Circus Day Crowds In Fulton

In unity there is strength, is being demonstrated in Fulton. The Trade Day campaign started last week by our merchants is having telling effect already. Several firms who advertised special sales set things booming around this town. Our streets are being crowded with visitors and the stores filled with eager shoppers to supply their present and future needs with seasonable merchandise at money-saving prices. Each merchant is trying to outdo his neighbor in offering the best bargains and the shelves and counters are being cleaned as the buying public reaps the harvest. It's an honest-to-goodness drive to create more business, to transform Fulton into a live community of unchecked progress and prosperity with a future whose horizon shall know no clouds.

The messages they are sending out are forcefully written, ringing with true sincerity of purpose, backed with low price concessions which will inspire in the buying public a new friendliness for those who serve and aim to please. Already they have done much toward building up this community of ours of which we are proud.

A traveling salesman stopping at the Usona, Saturday afternoon, inquired when the parade would start. From the crowd on the streets he thought a circus was in town and was surprised when told the multitude was out seeking bargains advertised by Fulton merchants. He looked himself in the parade of bargain hunters. Soon he returned, all dressed up in a new summer suit with accessories to match. He was an unexpected convert, sold to the town, and left his good money with our merchants, getting value received.

This week the Roberts Clothing company, outfitters for men and boys, enlisted in the bargain war and shot out 4,000 double page bills with telling effect. Their big gun hit the bull's eye when they announced bargains in practically every store in Fulton, that's why strangers think it's circus day when viewing the crowds.

PROTECTION FOR THE HEN

Wisconsin Plans to Stop Wholesale Chicken Thefts.

Madison, Wis.—When Gov. Zimmerman attaches his signature to a bill designed to protect the hen houses of Wisconsin from raids, Badger state poultry will have been elevated to a plane now enjoyed by thoroughbred cattle and real estate, not forgetting to mention human beings.

The bill requires all buyers of poultry for market to register annually with the county clerk and to keep a record of all purchases, with a general description of the birds and the name of the seller. The aim is to trace the sales of stolen birds back to the thief, who is liable to severe penalty so that marketing will prove a risky business.

Similar protection is expected to be given poultry raisers in Illinois and Minnesota, who through repeated raids, have suffered losses of over $2,000,000. Rewards of $500 have been posted in one Wisconsin county, but as yet have failed to prove a deterrent to the marauders, who have in some instances made away with every hen in several adjoining farms as one night's work.

Theft of a dozen chickens from a roost is only "small fry" for amateurs, according to those who have suffered losses of as many as 1,000 hens or turkeys in one raid. The gangs work by drilling a hole in the wall of the henroost, through which gas is emitted to quell the disturbed inmates. It is then a matter of leisure to enter the coop, select only the fattest of the birds and cart them away by truck. Should the farmer be aroused it is also a simple matter to shove a firebrand beneath his hay mow, forcing him to abandon the chase in an effort to save his live stock. Such treatment was given Fred Gromall of Aztalan township, Jefferson county, when he surprised thieves in the act of looting his roost.

Great Meeting In Progress

The revival which has been in progress ten days at Carr's Park auditorium, has been pronounced a success by those attending. Great crowds have thronged to the tabernacle to hear the evangelistic party of Texas, which includes Dr. Alonzo Monk, Jr., general evangelist of the Methodist church, William Sisserson, personal worker and organizer of all committees, a man of wide experience in dealing with men of all walks of life. Many have said Mr. Sisserson is the power of the party in his organization of the forces for a successful campaign. Mr. Sisserson is an ex-business man of New York, but who has given his entire time the last years to his most needful field in evangelism; he also conducts services for young people of intermediate age.

Mr. Robert J. Kennedy is musical director and young people's worker. Mr. Kennedy has been trained in our best conservatories for this chosen field of evangelism in song. His solos are spiritual messages. A director of unusual ability.

Dr. Monk as an evangelist, has no equal in the southland. A graduate of Vanderbilt university, a man of pastoral experience in the south's leading Methodist churches. With these qualifications, along with some very startling recommendations by the bishops and presiding elders make him a safe man to lead the forces in any church. During the year this party has conducted 9 successful campaigns in Texas, Tennessee, Mississippi and Kentucky. Wherever they have gone, unusually good reports have followed their work. The people say the work is unusual. Not built on the sensational style, but on the constructive lines of church strengthening.

The services will continue until Sunday night, July 3. Morning services 10 a. m. Young People's services 7 p. m. Intermediate services 7 p. m. Evening evangelistic services at 8 p. m.

Miss Ivora Cantrell, of South Fulton, left last Monday for Louisville where she will take a special course in the Louisville Conservatory of Music.

For Governor

J. C. W. BECKHAM

Democratic Primary August 6, 1927

Kentucky will probably never have another opportunity to elect a Governor so thoroughly fitted by experience for this office as Governor Beckham. He has already had eight years' experience in that office, and is now in the prime of his life. In none of his campaigns has he ever made glittering promises as to what he would do. In his present announcement he made the following statement concerning promises:

"I have never been much of a believer in pre-election promises. Disappointment, rather than fulfillment, is the usual outcome of them. The zeal of the candidate too often magnifies the possibilities or purposes of his promised achievements. I shall, therefore, only promise that if I am elected Governor I shall give to the discharge of the office the best that I have in me, with an earnest and enthusiastic purpose to serve to the extent of my ability the people of Kentucky."

His former record convinces us that he is a man of deeds and holds out no false hopes. During his two former terms he accomplished the following things for the state, without increasing taxes:

- (1) He paid off an accumulated debt of $1,800,000.
- (2) He left a cash balance in the State Treasury of $1,250,000.
- (3) He collected from the Federal Government an old Civil War debt of $1,324,000, which his predecessors, from the Civil War down to his administration, had failed to do.
- (4) He built the new Capitol out of current funds.
- (5) He placed the State Penitentiary and Asylums under Central Boards of Control, and removed them from the pernicious influence of local politics.
- (6) He created the Normal School System for the training of teachers, and built the schools now located at Richmond, and Bowling Green, Ky.
- (7) He lengthened the Common School Term from five to six months.

These are a few things accomplished for the State under his two previous terms as Governor.

All of these things were done on an income of $6,500,000. The State now collects $31,000,000 annually, and, by his election, the State is assured a greater return for this sum of money than it has ever had before.

CELEBRATE AT EDGEWATER BEACH

Big Preparations Being Made for a Glorious Fourth

The big Fourth of July celebration to take place at Edgewater Beach Park on the famous and historic Reelfoot Lake is looked forward to with eager anticipation of being one of the biggest Fourth of July celebrations in its history. A 60-piece military band and a $500.00 fireworks display are advertised for the occasion and it is anticipated that ten thousand people will be in attendance. Great preparations are being made to give all who celebrate at Edgewater Beach the time of their lives.

$25.00 in prizes will be given the best divers and swimmers.

Bathing Beauty Parade
$5.00 in gold will be given to the bathing beauty queen, 3 judges to award prizes.

A pleasing feature of the occasion will be the big fish fry and barbecue. Music all day and fun and pleasure for the whole family.

Two of the South's best orchestras have been engaged to furnish music for dancing all day in the park.

Swimming races, motor boat races and row boat races will be indulged in, and provisions will also be made for those who want to try their luck fishing. Nothing will be left undone to make all have a good time.

Those in charge will have traffic cops to arrange parking space, and perfect order will be maintained throughout the day.

The big fireworks display is scheduled for 9:30 p. m. on the waters of beautiful Washout, proposed to be one of the most beautiful and dazzling in the history of Tennessee and Kentucky.

Dairy Interest Is Fulton's Hobby

For many years the City of Fulton has been quietly forging along with no particular goal in sight, just taking her toll of the good things of life as natural consequence would provide, but when January first of this year came in effect when resolutions were in order, the constructive element of Fulton citizenship came out in the open and declared themselves no longer to be content with the ordinary progress. They pledged their allegiance to a bigger and better Fulton; they increased the membership of the local Chamber of Commerce to the 150 mark and it is still growing. They raised the necessary dues to create a sufficient budget to employ a full time secretary, a Committee was appointed to employ a full time secretary who was a man of vision and executive ability to really bring dreams into a reality.

After same interviews with various individuals, a long distant call brought before the board of directors, S. S. Motley, from Southeast Missouri, who is generally known in that section as "The Southeast Missouri Booster." The interview with Motley proved to be the final interview and the task of employing a secretary was accomplished to the entire satisfaction of all concerned. Mr. Motley was immediately placed in charge of affairs of the newly revived organization. To a good many of us it appeared that he was working too slow, as we were over-much to see the immediate results of our enthusiasm, but quietly and soberly the new secretary went about his work without giving out very much information. We can now see that he was getting his proper bearings by visiting and making speeches at the city and rural schools and churches and public gatherings.

He closely measured and weighed the problems as regards the welfare of Fulton and her rural section, he finally came before the board of directors with his firm convictions that what we most needed was an agricultural revival of our rural districts, he pointed out the common ills of our city and rural districts by calling attention to the deserted farms and their all important relationship toward permanent progress to our city's general interest as well as rural welfare. Mr. Motley is a very forceful talker and stands very firmly upon his own convictions which is the key to success. While it is true he is an enthusiast, but unlike the usual type, of that character, in that he fully weighs his projects before bringing them to the attention of his people and therefore, is fully prepared to ably defend his grounds upon which he stands.

Mr. Motley was successful in converting his constituents to his pleadings and a great revival in agricultural interest was soon launched when he created a staff of four agricultural experts drawing upon the Illinois Central for two well trained men and two from the Sugar Creek Creamery Company from Danville, Ill. Mr. Motley and his staff was accompanied each night into rural Fulton by large delegations of merchants and bankers from Fulton, where the agricultural gospel was preached to the farmers throughout a radius of 20 miles at the various community centers, the lectures were accompanied with illustrated moving pictures, the program consisted of poultrying, dairying, hog raising and horticultural farming as being one of the greatest combination.

The results that follow are to the effect that the Fulton merchants are now squarely behind Mr. Motley in his agricultural diversification farming, cultural development and the bankers and professional men of the city stand ready to go their length for whatever the Chamber of Commerce wants to do. We are really doing things in a big way in Fulton, and everybody is optimistic over the prospects of a greater Fulton and a general revival in agricultural pursuits for our farmers.

PRESIDENT HARDESTY RETURNS HOME AFTER ATTENDING CONVENTION

E. C. Hardesty, president of the Lions Club of Fulton, has returned from Miami, Florida, where he represented the local club at the 11th Annual Convention of International Association of Lions Clubs, June 15 to 18.

"It was a wonderful meeting and we were royally entertained," Mr. Hardesty reports. "The people of Florida know how to welcome their guests, and extended every courtesy to visitors, possible."

Fulton was the only city in this vicinity represented at the convention. It was strictly in keeping with the progressive spirit that has firmly taken hold of our citizenship to be represented at this great gathering of thousands of representative business men.

Mr. Hardesty is not only president of the Lions Club, but also president of the Fulton Chamber of Commerce. He has Fulton at heart, and it was an opportune time to display his "boosting" qualities, and he did. He let it be known that Fulton was admirably located with important transportation facilities; that it possessed abundant resources; that its climate, educational institutions, churches and cultural development were dominant factors; surrounded by fertile fields of growing crops and dairying interests expanding. He pointed out that Fulton was centrally located and in touch with all the leading markets of the country, consequently a dominant distributing center. From a health standpoint it ranks high compared with other cities. The purity of its water is one of the things to which the citizens attribute their good health.

We don't think Mr. Hardesty overlooked telling of any of the advantages Fulton has to offer and if he exaggerated a little, we will excuse him because it is difficult to breathe the invigorating boosting atmosphere of Miami and keep in the straight narrow path. We may rest assured that Fulton was ably represented and we were fortunate in having our message of inspiration heralded at the International Convention.

Fulton has a live organization in the Lions Club and its members know how to make a noise at an opportune time, the effects of which are far reaching.

After looking over the official program of the convention held at Miami, we know it must have been a delightful treat for those who attended. Business was entwined with pleasure, and the delegates were entertained in a way to make them want to return again.

Irving L. Camp, of Johnstown, Pa., was unanimously elected president of the association; Ben A. Ruffin, of Richmond, Va., vice-president; Ray L. Riley, of Sacramento, Calif., second vice-president, and Earl W. Hodges, of New York City, third vice-president.

Des Moines, Iowa, was selected as the 1928 convention of Lions International.

AIR DRIED CLOTHES

Do you realize what it means to receive a bundle of thoroughly washed and air dried clothes from a modern power laundry?

It means that at last the only remaining barrier between the housewife and the laundryman has been broken down. Because, now the modern laundry not only washes clean whatever you choose to send, but also duplicates in every respect the method of drying that the housewife has employed for time immemorial, namely, the hanging of the washing on the old-fashioned clothes line, to bask and dry in the glorious sunshine.

The greatest development in years and years, comes to this steadily growing industry in the perfection of a natural drying process. This new method of drying by air eliminates for all time that unmistakable odor which has branded the work of the power laundry in the past.

Thousands and Thousands of Cubic Feet of Concentrated Sunshine

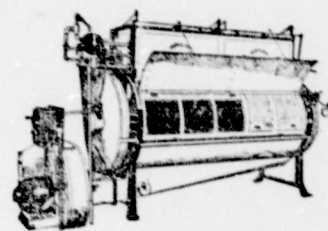

The scientific application of air as a drying agent in the power laundry is accomplished by the perfection of the Vorclone Drying Tumbler. This most wonderful machine harnesses clean fresh air in such great volumes that it almost entirely eliminates the necessity of heat to dry clothes with. It dries clothes by air, evenly and gently, ventilating them thoroughly, freeing them entirely of all lint, leaving them soft, fluffy and perfectly odorless. Clothes dried in this manner are never shrunk, discolored or left with a harsh feel.

The Vorclone Tumbler used in our laundry is the only drying tumbler that does not depend solely on heat to dry clothes; it is the missing link in an otherwise perfect laundering process. It puts the work of the power laundry on par with that of the housewife's own private laundry.

Be sure to see this wonder machine in our laundry anytime, feel and smell the clothes it dries, notice how fresh and sweet smelling they are.

THE PENCIL MAKES A FARM PAY BETTER

Farm Accounting Reveals Losing Methods and Points Way to Bigger Profits.

(From Bunker Farmer)

A farm cannot properly be called successful unless it pays a fair rate of interest on the investment and returns fair wages for the farmer's labor. Agriculture is considered by all odds the most important industry in the world, and yet in no other industry is the business end so neglected. It is common to find a farmer with an investment of fifteen to twenty thousand dollars, yet does he keep books? Perhaps he may jot down a note now and then of an important deal, but this is of no value in an analysis of his business as a whole. No other industry, however small, is carried on without books of some sort.

Farming is a business and to be successful must be conducted in a businesslike way. The business man's mind should have indelibly printed upon it two questions: What profit is my business making? How can that profit be increased? To know the latter, one must find out the former, and to find out about profits requires the keeping of books.

It is not necessary for a farmer to have a course in bookkeeping. Almost every agricultural college in the country has issued a simplified farm accounting book which it sells at cost, and only a few minutes are required each day to jot down the day's happenings.

Accounts Increase Profits
Instances number a thousandfold where farmers have profited by knowing their business. Accounts kept by nineteen farmers in Illinois led them to improve the organization and operation of their farms in ways that added approximately $650 to their average net income in 1922, the seventh year they had kept accounts.

An Iowa farmer found at the end of the first year he kept books that crops fed to livestock brought more money than when sold outright. His figures showed that his cows were poor; compared with other farms in the state, he found the number of acres cultivated per man on his farm, as well as the number of acres per horse, were below average. He rented more land and replanned his fields, so that the crop areas per man and horse were increased. He sold some of his acres and bought good cows. The second year his income from the farm, after paying all expenses and interest on the money invested, had been increased over $350.

"I have discovered," says one farm bookkeeper, "that the kind of man you have on a job, as well as the particular team, often makes quite a variation in the cost of performing certain tasks. I have learned from the pages of my book that if I could have increased the yield of my wheat field by two bushels and my corn by five bushels I would have realized a substantial profit from them."

While the farmers may not be able to fix prices on their products, they do have a voice in determining the costs of production. To reduce this cost they must first know what the costs are.

The number of farmers who are keeping books on their business has increased remarkably in recent years, but the number of businesslike farmers is woefully small when listed alongside the sum total of the farmers in the country.

Inventory is Indispensable
The basis of any system of farm accounting is the annual property list or inventory. It is the starting point of the farm records. One must take into consideration decreases or increases in the value of all property owned to gauge the progress of the business. Lacking facts as to the value of his property, no business man can form an accurate estimate of how he stands financially. Increased cash may be due to property which was sold, or increased debts may be due to improvements made. If a farmer is falling behind, the inventory will emphasize this fact. Often when a man is discouraged and thinks he is making no progress, his inventories will tell him that he is better off than he thought.

At the end of each year a financial statement is drawn off. This is the farmer's rating and no farmer with a good financial statement need fear walking into a bank and asking for a loan.

BANKERS HELP

A bank in Monrovia, Ind., tests seed corn for farmers. A basement room was fitted out last season for the purpose and 25,000 ears were tested for fifty-six farmers. One-fourth of the seed tested last year was unfit for seed. This year the percentage will run even higher. The work is done under the supervision of the high school agricultural teacher. He reports that the community will have a surplus of seed corn this year.

The banks of Conway, Ark., have offered prizes for the most marketable sweet potatoes produced on one acre of land. A first prize of $150 is offered, along with three district prizes of $50 each. The county agent and the banks are working out the details.

The County Bankers Association will help to employ a full time county leader this year for boys' and girls' club work in Calhoun, Cherokee and Buena Vista counties, Iowa.

Small Towns Lacking in Public Utilities

While 93 per cent of the small towns of America have public libraries, and while radios, automobiles, movies and other elements of enjoyment and education are almost universal, more than 40 per cent of the smaller towns are without public water, sewer systems and running water in the homes, said Mrs. John D. Sherman, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

This situation was revealed as the result of a survey recently completed under the direction of the federation, covering the urban population of the entire country and accounting for more than one-fourth of the urban population.

The total number of towns, some of which have populations as great as 10,000, which lacked all or some of the elements regarded as modern sanitary essentials, was more than 8,500. More than 4,000 towns with populations less than 5,000, said Mrs. Sherman, have no public water supply.

These towns, she said, contain more than a million homes, and the housewives in them must carry annually more than 20,000,000 tons of water from wells to the house.

Economy in Old Brick

In the construction of a house recently, a saving of $664 was effected by the use of old brick that had been acquired when an old building was razed. It was found that 18,000 bricks had gone into the house at a cost of $12 a thousand, whereas face brick would have cost about $33 a thousand. An additional saving was made in laying the old bricks, which did not have to be laid with the precision required in the laying of face brick.

Besides the monetary saving, the owners feel they have carried out better the characteristics of the type of house they were building, which was modeled on the old English cottage plan.

Planning Small House

The small house is typically American. Thousands are being built every year, many of them on the supposition that the art of small house architecture is independent of its material. Sense of proportion and the laws of structure are based in great part on the material employed.

The material, in turn, has an important bearing upon the design. Since lumber will continue to be the favorite material for small house construction, those who build small houses should be familiar with the best practices in planning and designing.

On the Funny Side

HEHEHEH!

It is supposed to have happened in a theatrical club. An actor remarked: "I am tired of the way they are casting me lately. In my last three plays I have been a dirty scoundrel."

"That's the trouble with your American idea," observed an English actor, "of casting with types."—New York Graphic.

The Example

"What a beautiful ring, Laura."

"Yes, but the engagement's broken off, dear."

"Well, aren't you going to send it back?"

"Of course; but I shall keep it long enough for the next one to see what he's expected to live up to."

Success

"There are some points about your writings that much resemble Shakespeare," said the editor.

"Do you think so?" cried the delighted author.

"Yes," the editor continued; "you employ almost the same punctuation marks."

THAT'S THAT

Know Your Child's School

Parents should visit schools for two reasons. First, to understand something of modern school methods. Second, to make the acquaintance of the teacher who is so very important in the child's life.

Much criticism of modern education is due to lack of information. Teaching methods change constantly and they usually change for the better, but some of us find it easier to criticize than to find out what is really going on.—Robert E. Simon in Children.

YOUR SPRING SUIT NEEDS
THE WRINKLES TAKEN OUT

You know what a beauty shop can do for faces—how it can remove wrinkles from cheeks and crow's feet from eyes. But did you ever visit a "beauty shop for suits"—a modern dry cleaning and sanitary pressing establishment?
Here, again, is a "fountain of youth"—this time for clothes.

For example, take one of your own suits to the O. K.
Steam Laundry—one you've worn often. If it's a light suit, the grime is plainly visible at collar and cuffs; perhaps there is a bit of grease on it from your car. If the suit is dark, the dirt may not show—but it's there. One cannot ride in automobiles and taxis, and not gather dirt.

But see what your dry cleaner, the O. K. Laundry, can do for this suit.

First, it is tumbled in warm,
drying air; the moisture is removed, the dust shaken out, obstinate spots loosened. An expert "spotter" then goes over the garment by hand—stains and spots vanish before his skill. Next the suit is soaked gently, thoroughly, back and forth, in the purest of cleaning fluids. Soil embedded in the fabric is filtered out; grime and grease are dissolved away.
After most of the moisture has been whirled out, the suit is carefully dried in a breeze of fresh, warm, sterile air, then with the warm air sifting thru it, it is fluffed softly. The nap comes to life, the cloth becomes fresh and smart again.

Nor is this dry cleaning
"magic" limited to men's suits and overcoats. Hats and gloves, women's coats, suits, dresses and blouses, children's clothes
—almost every article of wearing apparel can be given this same renewing, refreshing treatment. And how much longer clothes wear when they receive it. Truly dry cleaning pays its own bills.

Of course, we make a specialty of dry cleaning draperies, rugs, etc. Don't overlook this when you begin your Spring housecleaning—just phone 130 and we will do the rest.

Improved Uniform International Sunday School Lesson

By REV. F. M. FITZWATER, D.D., Dean,
Abraham Bible Institute of Chicago,
(© 1927 Western Newspaper Union)

Lesson for June 26

Review—Life and Letters of Peter
(Read I Peter 5:1-11).

GOLDEN TEXT—Follow me and I will make you fishers of men.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Lessons from Peter's Life.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Peter in the School of Christ.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Peter as a Leader.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Peter's Life and Work.

At best, suggestions as to the method of review have only a relative value. The individuality of the teacher, the aptitude of the pupils and the department of the school are factors which determine the best method to use. Three methods are suggested, the first two of which are in part taken from "Peloubet's Notes."

I. Peter's Characteristics.

Among the outstanding characteristics of Peter may be mentioned impetuosity, leadership, courage, cowardice, changeableness, outspokenness. These traits and others are to be found in the quarter's lessons.

II. Biographical.

The features to be stressed in this plan are Peter's early life, discipleship, and fall, restoration, preaching at Pentecost, imprisonment, writings.

III. The Summary Method.

Lesson for April 3.

Jesus had first called Peter and John to become His disciples. Afterwards he called them to become fishers of men. He first calls sinners to come to Him for salvation and then calls those who are saved to serve Him in winning others to Christ.

Lesson for April 10.

Following the feeding of the five thousand, some were disposed to compel Christ to be king. Seemingly to prevent the disciples from entanglement in this movement He sent them across the sea. From His place of prayer in the mount He saw them struggling against the storm on Lake Galilee and went to their rescue, speaking words of comfort. At his invitation Peter walked on the water, but when he took his eyes off of the Savior he began to sink.

Lesson for April 17.

To give the disciples a clear conception of His person, to prepare them for the dark hour of the cross, Jesus put to them two questions, "Who do men say I am?" (R. V.) "Who say ye that I am?" (R. V.) One's conception of Christ's person determines his character and his service.

Lesson for April 24.

To revive the crushed hopes of the disciples and to show them how the kingdom was to be realized, Christ was transfigured before them.

Lesson for May 1.

Peter's downfall began when he refused to hear about the cross. The steps in his downfall were self-confidence, sleeping at the post of duty, lack of prayer, zeal without knowledge, following Christ afar off, warming himself at the enemy's fire and open denial. The look of Jesus brought him to repentance.

Lesson for May 8.

Upon word of Mary that the Lord's tomb was empty, Peter and John hurriedly made an investigation. After Jesus had shown Himself to be alive by many infallible proofs He commissioned Peter. Resurrection must be beyond a peradventure before there can be missionary effort.

Lesson for May 15.

Fifty days after Christ ascended the Holy Spirit was poured out. When the promise of the Father was sent the disciples were empowered for witnessing of Christ.

Lesson for May 22.

In the power of the Holy Spirit Peter wrought miracles and witnessed for Christ with such power that great numbers were added unto the church.

Lesson for May 29.

After Pentecost Peter, who had cowered before a Jewish maid and shamefully denied his Lord, witnessed for Christ in spite of persecution.

Lesson for June 5.

In keeping with Christ's command to witness to the ends of the earth, the missionary program had so widened as to include the Gentiles. Cornelius, a prominent Gentile of good reputation among the Jews, was used of God to break down the middle wall of partition.

Lesson for June 12.

Peter was imprisoned for preaching the gospel. A great crisis was upon the church. The church prayed and God sent an angel to deliver Peter.

Lesson for June 19.

Though Christians are sojourners in the earth they have responsibilities as citizens. They should be obedient to the laws of the country.

Lay Plans For More Good Roads

(Hickman Courier)

With the gravel road to Fulton practically complete, and work to start on the bottom road next week, there is developing a widespread demand that the Fiscal Court lay out definite plan of spending the $100,000 still remaining of the bond issue, so that as many miles of hard surface roads as possible can be built this year.

County Judge C. D. Nugent, one of our foremost boosters for good roads, told The Courier in an interview yesterday that the road to Fulton would be finished this week, that work on the gravel road through the bottom would start at once and that the maintenance department of the State Highway Department would likely fix the road from the city line to the Tyler place immediately after their new funds became available on July 1, which is the beginning of the department's fiscal year.

Judge Nugent said there was nothing to the rumor that N. E. Stone & Co. would build the road from Wolberton's Store to the Hickman county line before they build the bottom road. With good weather it is expected the bottom road can be built in a little of two months.

Speaking of the $100,000 available for building hard roads in the county, Judge Nugent said that the Fiscal Court had already appropriated $6,000 apiece for each magistrate to build roads in his district this year. He said he believed that if the farmers living along the various roads would furnish the hauling that the $100,000 could be made to build between 40 and 50 miles of good gravel road, as the county already has machinery to grade and drain and ditch the roads, and along the Dyersburg road there are several gravel pits that could be used at a great saving.

The farmers along the Dyersburg road have already shown great initiative and are going to gravel that road as soon as possible, the county to furnish the gravel, to drain, ditch and grade the road, etc. If the farmers along every road would do this, form a sort of organization to do the work and present their plans to the Fiscal Court, Judge Nugent said he felt the court would agree to lay down a complete program of county roads that would embrace every part of the county and get most of our people out of the mud before another winter.

For instance, such a plan might be laid out as follows: The Dyersburg road from Hickman to the state line seven miles; the middle road to Fulton, 16 miles; the Troy road to the state line, seven miles; the Dresden road to connect with the Tennessee hard road, seven miles; from the bottom road to Number Nine Lake, two miles, and from the bottom road to Miller, Ledford and Bondurant, three miles. This would make a total of 42 miles, and leaves some leeway for a few bridges or a few more miles of roads to connect up, planning on a five inch gravel road at $1,200 or $1,500 a mile. This could only be done, however, if all the hauling is donated, the Judge pointed out.

Judge Nugent believes the state can be persuaded to take over the Dresden road as a state road next year, and that would relieve the county of considerable maintenance and would also mean the state would improve the road to state standards. This, of course, would be up to our representatives in Frankfort in the next Legislature. Public opinion throughout the county seems to be in favor of the county proceeding to build as many miles of gravel roads as they can themselves with this $100,000 as soon as possible. It is generally

John Deere 999 Corn Planter with Pea Attachment

We can furnish this planter with the most simple pea attachment ever designed—it can be put in place or removed without disturbing the regular corn planter parts or the fertilizer attachment when it also is used. We can also furnish a spout attachment for drilling only, which plants the peas shallower than the corn. When buying a corn planter, remember the John Deere No. 999 is noted for its accurate "Natural Drop"—instant change, hilling to drilling or back to hilling; instant variable drop—2, 3 or 4 kernels per hill as desired; nine different drilling distances from one set of plates, convenient underhung reel, absolutely automatic marker, tip-over hoppers and other conveniences.

Come in and ask us to show you the John Deere No. 999 Corn Planter with this pea attachment.

Young Farmer Has Tragic End

Ted Mason, 23, Dies Under Tractor In Graves County

One of the most tragic accidents in the history of Graves county was that of last Friday morning which cost Ted Mason, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Mason, prominent residents of the Panther Creek section, about nine miles east of Mayfield, his life.

Young Mason was running a tractor on the farm of his father, with whom he resided, and was pulling a disc harrow. The ground was wet and soggy, and his tractor stalled in the mire. Putting all the power he could command to the machine to pull out of the mire, young Mason attempted to extricate the machine. Instead, the tractor reared on its hind wheels and fell backward on the young man before he could leap to safety, killing him instantly.

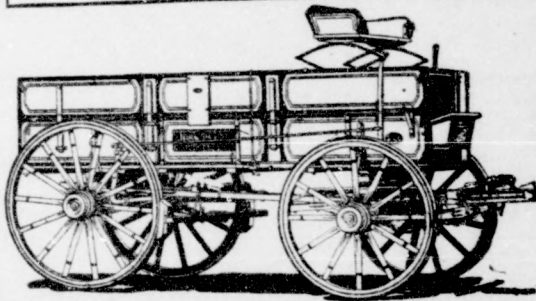

Three team of mules were hitched to the machine in an effort to move it, but they were not sufficient. The tractor of L. F. Mason was then summoned.

Vice President Dawes Opens New Lake Michigan Harbor

Vice President Charles G. Dawes, last week, following the official vice-presidential salute of 19 guns, raised the flag over Buffalo Harbor, Indiana, thus signifying the formal opening to navigation of the first private harbor to be built on Lake Michigan in twenty years, and one of only three such harbors on the Great Lakes.

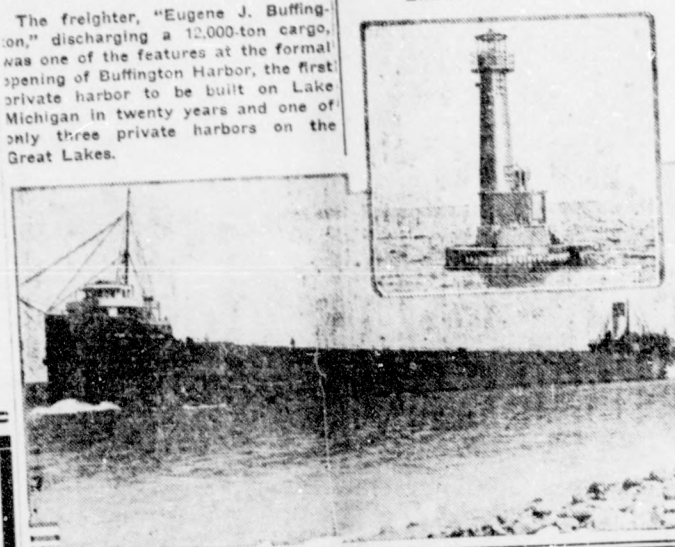

Vice President Charles G. Dawes, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, E. J. Huntington, president of the Illinois Steel Company, B. F. Adcock, president of the Universal Portland Cement Company, and a number of other notables took part in the ceremonies.

This new deep-water harbor, located at the plant of the Universal company, is said to be one of the most modern on the Great Lakes, there being a large boat-unloading bridge, a million-ton storage yard for raw materials, an electrically operated conveyor nearly a mile long to carry material from dock to cement plant, and an all-concrete lighthouse with one of the brightest beacons on Lake Michigan.

The new improvement adds impetus to the deep-waterway movement and the further enlargement of lake traffic, and enables the cement company to receive by boat and store large quantities of raw materials and to ship cement by water as well as by rail to all points on the Great Lakes and the Mississippi Valley.

FINE REGISTERED HOLSTEIN BULL ADDED TO MORRIS' HERD

E. W. Morris, progressive farmer of Fulton county, residing two miles west of Fulton, was in town Saturday, exhibiting his fine registered Holstein bull, which he purchased of Hargrove & Arnold, of Norwalk, Iowa. It was a fine looking animal, one year old, with a pedigree two miles and a half long. His name is King Dekd Ormsby; his sire, King Pieter-tje; dam, Belle Dekol, a 30 to 35 pound butter cow in seven days.

Mr. Morris paid $300 for the animal and was determined to get the best to be associated with his four purebred Holstein cows. Hargrove & Arnold, the breeders, make a specialty of Holstein cattle and never fail to capture the honors and attract attention wherever they put on an exhibition. They have already been awarded 570 first prizes on their cattle, and we venture to say that Mr. Morris will capture first prize at the Fulton county fair this fall with his Holstein herd of cattle.

DRIVE FOR MEMBERS

Secretary Watkins, of the Poultry Association, is making a drive for membership in the Association. The dues for one year is $1.00 and every one is eligible to become a member.

The Poultry Association has done wonders in making Fulton's show the best in West Kentucky or West Tennessee, with the exception of the Tri-State Fair show at Memphis.

The expenses of the show are borne by the dollar dues, donated by the loyal boosters of Fulton. One of the hardest doses for a man who is able to donate the dollar to turn this proposition down for such a small sum.

Mr. Watkins is devoting his time to push the show and should have the hearty co-operation of all good boosters, whether you raise chickens or even eat them.

The special cash prizes given by the Poultry Association, are in addition to any money paid by the Fair Association, and has been instrumental in making the show better each year.

When you are called upon for your membership don't turn him down, but boost his show to the amount of one dollar, it is well spent.

Mr. McGehee reports too much rain for wheat and the yield is light but quality is fairly good.

Telephone Service improves while Calls increase

THE new telephones added to the Bell system in Kentucky last year and the extensions made have greatly increased the value and scope of the service.

This growth is reflected in the increasing number of calls handled daily by the operators, who are responding cheerfully to your needs and maintaining quick and courteous service.

In Kentucky, alone, it is estimated that the operating forces handled more than 270,000,000 originating local calls and 2,650,000 long distance messages last year. This was an average of $19,450 local calls and 6,220 toll calls per day; an increase of more than six per cent over the previous year.

That such an enormous volume of calls is handled, day in and day out so efficiently as to win general public commendation, is due to the loyal efforts of 1,708 highly trained operating room employees who serve you.

Your considerate cooperation encourages the telephone workers in their determination to continue the high grade service to which you are accustomed.

New Adult Hospital Is Assured Memphis

B. B. Jones, former Fulton citizen and brother-in-law of Harry Ekdahl, gives $200,000 for Memphis hospital.

The Memphis Commercial Appeal says:

Donation of a strip of land just south of the Hospital for Crippled Children and the gift of $200,000 by B. B. Jones, Washington philanthropist, have made possible the first unit of a new hospital for crippled adults here.

Building of the hospital will mean that many adult patients in Mississippi, Tennessee, Arkansas, Missouri and Alabama, who have heretofore been denied treatment that would restore them to gainful occupations, will be brought here for this treatment. Since all this work is charity work, paid for either by state and federal funds or funds from organizations working with civilian rehabilitation workers, it means that every citizen rehabilitated here means another self-supporting citizen for the tri-states.

The adults' hospital will be built on the unit plan, the money secured from Mr. Jones being used to erect the first unit. It is expected that this unit will contain 50 beds, an operating room and other necessary hospital rooms. From time to time in the future as conditions demand and money is available this unit will be added to.

Mr. Jones originally made the offer of $200,000 contingent upon the raising of an equal amount by the management of the hospital. Since the flood conditions in the South have caused a heavy drain on the resources of the section he has altered his offer so as to make the gift without the requirements. Within the past few years, Mr. Jones, a native of Attala County Miss., has evidenced an active interest in civilian rehabilitation and educational in the tri-states, especially in his native state. He is the founder of the Field Co-Operative Association, an organization that has enabled hundreds of worthy Mississippians to obtain college educations.

Cull Low Grades of Tobacco In Patch

The best place to cull out low grades of tobacco is in the patch, E. C. Vaughn, field agent of University of Kentucky, says in urging farmers to give more attention to the raising of better grades of tobacco.

"Why cultivate plants that obviously will never mature?" he says. "Get rid of these plants as soon as they show their lack of worth and give their time and space to good tobacco."

"Fewer acres, a smaller number of pounds, a better quality of tobacco more carefully handled—all of these contribute to the tobacco grower's success."

POULTRY

PROPER PLAN FOR RAISING TURKEYS

Turkey hens, chicken hens and incubators are commonly used to incubate turkey eggs. During the early part of the laying season it often happens that one has on hand a number of eggs that should be incubated before any of the turkey hens are through laying their first litter and become "broody." In such case, and also when it is desired that the turkey hens lay more than one litter, some of the eggs have to be incubated under chicken hens or in an incubator. About a week before the poults are due to hatch, turkey hens enough should be allowed to sit to take all the poults hatched. They can be given a few eggs from the incubator or from under the chicken hens and allowed to hatch the poults themselves, or at night a newly hatched poult can be slipped under each turkey hen that is to be given a brood of poults and by morning she will be glad to take them.

Lies are a great annoyance to sitting hens and are one of the worst enemies of young poults. To prevent their getting a foothold, dust the hen thoroughly with some good live powder before she is placed on the nest and once a week thereafter while she is sitting. The nesting material should be kept clean, and if the eggs become dirty they should be washed with lukewarm water.

If the weather is warm and dry no shelter is required, as the poults do better in the open. Should it be rainy, however, they need to be protected, for nothing is more injurious than for them to become wet and chilled. The most satisfactory plan is to confine the mother turkey hen to a coop and allow the poults to run in and out whenever rain does not prevent. This coop should be placed in a field where they can run out and find grasshoppers, green vegetation, and other feed. The coop should be moved to fresh ground every day.

Turkey Hen Hunts Nest Long Before She Lays

Long before she is ready to lay, the turkey hen goes nest hunting. She steps lightly here and there, peering into dark corners, into empty barrels and boxes. When she is ready to lay she goes direct to the nest she has chosen, and settles down. If we want our turkeys to lay in convenient places near by where there can be no question as to the ownership of the eggs, then convenient nests for turkey hens should be put out, and the hens allowed to find them.

When the turkey becomes broody, like a chicken hen, she should be allowed to sit on the nest for two or three days before she is given her clutch of eggs. While she is on her term of probation, dust her with sodium fluoride under each wing, around the thigh joint, over the back, under the body and around the vent.

Do not give her too many eggs. From fifteen to twenty are enough. Chicken hens are inquisitive creatures. If the turkey nest is within reach of their prowlings, they will disturb her; if necessary to shut the turkey hen in, she should be released at the same time, preferably in the evening, for food and exercise. The period of incubation is twenty-eight days. Fresh eggs will pip a little earlier than the older eggs.

Various Kinds of Green Feeds Good for Poultry

Good kinds of green feeds are sprouted oats, alfalfa meal, chopped alfalfa and clover hay, cabbages and mangel beets. In ordinary collared cabbages do not keep so well as mangel beets, so they should be used up first. Cabbages may be hung up in the poultry house; the beets are usually split and stuck on a nail in the side wall of the pen about a foot above the ground. Vegetables which have been frozen can be thawed out and fed to fowls, but do not keep well after thawing. Clover and alfalfa may be fed as hay, cut into one-quarter or one-half inch lengths, or they may be bought in the form of meal.

Oats and barley for sprouting are soaked overnight in warm water and then spread out from one-half to one inch thick on trays having perforated bottoms and put into an oat sprouter. Water the oats thoroughly and turn the trays around once daily to promote even sprouting. Artificial heat should be supplied in cool weather by the use of a kerosene lamp or by some other means. Use a good grade of oats and allow a square inch of sprouted oats surface per hen daily, feeding these sprouted oats on the floor of the poultry house or in the yard. Feed the sprouted grain at any time after sprouting.

Dry Hay for Hens

A measure full of dry hay shatterings or a wire rack consisting of a piece of poultry netting tacked to the chicken house wall and kept filled with the greener, more leafy bunches of hay will give the hens something to work at all day. It keeps the hens busy and satisfied, and it gives you a big amount of satisfaction to see the increase in the number of eggs gathered.

It is surprising what a quantity of the hay the hens can and will consume in this way.

Community Building

Small Towns Taking Pride in Appearance

According to the municipal experts of various kinds the era of the small city and town is arriving. It is now seen that a city can actually grow bigger than is good for it, and some authorities are claiming that the great metropolis will in time arrive at the stage where it will be impossible physically to grow, in extent of territory at least.

There are perhaps many reasons why the smaller community is coming into its own.

The city or town with muddy streets is rarely found in this day of good roads and automobiles. Civic pride has grown in the smaller as well as the larger cities. Ramshackle buildings are being eliminated everywhere, and the smaller communities now have fine public buildings, including adequate schools and libraries, up-to-date hospitals, and so on. They are all coming to have fine parks, too, parks that would do credit to some of the largest cities of the country.

Yes, the era of the smaller city has arrived. Ours is one of them. It's one of the best places in America to live. Why not all pull together to make it even better? If it's good enough to raise our children in it's good enough to boost. —Rushville Republican.

Making Country Life Attractive to Youth

Now that good roads are becoming more common and traffic between cities and country districts has become easier, it has been suggested that money should be set aside by the legislatures so that traveling motion picture shows can frequently visit small places.

The suggestion has also been made that the state ought to organize various country clubs in which young people can meet and enjoy the amenities of social life.

Probably no other single agency is as likely to allure city people to country life as such an assembling of farm cattle and produce of the choicest kinds as was evident at the royal winter fair in Toronto.

Certainly nothing is more likely to stir up country people to the emulation which is a full step better than contentment with their lot, than the view the royal fair afforded of what judges of the highest reputation have decided were the best of their kind in fruits, vegetables, grains, swine, poultry, sheep, cattle and horses.

Half the time it is simply ignorance only dissipated by costly experience that keeps people off the land in, and sends others to the cities. —Montreal Family Herald.

Small Town's Advantage

There is more than one privilege and pleasure about living in a small town. One of them is in going in your shirt sleeves; another is in sitting on the shady side of a business house in the summer time and the sunny side in the winter. If you want to speak to a friend three blocks away, you can carry on a loud, hollering conversation; you can always find a place to park; you can turn around in the middle of the block; you have a lot of friends, and when you are with one of them you can talk about all the balance; you can keep up with everybody else's business except your own, and many, many others, but they are too numerous to mention. —Gaffney Ledger.

Property Manager's Value

"The Value of the Property Manager to the Community" was the subject of a talk before the property management division of the Detroit Real Estate board by Carlton Schultz of Cleveland, chairman of the property management division of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

"The property manager," Mr. Schultz said, "through his knowledge of operating costs of any type of property, gives a service to the owner that in the end pays him a greater return on his investment than he can usually receive by personal management."

If all properties were placed under the control of competent management firms the public would find a more stabilized condition in rents."

Duty to Schools

Let us all remember our duty to the schools. The best teacher in the country needs the sympathetic cooperation of his patrons. The more cooperation the better will be the school, and the greater will be the opportunity for the boys and girls. —Shelby County (Ala.) Reporter.

Unnecessary Mortgages

A farm heavily infested with noxious weeds is already mortgaged. Just as a poorly managed business in town is mortgaged. Mortgages are being made more than they can be repaid. Avoid the mortgage, no matter what line you are in, or what walk of life you follow. —Atchison Globe.

Paint Is Cleanliness

Cleanliness is the prerequisite in the work of making a healthful home, and to accomplish this much is made of paint.

Difficult to Decorate

New Plaster on Walls

Not many types of surface are so difficult to finish as the plaster wall. There are, however, a few fundamental reasons for failure, the correction of which will do away with a large percentage of plaster painting troubles.

Much of the trouble results from painting a newly plastered wall before it has thoroughly seasoned or dried out. No plaster wall should be painted under any circumstances while it is still green. Six or eight months should be allowed for drying, and a year is still better. During this time the walls should remain without covering of any sort. If the property owner is not willing to wait this length of time, emphasize the fact that the job is done at his own risk. The usual result is that the active alkali in the damp plaster acts upon the paint vehicle; the paint film softens and finally comes off.

Itemizes Cost of Each Trade on a Building

Following completion of a three-story brick apartment building, a Chicago contractor compiled a table showing the proportions of individual costs to the total construction.

The total cost of 35 cents a cubic foot is divided, according to percentage, as follows:

Excavating 2, masonry 30, carpentry and mill work 33 1/3, roofing 1, plastering 7, plumbing 9, heating 6, electric work 1, tile work 1, sheet metal 0.5, painting and decorating 4, glazing 1, miscellaneous iron 0.5, finished hardware 1, cleaning and painting up 0.1, electric fixtures 1, shades 0.33, screens 0.5.

Approximately the same ratio applies to other buildings used for dwelling purposes, we are told.

Applying Wall Paper

If walls have been calcimined one will have to wash this off with water or a solution of vinegar and water, to neutralize the alkalinity of the lime before applying wall paper. Then give the walls a coat of "size," let it dry, then you can apply the paper with assurance that it will not peel off. Use a good flour or cornstarch paste, or you can buy a paste prepared for the purpose.

ALONG LIFE'S TRAIL

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

GEORGE'S WIFE

EVERYONE admitted that George had made a great success. He had come from humble parentage, he had worked his way through college, he had started at the bottom with a firm of which he was now a member, and now at forty-five he was looked upon as the leading man in town. He was a member of every worthwhile organization in the community, he was a part of every important local gathering—social, political or religious—and his advice was sought and followed on every hand.

There was no doubt but that George had made good. He had finessed, he was always well dressed, he had made money, he had influence, he was acknowledged to be a great man.

People were a little uncertain about George's wife, but on the whole they hardly considered her his equal. She was a shy, unobtrusive person who said little, who seldom went out, who belonged to no clubs, and who shone with a very dim light when contrasted with George's brilliant appearance. A good many people were rather inclined to be sorry for George and to wonder how he came to tie up with so ordinary a partner.

"Isn't it unfortunate," I heard a shallow society woman remark one day, "that George Clauson married such a commonplace wife? If he had gotten the right sort of woman there is no limit to what he might have accomplished."

But she was judging by appearances and did not really know much about George's wife, for she was quite as busy as her husband. It was she who took all the responsibility for the management of their household affairs; she looked after their three children; she saw that the house was quiet and orderly when George came home, for he was often tired and irritable from the strain of the active life he led, and he had to have his rest and proper food, and a good deal of personal attention when he was in the house.

It was George's wife who looked up references for him when he was to make a speech, who packed his bag when he was going on a trip, who relieved him of all the petty burdens which weigh most men down in every household, who urged him on from one success to another, and who when he was discouraged dragged him out of the slough of despond and set him on his feet again.

It was, in fact, George's wife who was mainly responsible for the success of the Clauson family, only the public didn't know it. She was quite satisfied to have the secret pride and satisfaction, as many women are, while George got the glory.

The Smoke of Victory

By ROSE MEREDITH

MRS. HENRY DUCKWORTH sat in her especially deep chair on the front veranda of the Myrtle Inn where she had spent many comfortable summer vacations. Her granddaughter, Amy Delorme, who attended her this year, was playing tennis with the particular young man who was her grandmother's bete noir, Ralph Eriek. Ralph was a college graduate, and heir to his grandfather Mallot's wealth—he was young, handsome, and just the sort of a young man that grandmothers usually delight in—he had one defect in Mrs. Duckworth's eyes, and that defect disquieted him entirely from falling in love with her favorite granddaughter, Amy. —for Ralph was the adored grandson of old Colonel Mallot, he who had been granny's declared lover once upon a time, in ages past.

"Shall we go and confess to your granny?" whispered Ralph to Amy, as they sauntered back to the hotel after tennis.

Amy blushed charmingly. "Not now, dearest," she objected. "I must break the news to granny—and I don't know how she will take it—you see, it just happens that she doesn't like you a bit—why?"

"Answer is, grandma," replied Ralph cheerfully.

"How perfectly silly!" exclaimed Amy giggling. "Just fancy, people as old as they are—caring!"

Ralph looked down at her quizzical. "Shan't you care about me when I am sixty or more?" he demanded bluntly.

"Of course I will!" protested his fiancée warmly indignant, and then seeing the twinkle in his blue eyes, she blushed beautifully.

"Who was that young man?" demanded Mrs. Duckworth suddenly as Amy entered the piazza and joined her granny.

"That was Ralph Eriek, granny."

"You like him?"

Amy blushed furiously. "Very much," she admitted.

"And does he like you?"

"I think so, granny."

"Humph! Nice state of affairs—I suppose he is a helpless idiot—rich man's heir—good for nothing!"

"But granny, dear, Ralph has worked his way through college—he wouldn't take one cent from his own people," protested Amy.

"Humph! Don't let him fall in love with you," warned Mrs. Duckworth severely. "If you marry anybody that I do not approve, Amy, I shall cut you off with a shilling and leave every penny to the Sailor's home."

Amy Delorme dallied over her dressing for dinner that evening—it was so delightful to sit down and dream a little about Ralph Eriek. She thought about her grandmother and old Colonel Mallot. Were not that old couple a horrible example of lovers separated in youth? Even now, in their old age, they might find some solace together—so dreamed Amy.

"How wonderfully happy we would all be," she sighed, as she tapped on Mrs. Duckworth's door, and then pushed the door wide open.

"You look like a pink carnation, Amy," said grandmother, who had been day-dreaming herself.

"Well, you look very captivating," said Amy, her eyes dancing.

The old lady's eyes glanced at the girl's pinkness, her air of joyousness, and she sighed sharply. It was so easy to be happy when young—so difficult to grasp it when one was old and rheumatic. She wondered where Lucien Mallot was—someone had remarked that he lived on that large estate next door to the hotel.

They were halfway down the front stairs when that cry of fire came from the upper story—as they paused, uncertainly, the dining rooms gave up a crowd of diners, all pointing out of the front door. Amy caught a glimpse of old Colonel Mallot who looked up the stairs at his old love, Mrs. Duckworth. In an instant he was fighting the crowd to reach her.

"Maria! Just lean on me, my dear. There, I will take care of you," and Maria Duckworth, forgetting all about her pretty granddaughter, leaned limply against his shoulder and they moved down the stairway. Alone, Amy thought of their valuables, and fairly flew up the wide stairway to their room—her grandmother's dressing case—her own case, smaller, was not far away—granny's favorite fur cloak and a bottle of smelling salts—staggering under this burden, Amy met Ralph.

"Darling! Give me those things—now, you!" and Amy fainted in his grasp.

Granny and Colonel Mallot sat under the trees hand in hand, blissfully smiling, and when Ralph appeared with his burdens, it was the colonel who arose and helped him. The little girl—ah, she looks very much as you did, Maria!"

"Amy! Hand me my smelling salts, young man! It was like her to think of me at such a time—there, my dear, here we all are, and Colonel Mallot is going to take us to his place in his car—is this your grandson?—I have heard Amy speak of him—I am very grateful to you for saving my granddaughter, Ralph—of course—of course!"

"Gee whiz!" exclaimed Ralph joyously, "here is our car—Mrs. Duckworth, may I escort you—"

Colonel Mallot pushed him aside. "Look after your little girl, Ralph," he said with dignity. "I am attending Mrs. Duckworth myself!"

ALONG LIFE'S TRAIL

GETTING THINGS DONE

GETTING things done is a matter of habit, just like parting the hair in the middle or going to church. Foster never could get things done.

When the Foster house was built the carpenter had neglected to drive a nail securely into a bit of molding on the stairway, but had left the head protruding and the strip of molding insecurely attached. Mrs. Foster had more than once torn a jagged rent in her gown when it caught on the offending nail head as she swished down stairs.

"I wish you'd drive that nail in, John," Mrs. Foster said over and over again to her husband. She was herself more skillful with the powder puff than with the hammer. And Foster had meant to do it, but he never got at it. When he thought of it the hammer was in the garage, and when he had the hammer in his hand he did not think of it.

The house had been built twenty-five years when one morning Mrs. Foster heard hammering on the stairway. Her husband was doing something.

"What is the matter, John?" she inquired.

"I'm fixing this infernal nail," was his reply. He had torn his trousers on it as he was coming down stairs and had been stirred sufficiently—it was a good pair of trousers—to wander out to the garage for the hammer.

He had reached a crisis and had at last got the job done, but there lay in the wake of his neglect wrecked clothing and damaged tempers and domestic discontent.

"If it were done when 'tis done, then 'twere well 'twere done quickly," MacBeth or his more aggressive wife once said, and that was a point of view which Foster never seemed to learn. He did his business as he fixed the molding on the stairway—that is, he always intended to do it, but there was always with him delay, hesitation, procrastination, and at fifty he found himself pretty much a failure.

The fact that it had taken him twenty-five years to drive a nail into the wall was an index of the way he did business generally. He was one of those good-natured, well-intentioned fellows who always meant to do things, but who never reached accomplishment.

Most of us are in Foster's class. We mean to join the church, or get our lives insured, or have the children vaccinated, or quit smoking, but we don't like the minister, or haven't the ready money, or don't realize just how bad tobacco is for the health. It is an other case of the hammer being in the garage when we want it.

"What thou doest, do quickly," is pretty good advice.

Lucky Aunt May

"Mummy, has Aunt Betty got a little baby?"

"Yes, dear."

"Has Aunt May?"

"No, she has a little dog instead."

"Oh, I suppose she had first pick." —Progressive Grocer.

They Come High

"This stove would suit me perfectly," said the thresome customer, "but it is too low. I would have to stoop every time I worked over it."

"Well, madam," said the weary clerk, "what you want is a mountain range." —Good Hardware.

A Troublesome Memory

"You look annoyed tonight, professor. What is troubling you?"

"Oh, it's my memory that's playing me tricks. There was something I wanted to fret about and I've forgotten what it is."

THOUGHT HE HAD MORE

Hubby—I've come to the conclusion you married me because you thought I had a little wealth!

Wife—Wrong again—I thought you had a good deal.

Pure Breds Pay

Contentment shines upon the brow of Farmer Brown. Says he, "I used to keep scrub cows, but now my pure bred cows keep me."

Why He Got the Flute

"How do you like your new room?"

"All right, except that the man in the flat below is learning to play the flute."

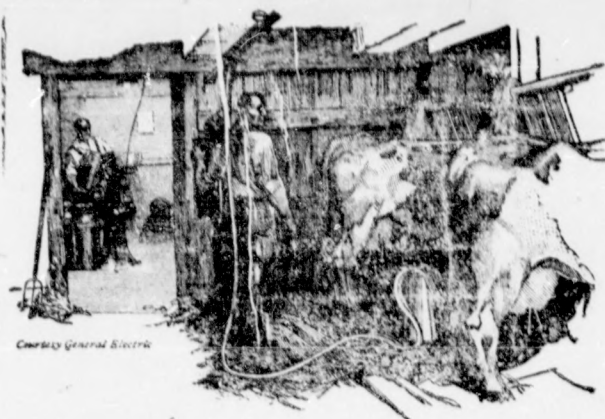

"You ought to get a saxophone."

"I did; that's why he got the flute."

From the Ground Up

"And you say you guarantee these canaries?"

"Guarantee them? Why, madam, I raised them from canary seed!" —Brown Joke.

More cows without more help

If you could milk and tend more cows without increasing your labor costs, it would pay you to get them.

Electric milkers, cream separators, feed grinders, and water pumps are just a few of the labor-saving devices electricity is bringing to farms.

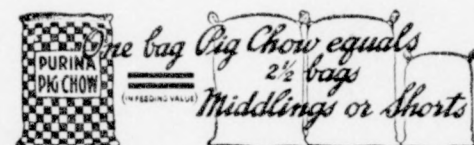

To make electricity pay its biggest dividends you need more than a power line. You need expert advice.
