THE LISTENING POST

● I saw myself as I was a lot of years ago a few nights ago. For I saw the Young Son, who used to be the Little Boy, play in a basketball game for the first time. I thought he did pretty well—but I would have thought that in any event, even if he had missed every chance and made a poor showing all the way through, for a father is that sort of a guy, right or wrong, and I average up about like most fathers.

● As it happens I never played basketball, for it was not played in my section in my athletic days. Baseball was in its flower then, and I could not keep from remembering some of my early games as I watched these young Junior High players flit about the floor of Science Hall. In a sense, I relived those days as I saw the Young Son pitted against opponents in a real game and saw how he reacted under fire.

● I remembered my first real game, before I even wore a uniform, and I remember the first game I ever played on the "big team," wearing a baseball uniform and with a regular umpire. My start was not so auspicious as the Young Son's, if the literal truth be told, and for days after those games my face burned with mortification and there were times when I felt like crawling off somewhere and just dying.

● I had been tossing a ball around, had a glove and could throw pretty straight and pretty far, and could run like nobody's business. I felt that I knew how to play baseball, and so one day I joined up with a bunch of boys about fourteen or fifteen years of age, and went to play boys of the same age in a neighboring town.

● I talked wisely of curve and fast balls, but to tell the literal truth, I had never seen a real curve ball. Inside of me, I felt that curve balls were no more than the sailing curve I could throw now and then. This first game was to show me that I had been wrong, for that other team had a little lad, thin and frail, for a pitcher. When I saw him warming up I mentally chalked up two home runs and a pair of triples for my share of the hitting.

● I faced this frail and skinny boy in the first inning with the bases loaded and two gone, and felt that I would certainly hammer in all those runs and then come in personally. But something failed to click. That skinny boy had a curve ball that cut up more dices than I believed a ball could. If I thought it was in there, it was always a foot outside. If I thought it was going to hit me, it always busted right through the middle for a perfect called strike. To make a long story short, and I am getting bitter over the memory, that frail little curve ball pitcher whiffed me four straight times, and really pronounced my doom, for I was never destined to hit curve pitching, although I did improve and few pitchers could take me a cleaning like that in later years. But I had a weakness, and that skinny kid found it that day.

Roosevelt Asks $36,500,000 To Aid Navy

Sum Is Needed To Keep Present Construction Going

Washington. —President Roosevelt asked Congress today to appropriate $36,500,000 so that naval construction might be continued "without delay or curtailment" during the fiscal year ending in July.

The proposed supplemental appropriation would bring the total funds for naval construction this year to $190,613,150.

It was recommended in a $50,340,998 efficiency bill which is expected to be one of the first measures considered by the new House, where appropriations originate.

Besides the additional money for the Navy, $191,000 was asked for the War Department. Congress was advised that this would be used in part for building up the Army reserve through poster and newspaper advertising.

The recommendation for additional money for the Navy included $24,000,000 for construction of vessels and machinery, and $12,500,000 for armor, armament and ammunition. The last Congress appropriated $131,063,150 and $23,650,000 respectively for these purposes.

A communication from Budget Director Daniel Bell, in which Mr. Roosevelt concurred, said that the supplemental appropriations were required "to meet contingencies which have arisen since the transmission of the budget for the fiscal year 1939."

The deficiency measure also called for $1,074,220 for the Labor Department, including $950,000 for administration of the new Wagner Labor Law, and the present fund, which totaled $400,000, would be exhausted by February 1.

Other items included $5,000,000 to meet increased expenses of the Federal Housing Administration and $3,604,000 for the Treasury, including $3,500,000 for a new Bureau of Census Building.

B. And L. Makes Its Annual Report

On another page of today's issue will be found the annual report of the Fulton Building and Loan Association, and a study of the figures indicates the healthy growth that was made during the past year of 1938.

The reserve fund increased from $8000 to $9400 and a total of $3,650 was transferred to the surplus and reserve at the end of the year. A total of $16,000 was credited to the stockholders during the year, making the total earnings of the association $19,650.55.

Stock in force a year ago was $685,000, while at the end of the past year stock in force totaled $741,900, which shows a decided increase.

Meanwhile, a Royston citizen called Troopers G. B. Broxton and W.

Civil Service Will Cover W.P.A. Men

Administrative Workers Are Involved Under Proposal

Washington. —Amid a storm of charges of politics in relief, Administration officials announced today that 35,000 administrative employees of W. P. A. would be placed under Civil Service February 1.

Col. F. C. Harrington, new relief administrator, said the move would involve all administrative personnel, in Washington and the field, with the exception of a "small number of policy-making positions."

Step Is Mandatory

He said the step was mandatory under a Presidential order approved June 24, and that he heartily endorsed it. It was announced that non-competitive examinations were being given the employees.

Senator Byrnes, South Carolina Democrat, chairman of a special Senate committee on relief, said that Civil Service provisions prohibiting political activity by Federal employees would apply to W. P. A. employees as soon as they were installed under Civil Service.

Asked if he believed this would end the activity within the W. P. A. which was sharply criticized by the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee yesterday, Byrnes replied:

"That is a question that will be put entirely up to the Civil Service Commission. If it enforces the law, the law will be effective, and if it does not, it will be ineffective."

Holiday Toll Set At 327

The Nation's violent death toll over the New Year's week end stood at 327 Tuesday as compared with more than 500 for the 1938 Christmas holidays.

At least 200 fatalities resulted from automobile collisions. There were numerous suicides and deaths by drowning, homicide, asphyxiation, falls and other causes. A score lost their lives in fires and several were killed in plane crashes.

The number of deaths from alcoholism was negligible.

New York led the States with fifty-two dead, of whom twenty-six died in a suicide wave in New York City. Thirty were dead in California, twenty-six in Illinois and twenty-five in New Jersey, Kentucky had five.

Paducah Gives Utility Draft Of Franchise

Paducah, Ky. —The city today handed to the Kentucky Utilities Company for study a draft of a twenty-year franchise prepared for the municipality by Dr. John Bauer, New York franchise expert.

The city's latest move brought the long-standing franchise issue to a show-down on the power company's attitude toward a permit giving the city an option to purchase the plant any time after the first five years.

R. V. Green, Paducah manager of the Kentucky Utilities Company, said he would send the franchise to the company's State headquarters at Lexington. However, he said he felt that the company's stand on Dr. Bauer's 1938 franchise, almost identical to the latest one he has drawn, will not be altered.

The power company refused to bid on Dr. Bauer's original franchise because, according to Mr. Green, the concern's attorneys held it legally could not operate under the permit in Kentucky.

Several city officials today said they believed the franchise question will be dropped temporarily if the power company refuses to bid on the Bauer franchise. The present power franchise does not expire until April, 1940.

Data Indicate Recession Is Now At An End

Washington. —That the business decline during the earlier and middle part of last year actually was only a recession rather than, as claimed by New Deal opponents, a new depression, is indicated by a study of unofficial estimates of Commerce Department authorities on the 1938 national income and the probable national income during the year just beginning.

For 1938, Government experts studying the subject believe the figure on "national income produced" will be in the neighborhood of $63,500,000,000, or the same as the actual figure for the year 1936, which was $63,000,000,000 less than the 1937 figure, but much higher than any preceding year back to 1930, when the first significant drop from the "boom days" took place and the figure was $58,300,000,000.

Bigger Income Expected

For 1939 these same Government authorities estimate, provided recent business trends continue, the national income will again climb approximately to the equivalent of the 1937 figure. They explain the pattern of the national economy is much the same as it was when the Nation was entering the peak recovery year of 1937, and much more favorable than at the outset of 1938.

If this somewhat long-range anticipation is realized it will mean that during this year, as in 1937, the national income will be higher than at any other time during the post-war period with the exception of the highly speculative period starting in January, 1925, and extending until December, 1929. In the peak year of 1929 the national income produced reached $81,100,000,000.

Four Ask For Clemency In State

Frankfort, Ky. —A fourth clemency hearing for four officers and members of the United Mine Workers of America sentenced to life imprisonment for participation in the "battle of Evans" in Harlan County May 5, 1931, was begun by Acting Governor Keen Johnson today.

Governor Chandler received a plea for Christmas pardons for the men, W. B. Jones, Chester Poore, Jim Reynolds and Al Benson, shortly before he and the Lieutenant Governor left for a Hollywood visit late in December, but said it had come too late for him to consider it. Johnson was acting chief executive today in the absence of Chandler, who is in New Orleans.

Washington. —With Adolf Hitler's chief envoy an impassive listener, President Roosevelt warned the dictator nations today that America would resist "strident ambition and brute force" in world affairs.

Addressing a dramatic joint session of Congress in the House of Representatives, the Chief Executive, with slow and deliberate emphasis, asked that that resistance be bulwarked by increased military preparedness.

And equally necessary, he said, was the elimination of class prejudices and internal dissensions through the abolition of social abuses so that a nation united in spirit might combat all threats of "military and economic" aggression from abroad.

Immediate Action Hinted

Moreover, Mr. Roosevelt hinted that immediate steps might be under consideration. He asserted that "there are many methods short of war . . . of bringing home to aggressor governments the aggressive sentiment of our own people."

Linking domestic problems with foreign policy through his plea for national unity, Mr. Roosevelt announced that the period of New Deal social and economic innovations had reached at least a pause, if not an end.

He applauded the accomplishments of the six years he has been in power and asserted the time had arrived for Congress "to improve the new machinery which we have permanently installed, provided that in the process the social usefulness of the impaired."

Spending to Continue

While the ungentled Republican ranks of Congress listened silently and a roar of approval arose from the Democratic side of the crowded House chamber, he made it amply clear that Government spending would continue, in the expectation that it would increase National income from a point at which the budget could be balanced.

Plans Made For Legion Barbecue

At the regular meeting of the American Legion next Thursday night, January 12, a barbecue will be enjoyed and a good attendance is expected. The membership of the local post of the American Legion has surpassed that of last year and officers are well pleased as much interest is being shown at the present time.

A committee for arrangements met last night and made plans for the barbecue next Thursday night. This barbecue will be free to all those who hold 1939 cards.

Paducah's Denial Of Licenses For "Fronts" Stops Gambling

Paducah, Ky. —For the first time in many years the doors of every known gambling establishment here were closed today because the city refused to issue occupational licenses to proprietors who conducted cigar and soft drink stands in front rooms of the gambling halls.

The guise under which the handbooks and lottery places operated proved to be the point which the city finally seized in its prolonged drive to rid the city of open gambling. With proprietors of all the places facing indictments on gambling charges, the city, through the board of commissioners, refused to issue 1939 occupational permits. Word today from several gambling hall operators in the lower Broadway section, was that all establishments were closed, but the proprietors intend to engage attorneys to institute legal proceedings in an effort to force the city to issue licenses.

Britain's Air Raid Precautions Under Fire

A group of British scientists attacks the Government's plan to spend $100,000,000 on steel to reinforce private homes, apartments and other buildings by making their cellars a haven of refuge during bombing raids and to construct steel huts to be buried in the backyards of cellared homes as places of comparative safety. The huts are particularly inveighed against. They are referred to as "mall order" bombproof shelters, which if not destroyed by a direct hit would "be buried beneath debris" from the collapse of neighboring houses. The whole plan is characterized as a "waste of time and money" and the only effective means of giving a high degree of protection to the civilian population are held to be communal shelters and large scale evacuation of cities.

There is no denying the fact that the Government's plan is a makeshift arrangement. Sir John Anderson, in charge of civilian defense, admitted as much when he announced it. He said that the reinforcements would not protect the people in the cellars if the house received a direct hit but that they would safeguard them from flying splinters, one cause of fatalities in air attacks. Likewise the steel huts only slightly underground would offer only partial protection.

Sir John ruled out deep bombproof shelters because of the difficulties and delays inherent in such a scheme, adding "I do not think we are prepared to adapt our civilization so as to compel a large proportion of our population to live and maintain their productive capacity in a troglodyte existence deep under ground." The troglodytes were ancient cave dwellers in Northern Africa mentioned by Herodotus and other Greek and Roman travelers.

But such shelters cannot be ruled out. Berlin is amply protected with them. Prof. J. B. S. Haldane, eminent biologist and a member of the group of scientists, made a study of the sewers and subterranean refuges which have protected the people of Madrid and he favors the troglodyte existence for Londoners, at least during bombing raids.

The Government plan is admittedly a makeshift and criticism of it was inevitable. —Courier-Journal.

the enemy at bay. The plan almost worked out, and might have had I not been too zealous in trying to field a clean hit and perhaps throw a man out at first.

• In the late innings we had a tie nothing. Dresden put a man on base, with two gone, and the next man slashed a single into right. It was a short hit, and I saw the hitter might loaf on it, and I came tearing in to get the ball and try for a play at first. It may have been smart, but it was not smart when the ball skimmed between my legs and then went trucking on into deep right. It kept going and finally wound up in a small puddle of water, and although I excavated that puddle in record time I did not prevent that hitter from making a home run, and we lost the ball game two to one.

Well, as stated, I did get better later, but I have never forgotten those two bitter games, and my face is rather red as I finish writing this.
