THE PRESIDENT IS COMING!

The million-dollar S. S. President, queen of the Strecker fleet, cruising northward on its annual spring "barnstorming" trip from New Orleans to St. Louis, will arrive at Hickman for an excursion outing on Wednesday, June 3rd.

The big all-steel, oil-burning craft commanded by Capt. John Strecker will leave the wharf at 8:30 p.m. and return at midnight. The trip will be sponsored by the Elks Lodge No. 1294. One of the best known "darker" dance bands on the Mississippi—Charles Creath's and Fate Marable's tunesters will provide the music for the local outings.

Ways of improving quality of lambs, orderly marketing, grading and other means of increasing returns from sheep were considered at a series of 18 quality lamb conferences held over Kentucky this spring by the extension division of the State College of Agriculture in cooperation with local farmers, buyers, and packers. A definite program was developed at each meeting whereby local farmers could make sheep raising more profitable.

Another series of meetings is being planned for June and July, in which breeding problems, parasitic control, grading and marketing lambs, selection and judging of breeding sheep and the feeding of young lambs will be considered.

LEGION PLANS TO ERECT MEMORIAL

Thursday night of last week about 75 ex-soldiers gathered at the American Legion Club here to enjoy a fish-fry. It was the most successful social affair held by the Legion post here this year.

Plans were laid at this meeting for the erection of a memorial monument, of concrete and marble construction, on Lake-st. near the Walnut-st. crossing, where formerly the old watering trough stood. The monument is to be 17 feet high, with a base 11-feet square. The statue will be a bronze, dough, which will create an impressive memorial and beauty spot for Fulton.

Donations were taken from those attending the gathering and it is believed that assistance can be obtained through the PWA in erecting the memorial, which, it is estimated, will cost between $1200 and $1500.

As soon as the work sheets are completed tabulation and listing sheets will have to be prepared which will require the time of those working in the office. "Under Two Flags"
Has Great Cast-At Orpheum Sun.

Motion picture fans who breathlessly followed Ronald Colman in "Ben Hur" and who admired Claudette Colbert in "The Sign of the Cross" have a new treat in store for them in "Under Two Flags." It is the picture which brings these two titans of the screen together in roles that surpass even the most magnificent of their past triumphs.

Produced under the direct supervision of Darryl F. Zanuck, this drama of stirring peace, tumult, love and searing conflict set in the Sahara comes to the Orpheum Theatre Sunday and Monday.

Mrs. Colbert plays the role of "Claudette" in this adaptation of the French Foreign Legion. A lovely girl, she falls with the affections of Victor McLaglen, Legionnaire major, until she meets Colman, a member of the ranks. Then she impulsively loses her heart to him.

The drama gains in power and intensity with the appearance of Claudette Colbert, fragile English beauty. Before he is sent out to the desert to help stem an Arab revolt, Colman has declared his love to her.

Hounded in by hostile forces, McLaglen valiantly attempts to destroy Colman, whom he believes stands between himself and Mrs. Colbert. But Colman saves his force by a daring ruse, and a magnificent charge of the Legion, led by Mrs. Colbert, results in the defeat of the Arab forces.

SAVE THE SURFACE AND YOU SAVE ALL

(An Editorial)

For sixteen years a farmer in Central Kentucky has produced six-ton fine crops of tobacco on the same land. His last crop from this land brought 43c per pound. He uses little fertilizer. In my boyhood days on the farm, my father used to tell me that the reason part of our land was so poor was that it had been "cropped to death." When I consider that one plot of Kentucky ground produced tobacco sixteen years, and one the sixteenth year produced 43c tobacco, I lose faith in that old, overworked idea that Kentucky land could be "cropped to death."

Most of the soil we call "cropped to death" is, in reality, soil that has been "washed to death." On top of most all Kentucky virgin land is a layer of highly productive soil that will grow anything. This layer runs eight inches deep in some sections, runs more than that in some, and less in some. After this land is plowed, the rains come and wash part of it away. Every Kentucky rain costs our farmers fortunes in fertility, fortunes that wash on to the bottom of the Gulf of Mexico.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture says - that three hundred thousand acres of land are hopelessly lost to U. S. Agriculture every year through soil washing. Andrew Jackson once stood on top of one of the Appalachian Mountains, and said, "We have sufficient land from here to the Mississippi River to last the population of the United States for 700 years." Alas, this is not true, great areas east of the river have been destroyed by washing-erosion.

Kentucky farmers are too farsighted to let the rains continue to rob them of their rich dirt for they do not want their children to inherit impoverished rock and clay lands. They are thinking more of "stripping" terracing, lespedeza and proper plowing to avoid erosion. Kentucky land will stand a lot of "stripping" but our soil rich loam will not stand much washing.

"Men may come and men may go," but once our top soil is lost, it is gone forever. A good rain can do more damage to carelessly tending land than several crops of corn. Remember, whenever a farmer sees a muddy stream, he is losing one's savings washing down the river. A good slogan to adopt is "Save the farm surface and save all."

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE

WEEKLY BUSINESS SURVEY

Retail trade was sharply better than the previous week under the impetus of warmer weather in most sections of the country, but wholesale was much more reserved, according to nationwide reports to the Department of Commerce.

The agricultural situation continued to show improvement as general rains stimulated crops. Country implement dealers in Minnesota were unable to fill orders, according to the Minneapolis report. Cotton planting progressed satisfactorily in the south and southwest and excellent growing weather prevailed in the Northwest. Heavy fruit damage as a result of recent freezes, was reported by Louisville and Cincinnati.

A vast program of construction was under way throughout the country with residential building predominating. New Orleans reported a gain in residential construction of 700 per cent in April over last April. Rochester's gain was 83 per cent, Omaha, 431 per cent. Houston permits of $8,336,498 to date this year exceed the entire year 1935. In Cleveland the total for the four months of $5,868,435 compared with $1,953,979 in the 1935 period. In the same four months, St. Louis had a gain of $275,000 over last year. In Detroit, permits for the week of $1,094,000 compared with $273,000 in the same week last year. Louisville reported a gain of $420 in 115 Kentucky counties for $6,001,136 and plans for a new 100-room hotel in Covington, Ky. New suburban residences predominated in Chicago and four pre-fabricated steel houses were exhibited. Substantial gains over the previous and 1935 week were also reported by Dallas, Fort Worth, Atlanta, Indianapolis, Boston and San Francisco. There was moderate slowing up in Philadelphia and Cincinnati, compared with last week.

Reports gave evidence of a further broadening of industrial activity with a consequent beneficial effect on employment. The steel centers of Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Buffalo and Birmingham maintained operating rates on practically the same basis as last week with Buffalo reporting the highest rate in six years. The Cleveland rate was being sustained by an increased demand for steel pipe and plates with Lorain plants operating at capacity. This type of business was also being handled by Pittsburgh plants where railroad cars and steel base orders were also increasing. In Seattle, the Pacific Car & Foundry Co., added 300 workers for handling a 500 refrigerator car order from the Pacific Fruit Express Co., involving $2,000,000.

Los Angeles reported 2400 additions to payrolls during the first quarter as a result of the location of 55 new industries and expansion of 71 plants, while the Shell Oil Co. announced construction of a $4,500,000 crude oil pipe line and another 70-mile line will cost $1,500,000.

In Kansas City, Standard Brands Inc., leased space for a coffee grinding plant, a new million-dollar pork house by Armour & Co. was reported by Omaha, along with a 20 per cent expansion of a second plant. A 5 to 10 per cent pay increase for 36,000 tire workers in Akron was reported by Cleveland. The Louisville report referred to a packing plant expansion in Middleboro and resumption of operations by Kentucky Rock Asphalt Co., with several hundred workers recalled. Dallas reported the employment of 240 men on the $3,000,000 Fossum Kingdom dam on the Brazos river. Shipment of 15,000 tons of scrap iron moved through the Jacksonville port for Japan. Raw cotton prices were fractionally easier in Boston with exceptionally heavy world trade in all cottons a factor. Resumption of passenger service between Seattle and California ports on May 23 by the Pacific Steamship Lines will bring 2,000 and the first three sailings have been solidly booked.

KENTUCKY TURKEY CROP ON ITS WAY

Another Kentucky turkey crop is on its way, since most of the poults in this state are hatched in May. Some breeders continue hatching well into June, but Dr. J. H. Hines, Martin of the College of Agriculture at Lexington, does not favor starting the birds much after the middle of June.

Many of the big birds now are artificially brooded. R. E. Nute, Bullitt county, one of the most successful turkey raisers in the state, says he likes the brick brooder. One brooder is used in a 10 by 12 house built of tin sides and corrugated metal roof to make it fire-proof. This kind of house is light in weight and easily moved. By moving the house frequently, at least once a month, the birds are kept on clean ground. This is the principal method of avoiding disease.

Turkey raisers must ever keep in mind ways of dodging blackhead. The most effective means of controlling disease, according to this breeder, are to keep the birds on clean ground, and to pick up and burn or bury deeply all dead birds as quickly as possible.

"Our experience with remedies for turkey diseases teaches us that they just do not work," says Mr. Nute. "We consider a sick turkey the same as a dead turkey. We express our sympathy for the poor bird by cutting its life short and sparing it the agony of foreign medicine down its throat."

FINDS THE SOUTH AMAZINGLY PRODUCTIVE

More than 40 per cent of the mineral value produced by the nation comes from the south, according to Mark Fenton, general industrial agent of the Illinois Central System, a recent address by whom to the Shreveport, La., Kiwanis Club is reported in the May issue of the Illinois Central Magazine.

"The South produces almost $1,000,000,000 annually of mine and quarry products," declared Mr. Fenton. "It has more than 60 per cent of the cotton goods manufacturing capacity and 70 per cent of the rayon on manufacturing capacity of the United States.

"In addition to producing most of the kraft paper made in America, the South may also be credited with 100 per cent of the carbon black, 100 per cent of the rosin, 99 per cent of the sulphur, 92 per cent of the cigarettes, 80 per cent of the fertilizers, 78 per cent of the mica, 78 per cent of the Fullers' Earth, 78 per cent of the hardwood, 69 per cent of the petroleum, 50 per cent of the feldspar, 49 per cent of the aluminum, 45 per cent of the lead, 41 per cent of the clay products and 40 per cent of the coal.

A 6-month program for the dismantling of 3,149 old freight cars and cabooses now in progress at various shops on the Illinois Central System is expected to produce salvage having a total value of more than $750,000 to the railroad, according to the May issue of the Illinois Central Magazine. The value of the salvage after deducting to fall not far short of $700,000. The program called for the dismantling of 1,000 cars each month for the first four months of the year, 600 in May and the clean-up in June.

ELECTRIFY FARM HOMES

Kentucky farmers will thrill at the thought of electricity on their farms. Electric lights, electric stove, electric barn equipment, all will put a tinge of pride and a lot of comfort and delight in our lovely farm homes.

Today, we can have electricity on our farms, and it has been made very practical and easy. The Rural Electrification Administration will finance wiring electricity right to our finger tips. President Roosevelt urges farmers everywhere to get together and get their electricity now. The procedure is simple. A group of farmers wanting electricity to cover their neighborhood, form a co-operative company. The government loans the company a long-time loan to build the line from the nearest power line to their farms. However, if there is no power line near, the government will loan money to build a power plant.

Young men and women on farms who know the great blessings electricity will shower upon them, have been dreaming of the day when their homes could be electrified. Now is the time to get what we have dreamed of. Be a leader. Take the lead in your neighborhood. Write Rural Electrification Administration, Washington, D. C., for details, then work day and night with neighbors until you have obtained electricity for farm use. Get it from the T. V. A. or the nearest utility company, or build a plant, but get it. Electrify the farms!

COUNTY PLANNING COMMITTEES URGE TOBACCO REDUCTION

Planning committees of farmers, which were formed in every county in Kentucky to study soil conservation measures, recommend a greater reduction in tobacco than is required in the Agricultural Conservation Program, according to a summary of the recommendations, issued by the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky.

The ACP permits a production of 70 percent of the tobacco acreage base, but the county planning committees recommended the growing of only 67 percent of the burley base, and 63 percent of the dark-fired tobacco base, and 62 percent of the dark air-cured tobacco base. The county planning committees suggested that corn should be reduced about 20 percent as an average for the state. The largest reduction in corn was suggested in Southwestern Kentucky, in the general farming section of Warren and Simpson to Trigg and Lyon counties.

It was recommended that the land thus removed cultivation and the land which normally has been left idle were to be seeded to small grain and then to hay and pasture mixtures. This would give an increase of 1,500,000 acres additional hay and plowable pasture. Two-thirds of this additional hay and pasture would come from land that usually lies idle. The following additional recommendations were made in regard to soil conservation measures:

Small grain cover crops should be seeded in the fall on cultivated fields.

Additional hay and pasture should be consumed by an increased number of sheep and cattle. The greatest increase in sheep was suggested in the same area where the greatest reduction in corn was recommended.

Barley should be substituted for part of the corn reduced in the areas where barley will grow well.

Annual legume hays should be replaced by a mixture of clover and grass or lespedeza.

The greatest increase in beef cattle was suggested in the Ohio Valley section between the Cumberland and Green Rivers. This section also received the recommendation for the greatest increase in small grain.

With reference to hogs, each type of farming area recommended a slight reduction. The greatest reduction was recommended, however, in the 33 Bluegrass counties of Central Kentucky, where the committees suggested raising 30 percent fewer hogs.

As the First Buyer Entered

A MERCHANT heavily advertised a sale of foreign fabrics. Then came bad weather—his ship docked at the distant port only a day before the sale.

A frantic call for help to the Illinois Central: "I must have the goods."

The Illinois Central swung into action. Extra stevedores were summoned. Into a waiting car they rushed the shipment. Away it shot on passenger schedule.

When the first customer entered the front door on the day of the sale, the last bolt of the advertised fabric was sliding in the back.

THIS instance of readiness to do unusual things for shippers is fairly typical of the Illinois Central. We know that circumstances can upset the best of foresight, and we are in a constant state of preparedness for the unexpected.

Only That and Nothing More

The fat man was trying to find some tropical clothes in the Far South resort. He tried most every store in town, and patient clerks had politely made a pretense of looking over their stocks and advising him they were just out of his size. Finally he ran across a clerk more truthful than diplomatic who—after looking him over—said:

"Frankly, mister, we carry nothing in stock that would fit you, except collar buttons and handkerchiefs."

In a Nutshell

The theater was in an uproar. "They're calling for the author," said the manager. "But I can't make a speech!" replied the man responsible for the play. The manager grabbed the playwright and impelled him along the passage. As he shoved him toward the curtain he said curtly: "Well, just go in front and tell them you're sorry."

Mussolini Goes Through Practical Selassie
Snake Killed One
Which End of the Gun?

Mussolini's men entered Addis Ababa, driving out the Ethiopian looters, bringing safety to various foreigners, including our own minister.

Rome went wild with joy; and no wonder.

In seven months Mussolini has conquered Ethiopia's millions, killing and wounding 250,000 of them, marching steadily ahead through dangerous valleys and high mountains, driving out the Ethiopian armies, that were directed by skilled soldiers from Turkey, Scandinavia and elsewhere.

Those impressed by the high qualities of Ethiopia's Arab slave-trading ruler will note that in the great crisis his presence of mind remained. The Associated Press says he took with him on the British boat "the imperial family jewels many cases of gold bullion and gold coins." On his way from Addis Ababa to the British ship he stopped to take all the cash from the treasury and customs house at Dire Dawa.

In Florida, a well-meaning preacher, who thought it his duty to let rattlesnakes bite him to show the power of God, actually did let the snakes bite him without first removing their fangs. He is dead, the jury said, "by the bite of a rattlesnake through his own carelessness."

The poor fanatic succeeded only in proving the power of rattlesnake poison. The laws of the universe could hardly be suspended to justify the whim of one well-meaning fanatic.

It makes a difference, even to the No. 1 Public Enemy, "I'll-never-be-taken-alive" bandit, which way the gun is pointed. Mr. Karpis is taken, much alive, with no struggle, beyond holding a straw hat over his face to baffle photographers.

Much efficiency in cash rewards; Dillinger defied all the "G-men"; a reward was offered, and a red-haired lady delivered him to the "G-men" bullets, and got $5,000.

Whether the $7,000 reward offered for Karpis tempted some friend of that courageous one remains to be seen.

The criminal is in business for money, and when he can sell a friend for $5,000, that seems preferable to risking his own life. The reward system should be extended; $5,000 reward for evidence resulting in arrest and conviction of any murderer.

The Carnegie Institute announces a "new law of matter" having to do with the "cohesion of infinitesimal particles of matter within the atom."

If it were not for that law, according to scientists, "the universe would consist of nothing but light hydrogen gas." That should interest politicians, who, after the big conventions, will live, until November, in a universe consisting of something lighter than "light hydrogen gas."

England's new king, Edward the Eighth, is said to be engaged to marry the Princess Alexandrine Louise of Denmark, twenty-one years old, the English king's third cousin.

The uncle of the young lady says he and her father know nothing of it. Nevertheless, it is difficult to believe that King Edward will remain a bachelor, whether he marries this charming young princess or some other, possibly a good healthy young Scotch girl, if one available could be found.

Dr. Walter Emerson Briggs, who teaches dentistry in Tufts college, says "women can take any kind of pain without a whimper."

Women endure pain more courageously than men. Childbirth has taught them to suffer and endure in isolation. Man shows his heroism preferably in crowds, in squadrons, platoons; often he would not do that if it did not take more courage to stay behind alone than to go ahead with the others.

Women's is the courageous sex, man is the other kind and might as well admit it.

The only certain immortality is represented by our children left behind to work on this earth. It must be of great interest to provide a child to fill a throne and rule the world's greatest empire—whether or not it lasts.

Two misguided Mexicans decided to ring bells of the ancient mission church at Juarez, Mexico, to celebrate the nomination of a National Revolutionary candidate for governor of Chihuahua. The pious ladies of Juarez thought those old bells should not be rung for any revolutionary candidate, and it became necessary for troops to rescue the bellringers from the infuriated women, giving a good imitation of Euripides man-hunting Bacchae.

When women start they mean it.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted
 By WILLIAM BRUCKART
 NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON D. C.

Washington.—Business, as represented by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, again has clashed with the New Deal, and again the clamoring by business added nothing. Its attacks apparently bothered the New Deal not at all, for the New Deal has proceeded after the manner of the mastiff trotting along without concern while a poodle barked and snarled.

Business made no overtures for compromise with the New Deal and New Deal spokesmen were not hastening to make peace with business leaders. Altogether, there was not the slightest indication given that there will ever be peace between the two elements of economic thought.

The one thing that impressed me about the recent annual meeting here of the chamber of commerce was the solidarity of business in its opposition to general New Deal principles. That was to be expected but it has not always been the case. In days past, there were many business groups and individuals who adhered to the New Deal and vainly tried to work out an understanding with the administration. At this annual meeting, however, there was not the slightest effort made on the part of business to accomplish any arrangement whereby business and the administration would work together.

This can mean only one thing: President Roosevelt is going into his campaign for re-election without the support of business interests except where, in particular lines, benefit has accrued incidentally to specific businesses.

One would think that such a condition would constitute a threat against the President's re-election. Such appears not to be the case, however, because of the particular type of campaign which Mr. Roosevelt and his political commander in chief, Postmaster General Farley, are making. The President's recent political speeches have made it quite clear that he is seeking support wholly from the agricultural and labor segments of our voters. His appeals are quite open and frank and they are drawing considerable criticism because it is held they constitute the initiation of class struggle in this country. Whatever the reason for the President's course, it remains as a fact that he is very busy cultivating voters who have suffered most in the depression.

When I reported above that business came off second best in its fresh assault on the New Deal, I did not mean to imply that it had not made a vigorous fight. It probably gained some ground in getting before the country its side of the story, a phase of our national situation which has not been as fully advertised to the country as have the activities and accomplishments of the New Deal. The story of the losses suffered by business actually is not a great deal different from that of the individual, and many businesses are existing on a hand-to-mouth basis just as is the case with thousands of individuals. Because business, in our mind's eye, at least, is larger than an individual, political demagogues regard it as fair game and for that reason I am inclined to believe, business has not had a fair chance on the part of most of us when considering national problems.

On the other hand, business has many units within the whole that have not played fair. There are a great many corporations that are guilty of plain oppression, even to the extent of fraud and corruption of business methods. For the crookedness of this segment, all business has been blamed by the New Deal. This is not equity. The unhappy part of it all is that unless all business stands together, good, bad and in-between, it can get nowhere at all in defense of its legitimate rights.

There is, therefore, a wholly natural and yet quite unfair result emanating from this condition. New Deal planners, in their efforts to catch the crooks, have punished legitimate business far too much if one is to accept even partially the public statements and the private expressions of the business men who attended the annual meeting of the chamber of commerce. This ought not to be and I think that legitimate business has just ground for complaint on this score.

So, as the situation now stands, I believe it can be said in all fairness that neither side in this battle between the New Deal and business comes into court with entirely clean hands. Business has its cancerous sores. The New Deal has its nitwits and theorists who know nothing about practical economics. The result of this is plainly seen, and it becomes more and more apparent that Mr. Roosevelt cannot accomplish his objective of complete recovery until he directs some of his subordinates to put their feet on the ground. Indeed, there are some of the New Deal subordinates who ought to be tossed bodily into the street, just as there are some business men who ought to be thrown into jail.

The chamber of commerce meeting brought forth the information that business, as a whole, had kept hundreds of thousands of workers on its collective pay rolls during the depression when conditions did not justify their retention. The claim was advanced that business had expended something like twenty billions in wages paid from stored-up reserves. It was further asserted that business was alone responsible for such gains toward recovery as have been made.

New Deal spokesmen, from President Roosevelt on down, have consistently accused business of failure to take on workers and help solve the unemployment problem. At the same time, the banking structure of the country has been accused chiefly by the President of refusal to extend credit to business, and business as a whole has been classified by the President as greedy.

It seems safe to say that as regards these charges, business does have an answer, for throughout all history capital has refused to work unless there was a reasonable promise of return. Now, in addition to the lack of that promised return, business is and has been constantly confronted with uncertainties on the part of the New Deal. The present pending tax legislation is typical.

If the business claim is true that it has paid out twenty billions more than its operations justified for wages during the depression, it causes one to ponder over the future. One is inclined to ask what strength business will have to do even as much for the working classes during the next depression as it has done in this one.

With reference to the New Deal policies toward business, a statement by the Rural Electrification administration has just come to my desk. It touches on that very delicate question of how far the government can enter into business in competition with private enterprise without destroying or driving out private initiative. The complaint on the part of private business that the government is continually wedging its way into private fields is well known but the REA statement puts something of a new slant on the view. In fact, it brings to the front one of the elements of government in business not generally recognized.

The REA statement consists of a letter from REA Administrator Morris Cooke to the State Corporation Commission of Virginia. The Virginia commission was urged to consider the situation in which the REA and one of its loans will be placed in event of a certain ruling by the Virginia officials. In effect, Administrator Cooke asked the Virginia commission to rule against private business in order that a $306,000 loan made by REA to a co-operative organization in Virginia can be protected.

To review the facts briefly, let me explain that a private electric company applied to the Virginia commission for authority to extend its lines for transmission of energy into a farming section adjacent to cities served by the electric company. It happened that the REA had sent agents into this same territory and had obtained promises from many farmers to buy electricity from a co-operative concern to be organized and financed by REA. The private company apparently horned in to what Mr. Cooke thought was the territory of REA by right of discovery or some other such reason, and as he is now engaged in attempting at least to prevail the private company from entering that field.

The point of this circumstance is that here is a federal agency, steeped in bureaucracy and with the usual bureaucratic thirst for power, which actually is attempting to drive private industry out of its way. It is doing it under the thinly disguised reason of protecting a government loan.

SYNOPSIS

Bryn James Brynildson III, a tall, bronzed young man of wealth and high social position, is discussing Bryn's coming marriage. Bryn believes it a scheme to get Bryn's wealth from him. Should the girl, Deborah, whom Bryn had met at the office of his attorney, Ted Holworthy, marry Stuart Graham before her twenty-first birthday, she will inherit a vast fortune from her grandfather. Stuart had greatly displeased Deborah, who refuses to marry him. Bryn, posing as an unemployed engineer, offers to marry Deborah, as Stuart, for $20,000, they not to live as man and wife. Twenty-three years previous, Anne Larned had eloped with an adventurer on the day set for her wedding to Courtney Graham. Two days after the birth of her daughter, Anne died. Shortly after, the father died. The Larneds, grandparents, took the child with them, to Oregon where, without child companions, Deborah grew up. To safeguard her from some fortune hunter, her grandfather had arranged for her to marry Stuart, son of Courtney Graham, when of age, he believing the alliance would be a happy one. When Deborah was fifteen, her grandfather died. Securities had been set aside to keep the family, but a market crash left scarcely enough for them to live on. This was unknown to Deborah's grandmother, an invalid, Gary, a servant, managing the finances. At twenty, the thought of marriage greatly frightened Deborah. It had been planned that Deborah meet Stuart in Frisco, where they were to be married. Tubby and Bryn await Deborah in a hotel in Frisco. Over a period of one year the groom is to prove he is no fortune hunter and can make Deborah happy to the satisfaction of her grandmother. Otherwise the fortune is to go to charity. The will is somewhat ambiguous as to whom Deborah is to marry. The girl arrives with Holworthy. Tubby is surprised to find her charming and sweet. The wedding over, the couple arrives at the home of Deborah's grandmother. The grandfather and Bryn, who she believes to be Stuart, take to one another, which somewhat displeases Deborah, who foresees difficulty when they are to separate after a year. Deborah remonstrates with Bryn for his familiarity and insincerity. Bryn declares he is sincere.

She was gazing into his face. A slow wave of color, quite unlike the angry flush of a short time ago, began to spread up from her throat over her face. She dropped her eyes.

"As for you," Bryn went on calmly, "it would be most presumptuous for me to have any feeling for you what, ever. You are, in a sense, my employer. I recognize that. I have no idea of presuming on that relationship. Nothing could be farther from my mind. However—it might be easier for both of us, under the circumstances, if we came to a definite agreement as to my duties and my attitude. Obviously we cannot go on as we began yesterday, or all our plans and sacrifices so far are wasted."

She had turned away and was surveying the eastern horizon. Now she faced him. "Did you make sacrifices to do this for me?" she demanded.

"Nothing of any particular importance," he replied calmly. "Nothing that will not be far outweighed by the benefits I will receive from it. However, a year is a year."

She considered. "I'm afraid I was very thoughtless."

She began to smile. "I suppose there's even another girl somewhere out in the world," she said with a breath of relief. "I am a stupid creature. I might have guessed. It's because we're so self-centered here. To put it perfectly plainly, you have been exerting yourself to the utmost to live up to your bargain, and I've been ridiculous about it. Haven't I? I'm sorry. It's going to be . . . she bent hastily and lifted her bowl. "I think I have enough," she went on.

Bryn took the bowl. They walked along leisurely toward the house. The sun had suddenly thrown off his veils of cloud and emerged in glory.

Entering the kitchen together, they found Gary there. "This is certainly an early-rising household," remarked Bryn. "Up with the birds, must be its motto."

Bryn put down his coffee cup, Gary having served them in the sitting room. He reached into his pocket mechanically for his cigarette case. "Mind if I smoke?"

Across the low round table, Deborah shook her head.

"You told me . . . and Mr. Holworthy told me, too, that . . . that a divorce is easy to get nowadays."

"Very easy."

"I didn't ask you," she went on slowly, "something I should have asked. In Grandmother's day a divorce was dreadful. I'd scarcely heard them mentioned. A divorce was a disgraceful thing. Tell me, is it a disgraceful thing to be divorced? Does it . . . mark one?"

"We can manage it so quietly that no one will know you've been married," Deborah said.

"I wasn't thinking exactly of my self," she said faintly, her cheeks flushing. "Nobody knows me. I wouldn't matter. I was thinking of you. I was wondering if the . . . the girl you . . . that is, the girl you care about . . . don't mind rather dreadfully. I don't quite understand these things," she hurried on, "but I think if I were she I should mind."

"Did I say I cared about a girl?" Bryn inquired, in surprise.

"Perhaps I saw for myself that there must be one. You spoke of sacrifices. You couldn't have meant your career, because you told me yourself it was at a standstill, and would be assisted by this agreement of ours. And . . . I saw quite a lot of other young men," she said, scarlet, but determined, "and it seems to me that you and your friend, Mr. Forbes, were much the most attractive. So there must be a girl. I am glad, of course. It will make Gary feel much better. But has the world become so liberal-minded that she won't mind your taking this way to earn money for her?" Her eyes lifted to his, waiting.

Bryn considered. If he said there was no girl, Deborah might take fright again. Gary, thoroughly conscious of the amount of loveliness and charm and innocence which Deborah possessed, would certainly do what he could to spoil this friendliness and trust which were beginning to spring to life.

"I must tell Tubby what you said about him," he said lightly. "He will be extremely flattered, as I am. And grateful. As for your other question—I can assure you that no complication will arise."

She had begun to speak, perhaps to question him further, when a bell tinkled inside the kitchen. She rose hastily. "That's Grandmother," she explained, and hurried down the steps to the narrow side door into the kitchen. Bryn sat down again and lit another cigarette, thinking.

He recalled himself with a start, and got up hastily. He lifted the table, dishes and all, and carried it down to the kitchen door. He set it inside, went in, and drew it across the big room to the long white porcelain sink beneath the windows. Gary was there, with a big clean apron tied over his trousers, washing up his own breakfast dishes. Deborah was not in sight.

"It's a beautiful day, Gary."

"Yes, sir. We've days like this all through the summer. It gets very hot in the middle of the day in August, but the nights are always cool."

Bryn picked up a dish-towel. "What are you going to do today, Gary? Can you give me some kind of an idea of your routine? I've got to have something to do, too."

Gary glanced up at him from under his bushy brows. "There's enough to do," he said slowly. "But it's not like the kind of work you've been used to."

"Well, I can pick cherries. Deborah said you could use them. I suppose the strawberries in the patch have to be picked, too, haven't they? And I heard hens cackling somewhere, although I didn't see them. I presume your fowl have the usual set of signals. So I can collect eggs."

Gary sighed. He rubbed vigorously at a plate. "All them things has to be done," he said. "And there's potatoes to hoe and corn to weed, and cucumbers and melons to water, and raspberries to tie up, and there's some branches of the apricot trees needing propping. I noticed yesterday." He propped his hands on the edge of the sink and looked up. "If you want to work," he said, "there's plenty to be done."

Bryn put a foot on the chair beside the sink. "Had your hands full, hadn't you?" he said.

Gary did not reply. He was still searching Bryn's face. Bryn met his eyes steadily. After a moment Gary turned away, without speaking, and finished washing the sink. He was just untying his apron to hang it up when there was a light footstep at the other end of the room, and Deborah came in. She was very pale, and there was in her face such a look of misery that both men stiffened themselves involuntarily.

"Grandmother liked the strawberries," Deborah said dismally. "She thought they were wonderful." She might have been announcing the end of the world.

"What's happened?" Gary asked again, his face working. "What's the matter, Miss Deborah? Did you tell her? Did she guess about . . . his eyes went to Bryn.

Deborah shook her head. From her pocket she produced a long sheet of paper. "There," she said tremulously. "That's our marketing list for today."

STAR DUST Movie • Radio

By VIRGINIA VALE

JAMES MELTON, one of radio's sweetest singers, has finished his latest radio assignment and arrived in Hollywood to work in "Cain and Mabel." Before leaving New York he made inquiries as to his own importance in the picture—wanted to know what sort of breaks he'd get on publicity, etc.

He knew that Marion Davies, being the star, would come first in the hearts of the publicity men for the company. A casual inquiry revealed the fact that he'd come second, which was all right with him. But for the moment neither he nor his informant recalled that Mary Boland was also cast for that picture—and Miss Boland is pretty important, being an excellent actress and a favorite of movie fans as well.

Also—Mr. Melton is, first of all, a singer. The script calls for a prizefighter as a hero. The question at the moment is—if you take his singing away from Mr. Melton, will you have a prize-fighter?

Now it's Harold Lloyd who wants to make pictures in color. He has been making experiments on his own hook for the last two years, but is not yet quite sure whether or not color would add to the type of comedies that he makes.

Furthermore, he's through with making just one picture a year; from now on he'll make two a year, he thinks, or at least, two every three years.

And with his latest one, "The Milky Way," as an example, that comes under the heading of good news.

Those radio programs of Bing Crosby's are rapidly becoming one of the best of the broadcasts; he is getting really big names, (or rather, his sponsor is getting them for him), and he makes a delightful master of ceremonies. Better add this program to the list of those you tune in on Thursday evenings.

When you see "The Great Ziegfeld" (and of course you'll see it if you'll hear "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody," beautifully sung, Allan Jones sang it, while Stanley Morner was photographed as if he were singing it. Jones did not get screen credit, and Morner, who has a good singing voice, got credit but didn't sing.

The youngsters in Hal Roach's "Our Gang" started on a personal appearance tour a while ago, which has proved so successful that they will go on and on right through the summer. Not only children, but grown people as well, arrive for the first show and then right on till closing time.

As if there hadn't been enough trouble over Mae West's latest, "Klondike Annie," the Chinese government is objecting to it now, so Mae won't be a welcome visitor in the Orient.

Another picture that you'll want to see is "I Married a Doctor"—which you'll recognize as Sinclair Lewis' great book, "Main Street."

Josephine Hutchinson and Pat O'Brien have the leads, and do exceedingly well by them. However, here's a word of warning to young, unmarried doctors; don't take the girl you hope to marry to see this one, for it may make them feel that doctors don't make very good husbands.

Staging a come-back in pictures was rather a hard thing for Dolores Costello Barrymore to do; she was a victim of the early days of talkies, when she was given such insane speeches that audiences laughed at her, which cost her an opportunity she really deserved.

But she took voice lessons, and dictation lessons, and did so well in "Little Lord Fauntleroy" that Paramount has signed her up. Now it looks as if a real career is opening for her.

ODDS AND ENDS . . . When people in New York asked Betty Davis if she was going to fly back to Hollywood she said, "No, I'm aissy, I'll take the train."

At Tolson and Ruby Keeler did the same . . . But a few accidents have not frightened the general public; plane reservations still have to be made way ahead . . . Eddie Robinson refused to be frightened; his mother was ill in New York, so he flew to see her, and flew back . . . Anita Louise is the latest star to embark for picture-making in England . . . Eddie Cantor's new radio contract calls for something like $15,000 a week, but he'll have to pay his company himself . . . Ed Ryan will return to MRC soon, and have Graham McNamee with him again.

Italy Annexes Ethiopia, Defying the League

TRIUMPHANTLY and defiantly, Benito Mussolini formally proclaimed the annexation of conquered Ethiopia by Italy and the restoration of the Roman empire. As did Dieruff in the case of India, he made his monarch emperor of the African realm, and Marshal Badoglio was appointed viceroy.

The duce did not know and apparently care what the League of Nations would think about this swallowing of one of its members by another member.

The league council met in Geneva to deal with the question and seemingly intended merely to condemn Italy's action and then adjourn until June, when France's new leftist government will be in power. First, however, it decided, over the protest of Baron Pompeo Aloisi of Italy, to keep the question on the agenda; and because Wolde Mariam, representative of Ethiopia, was permitted to take his seat at a closed sitting of the council, Aloisi stalked out of the room. This was his statement to the delegates:

"I have the honor to declare that the Italian delegation cannot admit of the presence at the council table of the so-called Ethiopian delegate."

"There exists, indeed, no semblance of organization of the Ethiopian state. The only sovereignty existing in Ethiopia is that of Italy."

"All discussion on the subject of the Italo-Ethiopian difference would, consequently, have no object."

"Therefore I find myself obliged to refrain from participating in the discussion."

Mariam told the council the greater part of the country west of Addis Ababa remains free and independent and continues to defend itself, and the council still considers that Emperor Haile Selassie's government is in existence. For the present, apparently, there will be no move to lift the sanctions against Italy.

Prime Minister Baldwin of Great Britain refused to tell questioners in parliament what attitude his government would take now in the matter of recognizing Italian sovereignty over Ethiopia.

Four Navy Radio Men Rewarded for Bravery

THE four navy radio men who manned the transmitting set in the American legation at Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, keeping this government informed of the rioting in the Ethiopian capital and helping fight off bandits, are to be advanced in rating for outstanding conduct.

This decision was made by the bureau of navigation at the urgent recommendation of Minister Cornelius Van H. Engert, who in a message to the Navy department praised them "for commendable zeal and efficiency in the performance of duty under unusual and difficult circumstances."

W. E. Tanner, acting chief radio man, will be made chief radio man effective August 15. W. L. Pitts, radio man first class, will be given a course of instruction after his return to the United States to qualify him for the same rating. G. F. Cavanah and J. W. Anslow, radio men second class, will be promoted to radio men first class.

Leon Blum's Program for France Given

LEON BLUM, leader of the National Socialists and organizer of the "popular front" of leftists that won the recent French elections, will be practically the dictator of France when Premier Sarraut and his cabinet resign on June 2 and the new government takes office. Blum laid down this four-point foreign policy program which he said the nation would follow at least until the next election in 1940:

1. Adherence to the League of Nations.
2. Consolidation of European peace.
3. Promotion of mutual assistance pacts.
4. Progressive disarmament.

Speaking to the national Socialist council Blum said: "We must consolidate the country against Fascist attacks. We must put the republican spirit in all high administrations, and we will deprive the Fascists of all secret means of propaganda."

Ickes-Hopkins Feud Moves to Senate

SECRETARY ICKES' supporters were easily defeated by the Harry Hopkins forces in the house fight as to whether the Public Works administration should share in the handling of next year's relief funds. But it was understood the feud would be revived in the senate under the leadership of Senator Hayden of Arizona, Democrat and a member of the appropriations committee.

The house majority voted according to the wishes of the administration on the relief bill, which is a $2,364,229,712 measure carrying $1,425,000,000 to finance the Works Progress administration after July 1.

In addition to the relief appropriation, the bill carries $438,831,800 for the social security program, $30,000,000 for the Tennessee Valley Authority, $400,000 for continuing the communications commission's telephone inquiry, and various new and deficiency amounts for other agencies.

The most important amendment permitted to be added to the bill by the house leaders was one submitted by Representative William P. Connery providing that the prevailing wage in communities be paid to WPA workers. The Hopkins organization will pay out approximately the same sum per man per year, it was explained, but will work the men only one, two, or three days a week where they formerly worked four, five and six days each week.

In a surprise move the house also voted to bar aliens "illegally within the limits of the United States" from receiving jobs under the WPA program. Most of the opposition came from two radicals, Vito Marcantonio of New York city and Gerald J. Boleau of Wisconsin.

Ickes signified his acceptance of defeat in the battle for funds by ordering an immediate cut of 25 per cent in PWA personnel in Washington and throughout the country. This affects 2,000 persons.

Senators Seek Compromise Corporate Tax Bill

OPPOSITION in the senate finance committee to the corporate profits tax in the administration's $800,000,000 revenue bill was so strong that both Democrats and Republicans sought for some compromise. Treasury officials were heard in favor of the measure as passed by the house, but former treasury officials and various business and industrial leaders speaking in opposition were seemingly more persuasive.

Senator Tom Connally of Texas put forward a plan he thought all might agree upon. It would retain the 15 per cent corporation income tax and repeal only the capital stock and excess profits taxes. Instead of repealing all corporation taxes as proposed in the house bill, in addition it would superimpose a graduated tax on undistributed earnings, exempting the first 20 per cent on the amount retained. The house bill reaches a maximum of 42½ per cent of the total income, none is distributed.

Senator Byrd of Virginia, another of the Democrats opposed to the house bill, showed, in a letter to Secretary Morgenthau, that 11 of the largest corporations in the country would pay no taxes under the Roosevelt bill.

Landon Ticket Loses in California Primary

CALIFORNIA'S Presidential Republican preference primary, eagerly awaited by the whole country, resulted in the defeat of the Landon slate of delegates that was put forward by William R. Hearst and Governor Merriam, with Landon's tacit consent.

The winning delegates, backed by Herbert Hoover and nominally pledged to Earl Warren though uncommitted, carried the state by a majority of about 30,000. Mr. Warren announced at once that he released them from their pledge, to vote as they see fit in the convention.

This looked like a blow to Governor Landon, and to a certain extent it was; but his managers claim at least 18 of the delegates will go over to the Kanes on an early ballot. Moreover, many friends of Landon deplored the fact that Hearst was supporting him, believing it would do him more harm than good; and they were glad to see him freed in part from what they consider an incubus.

Democrats voted almost solidly for Mr. Roosevelt. Upton ("Epic") Sinclair's ticket received something over 100,000 votes, and that of John S. McGroarty, Townsend plan supporter, about half as many.

In South Dakota a slate of uncommitted delegates favoring Landon won over a ticket pledged to Senator Borah, though the margin was slender.

American Red Cross Meets in Chicago

SOME two thousand delegates were present when the annual convention of the American Red Cross was opened in Chicago by Admiral Cary T. Grayson, the national chairman. Speakers at early sessions included Mayor Ed Kelly, and Ralph Christman, school boy of Birmingham, Ala., representing the Junior Red Cross. Mrs. Elizabeth H. Vaughan, a nurse of St. Louis, was awarded the Florence Nightingale medal for her long record of service.

Dr. Thomas Parran, Jr., the new surgeon general of the United States public health service, was present and made a speech, and talks were delivered by Robert E. Bondy, director of national disaster relief, and others who directed activities in the flood and storm areas.

Blondy by a Tongue!

W AY back in 1892—said the Old Tuffman—I owned a beautiful racing mare as ever was foaled. Her name was Blondy because of her color. My other possession was a farm in the Blue Grass country on which was hung a "plaster" of $15,000.

Bad luck cut between me and the purses although Nigger Jim, my trainer, would get her cream-colored body in the pink before every race.

We taught Blondy a lot of tricks, between losing races. One was to make a face. Nigger Jim or I would hold an apple or carrot so she had to stretch her neck and put out her tongue for it. And she got so she would do this whenever we told her "make a face."

We entered the mare in a claiming race at Churchill Downs the spring of '32. It was May 15, to be exact. The mortgage on the farm was due May 16. Nigger Jim had Blondy in great form for the 1½ mile race. But the bookies were laying 20 to 1 against our nag. I managed to scare up exactly one thousand horses and placed the whole roll at 20 to 1. It was win the race or lose the farm.

The horses were away evenly but 300 yards from the start Blondy stumbled and lost stride. We groaned but heartened as she winged away, regaining lost ground at every jump. Then a horse cut in front of her. It was Dixie Dude, and she had to be pulled.

Down the back stretch and around the turn they came. Blondy was moving up on the outside. When they hit the stretch she and Dixie Dude were running head and head.

It looked like a certain dead heat but at the last jump or two Nigger Jim, hanging on the rail, yelled "Make a face, Yo' Blondy! Make a face!" Thank God! Blondy heard, straightened her neck, shot out her tongue across the finish line and won the race.

Man-Made Mesas

AFTER Paul Bunyan finished his work logging off the Pacific Northwest he decided he'd become an oil driller. First thing he did was to go down into New Mexico and begin drilling a well on top of a mountain.

Paul's well was sunk to a depth of 14,006 feet without a sign of oil. Funny thing about that mountain—it was made up of alternate layers of thin rock and dry sand.

One night a windstorm came up. And now she did blow! The next morning when Paul woke up he looked out of the window of his shack and such a sight as met his eyes! There was his hole, standing straight up in the air as high as he could see. The wind had blown all the sandy layers away from it but the layers of rock were hanging around it like washers pushed around a drill step.

Paul was pretty mad about it but he didn't waste any time standing around cussing. He just took a sledge and climbed up to the top of the hole. When he got there, he began pounding the hole down into the ground again. As he did so the layers of rock began to come together and in less than no time they made a mesa.

That sort of thing happens a time after time and that's why New Mexico is so full of mesas. They're perpetual monuments to Paul Bunyan's unsuccessful oil-drilling operations there.

The Squalling Squonk

SOME cold, winter night, as you sit before a roaring fire in a rustic lodge or in the bunkhouse of a lumber camp in the North Woods, you're certain to hear outside a long-drawn-out moaning. But if you think it's the wind in the bare branches of the trees, you're mistaken! Your lumberjack friend will tell you it's a squonk, moaning because it has a warty, ill-fitting skin.

That's all a squonk ever does—just goes wandering among the hemlock trees, weeping and sobbing bitterly because its skin doesn't fit. When the thermometer is down to nine degrees above zero, you can follow it by the little globules of ice it leaves behind—the squonk's trail of frozen tears.

Because it is such a shy, nocturnal animal few men have ever seen a squonk. But once a lumberjack, by imitating its cries, ured on into his cabin. The little beast seemed perfectly satisfied until he shut it up in a wicker basket. Then it began to sob and moan.

This went on for hours, then died down. The lumberjack peeked into the basket to see if the squonk had cried itself to sleep. But all he found was salt water and a few bubbles. The squonk had dissolved itself in its own tears.

"I mighta known better," said the lumberjack, as he added one of his own tears to the collection, "than to have shut up a squonk in a basket made from branches of the weeping willow tree."

Strange Burial Custom

The Toradjas, a primitive race of Celebes, have strange burial customs. The body remains in the house for two years, until the death rites have been completed, and then it is placed in a tomb, cut in the side of a mountain, the entrance of which is forever guarded by a lifelike effigy. Incidentally, the Toradjas are the only people whose holy men are known to dress in women's clothes.—C.W.

Habits Live

AMEL, the philosopher, was never wiser than when he said: "Habit counts for more than maxims, because habit is a living maxim, because habit is a living instinct. To reform one's maxims is nothing; it is but to change the title of the book. To learn new habits is everything, for it is to reach the substance of life. Life is but a tissue of habits." Each good habit we weave in our teens means a better and happier life to its very end.

Mercy is that disposition of the mind which prompts us to pity those in trouble.—Ann Flaxman.
