KENTUCKY COUNTIES BECOMING "DEBT CONSCIOUS," SEWELL SAYS

State Inspector and Examiner, Nat B. Sewell, who is in charge of auditing county books under the Kentucky county audit law that became effective July 1, 1934, finds the counties are becoming "debt conscious," as a result of the audits, and nearly all are reducing their indebtedness. Records in his office show that 13 counties of the state have no bonded indebtedness, and of these, six are operating on a cash basis, with no indebtedness except of a temporary nature.

Mr. Sewell estimates that the net financial gain for all counties, based on figures now available, would be around $3,500,000 for the year.

928 CLUB CALVES ON FEED

Nine hundred and twenty-eight 4-H club calves are being fed in Kentucky for the 15th annual fat stock show to be held at the Bourbon Stock Yards in Louisville in November. M. S. Garside, state agent in charge of the project, said he expected to have at least 50 carloads of finished cattle at the show. This is the largest number of 4-H club calves ever fed in the state, exceeding any previous record by several hundred head. Calves are being finished in 30 counties, 10 counties entering the project for the first time this year.

At least 150 calves were home-produced, that is born on the farms where they are being fed. Club members are encouraged to raise them. They also are encouraged to use as much home-grown feed as possible.

Playing Safe!

Have you ever heard the story of the man who bought a lock for his barn—the morning after his mule had been stolen. We must admit that he was "playing safe" for the next time, at least.

But Housewives have a different idea to that in their baking. They never wait for calamities to happen, and then rush down to buy a good brand of flour. Most of them are convinced from the start that it pays to buy nothing but the BEST.

So, assure yourself that you are "playing safe" in your baking by using:

ONWARD KENTUCKY EXPOSITION

The News appeals to every interested citizen in the advancement of Kentucky and its people to assist in the constructive work of the Onward Kentucky Movement.

The Onward Kentucky Exposition which will be held in Frankfort June 5-6-7, 1936, in the State Capitol Building, free to the public, is designed to give to every talented man, woman and child in the state the opportunity of exhibiting his product and to receive comments and criticisms, as to its adaptability to be sold to tourists and in other markets of the Nation.

The exposition is a part of the program of the Onward Kentucky Movement, which was organized in Danville in May 1935, for the purpose of creating small coordinated industries in the various counties of Kentucky, by the establishment of County Industrial Foundations. These County Foundations will be progressive in capital structure and raised very similar to the manner in which Community Chests are raised. The County Foundation will differ in this respect, that its capital is conserved and each year by a State-wide Foundation Campaign, substantial sums are added to the amount previously raised. In years to come, it will represent a bulwark for the independence of our people and in times of depression will provide work rather than dole.

The Exposition at Frankfort will reveal many clever articles which may be manufactured in these small industries and in homes throughout the state. It seems not unreasonable to believe that as the plan develops and markets are created and extended hundreds of Kentuckians will become independent wage earners and contented citizens, enjoying the privilege of earning a living through the expression of natural aptitude and talent.

Up in the mountains is a blacksmith who fills the long gaps between the calls for horse shoes by making hand-forged fireplace pieces, hinges, weather vanes and so on.

He makes them for a small fraction of what you pay in the forges along the Boston Post Road for less beautiful iron work. He is unknown to you and the wrought iron article from New England, and the talented Kentucky iron worker seeks relief in order to support his family. The calls for horse shoes are few.

Over in the Purchase is a woman whose patchwork quilting is more exquisite than any offered in the shops of New York—but she has no connection with the purchaser who can afford to pay what a hand-made quilt is worth.

Down in the Big Sandy Valley is a woman who is remarkably clever at making mats and brushes and dolls of corn-shucks. Up in Mason County, a woman weaves carpets of beautifully blended rag strips. Not far from her is a woman who was impelled by necessity and ingenuity to carve a doll for her little girl from the roots of a persimmon tree. Every one who has seen the doll wants one like it. If more people could see it, she would have a badly needed self-supporting business. The same story may be told of the Blue Grass, Pennyrile and the Barrens.

The Onward Kentucky Exposition is to bring out the ingenuities and latent talent of our people and to make a study of what they can produce and to standardize these products and create a State and National Market for same.

Attractive State prizes are offered in three divisions: Home Crafts and Novel Arts division, Cookery Arts division and Old Kentucky Hams. If you know how to make an ingenious article of any kind, or prepare an attractive food product or cure what you consider Kentucky's best ham, arrange at once to enter this exhibit. If you know of others who have creative ability, see that their products are entered.

Full particulars of the Exposition may be secured by addressing the Onward Kentucky Exposition, Care Kentucky Progress Commission, Frankfort, Kentucky.

The News urges the citizens of the surrounding counties to enter their exhibits and make their county showing outstanding.

We can make our beloved State ring with happiness and prosperity if we accept "The Challenge."

"Onward Kentucky!"

Let not inertia-cold indifference—These invest!

Thy beauty, growth and usefulness need exercise—Not rest."

CLEAN-UP AND DECORATE

Official clean-up week has been set for this week, and all over the city, rubbish is being removed and premises being made more presentable. A little paint here and there is beautifying many buildings and homes. When the Clean-up drive is finished Fulton should look much better to visitors and the people at home themselves.

Immediately after this week of clean-up, Sunday, May 17 has been set aside as Decoration Day, because there is a profusion and variety of spring flowers in bloom now. Many people of this community will visit the last resting places of loved ones, to pay tribute and respect to those who have passed on to that happier clime.

Last Sunday was Mother's Day when mothers were honored throughout the nation. While every day should be Mother's Day, for the mother here, or in heaven, away one day each year we set apart for the mother we love with all our heart.

HICKMAN COUNTY TERRACING EQUIPMENT READY FOR WORK

A letter has just been received from Leroy Northington, County Agent of Hickman County, and D. L. Reark, Camp Supt., at Clinton, saying that they were ready to come to Fulton County and do terracing work and build terrace outlets. This work can begin at once if farmers want the work done at this time.

There have been about 230 acres of land terraced with the power equipment in Hickman County at an average cost of $1.45 per acre. This is a very reasonable cost to the farmer and since the C. C. C. Camp Engineers will survey the terrace lines and build dams and outlets at no cost to the farmer except the expense of the material used.

This New Soil Conservation program will pay 10 cents per hundred feet of terrace that is done in 1936, provided this does not run over $2.00 per acre and the farmer is cooperating in the Soil Conservation Program this year.

Agreements are in the County Agent's office ready to be prepared for farmers who are interested in doing some terracing immediately. If more information is wanted either call or write the County Agent.

COUNTY AGENT'S NOTES

Only ten tons of lime is needed in order to have a 40-ton car delivered at Crutcheville at once. There is a possibility that the price of lime will advance about July 1st, so if you plan to use some lime after that time it might be advisable to order soon.

Some of the Tobacco Contract Signers that have sold their entire crop of tobacco have not turned in their allotment cards and this should be done as soon as possible.

Owners of herds of cattle that have not been tested for Bangs Disease will probably be interested in knowing that this work can be done at once now as the men are available. This is a good time to clean the herd of this disease.

Even though chicks are growing nicely and weigh two pounds, they should be fed all the growing mash they will eat in order for the pullets to develop and be ready to lay early this fall.

Have you noticed any small holes in your fences? If so, some mesquite artemisia should be sprayed or dusted on the under side of the leaves of the plants.

A letter and questionnaire has been sent to all Farm Bureau Members in order to learn if there is an interest in more phones, in order for the telephone company to establish a free service line between Hickman and Fulton.

CAST GLORIFIES DESERT DRAMA

The sands of Sabara's flame with revolt and France's Foreign Legion fights and loves with gallantry again in 20th Century's "Under Two Flags," the tremendous drama spectacle which brings Ronald Colman, Claudette Colbert, Victor McLaglen and Rosalind Russell to the screen of the Orpheum Theatre on Sunday, May 24th for only two days.

The thundering climax shows a Legion attack, headed by Miss Colbert rescues Colman from the clutches of the Arabs.

Frank Lloyd directed this mammoth undertaking which employed ten thousand extras in the making. Gregory Ratoff, Nigel Bruce, C. Henry Gordon and Herbert Mundin are only a few of the illustrious names that grace the supporting cast of this Darryl F. Zanuck production.

CHICKS NEED FEEDER SPACE

Be sure chicks have plenty of room at the feeder, for rapid growth and uniform development are highly desirable, suggests Stanley Catton of the Kentucky College of Agriculture. One inch of feeder space per chick is sufficient for the first two or three weeks. Then the space should be increased to 1 1/2 to 2 inches. At four weeks, the chick is three times as big as it was when hatched. Do not starve the chicks by keeping them away from the feed, says Mr. Catton. They are fed to grow. A table set for 100 chicks won't do for 200.

45 YEARS OF DEPENDABLE SERVICE

FOR 45 YEARS, most all of the time I have been selling Groceries to the good people of Fulton and surrounding country. I have at all times done my best to please the trade, both in QUALITY and PRICE. During that time I have seen profits drop from 10 to 50%, to an average of 10 to 15%. So you can see that no man can compete with cash stores and sell on credit. It is compelled to sell some higher or sell for cash.

Due to that fact, I have decided to sell for CASH ONLY!

One King Dead, Next?
One Lynched; One Jumped
Hitler Picks Successor
Three Kinds of Gold

King Fund, King of Egypt, dead means nothing to 130,000,000 Americans or to 15,000,000,000 other human beings on earth. It means much to England, ruler of Egypt, now obliged to find another king to "behave himself, do as England says," and hold down Egypt's anti-British hatred.

A mob seized Lint Shaw, fifty-year-old negro, and lynched him on "the usual charge," not waiting for a trial. Joe Bowers, sentenced to 25 years for mail robbery, locked in the island fortress of Alcatraz, tried to escape by climbing ten feet of plain wire, two feet of barbed wire, and jumping down a 90-foot cliff into the water. He climbed while sharpshooter guards pumped bullets into him, and jumped down the cliff. Asked when "booked" at Alcatraz, "Who is to be notified if you die?" Bowers replied: "Nobody; nobody cares whether I die or not."

Hitler apparently has chosen his successor "in case," in the person of Air Minister Goering, now made "assistant dictator," with control of two great German problems of raw materials and foreign exchange. In New York, 175 naval cadets from the German cruiser Emden, name well remembered from the war, explore the city, guarded by detectives in case of hostile demonstrations. Commercial boycotts of Germany, organized in New York, have done more harm to the Nazi government than could be done by any mob attack on German cadets.

California possesses "three kinds of gold": yellow gold, of which there is plenty left in the ground; "black gold," which is the oil in lakes thousands of feet down, and the "white gold," water from the mountains, first used to develop power, then to irrigate crops. Another gold, more important than those three, combined, is the gold of education. Driving through this country, if you see a particularly fine building, tall columns, wide grounds, fields for healthy play, that is a public school. Once it would have been the prison or feudal castle. You see another building, almost as impressive as the high school. That is a public library. The accumulated knowledge of the world is free.

Mrs. Grace Warren Dubois, sixty-two years old, was allowed to keep her seat while the judge sentenced her to life imprisonment for killing her son. Ordinarily convicts must stand for sentence. It is said she thought her family "too aristocratic" to live in such times as these, and wished to kill them all. Another son testified against her.

Newsboys cry "What do you read?" The Niagara of books pouring from the presses, a vast majority forgotten as they are born, make many ask "What shall I read?" Of the books that every one must know, many are unnecessarily long, will not be read, and need condensation, in this day of newspapers, moving pictures, and radio.

If some publisher would issue a "bookshelf," squeezed down from 12 feet to 2 feet, that would be useful.

Paris perceives that following recent elections extreme radicals will be powerful in the new chamber, and those that have money left begin panicking. Bank of France shares drop violently, meaning lack of confidence in government stability, with fear of war in all minds.

The last war knocked the franc from 19 cents to 4 cents. What would another war do?

When stock gambling starts, it moves rapidly. Since March last year, stock prices have gone up 60 per cent, business has increased 18 per cent, employment only 5 per cent. Not much cheerfulness in that.

Since last March the New York Stock exchange "values" have increased by twenty thousand million dollars. Excellent "bait" for the ignorant.

New Jersey citizens dropped from relief invade legislative halls, camp out, sleep on the floor, promise to remain until New Jersey supplies money and food.

Twining township, New Jersey, with 8,000 population, taking 450 families off the dole, told them officially to go out and beg. Begging being illegal, each family was provided with a begging license. That may be called "economic relief."

Tokyo worries about Russia "plotting a war against Japan," but no plotting is necessary. Russia knows the location of every Japanese city, town and factory. It would be necessary only to declare war and start dropping bombs, particularly bombs that spread fire.

Starting a war for foreign countries is as easy as "shooting up a gambling game" among our racketeers; no secrecy or plotting necessary.

Washington.—One swallow does not make a summer nor does one statement, even though from a high official, make a condition absolute. But one statement from a high official under the present New Deal relief setup comes rather close to disclosing the transcendent importance of the nation's relief problem in American economy at this time.

I refer to the recent testimony by Harry A. Hopkins, Works Progress Administrator and professional reliever, before the house committee on appropriations. He told that group a few days ago that 3,853,000 heads of families or unattached persons were receiving a livelihood for themselves and their families from the federal government on March first of this year. If this be true, and it can hardly be disproved, there are nearly fifteen million persons dependent directly upon federal assistance. And the condition appears even worse when it is shown that about ten million others are receiving assistance from state, county and city relief or charitable organizations. In short, the Hopkins testimony reveals that about twenty per cent of all of our people are living on relief money.

These figures are astounding. They are made the more amazing when one considers that the condition exists even after the New Deal has expended approximately twenty-one billions in its three years of government management, the bulk of the outgo being directly chargeable to what Mr. Roosevelt has consistently maintained was an emergency.

I have reported to you intermittently heretofore the various stages through which Reliever Hopkins has gone in his search for means to solve the relief problem. I have been among those observers here who have felt that even though Mr. Hopkins lacks practical experience in commercial life and even though he casts aside every consideration except those inherent in the minds of a man who has devoted his life professionally to relief work, that he should be given time to solve the problem. It seems to me, however, that he has had ample time to find the answer if he is ever going to provide a solution. Neither he nor President Roosevelt has given any indication yet that they know the answer or even have a clue to it. The net result of their efforts to date has been the expenditure of money in unprecedented amounts and the piling up of a debt, the like of which this country never has known.

Mr. Hopkins has gone about his job snugly and with that apparent complacency that characterizes the official who is convinced that he alone is equipped to do a particular job. By his attitude, he has created in congress a feeling that he thinks he is a superior being and if anything makes a congressman hot under the collar, it is to see a member of the executive branch exhibit a pose that the congressmen are dumbbells. Some of them are, of course, but that is not true of all and it is fast doing Mr. Hopkins no good at all to show arrogance towards the men who go out and campaign directly for the votes of the people.

I said that the relief problem was of transcendent importance in governmental affairs at this time. That is true because I believe the conviction is growing that the whole New Deal policy on relief is impractical and visionary; that it is founded upon a wrong psychology; that it is creating in the nation the greatest mass of paupers and "the world owes me a living" type or class of individuals that has ever existed anywhere and that, in addition the men who are doing the job for the federal government lack the ability to understand its whole significance.

As proof of the observations I have just stated, let me point out how the demands for vast expenditures of money and wholesale methods of relief for the destitute have subsided in congress. Time was when a half dozen so-called welfare workers, college professors or organization leaders could get a hearing by the simple crook of a finger before a congressional committee. Such men as Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, and Senator Costigan of Colorado, and the late Senator Cutting of New Mexico, to mention only a few, would sweep sally tears in senate speeches; they would call for ten billions for this and five billions for that and other billions for other things and shout that people were starving in the midst of plenty.

And they were starving in the midst of plenty, but the shouting and the tumult raised by these political saviors did not provide a solution for the problem. I have a hunch that the silence of such men as these through the last year can mean only that they now see they were off on the wrong foot. They cannot help but realize that their theories were all wet, because Mr. Hopkins certainly has disproved the value of their plans.

Another indication of how congress feels is the movement to divide the billion and a half relief fund, which President Roosevelt asked, between Mr. Hopkins and Public Works Administrator Ickes. The President demanded that congress give the whole fund to Mr. Hopkins. It probably will work out that way eventually but the feeling against Mr. Hopkins cannot be denied. It is violent and only a small part of it has come to the surface.

Where will it all end?
The answer to this relief problem is not now near enough to hazard a guess.

Let us go back for a brief review. When President Roosevelt took hold of the relief problem early in his administration, he advanced two theories. They were to solve our problems and solve them quickly. He urged the NRA and the PWA, which with the AAA, formed the first battalion of the alphabetical army. The NRA was designed to regiment business and indirectly force re-employment by the shortening of hours and the spread of work. The PWA was to provide a lot of construction jobs immediately, giving work to those not absorbed in private commerce and industry and thus take up the slack until buying power of individuals had been restored.

By November, 1933, it became quite evident to unbiased observers that NRA and PWA were falling short of the mark. So, out of the Presidential hat came the CWA. Congress promptly provided funds so the Civil Works Administration—and here is where professional reliever, Mr. Hopkins, came on the scene—could hire unemployed who had not been absorbed by PWA or had not been restored to jobs in commerce and industry by NRA.

It was no long until CWA was as much in disrepute as the original schemes for providing employment. I believe it was in even greater disrepute because ordinary citizens could see the utter waste and the reckless expenditures of money occurring under CWA for its relief raking and stone gathering and other nonsensical job-creating results. CWA went the way of any unsound proposition.

Forward then came FERA. It was a proposition of emergency relief. Washington writers were deluged with speeches and statements that none should be allowed to starve. The spigots of the treasury were opened wide and $4,880,000,000 gushed forth. In every section of the country, federal money was distributed and distributors in Washington were none too careful of how they passed it out. In parallel lines with FERA, the politicians formed to the right. They saw the money and from predict to pinnacle of politics, they were on the job and they have been on the job ever since.

Last year, the President became convinced that there was too much waste; that FERA was building up a clientele of millions who were saying, both publicly and privately, that it was no use to work when the government would feed them and he ordered a quick change in course.

With this change in course came a locking of horns between Messrs. Hopkins and Ickes. Mr. Ickes was licked by the simple expedient of a new federal agency. Founding forth came Mr. Hopkins' own brain child, WPA. While it stands for Works Progress Administration, a different name, the initials, to those who have studied the situation, spell FERA and CWA combined.

The President announced to the country that "this business of relief must end." Those who could not be employed must be taken care of by the states and local governments and those who were employable would be taken off relief but they must do work for the funds which the federal government passed out to them. The result has been a considerable mess and there is not a day goes by that congressional mail does not reveal cruel results, absolute destitution and hardship and privation unparalleled in the United States.

Where will it all end?

Italy Takes Addis Ababa; the Emperor Flees

EMPEROR HAILE SELASSIE of Ethiopia gave up the hopeless fight against the Italian invaders and fled from Addis Ababa with his family.

Mussolini's victorious troops soon after marched into the capital, the first to enter being a picked regiment representing all units of the Italian army, the Aslari, infantry, artillery, air force, engineers, grenadiers, bersaglieri, Alpini, cavalry, marines and Fascist militia-men.

Their coming was welcomed by the foreigners who remained in the city, for as soon as the negus left, the natives began to pillage, plunder and burn. The business center of the town was speedily wrecked and the government buildings were stormed and razed, these including the treasury from which the state's store of gold was stolen, and the armory. The streets were strewn with corpses and the Ethiopians, armed by liquor, rushed about shooting at random and gathering up their loot to carry it to the hills.

Only one foreigner was reported killed. That was Mrs. N. A. Stadlin, American wife of an Adventist missionary, who was struck by a stray bullet. Nearly all other foreigners were gathered in the well fortified British legation, but American Minister Cornelius Van H. Eggert with his wife and the male members of the staff remained in the American compound. They were armed only with rifles and pistols and were under orders from Secretary of State Hull not to risk their lives uselessly; but they were determined to hold the legation and radio station as long as possible. This plucky little group was attacked repeatedly by marauders but repulsed all onslaughts. Mr. Eggert was in wireless communication with Washington. The British legation offered to send a detachment of Sikhs to escort the Americans to the British compound, but Mr. Eggert declined to leave his legation at that time. Next day he and his staff evacuated the compound.

Haile Selassie went by train to Djibouti, French Somaliland, and was received with all honors at the governor's palace. He and his family boarded the British cruiser Enterprise and sailed for Palestine.

At first it was rumored the French would hold him for a time, but later advice said the French and British governments had decided that he remained a sovereign and must have full liberty of movement.

So ends the military part of Mussolini's African adventure, a success despite the opposition of the League of Nations and the imposition of economic and financial penalties. The duke announced the victory to his country from the chamber of deputies and there was wild rejoicing throughout Italy. It is taken for granted Mussolini will set up an Amharic state in part of Ethiopia under a puppet emperor; and presumably Italy, France and Great Britain will get together and determine their respective zones of influence in the ancient empire. The humiliated league can do nothing except lift the existing sanctions, which proved futile in halting the war. British Foreign Minister Eden and his fellows in the government must admit as gracefully as possible their failure to check Mussolini and get what they can for Britain out of the African tragedy. France probably is not sorry over the outcome, for her opposition to the duke's ambitious scheme always was half-hearted.

Vandenberg's Name Is to Be Presented

SENATOR ARTHUR H. VANDENBERG of Michigan has asked Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald of that state to present his name to the Republican convention in Cleveland for the Presidential nomination, but the senator insists this does not make him an active candidate.

"The Michigan state convention generously instructed the Michigan delegation in Cleveland to present my name," the senator said, "but the delegation is unpledged—at my request. It is free to vote as it pleases. I have not sought a delegation here or elsewhere and I shall not do so. I have not sought the nomination and shall not do so. My situation is not changed in the slightest."

Friends of Senator Borah in Utah tried unsuccessfully for a Borah pledged delegation from that state. The Republican state convention in Ogden voted to send an unpledged group to the resolutions committee.

The Arkansas delegation also will be unpledged, though the state convention approved an "expression of good will" toward Gov. Alf Landau,

Col. Henry Breckenridge, who offered himself to the Democrats as a Presidential nominee, aspirant merely as that disaffected member of the party might have some place to go, received about one-seventh of the votes in the Maryland preference primary. The rest, of course, went to Mr. Roosevelt. Colonel Breckenridge had made no campaign.

Radicals Control French Chamber of Deputies

FINAL elections in France put complete control of the chamber of deputies in the hands of the revolutionary "Popular Front," a coalition of Communists, Socialists, Radical Socialists and minor left wing groups. The new chamber does not meet until June, and the confusion is so great that there are fears of chaos and financial panic in the interim. Many believe the Popular Front will be unable to form a stable government to succeed that of Premier Sarraut. The lead must be taken by the Socialists, for they now form the largest group in the chamber with 140 seats. The Communists have 115, the Socialists 72 and minor left parties 41. The National bloc, including center and right parties opposed to the leftists, have 236 seats.

Senator Hastings Will Not Seek Re-election

DANIEL O. HASTINGS, senator from Delaware, chairman of the Republican senatorial campaign committee and outspoken opponent of the New Deal, will not seek re-election when his present term expires. He so announced in a letter to the party leaders of his state, giving as his reason the necessity to devote himself to his law practice. This may have influenced his decision, but it is more than suspected that the real reason was the fact that the du Pont family, all-powerful in Delaware Republican politics, had decided that the senatorial seat should go to Gov. C. Douglas Buck, who is related to the du Ponts by marriage. Senator Hastings has always been ready and eloquent in defense of the du Ponts against attacks by the New Dealers.

Navy Expansion Measure Passed by the House

SINCE international naval disarmament efforts have failed, those who advocate adequate national defense rejoice in the passage by the house of the bill appropriating approximately $31,000,000 to build our navy up to treaty strength. Representative Mare Antonio of New York and a few others put up loud opposition, but a record vote was not necessary. The objectors dwell especially on a clause authorizing the laying of keels for two 35,000-ton battleships after January 1, 1937, should any foreign signatory to the London naval treaty start a battleship replacement program. Two days later they might have read dispatches from London saying rumors had reached there that Japan was considering laying down a 35,000-ton battleship armed with 21-inch guns.

Appropriations in the bill, along with other available funds, will give the navy a total of $502,237,807 for the next fiscal year, starting July 1.

Business Men Differ With Mr. Roper

DANIEL C. ROPER, secretary of commerce, appeared before the Chamber of Commerce of the United States at its annual meeting in Washington and warned its members, most of whom are persistent critics, of New Deal policies, that unless private enterprise takes up the slack in employment, business must pay the relief bill out of earnings.

"It is the responsibility of all business and industrial enterprises," said Roper, "and not of one particular segment of the government to increase its efforts for greater employment. If a substantial measure of increased re-employment does not take place the taxation for relief purposes will come largely from business earnings. There must be re-employment or a longer period of increased taxation."

Roper admitted that the administration had fostered bureaucracy, but insisted that it was occasioned by an emergency, and responsibility for its increase again lay at the door of private business.

Various members of the chamber replied spiritedly. Roy C. Osmond, vice president of the First National bank of Chicago, predicted that if the administration embarked on a sound fiscal program that would inspire confidence, business would make rapid strides toward recovery. He criticized the pending tax on corporate earnings as impracticable and a brake on business expansion and stability.

The body of the New Firestone High Speed Tire is made from selected long-staple cotton dipped in liquid rubber, absorbing eight pounds of rubber in every hundred pounds of cotton. This patented Gum-Dipping process insulates every fiber in every cotton cord, preventing internal friction which creates the heat so destructive to tire life, and giving to the tire added strength.

RACING drivers will not take chances on any tire except a Firestone Gum-Dipped Tire in the grueling Indianapolis 500-Mile Race, where its greater blowout protection has been repeatedly demonstrated.

Ab Jenkins, the famous driver, used Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires on his 3000-mile run over the Salt Beds of Utah, which he covered in 23½ hours—a record of 127 miles per hour. He has driven more than a million miles on Firestone Tires, in every state in the union, on all kinds of roads, in all kinds of traffic, without tire failure or accident of any kind. What a tribute to safe, dependable, economical tire equipment.

When you drive at today's higher speeds, your life and the lives of others are largely dependent upon the degree of safety built into the tires of your car. Take no chances—equip your car with new Firestone High Speed Tires today and be sure of the safest driving equipment money can buy.

This heavy, broad, traction and non-skid tread is held to the cord body of the tire with Two Extra Layers of Gum-Dipped Cord, a patented construction, making the cord body and tread an inseparable unit.

A leading university in 2350 tire tests has found that the new, scientifically designed Firestone High Speed tread stops a car up to 25% quicker. Its super-traction and non-skid efficiency have also been proved in the famous Pike's Peak Race where for eight consecutive years it has been used on the winning cars.

Seeress Reports Tent Theft; Saw Thugs in Crystal Glass

Madame Lula Paia of Auburn, Calif., gypsy fortune teller, told the sheriff her tent had been stolen.

"Why didn't you look in the crystal ball and learn who took it?" she was asked.

"I did," she replied. "It was taken about 3 a. m. by 15 men whose names I didn't get. I was angry and put the Romany curse on them, but out of kindness of heart removed it and decided to report the case to the sheriff."

SYNOPSIS

Bryn (James Brynildson III), a tall, bronzed young man of wealth, and his chum, Tubby Forbes, are discussing Bryn's coming marriage. Tubby believes it a scheme to get Bryn's wealth from him. Should the girl, Deborah, whom Bryn had met at the office of his attorney, Ted Holworthy, marry Stuart Graham before her twenty-first birthday, she will inherit a vast fortune from her grandfather, Stuart, had greatly displeased Deborah, who refuses to marry him. Bryn, posing as an unemployed engineer, offers to marry Deborah, as Stuart, for $50,000, they not to live as man and wife. Twenty-three years previous, Anne Larned had eloped with an adventurer on the day set for her wedding to Courtney Graham. Two days after the birth of her daughter, Anne died. Shortly after, the father died. The Larneds, grandparents, took the child with them to Oregon where, without child companions, Deborah grew up. To safeguard her from some fortune hunter, her grandfather had arranged for her to marry Stuart, son of Courtney Graham, when of age, believing the alliance would be a happy one. When Deborah was fifteen, her grandfather died. Securities had been set aside to keep the family, but a market crash left scarcely enough for them to live on. This was unknown to Deborah's grandmother, an invalid, Gary, a servant, managing the finances. At twenty, the thought of marriage greatly frightened Deborah. It had been planned that Deborah meet Stuart in Frisco, where they were to be married. Tubby and Bryn await Deborah in a hotel in Frisco. Over a period of one year the groom is to prove he is no fortune hunter and can make Deborah happy to the satisfaction of her grandmother. Otherwise the fortune is to go to charity. The will is somewhat ambiguous as to whom Deborah is to marry. The girl arrives with Holworthy. Tubby is surprised to find her charming and sweet. The wedding over, the couple arrives at the home of Deborah's grandmother. The grandmother and Bryn, who she believes to be Stuart, take to one another, which somewhat displeases Deborah, who foresees difficulty when they are to separate after a year.

"No objections, my dear. The silver rooms were always intended for you, but you preferred to be near me rather than in the south wing alone. Go along, my darling, and perhaps after a little I will follow your example. The excitement and the happiness have quite tired me out."

Deborah went across the room and through the door. She wanted to stamp and kick and scream. This must be how a rabbit felt when it was caught in a snare. She went on, up the long curving staircase, down the corridor into the south wing, through the second door on the right. Inside was a sitting room, with walls paneled in silver, with rugs and chairs and curtains done in deep violet. There was a huge four-poster bed against the inner wall, with a beautiful violet and tarnished-silver spread upon it, and a low silver bowl of violets on a little table at one side. And, at the foot of the bed, was a man's heavy pigskin bag, as yet unopened.

She went across to it and lifted it with a vicious jerk. It was heavy. She went through the bedroom and the sitting room to the corridor. She put the bag down with a thump on the floor outside the door, pulled the sitting room door shut with a bang and shot the bolt.

CHAPTER III

There were high spiked iron gates at the end of the weed-grown drive. Bryn leaned his shoulders against them, took his silver case out thoughtfully and lit a cigarette.

There is a moment in every day among the mountains when afternoon is definitely over and evening has come. Her dusky silent presence is as real as the moon and stars will be when night falls later on. It is made known to the watcher by a change in the quality of the sunlight, as if a silvery veil had fallen suddenly across the sky.

Bryn recalled that in the last ten miles of narrow, almost impassable road, they had passed but one other dwelling, a small tumble-down shack on a patch of rocky, unkempt mountainside; there, presumably, belonged the boy and the dog he could hear in the distance; the only neighbors.

He turned and walked slowly up the dark path toward the house. The birds outside Bryn's window awakened him very early; the morning air was still night-cold and fresh when he yawned, stretched, put his hands behind his head and listened for a moment or two to the long involved scoldings and chatterings of a bird family. Bryn threw back his quilts and sprang out of bed.

A few minutes later, in his white shirt and gray knickerbockers he closed his door noiselessly and tiptoed down the hall past the door which must be Deborah's, since it was the only closed one along the corridor. Gary, who was obviously in Deborah's confidence, had been most reluctant even to give Bryn a room in this wing, but it couldn't be helped, since Mrs. Larned herself was in the north wing.

Bryn stepped out over the puff of dew-laden grass at the foot of the stairs to the wide red uneven stones of the path. He thrust his hands in his pockets and sauntered along the side of the south wing and around the end. He was facing the mountain now; there was still a little broken wreath of mist around the top. Between him and the forest, at the back of the stretch of park land, he could see the serrated rows of the orchard trees, and a clear flat space beside it which appeared to be a garden. He followed the narrow beaten path, hedged with drooping wet grass, across to the corner of the orchard. He came to a stop beneath a cherry tree whose topmost boughs were still laden down with heavy fruit. Bryn regarded it. He put a foot on a low branch and swung himself up into the tree as far as the heavier branches would take him.

The cherry tree, being on the side of the hill, was a vantage point. Below him the house, smothered in its ivy, lay without a sign of habitation. Beyond it the brook was marked out by the double line of weeping willows which had been planted on its banks, but no glint of water came through the green to prove its existence.

Directly ahead lay a gentle slope of meadow; and as Bryn's eyes fell upon it he caught quite distinctly a flash of blue across the green.

He blinked, started at it, stretched himself incautiously to make sure of what he saw. It had most certainly been a gown. He climbed down hastily from the tree and started off across the garden.

He came at last into the natural clearing which had once been the bottom of the stream; it was dotted over with clumps of small bushes, covered with a carpet of green velvet. He stopped and surveyed it for a moment before his eyes caught again that blue flash... ah, there she was.

Deborah was kneeling on the side of a little knoll, with a round blue bowl beside her. For a moment she did not see him approaching, so intent was she on her task. She was picking wild strawberries, leaning forward to separate them from their stems, dropping them one by one into the bowl. She was dressed in a short-sleeved blue dress, perhaps a little faded, but still extremely becoming.

She looked up, startled, her eyes wide and dark.

"Good-morning," Bryn offered cheerfully. "Did something happen to your clock, or do you usually get up at half-past five?"

She dropped a berry into the bowl. She lifted her stained little finger-tips and looked at them. "I usually get up," she replied.

Bryn dropped down comfortably on the grass a yard away.

She gathered her skirts together around her knees, rose, and moved farther away. "I don't think there are any berries left where you are," she remarked. "But you ought to look before you get down on the ground."

"I did look," Bryn replied. "You may not have seen me, Deborah, but I looked. My eye is very quick. I pride myself on it. To see one of nature's jewels shining among the dank and ugly grasses is one of the things I'm best at."

Across the knoll she regarded him steadily. "It sounds very poetic," she said at last.

"Deborah," Bryn began.

The color flashed back into her cheeks. "Must you call me that?" she demanded. "I didn't ask you to call me that. You haven't any right."

"I was about to discuss that very question myself," Bryn replied. "I was about to ask you if we couldn't come to some sort of compromise."

"Compromise?"

"We got on very well on the trip up here. You didn't seem to mistrust me. But after we got here—yesterday at lunch, and last night at dinner, and in the drawing room later—you must admit it was difficult."

She lifted her chin. "You were so familiar," she said proudly.

"Familiar?" he repeated.

"I don't think it was necessary. You... you talked as if... you looked at me... you... and you put your arm around Grandmother when you said good night. I saw you."

"I couldn't help it," Bryn said mournfully. "She's a very nice grandmother, after all, isn't she? And I never saw one like her before. If you can imagine it, Deborah, I never had a grandmother of my own."

"I didn't like it. I won't have it. It's bad enough to... to deceive her at all, but I have to do that for her own good. I have to do what I've done... and told her about... him, then we'd have had to tell her everything. How poor we are, and how desperate. And she would worry so much about me it would kill her. There wouldn't be anything ahead. This way, there's at least the money, and by the end of the year... but I won't take advantage of her. I can't bear to have you making so much of her when you don't mean it, when you're not honest."

"Don't you believe in love at first sight, Deborah?"

She sprang up and faced him. "That's what Gary said you'd start talking about next," she accused. "I think you might have better taste. If nothing else!"

"I suppose he compared me to a leech. I suppose he couldn't understand that a young man could enter into a business agreement with a young lady on perfectly clear and straightforward grounds, emotion having no part thereof?"

She raised her eyes. "Just a minute ago you started talking about... love at first sight!"

"My child, I was speaking of your grandmother. I intended to explain that my feeling for her was, in spite of your assumption to the contrary, honest. I was about to mention her gentleness, and her delicacy, and a few other qualities which would give the heart of a stone image, and to explain to you that any feeling of tenderness which I displayed toward her was quite sincere."

Uncommon Sense

A Country Doctor

He thinks that he is retired. Always from the time of his graduation from Yale and later from a medical school he has looked forward to the time when he could play a little golf, do a little reading, which he has lacked the time to do, and perhaps just sit around his office and talk with congenial friends who gather there.

Two or three times a month I stop in at his office and talk to him. Never have I called but the telephone has rung.

Sometimes a man working in the shipyard has been badly hurt, and the boss on the job refuses to have anyone but my "retired friend" attend to his injuries.

Sometimes a woman "up country" whose offspring he has always brought into the world, is going to have a baby. Nobody but Doctor Jim is wanted.

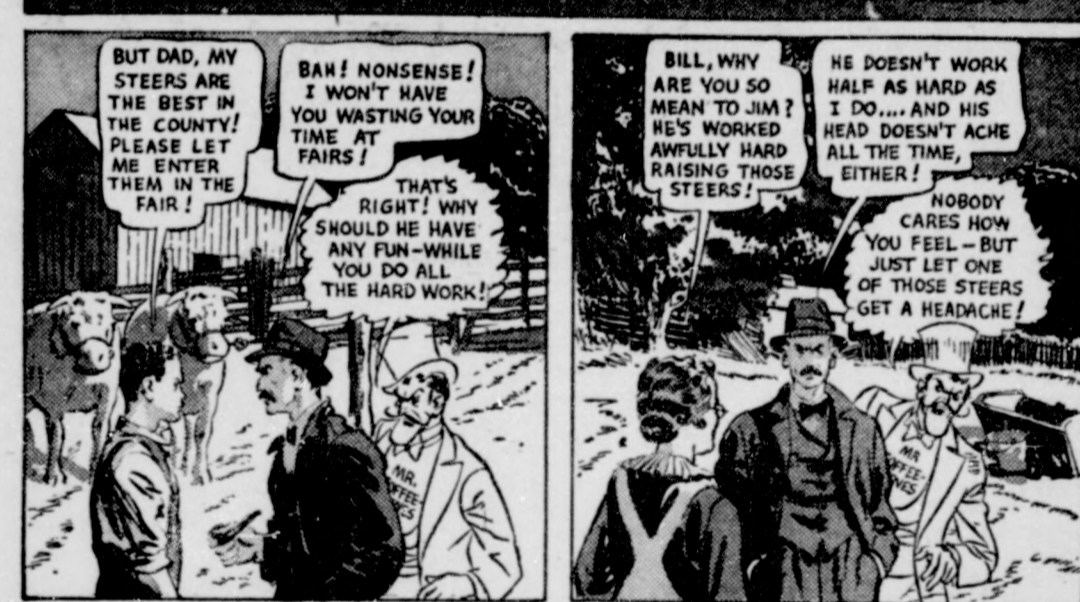

Every now and then, if there are no calls, he drops in to see some of his poor and elderly patients, who will pay him—"when they can."

When he gets a little time to rest he goes to the big city where some of his fellow physicians are practicing, and brushes up on some of the new methods of treating disease.

He has saved a little money, I know.

But his purse is always available to former patients who are out of jobs.

DAD'S THE REAL WINNER!

"SPARK OF LIFE" IS ELECTRICAL. SCIENTISTS SAY

Discovery of billions of previously unknown electrical charges in the human body showing that the "spark of life" is essentially something electrical, was reported to the American Chemical society.

The discovery, made at Harvard Medical school, has significantly into other recent revelations of science that include thought and emotions in a network of electrical phenomena which appear to underlie body chemistry and structure of living matter. The newly found electrical charges are on the giant protein molecules, the body's so-called "building blocks," hitherto considered electrically neutral.

The protein molecules are from a few hundred to five million times the weight of the hydrogen unit. That much of man's life activity comes from them is shown by the discovery at Harvard that they are electrically many times more active than fat. In action, of many sorts of life processes, the radio testing revealed that the charges give the protein molecules what is known as "dipole moment." This means that each molecule becomes a small electro magnet.

or who are so used to having him treat them that they feel aggrieved if he does not come when he is called.

He always comes—sometimes for a consultation, sometimes just by himself.

His features have changed but little with time. His voice is as clear and resonant as ever.

He seems to bring healing and comfort along with him when he leans over a bed and quietly counts a pulse.

I suppose there are many like him in the country.

Doctoring is his business, just plain doctoring, but it is the kind of doctoring that accumulates friends. A sick person always seems to "get better" the minute he comes into the room.

He is well along in years, yet his step is elastic, his eyes are keen and he inspires confidence wherever he goes.

Such a man would have made a great reputation in a city. But he prefers to live and work among his people.
