce mules that weigh at full maturity from 1,400 to 1,600 lbs. There is a keen demand for such mules for showing exhibition and for draft purposes.

Mares of less weight and less draft blood produce mules smaller in stature and not so symmetrical as the heavy draft mule, the mature weight ranging from 1,200 to 1,500 lbs. They are useful in lumber camps and for medium draft service. However, when dams of mules have much draft blood the breeders can expect to get size but at the same time a sluggish tendency.

Mares carrying exclusively light horse blood, if they weigh from 1,000 to 1,200 lbs. are ideal for mule production. There is a decided activity transmitted to the mules and they are usually from 1,000 to 1,200 lbs. in weight. Smaller will have light mules. A mule of good conformation, weighing 900 to 1,000 lbs. is a useful farm animal, although farmers like the light horse type to weigh from 1,000 pounds up.

For regular farm work the light horse type mule is a more efficient work animal than the draft horse type. He holds up better under hot weather, and he eats less than the heavier types. He is quicker on his feet and for intertilled crops he is unsurpassed.

Even the long legged, rangy barrelled kind is useful when it comes to cultivating corn and cotton.

Mules can be raised without much trouble or expense. They do not need much grain to get them to the two or three year old from. Reasonable pasture, and coarse roughage for summer and winter, need be supplemented with but a little corn to grow the mule to the age when he will make him self-supporting. There is always a ready sale for them at a price that pays well to raise them.

The indications are that farmers will breed more mares this year than they have been breeding in the past few years. There will be use for all good mules that can be produced in the next few years. The old work stock must die off and it is wise to raise young stock to replace them instead of having to purchase them.

$40,000.00 IN ADJUSTMENT PAYMENTS ON COTTON

The cotton farmers will receive about $40,000 in the form of Price Adjustment payments which is the difference between 10 and 12 cents that the government has agreed to make. The forms have just been completed and are ready for the producers to sign. The forms will be taken to Fulton Saturday and those living in the Eastern part of the county should come to the Woman's Club building as this will probably be the easiest day the forms will be brought to Fulton. Saturday and those living in the Eastern part of the county came to the Woman's Club building here to obtain these forms for signing. It is not necessary for share croppers to sign, but the landlords or managing share tenants should come to Hickman at once and sign so that the forms may be sent to the State office. There will not be any need for those who rented all of their cotton land to come but those who did not have a contract but made application for certificates will be eligible to make application for this payment.

HOME ECONOMIC STUDENTS STUDY CHILD WELFARE

"The child of today is the citizen of tomorrow." Accepting that statement, parents also realize that the child has certain fundamental rights based on what is needed for his development. These rights come under seven major heads, students learn in child development classes in the home economics department of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

A good heredity is said to be the first essential; the child is dependent upon his parents for the kind of body and mind he is born with. Physical requirements for health include hygienic care and training, or cleanliness; protection from disease, and treatment for defects that may be overcome with medical aid. Happy home relationships, and the inspiration coming from books, music and art make for mental health. One thing especially stressed thru out the 4-year home economic course is the maintenance of a normal home life. This includes a reasonable income, that the wife and mother should have command of the housekeeping skills, and that both parents, working together furnish a home that is worthwhile.

Education, opportunity for play and companionship, freedom from child labor in the illegal or harmful sense, and the security which comes from love and which gives freedom for fullest development, are other points of study.

The extremely low divorce rate among members of Phi Upsilon Omicron, national honorary home economics fraternity, shows that there is something to the idea of "looking before you leap." That is, a broad basis of preparation for marriage and homemaking will lead eventually in the home life of the nation.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL TAKES NEW STREAMLINE TRAIN

Now that the Illinois Central System has taken delivery of its new streamline train, which has been named the Green Diamond, chief interest on the railroad centers in the "get-acquainted" program that the train will carry out prior to its entry into regular daily round-trip service between Chicago and St. Louis in May.

A month and a half of time and 1500 miles of travel will be devoted to exhibitions in some fifty cities of the Mississippi valley, the southwest and the Great Lakes region. Off-time travel will total nearly 100 miles and will be principally in the territories from which travel may come who will utilize the Green Diamond between Chicago and St. Louis. More than 4,000 miles of the exhibition tour will be on Illinois Central rails, reaching every large city on the system.

Schedules called for the beginning of the exhibition tour on March 31 and continuing until the middle of May. Among the cities listed for visits are the following: Memphis, Little Rock, Greenville, Vicksburg, Tallulah, Monroe, Ruston, Shreveport, Dallas, Tulsa, Oklahoma City, Fort Worth, Waco, Austin, San Antonio, Houston, Beaumont, New Orleans, Baton Rouge, Hammond, Jackson, Miss., Birmingham, Jackson, Tenn., Fulton, Louisville, Evansville, Paducah, Cairo, Carbondale, Centerville, Mattoon, Indianapolis, Champaign, Detroit, Jackson, Mich., Milwaukee, Rockford, Dodge, Sioux Falls, Sioux City, Ford, Freeport, Dubuque, Waterloo, Omaha, Decatur, Peoria, Springfield, St. Louis and Chicago.

At each stop the public will be invited to make a complete examination of the train. Courteous attendants will be on hand to answer every question. The Green Diamond is a standard size 5-car unit so designed as to provide a striking picture of beauty and speed. It is built of steel and aluminum, 300 feet long, weighs 350 tons—just half the weight of a steam train of the same capacity and will accommodate 120 passengers. Its main power unit is a 1200 horsepower Diesel oil engine. The five parts of the train consist of the power car, mail and baggage car, two chair cars and the kitchen-lounge-observation car. The finish throughout is in complete harmony. Radio, writing desks, ash trays, smoking stands, magazine tables, table lamps add to the inviting comfort of the train.

The Green Diamond derives its name from the historic diamond of the Illinois Central emblem and from the two shades of green used in its exterior finish. Cypress and Cedre green with striping of silver and scarlet furnish a striking and memorable color scheme.

KY. FREE BRIDGE ASSOCIATION SEEKS TO FREE TOLL BRIDGES

Prospects of freeing Kentucky's eight intra-state highway bridges of toll this year are so bright that the Kentucky Free Bridge Association recently organized at Paducah, will concentrate its efforts in Frankfort during the next few weeks, according to Herbert L. Wallerstein, Paducah, president of the association. Mr. Wallerstein said the Association is hopeful of bringing the matter before the General Assembly at one of its special sessions this spring. Should the Assembly approve the bill abolishing the tolls, the Highway Commission could immediately free the bridges. Tolls now range from 55 to 80 cents for passenger cars.

Chairman Ben Johnson of the Highway Commission, at the last regular meeting of the Commission said he favored the movement to free the bridges and added that he would make this his principal interest in the future. Governor Chandler said that if a suitable plan for retiring the bonds without the collection of tolls can be worked out, he will bring the matter before the Legislature this spring. Bonds outstanding on the eight bridges now total $4,340,000. At the present rate of toll collections, the bridges will pay for themselves for another eighteen years or so.
