A NEW $65 BUGGY TO BE GIVEN AWAY BY THE BENTON TRIBUNE.

E. Rehkopf & Son's $65 Top Buggy.

This new $65 Top Buggy will be given to the person or persons who pay $1 for one year's subscription to the Benton Tribune and guesses the total number of votes polled in the Democratic primary election which is to take place on March 10, 1894. If no person or persons guess the exact number of votes polled in said primary election, then the person or persons guessing the number nearest to that number will be entitled to the buggy.

Every person who pays $1 for the Tribune between 6 o'clock of the morning of January 1st, and 9 o'clock at night of March 9, 1894, is entitled to a guess, which will be recorded in a register kept for that purpose, as the guesses come in, so that the lucky person or persons can be easily ascertained when the committee appointed for that purpose is ready to examine the guesses.

THE COUPON

There will be blank coupons, upon which all guesses must be made, published in each issue of the Tribune from now until March 7, 1894. They can be cut out, filled up and returned to the Tribune office any time between now and the hour when the guessing will be closed.

CUT OUT ALONG THIS LINE.

Buggy Coupon.

I guess there will be _____ votes polled in the Democratic Primary election March 10, 1894.

Name _____
Date _____ P. O. _____

CUT OUT ALONG THIS LINE.

The Primary election will be held on Saturday, March 10, 1894; circuit court will begin on the following Monday, the day upon which the committee will meet and count the votes. This committee will return to us a certificate of the total number of votes in said election this report from the committee will be final and the person or persons guessing the number or nearest to the number certified to by the said committee will be entitled to the buggy. If more persons than one guess the lucky number then the buggy will be turned over to them and they can dispose of their joint interest as they think best and as suits them.

INFORMATION

Below we give all the information we have at our command as regards the number of votes heretofore polled in primary elections in this county, in order to assist those who wish to try their luck at guessing at the results of the coming contest: The total number of votes polled in the primary four years ago was 597; in the congressional primary held in 1892 this county cast 739 votes, and in the year 1893 in the legislative primary election 597 votes were polled. These figures will show how many votes have at various primary elections been polled in this county, and will aid persons in guessing the total number of votes that will be cast at the coming March election.

THE OBJECT

The object in offering so valuable a gift to the lucky guesser is to increase our circulation, and make The Tribune a welcome visitor in every household in Marshall county. No county paper ever offered so great an inducement to its subscribers as this, and we hope that you will send in your subscription, get a chance at the buggy and get a good county paper for one year.

Golden Hill.

The society of the Sons of the Revolution have placed on the building owned and occupied by the Humphreys' Homeopathic Medicine company, corner William and John streets, New York City, a bronze tablet to commemorate the battle of "Golden Hill," where the first blood was shed in the war of the revolution.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Capital Catches.

Washington, Feb. 8, 1893.—Senator Voorhees, by virtue of his position as chairman of the Senate committee on finance, has taken command of the Wilson tariff bill, which confounded its enemies by the large majority it received in the house last week. That no time will be wasted by the committee in reporting the bill to the senate is made plain by these words from Mr. Voorhees: "We realize that what the country needs is repose, and believing that the passage of the bill is in the interest of the country at large and will be soon followed by a revival of business activity, we shall do all in our power to have the bill disposed of at the earliest moment possible." Senator Jones, of Arkansas, is chairman of the subcommittee of the finance committee that will have immediate charge of the tariff bill. He thinks the bill can be reported in side of three weeks. There is one very noticeable feature about tariff discussions here just now—the know-it-alls have ceased prophesying that the bill will be torn to pieces in the senate. Another thing that is exciting comment is the strength of the income tax in the senate.

The house discussion of the Hawaiian question, which ended with the adoption of a resolution satisfactory to the democrats, brushed away a great many cobwebs and brought the question down to a common sense basis, to say nothing of having brought about the complete squelching of the clown of the house, Boutelle, of Maine.

The bond issue is now an accomplished fact, and the $58,000,000 which will be paid for them will be in the treasury as soon as the bond can be signed and delivered at the designated depositories. The opposition in congress is quieted down so far as may be judged by outward appearances, although some of the populists are still bitter in their denunciations.

Chairman Wilson, of the house ways and means committee, is also chairman of the executive committee of the national association of democratic clubs, members of which have been notified to attend a special meeting in this city on the eighteenth of this month. While it is not so stated in the call, the principal object in this meeting is to help to push the Wilson tariff bill through the senate, by means of the organization of the association of clubs. In other words, the democratic clubs of the country will be asked to let the democratic senators know that the Wilson bill meets their approval and should be passed without delay other than that which is absolutely necessary. It is hoped that the finance committee will have reported the bill to the senate by the time the club committee meets.

The house committee on rivers and harbors will grant no more hearings, as the time of the members will be fully taken up in preparing the bill. The bill will probably carry a smaller appropriation than for a long time, and few improvements except those already under way will be provided for.

The house committee on banking and currency decided by a vote of 9 to 8 not to report a bill for the repeal of the tax on state bank currency. That is supposed to end the matter for this session so far as this committee is concerned, but members of the house who favor the repeal of the tax may try to get it before the house as an amendment to some other measure.

As a specimen of the dodges that are being resorted to by those who are opposed to the government's printing its own postage stamps that of bringing a committee here with a petition from the New York plate printers, setting forth the distress that would fall upon them should the government take this work away from them, is about the most transparent yet resorted to. The lowest private bidder for the work is a Philadelphia concern. So that the New York company is bound to lose the work, whether it comes to Washington, where it really belongs, or not.

The committee on coinage has favorably reported to the house Mr. Bland's bill for the coinage of the seigniorage in the treasury and the issuing of silver certificate against it. Mr. Bland will endeavor to get the bill acted upon at once. It is understood that Secretary Carlisle favors the bill and the general impression is that it will pass.

The sundry civil appropriation bill has been reported to the house. It carries a total of $32,291,382, which is $9,409,928, less than the same bill carried at the last session of congress.

President Cleveland is being very much misrepresented concerning the nomination of Mr. Peckham to the vacancy in the supreme court. Having nominated the man he thinks fitted for the position, he, of course, would like to see him confirmed, but he has done absolutely nothing to influence the vote of any senator, and has no intention of doing anything. His duty ended with making the nomination. It is a prerogative of the senate to confirm or to reject.

Why Hood's Wins.

President Lincoln said, "You cannot fool the people a second time." They are too quick to recognize real merit or lack of it, and cling only to those things which they find to be what is claimed for them.

It is especially gratifying that the sale of Hood's Sarsaparilla increases most rapidly in those sections where it is best known.

The inference is plain. Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven that it possesses genuine merit. It maintains a high standard, which others cannot even approach. It is the people's favorite blood-purifying and building up medicine, and is more popular this year than ever before. All this because Hood's cures.

Wat Hardin's Record.

Below we reprint a clipping from a Frankfort correspondent which shows the kind of a man we admire for governor. Read and believe it for it is true to the letter.

"Gen. Hardin was for many years the attorney general, and he made a superb record. He fought the railroads for the taxes due the state, and recovered hundreds of thousands of dollars. At the same time he was just, and he never attempted to wrong an individual or a corporation. The railroads sacrificed Hardin for Brown. They will not go into the next fight, for Clay's anti-corporation opinions are worse than the regular enforcement of the laws by a vigorous prosecutor like Hardin. On the other hand Hardin will incur no hostility on the ground that he is a friend of the railroads, for he has never been the attorney in any case for any railroad. This is a record that few prominent Kentucky politicians have."

Mr. Albert Favorite, of Arkansas City, Kan., wishes to give our readers the benefit of his experience with colds. He says "I contracted a cold early last spring that settled on my lungs, and had hardly recovered from it when I caught another that hung on all summer and left me with a hacking cough which I thought I never would get rid of. I had used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy some fourteen years ago with much success, and concluded to try it again. When I had got through with one bottle my cough had left me, and I have not suffered with a cough or cold since. I have recommended it to others, and all speak well of it." 50 cent bottles for sale by R. H. Starks.

Senator Tyler has introduced a bill making seduction a felony, punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary, unless the seducer marries his victim. It is substantially the law now in force in the state of Illinois.

Possible & Probable

That Romanists are alarmed.

That the cold wave killed the peaches.

That the A. P. A. has come to stay awhile.

That Talmage tabernacle will be sold for debt.

That Texas will become a tobacco raising state.

That a fair woman can usher in a foul day.

That when the tornado roareth, piety is at a premium.

That Kentucky will have a new capital building.

That obeying the Bible is better than expounding it.

That Clinton College is ahead; it has its largest enrollment.

That it is better to have false teeth than a false tongue.

That a false balance filth the till, and empties the soul.

That poor sermons, oft repeated portend a pastoral change.

That telephones will be cheaper. The patents have expired.

That the hope of many righteous is to get a loan at 4 per cent.

That he that hateth reproof doth better not go to the seminary.

That the man of understanding is one who knows when to quit.

That the tale-bearer beareth many tails, which wag him much.

That spring is nigh; the Waterbury Watch company has resumed.

That the Lord's straight ways are crooked to the cross-eyed sinner.

That the poor think of the rich more than the rich think of the poor.

That in the multitude of counselors, we are apt to find several fools.

That stubbornness oft passeth for firmness. Witness the average mule.

That Mayfield is happy because Eld. A. S. Pettie will remain as pastor.

That in destroying thy neighbor thy mouth is oft as fatal as thy musket.

That if thou wouldst multiply thine enemies, lend money to thy friends.

That it is better to write a little and have it read, than much and have it unread.

That people are to blame for keeping physicians from morning church services.

That the Tribune editor writeth up his friends, and writeth down his subscribers.

That tobacco is always a great curse in the mind of the man who useth it not.

That to him that hath, the wail of the poor is sometimes as the howl of a dog.

That a dollar given to the poor never stops doing good until it is returned to the miser.

That thy punched coin cast into the Sunday basket, will return with curses after many days.

That the colored Baptist, Rev J. H. Frank, was too much for the white Episcopal, Rev O. E. Craik.

That the desire of the righteous shall be granted, provided he wants the right thing, and not too much of it.

That death shrinks riches; Senator Stanford's $30,000,000 before death are after death only $17,000,000.

That the Cairo, Ill., saints can not capture the gifted H. N. Quisenberry. Old Virginia will tighten her grasp.

That it is as much your duty to strive to make much money right, as it is to strive to give much money right.

That Brown university has financial talent; of $800,000 recent donations less than $200,000 came from the Baptists.

That the Baptist Interpreter was the first Baptist paper in North Carolina, founded in 1833 by Bro. Thomas Meredith at Edenton.

That Chicago is largely a foreign city, as the following figures as to its population go to show: American, 292,463; German, 354,958; Irish, 215,534; Bohemian, 54,209; Polish, 52,756; Swedish, 45,877; Norwegian, 44,615; English, 33,785; French, 12,968; Scotch, 11,927; Welsh, 2,966; Russian, 6,977; Danes, 9,891; Italians, 5,000; Hollanders, 4,912; Hungarians, 4,827; Swiss, 2,735; Rumanians, 4,350; Canadians, 6,989; Belgians, 682; Greeks, 698; Spanish, 297; Portuguese, 34; East Indians, 28; West Indians, 27; Sandwich Isles, 31; Mongolians, 1,217; total, 1,248,763.

Joseph V. Dory, of Warsaw, Ill., was troubled with rheumatism and tried a number of different remedies, but says none of them seemed to do him any good, but finally he got hold of one that speedily cured him. He was much pleased with it, and felt sure that others similarly afflicted would like to know what the remedy was that cured him. He states for the benefit of the public that it is called Chamberlain's Pain Balm. For sale by R. H. Starks.

Mr. C. E. Davis, editor of the Bloomfield, Iowa, Farmer, says: "I can recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to all sufferers with colds and croup. I have used it in my family for the past two years and have found it the best I ever used for the purposes for which it is intended. 50 cent bottles for sale by R. H. Starks."

The Argument of the Life.

"When I was young," said a good old man, "I did not care for the concerns of eternity, and was very different from what I afterwards became. Aye, there was an infidel once as used to come and argue with me about religion, and one day I turned to him and said, 'You knew me as I used to be before I gave my heart to God. Now tell me, was I a better man then, nay, was I half as good a man as I have been since?'"

And the skeptic had not a word to say. There was no answering this plain argument. The skeptic knew what a sad, sinful young man this old man had been before he was brought to Christ and made a new creature in him, and he could not deny the change that had been wrought in him. A changed life is indeed one of the hardest arguments for an infidel to answer. There he sees the power of God unto salvation.

WED. EVENING, FEB. 14.

Can the third and republican parties fuse? We doubt it.

There is regular attendance at Sunday schools in the world of 22,397,808.

Sam Jones is in Nashville, Tenn. preaching to the benighted people of that city.

London is the largest city in the world, Paris the second, New York the third, Chicago the eighth and St. Louis the 27th.

Candidates for appellate judge are speaking about over the district. They have not spoken here yet, but will come by and by.

Who, oh, who will lead the forlorn hope this year for congress in this district on the peoples' party ticket? Will it be our friend, B. C. Keys? We hope so.

The congressional democratic committee meets in Paducah today to determine when a primary shall be held to nominate a candidate for congress.

The United States has 123,173 Sunday schools, with a total membership of 11,024,371. It is the greatest Sunday school country on the face of the earth.

The boy that carries a pistol will sooner or later be sorry for it. They will never be made happy by going about with a revolver in their pockets.

One hundred and sixteen years ago today Gen. Pickens routed the British. It was a memorable day, as is evidenced by the fact that 116 years have passed and we still remember it.

Thirty-two years ago tomorrow the battle of Fort Donelson was fought, which was on February 15, 1862. Thousands have died since then, yet thousands are living who well remember that terrible day.

Keep your eye on the mass convention that is to be held at Briensburg on the 17th of March. There is no qualification to a voter in that convention, and much fun is in store for visitors. The fight will be between Nelson and Dupriest.

At last John W. Chambers has been appointed postmaster at Fulton, and J. R. Graham at Clinton. These appointments were a long time coming, but we suppose they are good when they did come. It is true they are presidential offices and the appointments could not be made until the president saw fit to make them.

Polk Laffoon is a candidate for congress in the second district and will be elected. That district tried a new statesman, but now wants to return to the plain, honest Polk. A good man once in had better be kept in or the people will never rue it but once. When Polk gets back again it will be a cool day when the people pick up another.

The indications are now that if Capt. Stone stands for re-election, which we understand he will, that his strength will be greater in this county this year than ever before. Many of our best men who have heretofore voted against him say that the longer he remains in congress the better they like him and that they are now just learning his real value to his district. It is true he will have to encounter the same opposition (if it can be called opposition) that he has always had, but the great common voter of this district is not yet willing to give him up.

ANOTHER PLEDGE RE-DEEMED.

One by one the democratic party redeems its pledges to the people. Another nail is driven in the coffin of the republican party, and another step is taken by the democrats to rid the country of that infamous federal election law. It is repealed and the bill has received the signature of the president. Democrats, don't become alarmed, the party in power, ere the ideas of November arrive, will redeem other important pledges, and new signs of returning business will be seen developing all over the country as have not been seen here for a generation. The Sherman law repealed, the federal election law repealed and a new tariff bill in the senate.

DON'T CRY HARD TIMES.

It is unnecessary for men to be continually crying out "hard times" as long as our people are in as good condition as what they are. There are more men out of debt and free from the usual embarrassments of such in the country, at present, than have been for 30 years. There is hardly a day passes but what we hear men say "Well, I have not much of this world's goods, but I am out of debt and owe no man a cent." There are lots of such men in this county, and of course there are plenty of them in all of our sister counties, and as long as such a condition exists we must be permitted to say that the country is all right. There will never a time come when all men will be out of debt and have plenty around them, because there are some too idle, and others too extravagant to happen on to such a happy condition of home affairs. If the people will only work, live sober and economically and vote the democratic ticket, even a much better state of prosperity will soon exist.

We were so crowded, with matter last week that we overlooked some important matters of which we intended to speak, and among them was the announcement of Mr. Joe Robbins for the office of Judge of the court of appeals, of which we intended to say more than we did concerning him and his candidacy. If he had been a stranger to us or a man with whom we had no more than a passing acquaintance we might not have felt inclined to add more than appeared in the columns of the Tribune last week, but he is no stranger to us or to our people, but we know him and have known him for years, and we know him to be a soldier, moral, honest, capable, upright christian gentleman and when a young man rises from the dust and ashes, as he has done, and fits and qualifies himself—surrounded by so many admirable traits of true and useful character—we feel it our duty to the young men and boys, that are coming on behind, to call their attention to the life, character and ambition of such a gentleman. The position to which he aspires is one of great moment, and the people of the district should look well to the kind of a man that is placed in it, and in this mentioning it we can in this connection but say that Mr. Robbins, if elected will forever hold up the honor and dignity of the laws of Kentucky.

J. W. Holland, our veteran democratic friend of Birmingham, has been appointed to the position of United States storekeeper. This is a good position and will pay him a salary of twelve to fifteen hundred dollars per year. This is a well merited appointment and will give general satisfaction to the democrats in this county. This scores another victory for Mr. Stone, as doubtless Mr. Holland was endorsed by him.

Peculiar to Itself.
So eminently successful has Hood's Sarsaparilla been that many leading citizens from all over the United States furnish testimonials of cures which seem almost miraculous. Hood's Sarsaparilla is not an accident, but the ripe fruit of industry and study. It possesses merit "peculiar to itself."

Hood's pills cure nausea, sick headache, indigestion, biliousness. Sold by all druggists.

Do not be deceived by unscrupulous dealers into buying inferior and unhealthy Tolu. Ask for Hood's Fruit, nothing but the purest ingredients used in its composition.

VETO, PRESTO, CHANGE!

Four years ago J. J. Dupriest announced himself a candidate for county judge as a democrat, but very soon afterwards the democrats called a primary election to nominate candidates for the various county offices, after which he declined to be governed by said primary and ran as an independent and was elected by a very small majority over T. F. Harrison, the regular nominee. Four years passed and the time is close at hand when another election must be held to fill the same offices. He is a candidate for re-election and announced (not in the Tribune) that he would run as he did before as an independent candidate, but hark! Since the time he was elected as an independent a new party has sprung up, and its constituted authorities met and called a convention to meet at Briensburg on March 17, 1894, to nominate candidates for county offices. This new party is composed almost to a man of the men who voted for him as an independent four years ago, but now they dislike independents and want to vote for none but the nominees of their so-called peoples' party. But hush! me thinks I hear a troubling of the waters, said the judge, and many of my old friends are now leaving me and are wanting M. G. Nelson (who has not announced in the Tribune) as their nominee for county judge. Another change now comes over the political visions of his honor. "Veto, presto, change." He is now a full fledged peoples' party candidate, subject to the action of the convention that is to meet at Briensburg. So it is now Nelson and Dupriest running neck and neck for the nomination. There are no rules governing the persons who attend that convention and the man who can get out the greatest number of men regardless of their political affiliation and can get them to vote in it will get the nomination. We look for lively times in that convention between Nelson and Dupriest.

READ THIS.

Can the republicans see the marvelous prosperity which, according to republican prophecy, was certain to follow the passage of the McKinley act in 1890, proved to be a mirage full of disaster and distress? Like "the apples of Sodom which turned to ashes on the lips," the fruits of the great protection act have been unsatisfactory, disappointing and disastrous to the people. Stagnated trade, reduced values, closed factories, failing banks, mortgaged farms, unemployed labor, suffering people and a depleted treasury are some of the fruits of the law which we were told would be a blessing and a boon to all classes and all sections of our common country. The present conditions are the result of republican legislation and republican mismanagement. If the republican party had continued longer in power the greatest country on the earth would have been bankrupted and her people reduced to penury and want beyond what it is now.

A. B. Montgomery, who is the present faithful congressman in the fourth district, will have no opposition now. Dave Smith entered the race but has withdrawn and the field is left to Mr. Montgomery. He and Mr. Stone, our popular congressman, are close friends, and in their daily walk and work greatly resemble each other. When we were at Washington they were both boarding at the same place, and almost hand in hand alike they guarded the interests of their constituents, never failing to support such measures as were in touch with their people at home. They have both been in congress about the same length of time and are alike popular with their constituents. They at times have both had opponents for their places in congress, but in reality not much opposition. Mr. Montgomery is a hard man to beat, and so is Mr. Stone, in fact no one has ever yet been found who can beat them among their constituents.

There are 34 governors that draw less pay as salaries than the governor of Kentucky. Does that mean that Kentucky has a better governor than any of these states? No. Money don't get the best men these days, therefore we could have just as good governors at a $4,000 salary as a $5,000 salary. The time is at hand that the people should pay what a man is worth and no more.

From Calloway.

Among the many endearing letters we receive from the good old county of Calloway, relative to the congressional race, we publish below part of a letter from a prominent citizen of near Almo, which is as follows:

"I admire your paper very much for the bold stand it takes for Bill Stone. I am for Stone; I am for Stone; I am for Stone; I am going to vote for him forty years more if he offers for office that long.
When this district was all trodden down and the true democracy was in tatters, and its leaders trembled with fear, then it was that Bill Stone led it to victory. He put the ring in the third party's nose and has led it captive at his will wherever he has gone, and such a man is the man for me. Yours,

ALWAYS THERE.

Off the Track.

J. A. Clark another candidate for assessor dropped out of the race Monday and is now no longer in the fight. He says among other reasons why he is no longer in the race is that, after due investigation arrived at the conclusion that he could not win the nomination, and that to bring about a more perfect harmony in the party he feared if he received the nomination he might again lead the party to defeat as it was under his guidance before. Mr. Clark is one of the best qualified men for the office of assessor in the county and always has had a strong following, and if he had continued in the race doubtless would have received a strong vote.

Another Divorce Suit.

W. C. Washburn has brought suit in the circuit court against his wife for a divorce. It will be remembered that a year or so ago he and Miss A. A. Jackson, a beautiful young lady, were married but for some cause or other they did not live together long before his young wife tired of him and returned to her mother. He called to see her and she returned to her home and remained a while longer, but again she left him, and this little "kiss and make up" business continued until recently, when it is said she left him never again to return. Mr. Washburn came to the conclusion that to be divorced would be better, so he brings a suit charging her with abandonment and lewd and lascivious conduct. J. M. Fisher is his attorney, and Read & Oliver attorneys for defendant.

Marriage Last Sunday.

Early last Sunday morning fast horses were seen passing through the streets of this town towards the depot driven by brave young men and escorted by fair women.
The parties were Mr. C. H. Jones,
Jr., and Miss Ada Waller, Thos.
Waller and Miss V. Bondurant.
They took the early train for the south and stopped at Paris, Tenn., the green of all our young men and women wanting to get married. During their sojourn in that city license was secured and
Mr. C. H. Jones, Jr., and Miss Ada
Waller were made man and wife.
They returned home Sunday evening accompanied by Mr. Waller and Miss Bondurant. Mr. Jones is a prominent business man here, while his young wife is one of the pretty daughters of Mr. Alex Waller. The two make a handsome couple and are of two of the county's respected families. The Tribune congratulates Mr. Jones in winning the heart of so sweet a young woman as his life partner.
There was no particular parental objections to the marriage, but for a pleasant little trip they were married in Paris. He is 28 and she 20 years of age.

A Sad Death.

Albert Price, a young man aged about 21 years, who has been here going to school died Sunday at noon at his boarding house, of cerebro-spinal meningitis. He was boarding at Mr. J. C. Mc-Leod's, was taken ill Friday night with a chill and died Sunday at noon. He was a son of Mr. John Price, who lives between Fair Dealing and Birmingham. His parents were with him when he died and took his body Sunday evening to his home where it remained until Monday and was buried at the family burying ground in the presence of his near neighbors and friends. He was a kind hearted, exemplary young man and was dearly beloved by all who knew him.

John S. Edwards,

Of Adams, N. Y., makes the following sworn statement: Kenyon & Thomas: This is to certify that I know your wonderful medicine,
Dr. Hale's Household Ointment, will do in cases of pneumonia.
Last winter my mother, who is 75 years of age, was sick unto death with pneumonia. Both lungs were badly involved. The attending physician said she must die. As a last resort we commenced using your Dr. Hale's Household Ointment, applying it freely and thoroughly to the chest, keeping the lungs covered with hot flannels.
She soon began to improve and in 12 hours the crisis was past and she was out of danger, and is alive and well today. Your remedy saved her life.

A STUDY IN SCARLET

BY A. CONAN DOYLE

"I don't mind it, I do," the detective answered. "The tremendous exertions which I have gone through during the last day or two have worn me out. Not so much bodily exertion, you understand, as the strain upon the mind. You will appreciate that, Mr. Sherlock Holmes, for we are both brain workers."

"You do me too much honor," said Holmes gravely. "Let us hear how you arrived at this most gratifying result."

The detective seated himself in the arm-chair and puffed complacently at his cigar. Then suddenly he slapped his thigh in a paroxysm of amusement. "The fun of it is," he cried, "that that fool Lestrade, who thinks himself so smart, has gone off upon the wrong track altogether. He is after the secretary, Stangerson, who had no more to do with the crime than the babe unborn. I have no doubt that he has caught him by this time."

"The idea of Lestrade," said Gregson, "much that he laughed until he choked."

"And how did you get your clew?"

"Ah, I'll tell you all about it. Of course, Dr. Watson, this is strictly between ourselves. The first difficulty which we had to contend with was the finding of this American's antecedents. Some people would have waited until their advertisements were answered, or until parties came forward and volunteered information. That is not the way of the detective."

"You remember the hat beside the dead man?"

"Yes," said Holmes; "by John Underwood & Sons, 129 Camberwell road."

Gregson looked quite crestfallen.

"I had no idea that you noticed that," he said. "Have you been there?"

"No."

"But," cried Gregson, in a relieved voice, "you should never neglect a chance, however small it may seem."

"To a great mind nothing is little," remarked Holmes, sententiously.

"Well, I went to Underwood and asked him if he had sold a hat of that size and description. He looked over his books and came on it at once. He had sent the hat to a Mr. Drebbler, residing at Charpentier's boarding establishment, Torquay terrace. Thus I got at his address."

"Smart—very smart," murmured Sherlock Holmes.

"I next called upon Mrs. Charpentier," continued the detective. "I found her very pale and distressed. Her daughter was in the room, too—an uncommonly fine girl she is, too; she was looking red about the eyes and her lips trembled as I spoke to her. That didn't escape my notice. I began to smell a rat. You know the feeling, Mr. Sherlock Holmes, when you come upon the right scent—a kind of thrill in your nerves. 'Have you heard of the mysterious death of your boarder, Mr. Enoch J. Drebbler, of Cleveland?' I asked."

"The mother nodded. She didn't seem able to get out a word. The daughter burst into tears. I felt more than ever that these people knew something of the matter."

"At what o'clock did Mr. Drebbler leave your house for the train?" I asked.

"At eight o'clock," she said, gulping in her throat to keep down her agitation. "His secretary, Mr. Stangerson, said that there were two trains—one at 9:15 and one at 11. He was to catch the first."

"And was that the last which you saw of him?"

"A terrible change came over the woman's face as I asked the question. Her features turned perfectly livid. It was some seconds before she could get out the single word 'Yes,' and when it did come out it was in a husky, unnatural tone."

"There was silence for a moment, and then the daughter spoke in a calm, clear voice."

"No good can ever come of falsehood, mother," she said. "Let us be frank with this gentleman. We did see Mr. Drebbler again."

"God forgive you!" cried Mrs. Charpentier, throwing up her hands and sinking back in her chair. "You have murdered your brother."

"Arthur would rather that we spoke the truth," the girl answered firmly.

"You had best tell me all about it now," I said. "Half-confidences are worse than none. Besides, you do not know how much I know of it."

"On your head be it, Alice," cried her mother; and then, turning to me, she said, "I will tell you all, sir. Do not imagine" ing you all this, but since my poor daughter has disclosed it I have no alternative. Having once decided to speak, I will tell you all, without omitting any particular."

"It is your wisest course," said I.

"Mr. Drebbler has been with us nearly three weeks. He and his secretary, Mr. Stangerson, had been traveling on the continent. I noticed a 'Copenhagen' label upon each of their trunks, showing that that had been their last stopping place. Stangerson was a quiet, reserved man, but his manner was coarse in his habits and brutal in his ways. The very night of his arrival he became very much the worse for drink, and, indeed, after twelve o'clock in the day he could hardly ever be said to be sober. His manners toward the maid servants were disgustingly free and familiar. Worst of all, he speedily assumed the same attitude toward my daughter, Alice, and spoke to her more than once in a way which, fortunately, she is too innocent to understand. On one occasion he actually seized her in his arms and embraced her in an outrage which caused his own secretary to reproach him for his unmanly conduct."

"But why did you stand all this?" I asked. "I suppose that you can get rid of your boarders when you wish."

"Mrs. Charpentier blushed at my pertinent question. 'Would to God that I had given him notice on the very day he came,' she said. 'But it was a sore temptation. They were paying a pound a day each—fourteen pounds a week, and this is a slack season. I am a widow, and my boy in the navy has cost me much. I grudged to lose the money. I acted for the best. This last was too much, however, and I gave him notice to leave on account of it. That was the reason of his going.'"

"Well?"

"My heart grew light when I saw him drive away. My son is on leave just now, but I did not tell him anything of this, for his temper is violent, and he is passionately fond of his sister. When I closed the door behind them a load seemed to be lifted from my mind. Alas! in less than an hour there was a ring at the bell, and I learned that Mr. Drebbler had returned. He was much excited, and evidently the worse for drink. He forced his way into the room where I was sitting with my daughter, and made some incoherent remark about having missed the train. He then turned to Alice and, before my very face, proposed to her that she should fly with him. 'You are of age,' he said, 'and there is no law to stop you. Never mind the old girl here, but come along with me now straight away. You shall live like a princess.' Poor Alice was so frightened that she shrunk away from him, but he caught her by the wrist and endeavored to drag her toward the door. I intervened, and at that moment my son Arthur came into the room. What happened then I do not know. I heard oaths and the confused sounds of a scuffle. I was too terrified to raise my head. When I did look up I saw Arthur standing in the doorway laughing, with a stick in his hand. 'I don't think that fine fellow will trouble us again,' he said. 'I will just go after him and see what he does with himself.' With those words he took his hat and started off down the street. The next morning we heard of Mr. Drebbler's mysterious death."

"This statement came from Mrs. Charpentier's lips with many gasps and pauses. At times she spoke so low that I could hardly catch the words. I made shorthand notes of all that she said, however, so that there should be no possibility of a mistake."

"It's quite exciting," said Sherlock Holmes, with a yawn. "What happened next?"

"When Mrs. Charpentier paused," the detective continued, "I saw that the whole case hung upon one point. Fixing her with my eye in a way which I always found effective with women, I asked her at what hour her son returned."

"I do not know," she answered. "Not know?"

"No; he has a latch-key, and let himself in."

"After you went to bed?"

"Yes."

"When did you go to bed?"

"About eleven."

"So your son was gone at least two hours?"

"Yes."

"Possibly four or five?"

"Yes."

"What was he doing during that time?"

"I do not know," she answered, turning white to her very lips. "Of course after that there was nothing more to be done. I found out where Lieut. Charpentier was, took two officers with me, and arrested him. When I touched him on the shoulder and warned him to come quietly with us, he answered us as bold as brass. 'I suppose you are arresting me for being concerned in the death of that scoundrel, Drebbler,' he said. He had said nothing to him about it, so that his alluding to it had a most suspicious aspect."

"Very," said Holmes.

"He still carried the heavy stick which the mother described him as having with him when he followed Drebbler. It was a stout oak cudgel."

"What is your theory, then?"

"Well, my theory is that he followed Drebbler as far as the Brixton road. When there, a fresh altercation arose between them, in the course of which Drebbler received a blow from the stick in the pit of the stomach, perhaps, which killed him without leaving any mark. The night was so wet that no one was about, so Charpentier dragged the body of his victim into the empty house. As to the candle, and the blood, and the writing on the wall, and the ring, they may all be so many tricks to throw the police on to the wrong scent."

"Well done!" said Holmes, in an encouraging voice. "Really, Gregson, you are getting along. We shall make something of you yet."

"I flatter myself that I have managed it rather neatly," the detective answered proudly. "The young man volunteered a statement in which he said that after following Drebbler some time, the latter perceived him, and took a cab in order to get away from him. On his way home he met an old shipmate, and took a long walk with him. On being asked where this old shipmate lived, he was unable to give any satisfactory reply. I think the whole case fits together uncommonly well. What amuses me is to think of Lestrade, who had started off upon the wrong scent. I am afraid he won't make much of it. Why, by Jove, here's the very man!"

It was indeed Lestrade, who had ascended the stairs while we were talking, and who now entered the room. The assurance and jaunty manner which generally marked his demeanor and dress were, however, wanting. His face was disturbed and troubled, while his clothes were disarranged and untidy. He had evidently come with the intention of consulting with Sherlock Holmes, for on perceiving his colleague he appeared to be embarrassed and put out. He stood in the center of the room, fumbling nervously with his hat, and uncertain what to do. "This is a most extraordinary case," he said at last—"a most incomprehensible affair."

"Ah, you find it so, Mr. Lestrade?" cried Gregson, triumphantly. "I thought you would come to that conclusion. Have you noticed the remainder of the secretary, Mr. Joseph Stangerson?"

"The secretary, Mr. Joseph Stangerson," said Lestrade, gravely, "was murdered at Halliday's private hotel about six o'clock this morning."

"LIGHT IN THE DARKNESS."

The intelligence with which Lestrade greeted us was so momentous and so unexpected, that we were all three fairly dumfounded. Gregson sprang out of his chair and upset the remainder of his whisky and water. I stared in silence at Sherlock Holmes, whose lips were compressed and his brows drawn down over his eyes.

"Stangerson, too?" he muttered. "The plot thickens."

"It was quite thick enough before," I grumbled. Lestrade, taking a chair, seemed to have dropped into a sort of council of war.

"Are you—are you sure of this piece of intelligence?" stammered Gregson. "I have just come from his room," said Lestrade. "I was the first to discover what had occurred."

"We have been hearing Gregson's view of the matter," Holmes observed. "Would you mind letting us know what you have seen and done?"

"I have no objection," Lestrade answered, seating himself. "I freely confess that I was of the opinion that Stangerson was concerned in the death of Drebbler. This fresh development has shown me that I was completely mistaken. Full of the one idea, I set myself to find out what had become of the secretary. They had been seen together at Euston station about half-past eight on the evening of the third. At two in the morning Drebbler had been found in the Brixton road. The question which confronted me was to find out how Stangerson had been employed between half-past eight and the time of the crime, and what had become of him afterward. I telegraphed to Liverpool giving a description of the man, and warning them to keep a watch upon the American boats. I then set to work calling upon all the hotel and lodging houses in the vicinity of Euston. You see, I argued that if Drebbler and his companion had become separated, the natural course for the latter would be to put up somewhere in the vicinity for the night and then to hang about the station again next morning."

"They would be likely to agree on some meeting place beforehand," remarked Holmes.

"So it proved. I spent the whole of yesterday evening in making inquiries entirely without avail. This morning I began very early, and at eight o'clock I reached Halliday's private hotel, in Little George street. On my inquiry as to whether a Mr. Stangerson was living there, they at once answered me in the affirmative."

"No doubt you are the gentleman he was expecting," they said. "He has been waiting for a gentleman for two days."

"Where is he now?" I asked.

"He is upstairs in bed. He wished to be called at nine."

"It seemed to me that my sudden appearance might shake his nerves and lead him to say something unguarded. The Boots volunteered to show me the room; it was on the second floor, and there was a small corridor leading up to it. The Boots pointed out the door to me, and was about to go downstairs again, when I saw something that made me feel sickish, in spite of my twenty years' experience. From under the door there curled a little red ribbon of blood, which had been smeared across the passage and formed a little pool along the skirting at the other side. I gave a cry, which brought the Boots back. He nearly fainted when he saw it. The door was locked on the inside, but we put our shoulders to it, and knocked it in. The window of the room was open, and the body of a man in his night-dress. He was quite dead, and had been for some time, for his limbs were rigid and cold. When we turned him over the Boots recognized him at once as being the same gentleman who had engaged the room under the name of Joseph Stangerson. The cause of death was a deep stab in the left side, which must have penetrated the heart. And now comes the strangest part of the affair. What do you suppose was above the murdered man? flesh, and a pre-emptory coming horror, even before Sherlock Holmes answered."

"The word 'rache,' written in letters of blood," he said.

"That was it," said Lestrade, in an awe-struck voice; and we were all silent for awhile.

There was something so methodical and so incomprehensible about the deeds of this unknown assassin, that it imparted a fresh ghastliness to his crimes. My nerves, which were steady enough on the field of battle, tingled as I thought of it.

"The man was seen," continued Lestrade. "A mill-boy, passing on his way to the dairy, happened to walk down the lane which leads from the mews at the back of the hotel. He noticed that a ladder, which usually lay there, was raised against one of the windows of the second floor, which he wide open. After passing, he looked back and saw a man descend the ladder. He came down so quietly and openly that the boy imagined him to be some carpenter or joiner at work in the hotel. He took no particular notice of him, beyond the fact that he was carrying a bag, and he was early for him to be at work. He has an impression that the man was tall, had a reddish face, and was dressed in a long, brownish coat. He must have stayed in the room some little time after the murder, for we found blood-stained marks on the basin, and marks on the sheet where he had deliberately wiped his knife."

I glanced at Holmes on hearing the description of the murderer, which tallied so exactly with his own. There was, however, no trace of exultation or satisfaction upon his face.

"Did you find nothing in the room which could furnish a clew to the murderer?" he asked.
